The other queer of them that gaue thankes, went ouer agaynst them, and I after them, and the halfe parte of the people vpon the wall, beyonde the fornacegate, vntyll the brode wall, and beyonde the porte of Ephraim, & beyonde the Oldgate, beyonde the fyshgate, and the tower of Hananeel, and the tower of Mea, vntyll the Shepegate. And they stode styll in the presongate, and so stode the two queers (of them that gaue thankes) in the house of God, and I and the halfe of the rulers with me, and the Preastes, namely Eliakim, Maasia, Miniamin, Michaia, Elioenai, zachary and Hanania, with trompettes, and Maasia, Semeiah, Eleasar, Usi, Jehohanan, Melchiah, Elam and Ser. And the syngers sange loude, haupynge Jesrahiah for theyr ouerseer.

And the same daye, they offred greate sacrifyces and reioyced: for God had geuen thē greate gladnesse, so that both the wyues and chyldren were ioyfull, and the myrth of Jerusalem was herde farre of.

At the same tyme were there men appoynted ouer the treasure houses (wherin were the heue offerynges, the fyrstlynges & the tythes) that they shulde geather them out of the feldes aboute the cytyes, to destribute them vnto ꝑ preastes & Leuites accordyng to ꝑ lawe: for Juda was glad of the preastes preastes, & Leuites, that they stode & wayted vpō ỹ office of their God, which is a pure office. And ỹ singers & porters stode after ỹ cōmaundmēt of Dauid & of Salomō his sonne: * for in the tyme of Dauid & Asaph, were the chefe syngers foūded, & ỹ songes of prayse & thankesgeuyng vnto God. In the tyme of Zorobabel & Nehemia, dyd all they of Israel, geue portions vnto the syngers ād porters, euery daye hys portion, and they gaue tythes vnto ỹ Leuites: and ỹ Leuites gaue tythes agayne, vnto the children of Aaron. *1.par.xxiij.a.

¶ The. xiij. Chapter.

¶ The lawe is read, & when they haue heard it, they separate from them all straungers &c.

AND ỹ daye dyd they reade in the boke of Moses, & ỹ people herkened therto, & there was foūd writen therin, * ỹ the Ammonites & Moabites shulde neuer come into the cōgregacion of God, because they mett not ỹ children of Israel wt bread ād water, * but hyred Balaā agaynst them, ỹ he shuld curse them: and oure God turned the curse into a blessing. Now when they herde the lawe, it forthwith, ỹ they seperated from Israell euery one that had myxte hym selfe therin And before this had ỹ preast Eliasib ỹ ouer syght of ỹ treasury of ỹ house of oure God, & he was kynsman vnto Tobia: & had made him a great chambre, & there had they afore tyme layed ỹ offerynges, frankencense, vessell, & the tythes of corne, and wyne and oyle (accordyng to the cōmaundement geuē to the Leuites, syngers and porters) and the heueoffrynges of the preastes: * Exo.xxiij.a.

But in all this tyme was not I at Jerusalē: for in ỹ two & thyrtie yeare of Artaxerses kyng of Babylō, came I vnto the kyng, and after certayne dayes optayned I yeere of the kyng to come to Jerusalē. And I gat knowlege of ỹ euell that Eliasib dyd vnto Tobia, in ỹ he had made him a chābre in the court of the house of God, and it greued me sore, & I cast forth all the vessels of the house of Tobia out of the chābre, and commaunded them to clēse the chambres. And thither brought I agayne the vessels of the house of God, with the meatoffering, and the incense.

And I perceaued, that the portiōs of the Leuites were not geuē them, and that euery one fled to his land, euen ỹ Leuites and syngers ỹ executed ỹ worke. Thē reproued I ỹ rulers, & sayd, why is ỹ house of God forsakē? And I gathered thē together, & set thē in their place. Then brought all Juda ỹ tythes of corne, & wyne and oyle vnto the treasure. And I made treasurers ouer ỹ treasure, euē Seleniah the preast, & Sadoc the scrybe, and of the Leuites, Phadaia, & vnder their hand was Hanan the sonne of Zacur the sonne of Mathania: for they were counted faythfull, and their office was to distribute the portiōs vnto their brethren. * Thynke vpon me O my God here in, and wipe not out my mercy that I haue shewed on the house of my God, and on the offices therof. *1.Esd.v.c.

At the same tyme sawe I some tredynge wyne presses on the Saboth, & bryngyng in sheues, & alles laden wt wyne, grapes, figges & brynging all maner of burthens vnto Jerusalē, vpō the Sabaoth daye. And I rebuked thē earnestly ỹ same daye that they sold the vitayles. There dwelt mē of Tyre also therin, which brought fysh and all maner of ware, & solde on the Saboth vnto ỹ children of Juda in Jerusalem. Then reproued I the rulers in Juda, & sayde vnto thē: what euell thyng is this ỹe do, & breake the Saboth daye? Dyd not youre fathers euē thus, & our God brought all thys plage vpon vs & vpō this cytie? And ye make the wrath more yet vpon Israel, in that ye breake the Saboth. C C

And it fortuned, ỹ whē the portes of Jerusalem beganne to be darke in the euenyng before the Saboth, I commaunded to shutt the gates, ād charged, that they shuld not be opened tyll after the Saboth: & some of my seruauntes set I at the gates, ỹ there shulde no burthē be brought in on ỹ Saboth daye. Then remayned ỹ chapmen & marchauntes once or twyce ouer nyght without Jerusalē wyth all maner of wares. Then reproued I them sore, and sayde vnto thē: why tary ye all nyght about the wall? If ye do it once agayne, I wyll laye handes vpon you. From ỹ tyme forth came they nomore on the Saboth. And I sayde vnto the Leuites ỹ they shulde clense thē selues, and that they shulde come and kepe the gates, to halowe the Saboth daye. Thynke vpon me (O my God) concernyng this also, & spare me, accordyng to thy great mercy. D D

And at the same tyme sawe I Jewes, that maried wyues of Asdod, of Ammon and of Moab, & their childrē spake halfe in ỹ speach of Asdod, & coulde not speake in the Jewes language, but by the tong myght a mā perceaue euery people. Then I reproued them, & cursed them, & smote certayne men of thē, & made thē bare, and toke an ooth of thē by God: Ye shal not geue your daughters vnto their sōnes, nether shall ye take their daughters vnto youre sonnes, or for youre selues. Dyd not Salomō the kyng of Israel synne for soch? and yet among many heythen was there no kynge lyke him, whych was deare vnto his God, & God made him kynge ouer all Israel, & yet neuertheles, outlandysh wemen caused hi to synne? Shall we then obeye vnto you, to do all this great euell, & to trāsgresse agaynst oure God, and marye straūge wyues?

And one of the children of Jehoiada the

sonne of Eliasib the hye preast, had made a cõtracte with Sanabalat the Horonite: but I chaced him from me. (O my God) thynke thou vpon them that defyle the prestlhode, & the couenaunt of the prestlhode & of the Leuites. Thus clensed I thẽ from all soch as were outlandish, and appoynted the courses of ỹ preastes & Leuites, euery one in his office, & to offre the wod at tymes appoynted, and the fyrst frutes. Thinke thou vpon me (O my God) for the best. (Amen.)

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of Esdras, otherwyse called the boke of Nehemia.

¶ The boke of Esther

The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Kyng Ahasuerus maketh a royall feast, vnto the quene Vasthi wyll not come, for wherby cause she is deposed.

¶ Fortuned

A in the dayes of Ahasuerus whych raygned from India vnto Ethiopia (ouer an hũdreth and seuen and twenty landes) euen in those dayes whan the kyng Ahasuerus sate on his seate royall, which was in Susan ỹ chefe cytie, in ỹ thirde yeare of his raygne, he made a feast vnto all his princes & seruautes. And the myghtye men of Persia & Media, the captaynes also & rulers of his countrees were before him, & he shewed the riches and glorye of his kyngdome, & the glorious worshippe of hys greatnesse, many dayes longe, euen an hundreth and foure score dayes.

B And when these dayes were expyred, the kyng made a feast vnto all ỹ people, ỹ were in Susan the chefe cytie, both vnto great ãd small, seuen dayes long in the court of ỹ garden by the kynges palace: where there hãged white, grene & palow clothes, fastened with coardes of fyne sylke & purple in syluer rynges, vpon pylers of Marble stone.

The benches also were of golde & syluer made vpon a pauement of grene, white, palow and black Marble. And they dranke in vessels of golde, & chaũged vessell after vessell. And the kynges wyne was moch, accordyng to the power of the kyng. And ỹ drinke was so apoynted ỹ none shulde compell anye man, for so the kyng had cõmaunded by the officers of his house, ỹ euery one shuld do as it liked him. And ỹ quene Vasti made a feast also for the wemen in the palace of Ahasuerus. And on the seuenth daye when the kyng was mery after ỹ wyne, he cõmaunded Mehuman, Bizetha, Harbona, Bigtha, Abagthan, Zethar & Carchas, the seuen chamberlaynes (ỹ dyd seruice in the presence of kyng Ahasuerus) to fetch the quene Vasti with ỹ D crowne regal into the kynges presence that he myght shewe the people and princes her fairnesse, for she was bewtifull. But ỹ quene Vasthi wolde not come at ỹ kinges word by his chamberlaynes. Then was ỹ kyng very wroth, & his indignacion kyndled in him.

And the kyng spake to the wyse men, that had vnderstanding in the ordinaunces of the land, for the kynges matters must be hãdled before all soch as haue knowlege of the lawe and iudgement: and the ~~& (check and)~~ next vnto E.1 hi were, Carsena, Sethar, Admata, Tharsis, Mares, Marsena, & Mamucan, the seuẽ princes of Persia, and Media, whych sawe the kynges face, & sat aboue in the kyngdom What lawe (saieth ỹ king) shuld be executed vpon the quene Vasthi, because she dyd not accordyng to the worde of the kyng Ahasuerus, whych he cõmaunded by his chamberlaynes? And Memucan answered before the kyng and the princes: the quene Vasthi hath E not onely done euell agaynst the kynge, but also agaynst all the princes and agaynst all the people ỹ are in all ỹ landes of kyng Ahasuerus: for this dede of the quene shall come abrode vnto all wemẽ, so ỹ they shall despised their husbãdes before their eyes, and shal saye: the kyng Ahasuerus cõmaũded Vasthi ỹ quene to be brought in before hym, but she wold not come. And so shall the princesses in Persia ãd Media saye likewyse vnto all the kynges princes, whẽ they heare of this dede of the quene, thus shall there aryse to moch despite fulnes & wrath. If it please the kyng therfore, let there go a commaundmẽt from him, & let it be writtẽ accordyng to the lawes of the Persians and Medians (and not to be transgressed) ỹ Vasthi come nomore before kyng Ahasuerus, & let ỹ king geue her kingdome vnto another, that is better then she.

And when this commaundement of the kyng (which shalbe made) is published thorow out all his empire (whych is greate) all wemen shall hold their husbãdes in honoure both among great and small.

This

This pleased the kyng & the prynces: and the kyng dyd accordyng to the word of Memucan. For he sent letters forth in to all the kynges lãdes, in to euery land, accordyng to the wryting therof, & to euery people after their lãguage, þ euery man shulde be lord in his awne house. And this caused he to be spoken after the language of his people.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

¶ After the quene is put awaye, certen goodly yong damoselles are searched out, & till at other wyle called Esther, pleaseth the kyng, & is made quene. Mardocheus openeth vnto the kynge those that wolde betraye hym.

AFter these actes, whẽ the displeasure of king Ahasuerus was now layed, he thought vpon Vasthi, & what she had done, ãd what was concluded agaynst her. Then sayd the kynges seruauntes that ministred vnto him: Let there be sayre young virgins sought for the kyng, and the kyng appointed certayne men in all the landes of his empyre, whõ he charged þ they shuld bryng together all the sayre yong virgins vnto Susan the headcite, to the wemẽs buylding, vnder the hand of Hagei the kynges chamberlayne, that kepte the wemen, to geue them their apparell (& other thynges necessary to be had.) And that the damsell whych pleased the kynge shuld be quene in Vasthis steade. And this pleased the kyng, and he dyd so.

In the cyte of Susan there was a Jewe, whose name was Mardocheus, the sonne of Jair, the sonne of Semei, the sonne of Cisa mã of Jemini, which was carryed awaye frõ Jerusalem, * whã Jekonia the kyng of Juda was led awaye, (whom Nabuchodonozor the kyng of Babilon caryed thence (& he nozished Hadassa (that is Esther) his vncles daughter: for she had nether father nor mother, and she was a sayre & beutyfull dãsell: whõ Mardocheus (whẽ her father & mother was deed) receaued for his awne daughter.

* 4.Reg.xxiiij.c Jere.xxiij.a.

So it fortuned that when the kynges commaundemẽt & cõmission was published, and many damosels were brought together in the cite of Susan vnder the hande of Hagei. Esther was brought also vnto the kynges house vnder the hand of Hagei the keper of the wemen, & the damsell pleased him, and she founde fauoure in his syght. And he caused ornamentes to be geuen her & soch thynges as belonged to her, and appointed her seuen cõlye damsels out of the kynges house, & fauoured both her and her gentyll wemen singularly in the house of the wemen. But Esther shewed not her people & her kynred: for Mardocheus had charged her, that she shuld not tell it. And Mardocheus walked euery daye before the court of the wemens house, that he myght knowe howe Esther dyd, and what shulde become of her.

And when the appoynted tyme of euery damsell came, that she shuld go into þ kyng Ahasuerus, after that she had bene twelue monethes in the deckynge of the wemen (for their deckynge must haue so moch tyme, namely syxe monethes with Balme & Myrre, ãd syxe monethes with good spices, so were the wemen beutyfyed) then went there one damosell vnto the kyng, ãd whatsoeuer she requyred (so that it were comely) that must be geuen her to go wyth her out of the wemens buylding vnto þ kynges palace. In the euenyng she went, and in the morow agayne into the seconde house of the wemen abyding vnder the hand of Saasgas the kynges chamberlayne, whych kept the concubines. And she came in vnto the kyng nomore, excepte it pleased the kyng to haue her, and that he called her by name.

Now when the tyme came of Esther the daughter of Abihan the vncle of Mardocheus (whych had receaued her as hys awne daughter) that she shuld come into þ kyng, she desyred nothyng, but what Hagei the kynges chamberlayne the keper of the wemen, sayde.

And Esther found fauoure in the syght of all them þ loked vpon her. And Esther was taken vnto kyng Ahasuerus into his house royall, in þ tenth moneth which is þ moneth * Tebeth, in þ seuenthyeare of his raygne. * December.

And the kyng loued Esther aboue all the wemen, & she found grace and fauoure in hys syght before all the virgins: so that he set the crowne of the kyngdome vpon her head, and made her quene in steade of Vasthi. And the kyng made a great feast vnto all his princes and seruauntes (which feast was because of Esther) & caused þ landes to be in quyetnes, & gaue giftes, as became þ royaltye of a kig.

And when the virgins were gathered together the seconde tyme, Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate. And as yet had not Esther shewed her kynred and her people, accordige as Mardocheus had bydden her: for Esther dyd after the worde of Mardocheus, lyke as yf she had bene yet vnder hys gouernaunce. At the same tyme, whyle Mardocheus sat in the kynges gate, two of the kynges chãberlaynes Bigthan and Theres which kept the doze, were wroth, & sought to laye their handes on þ kyng Ahasuerus: wherof also Mardocheus gat knowledge, * and tolde it vnto quene Esther, & Esther certifyed the kyng therof in Mardocheus name. And when inquisicion was made, it was founde so. And they were both hanged on tre: and it was written in the Chronycles before the kynge. * Esther vi.a

¶ The .iij. Chapter.

¶ Haman the Macedonian, after he was exalted obtayned of the kyng that all the Jewes shuld be put to deeth, because Mardocheus had not done hym worshyp, as other had.

A After these actes dyd ꝑ kynge Ahasuerus promote Haman the sonne of Amadatha ꝑ Agagite, & set him vpe, & set hys seat aboue all ꝑ princes that he had with him. And all the kynges seruauntes that were in the kynges gate, bowed their knees, and worshypped Hamā: for the kyng had so commaunded cōcernyng him. But Mardocheus bowed not the knee, and worshypped him not. Then the kynges seruauntes whych were in the kynges gate, sayde vnto Mardocheus: why transgressest thou the kynges commaundment? And whē they spake thus daylie vnto him, he folowed them not, and they tolde Haman, that they myght se how Mardocheus matters wolde endure: for he had told them, that he was a
B Jewe. And when Haman sawe, that Mardocheus bowed not the knee vnto him, nor worshipped him, he was full of indignaciō, and thought it to lyttell to laye handes onely on Mardocheus: for they had shewed him ꝑ nacio of Mardocheus, wherfore he sought to destroye all the Jewes, that were throw out the whole empyre of Ahasuerus, and that were of the nacion of Mardocheus.

In the fyrst moneth (that is the moneth Nisan) in the twelueth yeare of kyng Ahasuerus they cast Phur (that is a lott) before
C Haman from daye to daye, and from moneth to moneth, to the twelueth moneth that is the moneth Adar. And Haman sayde vnto kynge Ahasuerus: There is here a people scatered abrode and dispersed amōg all people in all the landes of thyne empyre, & they haue their lawes contrary from all people, & do not after the kynges lawes, nether is it the kynges profet to suffre them after thys maner. If it please the kynge, let it be wrytten, that they maye be destroyed, & so wyll I weye downe ten thousand talētes of syluer, by the handes of ꝑ worckmen, to be brought into the kynges treasure. And the kyng toke his rynge from his hand, & gaue it vnto Haman the sonne of Amidatha the Agagite the Jewes enemye. And the kynge sayde vnto Haman: Let the syluer be geuen the, and do with that people as it pleaseth the.

D Then were the kynges scrybes called on ꝑ thirteneth daye of ꝑ fyrst moneth (that is Nisan) and there was wrytten (according as Hamā commaunded) vnto all the kynges officers & to the captaynes that were in all the landes, and to the rulers of euery people in the countreyes on euery syde, according to the wrytyng of euery nacion, and after their lāguage, in the name of kyng Ahasuerus was it wrytten and sealed with the kynges rynge. And the wrytynges were sent by postes into all the kynges landes, to rote out, to kyll, and to destroye all Jewes, both yong & olde, chyldren & wemen in one daye (namely vpon the thirteneth daye of the twelueth moneth, whych is the moneth * Adar) & to * Februarij. spoyle their goodes.

This was the summe of the wryting, ꝑ there shulde be a cōmaundement geuen in all landes, and published vnto all people, that they shulde be ready agaynst the same daye. And the postes went in all ꝑ hast, according to the kynges commaundement. And in Susan the chefe cytie was the commaundement deuised. And ꝑ kyng & Haman sate & dranke: whan in the meane tyme the cytie of Susan was disquieted.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

¶ Mardocheus geueth the queue knowledge of the cruell decree of the kyng agaynst the Jewes.

When Mardocheus perceaued all ꝑ was done, he rente A his clothes and put on sack cloth, with asshes, and wēt out into the myddes of the cytie, and cryed loud and lamentably, & came before the kynges gate: but he myght not entre within ꝑ kynges gate, because he had sack cloth on. And in all lādes, coūtrees, & places, as farre as the kynges worde and cōmaundment extended, there was greate lamētacion amōg the Jewes, fasting, weping, and mourning, and many laye in sack clothes & asshes. So Esthers damosels and her chāberlaynes, came & told it her. Then was the quene exceadyngly astonnied. And she sent raymēt, that Mardocheus shulde put on, ād laye the sack B cloth from him. But Mardocheus wold not take them. Then called Esther Hathath one of the kynges chamberlaynes (whych stode before her) and gaue him a commaundment vnto Mardocheus, ꝑ he might knowe what it were, wherfore he dyd so. So Hathat wēt forth to Mardocheus vnto the strete of ꝑ cytie, whych was before the kynges gate.

And Mardocheus tolde him of all ꝑ had happened vnto him, ād of the summe of syluer ꝑ Haman had promised to weye downe into ꝑ kynges treasury, because of ꝑ Jewes ꝑ he wolde destroye thē (& he gaue hym the coppe of the kynges commaundement, that was deuysed at Susan, to destroye thē, that he might shewe it vnto Esther) ād to speake to her, and charge her, that she shuld go in to the kyng, and make her prayer and supplicacion vnto him for her people.

And whē Hathath came in, he told Esther C the wordes of Mardocheus. And agayne, Esther spake vnto Hathath, & commaunded him to saye vnto Mardocheus: all the kynges seruauntes, & the people in the landes of the kynge, knowe that whosoeuer commeth within the court vnto the kyng, whether it be man or woman, whych is not called, ꝑ cōmaundment is, ꝑ the same shall dye, excepte

the

the kynge holde out the golden scepter vnto
him (in token of graciousnes) for then he shall lyue.
As for me, I haue not bene called to come into the kyng now this thyrtie dayes.

And they certifyed Mardocheus of Esthers wordes, & Mardocheus bad saye agayne vnto Esther, thynke not to saue thyne awne lyfe, while thou art in ꝑ kynges house, before all Jewes: for yf ꝑ holdest thy peace at this tyme, thē shall the Jewes haue helpe and deliueraūce out of another place, & thou & thy fathers house shalbe destroyed. And who knoweth whether thou art come to the kyngdom, for this causes sake? Esther bad thē gene Mardocheus this answer: Go thou thy waye, ād gether together all the Jewes that are found at Sulan, and fast ye for me, that ye eat not and drynke not in thre dayes, nether daye nor nyght. I and my damosels will fast lykewise, and so will I go into the kyng, which thing yet, is contrary to the cōmaundment: and yf I perishe, I perishe. So Mardocheus went his waye, & dyd all that Esther had commaunded him.

The.v.Chapter.

Esther entreth into the kyng and bydeth hym and Haman to a feast. Haman prepareth a gallowe for Mardocheus.

And on the thyrde daye it fortuned, that Esther put on her royall apparell, & stode in the court of the kynges palace within, ouer agaynst ꝑ kynges house. And the kyng sate vpon his royall seate in the kynges palace ouer agaynst the gate of the house. And when the kyng sawe Esther the quene standyng in the court, she found grace in hys syght. And the kyng held out the golden scepter that was in his hande towarde Esther. So Esther stepte forth, and touched the toppe of the scepter. Then sayde the kynge vnto her: What wylt thou quene Esther? and what requyrest thou? aske euen the halfe of the empire, and it shall be geuen the. And Esther answered, If it please the kyng, let the kyng & Haman come this daye vnto the banchet, that I haue prepared for hym. And the kyng sayde: cause Haman to make haste, that he maye do as Esther hath sayde.

So the kyng & Haman came to the banket ꝑ Esther had prepared, & the kyng sayde vnto Esther at the banchet of wyne: what is thy peticyon? that it maye be geuen the. And what requyrest thou? If it be euen the halfe of the empire, it shalbe done.

Then answered Esther, and sayd, my peticion and desyre is, yf I haue founde grace in the syght of the kyng, and yf it please the kyng, to geue me my peticiō, & to fulfyll my request, then let the kyng & Haman come to the banchet ꝑ I shall prepare for th m, and so will I do tomorow, as the kyng hath sayde.

Then went Haman forth the same daye ioyfull and merp in his mynde. And whē the same Haman sawe Mardocheus in ꝑ kynges gate, ꝑ he stode not vp & kneled before hym, he was full of indignacion at Mardocheus. Neuertheles, Haman refrayned him selfe: & whē he came home, he sent, and called for his frendes, & zares his wyfe, and Haman tolde them of the glory of his ryches, and the multitude of his children, & all together howe ꝑ kyng had promoted him so greatly, ād howe that he had set him aboue the princes ād seruauntes of the kyng. Haman sayd moreouer: Yee & Esther ꝑ quene dyd let no man come in with the kyng vnto the banchet that she had prepared, excepte me, & tomorow am I bidden vnto her also with the kyng. But in all this am I not satisfyed, as lōge as I se Mardocheus the Jewe sytteynge at the kynges gate. Then sayd zares hys wyfe and all hys frēdes vnto him: Let them make a galowse of fyftye cubites hye, and tomorow speake thou vnto ꝑ kyng, that Mardocheus maye be hanged theron, & go thou in merely with the kynge vnto the banchet. And Haman was wel content with all, & caused the galowes to be made.

The.vj.Chapter.

The kyng turneth ouer the Chronycles & fyndeth the diligēce of Mardocheus, and then to the confusion of Haman, commaundeth Mardocheus to be had in honoure.

The same nyght could not the kyng slepe, and he commaunded to bryng the Chronicles and storyes: whych when they were red before the kyng they happened on the place where it was wrytten, how *Mardocheus had told that Bigthana and Theres ꝑ kynges two chāberlaynes (which kept the thre holdes) sought, to laye handes on kyng Ahasuerus. And the kyng sayd: what worshyppe & good haue we done to Mardocheus therfore? Then sayde the kynges seruauntes that mynistred vnto hym: There is nothynge at all done for hym. And the kyng sayde: Who is in the courte? (for Haman was gone into the court wythout before ꝑ kinges house, that he myght speake vnto the kynge to hange Mardocheus on ꝑ tre (that he had prepared for hym.) And the kynges seruauntes sayde vnto hym: beholde, Haman standeth without in the court. And ꝑ kyng sayd: let him come in. And when Haman came in, the kyng sayd vnto hym: what shall be done vnto the man, whom the ꝑ kynge volde fayne bringe vnto worshippe? Haman thought in his hert: Whom desyreth the kyng to bryng vnto worshippe more then me? And Haman answered the kyng Let the man whō the kyng pleaseth to bring vnto worshippe, be brought hyther, that he maye be arayed with the royall garmentes which the kyng vseth to weare: & the horse ꝑ the kyng rydeth vpon, and that the crowne

*Esther.ii.B.

royall

royall maye be set vpō his heed. And let this rayment and horse be delyuered vnder the hand of one of the kynges princes, that they maye araye the man withall (whō the kyng is disposed to bryng to honoure) & cary hym vpō the horse thorow the strete of the cytie, & proclayme before him: thus shalt it be done to the man, whom the kynge pleaseth to bryng to honoure.

And the kyng sayde: make hast, and take as thou hast sayde, the rayment & the horse: and do euē so vnto Mardocheus the Jewe, ꝑ sytteth before the kynges gate, & let nothing fayle of all that thou hast spoken. Then toke Haman the rayment & the horse, and arayed Mardocheus, & brought him on horsbacke thorow the strete of ꝑ cytie, and proclaymed before him: Euen thus shall it be done vnto ꝑ man whō the kyng is disposed to honoure. And Mardocheus came agayne to the kynges gate, but Haman gat hym home in all ꝑ hast mournynge bare headed, & tolde zares his wyfe and all hys frendes, euery thing ꝑ had happened him. Then sayd his wyse men and zares his wyfe vnto him: Jf yt be Mardocheus, of the sede of ꝑ Jewes, before whō thou hast begonne to fall, thou shalt not preuayle agaynst hym, but shalt surely fall before him. And whyle they were yet talkyng with him, came the kynges chamberlaynes, & caused Haman to make hast, to come vnto the bancket that Esther had prepared.

¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ The quene bydeth the kyng & Haman agayne, and playeth for her selfe and her people. She accuseth Haman, & he hys hanged on the gallowes, which he had prepared for Mardocheus.

AND the kyng and Haman came in to the bancket that quene Esther had prepared, and the kyng sayd vnto Esther on the seconde daye at the bancket of wyne: what is thy peticion (quene Esther) that it maye be geuen the? And what requyrest thou? Yee, allbe euē half of the empyre, & it shall be done. And Esther the quene answered, & sayd: Jf Jhaue found grace in thy syght (O kyng) and yf it please the kyng, then graunt me my lyfe at my desyre and my people, for my peticions sake: for we are solde, Jē my people, to be destroyed, to be slayne & to perishe. And wold God we were solde to be bondmen and bond wemen, then wold Jhold my tonge: for the enemye pondreth not the kynges harme. The kynge Ahasuerus answered, and sayde vnto quene Esther: who is he? And where is he, ꝑ darre presume in hys mynde, to do after ꝑ maner? And Esther sayd: the enemye and aduersary is this wicked Haman.

Haman, was exceadingly afrayed before the kyng and the quene. And the kynge arose from the bancket and from the wyne in hys displeasure, & went into the palace garden. And Hamā stode vp, & besought quene Esther for his lyfe: for he sawe, that there was a mischefe prepared for him of ꝑ kyng all ready.

And when the kyng came agayne out of the palace garden into the place where they dranke wyne, Haman had layed him vpō ꝑ bed, ꝑ Esther sat vpō. Then sayd the kyng: wyll he force the quene also before me in the house? As sone as that worde went out of ꝑ kynges mouth, they couered Hamans face. And Harbona one of the chāberlaynes that stode before the kyng, sayde: Beholde, there standeth a galowes in Hamans house fyftie cubytes hye, whych he had made for Mardocheus, that spake good for the kyng. The kyng sayde: hang him theron. So they hanged Haman on the galowes, that he had made for Mardocheus. Then was the kynges wrath pacified.

¶ The. viij. Chapter.

¶ After the death of Haman is Mardocheus exalted, and then are ther comfortable letters sent vnto the Jewes.

THe same daye dyd kyng Ahasuerus geue the house of Haman the Jewes enemye, vnto quene Esther. And Mardocheus came before ꝑ king: for Esther tolde, howe that he belonged vnto her. And the kyng put of his fynger rynge, whych he had taken frō Haman, & gaue it vnto Mardocheus. And Esther set Mardocheus ouer ꝑ house of Haman. And Esther spake yet more before the kyng: & fell downe at his fete weppyng, & besought him, that he wold put away ꝑ wickednes of Haman the Agagite, and hys deuyce that he had ymagined agaynst the Jewes. And ꝑ kynge (acceptyng the maner) helde out ꝑ golden scepter toward Esther. (wherby was declared a token of graciousnes.) Then rose Esther, and stode before the kynge, and sayd: yf it please the kyng, & yf Jhaue found grace in his syght, and yf it be acceptable before the kynge, then let it be wrytte, that the letters of the deuyce of Hamam the sonne of Hamadatha the Agagite, maye be called agayne: whych letters he wrote, to destroye the Jewes, which are in all the kynges landes. For how can Jsuffre and se the euell, that shall happen vnto my people? Or how can Jlooke vpon the destruccion of my kynred?

And ꝑ kyng Ahasuerus sayd vnto quene Esther, & to Mardocheus ꝑ Jewe: Behold, Jhaue geuen Esther ꝑ house of Hamā, whō they haue hanged vpō a tre, because he layed hand vpon the Jewes. Wrote ye also for the Jewes, as it lyketh you i the kynges name, & seale it with the kynges ryng (for the writynges that were wrytten in the kynges name, and sealed with the kynges rynge, durst no man dysanull.) Then were the kynges scribes called at ꝑ same tyme, euē in ꝑ thirde moneth moneth, that is the moneth * Siuan, on the thre and twentyeth daye.

And it was written (accordynge to all as Mardocheus commaũded) vnto the Iewes, and to the princes, to the Debitres and captaynes in the landes which are frõ India vntill Ethiopia, namely an hundred and seuen and twenty landes, vnto euery one accordynge to the writing therof, & vnto euery people after their speche, & to the Iewes accordynge to their wrytinge and language.

And he wrote in ỹ kinge Ahasuerus name, and sealed it with the kynges ringe. And by postes that rode vpon horses, and swifte yong Mules, sent he the wrytinges, wherin the kyng graũted the Iewes (in what cyties soeuer they were) to gather them selues together, and to stande for their lyfe, and for to rote out, to slaye, & to destroye all the power of the people and land that wold trouble thẽ. with chyldren and wemẽ, and to spoyle their good vpon one daye in all the lãdes of kyng Ahasuerus, namely vpõ the thyrtenth daye of the twelueth moneth, which is the moneth * Adar.

The some of the wrytynge was, how there shulde be a commaundment geuẽ in all landes and publisshed amõg all people, and that the Iewes shulde be ready agaynst that daye, and to auenge them selues on their enemyes. And so the postes that rode vpon the swift horses and Mules, made hast with all spede, to execute ỹ kinges worde: & ỹ cõmaũdement was deuised in Sulan ỹ chefe cytie.

And Mardocheus went out (from the palace and) from the kynge, in royall apparell of yelow and whyte, and with a great crowne of golde, beyng arayed with a garmẽt of sylke and purple, and the cytie of Sulan reioysed and was glad: and vnto the Iewes there was come (a new) lyght and gladnesse, ioye and worshippe. In all landes & cyties, into what places soeuer the kynges worde ãd cõmaundemẽt reched, there was ioye & myrth, prosperite & good dayes among the Iewes: in somoch, that many of the people in the lãde became of the Iewes beleffe, and the feare of the Iewes came vpon them.

The .ix. Chapter.

¶ At the commaundement of the kynge, the Iewes put their aduersaries to deeth. The sonnes of Haman are hanged. The Iewes kepe a feast daye in remembrance of their deliuerance.

IN the twelueth moneth, that is the moneth Adar, vpõ the thirtenth daye of the same, whan ỹ kynges word and commaundement shulde be done, euen vpon the same daye that the enemyes shulde haue destroyed the Iewes to haue oppressed thẽ, it turned cõtrary wyse, euen that the Iewes shulde subdue their enemyes. For then gathered ỹ Iewes together in their cyties wythin all ỹ landes of kynge Ahasuer⁹, to laye hand on soch as wolde do them euell, and no man coulde withstand them: for the feare of them was come ouer all people. And all the rulers in the landes, and princes & Debites, & officers of the kyng, promoted the Iewes, for the feare of Mardocheus came vpõ thẽ. For Mardocheus was greate in the kynges house, and the reporte of him was noysed in all landes, how he increased and grewe.

Thus ỹ Iewes smote all their enemyes with a sore slaughter, and slewe & destroyed, and dyd after their wyll vnto soche as were their aduersaries. And at Sulan ỹ chefe cytie slew the Iewes, and destroyed fyue hundreth men: & slewe Pharsandatta, Dalphon Aspbatha, Phoratha, Adalia, Aridatha, Pharmastha, Arisai, Aridai, ãd Vaizatha, the ten sonnes of Hamã the sonne of Hamadata the enemye of ỹ Iewes: but on his goodes they layed no handes. At the same tyme was the kyng certyfied of the nõbre of those that were slayne in ỹ cyte of Sulan. And the kyng sayde vnto quene Esther. The Iewes haue slayne ãd destroyed fyue hundreth men in the cytie of Sulan, & the ten sonnes of Haman. What haue they done thynke ỹ in the other landes of the kynge? And what is thy petition, that it maye be geuen the? or what requirest thou more to be done? Esther answered: If it please ỹ kynge, let him suffre the Iewes tomorow also to do accordynge vnto this dayes commaũdement, that they maye hang Hamans ten sonnes vpõ the tre. And the kynge charged to do so, ãd the commaundement was deuised at Sulan, & they hanged Hamans ten sonnes. For the Iewes that were in Sulan gathered thẽ selues together, vpon the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, & slew thre hũdreth mẽ at Sulã, but on their goodes they layed no handes.

As for the other Iewes that were in the kynges landes, they came together, ãd stode for their lyues, ỹ they myght haue rest from their enemies: & slew of their enemyes fyue and seuentye thousand, howbeit, they layed no hãdes on their goodes. This they dyd on the thirtenth daye of the moneth Adar, and on the fourtenth daye of the same moneth rested they, which daye they helde w̃ feastinge ãd gladnesse. But the Iewes ỹ were at Sulan, came together both on the thyrteth daye and on the fourtenth, and on the fyftenth daye of the same they rested, and helde that daye with feastyng and gladnes. And therfore the Iewes that dwelt in ỹ villages and vnwalled townes, helde the fourtenth daye of the moneth Adar, with gladnes and feastynge, and kepte holy daye, and euery one sent gyftes vnto another.

And Mardocheus wrote these actes, and sent the

sent the writynges vnto all the Jewes that were in all the landes of kynge Ahasuerus, both nye & farre that they shuld make a law among them selues & holde the fourtenth ād fiftenth daye of the moneth Adar, as þ dayes
E wherin the Jewes came to rest frō their enemyes, and as a moneth wherin their payne was turned to ioye, & their sorowe into a holy daye, & that in those dayes they shuld make feastes and gladnes, & one to sende gyftes vnto another, & to distribute vnto the poore.

And the Jewes were cōtent with it þ they had begonne to do, and þ Mardoche⁹ wrote vnto them: how that hamā the sonne of Hamadatha all the Jewes enemy, had deuised against þ Jewes, how he might destroye thē ād caused to cast Phur (that is a Lot) for to put them in feare, & to bring thē to naught: & how Hester went, and spake to the kynge, þ thorowe letters his wicked deuyce (which he ymagined agaynst þ Jewes) myght be turned vpō his awne heed, & how hee & his sonnes were hanged on the tre. For the which cause they called this daye Phurim, because of the name of the lott, ād because of all the wordes of this writing: & what they thē selues had sene, & what had happened vnto thē.

F And the Jewes set it vp, and toke it vpō them and their sede, ād vpon all soch as ioyned them selues vnto them, that they wolde not misse but obserue these two dayes yerely, accordynge as they were wrytten and appoynted, how that these dayes are not to be forgotten, but to be kepte of childers childrē among all kynredes in all lādes and cyties. They are the dayes of Phurim, which are not to be ouerslipte among the Jewes, & the memorial of them ought not to perisshe frō their sede.

And quene Esther the daughter of Abihail and Mardocheus the Jew wrote w all auctorite (to confirme this seconde writting of Phurim) and sent the letters vnto all the Jewes in the hundreth & seuen and twentye landes of the empyre of Ahasuerus, w frēdly and faythfull wordes, to confirme these dayes of Phurim, in their tyme appoynted, accordynge as Mardocheus the Jew & Esther the quene had appoynted them. And they bound their soule and their sede to fasting, & prayer. And Esther stablisshed the wordes
G of these lottes, as it is written in the boke.

And the kynge Ahasuerus layed tribute vpon the lande, and vpon the Iles of the see. And all that he dyd by his power and auctorite, & the great worshippe of Mardocheus, which the kyng gaue him, be they not written in the Chronycles of the kynges of Media and Persia? For Mardocheus the Jewe was the seconde nere vnto kyng Ahasuerus and greate among the Jewes, and accepted among the multitude of his brethrē, as one þ seketh the welth of his people, and speaketh the best for all hys sede.

¶ The ende of the boke of Esther.

¶ The boke of Job.

¶ The fyrst Chapter:

¶ Job is plaged of God by the losse of hys goodes and chyldren.

IN the lande of * Hus there was a man whose name was Job: & the same was a perfect & iust mā, soch a one as feared God & eschued euell. And he had seuē sonnes, & thre daughters * his substaunce also was seuen M. shepe, & thre. M. camels, v. C. youck of oxen, & fyue. C. she asses, and a very greate housholde: so that he was one of the most principall mē amōg all them of the east coūtre. And his sonnes went and made banchettes one daye in one house, another daye in another, and sent for their thre systers, to eat & drincke with thē. And it fortuned, that when they had passed ouer the tyme of their banchetting roūdeaboute, Job sent for them, and ☞ sanctified them, and gat vp early, and offered for euery one a brēt offerynge. For Job sayde: lest peraduenture my sonnes haue done some offence, & ☞ haue bene vnthankfull to God in their hertes. Thus did Job euery daye. And vpon a daye * when ☞ the children of God cam & stode before the Lord, it fortuned that Sathan cā also among them. And the Lorde sayde vnto Sathā. From whence cōme ſt thou? Sathan answered the Lord, and sayde: * I haue gone about the lande, and walcked thorow it.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Sathā: hast þ not considered my seruaūt Job, how þ there is none lyke him in the land, a perfect & a iust man: soch a one as feareth God. ād eschueth euell? Sathan answered, and sayde vnto the Lord. Doth Job feare God for naught? hast thou not preserued him, & his house, and all þ he hath on euery syde? Thou hast blessed the

wordes

wozckes of hys handes, and hys posselsyon is encreased in the lãde. But laye thyne hãd now vpon hym (a lyde) and touch all that he hath, and he shal curse the to thy face. And the Lozde sayde vnto Satan: lo, all that he hath, be in thy power: onely vpon hym selfe se that thou laye not thyne hande. And Satan went forth frõ the presence of the Lozde.

And vpõ a certayn daye it fortuned, that his sonnes and daughters were eatyng and drincking wyne in their eldest brothers house, and there came a messenger vnto Job, ãd sayde: Whyle the oxen were a plowyng, and the asses goynge in the pasture besyde them, the Sabees came in vyolently, and toke thẽ awaye: yee, they haue slayne thy seruauntes with the edge of the sweard, and I onely rãne my waye, to tell the.

Whyle he was yet speakyng, there came another, and sayde: The fyre of God is fallẽ from heauen, and hath brent vp all thy shepe and seruantes, and consumed them: & I onely ranne my waye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speakinge, there came another, and sayde: The Caldees made thre armyes, and fell in vpõ the camels, and haue caryed them awaye, yee, and slayne thy seruauntes with the sweard: and I onely am gotten awaye, to tell the. And whyle he was yet speakyng, there came another, and sayde: Thy sonnes and thy daughters were eatynge and drynckynge wyne in theyr eldest brothers house, and beholde, there came a mygbtye greate wynde out of the south, and smote the foure cozners of the house: which fell vpõ thy chyldren, and they are deed, and I am gotten a waye alone to tell the.

Then Job stode vp, and rent his clothes, and shaued hys heade, fell downe vpon the grounde, wozshipped, and sayd: * Naked came I out of my mothers wombe, and naked shall I turne thyther agayne. The Lozd gaue, and the Lozde hath taken awaye (euen as it hath pleased the Lorde, so is it come to passe): blessed be the name of the Lozd. * In all these thynges dyd Job not offende, ner murmured foolysshly agaynst God.

The.ij. Chapter.

Job ys plaged wyth sore byles, and afterward ys mocked of hys wyfe. Hys frendes bysyde hym, & haue compassyon of hym.

AND the children of God came and stode before the Lozde, and Satan came also amonge them, and stode before the Lozde. And the Lozd sayde vnto Satã: From whence commest thou? Satan answered the Lozde, and sayde: I haue gone about the lãd, and walcked thorow it.

And the Lozde sayde vnto Satan: hast þ not consydered my seruaunt Job? for there is none lyke him in the land. For he is a perfect and iust man, fooch a one as feareth God, and eschueth euell, & contynueth styll in hys godlynesse. And thou mouedest me agaynst him, þ I shulde punysh him for naught. And Satan answered the Lozd, & sayde: Skyn for skynne? yee, a man wyll geue all that euer he hath, for his lyfe. But laye thyne hãd now vpon him, and touch once his bone and flesh, and he shall curse the to thy face. And þ Lozde sayde vnto Satan: lo, there hast thou hym in thy power, but spare hys lyfe.

So went Satan forth from the presence of the Lozd, and smote Job with maruelous sore byles, from the sole of hys fote vnto hys crowne: so that he sat vpon the groũd in the asshes, and scraped of the fylth of hys sores with a potsherde.

Then sayde hys wyfe vnto hym: * Dost thou contynue yet in thy perfectnesse? curse God & dye. But Job sayde vnto her: Thou speakest lyke a folysh woman. Shal we receaue prosperite at the hand of God, and not receaue aduersite? * In all these thinges, did not Job synne with his lyppes. * Tob.ii.b Job.iiii.b * Job.i.b

Now when Jobs frendes hearde of all the trouble, that happened vnto hym, there came thre of them, euery one from hys awne place: namely, Eliphas the Themanite, Bildad the Suhite, & Zophad the Naamathite. And they were agreed together to come, to shewe their compassion vpon him, and to comforte hym. So when they lyfte vp theyr eyes a farre of, they knewe him not.

Then they cryed, and wepte: & euery one of them rente his clothes, and sprynckled dust vpon theyr heades in the ayre. They sat thẽ downe by hym also vpon the grounde seuen dayes and seuen nyghtes. Nether was there any of them that spake one worde vnto hym: for they sawe, that hys payne was very greate.

The.iij. Chapter.

The wordes of Job, wherin he declareth that thys present lyfe ys myserable, and that the death of the ryghtewes ys ioyouse and fortunable.

AFter this opened Job his mouth and curssed hys daye. And Job answered, and sayde: lost be that daye, wherin I was borne, and the nyght, in the which it was sayde: there is a man chylde conceaued. The same daye be turned to darckenes, and not regarded of God from aboue, nether lett hym shyne vpon it with lyght, but let it be stayned with darcknesse, and the shadowe of death. Let the dymme cloude fall vpon it, and lett it be lapped in with sorowe on the daye tyme. Let the darcke stormie ouercome that nyght, and lett it not be ioyned vnto

þ the

the dayes of the yeare, nor counted in the monethes. Desolate be that night, and without gladnesse, lett them that curse the daye, and that be ready to rayse vp mournyng, geue it also their curse. Let the starres of that night be dymme thorow darcknesse of it. Let it looke for lyght, but lett it se none, nether the ryssynge vp of the fayre morynge: because it shut not vp the wombe that bare me, for then shulde these sorowes haue bene hyd from myne eyes.

*Jere.20.b

Alas, *why dyed I not in the byrth? Why dyd not I perysh, as sone as I came oute of my mothers wombe? Why set they me vpō their knees? Why gaue they me suck with theyr brestes? Then shulde I now haue lyen styll, I shulde haue slepte, and bene at reste, lyke as the kynges and lordes of the earthe, which haue buylded them selues special places. Or as the prynces that haue had greate substaunce of golde, and theyr houses full of syluer. Or why was I not hyd, as a thynge borne out of tyme, ether as ponge chyldren, which neuer saw the light? There must the wycked ceasse from theyr tyrannye, and ther soch as are ouerlaboured be at rest: ther are those lett out fre, which haue bene in prison, so that they heare nomore the voyce of the oppressoure. There are small & great, and the seruaunt is fre from hys master.

Wher fore is the lyght geuen to hym that is in mysery? and lyfe vnto them, that haue heuy hertes? Whych longe for death (and though it come not) wolde dygg it oute of hyd places which also wolde be exceedyng glad and reioyce, yf they coulde fynde theyr graue any where. That shuld be ioye to that man whose waye is hyd, and God kepeth it backe from him. For my syghes come before I eate, and my roaringes fall out like the water. For the thynge that I feared, is come vpon me: and the thynge that I was afrayed of, is happened vnto me. Was I not happy? had I not quyetnesse? Was I not in rest? And now commeth soch mysery vpō me.

The.iiij.Chapter.

Job is reprehended of impacyence and vnlawfulnesse, and of the presumpcyon of hys owne righteousnes.

AND Eliphas the Themanyte answered, and sayde: yf we begynne to commen with the, wylt thou be discontent? but who can withhold him selfe from speakinge? Behold, thou hast bene a chastener of many, and hast comforted the weery handes.

Thy wordes haue set vp those that were fallen, thou hast refreshed the weake knees.

*Tob.4.b Job.4.c

But now that the plage is come vpon the, þ art greued: now yt hath touched thy selfe, thou art sayntharted.* Is not this thy feare, thy stedfastnesse, thy pacience, and the perfectnesse of thy wayes? Cōsyder (I praye the) whoeuer perysshed beynge an innocent? Or, whē were the godly destroyed? For (as I haue proued by experience) they þ plowe iniquyte, & sowe wretchednesse, reape the same. *Iob.4.b With the blast of God they perish, and with the breth of hys nastrels are they consumed awaye. The roaryng of the lyon, and the voyce of the lyon, & the teeth of the lyons whelpes are pulled out. The lyon perisheth for lacke of praye, and the lyōs whelpes are scatered abrode.

And vnto me came the worde secretly, & myne eare hath receaueth a lytell therof. In the thoughtes and visyōs of the night (whē slepe commeth on men) feare came vpon me, and drede, which made all my bones to shake. The wynde passed by, before my presence, and made the heares of my flesh to stande vp. He stode there, and I knew not hys face, an ymage ther was before myne eyes, and in the stylnesse heard I a voyce. * Shall man be more iust than God? Or shall a man be purer than hys maker? Behold, he founde no treuth in hys seruauntes, and * in hys aungels ther was folye. How moch more in them that dwell in houses of claye, and whose foundacyon is but dust: which shalbe consumed as it were with a moth? They shalbe smitten from the morynge vnto the euenyng: yee, they shall perysh for euer, whē no man thincketh theron. Is not their royaltye gone awaye with thē: they shal dye trulye, and not in wysdome.

*Job.15.b Psal.cxliij.d Rom.iij.c

*Psal.cxliij.c

The.v.Chapter.

The ende of a fole. The rychteousnes of God. The Lord chasteneth hys, and deliuereth them agayne.

CRye (I praye the) yf happilye there be any that wyll answere the, and loke thou vpon eny of the holy men. As for the foolysh man, displeasure kylleth hym, and anger slayeth the ignorant. *I haue sene my selfe, when the folysh was depe rooted, and sodenly I cursed hys habitacyon. Hys chyldren were without prosperite, and they were slayne in the gate, and there was no man to deliuer thē. *Hys harueste was eaten vp of the hungry, & the weapened man spoyled it, and the thurstye drōke vp theyr labour. Yet is not the earth that bryngeth forth iniquyte, nether cōmeth sorowe out of the ground: but man is borne vnto labour, lyke as the sparkes flye vp out of the hote coles.

*Psal.xxxvij.a

*Deu.xxviij.

But I wyll aske councell at the Lorde, & wyll talke with God: which doth thynges, that are vnsearcheable, and maruels without nombre. *He geueth rayne vpon þ erth, and poureth water vpon the stretes, to * set vp them that be of lowe degre, and that those which

*Deu.xxviij. * Ecclus. 1.Reg.ij.

which are in heynesse may come to prosperite. He destroyeth the deuyces of the sotyll, so that their handes are not able to performe ¶ Cor.iij.d any stedfast thing. * He compaseth the wyse in their awne craftynes, and ouerthroweth the councell of the wycked. In somoche that ¶ they runne into darcknes by fayre daye, and gene.xix.d.d * grope aboute them at the none daye, lyke as in the nyght.

He shall delyuer the poore frō the sweard, and from the threatenynges of the vngodly, and from the violence of the myghty. He is the hope of the poore, and the mouth of the wicked shalbe stopped.

Beholde, * happye is the man, whom
* Prou.iij.d God punisheth: therfore, refuse not thou the Hebr.xij.b chastenynge of the almyghtye. For though ¶ Osee.vi.a he make a wounde, he geueth a playster: though he smyte, hys hande maketh whole agayne.

☞ ☞ He shall delyuer the in syxe troubles,
D and in the seuenth there shall no euell come to the. In hōger he shall saue the from death: and when it is warre, from the power of the sweard.

Thou shalt be kept from the euell tonge, and when trouble commeth, thou shalt not nede to feare. In destruccion and derth thou ¶ Psal.xcj.a shalt be mery, and * shalt not be afrayed of ☞ beastes of the earth. For ☞ ꝑ stones of the lande shalbe confederate with the, ꝙ the beastes of the felde shall geue the peace.

And thou shalt knowe that thy dwellyng place shalbe in rest: and thou shalt go and beholde thy habytacyon, and shalt not synne. Thou shalt se also, ꝑ thy sede shall encrease, and that thy posteryte shalbe as the grasse vpon the earth. Thou shalt come also to thy graue in a fayre age, lyke as when they take vp a corne shefe in due season. Lo, thys we oure selues haue proued by experience, and euen thus it is. Herken thou to it also, that thou mayest take hede to thy selfe.

¶ The.vj. Chapter.

Job answereth, that hys payne is more greuous then hys saute, yet notwithstandynge he despeyreth therin.

IOb answered also, ꝙ sayde: ☞ O
☞ that the displeasure which I haue were truly weyed, and my punishment layed in the balaunces togeather: for now is it heuyer then the sande of the see. And thys is the cause, that my wordes are so sorowfull.

For the arowes of the almighty are rouȝd about me, whose indygnacyon hath droncke vp my spyrite, and the terrible feares of God are sett agaynst me. * Doth the wylde asse ¶ Ecclus.xiij.a roare whē he hath grasse? Or cryeth the oxe, when he hath foder ynough? That which is vnsauery, shalt it be eaten without salte, or is there any taste in the whyte of an egge?

The thynges that some tyme I myght not awaye withall, are now my meate for very sorowe. O that I myght haue my desyre: and that God wolde graunte me the thynge that I longe for. O that God wold begynne and smyte me: that he wolde let hys hande go, and take me cleane awaye. Then shulde B
I haue some comforte: yee, I wolde desyre hym in my payne, that he shulde not spare, for I wyll not be agaynst the wordes of the holy one.

For what power haue I to endure? And what is myne ende, that my soule myght be patient? Is my strength the strength of stones? Or, is my flesh made of brasse? Is it not so ꝑ there is in me no helpe: and that my substaunce is taken from me. He that is in tribulacyon ought to be comforted of hys C neyghbour: but the feare of the Lord is cleane awaye. Myne awne brethren passe ouer by me as the water brooke, and as the ryuer of water, do hastely go awaye. But they that feare the hore frost, the snowe shall fall vpon them.

When theyr tyme commeth, they shalbe destroyed and perysshe: when they be sett on fyre, they shalbe remoued out of theyr place, for ꝑ pathes that they go in, are croked: they ¶ Baruc.iij.a haste after vayne thynges, and shall perysh. They turne them to the pathes of Theman, and to the wayes of Saba, wherin they ha- D ue put their trust. Confounded are they that put eny confydence in them. For whan they come to obtayne the thynges that they loke for, they are brought to confusion.

Euen so are ye also come vnto me: but now that ye se my misery, ye are afrayed. Dyd I desyre you, to bryng vnto me, or to geue me eny of youre substaunce? To delyuer me from the enemyes hande, or to saue me from the hande of tyrauntes? Teache me, and I wyll holde my tonge: and whan I do erre, shewe me wherin. How stedfast are the wordes of treuth? And which of you can rebuke and reproue them? Do ye take deliberacyō to check mens sayinges, and iudge a sore worde spoken in payne? Ye fall vpon the fatherles and go about to ouerthrowe your awne frende. And therfore be content, and loke now vpon me, and I wyll not lye before youre face. Turne (I praye you) be indifferent iudges, turne agayne, and ye shall se myne vnryghtiousnesse: whether there be eny vnrighteousnesse in my tong, or payne wordes in my mouth.

¶ The.vij. Chapter.

Job shewed that hys lyfe is but a batayll or warfarre.

MAth man >> any certayn tyme vpō A earthe? * Are not hys dayes also *Psal.xxxix.b lyke ꝑ dayes of an hyred seruaūt? For lyke as a bonde seruaunt desyreth the shadowe, and as an

hyrelynge wolde fayne haue an ende of hys wozcke. Such so haue I laboured whole monethes longe (but in vayne) and many a ca-*Deu.xxviii.d refull nyght haue I tolde. *When I laye me
downe to slepe, I saye: O when shall I rise?
Agayne, I longed soze for the nyght. And in the meane tyme am I full of sozowes vn-B tyll the twylyght. My flesh is clothed with wozmes and dust of the earth: my skynne is *Job.xi.c and.xviii.d withered, and become horryble, *my dayes passe ouer moze spedely, then a weuer can weeue out his webbe: and are gone or I am aware. O remembze, that my lyfe is but a wynde, and that myne eye shall nomoze se pleasures therof, yee, & that none other mens eye shall se me eny moze. For yf thou fasten thyne eye vpon me, I come to naught. The cloude is consumed and vanysshed awaye,
euen so he that goeth downe to the graue,
☞ shall come nomoze vp, ner turne agayne
into hys house nether shall hys place knowe
hym eny moze.

C Therfore, I will not spare my mouth, but wyll speake in the trouble of my spzete, and muse in the bytternesse of my mynde. Am I a see or a whalfysh, that thou kepest me so in prison? When I saye: my bedd shall com-fozte me. I shall haue some refresshynge by *Dan.vi.a talcking to my selfe vpō my couche. *Then troublest thou me with dzeames, ād makest
me so afrayed thozow visions, that my soule wisheth rather to perish and dye, then my bones to remayne.

D I can se no remedy, I shall lyue nomoze:
O spare me then, for my dayes are but vayne.
What is man, that thou hast hym in soch reputacyon, & settest somoch by hym? Thou visytest hym early, and euery daye, sodenly
*Gen.xxii.a Deu.viii.d doest thou *trye hym.

Why goest thou not fro me, ner letlest me alone, ☞ so longe tyll I maye swalow do-wne my spetle? I haue offended, and what shall I do vnto the, O thou preseruer of me?
Why hast ꝑ made me to stande in thy waye,
and am so beuy a burden vnto my self? Why doest thou not forgeue me my synne? Wherfore takest thou not awaye my wyckednes?
Beholde, now must I slepe in the dust, ād yf
thou seekest me to mozow in the mozning, I shalbe gone.

C The.viij Chapter.

C Job is reprehended and noted to haue deserued
hys payne. A declaracion of ypocrysye.

I Then answered Baldad ꝑ Suhite, and sayde: How longe wilt thou talke of soch thynges? how longe
shall thy mouth speake so proude wozdes? Doth God peruerte the thynge that is laufull? Or doth the almygh-tye destroye the thynge that is ryght? For seyng that thy sonnes synned agaynst hym,
dyd not he punysh them for theyr wyckednesse? If thou woldest now resort vnto God
by tymes, and make thyne humble prayer
to the almyghty: yf thou woldest lyue a pure and a godly lyfe: shulde he not awake vp vnto the immediatly, and geue the, the be-tyte of ryghtewesnesse agayne? In so moche, that where in so euer thou haddest lytle afo-
re, thou shuldest now haue greate aboun-daunce. Enquere (I prayе the) of them that B haue bene before the, *and search diligently *Deu.xxxii.a Job.viii.a amonge theyr fathers. For we are but of
*ꝑa.xxxix.b yesterdaye, and consydze not, ꝑ *oure dayes vpon earth are but a very shadowe. Shall not they shewe the, and tell the, yee, ād gladly confesse the same?

Maye a rysshe be grene without moystnesse? Or maye the grasse growe without water? No: but (or euer it be shot forth, & or euer it be gathered) it withered, before eny
other herbe. Euen so goeth it with all them, that forget God: and euen thus also shall the ypocrites hope come to naught. Hys confy-dence shalbe destroyed, and hys trust shalbe aspiders webbe. He shall leane vpō his hou-
C se, but it shall not stande: he shall holde hym fast by it, yet shall it not endure. It is euē as a grene tree before the sonne, & shoteth forth the braunches in hys garden. It taketh many rotes by a well syde, in so moch that it is lyke an house of stones.

But yf it be taken out of hys place, euery
man denyeth it, sayenge: I knowe the not.
Lo, thus is it with him, that reioyseth in his
awne doynges: and as for other, they growe
D out of the earth.

Behold, God will not cast awaye a ver-
tuous man, ner ther wyll he helpe the vngod-
ly. Thy mouth shall be fyll with laughing, and thy lyppes with gladnesse. They also ꝑ hate the, shalbe confounded, and the dwel-linge of the vngodly shall come to naught.

C The.ix. Chapter.

C Job declareth the dewtyes of God, and that mannes ryghtewesnes is nothynge.

A Ob answered, & sayde: I know it is so of a treuthe: For how maye a man (compared vnto God) *be iustifyed? If he will
*ꝑsal.cxliii.a Job.xxv.d.iii.a and.xvi.a Rom.iii.c
argue with him, he shall not be able to answere hym vnto one amonge a thousande. Concernynge soch as be wyse of herte, or myghtye in strength,
who euer prospered, that toke part against hym? He translateth the mountaynes, or euer they be aware. It is he that ouerthzo-weth them in hys wzath. He remoueth
the earthe oute of her place, that the py-lers therof shake with all. He commaundeth the sonne, and it riseth not: he closeth vp
the

the starres, as it were vnder a sygnett. He him selfe alone spreadeth out the heauens, and goeth vpon the waues of the see. He maketh the waynes of heauen ☞ * the Orion * the seuen starres, and the secrete places of the south. He doth greate thynges, soche as are vnsearcheable, yee, and wonders withoute nombre.

B Lo, whan he goeth ouer by me, I shall not se hym. And whan he departeth, by me, I shall not loke vpon hym. I shall not perceaue hym. If he be hasty to take eny thynge awaye, who wyll make him restore it agayne? Or who wyll saye vnto hym * what doest thou? † He is God, whose wrath no man maye withstãde: but the proudest of all must stoupe vnder hym. How shulde I then answere hym? Or what wordes shulde I fynde oute agaynst hym? Yee, though I were ryghteous, yet myght I not geue hym one worde agayne, but meekely submytte my selfe to hym as my iudge. Yf I had called vpon hym, and he had answered me: ☞ yet wold I not beleue, that he herd my voyce: he troubleth me so with the tempest, and woundeth me out of measure without a cause. He wyll not lett my spyrete be in rest, but fylleth me wt bytternesse.

If men wyll speake of strength, lo, he is stronge: yf men wyll speake of ryghteousnes, who darre be my recorde. If I wyll iustifye my selfe, ☞ my awne mouth shall condempne me: yf I wyll put forth my selfe for a perfecte man, he shall proue me a wycked doer. For though I be an innocent, and C my conscience cleare, yet am I weery of my lyfe.

One thyng it is and therfore I sayed. He destroyeth both the righteous and vngodly. And though he slaye sodenly with the scourge, yet wyll he laugh at the punyshement of the innocent. As for the worlde, it is geuen ouer into the hand of the wicked, and he shal couer the faces of the iudges therof. Is it not so? where is there eny, but he is soch one?

* Job.ix.a * My dayes are more swyfte then a runner: they are gone & haue sene no good thing. They are passed awaye, as the shyppes that be good vnder sayle, and as the aegle ẏ flieth to the praye. When I am purposed to forget my complaynyng, to leaue of fro my wrath, and to comforte my selfe, then am I afrayed of all my sorowes, for I knowe, that thou wylt not iudge me innocent. If I be then a wicked doer, why laboure I in vayne? If I D wasche my selfe with snowe water, and make myne hãdes neuer so cleane, ↠ at the wel, yet shalt thou dyppe me in the myer: and ☞ myne awne clothes shall defyle me. For he that I must geue answere vnto, ād with whom I go to lawe, is not a man as I am. Nether is there eny dayesman to laye hys hande betwene vs. Lett hym take hys rod a waye fro me, yee, lett him make me nomore afrayed of him, and then shall I answere hi without eny feare. For as lõge as it is thus, I can make no answere.

C The.x. Chapter.

Job is weery of hys lyfe, and setteth out his tragedye before God. He defyeth the tyme to repent. A description of death.

I T greueth my soule to lyue. I wyl A make my complaynte, and wyll speake out of the very heynesse of my soule. I wyll saye vnto God: O do not condempne me, but shewe me the cause, wherfore thou contendest so with me? Thinckest thou it well done, to oppresse me, to cast me of (beynge the worckes of thy hãdes) and to maintayne the councel of the vngodly? Hast thou fleshly eyes: or doest thou loke as a man loketh? Or are thy dayes as ẏ dayes of man, and thy yeares as mans yeares? that thou makest soch inquisicyõ for my wickednes, & searchest out my synne? where as (notwithstandinge) thou knowest that I B am no wycked person, and that * there is no * Deut.xxxii.d man able to delyuer me out of thyne hande. ‡ Thy hãdes haue made me, and fashioned ‡ Gene.i.b me all together roũde about, wilt thou then destroye me sodenly? O remembre (I beseke the) how that thou madest me of the moulde of ẏ erth, & shalt bringe me into dust agayne.

Hast ẏ not turned me, as it were mylck, and turned me to cruddes lyke chese? Thou hast couered me with skynne and flesche, and ioyned me together with bones and synnowes. Thou hast graunted my life, and done me good: and the diligent hede that thou takest vpon me, hath preserued my spyrete.

Thou hast hyd these thynges in thyne C hert. I am sure, that thou remembrest thys thynge. Yf I dyd synne, thou haddest an eye vnto me, and shalt not declare me innocent because of myne offence. Yf I haue done wickedly, wo is me therfore. Yf I haue done righteously, yet darre I not lift vp my hede: so full am I of confusion, and se myne awne misery.

Thou hunteste me out (being in heynes) as it were a lyon, & troublest me out of measure. Thou bryngest fresh wytnesse agaynst me, and thy wrath increasest thou vpon me, very many are ẏ plages ẏ I am in. * Wherfore hast thou brought me oute of my mothers wombe? O that I had perished, and ẏ no eye had sene me. Yf they had caryed me D to my graue as sone as I was borne, then shuld I be now, as though I had neuer bene

Are not my dayes few? Lett hym then leaue of fro me and let me alone, that I may ease my selfe a lytle afore I go thyther, from whence I shall not turne agayne: euen to the

lande of darckneſſe and ſhadowe of death:
yee, into that darck clowdy land and deadly ſhadowe, where as is no ordre, but terrible feare as in the darckneſſe.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ Job ys vniuſtly reprehended of Sophar. God is incomprehenſible. He ys mercyfull to the repen-taunte.

THen anſwered Sophar the Naa-matbite, and ſayde: Shulde not he that maketh many wordes, be anſwered? Shuld he ỹ bableth moch, be commended therin? Shulde men geue eare vnto the onely? Thou wilt laugh other men to ſcorne, and ſhal no body mock the againe?
Wylt thou ſaye vnto God. The thyng that I take in hande is perfecte, and I am cleane in thy ſyght? O that God wolde ſpeake, and open his lyppes againſt the, that he myght
ſhewe the (out of his ſecrete wyſdome) why
he rewardeth the double as he was appoynted to do: then ſhuldeſt thou knowe, ỹ God
had forgotten the because of thy ſynne.

Art thou able to fynde out the ſecretes of God? Or wylt thou attayne to the perfect-neſſe of the almyghtye? He is hyer then heauen, what arte thou able to do? Deper then the hell, how wilt thou then know him? his length exceadeth the length of the earth, and hys bredth the bredth of the ſee. Though he turne all thinges vp ſyde downe, cloſe them
in, gather them togeather, who wyll turne him from his purpoſe? (Or who maye ſaye vn-
to him, why doeſt thou ſo.)

*1. Reg. xxvi. Jere. xvii. b. Dan. xiii. c. Mcha. viii. c.

* For it is he that knoweth the vanite of men: he ſeyth theyr wyckednelle alſo, ſhulde
he not then conſidre it? A vayne body exalteth him ſelfe, and man new borne is lyke a wylde aſſes colte. If thou haddeſt nowe a ryght hert, and lyfteſt vp thyne handes to-warde him: yf thou woldeſt put awaye the wickednes which thou haſt in hande, ſo that no vngodlyneſſe dwell in thy houſe. Then myghteſt thou lyft vp thy face without ſha-
me, and then ſhuldeſt thou be ſure, and haue
no nede to feare.

Then ſhuldeſt thou forget thy miſerye, ỹ
thincke no more vpon it then vpon the waters that runne by. Then ſhuld the reſidue of thy lyfe be as cleare as the noone daye, and ſpringe forth as the morning. Then migh-teſt thou haue cõfort, in the hope that thou haſt: and ſlepe quyetly, whẽ thou art buried.
Then ſhuldeſt thou take thy reſt, & no man
to make the afrayed, yee, many one ſhuld ſet moch by the. As for the eyes of the vngodly,
they ſhalbe conſumed, and not eſcape: theyr
hope ſhalbe miſery and ſorow of mynde.

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

¶ Job ſhewyng hys patyence declareth the myght and power of God.

SO Job anſwered, and ſayd: Then A
(no doute) ye are the men alone, & wyſdome ſhall perych with you.
But I haue vnderſtãdyng as wel as ye, and am no leſſe then ye. Yee, who knoweth not theſe thynges? Thus he that calleth vpon God, and whom God heareth, is mocked of hys neyghboure: the godly and innocent man is laughed to ſcorne. Godlyneſs is a lyght deſpyſed in ỹ hertes of the ryche, and is ſet for them to ſtomble vpon. The houſes of robers are in wealth & proſperite: and they that malycyouſly medle agaynſt God, dwell without care, in thoſe thynges that God hath geuen rychely with hys hande.

Aſke the catell, and they ſhall inſourme B
the: the foules of the ayre, and they ſhall tell the. Or the increace of the earth, and it ſhall the we the. Or the fyſchers of the ſee, and they ſhall certifye ỹ. What is he, but he knoweth * Sap. xiii.
that the hande of the Lorde made all theſe?
* In whoſe hãde is the ſoule of euery liuyng ‡ Iob. xxvii.
thynge, and the breth of the fleſh of all men.
‡ haue not the eares pleaſure in hering, and * Iob. xxxiii.
and the mouth in taſtynge the thynge that it eateth? * Amonge olde perſonnes there is wiſdome, and in age is vnderſtandyng. Yee, with God is wyſdome and ſtrength, it is he that hath councell and forknowledge. Be- * Eccl. xxxvi. Apoc. iii. b. ‡ Eſa. l. a.
holde, If he breake downe a thyng, who can ſet it vp agayne? * If he ſhut a thynge, who will open it? Behold, yf he withholde ỹ waters, they drye vp. If he let them go, they deſtroye the erth. With him is ſtrength & wyſdome: he knoweth both the diſceauer & hym
that is diſceaued.

He carieth awaye the wyſemẽ, as it were a ſpoyle, and bryngeth the iudges oute of theyr wittes. He taketh awaye the ſubiectiõ of the people from their kinges, and gyrdeth D
theyr loynes with a bonde. He ledeth awaye ‡ 1. Sa. xxvii. Eſay. xxxiv.
the greate men into captiuyte, and turneth
the mightye vpſyde downe. * He taketh the verye from out of the mouth, and diſapointeth the aged of theyr reaſon. He poureth * Iudic. xi. Mat. xi.
the confuſion vpon prynces, and comforteth them that haue bene oppreſſed. Loke * what lyeth hyd in darckneſs, he declareth it openly: and the very ſhadowe of death bryngeth
he to lyght. He both increaſeth the people, & deſtroyeth them. He maketh them to mul-typlye, and bryngeth them awaye. He chaun-geth the herte of them that rule the people of the earthe, and diſapoynteth them: ſo that they go wandryng out of the waye, and grope in the darcke without lyght: he ma-keth thẽ alſo to ſtacker to and fro lyke dronken men.

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

¶ Job reproueth hys frendes with theyr vayne
ſayenges, and condempneth ypocryſye.

A LO, all thys haue I sene with myne eye, heard with myne eare, and vnderstande it. Loke what ye knowe, that same do I knowe also, neyther am I inferiour vnto you.
Neuertheles, I talke with the almyghtye, and my desire is to comen with God. As for you, ye are worckmasters of lyes, and vnprofytable * Phisicyans all together. Wold * Pro.xvij.d
God ye hepte your tonge, for then myght ye be taken for wyse men. Now heare my chydyng, and ponder the sentence of my lyppes.
.B Do ye speake iniquite against God, and talke agaynst hym with disceate? Wyll ye not accepte the person of hym? Or wyll ye contende with God? Shall that helpe you, whē he calleth you to rekeninge. For as one man mocketh another, so do ye mocke hym. He shall punysh you, and reprooue you, yf ye do secretly accept any persone. Shal he not make you afrayed, when he sheweth hym selfe? Shall not hys terrible feare fall vpon you? youre remembraunce is lyke vnto a sparke, and youre bodyes lyke the claye. Holde your
C tōges for my sake, that I also maye speake, and my sorow shalbe the lesse. ☞ Wherfore
* Iudi.xiij.a do I beare my flesh in my teth, * and put my Psal.cxv.b soule in myne handes? Lo, though he slaye Wild.xxxij.b me, yet wyll I put my trust in hym. But † I Luc.xv.b wil reprooue myne awne wayes in his sight, he shall make me whole: and there maye no ypocrite come before hym. Heare my wordes, and ponder my sayenges with youre eares. Beholde, now haue I prepared my iudgement, and knowe ỹ I shalbe founde ryghteous. What is he, that wil go to lawe with D me? or (Let hym come) that I maye nowe holde my tonge, and dye. Neuertheles, graunt me two thynges, and then wyll I not hyde my selfe from the.
Withdraw thyne hande from me, and let not the fearfull dreade of ỹ, make me afrayed.
D And then call me, and I wil answere: or els, let me speake, ād geue me thou an answere. How many are my mysdedes & synnes? Lett me knowe my transgressyons and offences? Wherfore hydest thou thy face, & holdest me for thyne enemye? Wylt thou be so cruel and extreme vnto a flyeng leafe, ād folowe vpō dry stubble? for thou layest sharpely to my † Wild.xvi.b charge, and punyshest me * for the synnes
Iob.xxxiij.b of my youth. † Thou puttest my fete also in the stockes: and lokest narowly vnto all my pathes, and marchest the steppes of my fete: where as I (not withstandynge) must consume lyke as a foule carion, & as a cloth that is motheaten.

¶ The.xiiij.Chapter.

¶ Iob declareth the lyfe of man, and prayseth of the resurrection. Hope susteyneth the godly, tyll they obteyne that they loke for.

MAn that is borne of woman, hath A but a shorte tyme to lyue, and is full of miserye. He commeth vp and is cutt downe lyke a floure. He flyeth as it were a shadowe, and neuer contynueth in one state. Doest thou open thyne eyes vpō soche one, and bryngest me in thy iudgemēt? Who can make cleane, that commeth of an vncleane thynge? No body. * The dayes * Iob.vij.a
of man surely are determyned, the nombre and.xx.c
of his monethes are knowne onely vnto the. Thou hast appoynted hym hys boundes, whych he can not go beyonde. Goo from hym, that he maye rest (a lytle) vntyll hys B daye come: which he loketh for, lyke as an hyrelynge doth.
If a tre be cut downe, there is some hope yet, that it wyll sproute, and shute forth the braunches agayne. For though the rote of it be waxen olde, and the stock therof be dead in the ground, yet when it getteth the sent of water, it wyll budde, and bryngeth forth bowes, lyke as a tre that is planted. But as for man, when he is dead, perisshed and consumed awaye, what becommeth of hym? The floudes when they be dryed vp, and the ryuers when they be empty, are filled agayne thorowe the flowynge waters of the see: but when mā slepeth, he ryseth not agayne, (of hys awne strength) * vntyll the heauen * Eccl.i.b
perysh: he shall not wake vp ner ryse out of ii.Bar.iij.b
hys slepe. O that thou woldest kepe me, and C hyde me in the hell, vntyll thy wrath were stylled: and to appoynte me a tyme, wherin thou myghtest remembre me. Maye a dead man lyue agayne? * All the dayes of my lyfe wyll I waite styll, tyll my chaungynge * Ge.xlvij.b shall come. Thou shalt call me, and I shall answere the: * despyse not thou the worke of † Ps.cxxxviij.b
thyne awne handes.
For now thou nombrest all my goinges. yet be not thou to extreme vpon my synnes. My iniquite is sealed vp, as it were in a bagg but be mercyfull vnto my wickednesse. The D mountaynes fall awaye at the last, the rockes are remoued out of theyr place, the waters pearse thorowe the very stones by lytle and lytle, the floudes washe awaye ỹ grauell and earth. And destroyest thou the hope of man? Thou preuaylest styll agaynst him, so that he passeth awaye: thou chaūgest hys estate, and puttest hym from the. And whether hys chyldren come to worshyp or no, he cannot tell. And yf they be men of lowe degree, he knoweth not. Whyle he lyueth, hys flesh must haue trauayle, and while the soule is in hym, he must be in sorowe.

¶ The.xv.Chapter.

¶ Eliphas reprehendeth Iob because he asscribeth wysdome and puritie to hym selfe. He declareth the curse that falleth on the wycked, reckenyng Iob to be one of that nombre.

Then answered Eliphas the Themanite, and said: Shal a wyse mans answer be the sentence of the wynde, and fil any mans belly as it were with the wynde of the east? Shal he reprouue wt a word, that is nothyng worth: and speake the thinges, which can do no good? As for shame, thou hast lett it alyde, elles woldest thou not make so many wordes before God: but thy wyckednesse teacheth thy mouth, and so thou hast chosen the a craftye tonge. Thyne awne mouth condempneth the, and not I: yee, thyne awne lyppes shape an answer agaynst the. Art thou the fyrste man, that euer was borne? Or, wast thou made before the hylles? hast thou herde the secrete councell of God, that all wysdome is to lytle for the? What knowest thou, ỹ we knowe not? And what vnderstandest thou, but we can the same? With vs are both olde and aged men, yee, soch as haue lyued longer then thy father.

Thynckest thou it a small thynge of the consolacyons of God? with the is a lyenge word. Why doth thyne hert so bewytch the? And wherfore wynckest thou wyth thyne eyes, that thy mynde is so puft vp agaynst God, and lettest soch wordes go oute of thy mouth? What is man, ỹ he shulde be cleane? what hath he (which is borne of a woman) wherby he myght be righteous? * Behold, he doth not trust hys sayntes: yee, the very heauens are not cleane in hys syght. howe moch more then an abhominable and vyle man, which dryncketh wickednesse lyke water? I wyll tell the, heare me: and I wyll shewe the that I haue sene: which wyse men haue tolde, and hath not bene hyd from their fathers vnto whom onely the earthe was geuen, and no straunger went amonge them.

The * vngodly sorroweth all the dayes of hys lyfe as it were a woman with a childe, and the nombre of a tyrauntes yeares is vnknowne. A fearfull sounde is euer in hys eares, and when it is peace, yet feareth he destruccyon. He beleueth neuer to be delyuered oute of darckenes, for the swearde is alwaye before hys eyes. When he goeth forth to get his lyuyng, he seeth plainely, that the daye of darckenesse is at hande. Sorowe and carefulnesse wyll make hym afrayed, and compasse hym rounde about, lyke as it were a kynge with hys hoost ready to the batayll. For he hath stretched out hys hande agaynst God, and armed hym selfe agaynst the almyghtye, he runneth proudly vpon hym, and with a styff necke fyghteth he agaynst hym: where as he couereth hys face with fatnesse, and maketh hys body well lykynge. Therfore shall hys dwellynge be in desolate cyties, and in houses which no man inhabyteth, but are become heapes of stones.

He shall not be riche, nether shall hys substaunce contynue, ner encrease vpon earthe. He shall neuer come oute of darknesse, the flame shall dryye vp hys braunches: with the blast of the mouth of God shall he be taken awaye. He beleueth not that he is in vanyte, and yet he is out of the waye, and vanyte shalbe hys recompence.

He shall peryth, afore hys tyme be worne out, and hys braunche shall not be grene. He shalbe plucht of as an vntymely grape frō the vyne, & shall lett his floure fall, as the olyue doth. For the congregacyon of ypocrites shalbe desolate and vnfrutefull, and fyre shall consume ỹ houses of soch as are gredy to receaue giftes. He * conceaueth trauayle, and beareth vanyte, and the wombe bryngeth forth disceate.

The xvj. Chapter.

Job repetynge hys mysery, sayeth that he suffereth more then hys wyckednesse hath deserued.

Job answered, and sayde: I haue oft tymes herde soch thynges. Wylerable geuers of confort are ye, all the sorte of you. Shall not vayne wordes come yet to an ende? Or, hast thou yet eny more to saye? I coulde speake, as ye do also. But wold God, that youre soule were in my soules stede: then shuld I heape vp wordes agaynst you, and shake my heade at you. I shuld comforte you with my mouthe, and releasse youre payne with the talkyng of my lippes. (But what shall I do?) For all my wordes, my sorow wyll ceasse: and though I holde my tonge, yet wyll it not departe from me. But now that God hath sente me aduersytie, thou hast troubled all my congregacyon. And that thou hast fylled me wyth wrynckles, my flesshe is rotyde, and my leanesse rysseth vp agaynst me, and beareth wytnesse agaynst me. He is angrye at me, he hateth me and gnasheth vpon me wyth hys teth. Myne enemye shouleth vpon me wyth hys eyes.

They haue opened their mouthes wyde vpon me * & smytten me vpon ỹ cheke despitefully, they gather them selues together agaynst me. God hath put me in preasse with the vngodly, & delyuered me into the hādes of the wycked. I was in wealth, but he hath brought me to naught. He hath taken me by the neck, he hath rent me, and sett me as a marck for him selfe. His archers cōpasse me rounde rounde aboute: he wounded my loynes, and doth not spare. My bowels hath he poured vpon the grou̅d. He hath geue̅ me one wou̅d vpon another, and is fallen vpon me lyke a giaunte. I haue sowed a sack cloth vpon my skynne, & lye with my heare in the dust.

My face is swollen with weppynge, and D in myne eyes is the shadow of death. Howbeit, there is no wyckednesse in my handes, but my prayer is cleane. O earth couer not thou my bloude, and let my crepenge synde no rowme. For lo, my witnesse is in heauen: & he that knoweth me, is aboue in the heygth. My frendes geue me many wordes, to scorne, and myne eye poureth out teares vnto God. O that a body might pleate with God, as one man doth with another, yet the nombre of my yeares is come, and the waye that I must go is at hande, from whence I shall not turne agayne.

¶ The.xvij.Chapter.

¶ Job sayth that he consumeth awaye, and yet doth patiently abyde yt.

MY breth stincketh, my dayes are shortened. I am harde at deathes dore. Frowarde men are w̄ me, and myne eye must continue in the bitternesse of them. O deliuer me, and loke out one to be my suertie in thy sight, what is he that knoweth who will promes for me? For thou hast with holden their hertes from vnderstandynge, therfore shalt thou not sett (them) vp on hye. He promiseth his frendes parte of his good, but his awne children spende it. He hath made me as it were a byworde of the people: where as afore, I was they rtiope. Myne eye is dymme, for very heupnesse, & all my strength is become like a shadow. Vertuous mē therfore shall well consyder this, and the innocēt shall take parte agaynst the ypocrite.

The righteous also will kepe hys waye, and he that hath cleane handes, wyll euer be stronger and stronger. As for you, turne you, and get you hence (I praye you) seynge I cannot synde one wyse man amonge you: My dayes are past, and my councels and thoughtes of my hart are vanysshed awaye chaungynge the night into daye, and ý light into darckenes. Though I tary neuer so D moch, yet the graue is my house, and I haue made my bed in the darcke. I call corruptyon my father, and the wormes call I my mother and my syster. What helpeth then my longe tarynge? Or, who hath considred the thynge, that I loke for? All that I haue, shall go downe into the pytt, and lye with me in the dust.

¶ The.xviij.Chapter.

¶ Baldad reherseth the paynes of the vnfaythfull and wycked.

THen answered Baldad the Suhite, and sayde: & when wyll ye A make an ende of youre wordes? Marcke well, and then we wyll speake. Wherfore are we counted as beastes, & reputed so vyle in youre sight? He destroied him selfe with his anger: Shal the earth be forsaken, or any stone remoued out of his place because of the? Yee, the light of the vngodly shall be put out: and the sparke of hys fyre shall not burne. The lyght shalbe darcke in his dwelling, and his candle shalbe put out with him. His presumpteous 13 goinges are kepte in, and his awne councell shall cast him downe. For his fete are taken as it were in the nett, and he is at his wittes ende. His fote shalbe holden in the snare, and it shall catch them that be thyrsty of bloude: The snare is layed for him in the grounde, ād a pytfall in the waye.

Fearfulnesse shall make him afrayed on C euery syde, that he shall not knowe, where to get out. Honger shalbe his strength: mysfortune shall hange vpon him. He shall eate the strength of his awne skynne, euē ý fyrst borne of death shall eate his strength. His hope shalbe roted out of his dwellynge, very ferfulnesse shall bringe him & to the kyng. D Other men shal dwell in his house (but shalbe none of his) and brymstone shalbe scatered vpon his habitacyon. His rotes shalbe dried vp beneth, and aboue shall his braunch be cutt downe. His remembraunce shall perysshe from ý earth, and he shall haue no name in the strete: they shall dryue him from ý light into darckenesse, and cast him cleane out of the worlde. He shall nether haue chyldrē nor kynskolckes amonge his people, no, ner eny posterite in his dwellinges. They that come after hym, shalbe astonied at his daye, and they that go before, shall be afrayed. Soch are now the dwellynges of the wycked, and this is the place of hym ý knoweth not God.

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

¶ Job reherseth hys mysteries and grenoule paynes. He prophesyeth of the generall relaū reteyen.

IOb answered, and sayde: how longe A will ye vexe my soule, and trouble me with wordes? Lo & ten tymes haue ye reproued me: and are not a shamed, for to laugh me so to scorne: yf I go wronge, I go wronge to my selfe. But yf ye will enhaunce your selues agaynst me, and accuse me to be a wycked personne because of the shame that is come vpon me: knowe this then, that it is God, which hath handled me so violētly and hath compased me aboute with his nette. Yf I * cōplayne of the violēce ý is done vnto me, * Habac.i.a. I cannot be herde. And yf I crye, there is no

P v sentence

sentence geuen with me. He hath hedged vp
B my waye, that I cannot passe, and he hath
*Job.i.g.a. set darcknesse in my pathes. * He hath spoyled me of myne honoure, and take ꝑ crowne awaye fro my head. He hath destroyed me on euery syde, and I am vndone: Wy hope hath he taken awaye fro me, as it were a tre pluckt vp by the rote. His wrath is kyndled agaynst me: he taketh me, as though I were hys enemy.

☞ ☞ Hys men of warre came together, which made their waye ouer me, ād besieged
*Wel.xxx. viii.c. my dwellynge roūde aboute. * He hath put my brethren farre awaye fro me, and soch as were of myne acquayntance, are become
*Wel.xxx. viii.c. straungers vnto me. * Wyne awne kynsfolkes haue forsakē me, and my frendes haue put me out of remēbraunce. The seruaūtes and maydens of myne awne house toke me for a straunger: and I am become as an alcaunt in theyr syght.

I called my seruaunt, and he gaue me no answere, no though I prayed him with my mouth. Wyne awne wyfe myght not abyde my breth, I was fayne to speake fayre for the chyldren of myne awne body. Yee, ꝑ children despysed me: And whē I was gone frō them, they spake euell vpon me. All soch as were my most familiers, abhorred me: and they whom I loued best, are turned agaynst me. Wy bone hangeth to my skynne, and my
D flesh is awaye, only there is left me ꝑ fayne about my teth. Haue pyte vpon me, haue pyte vpon me (Oye my frendes) for the hād of God hath touched me. Why do ye persecute me as God doth, and are not satisfyed of my flesshe?

O that my wordes were nowe written O that they were put in a boke: wolde God they were grauen with an yron penne in leade or in stone to cōtinue. For I am sure, that myne redemer lyueth, and that I shall ryse out of the earth in the latter daye: that I shall be clothed agayne with this skynne, ād se God in my flesh. Yee, I my selfe shall beholde him, not with other, but with these same eyes. Wy reynes are cōsumed within me: dyd not ye saye: why doth he soffer persecucion? Is theyr founde an occasion in me? But be warre of the swearde, for the swearde wylbe auēged of wyckednesse, and be sure, that there is a iudgement.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.

¶ Sophar sayeth, that the vnlayth shall, the couetous and the wycked shall haue a short ende.

Then answered Sophar the Naamathite, and sayde. For the same cause do my thoughtes compell me to answere. And why? my wynde is ready within me. I haue sufficiently herde thy checking and reproffe, therfore am I purposed to make answere after myne vnderstandynge. Knowest thou not this, namely: that from the begynnyng (euer sence ꝑ creacion of man vpon earth) ꝑ gladnes of the vngodly hath bene shorte, and that the ioye of ypocrites continued but the twynclynge of an eye? Though he be magnified vp to the heauē, so that his head reacheth vnto ꝑ cloudes: yet at a turne he perisheth for euer. In so moch that they which haue sene hym, shall B saye. Where is he? He shall vanysh as a dreame, so that he can no more be foūde, and shall passe awaye as a vision in ꝑ nyght. So that the eye which sawe hym before, shall haue no more syght of hym, and hys place shall knowe hym nomore. ☞ Hys children shall be D fayne to agree with the poore, and his handes shall restore them their goodes.

Frō his youth his bones are full of pleasures, but now shall it lye downe within him in ꝑ earth. When wyckednesse, was swete in his mouth, he hid it vnder hys tonge. That he fauoured, ꝑ wolde he not forsake, but kepte it close in his throte. The breade that he C dyd eate, is turned to the poyson of serpēts, within his body. The ryches that he deuoured, shall he perbrake agayne, for God shall drawe them out of his bely, he shal sucke the gall of serpentes, and the adders tonge shall slaye hym: so that he shall nomore se the ryuers and brokes of hony and butter. The thing that other men haue laboured for, shall he restore agayne, and shall not eate it vp. Greate trauayle shall he make for ryches, but he shall not enioye them. And why? he hath oppressed the poore, & not helped them: houses hath he spoyled, & not buylded them, his bely coulde neuer be fylled, therfore shall he perishe in hys couetousnesse. There shall none of hys meate be left behinde, therfore D shall no man loke for hys prosperite. Whan he had plentousnesse of euery thynge, yet was he poore, though he was helped on euery syde.

For though the wycked haue neuer so moch to fyll his bely, yet God shall sende his wrath vpon him, and cause his indignacyon to raygne ouer him: so that yf he flye the yron weapens, he shall be shott w̄ the stele bowe. The arowe is taken forth, and gone out of the quyuer, & a glysterīng sweard thorowe the gall of him, feare shall come vpon hym. There shall no darcknes be able to hyde him An vnkyndled fyre shall consume him, and loke what remayneth in hys house, it shall be destroyed. The heauen shall declare hys wyckednesse, and the earth shall take parte agaynst him. The substaunce that he hath in hys house, shalbe taken awaye and perysshe in the daye of the Lordes wrath. * This is *Job.xvii.c. the porcyon that the wycked man shall haue of God, and the herytage that he maye loke for of God. ☞ because of his wordes.

¶ The

¶ The.xrj.Chapter.

¶ Job reproveth the prosperyte of the wycked, & after declareth their sodayn ruyne and destrucyon.

1 IOb answered, and sayde: O heare my wordes, and that shalbe my cõfort of you. Suffre me a lytle, that I maye speake also, ād then laugh my wordes to scorne (yf it lyke you.) Is it for mans sake that I make thys disputacyon? Which yf it were so, shulde not my spryte be then in sore trouble? Marcke me well, and be abashed, and laye youre hand vpon youre mouth. For when I consyder my selfe, I am afrayed, and my flesshe is smytten with fea-
xxi.a. re. * Wherfore do wycked mẽ lyue in health
Jerem.xii.a. and prosperite, come to theyr olde age, and increase in ryches? Their chyldren lyue in theyr syght, and theyr generacyon before theyr eyes. Their houses are safe from all feare, and the rodd of God doth not smyte them. Their bullocke gendreth, and that not out of tyme: theyr cowe calueth, and is not vnfrutefull.

2 They sende forth their children by flocks, and their sonnes lede the dance. * They
xxi.by.d. heare with them tabrettes and harpes, and haue instrumentes of musycke at their pleasure. They spẽde their dayes in welthynesse: but sodenly they go downe to hell. They saye also vnto God: go from vs, we desyre
* Exo.v.a. not the knowledge of thy wayes. * Who is the Almyghtie, that we shulde serue hym? And what profyt shuld we haue to submyt our selues vnto him? Lo, there is vtterly no goodnesse in them, therfore will not I haue to do with the councell of the vngodly. How oft shall the cãdle of the wycked be put out? how oft cõmeth their destruccion vpon thẽ? O what sorowe shal God geue them for their parte in hys wrath? Yee, they shall be
* Psal.i.b. cuẽ as haye before the wynde, ād * as chaffe that the storme carryeth awaye.

3 ¶ And though God saue their children from soch sorowe, yet wyll he rewarde thẽ selues, ꝑ they shall knowe it. Their awne destruccion and misery shall they se with their eyes, ād drincke of the fearfull wrath of the Almyghty. For what careth he what become of his housholde after hys death, whan ꝑ nombre of his monethes is cut shorte? In as moch then as God hath the hyest power of all, who can teach him eny knowledge? One dyeth now when he is mightye and at hys best, ryche, and in prosperite: euen when his bowels are at the fattest, and hys bones full of mary. Another dyeth in sorowe ād heuinesse, and neuer had good dayes. They shall slepe both a lyke in the earth, & the wormes shall couer them. Beholde, I knowe what ye
4 thincke, yee, and the sotiltye that ye ymagyn ☞ agaynst me. For ye saye: ☞ where is the princes palace? and where is the dwellynge of the vngodly: haue ye not asked them ꝑ go by the waye? ☞ Doutlesse ye cannot denye ☞ their tokens, that * the wicked is kepte vn- * ii Pet. ii.b. Mat.xxii.d.
to the daye of destrucyon, and that the vngodly shalbe brought forth to the daye of wrath. Who darre reproue him for his waye to hys face? Who wyll rewarde him for the vngraciousnesse that he doth? Yet shall he be brought to his graue, and dwell among the heape of the deed. Then shall he be sayne to be buried amonge the stones of the playne: All men also must folowe him, and there are innumerable gone before him. How vayne then is the comforte that ye geue me? Doth not falshede remayne in all youre answers?

¶ The.xrij.Chapter.

¶ Eliphaz reprehendeth Job of vnmercyfulnesse.

1 SO Eliphas the Themanite gaue answerr, and sayde: Maye a man be profitable vnto God, as he that is wyse maye be profytable to hym selfe? Is it any vauntage to the Allmyghtye that thou art ryghteous? Or shall it profyte hym, that thou makest thy wayes perfect? Is he afrayed to reproue the, ād to steppe forth with the into iudgment? Is not thy wickednesse greate, and thyne vngracious dedes innumerable? For thou hast taken the pledge from thy brother for naught, ād robbed the naked of their clothinge: To soche as were weery, hast ꝑ geuen no water to drincke, & hast withdrawen
2 bred from the hungrye: Shulde soch one thẽ as vseth violence, wrong & oppressiõ (doing all thinge of partialite, and hauinge respecte of personnes) dwell in the lande? Thou hast sent wyddowes awaye emptie ād oppressed the poore fatherlesse.

3 Therfore art thou compassed aboute with snares on euery syde, ād sodenly vexed with feare. Shuldest thou then se no darckenesse? Shulde not the water floude runne ouer ꝑ? Now * because that God is hyer then ꝑ hea- * Eccl.xxiij.b Eccli.xl.b.
uens, and because thou seyst that the starres are so hye, wilt thou therfore saye: Tushe, how shulde God knowe? Doth his dominyõ reache beyonde the cloudes? Tush, the cloudes couer him that he maye not se, & he dwelleth aboue heauen. Wolt not thou kepe the olde waye, that vaynemẽ haue gone? Which were cut downe out of tyme, ād whose foũdacyon was as a runnynge water, which sayed vnto God: go from vs, and what dyd the Allmyghtye with them? He fylled theyr houses with good thinges. But the councell of the vngodly is farre fro me. The ryghtrous sawe it and were glad, and the innocent laughed thẽ to scorne. Is youre increase hewẽ downe? As for the remnaunt of them, the fyre hath consumed it.

4 Therfore reconcile the vnto God, and be contẽt, so shall all thinges prosper with the ryght

ryght well. Receaue the lawe at his mouth, D and laye vp his wordes in thyne herte. For
* Deu.xxx.d. * yf thou wilt turne to the Almightye, thou shalt stande fast, and put all vnrighteousnesse
from thy dwellynge: Thou shalt make gold as plentifull as the dust, and the golde of Ophir as the stynkes of the ryuers. Yee, Almightye God hys awne selfe shalbe thy defence, and thou shalt haue plentye of syluer.
Then shalt ꝓ haue thy delite in the Almigh-tie, & lyft vp thy face vnto God. Then shalt thou make thy prayer vnto him, and he shall heare the, and thou shalt kepe thy promyses.
Then, loke what thou takest in hãd, he shall make it to prospere with the, and the lyght
* Pro.xxii.c. shall shyne in the wayes. For * who so humbbleth hym selfe, him shall be set vp: & who so loketh meekely, shalbe healed. If thou be innocent, thou shalt deliuer the countre because of the vngyltynesse of thyne handes.

¶ The.xxiij. Chapter.

¶ Job affirmeth that he both knoweth and feareth the power and sentence of the iudge, and sayth th. t he hath walked in hys ryghteousnesse.

A IOb answered, and sayde: My saynge is yet this daye in bytternes, and my hande heuy because of my gro-nynge. O that I myght se him, and fynde hym: O that I myght come before his seate,
to pleate my cause before him, and to fyll my mouth with argumentes. That I myght knowe, what answere he wolde geue me: & that I myght vnderstande, what he wolde
B saye vnto me. Wyll he pleate agaynst me with his great power and strength? No, but he wyll make me the stroger. He that is iust, shall entre disputacion with hym, and my iudge shall delyuer me for euer. Beholde, though I go before, I fynde him: If I come behynde, I can get no knowledge of him:
Yf I go on the left syde where he doth hys worcke, I cannot atteyne vnto hym. I gayn-ne, yf I go on the ryght syd, he hydeth hym selfe, that I cannot se him. But as for my
* Sapi. vii. b. waye, he knoweth it: and * tryeth me as the
i. Petri. i. b. golde in the fyre.

☞ ☞ My fote doth kepe his path, his hye
C waye haue I holden, and will not go out of
it. I will not forsake the commaundemẽt of his lippes, but loke what he charged me with his mouth, that haue I shutt vp in my herte.

☞ ☞ He is styll at one poynt, and who wyll turne him back? he doth as him listeth, and bringeth to passe what he will. He perfourmeth the thynge that is appoynted for me, &
many soch thynges doth he. This is ꝓ cause D that I chrincke at his presence, so that when I consydre hym, I am afrayed of him. For in somoch as he is God, he maketh my her-te soft: and seynge that he is Allmyghtie, he putteth me in feare. Thus can not I gett out of darcknesse, nether hath he couered
the cloude fro my face.

¶ The.xxiiij. Chapter.

¶ Job destrydeth the wyckednes of men, and sheweth wha t ruell belongeth to the wycked.

A Onsyderinge then that there is no tyme hid from the Almyghtie, how happeneth it, that they
which knowe hym, do not re-garde his dayes? For some men
there be, that * remoue other mens lande- * Deu.xix.d.
marches: that robbe them of their catell, and and.xxvii.c.
kepe the same for theyr awne: that * dryue * Gen.xxi.d
awaye the asse of the fatherlesse: that take the wyddawes ore for a pledge: that thrust
the poore out of the waye, and oppresse the symple of the worlde together. Beholde, eue ns the wylde asses in ꝓ deserte goo they forth B
to their worke, and ryse by tymes to spoyle:
Yee ꝓ very wildernesse ministreth foode for their chyldre. They reape the corne felde that is not their awne: and ☞ ☞ let the vyne yarde ☞
of the vngodly alone. They are the cause that so many men are naked and bare, hauinge no clothes to couer them and to kepe
them from colde: So that whẽ the showers
in the mountaynes haue rayned vpon them, & they be all wett, they haue none other suc-
coure, but to kepe them amonge the rockes.

They spoyle ꝓ suckinge fatherlesse childe,
and take the pledge frõ the poore. In somoch
that they let him go naked without clothing,
and haue taken awaye the sheafe of the hũgrie. The poore are fayne to laboure in their oyle milles, yee, and to treade in theyr wyne presses, and yet to suffre thyrst. The men of the cytie crieth vnto the Lorde with sythyng,
* the soules of the slayne also make theyr * Apoc.vi.
complaynte: But God destroyeth them not i.Esdr.xii.
for all this, where as they (not withstandin- C
ge) are conuersaunt amonge them that ab-
horre the lyght: they knowe not hys waye,
ner contynue in his pathes. * Tymely in * Luce.xxiii
the mornynge do they aryse, to murthur the symple and poore, and in the nyght they go
a stealynge.

The eye of the aduouterer wayteth for
the darcknesse, and sayeth thus in him selfe:
Tush, there shall no eye se me, and so he disgiseth his face. In ꝓ nyght season they search the houses, and hyde them selues in the daye tyme, but will not knowe the light. For as soone as the daye breaketh, the shadowe of death cõmeth vpon them, & they go in horrible darcknesse. The vngodly is swyfter then the water: their porcion shalbe cursed in the earth, and he shall not beholde the waye of the vineyardes. O that they (for the wickednesse which they haue done) were drawẽ
to the hell, soner then snowe melteth at the drouth and heate. O that all compassiõ vpõ D thẽ were forgotte: that their dayntes were wormes, that they were cleane put out of remembraũce,

membraūce, and vngodlynesse vtterly hewen downe lyke as a tre. He hath oppressed the baren, that he cannot beare, and vnto ꝑ wyddowe hath he done no good. He driue the mightie after hym with his power, and whē he was gotte vp, no man was without feare, as longe as he lyueth. And though they might be safe, yet they wyll not receaue it, for their eyes loke vpon their awne wayes. They are exalted for a lytle, but shortly are they gone, brought to extreme powerte, and taken out of the waye: ye ād vtterly pluckte of, as the eares of corne. Is it not so? Who wyll then reproue me as a lyar, and saye that my wordes are not hynge worth?

¶ The. xxvj. Chapter.

¶ Iob alday prouyth that no man is clene and with out synne before God.

Then answered Baldad the Suhite, and sayde. Is there power and feare with him aboue, that maketh peace, sytting in his hyghnesse, whose men of warre are innumerable, and whose light aryseth ouer all. But how maye a mā compared vnto God, * be iustifyed? Or how cā he be cleane, that is borne of a woman? Beholde, the Moone shyneth not hynge in comparison to him, ād the starres are vncleane in his sight. How moche more then man, that is but corruption: and the sonne of man, which is but a worme?

* Iob iiii. c. and xv. d. and xxv. a. Psal. cxliii. a. Rom. iii. c.

The. xxvj. Chapter.

¶ Iob shewyth that man cannot helpe God, and proueth it by hys miracles.

Iob answered, and sayde. Whom hast thou helped? him that is wout strength? what comforte geuest thou vnto hym that hath no strength? Where is the councell ꝑ thou shuldest geue him, which hath no wysdome? Hast thou shewed the waye of ryght lyuinge. To whom hast thou spoken those wordes? Who made the breth to come out of thy mouth? Are not deed thinges shapen vnder the waters: & thinges by the waters syde? Hell is naked before him, and the very destruccion it selfe cannot be hyd out of his syght. He stretcheth out the north ouer the emptie, and hangeth the earth vpon nothing. He byndeth the * waters in his cloudes, and the cloude is not broken vnder thē. He holdeth back his stole, that it cannot be sene, and spredeth his cloude before it.

* Gene. i. a.

* He hath compased the waters with certayne boundes vntill the daye & nyght come to an ende. The very pyllers of heauē tremble and quake at his reproke. * He stilleth ꝑ se with his power, ād thorow his wysdome smyteth he the strength therof. Hys spirite hath garnished the heauens, and hys hande hath made the rebellious serpent. Lo, this is nowe a shorte sume of his wayes. But who is able sufficiently to rehearse hys workes? Who can perceaue and vnderstande the thōder of hys power?

* Iob. xxvi. c. Psal. civ. d. Jerem. v. c.

¶ The. xxvij. Chapter.

¶ The constaunce and parfytenesse of Iob, and the part of the vnfaythfull with God.

And Iob proceaded & went forth in hys communecacyon, sayeng: As truly as God lyueth (which hath taken awaye my iudgemēt) and the Almightie, that hath vexed my mynde: My lyppes shal talke of no vanyte, and my tonge shall speake no dysceate, whyle my breth is in me, and as longe as the wynde (that God hath geuen me) is in my nostrels.

God forbid, that I shulde graunte youre cause to be ryght. As for me, vntyll myne ende come wyll I neuer goo fro myne innocency. My ryght wes dealynge kepe I fast, which I wyll not forsake: my hert shall not reproue me of my dayes. Therfore, myne enemy shalbe founde as the vngodly, and he that taketh parte agaynst me, as ꝑ vnryghteous. For what hope hath the ypocryte though he haue greate good, ād though God geue him riches after his hertes desyre? Doth God heare him the soner, when he crieth vnto him in hys necessite? hath he soch pleasure and delyte in ꝑ Almightye, that he darre alwaye call vpon God? I wyll teach you in the name of God, and the thinge that I haue of the Almyghtie, will I not kepe from you, Beholde, ye stande in youre awne conceate, as though ye knewe all thynges. Wherfore then do ye go aboute with soch vayne wordes, sayenge. * This is the porcion that the wycked shall haue of God, and the heretage that Tyrauntes shall receaue of ꝑ Almyghtie. If he get many childzen, they shall perish with the swerde, and his posterite shall haue scarcenesse of bred. Loke whom he leaueth behinde him, they shall dye and be buried, ād no man shall haue pitye of hys wyddowes. Though he haue as moch money as the dust of the earth, and rayment as redy as the claye, he maye well prepare it: but the godly shall put it vpon hym, and the innocent shall deale out the money. His house shall endure as the moth, and as a boothe that the watch mā maketh. * When the ryche man dyeth, he carieth nothynge with him: he is gone in the twynckinge of an eye and hath nothynge. Destruccion taketh holde vpō him as a water floude, & the tempest stealeth him awaye in the nyght season. A vehement east winde caryeth hym hence, and departeth, a storme plucketh hym oute of his place. It trusteth in vpon him, and spareth hym not, he maye not escape frō ꝑ power therof. Then clappe men their handes at him, yee, & iest of hym when,

* Iob. xx. d.

* Psal. xlix. b. Luce. xii. c.

when they loke vpon his place.

¶ The.xxviij. Chapter.

¶ Iob setteth out the vnsearchablenesse of God in vnsearchable.

THere is a place where syluer is brought out of, and where golde is tried
* Deu. viii. d * where yron is dygged out of the ground, and stones resolued to metall. The darcknes shall once come to an ende, he can serche out the grounde of all thinges: the stones, the darcke, ād the shadow of death. With the ryuer of water parteth he a sunder the straūge people, ꝑ knowe no good neyghbour head: soch as are rude, vnmanerly and bopustours. He bringeth foode out of the erth, and that which is vnder, consumeth he with fyre. There is founde a place, whose stones are cleane Saphirs, and where the clottes of the earth are golde. There is a waye also that the byrdes knowe not, that no vultures eye hath sene: wherin the lions whelpes walke not, and where no lion commeth. There putteth he his hande vpon the stony rockes, ād ouerthroweth the moūtaines. Riuers flowe out of the rockes, and loke what is pleasaunt, his eye seyth it. Out of droppes bringeth he greate floudes together, and the thinge that is hyd bringeth he to light. ¶ how commeth a man then by wysdome? * Where is the place that men fynde vnderstanding? Verely no man can tell how worthy a thige she is, nether she is founde in the lande of them that lyue. (as they) (that they) (what pleasure.) The depe saieth: she is not with me. The see saieth: she is not not with me * She can not be gotten for (the most pure) golde, nether maye the pryce of her be bought with eny syluer. No wedges of golde of Ophir, no precions Onix stones, no Saphirs maye be compared vnto her. No, nether golde ner Christall, nether swete odours ner golden plate. There is nothinge so worthy, or so excellēt, as once to be named vnto her: for perfecte wysdome gotth farre beyonde thē all. The Topas that cōmeth out of Inde, maye in no wyse be likened vnto her: yee, no maner of apparell howe pleasaunt and fayre soeuer it be.

* Wysdome ii. a * Sapi. viii. c. * Sapi. xiii. b. * Ecclesi. xxiiii. a. * Baruch iii. b. and iii. d.

¶ From whence then commeth wisdome? and where is the place of vnderstandinge? She is hid from the eyes of all men liuinge, yee, and from the foules of the ayre. Destruccion and death saye: we haue herde tell of her with oure eares. But God seeth her waye, and knoweth her place. For he beholdeth the endes of the worlde, and loketh vpon all that is vnder heauen. When he weyed the wyndes, and measured the waters: when he set the rayne in ordre, and gaue the myghtye floudes a lawe: Then dyd he se her, then declared he her, prepared her and knewe her. And vnto man he sayde: Behold, * to feare the Lorde, is wysdome: and to forsake euell, is vnderstandinge.

¶ The.xxix. Chapter.

¶ Iob remembreth of the prosperitye of the tyme past, whereby appeareth his frendes of iniury, because they iudge that Iob suffred aduersyte for his offences.

MOreouer Iob proceaded and went forth in his communicacyon, sayenge. A
O that I were as I was in ꝑ monethes by past, and in the dayes when God preserued me: when his light shyned vpon my head: when I wente after the same lyght and shynynge, euen thorowe the darcknesse. As it stode with me when I was yonge: when God prosperedmy house: when the Almyghtie was yet with me: when my chyldren stode aboute me: when my wayes ranne ouer with butter, and whē the stony rockes gaue me ryuers of oyle: when I wente thorowe the cytie vnto the gate, and when they set me a chayre in the strete: when the yonge men (as soone as they sawe me) hid them selues, and when the aged arose, and stode vp vnto me, when the Princes left of their talkinge, and layed their hande to their mouth: whē the myghtye kepte still their voyce, and when their tonge cleued to the rofe of their mouthe. When all they that herde me, called me happye: and when all they that sawe me, spake good of me. For I deliuered the poore when he cried, and so did I the fatherlesse and him that had none to holde him. He that shulde haue bene lost, gaue me a good worde, and the wydowes herte prayed me. And why? (for) I put vpon me ryghteousnes, which couered me as a garment, and equyte was my crowne. I was an eye vnto the blynde, and a fote to the lame, I was a father vnto the poore: and when I knewe not the cause, I sought it out diligently. I brake the chawes of the vnrighteous man, * and pluckte the spoyle out of his teth. * Genesis

Therfore, I thought verely that I shuld haue byed in my nest: and that my dayes shulde haue bene as many as the sondes of ꝑ see. For my roote was spred out by ꝑ water syde, and the dewe laye vpon my corne. Myne honour encreased more and more, and my bowe was euer the stronger in my hand. Vnto me men gaue eare, me they regarded, and with silence they taryed for my councell. If I had spoke, they wolde haue it none other wayes, my wordes were so well take amonge them. They wayted for me as for the rayne: and gaped vpon me, as ꝑ grounde doth to receaue the latter shower. (for) When I laughed, they knewe well it was not earnest: and the lyght of my countenaunce wolde they not put out. When I agreed vnto their waye, I was the chefe, and sat as a kynge with hys armye aboute hym. And whan

whan they were in heuynes, I was theyr comfortoure.

¶The.xxx.Chapter.

¶The greate disprysynge of men and curssse of God that Job sustereth.

BUt now they that are poorer then I, haue me in derysion: yee, euen they, whose fathers I wolde haue thought scorne to haue set with the dogges of my catell. The power & strength of their handes might do me no good: for the tyme is but lost among them. For very misery and honger, they fled into the wylderneſſe horrible & waist, pluckynge vp nettels amonge the bushes, and the Juniper rotes for their meate. And when they were dryuē forth, mē cryed after them, as it had bene after a thefe. Their dwelling was beſyde foule brokes, yee, in the caues and dennes of the earth. Amonge the bushes wente they aboute crying, and vnder the thornes they gathered them selues together. They were the chyldren of fooles and vylaines, which are vexed out of the worlde. * Now am I their songe, and am become their ieastinge stock: they abhorre me, and flye farre fro me, and stayne my face with spetle. For ỳ Lord hath loosed the strength of my body, and brought me lowe. The brydle haue they cast out of my syght. Upon my right hande ryse the ponge men agaynst me, they haue hurte my fete, treadinge vpon me, as vpon the wayes that they wolde destroye. My pathes haue they clene marred. It was so easy for them to do me harme, that they neded no man to helpe them. They fell vpon me, as it had bene the breakinge in of waters, and came in by heapes to destroye me. Fearfulneſſe is turned agaynst me.

Myne honoure vanished awaye more swyftly then the wynde, and my prosperite departeth hence, lyke as it were a cloude. Therfore is my mynde powred full of heuyneſſe, and the dayes of my trouble haue taken holde vpon me. My bones are pearsed thorow, in the night season, & my synewes take no rest. For the vehemencie of sorow is my garment chaunged and accordyng to the diuersite of heuynes am I gyrded with my coate. He hath cast me into the mire, and I am become like asshes and dust. Whē I crye vnto the, thou doest not heare me, & though I stāde before the, yet thou regardest me not. Thou art become myne enemye, and with thy violent hande thou takest part agaynst me. In tymes past thou didest set me vp on hie, as it were aboue the wynde, but now hast thou geuen me a very sore fall. Sure I am, that thou wilt deliuer me vnto death & vnto the lodginge that is due vnto all mē liuinge. Now vse not men to do violence vnto them, that are destroied all ready: but where hurte is done, there vse they to helpe. Did not I wepe with him that was in trouble? had not my soule compassion vpon the poore? Yet neuertheleſſe, where as I loked for good, euell happened vnto me: and where as I wayted for light, there came darkneſſe. My bowles sethe within me, & take no rest, for the dayes of my trouble are come vpon me. Mekely and lowly came I in, yee, and without any displeasure: I stode vp in the cōgregacion, and communed with them. But now, I am a companion of dragons, and a felowe of Estriches. My skynne vpon me is turned to black, and my bones are brēt with heate: my harpe is turned to sorowe, and my pype to weppynge.

¶The.xxxj.Chapter.

¶Job recyteth the innocency of hys lyuynge, and nombre of hys vertues.

I Made a couenaunt wt̄ myne eyes * ỳ I wolde not loke vpon a damsell. For how great a porcīō shall I haue of God? & what enheritaūce from the almightie on hie? As for the vngodly and he that toyneth him selfe to the company of wycked doers, shall not destruccion and misery come vpon him? * Doth not he se my wayes, and tell all my goinges? If I haue walked in vanite, or yf my fete haue runne to disceane: let me be weyed in an euē balaūce, that God may se my innocency. * If so be that I haue withdrawne my fote out of the right waye, and yf my hert hath folowed mine eye sight: If I haue stained or defiled my handes: then shal I sowe, and another eate, yee, my generacion ād posterite shall be cleane rotted out. If my hert hath lusted after my neghbours wyfe, or yf I haue layde wayte at his doore? O then let my wife grinde vnto another mā and let other mē lie with her. * For this is a wicked nesse and synne, that is worthy to be punished, yee, a fyre that vtterly shulde consume, and rote out all my substaūce. Did I euer thinke scorne to do right vnto my seruauntes and maydens, when they had eny mater agaynst me? But seinge that God will sytt in iudgment, what shall I do? And for so moch as he will nedes visett me, what answere shall I gene him? He that fashioned me in my mothers wombe, made he not him also? were we not both shapen a like in oure mothers bodies? When the poore desired any thinge at me, haue I denied it them? Haue I caused the widdowe to stande waytinge for me in vayne? haue I eatē my porcion alone, that the fatherleſſe hath had no parte with me? for mercy grewe vp with me fro my youth, and compassion fro my mothers wombe. Haue I sene any man perishe thorow nakednesse and want of clothinge? Or any poore mā for lack of raymēt, whose

sydes

lydes thäcked me not, because he was warmed with the wolle of my shepe?

Dyd I euer lyfte vp my hande to hurte the fatherlesse? yee, in the gate where I sawe my selfe to be in auctozite: then let myne arme fall fro my shulder, and myne arme holes be bzoken from the ioyntes. Foz I haue euer feared the vengeaunce and punyshement of God, and knewe very well, that I was not able to beare hys burthen. Haue I put my trust in golde? Oz haue I sayde to the fyneste golde of all: thou arte my confidence? Haue I reioyced because my power was great, ād because my hande gat so moche? * Dyd I euer greatly regarde the rychynge of ỹ sonne? oz had I the goinge downe of the moone in greate reputacyon? Hath my hert medled priuely with any disceate? Oz, dyd I euer kysse myne awne hande? that were a wyckednesse wozthy to be punished, foz thē shulde I haue denyed the God that is aboue.

* Deu. xiij.c. and. xvij.b. Sapien. xiij.a.

* Pro. xvij.a. * Haue I euer reioyced at the hurte of myne enemy? Oz was I euer glad, that any harme happened vnto him? Oh no. I neuer suffred my mouth to do soch a synne, as to wish him euell. Dyd not the men of myne awne houshold saye: who shall let vs to haue ouer belly full of his flesshe? I haue not suffred a straunger to lye without, but I opened my dozes vnto him, ỹ went by the waye. Haue I kepte secrete my synne and hyd myne iniquite, as Adā dyd? haue I feared any great multitude of people: oz yf I had bene dispysed of the symple, O then shulde I haue bene afrayed. Thus haue I quyetly spent my lyfe, ād not gone out at the doze. O that I had one which wolde heare me. Lo, this is my cause. In the which the almyghty shall answere foz me: though he that is my cōtrary party, hath wzitten a boke agaynst me.

Yet ☞ wyll I take him vpon my shulder, and as a garlande about my head. I wyll tell him, the nomber of my goinges, and go vnto him as to a Pzince. But yf case be that my ☞ lande crye agaynst me, oz that the fozowes therof make any complaynte: yf I haue eaten the frutes therof vnpayed foz, yee yf I haue greued any of the plowmen: then let thystles growe in steade of my wheate, & cockle foz my barleye.

D

☞

☞

Here ende the wozdes of Job:

The.xxxij. Chapter.

¶ Elihu after the other had fynyshed theyr communicatyon, reproueth them of folysshnes. Age maketh not a man wyse, but the spzete of God.

SO these thze men wolde strywe no moze with Job, because he helde hym selfe a rygh teous mā. But Elihu the sonne of Barachell the Bussyte of the kynred of Ram, was very soze displeased at Job, because he called hym selfe iust before God. And with Jobs thze frendes he was angry also, because they had founde no reasonable answere to ouercome Job. Now taried Elihu, tyll they had ended theyr communicacion with Job, foz why, they were elder then he. So when Elihu the sonne of Barachel the Bussyte sawe, that these thze men were not able to make Job answere, he was myscontent: Elihu the sonne of Barachel the Bussite answered hym selfe, and sayde: * Consideringe, that I am younge, and ye be men of age, I was afrayed, and durst not shewe fozth my mynde, Foz I thought thus within my selfe, It becommeth olde men to speake, ād the aged to teach wysdome. Euery man (no doute) hath a mynde, but * it is the inspiracīō of the Almyghty that geueth vnderstandinge. Great men are not all waye wyse, nether doth euery aged man vnderstande the thynge that is lawfull. Therfoze will I speake also (heare me) and I wyll shewe you also myne vnderstandinge. Foz when I had wayted tyll ye made an ende of youre talkynge, and hearde youre wysdome, what argumentes ye made in youre communicacyon: yee, when I had diligently pondzed what ye sayde, I founde not one of you that made any good argument agaynst Job, that directly coulde make answere vnto his wozdes: lest ye shulde saye. We haue founde out wysdome: God shall cast hym downe, and no man. He hath not spoken vnto me, and I wyll not answere hym as ye haue done (foz they were so abasshed, that they coulde not make ānswere, noz speake one wozde) but in so moche as ye wyll not speake, standynge styll lyke domme men, and makynge no answere: I haue a good hope foz my parte to shape hym an answere, and to shewe him my meanynge: Foz I am full of wozdes, and the spzete that is within me, compelleth me.

* Gen. xx.

* Eccle. xxxij.a. and xxxiij.a. Sapien. vij.a. Dani. xij.a.

C

D

Beholde, my belly is as the wyne, which hath no vente, and bursteth the new vessels in sunder. Therfoze will I speake ỹ I may haue a vēte: I will open my lyppes, & make answere. I will regarde no maner of prsonne, no man will I spare. Foz * yf I wold go aboute to please men, I knowe not howe sone my maker wolde take me awaye:

* Elihu

The.xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ Elihu shewed wherin Job offended, with God may we not stryue, noz curiously searche out hys wozkes.

WHerfoze, heare my wozdes (O Job) and herken vnto me all that I will saye: Beholde, I haue now opened my mouth, my tonge hath spoken in my thzote. My hert doth ozdze my wozdes a rygh,

A

a ryght, and my lyppes talke of pure wysdome. The spryte of God hath made me, and * the breth of the Almyghtye hath geuen me my lyfe. If thou canst, then geue me answere: prepare thy selfe to stande before me face to face. Beholde, before God am I euē as thou, for I am fashyoned and made euen of the same mould. Therfore, thou nedest not to be afrayed of me, nether nedest thou to feare, that my auctoryte shalbe to heuy for the. Now hast thou spoken in myne eares, and I haue herde the voyce of thy wordes: I am cleane wythout any faute, I am innocent, and there is no wyckednes in me. But lo, he hath picked a quarell agaynst me, and taketh me for hys enemy: * he hath put my fote in the stockes, and loketh narowly vnto all my pathes. Beholde, in thys hast thou not done ryght. I wyll make answere vnto the, that God is more then man. And why doest thou then stryue agaynst him: for he shall not geue the accomptes of all hys wordes. For whē God doth once cōmaunde a thynge, there shulde no man be curyous, to searche whether it be ryght. * In dreames and vysyons of the nyght (when slombring commeth vpon men, that they fall a slepe in their beddes) he coundeth them in the eares, he informeth thē, and sheweth them playnely, that it is he, whych withdraweth man from cupll, delyuereth hym from pryde, keepeth hym from the graue, and hys lyfe from the swearde. He chasteneth hym wyth sycknesse, and bryngeth hym to his bed: he layeth sore punyshement vpon hys bones, so that hys lyfe maye awaye wyth no bred, and his soule abhorreth to eat any dayntie meat: In so moch that hys body is cleane consumed awaye, and his bones appeare no more. Hys lyfe draweth on to the graue, and hys lyfe to death. Now, yf there be a messenger (one amonge a thousande) sent for to speake vnto man, and to shewe him the ryght waye: then the Lorde is mercyfull vnto hym, and sayeth: he shalbe delyuered, that he fall not downe to the graue, for I am sufficiently reconcyled. Than shall hys flesh be as well lykyng as it was afore, and shalbe as it was in hys youth. For yf he submytte hym selfe vnto God, he shalbe gracious vnto him, and shewe him his countenaunce ioyfully, & rewardeth man for his ryghteousnes. Soch a respecte hath he vnto men. Therfore, let a man confesse (and saye) I haue offended: I dyd vnryghteously, and it hath done me no good. Yee, he hath delyuered my soule from destruccyon, and my lyfe shall se the lyght. Lo, thus worcketh God all waye with mā, that he keepeth hys soule from perishing, and letteth hym enioye the lyght of the lyuynge. Marcke well (O Job) and heare me: holde the stylle, and I will speake. But yf thou hast any thynge to saye, then answere me, and speake, for thy answere pleaseth me. If thou hast nothinge, then heare me, and holde thy tonge, so shall I teach the wisdome.

¶ The .xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ Eliu playnlyth the auctoryte of God, whych rulyth the worlde, and gouerneth all.

Eliu procedynge forth in hys answere, sayd: Heare my wordes (O ye wyse men) herke vnto me, ye that haue understandynge. For the eare proueth ād discerneth the wordes, * and ye mouth tasteth ye meates: Ask for iudgement, let vs seke it out amonge oure selues, that we may knowe what is good. And why? Job hath sayde: I am ryghteous, but God doth me wronge. I must neades be a lyer, though my cause me ryght, and violently I am plaged where as I made no faut: where is there soch a one as Job, that drincketh vp scornefulnes lyke water? whych goeth in the company of wycked doers, and walketh wyth vngodly men? For he hath sayed: Though a man be good, yet is he naught before God. Therfore herken vnto me, ye that haue understandynge.

Farre be it from God, that he shuld medle wyth wickednesse: and farre be it from the Almyghtye, that he shulde medle wyth vnryghteous dealynge: * For he shall reward the workes of man, and cause euery man to fynde accordynge to his wayes. For sure it is, that * God condemneth no man wrongfully, and the iudgement of the Almyghtye is not vnryghteous. Who ruleth ye earth in his steade? Or, whom hath he sett to gouerne the whole worlde? To whom hath he geuen hys herte, for to drawe hys spyrite and breth vnto hym? All flesh shall come together vnto naught, and all men shall turne agayne vnto * dust. If thou now haue vnderstandyng, heare what I saye, and herken to the voyce of my wordes.

Maye he be a ruler, that loueth no ryght? Or maye he that is a very innocent man, do vngodly? Is it reason, ye thou shuldest saye to the kynge: Thou art wicked, or, thou art vngodly, and that before the princes? * He hath no respecte vnto the personnes, of the lordly, and regardeth not the ryche more then the poore. For they be all the worcke of hys handes. In the twynclinge of an eye shall they dye: and at mydnight, when the people and the tyrauntes rage, then shall they perish, and be taken awaye without handes. And why? * his eyes loke vpō the wayes of mā, and he seyth all hys goynges. There is no darcknes nor shadowe of death, ye can hyde the wycked doers from hym, for no man shalbe suffred to go into iudgement wt God.

Many one: yee innumerable doth he punysshe, & setteth other in their steades. Therfore shall he beware their worckes, he shall turne the nyght, and they shall be destroyed. They that were in ye steade of sears, dealt lyke vngodly men: and therfore he punyshed them, because they turned back from hym, and wolde not consyder all hys wayes. In so much that they haue caused the voyce of the poore to come vnto hym, and now he heareth the complaynte of soche as are in trouble. If he graunte pardon, who wyll condemne? And yf he hyde awaye hys countenaunce, who shalbe able to se it? whether it be to the people or to any man, thus wyll he do. For the vngodlynesse of the people, doth God make an ypocrite to reygne, ouer them. For so moch then as I haue begone to talke of God, I will not hynder ye. If I haue gone a mysse, enfourme thou me: yf I haue done wrõge, I will leaue of. Can he do nothinge without the? For thou hast reproued hys iudgemẽt. Thou also hast thyne awne mynde ād not I. But speake on what thou knowest. Let men of vnderstonding tell me, and let a wyse man herken vnto me. As for Job, he hath neyther spoken to the purpose nor wisely. O father, let Job be well tryed, because he hath answered for wycked mẽ: yee, aboue his synne he doth wyckedly: triumpheth amonge vs, and multiplieth hys wordes agaynst God.

The.xxxv. Chapter.

Whether doth godlynesse profit, or vngodlynesse hurt to God but to man.

ELihu spake moreouer, & sayde: Thynkest thou it ryght, that thou sayest: I am ryghtuous before God? For thou sayest: What aduauntage will it be vnto the, and what profyt shalt ye haue of my synne. Therfore will I geue answere vnto the and to thy companyõs wyth the: loke vnto the heauen, and beholde it: cõsyder the cloudes, whych are hyer then thou. If thou hast synned, what hast thou done against him? If thine offences be many, what hast thou done vnto hym? If thou be ryghtuous what geuest thou hym? Or what will he receaue of thy hand? Of soche an vngodly personne as thou, and of the sonne of man that is ryghtuous as thou pretendest to be: there is a greate cry and complaynte made by them that are oppressed wyth vyolence, yee, euery man cõplayneth vpõ the cruelnye of tyrauntes. For soche a one neuer sayeth: Where is God that made me? & that geueth vs occasion to prayse hym in ye nyght? Whych geueth vs more vnderstãdyng then he doth the beastes of the earth, & teacheth vs more then he doth the foules of heauen.

If any soch complayne, no man geueth answere, and that because of the wyckednesse of proude tyrauntes. But yf a man call vpon God, doth not he heare him? Doth not the almyghtye accepte his cryt? Whan thou speakest then, shulde not he pardon the, yf ye open thy selfe before hym, and put thy trust in hym? Then vseth he no vyolence in hys wrath, neyther hath he pleasure in curyous depe inquysycions. Therfore doth Job open hys mouth but in vayne, and folysshly doth he make so many wordes.

The.xxxvi. Chapter.

Elihu declareth wherfore God punysheth and correcteth.

ELihu proceaded forth in hys talkyng, and sayd: holde the styll a lytle, & I shall shewe ye, what I haue yet to speake on Goddes behalfe. I wyll open vnto the yet more of myne vnderstãdynge, & proue my mater ryghteous. And truly, my wordes shall not be vayne, seynge he is with the that is perfect in knowlege: behold, the greate God casteth awaye no mã, for he him selfe is myghty in power and wysdome.

As for the vngodly, he shall not preserue hym, but shall helpe the poore to their ryght. He shall turne hys eyes awaye frõ the ryghtous, but as kynges shall they be in theyr trone, he shall stablysh them for euer, & they shalbe exalted. But yf they be layed in presson and cheynes, or bounde with the bondes of trouble, then wyll he shewe them theyr worcke, and the synnes wher with they haue vsed cruell vyolence.

He wyth punysshynge and nurtringe of them, roundeth them in the eares, warneth them to leaue of from theyr wyckednesse, & to amende. * If they now wyll take hede ād serue him, they shall were out theyr dayes in prosperite, and theyr yeares in pleasure and ioye. But yf they wyll not herkẽ, they shall go thorow the swearde, and perysh or euer they be aware. As for soch as be fayned ypocrites, they shall heape vp wrath for them selues: for they call not vpon hym, though they be hys presoners. Thus shall theyr soule perysshe in folysshnesse, & theyr lyfe shalbe condẽned amõg the fornicatours. The poore shall he delyuer out of his affliction, & roũde them in the eare whã they be in trouble. Euẽ so shall he kepe the (yf thou wylt be content) from the bottomlesse pytte that is beneth: & yf thou wylt holde ye quyett, he shall fyll thy table wyth plenteousnesse.

Neuertheles, thou hast condemned the iudgement of the vngodly, yee, euen soche a iudgement and sentence shalt thou suffre.

For

For then shall not thy cause be stylled wyth
cruelte, nor pacyfyed wyth many gyftes.
Thynkest thou, that he wyll regarde thy riches? he shall not care for golde, ner for all them that excell in strength. Prolonge not thou ỹ tyme, tyll ther come a nyght for the,
to set other people in thy strade. But bewarre that thou turne not a syde to wyckednesse ād
synne, which hither to thou hast chosen more thē mekenesse. Behold, God is of a myght-ye hye power: Where is there soche a gyde
e lawe geuer as he? Who wyll reproue hym of hys waye? who wyll saye vnto him: thou hast done wrong?

D O consydre how greate and excellent hys
wozckes be, whom all men loue and prayse:
yet, wondre at hym, and yet they se hym but a farre of. Beholde, so greate is God, that he passeth oure knowledge, nether are we able to come to the experience of hys yeares. * he turneth the water to small droppes, he dry-neth hys cloudes together for to rayne, so ỹ they poure downe and droppe vpon men. He can spreade out the cloudes (a couerynge of hys tabernacle) and cause hys lyght to shyne
vpon them, and to couer the botome of ỹ see.
By these thinges gouerneth he hys people,
and geueth them aboundaunce of meate.
Wyth the cloudes he hydeth the lyght,
and at hys commaundement it commeth agayne. The rysyng vp therof sheweth
he to hys frendes e
to the catell.

¶ The .xxxvij. Chapter.

¶ Elyhu proueth that the wysdome of God is vn-searchable.

A T this, my hert is astonied,
and moued out of hys place.
Heare then the sounde of hys
voyce, ād the noyse that goeth out of his mouth. He gouerneth euery thyng vnder
the heauen, and his lyght rea cheth vnto the ende of the worlde. A roaring voyce foloweth hym: for his glorious maiesty geueth soche a thondre clappe, ỹ (though
a man heare it) yet maye he not perceaue it after warde. It geueth an horryble sownde, when God sendeth oute hys voyce: greate
thynges doth he, whych we can not compre
hende. * When he commaūdeth the showe, it
falleth vpon the erth: As soone as he geueth
the rayne a charge, immediatly the showers
haue theyr strength, and fall downe. He sendeth feare vpon euery man, that they myght knowe their awne wozckes. The beestes cre pe into theyr dennes, and take theyr rest.
Out of the south commeth the tempest, and
colde out of the north.

By the byeth of God, the frost commeth,
and the waters are shed abrode. He maketh
the cloudes to do theyr labour in geuynge
moystnesse, ỹ agayne wyth his lyght he dry-neth awaye the cloude. He distributeth also on euery syde, accordynge as it pleaseth hym
to deale out hys wozckes, that they maye
do whatsoeuer he commaundeth them tho-
row the whole worlde: whether it be to pu-nysh any lande, or to doo good vnto them,
that seke hym.

Herken vnto thys (O Job) stande styll,
ỹ consydre the wondrous wozckes of God.
Art thou of counceil wyth God, when he doth these thinges? When he causeth ỹ lyght to come forth of hys cloudes? Art thou of hys councell when he spredeth out the cloudes? hast thou the perfecte knowledge of
hys wōders? ỹ how thy clothes are warme,
when the lande is styll thorow the South
wynde? hast thou helped hym to spreade
out the heauen, whych is to loke vpon, as it were cast of cleare metall? Teache vs what we shall saye vnto hym, for we are vnmete
because of darcknes. Shall it be tolde hym
what I saye? Should a mā speake, or shulde he kepe it backe? For euery man seyth not the light, that he kepeth cleare in the cloudes
whych he clenseth whan he maketh ỹ wynde
to blowe. Golde is brought out of ỹ North,
but the prayse and honoure of Gods feare commeth from God hym selfe. It is not we ỹ can fynde out the almigh-tye: for in power, equite, and ryghteousnesse, he is hyer
than can be expressed.
Let men therfore fe-
are hym, for there shall no man se
hym that is wise in his awne cōceate.

¶ The .xxxviij. Chapter.

¶ The wondres and marualles that the Lorde
hath done from the begynnynge.

T Hen answered the Lorde vn
to Job out of the stormе, ād
sayd: what is he that hydeth
his mynde with folyth woz
des? * Gyrde vp thy loynes
lyke a man, for I wyll que-
styon wyth the, se thou geue
me a directe answere. Where wast thou, whē
I layde the foundacyons of the earth? Tell playnely, yf thou hast vnderstandyng. Who hath measured it, knowest thou? Or, who hath spreade the lyne vpon it? Where vpon stande the pyllers of it? Or, who layed the corner stone therof? Where wast thou, when the morynyng starres praysed me together,

and all the chyldren of God reioyced triumphantly? * Who shut the see wyth dores, when it brake forth as a chylde out of hys mothers wombe? When I made the cloudes to be a coueryng for it, and swadled it with the darcke? when I gaue it my commaundement, makyng dores and barres for it, saying: hyther to shalt thou come, but no farther, & here shalt thou laye downe thy proud and hye waues. Hast thou geuen the morninge hys charge (as lone as thou wast borne) and shewed the daye spryng hys place, that it myght take holde of the corners of ỹ earth, and that the vngodly myght be shake out? Theyr tokens and weapens are turned lyke claye, and sett vp agayne as the chaungyng of a garment. The vngodly shalbe vtterly poynted of their lyght, and the arme of the proude shalbe broken. Camest thou euer into the grounde of the see: or walkedest in the lowe corners of the depe? Haue the gates of death bene opened vnto the, or hast thou sene the dores of the shadowe of death? Hast thou also perceaued how broade the earth is? Yf thou hast knowledge of all thys, then shewe me, where lyght dwelleth, and where darckenes is: that thou mayest bringe vs vnto theyr quarters, yf thou canst tell the waye to theyr houses.

Knowest thou (afore thou wast borne) how olde thou shuldest be? Wentest thou euer into ỹ treasurpes of the snowe, or hast thou sene the secrete places of the hayle, * whych I haue prepared agaynst the tyme of trouble, agaynst the tyme of batell and warre? By what waye is the lyght parted, and in to what lande breaketh ỹ east wynde: Who deuydeth the aboundaunce of waters into ryuers, or who maketh a waye for the lyghtenyng and thonder, that it watereth ỹ mo stureth the drye and barengrounde: to make the grasse growe in places where no body dwelleth, and in the wyldernes where no mã remayneth? Who is the father of rayne? Or who hath begotten ỹ droppes of dewe? Out of whose wombe came the yse? Who hath gendred the coldnes of the ayre? that the waters are as harde as stones, and lye congeled aboue the depe. Wylt thou bynde the swete influences of the. vij. starres? Or art thou able to breke the cercle of heauen? Canst thou bringe forth the morninge starre or ỹ euenynge starre at conuenient tyme, & conueye them home agayne? Knowest thou the course of heauen, that thou mayest set vp the ordinaunce therof vpõ the erth? Moreouer, canst thou lyft vp thy voyce to the cloudes, that they maye poure downe a greate rayne vpon the? Canst thou thonder also that they maye go theyr waye, and be obedient vnto the, sayẽg: Lo here are we? Who geueth sure wysdome or stedfast vnderstandynge? who nombreth ỹ cloudes in wysdome? who stylleth the vehement waters of the heauẽ? who turneth the clottes to dust, & then to be clottes agayne? Wylt thou hunt the praye from the lyon, or fede hys whelpes lying in theyr dennes, and lurkyng in theyr couches? who * prouideth meate for the rauen, when hys ponge ones crye vnto God, and sit aboute for lack of meate?

Job.xxvi.c. xxxviij.c. Psal.cxxxix.d.

* Gen.vi.d. Josu.x.d.

* Psal.cxlvij.

¶ The.xxxix.Chapter.

¶ God speaketh vnto Job brynging hym by the examples of hys workes, that hys ygnorauncs is vnsearchable.

Knowest thou the tyme when the wylde goates bringe forth theyr ponge, amonge the stony rockes? Or layest thou wayte when ỹ hyndes vse to fawne? reckenest thou the monethes after they engendre, that thou knowest the tyme of theyr bearinge? or whẽ they lye downe, when they cast theyr youge ones, and when they are delyuered of theyr trauayle and payne? how their youge ones growe vp, & waxe greate thorow good feedyng? whan they go forth, and returne not agayne vnto them? who letteth the wylde asse go free, or who loseth the bõdes of the mule? Euen I whych haue geuẽ the wyldernes to be theyr house, and the vntylled land to be theyr dwellyng place. That they may geue no force for the multitude of people in the cyties, neither regarde the crienge of the driuer: but seke they? pasture about the mountaynes, ād folowe the grene grasse. Wyll the vnycorne be so tame as to do the seruice, or to abyde styll by thy crybbe? Canst thou bynd the yock about the vnycorne in thy forowe, to make hym plowe after ỹ in the valleys? Wylt thou trust hym (because he is strong) or committe thy labour vnto hym? Wylt thou beleue hym, that he wyll bringe home thy corne, or to cary any thyng vnto thy barne? Gauest thou the layre wynges vnto the pecockes, or wynges & fethers vnto the storke? For he leaueth hys egges in the earth and layeth them in the dust. He remembreth not, that they myght be troden wyth fete, or broke wyth some wylde beast. So harde is he vnto hys ponge ones, as though they were not hys, and laboureth in vayne wythout any feare. And that because God hath taken wysdome from hym, & hath not geuen hym vnderstandynge. When hys tyme is that he styreth vp on hye, he careth neither for horse ner man.

Hast thou geuẽ the horse hys strength, or clothed him to bowe downe his neck w feare: that he letteth hym selfe be dryuen forth lyke a grashopper, where as the stoute neynge that he maketh, is fearfull? he breaketh the ground with the hoofes of his fete cheartfully in hys

in his strength, and runneth to mete the harnest men. He layeth alyde all feare, his stomack is not abated, neither starteth he a back for any swerde. Though the quyuers rattle vpon him, though the speare and shilde glystre: yet rusheth he in fearsely, and beateth vpon the grounde. He feareth not the noyse of the trompettes, but assoone as he heareth the shawmes blowe, tush (sayeth he) for he smelleth the battel a farre of, the noyse, the captaynes and the shoutinge.

Commeth it thorow thy wysdome, that the Goshauke flyeth towarde the South? Doth the Aegle mount vp, and make his nest on hye at thy commaundement? He abydeth in the stony rockes, and vpon the hye toppes of harde mountaynes, where no man can come. From thence seketh he his praye, & loketh farre about with his eyen. His younge ones are fed with blood: * & where any dede body lyeth, there is he immediatly.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

¶ Job humbleth hym selfe vnto God, the discripcion of Behemoth and Leuiathan.

MOreouer, God spake vnto Job and sayde: Can he that stryueth wyth þ Almyghtye, be at rest? Shulde not he which disputeth wyth God, geue hym an answere? Job answered the Lorde, saying: Beholde, I am to vyle a personne, to answere the, therfore wyll I laye my hande vpon my mouth. Once or twise haue I spoken, but I wyll laye nomore.

Then answered the Lorde vnto Job out of the storme, and sayde: * Gyrde vp thy loynes now lyke a man, & tell me the thinges that I will aske the. Wylt thou disanul my iudgement? Or wylt thou condemne me, that thou thy selfe mayest be made ryghtwous? Is thy power then lyke the power of God? Maketh thy voyce such a sounde as hys doth? Then arme thy selfe wyth thyne awne power, vp, decke the in thy holy araye, powre out the indignacion of thy wrath: se þ thou cast downe all the proude, loke well, that thou makest all such as be stubburne, to obeye: treade downe all the vngodly in their place, cast them downe into the dust, and coner their faces with darcknesse: Then will I confesse vnto the also, that thyne awne right hande shall saue the.

Beholde, ☞ the beast Behemoth (whō I made wyth the) whych eateth haye as an oxe: lo, how stronge he is in his loynes, and what power he hath in the nauell of his body. He stretcheth out his taple lyke a Cedre tre, all his vaynes are knyt. His shynnes are lyke pypes of brasse, his rydge bones are lyke staues of yron. Fyrst, when God made him, he ordened the wildernesse for him, that the mountaynes shulde geue hym grasse, where all the beastes of the felde take their pastyme. He lyeth amonge the reedes in the Mosses, the fennes hyde him with their shadowe, and the wylowes of the broke couer him rounde about. Lo, without any labour myght he drincke out of the whoale floude, & suppe of Iordane without any trauayle. Who darre laye hande vpon hym openly, and vndertake to catch him? Or, who darre put a hooke thorow his nose, and lay a snare for hym?

Darrest thou drawe out * ☞ Leuiathā wyth an Angle, or bynde hys tonge wyth a snare? Canst thou put a ryng in the nose of hi, or bore hys chawe thorow with a naule? Wyll he make many fayre wordes wyth the (thynkest thou) or flatter the? Will he make a couenaunt with the? Or art thou able for to compell hym to do the continuall seruice? Wylt thou take thy pastyme wyth hym, as with a byrde, or geue him vnto thy maydēs, that thy companyons may make a refection of hym, or that he maye be parted amonge the marchaunt men? Canst thou fyll the basket wyth his skynne, or the fysh pannyer wt his heade? Darrest þ laye hande vpon hym? It is better for the to consyder what harme myght happen the there thorow, and not to touch him. For when thou thynkest to haue holde vpon him, he shall begyle the.

¶ The.xli. Chapter.

¶ Of the same Leuyathan wherof is mencioned in the Chapter afore.

NOman is so cruell, þ is able to stere hi vp. * Who is able to stāde before me? Or who hath geuen me any thyng afore hāde, þ I maye rewarde him agayne? All thynges vnder heauen are myne: I feare him not, whether he threaten or speake fayre. Who lyfteth him vp, and stripeth hym out of his clothes, or who taketh him by the bytt of his bridle? Who openeth þ doore of his face? for he hath horrible teth rounde about. His body is couered wyth scales as it were with shyldes, lockte in, kepte, and well compacte together: One is so ioyned to another, þ no ayre can come in: Yee, one hāgeth so vpō another, and stycketh so together, þ they cānot be sundered. His nesyng is lyke a glystering fyre, and his eyes lyke þ morowynge shyne. Out of his mouth go torches, and out of his nostrels ther goeth a smoke, lyke as out of an hote sething pot. His breth maketh the coales burne, and the flāme goeth out of hys mouth. In his necke remayneth strēgth, and nothing is to laborious for him. The membres of his body are ioyned so straytr one to another, and cleaue so fast together, that he cannot be moued.

His hert is as herd as a stone, and as fast as the lytype that the smyth smyteth vpon. When he goeth the myghtye are afrayed, & feare troubleth them. If any man draw out a swearde at him, it shall not hurt him: there may neyther speare, haulinge ner brest plate, abyde hym. He setteth as moch by a strawe as by yron, and as moch by a rotten stocke as by stalle. He shaketh not awaye for hym D that bendeth the bowe: and as for slynge stones, he careth as moch for stubble as for the. He counteth the dartes no better then a strawe, he laugheth hym to scorne that shaketh the speare. He treadeth the gold in the myre lyke the sharpe potsherdes. He maketh the depe to boyle lyke a pot, and stereth the see together lyke an oyntment. He maketh a path to be sene after hym, the depe is his walkynge place. Upon erth is there no power lyke vnto hys, for he is so made that he feareth not. If a man wyll consyder all hye thynges, thys same is a kynge ouer all the chyldren of pryde.

¶ The.xlij. Chapter.

¶ The repentaunce of Job. He prayeth for his frendes, and his goodes are restored double vnto him.

Then Job answered the Lorde, and sayde. * I knowe that thou hast power ouer all thynges, and that there is nothoughte hyd vnto the. For whoman kepe hys awne councell so secrete, but it shalbe knowne? Therfore haue I spoken that I vnderstode not, the thynges that are so hye, & passe myne vnderstanding. O herken thou vnto me also, and let me speake: answere vnto the thyng that I wyll aske the. I haue geuen diligẽt eare vnto the, and now I se the wyth myne eyes. Wherfore, I geue myne awne selfe the blame, and take repentaunce in the dust and asshes.

Now when the Lorde had spoken these wordes vnto Job, it fortuned, that the Lord sayde vnto Eliphas the Themanite: I am displeased with the, and thy two frẽdes, for ye haue not spoken of me the thynge that is ryght, lyke as my seruaunt Job hath done. Therfore, take you nowe seuen oxen and seuen rammes, and go to my seruaunt Job, and * offre vp for youre selues a brent offringe: and my seruaunt Job shall praye for you. hym wyll I accepte, & not deale wyth you after youre folysshnesse: in that ye haue not spoken the thinge whych is ryght, lyke as my seruaunt Job hath done.

So Eliphas the Themanite, and Bildad the Suhite & Sophar the Naamathite went their waye, and dyd accordyng as the Lord commaunded them. * The Lord also accepted the persone of Job, and the Lorde turned the captiuite of Job, when he prayed for his frindes: Yee, the Lord gaue Job * twyse as moch as he had afore.

And then came there vnto hym all hys brethren, all hys systers, & all they that had bene of hys acquayntaunce afore, & dyd eat bread with him in his house, wondrynge at hym, and cõforteynge hym ouer all the trouble, that the Lorde had brought vpon hym. Euery man also gaue hym a certayne some of money and a Jewell of golde.

And the Lorde made Job rycher then he was before: for he had fourtene C. shepe. vj. C. cameis, a C. couch of oxen, and a C. asses. He had sene sonnes also & thre daughters. The fyrst daughter called he Jemima: the second Kezia, and the thirde Kerenhapuch. In all the land were no wemẽ fownd so fayre, as the daughters of Job, and their father gaue them enheritaunce amonge their brethren. After thys lyued Job an hundred and fourty yeares, so that he sawe * hys chyldren, & hys chyldrens chyldren into the fourth generacion.

And so Job dyed, beynge olde & of a perfect age.

✠

¶ The ende of the boke of Job.

The thirde parte of the Byble contaynyng these bookes.

The psalter. The proverbes. Ecclesiastes. Cãtica cãticoꝝ.

The prophetes.

Esay.	Jonas.
Jeremy.	Micheas.
Ezechiel.	Naum.
Daniel	Habac.
Oseas.	Sophony.
Joel.	Aggeus.
Amos.	Zachary.
Abdy.	Malachy.

¶ The psalmes of Dauid.

¶ The fyrst Psalme.

BEATVS VIR QVI NON ABIIT.

A

Lessed is ꝑ mā ꝑ hath not walked in ꝑ * counceil of ꝑ vngodly, ner stonde in ꝑ waye of sinners, & hath not sytt in the seate of the scornefull.

But hys delyte is in the lawe of the Lorde: and in his lawe will he exercise him selfe daye & nyght.

And * he shalbe lyke a tre planted by the waterside, ꝑ wyll bryngе forth hys frute in due season. His leafe also shall not wither: & loke whatsoeuer he doth, it shall prosper.

B

As for the vngodly, is it not so w̄ thē: but * they are lyke ꝑ chaffe which the wynde scattered awaye (from the face of the erth). Therfore, the vngodly shall nott be able to stande in the iudgment, nether the synners in ꝑ congregatiō of the ryghteows. But ꝑ Lorde knoweth the waye of the ryghteows, and ꝑ waye of the vngodly shall perysshe.

¶ The second psalme.

QVARE FREMVERVNT GENTES.

A

Why * do the heythen so furiously rage together / and why do ꝑ people ymagyne a vayne thynge?

The kynges of the erth stande vp, and the rulers take counsell together * agaynst the Lorde, and agaynst hys anoynted. Let vs breake theyr bondes asunder, and cast awaye theyr cordes from vs.

He that dwelleth in heauen * shall laugh them to scorne: the Lorde shall haue them in derisyon. Then shall he speake vnto them in hys wrath, and vexe them in hys sore displeasure. Yet haue I set my kynge vpon my holy hyll of Syon. I wyll preach the lawe, wherof the Lorde hath sayd vnto me: * thou arte my sonne, thys daye haue I begotten the. Desyre of me, and I shall geue the, ꝑ heythen for thyne enheritaunce, & the vtmost partes of the erthe for thy possessiō.

* Act.xiii.c. Hebr.i.b and.v.b

B

* Thou shalt bruse them with a rodd of yron, and breake them in peces ‡ lyke a potters vessell. Be wyse nowe therfore, O ye kinges, be warned, ye that are iudges of the earth. Serue the Lorde in feare, and reioyse (vnto hym) with reuerence. Kysse the sonne, lest he be angrye, & so ye perysshe fro the (ryght) waye, yf his wrath be kyndled (yee but a lytle) blessed are all they that put theyr trust in hym.

* Apoc.ii.g and.xix.c. ‡ Esay.xxx.

¶ The thyrde psalme.

DOMINE, QVID MVLTIPLICATI.

¶ A psalme of Dauid when he fledd from the face of Absalon hys sonne.

A

Lorde, howe are they increased, that trouble me / many are they, ꝑ ryse against me. Many one there be, ꝑ saye of my soule: there is no helpe for hym in (hys) God. Dela. But thou, O Lorde, arte my defender: ꝑ arte my worshyppe, and the lyfter vp of my heed. I did call vpon the Lorde with my voyce, and he hearde me out of hys holy hyll. Dela.

I layed me downe and slepte, and rose vp agayne, for the Lorde susteyned me.

B

I will not be afrayde for ten thousandes of the people, that haue set them selues agaynst me rounde about. Vp Lorde, & helpe me, O my God, for thou smyttest all myne enemyes vpon the cheke bone: thou hast broken the teeth of the vngodly. Saluacyon belōgeth vnto the Lorde, and thy blessynge is vpon thy people. Selah.

¶ The fourth psalme.

CVM INVOCAREM.

¶ To hym that excelleth in musick, a psalme of Dauid.

A

Heare me, when I call, O God, of my ryghteousnes: thou hast set me at lyberty, when I was in trouble: haue mercy vpon me, and herke vnto my prayer.

O ye sonnes of men, howe longe wyll ye blaspheme myne honoure, & haue loch pleasure in vanyte, and seke after lesyng? Dela.

Knowe thys also, that the Lorde hathe chosen to hym selfe the man that is godlye: when I call vpon the Lorde, he wyll heare me. Stonde in awe, and synne not: comen with youre awne herte, and in youre chamber, and be stylle: Sela. Offer the sacrifyce of ryghtewelnesse, and put youre trust 25 in the Lorde. There be many that saye: who wyll shewe vs any good? Lorde lyfte þ vp the lyght of thy coũtenaunce vpon vs.

Thou hast putt gladnesse in myne herte,
28 sence the tyme that theyr corne & wyne (and oyle) increased. I wyll laye me downe in peace, and take my rest: for it is thou Lorde onely, that makest me dwell in saftye.

¶ The. v. psalme.

VERBA MEA AVRIBVS.

¶ To hym that excelleth in songes of Iehudith: a psalme of Dauid.

A POndre my wordes, O Lord, consydre my meditacyon. O herke thou vnto the voyce of my callynge, my kinge and my God. for vnto the wyll I make my prayer. Myn voyce shalt thou heare by tymes, O Lorde, early in þ morgnyng will I directe my prayer
* Psa.xcii.b vnto the, and wyll loke vp. * For þ arte the God that hath no pleasure in wyckednes, nether shall any euell dwell with the.
☞ Soch as be foolysh, shall not stande in thy syght, thou ☞ hatest all them that worke vanyte. Thou shalte destroye them that speake leasynge: þ Lorde wyll abhorre both the blondthyrstye, and disceatfull man.
But as for me, I will come into thy house, euen vpõ the multitude of thy mercy, and
*pſ.cxxxviii. a. in thy feare wyll * I worshyp towarde thy holy temple. Leade me, O Lorde, in thy ryghtewesnesse because of myne enemyes:
☞ ☞ make thy waye playne before my face.
☞ For there is no faythfulnesse ☞ in hys mouth: theyr inwarde partes are very wic-
*Roma.iii.c kednes. * Theyr throte is an open sepulchre: they flatter w̃ their tonge. Destroye ¶ thou them, O God, let thẽ perysshe thorowe theyr awne ymaginacyons, cast them out in the multitude of theyr vngodlynes: for they haue rebelled agaynst the. And let all thẽ that put theyr trust in the reioyce: they shall euer be geuinge of thankes, because thou defendest them: they that loue thy name shalbe ioyfull in the. For thou Lorde wylt geue thy blessynge vnto the ryghteous: and with thy fauorable kyndnesse wylt thou defende hym, as with a shylde.

¶ The. vi. psalme.

DOMINE NE.

¶ To hym that excelleth in musick, vpon the instrument of eyght strynges. A psalme of Dauid.

A O Lorde, *rebuke me not in thyne indig-
*pſ.xxxvii. nacion: nether chasten me in thy displeasure. Haue mercy vpon me, O Jere.x.b Lorde: for I am weake: O Lorde heale me: for my bones are vexed. Myn soule also is sore troubled: but Lorde howe longe wylt thou punyshe me? Turne the, O Lorde, and delyuer my soule: Oh saue me for thy *pſ.xxxvi. mercyes sake. For * in death no man re-pſal.cxiii.b membreth the: & who will geue the thankes in the pytte? I am weery of my gronynge: every nyght washe I my bedd, & water my couche with my teares. Myn bewtye is gone for very trouble, and worne a waye because of all myne enemyes. * Awaye fro
* Mat.vii. and.xxv. Luk.xiii. me all ye þ worke vanyte: for þ Lorde hath heard the voyce of my weppynge. The Lorde hathe heard my peticyon, the Lorde wyll receaue my prayer. All myne enemyes shalbe confounded & sore vexed, they shalbe turned backe & put to shame sodenly.

¶ The. vii. Psalme.

DOMINE DEVS MEVS.

☞ Sigaion of Dauid, which he sang ☞
vnto þ Lord in þ busynes of ☞ Chus the sonne of Jemini.

A O Lorde my God, in þ haue I put my trust: saue me frõ all thẽ þ persecute me, & delyuer me: Lest he deuoure my soule lyke a lyon, and teare it in peces, whyle there is none to helpe. O
*Jer.xv.a Lorde my God, * yf I haue done any soche thynge, or yf there be any wyckednes in my handes. Yf I haue rewarded cuyll vnto him that dealt frendly with me, yee, I haue delyuered hym, that without any cause is myne enemye. Then lett myne enemye persecute my soule, and take me: ye let hym treade my lyfe downe vpõ the earth, & laye myne honoure in the dust. Sela. Stande vp, O Lorde, in thy wrath: and lyfte vp thy selfe, because of the indygnacyons of myne enemyes: aryse vp for me, in the ☞ iudge-☞ ment that þ hast cõmaunded. And so shall
¶ the congregacyon of the people come aboute the, for theyr sakes therfore lyft vp thy selfe agayne. The Lorde shall iudge the people geue sentence with me, O Lorde, accordyng to my ryghtewesnes, and accordynge to the innocencye þ is in me. Oh let the wyckednes of þ vngodly come to an ende: but guyde thou the iust. For þ righteous God trieth the very hertes and the reynes. Myn helpe commeth of God, which preserueth thẽ that *Deu.x are true of herte. *God is a ryghtewes iudge, & (strong, and patyent,) and God is prouoked euery daye. Yf a mã will not turne, he wyll whet his swerde: he hath bẽt his bowe and made it ready. He hath prepared hym the instrumentes of deeth: he ordeyneth hys arowes ☞ agaynst the persecutours. Be-
*Joh.viii. Esa.lvii. holde * he trauayleth with myschefe, he hath conceaued sorow, and brought forth vngodlynesse. *He hath graue̅n and dygged vp a pytte, & is fallen hym selfe into the destruccyon that he made (for other.) For his trauayll shall come vpon his awne head * & his wickednes shall fall vpon hys awne pate.
*Deut.xxxii. Psa.lvii. and.lxxiii. Eccli.xl. and.xxvi. a pytte,

I wyll geue thankes vnto the Lorde accordynge to his ryghteousnes, & will prayse the name of the Lorde the most hyest.

¶ The. viij. Psalme.

DOMINE DOMINVS NOSTER.

To hym that excelleth ☞ in Githith, a Psalme of Dauid.

A O Lorde our gouernoure, howe excellēt is thy name in all the world, thou that hast sett thy glory aboue the heauēs!

* Out of the mouth of very babes and sucklynges hast thou ordeyned ☞ strength because of thyne enemyes, that thou myghtest styll the enemye and the auenger. For I wyll cōsyder thy heauēs, euen the worcke of thy fyngers: the moone & ỳ starres whych thou hast ordeyned. * What is man, that thou art myndfull of hym: and the sonne of man, that thou vysytest hym? Thou madest hym lower then the aungels, to crowne hym with glory & worshyppe. Thou makest him to haue domynion in the worckes of thy handes: and * thou hast put all thynges in subiection vnder his fete. All shepe and oxen, ye and the beastes of the felde. The foules of the ayre, and the fyshe of the see, & whatsoeuer walcketh thorow the pathes of the sees. O Lorde oure gouernoure, howe excellent is thy name in all the worlde.

¶ The. ix. Psalme.

CONFITEBOR TIBI DOMINE.

To hym that excelleth vpon ☞ Almuth Labben, a Psalme of Dauid.

A I wyll * geue thākes vnto ỳ, O Lorde wyth my whole herte, I wyll speake of all thy maruelous worckes. I wyll be glad, and reioyse in the, yee my songes will I make of thy name, O thou moost hyest. Whyle myne enemyes are dryuen backe, they shall fall, & perysh at thy presence. For thou hast mayntened my ryght & my cause: thou art sett in the throne that iudgest ryght. Thou hast rebuked ỳ heythen, & destroyed the vngodly, thou hast put out their name for euer & euer. O thou enemye: destruccyons are come to a perpetuall ende: euen as the cities which thou hast destroyed: their memoryall is perished with thē. But the Lorde shall endure for euer, he hath also prepared his seate for iudgemēt: For he shall iudge the world in ryghteousnes, and minister true iudgement vnto the people. The Lorde also wylbe a defence for the oppressed * euē a refuge in due tyme of trouble. And they ỳ knowe thy name, wyll put their trust in the: for thou (Lorde) hast neuer fayled thē, that seke the. O prayse the Lord, * which dwelleth in Syon, shewe the people of hys doinges. For when he maketh inquisycō for bloude, he remembreth them: & * forgetteth not the complaynte of the poore.

Haue mercy vpon me (O Lorde) consydre the trouble whych I suffre of them that hate me, thou that lyftest me vp from the gates of death. That I maye shewe all thy prayses wyth in the portes of the daughter of Syon, I wyll reioyse in thy saluacyon.

The heythen are suncken downe in the pytte that they made: in the same nett which they hydd pryuely, is their awne foote take.

The Lorde is knowen to execute iudgement: the vngodly is trapped in the worcke of his awne hādes: A consyderacyon Sela.

The wycked shall beturned vnto hell, & all people that forget God: For the poore shall not be all waye forgotten, the pacient abydynge of the meke shall not perysshe for euer. Vp Lorde, and let not man haue the vpper hande, let the heythen be iudged in thy syght. Put them in feare (O Lorde) that the heythen maye knowe them selues to be but men. Sela.

¶ The. x. Psalme.

VT QVID DOMINE.

A Why standest ỳ so farre of, (O Lord) & hydest thy face in that neadefull tyme of trouble? The vngodly for his owne lust, doth persecute ỳ poore: let them be taken in the craftye wylynesse that they haue ymagined. For the vngodly hath made boast of hys awne hertes desyre, & speaketh good of ỳ couetous, whō God abhorreth. The vngodly is so proude that he careth not for God, nether is God in all his thoughtes. ☞ His wayes are allway greuous, thy iudgementes are farre aboue out of his syght, & therfore defyeth he all his enemyes. For he hath sayed in his hert: Tush I shall neuer be cast downe, ther shall no harme happen vnto me. * His mouth is full of cursynge, and disceate and fraude: vnder his tōge is vngodlynesse & vanite. * He sytteth lurkinge in ỳ theuish corners of ỳ stretes, & priuely in his lurkynge dennes doth he murthur ỳ innocēt: his eyes are set agaynst ỳ poore. For he lyeth waytinge secretly (euē as a lyon, lurketh he in his denne) ỳ he maye rauish the poore. He doth rauish the poore, whē he getteth him into his nett. ☞ He falleth downe & hūbleth him selfe, that the congregacyō of the poore maye fall in to ỳ hāde of his captaynes. He hath sayed in his herte: Tush, God hath forgotte, he hydeth awaye his face, and he wyll neuer se it. Aryse (O Lorde God) and lyfte vp thyne hāde, forget not the poore. Wherfore shulde the wycked blaspheme God, whyle he doth saye in his herte: tuſh, thou God careſt not for it/

D Surely thou haſt ſene it. For thou beholdeſt vngodlynesse and wronge. That thou mayeſt take the matter in to thy hãde: the poore committeth hym ſelfe vnto the, for thou art the helper of the frendleſſe. Breake thou the power of the vngodly and malycyous, take awaye hys vngodlyneſſe, and thou ſhalt fynde none. The Lorde is kynge for euer, and euer, and the hethen are perysshed out of the lande. Lorde, thou haſt hearde the deſyre of the poore: thou preparest theyr hert and thyne eare herkeneth therto. To helpe the fatherleſſe and poore vnto theyr right: that the man of the erthe be no more exalted agaynſt them.

¶ The.xi. Pſalme.

IN DOMINO CONFIDO.

To the chaunter, A Pſalme of Dauid.

A IN the Lorde put I my truſt: howe ſaye ye then to my ſoule: that ſhe ſhulde flee as a byrde vpon your hyll/ For lo, the vngodly bende theyr bowe, and make ready theyr arowes wyth in the bowe: that they maye prpuely ſhote at them, which are true of hert. For the foundacyons wilbe caſt downe, and what hath the ryghteous done/ *The Lorde is in hys holy tẏple * the Lordes ſeat is in heauen/ hys eyes conſydre (the poore) & hys eye lydes tryeth the chyldren of men.

*2 Mac.ii.b. & Eſa.lxvi.a

B The Lorde alloweth the ryghteous: but the vngodly, and hym that delyteth in wickednes, doth his ſoule abhorre. Vpon the vngodly he ſhall rayne ſnares, fyre, and brymſtone, ſtorme & tẏpeſt: thys ſhalbe theyr portyon to drynke. For the ryghteous Lorde loueth ryghteouſnes: hys countenaūce wyll beholde the thynge that is iuſt.

¶ The.xij. Pſalme.

SALVVM ME FAC DOMINE.

To him that excelleth vpon an inſtrumẽt of eyght ſtrynges a Pſalme of Dauid.

A HElpe (me) Lord, for there is not one godly man left. For the faythfull are mynyſhed from amõge the chyldren of men. They talke of vanyte, euery one wyth hys neyghboure, they do but flatter wyth theyr lyppes & dyſſemble in theyr double herte. The Lorde ſhall rote out all diſceatfull lyppes, and the tonge that ſpeaketh proude thynges. Wyth haue ſayde: wyth oure tõge wyll we preuayle: we are they ẏ ought to ſpeake, who is Lord B ouer vs. Nowe for the comfortles troubles *Pſal.xvij.a ſake of the neadye, * & becauſe of the deape ſyghthing of the poore, I will vp (ſayeth the Lorde) and wyll helpe euery one, from hym that ſwelleth agaynſt hym, and wyll ſet the at reſt. The wordes of the Lorde are pure wordes euẽ as the ſyluer, wheych from earth is tryed and purifyed ſeuẽ tymes in the fyre.

Thou ſhalt kepe them (O Lorde) thou ſhalt preſerue & hym from thys generacyõ for euer The vngodly walke on euery ſyde: whan they are exalted, the chyldren of men are put to rebuke.

¶ The.xiij. Pſalme.

VSQVEQVO DOMINE.

To the chaunter, a Pſalme of Dauid.

HOwe longe wylt thou forget me (O A Lorde) for euer/ howe lõge wylt thou hyde thy face fro me/ Howe longe ſhall I ſeke councell in my ſoule/ & be ſo vexed in myne hert/ howe lõge ſhall myne enemye triumphe ouer me/ Conſydre, and heare me (O Lorde my God) lyghten myne eyes, that I ſleape not in death. Leſt myne enemye ſaye: I haue preuayled agaynſt hym: for yf I be caſt downe, they ẏ trouble me wyll reioyſe at it. But my truſt is in thy mercy, and my hert is ioyfull in thy ſaluacyon. I wyll ſynge of the Lord becauſe he hath dealt ſo louyngly wyth me. (per I, ẏ is wyll prayſe the name of the Lorde the moſt hyeſt.)

¶ The.xiiij. Pſalme.

DIXIT INSIPIENS.

To the chaunter a Pſalme of Dauid.

THe * fole hath ſayed in hys hert, A there is no God. They are corrupt, * Pſal.lij.a and become abhompnable in theyr doynges * there is not one that doth good, *Pſal.lij.a & Roma.iij.c (no not one.) The Lorde loked downe from heauen vpon the chyldren of men, to ſe yf there were any that wolde vnderſtãde, and ſeke after God. But they are all gone out of the waye, they are all together become abhominable: there is none that doeth good, no not one. (Theyr throte is an open ſepulchre: wyth theyr tonges they haue diſceaued, the poyſon of aſpes is vnder theyr lyppes. Theyr mouth is full of curſynge and bytternes, theyr feet are ſwyft to ſhead bloude. Deſtruccyon and vnhappyneſſe is in theyr wayes, and the waye of peace haue they not knowē, there is no feare of God before their eyes.)

Haue they no knowledge, that all are ſoche worchers of myſchefe, eatynge vp my people as it were bread and call not vpõ the Lorde/ There were they brought in great feare (Where no feare was) for God is in the generacyon of the ryghteous. As for you, ye haue made a mocke at the councell of the poore, becauſe he putteth hys truſt in the Lorde. Oh that the ſaluacyon were geuen vnto Iſrael * out of Sion. *Eſa.lxij. Roma.xj.c

When the Lorde turneth the captyuite of hys people, then ſhall Jacob reioyſe, and Iſrael ſhall be glad.

¶ The.xv. Pſalme.

DOMINE QVIS HABITABIT.

Lorde

A LOrde, who shall dwell in thy tabernacle? who shall rest vpon thy holy hyll? *Euen he ꝑ ledeth an vncorrupt lyfe, & doth the thynge which is ryght, and that speaketh the trueth from hys hert.

He that hath vsed no disceat in his tōge, ner done euell to hys neyghboure, & hath not sclaundred his neyghbours. He that setteth not by hym selfe: but is lowly in hys awne eyes, & maketh moch of them ꝑ feare the Lorde: he ꝑ sweareth vnto his neyghbour, & disapoynteth hym nott, though it were hys awne hinderaūce. *He ꝑ hath not geuen hys money vpon vsury, ner taken reward agaynst the innocent. Who so doth these thynges, shall neuer fall.

¶The.xvi.psalme.

CONSERVA ME DOMINE.

The badge or armes of Dauid.

A PReserue me, O God, for in the haue I put my trust. O my soule thou hast sayd vnto the Lorde: ꝑ arte my God, my goodes are nothing vnto the. All my delyte is vpon the sayntes ꝑ are in the erth, & vpon soch as excell in vertue. But they ꝑ rūne after another God, shall haue greate trouble. Their drinckofferynges of bloude will not I offre, nether make mēcion of their names within my lyppes. *The Lorde hym selfe is the porcīō of myne enheritaunce: and of my cup: thou shalt mayntayne my lot.

The lot is fallē vnto me in a fayre groūd, yee, I haue a goodly heritage. I wyll thāke the Lorde for geuynge me warnynge: my reynes also chasten me in the nyght season.

I haue set God alwayes before me, for he is on my right hāde, therfore I shall not fall.

Wherfore my hert was glad, & my glory reioyced, my flesh also shall rest in hope.

For why? *thou shalt not leaue my soule in hell, nether shalt thou suffre thy holy one to se corrupcīō. Thou shalt shewe me the path of lyfe: in thy presence is the fulnesse of ioye, and at thy ryght hande ther is pleasure for euermore.

¶The.xvii.psalme.

EXAVDI DOMINE IVSTITIAM.

A prayer of Dauid.

A HEare the right, O Lorde, cōsydre my cōplaynte, & herken vnto my prayer, that goeth not out of fayned lyppes.

Let my sentence come forth from thy presence: and let thyne eyes loke vpon the thing that is equall. *Thou hast proued & visyted myne herte in the nyght season: ꝑ haste tryed me and shalt fynde no wyckednesse in me: for I am vtterly purposed, ꝑ my mouth shall not offende. Because of mens workes that are done agaynst the wordes of thy lyppes I haue kepte me from the wayes of the destroyer. O holde ꝑ vp my goynges in thy pathes, ꝑ my fote steppes slyppe not.

I haue called vpon the, O God, for thou shalt heare me: enclyne thyne eare to me, and herkē vnto my wordes. Shewe thy maruelous louynge kyndnesse, thou ꝑ art the sauyour of them which put theyr trust in the, from soch as resyst thy ryght hande. Kepe me *as the apple of an eye, hyde me ‡ vnder the shadowe of thy wynges. Fro the vngodly ꝑ trouble me: mine enemies cōpasse me rounde about, to take awaye my soule. They are enclosed in their awne fatt: & their mouth speaketh proude thinges. They lye waytynge in oure waye on euery syde, turnynge their eyes downe to the groūde. Lyke as a lyon that is gredy of hys praye, and as it were a lyons whelpe lurckyng in secrete places. Vp Lorde, disapoynte hym, and cast hym downe: delyuer my soule from the vngodly which is as a swearde of thyne.

From the men of thy hāde, O Lorde fro the men, I saye, and from the euyll worlde, which haue their porcion in thys lyfe, whose belyes ꝑ fyllest w̄ thy hyd treasure. They haue childzen at their desyre: & leaue the reste of theyr substaunce for theyr babes. But as for me, I wyll beholde thy presence in righteousnes: & when I awake vp after thy lykenes, I shalbe satisfyed with it.

¶The.xviii.psalme.

DILIGAM TE DOMINE.

To the chaunter of Dauid the seruaunt of the Lorde, which spake vnto the Lord the wordes of thys song, (in the daye that the Lorde delyuered hym from the hande of all hys enemyes, and from the hande of Saul) and he sayde:

I Will loue ꝑ, O Lorde, my strēgth. The Lorde is my stony rock, & my defence, my sauyour, my God, & my might, in whō I wyll trust: my buckler, ꝑ horne also of my saluacyō, and my refuge. *I will call vpō ꝑ Lord, which is worthy to be prayed, so shall I be safe fro myne enemyes. *The sorowes of deeth cōpassed me, & the ouerflowinges of vngodlynesse made me afrayed. The paynes of hell came about me, the snares of deeth ouertoke me. In my trouble wyll I call vpon the Lorde: & cōplayne vnto my God. So shall he heare my voyce out of his (holy) temple, & my cōplaynte shall come before him, it shall entre euen into hys eares. *The erth trembled & quaked, the very foūdacions also of the hylles shoke & were remoued, because he was wroth. There wēt a smoke out in his presence: & a consumynge fyre out of hys mouth, so ꝑ coales were kyndled at it. He bowed the heauens also, & came downe, and it was darcke vnder his fete. He rode vpō the cherubins, & dyd flye: he came flying vpō the wynges of the wynde. He made darcknes hys secrete place: hys pauylion rounde

aboute hym, with darcke water and thycke
cloudes to couer hym. At the bryghtneſſe of hys preſence hys cloudes remoued, hayle
ſtones and coales of fyer. The Lorde alſo thondred out of the heauen, & the hyeſt gaue
his thondre, hayle ſtones, and coales of fyer.
He ſent out his arowes and ſcattered the,
he caſt forth lyghtnynges, & deſtroyed them.
The ſprynges of waters were ſene, & the foundacios of the round worlde were diſcouered at thy chydinge, O Lorde, at the bla-ſtynge of the bzeth of thy diſpleaſure. He
C ſhall ſend downe frō the heygth to fetch me, & ſhall take me out of many waters. He ſhall deliuer me frō my ſtrongeſt enemye, &
frō the which hate me: for they are to myghty for me. They preuented me in ỹ daye of my trouble: but ỹ Lorde was my vpholder.
He brought me forth alſo into a place of liberty: he brought me forth, euen becauſe he had a fauoure vnto me. The Lorde ſhall rewarde me after my righteous dealing: ac-cordinge to the clēnes of my handes ſhall he recōpenſe me. Becauſe I haue kepte the wayes of the Lorde: and haue not forſaken wyckedlye my God. For I haue an eye
vnto all hys lawes: & wyll nott caſt out hys commaundementes fro me. I was alſo vncorrupte before him: and eſchued myne awne wickednes. Therfore ſhall the Lorde D rewarde me after my righteous dealing: and accordinge vnto the clennes of my handes in hys eye ſyght. With the holy thou ſhalt be holy, and wt a perfecte man ỹ ſhalt be perfect. With the cleane thou ſhalt be cleane:
and with the frowarde thou ſhalt lerne frowardnes. For ỹ ſhalt ſaue the people that are in aduerſite, and ſhalt bringe downe the hye lookes of the proude. Thou alſo ſhalt lighte my candelle: the Lorde my God ſhall make my darcknes to be light. For in the I ſhall diſconfyte an hooſt of men: and wt the helpe of my God I ſhall leape ouer the wall.
The waye of God is an vndefyled waye
* Pſal.cij.b. and.cxix.f * the worde of the Lorde alſo is tryed in the
fyre: he is the defender of all them that putt
* Deu.iiij.c their truſt in him. For * who is God but the Lorde? or who hath any ſtrēgth except o
God? It is God ỹ gyrdeth me wt ſtrēgth
* 2Sam.xij.b. of warre, and maketh my waye parfecte.
E * He maketh my fete lyke hertes fete: and 2.ij.reg.xxij.c ſetteth me vp on hye. * He teacheth myne
Pſa.cxliiij.a handes to fyght, & myne armes ſhall breake
euen a bow of ſteele. Thou haſt geuen me
the defence of thy ſaluacion: thy right hande
alſo ſhall holde me vp, and thy louynge correction ſhall make me greate. Thou ſhalt make rowme ynough vnder me for to go, ỹ
my fote ſteppes ſhall not ſlyde. I wyll fo-lowe vpon myne enemies, & ouertake them:
neyther wyll I turne agayne, tyll I haue deſtroyed them. I will smyte the, ỹ they ſhall not be able to ſtande: but fall vnder my F fete. Thou haſt gyrded me with ſtrength vnto the battayll, thou ſhalt throwe downe myne enemyes vnder me. Thou haſt made myne enemyes alſo to turne their backes
vpon me, & I ſhall deſtroye the that hate me.
* They ſhall crye: but there ſhalbe none * Pſa.xlij.
to helpe them: yee, euen vnto the Lorde, ſhall
they crye: but he ſhall nott heare them. I wyll beate them as ſmall as the duſt before the wynde: I will caſt them out, as the claye
in the ſtretes. Thou ſhalt deliuer me frō
the ſtryuinges of the people: and thou ſhalte
make me the head of the heythen. A people whom I haue not knowē ſhall ſerue me.
Aſſone as they heare of me, they ſhall obey
me: but the ſtraunge chyldren ſhall diſſemble with me. The ſtraunge chyldren ſhall G
faple, and be afrayed out of their preſons.
The Lorde lyueth: & bleſſed be my ſtrong
helper, and prayſed be the God of my ſaluacyon. Euen the God which ſeeth that I be auenged, and ſubdueth the people vnto me. It is he that deliuereth me from my (cruell) enemyes, and ſetteth me vp aboue myne aduerſaryes: thou ſhalt rydd me from the wycked man. * For this cauſe I will * Rom.xv.
geue thankes vnto the, O Lorde, amonge
the Gentyles, and ſynge prayſes vnto thy name. * Greate proſperite geueth he vn- * ij.reg.vij.
to his kinge: and ſheweth louyng kyndneſſe
vnto Dauid hys anoynted, & vnto hys ſeede
for euermore.

¶ The.xix. pſalme.

COELI ENARRANT

To the chaunter, a pſalme of Dauid.

THe heauēs * declare the glory of God, and the firmament ſheweth I his handy worcke. ☞ One daye * Rom.i.
telleth another: & one nyght certi- D
fieth another. ☞ There is nether ſpeach D
ner lāguage, but their voices ar heard amōg
thē. * ☞ Their ſounde is gone out into D
all landes: & their wordes into the endes of ỹ * Rom.x.
worlde. In them hath he ſet a tabernacle
for the ſunne, which cōmeth forth as a bryd-grome out of hys chambre, and reioyſeth as B a giaūt to rūne his courſe. It goeth forth from the vtmoſt parte of the heauen, and runneth about vnto the ende of it agayne, &
there is nothynge hyd from the heate therof.
The lawe of ỹ Lorde is an vndefyled lawe conuertīg the ſoule. The teſtimony of the Lorde is ſure, and geueth wiſdome vnto the ſymple. The ſtatutes of ỹ Lorde are right C and reioyſe the hert, the commaundement of the Lorde is pure, and geueth light vnto the eyes. The feare of the Lorde is cleane, and endureth for euer: the iudgementes of the Lorde are true and ryghteous all together.
* More to be deſyred are they then golde, * Pſa.xix.

pre then moche fyne golde: sweter also then hony, and the hony combe. Moreouer, by D the is thy seruaũt taught, & in kepynge of the there is greate reward. Who can tell, howe oft he offendeth? Oh clense thou me fro pp (my) secrete faultes. Kepe thy seruaũt also from presumptuous synnes, lest they get the dominion ouer me: so shall I be vndefyled, & innocent from the greate offence. Let the wordes of my mouth, and the meditacion of pp my herte be (alwaye) acceptable in thy syght O Lorde, my strength and my redemer.

¶The.xx. Psalme.

EXAVDIAT TE DOMINVS.

To the chaunter, a Psalme of Dauid.

A THe Lorde heare the in ỹ daye of trouble, the name of the God of Jacob defende the. Sende the helpe from the Sanctuary, and strength the out of Siõ.

Remembre all thy offrynges, and accepte thy brent sacrifyce Sela. Graunte the thy hertes desyre, & fulfyll all thy mynde.

We wyll reioyse in thy saluacyon, and triumphe in the name of the Lorde oure God the Lorde perfourme all thy peticions.

B Nowe knowe I, that the Lorde helpeth hys anoynted, and wyll heare hym from hys holy heauẽ: euen with the wholsome strẽgth of hys ryght hande. Some put their trust in charettes, and some in horses: but we wyll remembre the name of the Lorde oure God.

They are brought downe and fallen, but we are ryssen, and stande vp ryght.

Saue Lorde, and heare vs, O kynge pp of heuen, when we call. (vpon the.)

¶The.xxi. Psalme.

DOMINE IN VIRTVTE TVA.

To the chaunter, a Psalme of Dauid.

THe kynge shall reioyce in thy strength, O Lorde, exceadynge glad shall he be of thy saluacion. Thou hast geuen hym his hertes desyre, and hast not denyed him the requeste of hys lyppes. Sela.

For thou shalt preuente him with ỹ blessynges of goodnes, and shalt set a crowne of pure golde vpon his head. He asked lyfe of the, and thou gauest him a longe lyfe, euẽ for euer and euer. Hys honoure is greate in thy saluaciõ: glory and greate worshyppe
B shalt thou laye vpon hym. For thou shalt geue hym euerlastynge felycite, & make hym glad with the ioye of thy countenaunce.

And why? because the kynge putteth hys trust in the Lorde, and in ỹ mercy of the most hyest he shall not mysearye. All thyne enemies shall fele thy hand: thy ryght hãd shall fynde out them that hate the. Thou shalt make them lyke a fyrye ouen in tyme of thy wrath: the Lorde shall destroye them in hys displeasure, and the fyre shall cõsume them.

Their frute shalt ỹ roote out of ỹ earth, and their sede from amonge the chyldren of men. For they intended myschefe agaynst the, and ymagined soch a deuyce, as they are not able to perfourme. Therfore shalt ỹ put them to flyght, and the strynges of thy bowe shalt thou make ready agaynst the faces of them. Be thou exalted, Lorde, in thyne awne strength: so wyll we synge and prayse thy power.

¶The. xxii. Psalme.

DEVS DEVS MEVS.

To the Chaunter vpon the hynde of the dawnynge a Psalme of Dauid.

MY * God, my God: (why vpõ me) why hast thou forsakẽ me: and art so farre fro my health, and fro the wordes of my complaynte? O my God, I crye in the daye tyme, but thou heareste not: and in the nyght season also I take no rest. And thou
C continueste holy, O thou worshyppe of Israel. Oure fathers hoped in the: they trusted in the, and thou dyddest delyuer them.

They called vpon the, and were helped: they put their trust in the, and were not confounded. But as for me, I am a worme & no mã: a very scorne of men & the outcast of the people. *All they ỹ se me, laugh me to scorne: they shote out their lyppes, & shake ỹ
B heade sayinge. * He trusted in God that he wolde delyuer him: let him delyuer him, yf he wyll haue him. ‡ But ỹ art he ỹ toke me out of my mothers wombe: thou wast my hope, when I hanged yet vpõ my mothers brestes.

I haue bene left vnto ỹ euer sence I was borne: thou art my God, euẽ fro my mothers wombe. O go not fro me, for trouble is
C harde at hande, and ther is none to helpe me.

Greate oxen are come aboute me, fatt bulles of Basan close me in on euery syde.

They gape vpon me with their mouthes as it were a rampynge and roarynge lyon.

* I am powred out lyke water, & all my bones are out of ioynt: my hert also in the myddest of my bodye is euen lyke meltynge ware. My strength is dryed vp lyke a pot-
D sherde, & my tonge cleueth to my gũmes: and thou shalt brynge me into the dust of death.

For pp (many) dogges are come aboute me, & the counsell of the wycked laye seage agaynst me. They pearsed my handes and my fete, I maye tell all my bones, they stonde starynge and lokynge vpon me.

* They parte my garmẽtes amonge thẽ, and cast lottes vpon my vesture. But be not ỹ farre fro me, O Lord: thou art my succoure, haste the to helpe me. Delyuer my soule from the swearde, my dearlynge fro the power of the dogge. Saue me from the lyons mouth: thou hast heard me also from E amonge the hornes of the vnicornes. I wyll declare thy name vnto my * brethren: in the myddest of the cõgregaciõ wyll I prayse the.

F O prayſe the Lorde ye ꝑ feare hi: Magnifye hym all ye of the ſede of Jacob, & feare hi
* Pſal. 21.d. all ye ſede of Iſracl. * For he hath not deſpyſed ner abhorred the lowe eſtate of ꝑ poore be ha[d] not hyd hys face frō hym, but whē he called vnto him, he harde him. Myprayſe is of the in the great cōgregacion, my vowes wyll I perfourme in the ſyght of them that feare hym. The poore ſhall eate, & be ſatiſ-fyed: they that ſeke after ꝑ Lorde, ſhall prayſe hym. youre herte ſhall lyue for euer. All the endes of the worlde ſhall remēbre thē ſelues, & be turned vnto the Lorde, & all ꝑ kynreds of the nacions, ſhall worſhyppe before G him. For the kyngdom is the Lordes, and he is the gouernoure amonge the people.
☞ All ſoche as be fat vpon earth ☞ haue eaten & worſhypped. All they ꝑ go downe into the duſt, ſhall knele before him & no man hath quyckened hys awne ſoule. ✠ (my) Sede ſhall
ſerue him: they ſhalbe counted vnto ꝑ Lorde for a generacyon. They ſhall come, and ✠✠ (the heauens) ſhall declare hys ryghteouſnes:
vnto a people that ſhall be borne, whom the Lorde hath made.

¶ The.xxiii.Pſalme.

DOMINVS REGIT ME.

A pſalme of Dauid.

A The Lord is my ſhepherde, therfore
eā I lack nothing. He ſhall fede me in a greene paſture, & leade me
forth beyde the waters of cōforte.
He ſhall conuerte my ſoule, & bringe me
forth in the pathes of ryghteouſnes for hys names ſake. Yee though I walke thorowe 23 ꝑ valleye of ꝑ ſhadow of death, I wyll feare
no euell, for ꝑ art wt me thy rodde & thy ſtaffe cōforte me. Thou ſhalt prepare a table before me agaynſt them ꝑ trouble me: ꝑ haſt anopnted my heade wt oyle, & my cuppe ſhalbe ✠✠ full. But ✠✠ (thy) louynge kyndnes & mercy ſhall folowe me all the dayes of my lyfe. & I wyll dwell in the houſe of the Lord for euer.

¶ The.xxiiii.Pſalme.

DOMINI EST TERRA.

A Pſalme of Dauid. ✠✠ (in the fyrſt daye of the Sabath.)

A The * earth is the Lordes, and all that
* Leui.xxv.d therin is: the compaſſe of the worlde,
i. Cozin. x. f. and they that dwell therin. For he hath founded it vpon the ſees, & prepared it
* Pſal. xcv.a. vpō the floudes. * Who ſhall aſcende into Diap.xxxiii.c ꝑ hyll of the Lorde? Or, who ſhall ryſe vp in Math. xxv. d. his holy place? Euē he that hath cleane hādes
& a pure hert: & ꝑ hath not lyfte vp his mynde ✠✠ vnto vanite, ner ſworne to diſceaue. ✠✠ (hys neyghboure) He ſhall receaue the bleſſynge frō
the Lorde, and ryghteouſneſſe from the God 25 of hys ſaluacyon. Thys is the generacion of them that ſeke him, euen of thē ꝑ ſeke thy face, O Jacob. Sela. ✠✠ Lyfte vp youre ✠✠ heades O ye gates, & be ye lyfte vp, ye euerlaſtynge dores, & the kynge of glory ſhall come in. Who is this kynge of glory? It is ꝑ Lorde ſtrōge & myghtie, euen ꝑ Lord myghtye in battell. Lyfte vp youre heades (O ye gates) & be ye lyfte vp ye euerlaſtyng dores, & the kyng of glory ſhall come in. Who is thys kynge of glory? Euen the Lorde of Hoſtes, he is the kynge of glory. Sela.

¶ The.xxv.pſalme.

AD TE DOMINE LEVAVI.

Of Dauid.

V Nto the (O Lorde) wyll I lyft vp A my ſoule. Myy God, I haue put my truſt in the: Oh lett me not be confounded, nether let myne enemyes
triūphe ouer me. * For all they that hope * Rom.
in the, ſhall not be aſhamed: but ſoch as trāſ- ano.x.
greſſe without a cauſe, ſhall be put to cōfuſiō
Shewe me thy wayes, O Lord, & teache me thy pathes. Leade me forth in thy trueth, & lerne me, for thou art ꝑ God of my ſaluaciō: in the hath bene my hope all ꝑ daye longe. Call to remembraunce (O Lorde) B thy tender mercyes, and thy louynge kynd-
neſſes, which haue bene euer of olde.
Oh remembre not ꝑ * ſynnes & offences of * Jo.
my youth, but accordynge vnto thy mercy
thynke thou vpō me (O Lord) for thy good-neſſe. Gracious & ryghteous is the Lorde, therfore wyll he teache ſynners in the waye.
Them ꝑ be meke, ſhall he guyde in iudge- C
ment: & ſoch as be gentle, them ſhall he lerne his waye. All the pathes of the Lorde are mercye & truthe, vnto ſoch as kepe his cou-enaunt & his teſtimonies. * For thy names * Exo.
ſake, O Lord, be mercyfull vnto my ſynne,
for it is great. What mā is he that feareth
the Lord, him ſhall he teache in the waye that he ſhall chooſe. His ſoule ſhall dwell at ea-ſe, and hys ſede ſhall inherit the lande.
The ſecrete of the Lorde is amonge them
that feare him * & he wyll ſhewe thē hys co- * ꝑ.
uenaunt. Myne eyes are euer lokynge vn- and.
to the Lord, for he ſhall plucke my fete out of the net. Turne the vnto me, & haue mercy D
vpon me: for I am deſolate, and in miſery.
The ſorowes of my herte are enlarged: O
bringe thou me out of my troubles. Loke
vpon myne aduerſyte & miſery, and forgeue me all my ſynne. Conſidre myne enemies
how many they ar, & they beare a tyrānous hate agaynſt me. O kepe my ſoule, and delyuer me. let me not be counfounded, for I haue put my truſt in the. Let perfectneſſe and ryghteous dealynge waye vpon me, for my hope hath bene in the. Delyuer Iſrael
O God, out of all hys troubles.

¶ The.xxvi.Pſalme.

IVDICA ME DOMINE,

✠✠ (A pſalme) Of Dauid. (A ſore he was enbalmed.) g.

BE thou my *iudge, O Lorde, for I haue walked innocently: my truste hath bene also in the Lorde therfore shall I not fall. *Examen me, O Lord, & proue me: trye out my reynes and my hert. For thy louynge kindenesse is before mine eyes, & I will walke in thy trueth.

I haue not dweit with vayne persones, nether wyll I haue fellishipe with the disceatfull. I haue hated the congregacyon of the wicked, and will not syt amonge the vngodly. *I will washe my handes in innocētye, O Lorde, and so will I go to thyne auter. That I maye shewe the voyce of thankesgeuynge, and tell of all thy wonderous workes. Lorde, I haue loued the habitacion of thy house, & the place where thyne honoure dwelleth. O shutt not vp my soule with the synners, ner my lyfe with the bloudthurstye. In whose handes is wyckednesse, & their ryghthāde is full of gyftes.

But as for me I will walcke innocētly: O delyuer me, and be mercyfull vnto me.

My fote standeth ryght: I will prayse the Lorde in the congregacyons.

¶ The.xxvij. Psalme.

DOMINVS ILLVMINATIO.

Of Dauid.

THe Lorde is my *lyght and my saluacyon: whom then shall I feare? the Lorde is the strength of my lyfe: of whom then shall I be afrayed? When the wycked (euen myne enemyes and my foes) came vpāme, to eate vp my flesshe, they stōbled & fell. Though an hoost of men were layed agaynst me, yet shall not my hert be afrayed: and though there rose vp warre agaynst me, yet will I put my truste in this.

*One thynge haue I desyred of the Lorde, which I will requyre: euen that I maye dwell in the *house of the Lorde all the dayes of my lyfe: to beholde the fayre bewtie of the Lorde, and to vyset his temple. For in the tyme of trouble he shall hyde me in his *tabernacle, yee in the secrete place of his dwellynge shall he hyde me, and set me vp vpon a *rocke of stone. And nowe shall he lyft vp my head aboue myne enemyes rounde aboute me. Therfore will I offre in his dwellynge, an oblacyon with great gladnesse: I will synge and speake prayses vnto the Lorde.

Herken vnto my voyce, O Lorde, when I crye vnto the: haue mercye vpon me, and heare me. My hert hath talked of the: Seke ye my face: thy face Lorde will I seke. O hyde not thou thy face fro me, ner cast thy seruaunt awaye in displeasure. Thou hast bene my succoure, leaue me not, nether forsake me, O God of my saluacyon. When my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lorde taketh me vp. Teache me thy waye O Lorde, & leade me the ryght waye, because of myne enemyes. Delyuer me not ouer into the will of myne aduersaryes, for there are false wytnesses risen vp agaynst me, and such as speake wronge.

I shulde veterlye haue faynted: but that I beleue verely to se the goodnesse of the Lorde in the lande of the lyuinge. O tarye thou the Lordes leysure * be stronge, and he shall confortе thyne hert, and put thou thy truste in the Lorde.

¶ The.xxviij. Psalme.

AD TE DOMINE CLAMABO.

A Psalme of Dauid.

VNto the wyll I crye, O Lorde, my strength: thynche no scorne of me, lest, yf thou make as though thou heardest not, I become lyke them, that go downe into the pytte. Heare the voyce of my humble peticyons, when I crye vnto the, whan I holde vp my handes towarde the mercyseate of thy holy temple. O plucke me not awaye (or drawe me) with the vngodly and wicked doers * which speake frendly to their neyghbours, but ymagine mischefe in their hertes. *Rewarde them accordynge to their dedes, and accordynge to the wyckednesse of their awne inuencions. Recompense them after the worcke of their handes: paye them that they haue deserued. For they regarde not in their mynde the worckes of the Lorde, ner the operacion of his hādes: therfore shall he breake them downe, & not buylde them vp. Prayse be the Lorde, for he hath hearde the voyce of myne humble peticions. *The Lorde is my strength & my shylde: my hert hath trusted in him, & I am holpen: therfore my herte daunseth for ioye, and in my songe will I prayse him. The Lorde is their strength: and he is the wholsome defence of his anoynted. O Saue thy people, & gyue thy blessinge vnto *thyne enheritaunce: fede them, & set them vp for euer.

¶ The.xxix. Psalme.

AFFERTE DOMINO.

A Psalme of Dauid (at the perfournynge of the Tabernacle.)

BRynge vnto the Lorde (O ye myghtie) (bringe yonge rammes vnto the Lorde.) ascribe vnto the Lorde worshippe & strength.

Geue the Lorde the honoure due vnto his name: worshippe the Lorde with holy worshippe. *It is the Lorde that commaundeth the waters: It is the glorious God that maketh the thonder: * it is the Lorde that ruleth the see. The voyce of the Lorde is myghtie in operacion, the voyce of the Lorde is a glorious voyce. The voyce of the Lorde breaketh the. *Cedre trees: yee, the Lorde breaketh the Cedres of Libanus.

He made them also to shyppe lyke a Calfe: Libanus also, and Syrion lyke a yonge vnycorne. The voyce of the Lorde deuydeth the flames of fyre: the voyce of the

℣ of the Lorde, shaketh the wyldernesse, ye the Lorde shaketh the wilderneſſe of Cades.

The voyce of the Lorde maketh the hyndes to bringe forth younge & discouereth the thicke bushes: in his temple doth euery man speake of his honour. The Lorde syttyth aboue the water floude, & the Lorde remaynneth a kynge for euer. The Lorde shall geue strength vnto his people, the Lorde shall geue his people the blessynge of peace.

℣ The.xxx. Psalme.

EXALTABO TE DOMINE.

℣ A Psalme and songe of the dedicacyon of the house of Dauid.

I Wyll magnifye ꝙ, O Lorde, for thou hast set me vp, & not made my fooes to triumphe ouer me. O Lorde my God, I cryed vnto the, and thou hast healed me. Thou Lorde hast brought my soule out of hell: thou hast kepte my lyfe, frō them that go downe to the pytte. Synge prayses vnto the Lorde (ye saintes of his) and ℣ geue thankes vnto him for a remembraunce
*℣ Cor.iij.d of his holynesse. *For hys wrath endureth but the twinclinge of an eye, and in hys pleasure is lyfe: heynesse maye endure for a nyght, but ioye commeth in the morynge.

And in my prosperyte, I sayde: I shall neuer be remoued: thou Lorde of thy goodnesse ℣ hadest made my hill so stronge. Thou hyddest turne thy face *(from me) and I was troubled. Then cryed I vnto the, O Lorde, & gat me to my Lorde ryght humbly. What profyt is there in my bloude, whan I go downe to the pytte? Shall the dust geue thankes vnto the? Or shall it declare thy ℣ trueth? Heare, O Lorde, and haue mercy vpon me: Lorde be thou my helper. Thou hast turned my heynesse into ioye: thou hast put of my sacke cloth, and gyrded me with gladnesse. Therfore shall (euery good man) synge of thy prayse without ceassinge: O my God, I wyll geue thankes vnto the for euer.

℣ The.xxxj. Psalme.

IN TE, DOMINE SPERAVI.

℣ To the chaunter a Psalme of Dauid.

I N the, O Lord, haue I put my trust: let me neuer be put to confusyon: deliuer me in thy ryghteousnesse.

Bowe downe thine eare to me, make haste to deliuer me. And be thou my stronge rocke, and a house of defence, that thou mayest saue me. For ꝙ art my stronge rocke, & my castell: Be thou also my guyde, & leade me for thy names sake. Dra we me out of the nett that they haue layed priuely for me, *℣ Ro.viij.f. Luce.xxiij.g. for thou art my strength. *Into thy handes I commende my spirite: for thou hast redemed me, O Lorde thou God of trueth.

I haue hated them that holde of superfluous vanityes, & my trust hath bene in ꝙ Lorde. I wyll be glad and reioyse in thy mercy: for thou hast consydred my trouble, & hast knowne my soule in aduersytees.

Thou hast not shut me vp into the hāde of the enemye, but hast set my fete in a large rowme. Haue mercy vpon me, O Lorde, for I am in trouble, & myne eye is consumed for very heynesse, yee my soule & my body. For my lyfe is waren olde with heynesse, & my yeares with mournynge. My strength fayleth me because of myne iniquite, and my bones are corrupte. I became a ℣ reproue amonge all myne enemyes, but specially amonge my neyghbours, and they of myne acquayntaunce were afrayed of me: & they that dyd se me without, conueyed them selues from me. I am cleane forgotten, as a deed man out of mynde: I am become lyke a broken vessell. For I haue herde ꝙ blasphemy of the multitude: and feare is on euerye syde whyle they consyre together agaynst me, & take ther counsell to take awaye my lyfe. But my hope hath bene in the, O Lorde, I sayde: thou art my God.

My tyme is in thy handes: delyuer me frō the hāde of myne enemyes, and frō them that persecute me. Shewe thy seruaunt the ℣ light of thy countenaūce, and saue me for thy mercyes sake. Let me not be confounded, O Lorde, for I haue called vpon the: let the vngodly be put to confusion, and be put to sylence in the graue. Let the lyenge lyppes be put to sylence, which cruelly, disdainfully, & despitefully, speake against the ryghteous.

O howe plenteyfull is thy goodnesse, which thou hast layed vp, for them ꝙ feare the, and that thou hast prepared for them, ꝙ put their trust in the, euen before the sonnes of men!

Thou shalt hyde them priuely by thine ℣ owne presence frō ꝙ prouokinges of all men: ꝙ shalt kepe them secretly in thy tabernacle, frō the stryfe of tonges. Thankes be to the Lorde, for he hath shewed me marueylous great kyndnesse in a stronge cytie. And when I made hast, I sayde: I am cast out of thy syght. Neuertheles, thou herdest the voyce of my prayer, when I cryed vnto the.

O loue the Lorde, all ye his saintes, for ꝙ Lorde preserueth the that are fayethfull, and plentyously rewardeth he the proude doer.

*Be stronge, & he shall stablyshe youre hart, all ye that put your trust in the Lorde. *Psa.xxvij. and.xxxj.

℣ The.xxxij. Psalme.

BEATI QVORVM.

℣ In instruccyon of Dauid.

BLessed is he, whose vnrygteousnesse is forgeuen, and whose synne is couered. *Blessed is the mā, vnto whō the Lorde imputeth no synne, and in whose spirite there is no gyle. For whyle I held my tonge, my bones consumed away thorowe my daylye complaynynge. For thy *Rom.iiij.

hande

B hande is heuy vpon me daye and nyght, and my moyſture is lyke the drouth in Sommer. Sela. I wyll knowledge my ſynne vnto the, and myne vnryghteouſnesse haue I not hyd. I ſayde: * I wyll confeſſe my ſynnes vnto the Lorde, & ſo thou forgaueſt the wyckednesse of my ſynne. Sela. For this ſhall euery one that is godly, make his prayer vnto the Lorde in a tyme when thou mayeſte be founde, but in the great water flouds they ſhall not come nye hym. Thou art a place to hyde me in, thou ſhalt preſerue me from trouble: thou ſhalt compaſſe me about with ſonges of delyueraunce. Sela. I wyll enfourme the, & teache the in the waye wherin thou ſhalt go: and I wyll guyde the with myne eye. Be not ye lyke horſe and mule, which haue no vnderſtandynge. Whoſe mouthes muſt be holden with byt & bridle, leſt they fall vpon the. Greate plages remayne for the vngodly, but who ſo putteth hys truſt in the Lorde, mercy embraceth him on euery ſyde. Be glad, O ye ryghteous and reioyſe in the Lorde: and be ioyfull all ye that are true of herte.

¶ The.xxxiii. Pſalme.

EXVLTATE IVSTI IN DOMINO.

A Reioyſe * in the Lorde, O ye ryghteous, for it becommeth well the iuſt to be thankfull. * Prayſe the Lorde with harpe: ſynge pſalmes vnto hym with the lute and inſtrumēt of ten ſtrynges. Synge vnto the Lorde a newe ſonge, ſynge prayſes luſtely (vnto hym) with a good corage.

B For the worde of the Lorde is true, and all hys worckes are faythfull. He loueth ryghteouſnes and iugement: the earth is full of the goodneſſe of the Lorde. * By the worde of the Lorde were the heauens made, and all the hooſtes of them by the breth of his mouth. He gathereth the waters of the ſee together as it were vpō a heape, & layeth vp the depe as in a treſure houſe. Let all the earth feare the Lorde: ſtande in awe of hym, all ye that dwell in the worlde. * For he ſpake, and it was done: he commaunded, and it ſtode faſt. The Lorde bringeth the * councell of the heithen to naught, and maketh the deuyces of the people, to be of none effecte. (and caſteth out the counceils of princes.)

The councell of the Lorde ſhall endure for euer, and the thoughtes of hys herte from generacyon to generacyon. Bleſſed are the people whoſe God is the Lorde Iehouah, & bleſſed are the folcke that haue choſen hym to be theyr inheritaunce. The Lorde loked downe from heauen, and behelde all the chyldren of men: from the habitacyon of his dwellynge, he conſydereth all them that dwell in the erth. He faſhyoneth all the hertes of them, and vnderſtandeth all theyr worckes. There is no kynge that can be ſaued by the multytude of an hoſt, nether is any myghtie man delyuered by moche ſtrength.

A horſe is counted but a vayne thynge to ſaue a man, neyther ſhall he delyuer any man by hys greate ſtrength. Behold, the eye of the Lorde is vpon them that feare hym, and vpon them that put theyr truſt in his mercy.

To delyuer theyr ſoules from death, & to fede them in the tyme of dearth. Oure ſoule hath pacyently tarryed for the Lorde for he is oure helpe and oure ſhylde. For oure herte ſhall reioyſe in hym, becauſe we haue hoped in hys holy name. Let thy mercyfull kyndneſſe, O Lorde be vpon vs, lyke as we haue put oure truſt in the.

¶ The.xxxiiii. Pſalme.

BENEDICAM DOMINVM.

Of Dauid, when he chaunged his ſpeche before Abimelech, which droue hym awaye and he departed.

A I wyll allwaye geue thanckes vnto the Lorde, hys prayſe ſhall euer be in my mouth. My ſoule ſhall make her boaſt in the Lord the humble ſhall heare therof, and be glad. O prayſe the Lorde with me, and let vs magnifye hys name together.

* I ſought the Lorde & he hearde me, yee he * 1.Reg.xvii.d. deliuered me out of all my feare. They had an eye vnto him, and were lyghtened, & their faces were not aſhamed. Lo, the poore cryeth, & the Lorde heareth hym, yee and ſaueth hym out of all hys troubles. * The B * Joſua.b.b iiii.Reg.xix.g. Angell of the Lorde tarryeth rounde about them that feare hym, and delyuereth them.

O taſte and ſe, howe gracious the Lord is, * bleſſed is the man that truſteth in hym. * Pſal.6.d

O * feare the Lorde, ye that be hys ſayntes for they that feare hym, lacke nothynge. * Pſal.cxxviii.a

The lyons do lacke, & ſuffre hunger * but * Matth.vi.b they which ſeke the Lorde: ſhall want no maner of thynge that is good. Come ye chyldren C & herke vnto me, I wyll teach you the feare of the Lorde. * What man is he that lyſteth to ly- * 1.Pet.iii.c. ue, & wold fayne ſe good dayes? Kepe thy tonge from euell, & thy lyppes, that they ſpeake no gile. Eſchue euell, & do good. ſeke peace and enſue it. The eyes of the Lorde are ouer the ryghteous, & his eares are open vnto their prayers. The countenaūce of the Lorde is agaynſt them that do euell, to rote out the remēbraunce of them from of the earth. The ryghteous crye, & the Lorde heareth them, & delyuereth them out of all theyr troubles. The D Lorde is nye vnto them that are of a contrite hert, & wyll ſaue ſuche as be of an humble ſpirite. *pro.xviii.b Actes.viii.b. ii.Tim.iii.c

* Greate are the troubles of the ryghteous but the Lorde delyuereth hym out of all.

He kepeth all hys bones, ſo that not one of them is broken. But myſchefe ſhall ſlaye the vngodly, and they that hate the ryghteous, ſhalbe deſolate. The Lorde

delyuereth

delyuereth the ſoules of hys ſeruauntes: and all they that put theyr truſt in hym ſhall not be deſtitute.

¶ The.xxxv.Pſalme:

IVDICA DOMINE NOCENTES.

Of Dauid.

1 PLeate thou my cauſe, O Lorde, with them that ſtryue with me: and fyght thou agaynſt the that fyght agaynſt me. Laye hande vpon the ſhilde & buckler, and ſtande vp to helpe me. Bryng forth the ſpeare, & ſtoppe the waye agaynſt them ỹ perſecute me: ſaye vnto my ſoule: I am thy ſaluacyon. Let them be confounded and put to ſhame, that ſeke after my ſoule: let the be turned backe, and brought to confuſyon, that ymagyne myſchefe for me.

*Pſ.xxxiiij.c * Let the be as the duſt before ỹ wynde, and the angell of the Lorde ſcatteryng the.

Let theyr waye be darcke and ſlyppery, and let the angell of the Lorde perſecute the.

For they haue pryuely layed theyr net to deſtroye me without a cauſe, yee euen without a cauſe haue they made a pytte for my

B ſoule. Let a ſodeu deſtruction come vpon him vnawares: & hys net that he hath layed pryuely, catch hym ſelfe, that he maye fall into hys awne myſchefe. And my ſoule be ioyfull in the Lorde: it ſhall reioyſe in his ſaluacyon. All my bones ſhall ſaye: Lorde, who is lyke vnto the: which delyuereſt the poore from hym that is to ſtronge for hym, yee the poore and hym that is in miſery, from hym that ſpoyleth hym. Falſe witneſſe dyd ryſe vp: they layed to my charge, thynges that I knowe not. They rewarded me euell for good, to the greate diſcomforte of my ſoule. Neuertheleſſe, when they were ſycke, I put on a ſacke clothe: and hum-bled my ſoule with faſtynge, and my prayer ſhall turne into myne awne boſome.

C I behaued my ſelfe as though it had bene my frende or my brother, I wente heuely, as one that mourneth for hys mother.

But in myne aduerſyte they reioyſed, and gathered them together: yee the very abiectes came together agaynſt me: vnawares, makynge mowes at me, and ceaſſed not.

With the flatrers were buſy mockers, which gnaſhed vpon me with theyr teeth.

Lorde, howe longe wylt thou loke vpon thys? O delyuer my ſoule from the calamityes which they bryng on me, and my dearlynge from the lyons. So wyll I gene the thankes in the greate congregacyo I wyll prayſe the amonge moche people.

O let not them that are myne enemyes triumphe ouer me vngodlye nether: let the

*Pſal.xxiv.a wynche with theyr eyes, ỹ * hate me with-Joh.xv.b. out a cauſe. And why? theyr comonyng is not for peace, but they ymagyne diſceatfull wordes agaynſt them that are quyet in the lande. They gaped vpon me with theyr mouthes, and ſayde: fye on the, fye on the: we dyd ſe it with oure eyes.

This thou haſt ſene, O Lorde: holde not D thy tonge then, go not farre from me, O Lord.

I wake and ſtande vp to iudge my quarell auenge thou my cauſe, my God, and my Lorde. Iudge me, O Lorde my God, accordynge to thy ryghteouſneſſe, and let them not triumphe ouer me. Let them not ſaye in their hertes: there, there, ſo wolde we haue it: nether lett them ſaye: we haue deuoured hym. Let them be put to confuſyon and ſhame together that reioyſe at my trouble: let them be clothed with rebuke and diſhonoure that boaſt them ſelues agaynſt me. Let them be glad and reioyſe, that fauoure my ryghteous dealynge: yee let the ſaye allwaye bleſſed be the Lorde, which hath pleaſure in the proſperitye of hys ſeruaunt.

And as for my tonge, it ſhalbe talkynge of thy ryghteouſnes and of thy prayſe, all the daye longe.

¶ The.xxxvi.Pſalme.

DIXIT INIVSTVS.

To the Chaunter, of Dauid the ſeruaunt of the Lorde.

MY hert ſheweth me the wyckednelle of A the vngodly, that * there is no feare *Rom.iij.d of God before hys eyes. For he flatreth hym ſelfe in hys owne ſyght, tyll hys abhominable ſynne be founde out. The wordes of hys mouth are vnryghteous, and full of diſceate: he hath left of to behaue hym ſelfe wyſely and to do good. He ymagyneth myſchefe vpon hys bedd, and hath ſet hym ſelfe in no good waye, nether doth he abhore any thyng that is euell. Thy mercy, O Lorde reacheth vnto the heauen, and thy faythfulneſſe vnto the cloudes.

Thy ryghteouſneſſe ſtandeth lyke the ſtrõge mõtaynes: thy iudgementes are lyke the greate depe. Thou Lorde ſhalt ſaue both man and beeſt. Howe excellent B is thy mercy, O God: and the chyldren of mẽ ſhall put theyr truſt vnder the ſhadowe of thy wynges. They ſhalbe ſatiſfyed with the plẽteouſneſſe of thy houſe, and thou ſhalt geue them drynck of thy pleaſures, as out of the ryuer. For with the is the well of lyfe, and in thy lyght, ſhall we ſe lyght.

O contynue forth thy louynge kyndneſſe vnto them that knowe the, and thy ryghteouſneſſe vnto them that are true of hert.

O let not the fote of pryde come agaynſt me: and let not the hande of the vngodly caſt me downe. ☞ There are they fallen Th (all) that worke wyckednelle: they are caſt a- downe, and ſhall not be able to ſtande.

¶ The

¶The.xxxvij.Pſalme.

NOLI EMVLARI.

A Pſalme of Dauid.

A FRet not thy ſelf becauſe of the vngodly: nether be ꝓ enuyous agaynſt ꝓ euell doers. For they ſhall ſoone be cut downe lyke ꝓ graſſe, & be wythered euen as ꝓ grene herbe. Put ꝓ thy truſt in the Lorde, & be doinge good: dwell in the lande, and verely thou ſhalt be fedd. Delyte thou in the Lorde, & he ſhall gene the thy hertes deſyre. Commytte thy waye vnto ꝓ Lorde, & put thy truſt in hym, & he ſhall bringe it to paſſe. He ſhall make thy rightuouſneſſe as cleare as ꝓ light, & thy iuſt dealing as ꝓ noone daye. Holde the ſtyll in ꝓ Lorde, & abyde pacyently vpon him: but greue not thy ſelfe at hym, whoſe waye doth proſpere agenſt ꝓ man ꝓ doth after euell councels. Leaue of frō wrath, B & let go diſpleaſure, frett not thy ſelf, els ſhalt thou be moued to do euell. Wycked doers ſhalbe roted out: & they ꝓ pacyently abyde ꝓ Lorde, thoſe ſhall enheret ꝓ lande.

Yet a lytle whyle, & the vngodly ſhalbe clene gone: thou ſhalt loke after hys place, & he ſhalbe awaye. But the meke ſpirited ſhall poſſeſſe the earth, & ſhalbe refreſſhed in the multitude of peace. The vngodly ſeketh councell agaynſt ꝓ iuſt, & gnaſſheth vpō hym with his tethe. The Lorde ſhall laughe hym to ſcorne, for he hath ſene, ꝓ his daye is cōmynge. The vngodly haue drawen out the ſwerde, and haue bended C their bowe, to caſt downe ꝓ poore and nedye, and to ſlaye ſoch as be of a ryght conuerſacion. Their ſwerde ſhall go thorow their awne herte, & their bowe ſhalbe broken. A ſmall thinge that the ryghtuous hath, is better then greate ryches of ꝓ vngodly. For the armes of the vngodly ſhalbe broken, and ꝓ Lorde vpholdeth the ryghtuous. The Lorde knoweth ꝓ dayes of the godly, & their inheritaūce ſhall endure for euer. They ſhall not be confounded in ꝓ perelous tyme, and in the dayes of derth they ſhall haue ynough. As for the D vngodly, they ſhall peryſhe: & the enemyes of the Lorde ſhall conſume, &c. as the fatt of lambes: yee, euen as ꝓ ſmoke ſhall they conſume awaye. The vngodly borroweth and payeth not agayne, but ꝓ rightuous is mercyfull & lyberall. Soch as be bleſſed of God, ſhall poſſeſſe the lande, & they that be curſſed of hym, ſhalbe roted out.

The Lorde ordreth a good mans gonge, & maketh his waye acceptable to him ſelf.

* Though he fall, he ſhal not be caſt awaye, for ꝓ Lorde vpholdeth him with his hande. I haue bene ponge, and nowe am olde: & yet ſawe I neuer ꝓ rightuous forſaken, nor his ſede begginge theyr bread.

* The ryghtuous is euer mercyfull, and lendeth, and his ſede is bleſſed. Ple from * Pſou.xl.c. E euell, and do the thynge that is good, and dwel for euer. For the Lorde loueth the thynge that is ryght, he forſaketh not hys ꝓ be godly, but they are preſerued for euermore: ⁊c. (The vnrighteous ſhalbe punished.) as for 40 the ſede of the vngodly, it ſhalbe roted out.

The ryghtuous ſhall inherett the lande, and dwell therin for euer. * The mouth * Pſou.xl.d. of the ryghtuous is exerciſed in wyſdome and his tonge wilbe talkyng of iudgemēt,

The lawe of his God is in his hert, and F his goynges ſhall not ſlyde. The vngodly ſeeth the ryghtuous, & ſeketh occaſyon to ſlaye hym. The Lorde wyll not leaue hym in hys hande, ner cōdēpne him when he is iudged. Hope thou in the Lord, and kepe his waye, & he ſhal promote the, that thou ſhalt poſſeſſe the lande: when the vngodly ſhal perиſhe, thou ſhalt ſe it. I my ſelfe haue ſene ꝓ vngodly in great power, & floriſhige lyke a grene baye tree: & he vaniſhed awaye, & lo, he was gone: I ſought hi, but ⁊c. (hys place.) coulde no where be foud. 40

Kepe innocency, and take hede vnto the G thynge that is ryght, for that ſhall bringe a man peace at the laſt. As for the trāſgreſſours, they ſhall peryſhe together, and the ende of the vngodly is, they ſhall be roted out at the laſt. But the ſaluaciō of the ryghtuous cōmeth of the Lorde, which is alſo their ſtrength in the tyme of trouble.

And the Lorde ſhall ſtande by them, and ſaue them: he ſhall delyuer them from the vngodly, and ſhall ſaue them, becauſe they put theyr truſt in hym.

¶The.xxxviij.Pſalme.

DOMINE NE IN FVRORE.

A Pſalme of Dauid for remembraunce.

PVt me not * to rebuke (O Lord) in thi A ne anger: nether chaſten me in thy he- * Pſal.vi.a. Ierr.x.b.
up diſpleaſure. For thyne arowes ſtycke faſt in me, and thy hande preſſeth me ſore.

There is no health in my fleſh, becauſe of thy diſpleaſure: nether is there anye reſt in my bones, by reaſon of my ſynne. For my wyckednelles are gone ouer my heade, and are lyke a ſore burthen, to heuy for me to beare. My woundes ſtyncke and are corrupt, thorowe my folyſhneſſe. I am B brought in to ſo greate trouble & miſery, that I go mournynge all the daye longe.

For my loynes are fylled with a ſore diſeaſe, & there is no whole parte in my body. I am feble & ſore ſmytten, I haue roared for the very diſquyetnes of my hert.

Lorde, ꝓ knoweſt all my deſyre, and my gronynge is not hyd frō ꝓ. My hert pāteth, my ſtrēgth hath fayled me, & ꝓ lyght C of myne eyes is gone fro me. * My louers Pſal.xxxviij.b.
& my neyghbours dyd ſtāde lokynge vpon

my

myne trouble, & my kynſmen ſtode a farre of.
They alſo þ ſought after my life, layed ſnares for me: & they that went about to do me euell, talked of wickednesse, & ymagined diſceate all þ daye longe. As for me, I was lyke a deafe mā & herde not: & as one þ is dōme, which doth not opē his mouth.
I became eue as a man that heareth not: and in whoſe mouth are no reproofes. For in the, O Lorde, haue I put my truſt, thou
D shalt anſwere for me, O Lord my God. I
*a haue required, þ they *a (ſuch my enemyes) ſhuld not triūphe ouer me: for whē my fote ſlypte, they reioyſed greatly againſt me. And I truly am ſet in the plage, & my heuinesse is euer in my ſyght. For I will confeſſe my wickednesse, and be ſory for my ſynne.
But myne enemyes lyue, & are myghtie: & they that hate me wrongfully, are many in nōbre. They alſo þ rewarde euell for good are agaynſt me, becauſe I folowe the thynge that good is. Forſake me not (O Lorde my God.) Be not þ farre fro me.
*b haſte the to helpe me, O Lord *b (Sauior) my ſaluacyon.

¶ The.xxxix.Pſalme.

DIXI, CVSTODIAM VIAS.

*a To the chaunter Jeduthun, *a a Pſalme of Dauid.

I ſayde: I will take hede to my wayes þ I offend not in my tonge. I will kepe my mouth (as it were wt a brīle) while þ vngodly is in my ſight. I held my tōge, & ſpake nothige. I kepte ſylēce yee, euē frō good wordes, but it was payne & greſe to me. My hert was hote within me, & whyle I was thus muſyng, the fyre kyndled: and (at the laſt) I ſpake wyth my
* Pſal.xcv.c. tonge: * Lorde, let me knowe myne ende, and the nōbre of my dayes: that I maye be certyfied howe lōge I haue to lyue. * Beholde, thou haſt made my dayes as it were a ſpāne lōge, and myne age is euen as nothing in reſpecte of the: & verely euery man lyuig is all together vanite. Selah. For man walketh in a vayne ſhadowe, and diſquieteth him ſelf in vayne: he heapeth vp riches * & can not tell who ſhall gather the.
* Luce.xii.c. And now Lord, what is my hope? truelye my hope is euen in the. Deliuer me from all myne offences, & make me not a rebuke vnto the fooliſh. I became domme, & opened not my mouth, for it was thy doynge.
Take thy plage awaye fro me: I am eue ¶ cōſumed by the meanes of thy heuye hand.
When þ wyth rebukes doſt chaſten man for ſinne, þ makeſt his bewtye to conſume awaye, like as it were a mothe fretinge a garment. Euery man therfore is but vanite. Selah. Heare my prayer, O Lord, & wt thyne eares cōſyder my callynge: holde
* Pſal.xxxix.c. not thy peace at my teares. For * I am a ſtraunger wt þ, & a ſogeourner, as all my fathers were. Oh ſpare me a lytle, that I maye recouer my ſtrēgth, before I goo hēce, and be nomore ſene.

¶ The.xl.Pſalme.

EXPECTANS EXPECTAVI.

To the chaunter, a Pſalme of Dauid.

I wayted pacyently for the Lord, & he enclyned vnto me: and hearde my calling. He brought me alſo out of the horrible pitte, out of the myer and clape, and ſett my fete vpon the roche, and ordred my goynges.
And he hath put a newe ſōge in my mouth, euen a thanckeſgeuynge vnto oure God.
Many ſhall ſe it, and feare, and ſhall put * Jere.xvii.
their truſt in the Lorde. * Bleſſed is the man, þ hath ſette hys hope in the Lorde, and turned not vnto þ proude, and to ſoch as go about wyth lyes. O Lord my God, greate are thy wonderous worckes, which thou haſt done: like as be alſo thy thoughtes which are to vs ward: and yet there is no man that *b ordreth them vnto the. Yf *b
I wolde declare them, and ſpeake of them, B
they ſhulde be moo then I am able to expreſſe. * Sacrifice and meat offeryng *Deu.xxxii.
thou woldeſt not haue, but *b myne *b *c
eares haſt thou opened: burntofferynges and ſacrifice for ſynne haſt þ not required.
Then ſayd I: Lo, I come. In þ *b volume of þ boke it is written of me, þ I ſhulde fulfyll thy will, O my God: I am content to do it: yee, thy lawe is wythin my hert.
I haue declared thy ryghtuouſneſſe in þ great cōgregacion: Lo, I will not refrayne my lippes, O Lord, & þ þ knoweſt. I haue not hyd thy ryghtuouſnes within my hert my talkynge hath bene of thy truth and of thy ſaluacion. I haue not kept backe thy louig mercy & truth frō þ greate cōgregacion. Withdrawe not þ thy mercy fro me
O Lord, let thy louige kyndneſſe and thy ¶ truth alwaye preſerue me. For innumerable troubles are come aboute me: myne ſynnes haue taken ſoche holde vpon me, þ I am not able to loke vp: yee, they are mo in nōbre then þ heeres of my head, and my hert hath fayled me. O Lorde, let it be thy pleaſure to deliuer me, make haſte (O Lorde) to helpe me. Let thē be aſhamed & D cōfoūded together, þ ſeke after my *b ſoule to deſtroye it: let thē be dryue backward & be put to rebuke, þ wiſh me euell. Let thē be deſolate & rewarded wt ſhame, þ ſaye vnto me: fye vpō þ, fye vpō þ. Let all thoſe that ſeke þ, be ioyfull and glad in the: & let ſoch as loue thy ſaluacīō, ſaye allwaye the Lorde be prayſed. As for me, I am poore & needye, but þ Lorde careth for me.
Thou art my helper and redemer: make no longe

no longe taryinge (O my God.)

¶ The.xli. Plalme.

BEATVS QVI INTELLIGIT.

To the chaunter, a Plalme of Dauid.

A BLessed is he * ỹ cõlyderyth ỹ poore (and nedy) ỹ Lorde shall delyuer hym in the tyme of trouble. The Lorde preserue hym, & kepe him alyue: ỹ he maye be blessed vpon earth, & delyuer not thou hym in to the wyll of hys enemyes. The Lord comforte hym, when he lyeth sycke vpon hys bedd: make thou all his bedd in his sickenesse.

I sayde: Lord be mercyfull vnto me, heale my soule, for I haue synned agaynst the.

B Myne enemyes speake euell of me: when shall he dye, & hys name perish? And yf he come to se me, he speaketh vanite, & his hart conceaueth falshode within him selfe: & whã he commeth forth, he telleth it. All myne enemyes whisper together agaynst me: euen agaynst me do they ymagin this euell. Let the sentence of gilty nesse proceade agaynst him: & now that he lyeth, let him ryse vp no more. Yee, euen mine awne familier frend whõ I trusted * (whych dyd also eate of my bred) hath * layed greate wayte for me,

C But be thou mercyfull vnto me (O Lord) rayse ỹ me vp agayne, and I shall rewarde them. By this I know thou fauourest me, that my enemye doth not triumphe agaynst me. And whã I am in my health, ỹ vpholdest me, and shalt set me before thy face for euer. Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel, worlde wythout ende, Amen, and Amen.

¶ The.xlij. Plalme.

QVEMADMODVM.

To the chaunter, a monicyon of the sonnes of Corath.

A LIke as ỹ hert desyreth ỹ water brookes, so longeth my soule after the (O God.) Why soule is a thurste for God, yee, euen for the lyuyng God: whe shall I come, to appeare before ỹ presence of God?

* Why teares haue bene my meate daye & nighte, whyle they daylie saye vnto me: where is now thy God? Now when I thincke there vpõ * I powre out my hert by my self: for I went with ỹ multitude, & brought thẽ forth vnto the house of God, in the voyce of prayse and thanckesgeuyng, among soch as kepe holy daye. * Why art thou so full of heuynes (O my soule) and why art thou so vnquiete within me? Put thy trust i God, for I wyll yet geue hym thãkes, for the help of hys countenaunce. Why God, my soule is vexed wythin me: therfore will I remembre the cõcernyng the * land of Jordane, and the lytle hyll of Hermonim. One depe calleth another because of the noyse of thy water pipes * all thy wanes & stormes are gone ouer me. The Lord hath graũted his louig kindnesse on ỹ daye tyme, & in the night season dyd I syng of him, & made my prayer vnto the God of my lyfe. I wyll saye vnto ỹ God of my strẽgth why hast ỹ forgotten me: why go I thus heuely, whyle the enemye oppresseth me? Why bones are smytten asunder, whyle mine enemyes * (that trouble me) cast me in ỹ tethe, Namely, whyle they saye dayly vnto me: where is now thy God? Why art ỹ so vexed (O my soule) and why art ỹ so disquieted wythin me? O put thy trust in God, for I wyll yet thanke hym whych is ỹ helpe of my countenaunce, and my God.

¶ The.xliij. Plalme.

IVDICA ME DEVS, ET.

A GEue sentẽce wt me (O God) & defende my cause agaynst ỹ vngodly people: Oh delyuer me from the disceatfull & wycked man. For ỹ art the God of my strẽgth: why hast ỹ put me from the? And why go I so heuely, whyle ỹ enemye oppresseth me? Oh send out thy lyght & thy trueth ỹ they maye leade me & bryng me vnto thy holy hyll, & to thy dwellyng. And that I maye go vnto the auiter of God, euen vnto the God of my ioye & gladnesse, & vpõ the harpe wyll I geue thankes vnto the (O God) my God. * Why art ỹ so heuy (O my soule) & why art ỹ so disquyeted wythin me? O put thy trust in God, for I will yet geue hym thankes whych is the helpe of my countenaunce, and my God. * Psal.xlij.b

¶ The.xliiij. Plalme.

DEVS AVRIBVS NOSTRIS.

To the chaunter an instruccyon of the sonnes of Corah.

A WE haue herd wt oure eares (O God) * oure fathers haue tolde vs, what thou hast done in theyr tyme of old. How thou hast dryuen out ỹ heithen wt thy hande, & planted thẽ in: how thou hast destroyed the nacions, & cast them out. * Psal.lxxix.b

* For thy gat not the lande in possessyon thorowe theyr awne swearde, nether was it theyr awne arme ỹ helped them. But thy ryght hãd, and thyne arme, and the lyght of thy coũtenaunce, because thou haddest a fauoure vnto thẽ. * Thou art my kyng (O God) sende helpe vnto Jacob. Thorow the, wyll we ouerthrowe our enemyes, & in thy name wyll we tread thẽ vnder that ryse vp agaynst vs. For I wyll not trust in my bowe, it is not my swerde that shall help me. B But it is thou that sauest vs from oure enemye, and puttest them to confusyon that hate vs. We make oure boast of God all the daye lõge, and wyll prayse thy name for euer. Sela. But now thou art farre of, and puttest vs to confusyon, and * goest not forth wyth oure armyes. * Deu.vij.a. * Psal.xcviij.a * Psal.xl.c.

Thou makest vs to turne oure backes vpon oure enemy, so that they whych hate vs, spoyle oure goodes.

Thou letteſt vs be eaten vp lyke ſheepe, & haſt ſcatred vs among the heithen. Thou ſelleſt thy people for naught, & takeſt no money for the. Thou makeſt vs to be rebuked of oure neyghbours, to be laughed to ſcorne & had in derilyon, of them yͭ are rounde about vs. *Thou makeſt vs to be a by worde amõg the heithen, & that the people ſhake their heades at vs. My confuſion is dayly before me, & yͤ ſhame of my face hath couered me. For the voyce of the ſclaunderer & blaſphemer, for the enemye & auenger.

*pſal.lxxix.a

And though all this be come vpon vs, yet do we not forgette yͤ, ner behaue oure ſelues frowardly in thy couenaunt. Oure hert is not turned backe, nether oure ſteppes gone out of thy waye. No not whan thou haſt ſmytten vs in to the place of dragons, & couered vs wyth the ſhadow of death. If we haue forgotten the name of oure God, & holde vp our hãdes to eny ſtraũg God. Shall not God ſearch it out? for he knoweth yͤ very ſecretes of the hert. *For thy ſake alſo are we kylled all the daye longe, & are cõted as ſheepe apoynted to be ſlayne. Up Lorde why ſlepeſt yͤ? A wake, & be not ablent from vs for euer. Wherfore hydeſt thou thy face, & forgetteſt oure myſery & trouble? *For our ſoule is brought lowe euẽ vnto the duſt: oure bely cleueth vnto the ground. Ariſe & helpe vs, & deliuer vs for thy mercy ſake.

*Rom.viij.f

¶ The.xliv.Pſalme.

ERVCTAVIT COR MEVM.

To hym that excelleth amonge the lylies, an inſtruccion of the chyldẽ of Corah, a ſonge of loue.

A

MY hert is endyting of a good matter I ſpeake of the thynges, whych I haue made vnto the kyng: My tong is the penne of a ready wryter. Thou art fayrer then the chyldren of men, full of grace are thy lyppes, becauſe God hath bleſſed the for euer. Gyrde the vͭ thy ſwerde vpon thy thygh (O thou moſt myghtye) accordyng to thy worſhipe & renowne. Good lucke haue thou vͭ thine honour, ryde on becauſe of the worde of treuth, of mekenelle & righteouſnes: and thy ryght hande ſhall teach the terrible thynges. Thy arowes are very ſharpe, & the people ſhalbe ſubdued vnto the, euen in the myddeſt amonge the kynges enemyes.

*Heb.i.b.

*Thy ſeate (O God) endureth for euer: the ſcepter of thy kyngdome is a ryght ſcepter: Thou haſt loued ryghteouſnelle, and hated iniquite: wherfore God (euẽ thy God) hath anoynted the wyth the oyle of gladnes aboue thy felowes. All thy garmentes ſmell of myrre, Aloes and Caſſia, out of the yuorye palaces, wher by they haue made the glad. Kynges daughters were among thy honorable wemẽ: vpon thy ryght hande dyd ſtande yͤ quene in a veſture of gold wrought about wyth dyuerſe colours. Herke (O daughter) and conſyder: enclyne thyne eare: forget alſo thine awne people, & thy fathers houſe. So ſhall the kyng haue pleaſure in thy beawty, for he is thy Lorde & (God) & worſhyp the thou hym. And yͤ daughter of Tire ſhall be there wͭ gyfte, lyke as the ryche alſo amonge the people ſhall make theyr ſupplicacyon before the. The kynges daughter is all gloryous wythin, her clothyng is of wrought golde.

B

C

D

She ſhalbe brought vnto the kyng in rayment of nedle worke: the virgins yͤ be hyr felowes, ſhall beare hir company, and ſhalbe brought vnto the. Wyth ioye & gladneſſe ſhall they be brought, & ſhall entre into the kynges palace. In ſtede of thy fathers yͤ ſhalt haue chyldren, whom thou mayeſt make prynces in all landes. I wyll remembre thy name from one generacyon to another: therfore ſhall the people geue thankes vnto the, worlde wythout ende.

¶ The.xlvi.Pſalme.

DEVS NOSTER REFVGIVM.

To the chaunter, a ſonge for the chyldren of Corah vpon Alamoth.

Yͤ

A

GOd is our hope & ſtrength: a very preſent helpe in trouble. Therfore wyll we feare, though the erth be moued, & though the hylles be caryed in yͤ myddeſt of the ſee. *Though the waters therof rage & ſwell, & though the mountaynes ſhake at yͤ tempeſt of yͤ ſame. Sela.

*pſal.xcvi.

The ryuers of the floude therof ſhall make glad yͤ cytie of God, yͤ holy place of yͤ tabernacles of yͤ moſt hyeſt. God is in yͤ myddeſt of her, therfore ſhall ſhe not be remoued: God ſhall help her, & yͤ ryght early. The heathe make moch a doo, & the kyngdomes are moued: but God hath ſhewed hys voyce, & the earth ſhall melt awaye. The Lorde of hoſtes is vͭ vs, yͤ God of Jacob is oure refuge. Sela. O come hyther, & beholde the workes of the Lorde, what deſtruccyõs he hath brought vpõ the earth. *He maketh warres to ceaſſe in all yͤ worlde: he breaketh the bowe & knappeth the ſpeare in ſonder, & burneth the charettes in yͤ fyre. Be ſtyll then & knowe that I am God: I wil be exalted amõg the heithen, and I wyll be exalted in yͤ earth. The Lorde of hoſtes is wyth vs, yͤ God of Jacob is oure defence. Sela.

B

*pſal.xlvi.

¶ The.xlvij.Pſalme.

OMNES GENTES PLAVDITE.

To the chaunter, a Pſalme for the chyldren of Corah.

O Clappe youre handes together (all ye people) O ſyng vnto God wyth the voyce of melodye. For the Lorde is hye and *to be feared, he is the great kynge vpõ all yͤ earth. He ſhall ſubdue the people vnder vs, and the nacions vnder oure fete.

A

*pſal.xlvi.

He ſhall

he shall chose out an heritage for vs: euē the worshippe of Jacob whom he loued.
Sela. God is gone vp with a merye noyse, & the Lord with the sownde of the trōpe.
O synge prayses, synge prayses vnto (our)
God: O synge prayses, synge prayses vnto
our kyng. For God is kyng of all þ earth synge ye prayses vnderstandyng. God raygneth ouer the heithē, God sytteth vpō hys holy seate. The princes of the people are ioyned vnto þ people of þ God of Abrahā: for God (which is very hye exalted) doth defende the earth, as it were with a shylde.

¶ The.xlviij. Psalme.

MAGNVS DOMINVS.

A songe of a psalme of the childrē of Corah
vpō (in the fourthe daye of ours Sabbath.)

GReate is the Lorde, & worthye to be praysed, in the cytie of oure God, euē vpon his holy hyll. The hyll of Sion is a fayre place, & the ioye
of the whole earth: vpō the north syde lyeth
the cytie of the great kyng. God is well knowne in her palaces, as a sure refuge.
For lo, the kynges (of the earth) are gathered, & gone by together. They marueled, to se
such thinges: they were astonied, and sodēly cast downe. Feare came there vpon them, & sorowe, as vpon a woman in her trauay-
le. Thou shalt breake the shyppes of þ see, thorow the east wynde. Lyke as we haue herd, so haue we sene in the cytie of the Lord of hostes, in the cytie of oure God. God vp-holdeth þ same for euer. Sela. We wayte for thy louyng kyndnesse (O God) in þ myd
dest of thy temple. (O God) accordyng vn-
to thy name, so is thy prayse vnto the worl-
des ende: thy ryght hād is full of ryghteousnes. Let the mount Sion reioyce, and the daughters of Juda be glad because of thy iudgementes. Walke about Sion, and go round about her, and tell the towres therof.
Marcke well her bulwarkes, set vp her houses, that ye maye tell them that come after. For thys God is oure God for euer & euer, he shall be oure gyde vnto death.

¶ The.xlix. Psalme.

AVDITE HAEC GENTES.

To the chaunter, a Psalme for the childzen of Corah.

HEare this, all ye people: ponder it with your eares, all ye that dwell
in the worlde. Bye and lowe, ryche and poore, one with another: My mouth shall speake of wysdome, and my hert shall muse of vnderstandyng. I wyll enclyne myne eare to the parable, and shew my darcke speach vpō
the harpe. Wherfore shulde I feare in the dayes of wyckednesse, and whē the wyckednesse of my heles cōpaseth me round about?
*There be some that put theyr in trust *1.Cal.iij.d.
their goodes, & boast thē selues in the multi- Luc.xij.c.
tude of theyr ryches. But noman maye de-lyuer hys brother, nor make agrement vnto
God for hym. *For it costeth more to re- *1.Pet.i.c. deme theyr soules, so that he must let þ alone 1.Joh.ij.a for euer. Yee, though he lyue longe, and se nat the graue. *For he seeth, that wyse *Eccle.ij.c.
men also dye, and perysshe together, as well and.xj.
as the ignorannt & folysh, and *leaue theyr *Job.xxvij.d
ryches for other. And yet they thynke, that Luc.xij.c.
theyr houses shall cōtinue for euer, and that theyr dwelling places shall endure from one generacyon to another, & call the landes after theyr awne names. Neuertheles, man wyll not abyde in honour, seyng he maye be compared vnto the beastes that perysshe: this is the waye of them. Thys is their folysh-nesse, and their posterite prayse their sayeng.
Sela. They lye in þ hell lyke shepe, death gnaweth vpō them, and the ryghteous shall haue dominacyon of them in the morynge:
theyr bewtye shall consume in the sepulchre out of theyr dwellynge. But God shall delyuer my soule from the place of hell, for he shall receaue me. Sela. Be not thou afrayed though one be made ryche, or yf the glory of hys house be increased.
*For he shall cary nothyng awaye with *Job.xxvij.d
hym when he dyeth, nether shall hys pompe
folowe hym: For whyle he lyued, he counted hymselfe an happye man: and (so lōge
as thou doest well vnto thy selfe, men wyll speake good of the. He shall folowe the ge neracyons of hys fathers, and shall neuer se lyght. Man beynge in honoure hath no vnderstandyng, but is cōpared vnto the bea
stes, that perysshe.

¶ The.l. Psalme.

DEVS DEORVM DOMINVS.

¶ A Psalme of Asaph.

THe Lorde euen the most myghtye God hath spoken, and called the worlde from the rysyng vp of the sonne vnto the goyng downe the-
rof. *Out of Syon hath *Psa.xl.a.
God apeared in perfecte bewtye.
Oure God shall come, and shall not kee-
pe sylence: there shall go before hym a consumynge fyre, and a myghtye tempest shalbe
stered vp rounde aboute hym.
He shall call the heauen from aboue, and
the earth, that he maye iudge hys people.
Gather my sayncte s together vnto me,
those that haue made a couenaunt with me,
with sacrifyce. And the heauens shall declare hys ryghteousnesse, for God is iudge
hym selfe. Sela.
Heare, O my people: and I wyll speake, I

my ſelfe will teſtifye agaynſt the, O Iſrael, for I am God, euē thy God. I wyll not reproue the because of thy ſacrifyces, or for thy burnt offrynges, because they were not all waye before me. * I wyll take no bullock out of thy house, ner he goates out of thy foldes. For all the beastes of the forest are myne, & so are the cattell vpō a thousande hylles. I knowe all the fowles vpon the mountaynes, & the wylde beastes of the feld are in my syght. If I be hongrye I wyll not tell the: for * the whole worlde is myne, and all that therin is. Thinkest thou, that I wyll eat bulles flesh and drincke the blould of goates? Offre vnto God thankesgeuynge, and paye thy vowes vnto the most hyest. And * call vpō me in ỹ tyme of trouble, so wyll I heare the, and thou shalt prayse me. But vnto the vngodly sayed God: Why dorest thou preach my lawes, & takest my couenaunt in thy mouth? Where as ỹ hatest to be refourmed, & hast cast my wordes behynd the? Whan thou sawest a theefe, thou cōsentedest vnto hym, and hast bene partaker wyth ỹ aduouterers. Thou hast let thy mouth speake wickednesse, and with thy tong thou hast set forth disceat. Thou sattest and spakest agaynst thy brother, yee, & hast sclaūdred thine awne mothers sonne. These thynges hast thou done, & I held my tonge: & thou thoughtest * (wyckedly) that I am euē soch a one as thy selfe: but I wyll reproue the, and set before the, the thinges that thou hast done. O cōsyder this, ye that forget God: lest I pluche you awaye, and there be none to delyuer you. Who so offreth me thākes and prayse, he honoureth me: and to hym that ordreth hys conuersacyon ryght wyll I shewe the saluacyon of God.

¶ The.l. Pſalme.

MISERERE MEI DEVS.

To the chaunter, a Pſalme of Dauid, whē ỹ prophet Nathā came vnto hym, after he was gone in to Bethſabe.

HAue mercy vpon me (O God) after thy * (great) goodnes: accordyng vnto ỹ multitude of thy mercyes, do awaye myne offences. Wash me thorow wyly fro my wickednesse, & clense me frō my synne. For * I knowledge my fautes, & my synne is euer before me. Agaynst the onely haue I synned, and done this euell in thy syght: * ỹ thou myghtest be iustifyed in thy sayinge, & cleare when ỹ art iudged. Beholde, I was shapen in wyckednesse, & in synne hath my mother conceaued me. But lo, thou requirest treuth in the inward partes, and shalt make me to vnderstōde wysdome secretly. Thou shalt pourge me with * hyssope, and I shall be cleane: thou shalt wash me, & I shalbe whyter then snowe. Thou shalt make me heare of ioye and gladnesse, that the bones wyche thou hast broken, maye reioyce. Turne thy face frō my synnes, & put out all my mysdedes. * Make me a cleane hert (O God) and renue a ryght spyrte wythin me. Cast me not awaye from thy presence, & take not thy holy spyrte frō me. O geue me the comforte of thy helpe agayne, & stablyssh me wyth thy free spyrte. Then shall I teach thy wayes vnto the wicked, and synners shall be conuerted vnto the. Delyuer me from bloud gyltynesse (O God) thou that art ỹ God of my health, and my tonge shall syng of thy righteousnesse. Thou shalt open my lyppes (O Lord) & my mouth shal shewe thy prayse. For thou desyrest no sacrifyce, els wolde I geue it ỹ: * but thou delytest not in burnt offerynge. The sacrifyce of God is a troubled spyrte, a broken and a contrite hert (O God) shalt thou not dessyse. O be fauorable & gracyous vnto Syon, buylde thou the walles of Ieruſalem. Then shalt thou be pleased wyth ỹ * sacrifyce of ryghteousnesse, wyth the burnt offerynges & oblacions: then shall they offre yonge bullockes vpon thyne aulter.

¶ The.lij. Pſalme.

QVID GLORIARIS IN MALITIA.

To the chaunter, an instructyō of Dauid, when Doeg the Edomyte came to Saul, and shewed him, sayinge: Dauid is come to the house Ahymelech.

WHy boastest thou thy self, thou Tyraunt, that thou canst do myschefe? Where as ỹ goodnesse of God endureth yet daylie. Thy tōge ymagineth wyckednesse, & wyth lyes thou cuttest lyke a sharpe rasoure. Thou hast loued vngracyousnesse more then goodnes, & to talke of lyes more then ryghteousnesse. Sela. Thou hast loued to speake all wordes that maye do hurt, O thou false tonge. Therfore shall God destroye the for euer: he shall take ỹ & pluche ỹ out of thy dwellyng, & rote the out of the lād of the lyuing. Sela. The righteous also shall se this, & feare, & shall laugh him to scorne. Lo, this is ỹ mā, that toke not God for hys strēgth, but * trusted vnto the multitude of his ryches, & stregthed hym selfe in his wickednesse. As for me, I am lyke a grene olyue tre i the house of God: my trust is in the tender mercy of God for euer & euer. I wyll alwaye geue thankes vnto the, for ỹ ỹ hast done: & I wyll hope in thy name, for thy saynctes lyke it well.

¶ The.liij. Pſalme.

DIXIT INCIPIENS.

To the chaunter vpon Mahalath, an instructyon of Dauid.

THe * foolysh bodye hath sayed in hys hert: there is no God. Corrupte are they, & become abhominable in their wickednesse: * there is none that doth good.

God

God loked downe from heauen vpon the childzen of men, to ſe yf there were eny that wolde vnderſtande, and ſeke after God.

But they are all gone oute of the waye,
they are all togetther become abhomynable:
there is alſo none that doth good, no not one.
Are not they without vnderſtandynge that wozche wickednes, eating vp my people as yf they wolde eate bread? they haue not called vpō God. They were afraied, where no feare was: foz God hath bzoke the bones
of hym that beſeged the: thou haſt put them
to confuſion, becauſe God hath deſpyſed the.

Oh that the ſaluacyon were geuen vnto
Iſrael out of Sion: Oh that the Lozde wold
delyuer hys people out of captiuyte.

Then ſhulde Jacob reioyſe, and Iſraell ſhulde be ryght glad.

¶ The.liiij. Pſalme.

DEVS IN NOMINE TVO.

To the chaunter in melodyes, an inſtruc
cyon of Dauid, when the zephites came and ſayde vnto Saull: hath not Dauid
hyd hym ſelfe amongeſt vs?

SAue me, O God, foz thy names ſake, and auēge me in thy ſtrēgth.
Heare my prayer, O God, & herken vnto ỹ wozdes of my mouth.

Foz ſtraungers are ryſen vp againſt me,
and tyzauntes (whych haue not God befoze their eyes) ſeke after my ſoule. Sela.

Beholde, God is my helper, the Lozde is
with them that vpholde my ſoule.

He ſhall rewarde euell vnto myne ene-
myes: deſtroye thou them in thy treuth.

An offeryng of a fre hert will I geue the,
and prayſe thy name (O Lozd) becauſe it is ſo cōfoztable. Foz he hath delyuered me out of all my trouble, and myne eye hath ſene
his deſyze vpon myne enemyes.

¶ The.lv. Pſalme.

EXAVDI DEVS.

To the chaunter in melodyes, an in-ſtruccyon of Dauid.

HEare my prayer (O God) and hide
not thy ſelfe fro my petition. Take hede vnto me, & heare me, how I mourne in my prayer, & am ve-
red. The enemy cryeth ſo, and the vngod-ly cometh on ſo faſt: foz they are mynded to do me ſome miſchefe, ſo maliciouſly are they ſette agaynſt me. Wyth hert is dyſquyeted within me, and the feare of death is fallen vpon me. Fearfulnes and trembling are come vpon me, and an hozryble dzede hath ouerwhelmed me. And I ſayd: O that I had winges like a doue, foz then wold I flie awaye, and be at reſte. Lo, then wolde I gett me awaye farre of, and remayne in the wilderneſs. Sela. I wolde make haſt to eſcape, becauſe of the ſtozmy wynd and tempeſte. Deſtroye they? tonges (O Lozde)
and * deuide them, foz I haue ſpyed vnrighteouſnes and ſtryfe in the cyte. Daye and night go they about within the walles ther-
of: myſchefe alſo, and ſozow are in the myd-deſt of it. Wyckednes is therin, dyſceate, and gyle go not out of her ſtretes. Foz it is not an opē enempe that hath done me thys diſhonoure: foz then I coulde haue bozne it:
nether was it myne aduerſary, that did ma-
gnifye hym ſelfe agaynſt me: foz then wold (perauenture) I wolde haue hyd my ſelfe frō hym.

But it was euen thou my companion:
my gyde, and myne awne familyer frende.

We toke ſwete councell togetther, & walked in the houſe of God as frendes. Lett death come haſtely vpon them, and let them go downe quyck into hell, foz wyckednes is in they? dwellynges, and amonge them.

As foz me, I will call vnto God, and the Lozde ſhall ſaue me. In the euening, and moznynge and at noone daye wyll I praye, (and that inſtantlly) and he ſhall heare my voyce. It is he ỹ hath delyuered my ſoule in peace, from the batayll that was agaynſt me: foz there were many with me. Yee, euen God that endureth foz euer, ſhall heare
me, and bzyng them downe. Sela. Foz they wyll not turne, ner feare God. He layed hys handes vpon ſoch as be at peace w hym, and he bzake hys couenaunt. The wozdes of hys mouth were ſofter then butter, hauynge warre in his hert: hys wozdes were ſmother then oyle, and yet be they very ſwearedes. * O caſt thy buerthen, vpon the Lozde and he ſhall nozyſh the, and not ſuffre
the ryghteous to fall foz euer. And as foz them, thou (O God) ſhalt bzynge them into the pyt of deſtruccyon. The blonde thzu-ſty and diſceatful mē ſhall not lyue out halfe
they? dayes. Neuertheleſſe, my truſt ſhal-be in the (O Lozde.)

¶ The.lvj. Pſalme.

MISERERE MEI DEVS QVONIAM.

To the chaunter vpon the doue of him
that was domme in a farre countreye: the badg (oz armes) of Dauid, when the Philiſtines toke hym in Geth.

BE mercyfull vnto me (O God) foz A man goeth about to deuoure me: he is dayly fyghtynge and troublyng
me. Myne enemyes are dayly in hande to ſwalowe me vp: foz they be many
that fyght agaynſt me, o thou moſt hyeſt.

Neuertheleſſe, though I am ſome tyme a fraied yet put I my truſt in the. I wyll prayſe God, becauſe of hys wozde, I haue put my truſt in God, & wyll not feare, what fleſh can do vnto me. They dayly miſtake
my wozdes: all that they ymagyne is to do me euell. They holde all togetther, & kepe
the ſelues cloſe: & marche my ſteppes, whan
they laye wayte foz my ſoule.

Shall they escape for their wickednes? thou (O God) in thy displeasure shalt cast thē downe. Thou tellest my flyttynges, put my teares in thy botell: are not these thinges noted in thy booke? When soeuer I call vpon the, then shal myne enemies be put to flyght: thys I knowe, for God is on my syde. In Gods wordes wyll I reioyse, in the Lordes worde wyll I comforte me.

Yee, in God haue I put my trust, I wyll not be afrayed what man can do vnto me.

*Vnto the (O God) wyl I paye my vowes, vnto the wyll I geue thankes. For *thou hast deliuered my soule from death, and my fete from falling, that I maye walke before God in the lyght of the lyuynge.

¶The.lvij.Psalme.

MISERERE MEI DEVS MISERERE.

To the chaunter, destroye not: The badges or armes of Dauid, when he fled from Saul into the caue.

BE mercyfull vnto me (O God) be mercyfull vnto me, for my soule trusteth in the: And *vnder the shadowe of thy wynges shalbe my refuge vntyll this tyrannye be ouer past. I wil cal vnto the most hye God, euen to the God that shall perfourme the cause which I haue in hande. He shall sende from heauē, and saue me from the reproche of hym that wold eate me vp. Sela. God shall sende forth hys mercy & treuth. My soule is among lyons and I lye euen amonge the chyldren of men (that are sett on fyre) whose tethe are speares and arowes, and their tonge a sherp swearde. Sett vp thy self (O God, aboue the heauens, and thy glorye aboue all the earth. They haue layed a nett for my fete, and pressed downe my soule: they haue dygged a pytt before me, and are fallen into the *myddes of it themselues. Sela. *My herte is fyxed (O God) my herte is fyxed: I wyll synge and geue prayse. Awake, O my glory, awake lute and harpe, I my selfe wyll awake ryght early. I wyll geue thankes vnto the (O Lorde) amōg the people, and I wyll synge vnto the amonge the nacyons. *For the greatnes of thy mercy reacheth vnto the heauēs, and thy treuth vnto the cloudes. Sett vp thy selfe (O God) aboue the heauens, & thy glory aboue all the earth.

¶The.lviii.Psalme.

SI VERE VTIQVE IVSTICIAM.

To the chaunter Destroye not. The badge or armes of Dauid.

ARe your myndes sett vpon ryghteousnes, O ye congregacyon? And do ye iudge the thyng that is right O ye sonnes of men? Yee, ye ymagyn mischef in your hert vpō the earth, and youre handes deale with wickednesse.

The vngodly are frowarde, euen from their mothers wōbe: as soone as they be borne, they goa straye and speake lyes. They are as venymous as the poyson of a serpent, euen lyke the deaf Ader that *stoppeth her eares. Which refuseth to heare the voyce of the charmer, charme he neuer so wisely.

Breake they? teth (O God) in their mouthes, smyte the chawe bones of the lyons (O Lorde:) Let them fall awaye lyke water that runneth a pace: & when they shote they? arowes, lett them be roted out.

Let them consume awaye lyke a snayle, and be lyke the vntimely frute of a woman, and let them not se the sonne. Or euer your pottes be made whot with thornes: so let indygnacyon vexe hym, euen as a thynge that is rawe. *The ryghteous shall reioyse when he seyth the vengeaunce: he shal wash hys fote stepes in the bloude of the vngodly.

So that a man shall saye: verely there is a rewarde for the ryghteous: doutles, there is a God that iudgeth in the earth.

¶The.lix.Psalme.

ERIPE ME DE INIMICIS.

To the chaūter: destroye not. The badge or arme of Dauid, when Saul sent and they dyd watch the house to kyll hym.

DElyuer me from my enemyes (O God) defende me from them that ryse vp agaynst me. O delyuer me fro the wycked doers, and saue me from the bloudthursty men. For lo, they lye waytynge for my soule: the myghty men are gathered together against me without any offence or faute of me (O Lord.)

They runne and prepare thē selues without my faute: Aryse, thou therfore to helpe me, and beholde. Stande vp (O Lorde God of hoostes) thou God of Israel to vysett all heathen: and be not mercyful vnto thē that offende of malycyous wickednesse.

Sela. They go to and fro in the euenynge, they grenne lyke a dogg, and runne aboute, thorow the cytie. Behold, they speake with they? mouth, and swearde are in they? lyppes, for who doth heare?

But thou (O Lorde) *shalt haue them in derysion, and thou shalt laugh all heathen to scorne. My strength wyll I ascrybe vnto the, for thou art the God of my refuge.

God sheweth me his goodnesse plenteously, and God shall lett me se my desyre vpon myne enemyes. Slaye them not, lest my people forgett it: but scatre them abroade among thy people, and put them downe (O Lorde) our defence. For the synne of their mouth, and for the wordes of they? lyppes they shalbe taken in they? pryde, and why? they? preachynge is of curssynge and lyes.

Consume them in thy wrath, consume them that

them that they maye periſh, and knowe that it is God, which ruleth in Jacob and vnto ꝑ endes of the worlde. Sela. And in the euenynge they will returne: grenne lyke a dogg and wyll go aboute the cytie. They wyll runne here and there for meate, and grudge yf they be not ſatiſfyed. Is for me, I wil ſynge of thy power, and will prayſe thy mercy by tymes in the mornynge: for thou haſt bene my defence & refuge in the daye of my trouble. Vnto the, O my ſtrength, will I ſynge, for thou, O God, art my refuge and my mercyfull God.

¶The.lx.Pſalme.

DEVS REPVLISTI NOS.

To the chaunter, vpō the roſe of witnes, the badge or armes of Dauid, for to teache: when he fought agaynſt Meſopotamia, and Syria of Soba: and when Joab turned backe, and ſlue twelue thouſande Edomytes, in the ſalt valley.

A God, thou that haſt caſt vs out and ſcattered vs abroade: thou haſt alſo bene diſpleaſed, O turne the vnto vs agayne. Thou haſt moued the land and deuyded it, heale the ſores therof, for it ſhaketh. Thou haſt ſhewed thy people heuy thynges, * thou haſt geuē vs a dryncke of deedlye wyne. Thou haſt geuen a token for ſuch as feare the, that they maye triumphe becauſe of the treuth.

Sela Therfore were thy beloued deliuered, helpe me with thy ryght hande, and heare me. * God hath ſpoken in hys holyneſſe. I will reioyce and deuyde Sychem, and mete oute the valley of Suchoth.

Gilead is myne, and Manaſſes is myne: Ephraim alſo is the ſtrēgth of my head, Juda is my lawe geuer. Moab is my waſhpotte, ouer Edom wyll I caſt out my ſhoo. ¶ Philyſtea be thou glad of me. Who wyll leade me into the ſtronge cytie? Who wyll brynge me into Edom? Haſt thou not caſt vs out (O God) wylt not thou (o God) * go oute with oure hooſtes? O be thou oure helpe in trouble, for vayne is the helpe of man. Thorow God we ſhall do great actes, for it is he that ſhal treade downe our enemyes.

¶The.lxj.Pſalme.

EXAVDI DEVS DEPRECA.

To the chaunter in the melodies of Dauid.

A Eare my cryeng (O God) geue eare vnto my prayer. From the endes of the earth will I call vnto the, when my hert is in heuynes: Oh ſett me vp vpon the rocke ꝑ is hyer then I. For thou haſt bene my hope, and a ſtrong tower for me againſt the enemye. I wyll dwell in thy tabernacle for euer, & my truſt ſhalbe vnder ꝑ couering of thy wynges Sela. For ꝑ, O Lord, haſt herde my deſyres, and haſt geuen an heritage vnto thoſe that feare thy name.

Thou ſhalt graūt the kyng a longe lyfe, that hys yeares may endure thorow out all generacīōs. He ſhall dwell before God for euer: O prepare thy louynge mercy & faythfulnes ꝑ they may preſerue him. So will I all waye ſynge prayſe vnto thy name, * ꝑ I maye dayly perfourme my vowes. * Pſal.lxj.b

¶The.lxij.Pſalme.

NONNE DEO SVBIECTA.

To the chaunter, For Jeduthun: a pſalme of Dauid.

M Y ſoule truly wayteth ſtyll vpon God, for of him cometh my ſaluacion. He verely is my ſtrength, and my ſaluacion: he is my defence, ſo that I ſhall not greatly fall. A

How lōge will ye ymagin miſchefe againſt euery mā? ye ſhalbe ſlayne all ꝑ ſorte of you: yee, as a tottring wall ſhall ye be, and lyke a broken hedge. Their deuyce is onely how to put him out whom God wyll exalte. their delyte is in lyes: they gene good wordes wt their mouth, but curſe wt their hert. Sela.

Neuertheles, my ſoule wayte thou ſtyll vpon God, for my hope is in hym. He truly is my ſtrēgth, and my ſaluacion: he is my defence: ſo that I ſhall not fall. In God is my health & my glory, ꝑ rocke of my might, & in God is my truſt. O put your truſt in him all waye (ye people) * powre out youre hertes before him, for God is our hope. B * 1.Reg.i.c Pſal.xlvi.a

Sela As for the children of men, they are but vayne, the childrē of men are diſceatful: vpon ꝑ weyghtes they are all together lyghter than vanite it ſelf. O truſt not in wrōg and robbery, geue not your ſelues vnto vanyte: yf riches encreaſe, ſet not your hert vpō them. God ſpake once and twyſe: I haue alſo herde the ſame: that power belōgeth vnto God. And that thou Lorde art mercyfull: for * thou rewardeſt euery man accordynge to hys worcke. * pſal.xviii.c Math.xvj.d

¶The.lxiij.Pſalme.

DEVS DEVS MEVS.

A pſalme of Dauid, when he was in the wildernes of Juda.

O God, thou art my God, early wil I ſeke the. My ſoule thyrſteth for the: my fleſh alſo longeth after the i a baren and drye lande, where no water is. Thus haue I loked for the in holyneſſe that I myght beholde thy power and glory. For thy louing kindnes is better then thy lyfe it ſelfe: my lippes ſhal prayſe the. Is longe as I lyue will I magnyfye the on this maner, and lyft vp my hādes in thy name. My ſoule ſhalbe ſatiſfyed euen as it were with mary and fatneſſe, whē my mouth prayſeth the with ioyfull lyppes. B

Haue I not remembred the in my bedd, &

¶ thought vpon the, whan I was wakynge/
Because thou hast bene my helper, therfore vnder the shadowe of thy wynges will I reioyse. My soule hangeth vpō the, thy ryght hand hath vpholden me. These also that seke the hurt of my soule, they shal go vnder the earth. Lett them fall vpon the edge of the sweard, that they maye be a porcyon for foxes. But the kyng shall reioyse in God: * all they also that sweare by him shalbe commended, for the mouth of them ỹ speake lyes, shalbe stopped.

¶ The.lxiij. Psalme.

EXAVDI DEVS ORATIONEM.

To the chaunter, a psalme of Dauid.

HEare my voyce (O God) in my prayer preserue my lyfe frō feare of the enemye. Hyde me from the gathering together of the frowarde, & from the insurrection of wicked doers. Which haue whett their tonge lyke a sweard, & shote out their arowes, euen bytter wordes. That they maye preuely shote at him which is perfecte: sodenly do they hit him & feare not. They courage them selues in myschefe, ād cōmune amonge thē selues, how they maye laye snares: and saye, that no man shall se them.

They ymagin wickednes, & practyse it ỹ they hepe secrete amonge them selues, euery man in the depe of his hert. But God shal sodenly shote at them with a swift arowe, ỹ they shalbe woūded. Yee, their awne tōges shall make them fall, in so moch that who so seeth them, shall laugh them to scorne.

And all mē that se it, shall saye: this hath God done, for they shall perceaue that it is hys worcke. The righteous shall reioyse in the Lord, and put his trust in hym: and all they that are true of herte, shalbe glad.

¶ The.lxv. Psalme.

TE DECET HIMNVS.

To the chaūter, a Psalme & songe of Dauid.

THou (O God) art prayse'd in Sion, & vnto ỹ shal the vowe be performed. (Or, in Hierusalem.) Thou that heareste the prayer: vnto ỹ shall all flesh come. My mysdedes preuayle agaynst me: Oh be thou mercyfull vnto our sinnes. Blessed is the man whom thou chosest and receaueste vnto the: he shal dwell in thy court: and shalbe satisfyed with the pleasures of thy house, euen of thy holy temple. Thou shalt shewe vs wonderfull thynges in ryghteousnesse (O God) of our saluacion: thou that art the hope of al the endes of the earth, and of them that remayne in the broade see/ Which in hys strength setteth fast the mountaynes, and is gyrded about with power. Which stilleth the ragyng of the see, & the noyse of hys wanes, and the madnes of the people. They also that dwel in ỹ vttermooste partes (of the earth) shalbe afrayed at thy tokens, thou ỹ makest the & ỹ out goinges of the morynge and euenyng to prayse the. Thou visitest the earth, and blessest it: thou makest it very plenteous. The ryuer of God is full of watez, thou prepareste their cozne: foz so thou prouydest foz the earthe. Thou watereste her forowes, thou sendest rayne into the litle valleys therof: thou makest it soft with the droppes of rayne, and blessed the increase of it. Thou crownest the yeare w̄ thy goodnesse: & thy cloudes droppe fatnesse. They shall droppe vpon the dwellynges of ỹ wildernesse: and the lytle hylles shall reioyse on euery syde. The foldes shalbe full of shepe, the valleys also shall stande so thycke w̄ cozne, that they shall laugh and synge.

¶ The.lxvj. Psalme.

IVBILATE DEO.

To the chaunter, The songe of a Psalme.

* BE ioyfull in God, all ye landes, synge prayses vnto the honoure of hys name, make hys prayse to be glorious. Saye vnto God: O how wonderfull art thou in thy worckes: thorow the greatnes of thy power shal thyne enemies be fōde lyers vnto the. For all the worlde shall worshipe the, synge of the, & prayse thy name. Sela. O come hither & behold ỹ worckes of God, how wonderfull he is in his doynge toward the chyldren of men. * He turned the see into drye land, + so ỹ they wēte thorow the water on fote: there did we reioyse therof. He ruleth with hys power for euer, his eyes beholde the people: and soch as will not beleue, shall not be able to exalte thē selues. Sela. O prayse our God (ye people) and make the voyce of hys prayse to be heard. Which holdeth our soule in lyfe, & suffreth not our fete to slyp. For thou (O God) hast proued vs: ỹ also hast tryed vs like as siluer is tryed. Thou broughtest vs into the snare, and layed trouble vpon oure loynes. Thou suffredest men to ryde ouer our heades, * we went thorow fyre & water and thou broughtest vs out into a welthye place. I wyll go into thy house with brēt offrynges, and wyll * paye the my vowes, which I promysed with my lyppes, & spake with my mouth, when I was in trouble.

I will offre vnto the, fat brent sacrifyces with the incense of rammes, I wil offre bullockes and goates. Sela. O come hyther and herken, all ye that feare God: & I wyll tell you, what he hath done for my soule.

I called vnto him w̄ my mouth, and gaue him prayses w̄ my tōge. If I enclyne vnto wickednes with my hert, the Lorde wyll not heare me. But God hath hearde me, and consydred the voyce of my prayer.

Praysed be God which hath not cast out my prayer, ner turned his mercy fro me.

¶ The

¶The.lxvij.Psalme.

DEVS MISEREATVR NOSTRI.

To the chaunter, in melodyes: a Psalme and songe.

GOd * be mercyfull vnto vs, & bles vs, and shewe vs the lyght of hys countenaūce. Sela. (and be mercyfull vnto vs) That thy waye maye be knowne vpon earth, thy saluynge health amonge all nacions. Let the people prayse the, O God, yee, let all people prayse the.

O let the naciōs reioyse and be glad, For thou shalt iudge the folke ryghteously, and gouerne the nacions vpō earth. Sela. Let the people prayse the, O God, let all people prayse the. Then shal the erth bring forth hyr increase, and God, euen ourr awne God shall geue vs hys blessynge. God shall bless vs, and all the endes of the worlde shal feare hym.

¶The.lxviij.Psalme.

EXVRGAT DEVS.

To the chaunter, a Psalme and songe of Dauid.

ARet * God aryse, ād let his enemies be scattered: let them also that hate him, flye before him. Like as the smoke vanysheth, so shalt ꝑ driue thē awaye: and lyke as waxe melteth at the fyre: so let the vngodly perysh at the presence of God. But let the ryghteous be glad & reioyse before God: let thē also be mery and ioyfull. Oh synge vnto God, and synge prayses vnto his name: magnyfie him that rydeth vpō the heauēs as it were vpō a horse: prayse ye him & in his name Jas reioyse before him. * He is a father of ꝑ fatherlesse, and defendeth the cause of wyddowes: euen God in his holy habitacion. He is the God that maketh men to be of one mynde in a house, and bryngeth the presoners out of captiuyte, but letteth the rennagates contynue in scarcenesse. O God, when * thou wentest forth before the people, when thou wentest thorow the wyldernesse. Sela.

The earth shoke, and the heauens dropped at the presence of God, euen as Sinai also was moued at ꝑ presence of God, which is the God of Jsrael. Thou O God sendedst a gracyous rayne vpon thyne enheritaunce, and refreshedst it, whē it was weerye. Thy congregacyon shall dwell therin: For thou (O God) hast of thy goodnesse prepared for the poore. The Lorde gaue ꝑ worde: & greate was the company of the preachers. * Kynges with theyr armyes dyd flye, and were discomfited, and they of ꝑ houshold deuyded the spoyle. & Though ye haue lyen amonge ꝑ potters, yet shall ye be as ꝑ wynges of a doue that is couered with syluer wynges, and hir fethers lyke golde.

When the Almyghty scatred kynges for their sake, thē were they as white as snowe in zalmō. As ꝑ hyll of Basan so is Gods hyll: euen a hye hill as the hyll of Basan.

Why hoppe ye so & ye hye hylles? Thys is Gods hill, in the which it pleaseth him to dwell: yee, the Lorde will abyde in it for euer. The charettes of God are twētie thousande, euen thousandes of angels, ād the Lord is amonge them as in the holy place of Sinai. * Thou art gone vpan hye, thou hast led captiuitye captiue, and receaued gyftes for men. Yee, euen for thyne enemies, that the Lorde God myght dwell amonge thē. Praysed be the Lorde dayly, euen the God which helpeth vs, and poureth his benefytes vpon vs. Sela. He is oure God, euen the God of whō commeth saluacion: God is the Lorde by whom we escape death. God shall wounde the heade of his enemies, and the hearie scalpe of soch one as goeth on still in his wickednes. The Lord hath sayde: I will bringe my people agayne as I dyd from Basan: myne owne wyll I bringe agayne as I dyd somtyme from the depe of the see. That thy fote may be dipped in the bloude of thyne enemyes, ād that the tōg of thy dogges maye be redd thorow the same. It is well seue, O God, how thou goest, how ꝑ my God and kynge goest in the Sanctuary. The syngers go before, the mynstrels folow after: in ꝑ mydes are the damosels playeng with ꝑ tymbrels.

Geue thākes O Jsrael, vnto God ꝑ Lorde in the congregacions from the grounde of the hart. There is lytle Ben Jamin their ruler: and the Princes of Juda, their counsell: the Princes of zabulon, and the Prynces of Nephthali. Thy God hath sent forth strength for the, stablyshe the thing, O God, that thou hast wrought in vs. For thy temples sake at Jerusalem: so shall kynges bringe presentes vnto the. & Whan the company of the speare men and multytude of the mightye are scatred abroade amonge the beastes of the people (so that they humbly bring peces of syluer) and whā he hath scatred ꝑ people that delyte warre. Then shall the Princes come out of Egypte, the Morians land shall soone stretch out her hādes vnto God. Synge vnto God, O ye kyngdomes of ꝑ earth: O synge prayses vnto the Lord. Sela. Which sytteth in the heauens ouer all from the begynnynge: Lo, he doth sende out hys voyce, yee, and that a myghtie voyce. Ascribe ye ꝑ power vnto God, ouer Jsrael: his worshypp & strēgth is in the cloudes. O God, wonderfull art thou in thy holy places: euen the God of Jsrael, he will geue strength and power vnto his people. Blessed be God.

¶The.lxix.pſalme.

SALVVM ME FAC DEVS.

To the chaunter vpon ☞ Do-ſamm of Dauid.

A
SAue me, O God, for the waters
are come in euen vnto my ſoule
I ſticke faſt in ꝑ depe myre, where no grounde is: I am come to depe
waters, ſo that the floudes renne
ouer me. I am wery of crying, my throte is dre, my ſight faileth me, for waytinge ſo
* pſa.xxxv.c. Ioh.xv.b. long vpō my God. They ꝑ *hate me with out a cauſe, are mo then ꝑ heeres of my head:
they that are myne enemies & wolde deſtroie ☞ me giltleſſe are mighte: ☞ I payed them
the thinges that I neuer toke. God, thou B knoweſt my ſimpleneſſe, and my faultes are not hid from the. Let not the that truſt in ꝑ, O Lord God of hooſtes be aſhamed for my cauſe: let not thoſe that ſeke the, be confounded thorowe me, O God of Iſraeli.
And why? for thy ſake haue I ſuffred re-proſe, ſhame hath couered my face. I am become a ſtraūger vnto my brethre: euen an a-* Iohn.ii.b. leaūt vnto my mothers childre. For *ꝑ zele of thyne houſe hath euen eaten me, and
* Rom.xv.c. *the rebukes of the that rebuked the are fal-C len vpon me. I wepte and chaſtened my ſelfe with faſtynge, and that was turned to my reproſe. I put on a ſacke cloth alſo, &
they ieſted vpon me. They that ſitte in ꝑ gate, ſpeake agaynſt me, and the bronchar-
* Iob.xxx.b. Dan.xii.g. des *make ſonges vpon me. But Lorde
I make my prayer vnto the in acceptable
tyme. heare me, O God, in ꝑ multitude of thy mercy, euen in the trueth of thy ſalua-
D cion. Take me out of the myre, ꝑ I ſincke not. Oh let me be deliuered from them that hate me, and out of the depe waters. Let not the water floud drowne me: nether let ꝑ
depe ſwalowe me vp, and let not the pytte
ſhut her mouth vpon me. heare me, O Lorde, for thy louyng kyndneſſe is cōfortable: turne the vnto me accordynge vnto the multitude of thy mercies. And hyde not thy face from thy ſeruaūt, for I am in trouble: O haſte the, and here me. Drawe nye
E vnto my ſoule, and ſaue it: Oh delyuer me becauſe of myne enemies. Thou haſt knowen my reproſe, my ſhame and my dyſho-
nour: myne aduerſaries are all in thy ſyght.
The rebuke hath broken my herte, I am
full of heuynes: I loked for ſome to haue pi-tye vpon me, but there was no man: nether
* mat.xxvii.d Ioh.xix.d. founde I anye to cōforte me. *They gaue me gall to eate, & when I was thyrſty, they † Rom.xi.b. gaue me vineger to drinke. †Let their table be made a ſnare to take them ſelues with all, and let the thinges (that ſhuld haue bene for their welth) be vnto them an occaſion of fallinge. Let their eyes be blinded, ꝑ they ſe not: and euer bowe ꝑ downe their backes.
Powre out thyne indignacion vpon the,
and let thy wrathfull diſpleaſure take holde
of them. * Let their habitacion be voyde and no man to dwell in their tentes. For they perſecute hym whom thou haſt ſmytē, & they talke how they maye vexe the whom thou haſt wounded. Let them fall frō one wyckednelle to another, and not come into thy ryghteouſnelle. * Let them be wyped
out of the boke of the lyuyng, & not be wrytten amōg the ryghteous. As for me, whā
I am poore and in heuyneſſe, thy helpe (O God) ſhall lyfte me vp. I wyll prayſe the name of God with a ſonge, and magnifye it wt thankeſgeuing. This alſo ſhall pleaſe the Lorde better then a bullocke, that hath hornes and hooffes. The hūble ſhal conſyder this, and be glad: ſeke ye after God, & ꝑ poure ſoule ſhall lyue. For the Lord heareth the poore, and deſpyſeth not ☞ his pri-ſoners. Let heauē and earth prayſe hym, the ſee & all that moueth therin. For God will ſaue Syon, and buylde the cyties of Iu da, that men may dwell there, and haue it in poſſeſſion. The poſterite alſo of his ſeruauntes ſhall inheret it: & they that loue hys
name, ſhall dwell therin.

¶The.lxx.Pſalme.

DEVS IN ADIVTORIVM.

To the chaunter of Dauid to bringe to re-membraunce. (becauſe the Lorde ſaued me.)

H HAſte ꝑ, O God, to delyuer me: make haſte to helpe me, O Lorde.
* Let them be ſhamed and confounded that ſeke after my ſoule:
let them be turned backwarde, & put to con-fuſion, that wyſhe me euyll. Let them (for their rewarde) be ſoone brought to ſhame, that crye ouer me: there, there. But let all thoſe that ſeke the, be ioyfull and glad in the:
and let all ſuch as delyte in thy ſaluacyon,
ſaye alwaye: the Lorde be prayſed.
As for me, I am poore and in miſery, haſte the vnto me (O God.) Thou art my helpe, and my redemer: O Lorde, make no longe tarynge.

¶The.lxxi.Pſalme.

IN TE DOMINE SPERAVI.

I
IN the * O Lord, haue I put my truſt
let me neuer be put to confuſyon, but ryddе me, and delyuer me in thy righteouſnelle: enclyne thyne eare vnto me, and ſaue me. Be thou my ſtrōg holde (where vnto I maye all waye reſorte) thou haſt pro
myſed to helpe me: for thou art my houſe of defence & my caſtell. Delyuer me, O my God, out of the hand of the vngodly, out of the hande of the vnrighteous and cruell mā.
For thou, O Lorde God, art the thynge
that

that I longe for, thou art my hope euen fro my youth. Therow the haue I bene holden vp euer ſence I was borne * thou art he that toke me out of my mothers wombe, my prayſe ſhalbe all waye of the. I am become as it were a monſter vnto many: but my ſure truſt is in the. Oh let my mouth be fylled with thy prayſe (that I maye ſynge of thy glory) and honour all the daye longe.

Caſt me not awaye in the tyme of age, forſake me not whē my ſtrength fayleth me.

For myne enemies ſpeake agaynſt me: & they that laye wayte for my ſoule, take their councell together, ſayenge: God hath forſaken hym, perſecute hym, and take hym, for there is none to deliuer him. Go not farre fro me, O God: my God, haſte the to helpe me. Let them be cōfounded and peryſhe, that are agaynſt my ſoule: let them be couered with ſhame and dyſhonoure, that ſeke to do me euell. As for me, I wyll pacyently abyde all waye, and will prayſe the more ād more. Myp mouth ſhall daylie ſpeake of thy righteouſneſſe & ſaluacion, for I knowe no ende therof. I will go forthi ſ̄ ſtrēgth of the Lord God, & will make mēcion of thy righteouſneſſe onely. Thou, O God, haſt taught me fro my youth vp vntill now, therfore will I tell of thy wondrous worckes.

Forſake me not, O God, in myne olde age, when I am gray headed: vntyll I haue ſhewed thy * ſtrength vnto this generacīō, and thy power to all them that are yet for to come. Thy righteouſnes (O God) is very hie, and great thynges are they ſ̄ thou haſt done: O God, who is lyke vnto the?

O what greate troubles and aduerſyties haſt thou ſhewed me, ād yet dideſt thou turne and refreſhe me: yee, and brought me from the depe of the earth (agayne) me. Thou haſt brought me * to great honour and comforted me on euery ſyde. Therfore will I prayſe the and thy faythfulneſſe, O God, playinge vpon an inſtrumēt of muſick, vnto the wyll I ſynge vpon the harpe, O thou holy one of Iſraell. Myp lyppes wyl be fayne, whan I ſynge vnto the: and ſo will my ſoule whom thou haſt deliuered.

Myp tonge alſo ſhall talke of thy rygh-teouſneſſe all the daye longe, for they are cōfounded and brought vnto ſhame, that ſeke to do me euell.

¶ The.lxxij.Pſalme.

DEVS IVDICIVM TVVM.

(A Pſalme) For Salomon.

GIue the kynge thy iudgementes (O God) and thy righteouſneſſe vnto the kynges ſonne. Then ſhall he iudge thy people * accordinge vnto right, and defende the poore. The mountaynes alſo ſhall bringe peace, and the lytle hilles righteouſneſſe vnto the people. He ſhall kepe the ſymple folke by their ryght, defende the chyldren of the poore, and punyſh the wrōge doer. They ſhall feare the as long * as ſ̄ ſonne and mone endureth, from one generacion to another. He ſhall come downe like the rayne into a fleſe of wolle, euen as the droppes that water ſ̄ earth. In his tyme ſhall the ryghteous florith, yee, and abundaunce of peace, ſo longe as the mone endureth, * his dominō ſhalbe alſo from the one ſee to the other, and from the floud vnto the worldes ende. They that dwell in the wildernes ſhall knele before hi, & his enemies ſhall licke the duſt. * The kynges of Tharſis and of the Iles ſhall geue preſentes, the kynges of Araby and Saba ſhall bring gyftes. All kinges ſhal fall downe before him: all nacions ſhall do him ſeruice.

For he ſhall delyuer the poore when he cryeth: the neady alſo and him that hath no helper. He ſhalbe fauorable to the ſimple and neady: and ſhall preſerue the ſoules of the poore. He ſhall delyuer their ſoules frō falſhede and wrōge, and deare ſhall their blond be in his ſyght. He ſhall lyue, & vnto him ſhalbe geuen of the golde of Arabia: Prayer ſhalbe made euer vnto hi, and dayly ſhall he be prayſed. There ſhalbe an heape of corne in the earth hye vpon the hylles, his frute ſhall ſhake lyke Libanus, and ſhalbe grene in ſ̄ cite, like graſſe vpō ſ̄ earth.

His name ſhall endure for euer, & his name ſhall remayne vnder the ſunne amonge the poſterites, which ſhalbe bleſſed thorow him, and all the Heathen ſhall prayſe him

Bleſſed be the Lorde God, euen the God of Iſraell * which onely doth wonderous thinges. And bleſſed be the name of hys maieſty for euer, ād all the erth ſhalbe fylled with his maieſty. Amen, Amen.

Here ende the prayers of Dauid the ſonne of Iſai.

¶ The.lxxiij.Pſalme.

QVAM BONVS ISRAEL.

A Pſalme of Aſaph.

TRuly God is louing vnto Iſrael: euē vnto ſoch as are of a cleane hert.

Neuertheleſſe, my fete were almoſt gone, my treadinges had well nye ſlypte.

And why * I was greued at ſ̄ wicked, I do ſe alſo the vngodly in ſoch proſperite.

For they are in no parell of death, but are luſty and ſtrong. They come in no miſfortune like other folke, nether are they plaged like other mē. And this is the cauſe ſ̄ they be ſo holden with pride, and ouerwhelmed with cruelte. Their eyes ſwell for fatneſſe, and they do euen what they lyſt.

They corrupte other, & ſpeake of wicked blaſphemye

23 blasphemye: theyr tallynge is agaynst the most hiest. For they stretch forth theyr mouth vnto the heauen, & theyr tonge goeth thorow the world. Therfore fall the people vnto them, and there out sucke they no
* Psa. xxxvij. b. small aduauntage. * Tush (saye they) how shuld God perceaue it? is there knowlege in the most hyest? Lo, these are the vngodly, these prosp̄ere in the worlde, and ℵ (And saye,) these haue ryches in possessyon. Then haue I clensed my herte in vayne and washed my handes in innocency? All the daye long haue I bene punished, and chastened euery morninge. Yee, and I had almost sayde euen as they: but lo, then shuld I haue condemned the generacyon of thy children. Thē thought I to vnderstand this, but it was to harde for me. Vntill I went into the Sanctuary of God, then vnderstode I the ende of these mē. Namely, how thou dost sett them in slyppery places, and castest them downe and destroyest them.
* Psa. xxxvij. b. O how sodenly do they consume, perysh, and come to a fearfull ende? * Yee, euen like as a dreame when one awaketh, so shalt ☞ thou make ☞ theyr ymage to vanysh out
D of the cyte. Thus my hert was greued, ād it went euen thorow my reynes. So folysh was I and ignorannt, euen as it were a beast before the. Neuertheiesse, I am all waye by the, for thou hast holde me by my right hande. Thou shalt gyde me with thy councell, and afterwarde receaue me with glory. Whom haue I in heauen but the? And there is none vpon earth, that I desyre in cōparyson of the. Thy fleashe and my hert fayleth, but God is the strength of my hert,
* Psa. xxvij. c. * and my portyon for euer. For lo, they that forsake the shall perysh: thou hast destroyed all them that commytte fornicacyon agaynst the. But it is good for me, to holde me fast by God, to put my trust in the Lorde God, and to speake of all thy workes.
ℵ (in the gates of the daughter Syon)

¶ The. lxxiij. Psalme.

VT QVID DEVS REPVLISTI.

An instruccyon of Asaph.

A GOd, wherfore art thou absent from vs so long? why is thy wrath so hote agaynst the shepe of thy pasture?
O thynke vpon thy congregacyon, whō thou hast purchased and redemed of olde: Thinke vpon the tribe of thine enheritaūce and mount Sion wherin thou hast dwelt.
Lyft vp thy fete, that thou mayest vtterly destroye euery enemye which hath done euell in the Sanctuary. Thyne aduersaryes roare in the myddes of thy congregacions, and set vp their banners for tokens.
☞ ☞ He that hewed tymbre afore out of ꝑ thick trees, was knowne to bryng it to an excellent worke. But now they breake B downe all ꝑ carued worcke therof w̄ axes & hammers. * They haue set fyre vpō thy * iij. Reg. xxvj. ij. Par. xxxvj. c. holy places, and haue defyled the dwellynge place of thy name, euen vnto the grounde.
Yee, they sayed in their hertes: let vs make hauoke of them altogether: thus haue they brent vp all the houses of God in the lande.
☞ We se not oure tokens, ther is not one T
Prophet more, no not one is ther among vs that vnderstandeth eny more. O God, how long shall the aduersary do this dishonoure: how longe shal the enemy blaspheme thy name? for euer? Why withdrawest C thou ꝑ hand: why pluckest thou not thy right hande out of thy bosome, to consume ꝑ enemye? For God is my kynge of olde: the helpe that is done vpon earth, he doth it him selfe. * Thou dyddest deuyde the see thorowe thy power, thou brakest the heades * Gen. i. ☞ of the dragōs in the waters. Thou T smotest the heades of * Leuiathan in peces, * Psa. civ. and gauest him to be meate for the people in the wylderneese. Thou brought est out fountaynes and waters out of ꝑ harde rockes: thou dryedst vp myghtye waters.
The daye is thine, & the nyght is thyne: thou hast prepared the lyght and the sonne.
Thou hast sett all the borders of ꝑ earth, thou hast made sommer ād wynter. Remembre this, O Lord, how the enemie hath D rebuked, ād how the folysh people hath blasphemed thy name. O delyuer not ꝑ soule of thy turtle doue vnto the multitude of the enemies: and forget not the congregacyon of the poore for euer. Loke vpon the couenaunt, for all the earth is full of darknes, ād cruell habitaciōs. O let not the symple go awaye ashamed, but let the poore and nedy geue prayse vnto thy name. Aryse, O God, mayntayne thine awne cause: remēbre how the folyshe man blasphemeth the dayly.
Forget not the voyce of thine enemyes: the presumpcyō of them that hate the increaseth euer more and more.

¶ The. lxxv. Psalme.

CONFITEBIMVR TIBI DEVS.

To the chaunter, Destroye not. A Psalme and songe of Asaph.

VNto ꝑ (O God) do we geue thākes A yee, vnto the do we geue thankes: thy name also is so nye, & that do thy wōderous workes declare. Whē I receaue the congregacion, I shall iudge accordynge vnto ryght. The earth is weake and all ꝑ inhabiters therof, I beare vp ꝑ pylers of it. I sayde vnto the foles: deale not so madly, and to the vngodly: set not vp your horne. Set not vp youre horne on hye, & speake not with a styfnecke. For promocion commeth neither from the East, ner frō
the

B the weſt, nor yet from ꝑ ſouth. And why? * God is the Judge: he putteth downe one, and ſetteth vp another. For in the hande of the Lord there is * a cuppe, & ꝑ wyne is redd, It is full mixte, & he poureth out of the ſame. As for the dregges therof, all ꝑ vngodly of the earth ſhall drincke them, and ſucke them out. But I wyll talke of the God of Jacob, and prayſe hym for euer.

All the hornes of the vngodly alſo wyll I breake, and the hornes of the rygh̄teous ſhalbe exalted.

¶ The.lxxvj. Pſalme.

NOTVS IN IVDEA.

To the chaunter, in melodyes, a Pſalme, & ſonge of Aſaph.

A IN Jewry is God knowne, his name is greate in Iſrael. At ☞ Salem is his tabernacle, and * his dwellyng in Sion. There ſhake he the arowes of the bowe, the ſhylde, the ſwerde, and ꝑ battayle. Sela. Thou art of more honour and myght then the hylles of robbers.

The proude are robbed: they haue ſlepte their ſlepe: and all the men (whoſe handes were myghtie) haue found nothinge. At B thy rebuke (O God of Jacob) both the charet and horſe is fallen. Thou, euen thou art to be feared: and who may ſtande in thy ſyght, when thou art angrye. Thou dyddeſt cauſe thy iudgement to be herde from heauen, the erth trembled and was ſtyll. * When God aroſe to iudgement, & to helpe all the mehe vpon earth. Sela. ☞ The fearcenelle of man ſhall turne to thy prayſe: and the fearcenelle of other ſhalt thou refrayne. Prompte vnto the Lorde youre God, & * hope it, all ye that be rounde about hym: bryng preſentes vnto hym that ought to be feared. He ſhall refrayne the ſpyrete of Princes, and is wonderfull amonge the kynges of the earth.

¶ The.lxxvij. Pſalme.

VOCE MEA AD DOMINVM.

To the Chaunter, for Jeduthun a Pſalme of Aſaph.

A I * wyll crye vnto God w̄ my voyce, euen vnto God wyll I crye wyth my voyce, and he ſhall herken vnto me.

In the tyme of my trouble I ſought the Lorde: my ſore ranne and ceaſſed not in the nyght ceaſon: my ſoule refuſed comforte.

When I am in heynneſſe, I wyll thynke vpon God: when my hert is vexed, I wyll complayne. Sela. Thou holdeſt myne eyes wakynge, I am ſo feble, that I cannot ſpeake. I haue cōſydred the dayes of olde, B and the yeares that are paſt. I call to remēbraunce my ſonge: and in the nyght I cōmune wyth myne awne hert, and ſearch out my ſpyrete. Wyll ꝑ Lord abſent hym ſelfe for euer? And will he be no more intreated? Is hys mercy clene gone for euer? And is hys promyſe come vtterly to an ende for euermore? hath God forgotten to be gracyous? And wyll he ſhutt vp hys louynge kyndneſſe in dyſpleaſure? Sela. And C I ſayde: It is myne awne infirmyte: But I wyll remembre the yeares of the ryght hāde of the moſt hyeſt. I wyll remembre the workes of the Lorde, and * call to mynde *Pſal.cxliij.b thy wonders of olde tyme. I will thynke alſo of all thy workes, and my talkynge ſhalbe of thy doynges. ☞ Thy waye, O God, is holy: who is ſo greate a God as (oure) God? Thou art the God that doth D wonders, & haſt declared thy power amōg people. Thou haſt myghtely delyuered thy people, euen the ſonnes of Jacob & Joſeph. Sela. The waters ſawe the, O God, the waters ſawe the, & were afrayed: ꝑ deapthes alſo were troubled. The clowdes poured out water, the ayer thondered, & thyne arowes went abroade. The voyce of thy thōder was heard rounde aboute, the lyghtenynges ſhone vpon the grounde, the earth was moued and ſhoke wythall

Thy waye is in the ſee, and thy pathes in the greate waters, and thy foteſteppes are not knowne. Thou leddeſt thy people lyke ſhepe, by the hande of Moſes and Aaron.

¶ The.lxxviij. Pſalme.

ATTENDITE POPVLE MEVS.

An inſtruccyon of Aſaph.

HEare my lawe, O my people, enclyne youre eares vnto the wordes of my mouth. * I wyll open my *Mat.xiij.c. mouth in a parable, I wyll declare hard ſentences of olde. Whych we haue herde and knowne, and * ſoche as oure fathers haue *Deu.vi.d vj.b.d.xi.c. Epho.vi.a. tolde vs. That we ſhulde not hyde them from the chyldren of the generacyons to come: but to ſhewe the honour of the Lorde, hys might, and wonderfull workes that he hath done. He made a couenaūt with Jacob, and gaue Iſrael a lawe * which he com- *Exo.xvi.d. Joſua.viij.b. maūded oure forefathers to teache their chil dren. That their poſterite myght knowe it, and the chyldren which were yet vnborne.

To thintent that whē they came vp, they myght ſhewe their chyldren the ſame.

That they myght put their truſt in God, and not to forget the workes of God, but to kepe his cōmaundementes. And not to be * as their forefathers a faythleſſe & ſtub- *Exod.xxxij burne generacyon, a generacyon that ſet not & Deu.xxxij their herte aryght, and whoſe ſpyrete cleued not ſtedfaſtly vnto God. Lyke as ☞ the B chyldren of Ephraim, which beyng harneſſed and carryeng bowes, turned them ſelues backe in the daye of batayll. They kepte

not

not the couenaunt of God, and wolde not walke in hys lawe. But forgat what he had done, and the wonderfull worckes that he had shewed for thē. Marueilous thynges dyd he in the syght of oure fathers in the lande of Egypte, euen in the feilde of Zoan.

* Exo.xiiii.b * He deuyded the see, and let thē gothorow: he made ꝑ waters to stāde on a heape.

* Exo.xiii.c. Nume.xx.b * In the daye tyme also he led them wyth a cloude, and all the nyght thorow ā light of fyre. * Exo.xvii.b. He cloue the * hard rockes in the wylderneſſe, and gaue them drincke therof, as it had bene out of the greate deapth.

*1.Cor.x.b He brought waters out of the * stony rocke, so that it gusshed out lyke the ryuers.

Yet for all this they synned moze agaynſt hym, and prouoked the moost hyest in the wylderneſſe. They tempted God in theyr hertes, and requyred meate for theyr lust.

They spake agaynſt God also sayenge: * Exo.xvi.b Nume.xi.b Shall God prepare a * table in the wildernesse? He smote the stony rocke in deede, that the water gushed out, and the streames flowed withall: but can he geue bred also, or prouyde flesh for his people? When ꝑ Lord hearde thys, he was wroth: so the fyre was kyndled in Jacob, & ther came vp heuy displeasure agaynſt Israel. Because they beleued not in God, and put not their truste in his helpe. So he commaunded the cloudes aboue, and opened the doores of heauen.

He rayned downe Manna also vpon thē, for to eate, and gaue them * foode frō heauē. * Exo.xvi.b Deut.viii.a Sapien.xvi.b John.vi.b. So man dyd eate ☞ angels fode, for he sent them meate ynough. He caused the East wynd to blowe vnder the heauen, and thorow his power he brought in ꝑ south west wynde. * Exo.xvi.b. Nume.xi.g. * He rayned flesh vpō them as thicke as dust, and fetthered foules lyke as the sande of the see. He let it fall amonge their tentes euen rounde aboute their habytacyon. So they dyd eate, and were well fylled, for he gaue them their awne desyre.

They were not disapoynted of their lust. * Nume.xi.g * But whyle the meate was yet in theyr mouthes: the heuy wrath of God came vpon them, & slewe the welthiest of them, yee, and smote downe, the chosen men that were in Israel. * Nu.xiii.a * But for all this they synned yet moze, & beleued not hys wonderous worckes. Therfore, their dayes dyd he consume in vanyte, and their yeares in trouble.

* Nume.xi.g. 1.Cor.x.a * When he slewe them, they sought hym, and turned them early and enquered after God. And they remembred that God was their strength, and that the hye God was their redemer. Neuertheleſſe, they dyd but flatter hym wyth their mouth, and dyssembled with him in their tōge. For their herte was not whole wyth hym, neither continued they stedfast in his couenaunt.

But he was so mercifull, that he forgaue theyr mysdedes, and destroyed them not.

Yee, many a tyme turned he hys wrath awaye, and wolde not suffre is whole displeasure to aryse. * For he cōsydered that they were but flesh: and that they were, euen a wynde that passeth awaye, and commeth not agayne. * Many a tyme dyd they prouoke him in the wyldernesse, and greued him in the deserte. They turned backe, & tempted God, & moued the holy one in Israel. * Psal.lxxv.

They thought not of hys hand, and of the daye when he delyuered them from the hāde of the enemye. How he had wrought hys myracles in Egypte, and his wondres in the feilde of Zoan. * He turned their waters into bloude, so that they myght not drynche of the ryuers. * He sent lyce amonge thē, and deuoured them vp * and frogges to destroye them. He gaue their frutes vnto the * catyr pyller, and their labour vnto the grethopper. * He destroyed their vynes wt hayle stones, and their mulbery trees wyth the frost. * He smote their catel also with hayle stones, & their flockes with hote thonder bolttes. He cast vpon thē the furyousnesse of hys wrath, anger, displeasure and trouble, and sent euell angels among them. * Exo.xvi.b * Exo.viii.b * Exo.viii.b * Exo.ix.b

* He made a waye to his indignacion, and spared not their soule from death, but gaue their lyfe ouer to the pestylence. * And smote all the fyrst borne in Egypte, the moost principall and myghtyest ☞ in ꝑ dwellynges of Ham. But as for hys awne people, he lead them forth lyke shepe, and caryed thē in the wyldernesse lyke a flocke. He brought thē out safely, that they shulde not feare, & ouer whelmed their enemyes with ꝑ see. And brought thē within the borders of hys Sanctuary: ☞ euen to this mountayne, whych he purchased with hys ryght hande. * He cast out ꝑ heathen also before thē, caused their lande to be deuyded amonge thē for an heritage, and made the tribes of Israell to dwell in their tentes. So they tēpted and displeased the most hye God, & kepte not hys testimonyes. But turned their backes, and fell awaye lyke their fathers, startynge asyde lyke a broke bowe. * Exo.xvi.b Psal.cv.b * Exo.xvi.b * Exo.xvi.b * Exo.xvi to make lamētacion. ¶ So the Lorde awaked as one out of slepe, and lyke a gyaunte refreshed wyth wyne. * He smote his enemyes in the hynder partes, and put them to a perpetuall shame. ¶ He refused the tabernacle of Joseph, and chose not the trybe of Ephraim. * But chose the trybe of Juda, euen the hyll of Sion which he loued.

And there he buylded hys temple on hye, and layed the foūdacion of it lyke ỹ groūde, whych he hath made continually. * He chose Dauid also his seruaunt, and toke him awaye from the shepe foldes. As he was folowinge the ewes greate with yōge ones, he toke hym, that he myght fede Jacob hys people, and Israel his enheritaunce. So he fed them with a faythfull and true hert, & ruled them prudently withall his power.

¶ The.lxxix. Psalme.

DEVS VENERVNT GENTES.

A Psalme of Asaph.

O God * the heathen are come into thy inheritaunce: thy holy temple haue they defyled, and made Jerusalē an heape of stones. * The dead bodyes of thy seruauntes haue they geuen to be meate, vnto the foules of the ayre, and the flesh of thy sayntes vnto the beastes of the lande.

Their bloud haue they shed lyke water on euery syde of Jerusalem, and there was no man to burye them. * We are become an open shame vnto oure enemies, a very scorne and derysion vnto them that are rounde aboute vs. Lorde, how longe wylt thou be angrye? shall thy gelousy burne lyke fyre for euer? * Poure out thyne indignacion vpon the heathen that haue not knowne ỹ, and vpon the kyngdome that haue not called vpon thy name. For they haue deuoured Jacob, and layed waste his dwellinge place.

* Oremembre not oure olde synnes, but haue mercy vpon vs, and that soone, for we are come to greate misery. Helpe vs, O God of oure saluacion, for the glory of thy name: O delyuer vs, and be mercyfull vnto oure synnes for thy names sake.

* wherfore do the heathen saye: where is now their God? O let the vengeaunce of thy seruauntes bloude ỹ is shed, be openly shewed vpon the heathen in oure syght.

O let the sorowfull sygdyng of the presoners come before the: accordyng vnto the greatnesse of thy power, preserue thou those that are appoynted to dye. And for the blasphemy (wherwith oure neyghbours haue blasphemed the) rewarde thou them, O Lorde, seuen folde into their bosome. So we, that be thy people and shepe of thy pasture, shall geue the thanckes for euer, and wyl alwaye be shewynge forth thy prayse from generacion to generacion.

¶ The.lxxx. Psalme.

QVI REGIS ISRAEL.

To the chaunter ¶ vpon Sosanim, a testimonye and Psalme of Asaph.

HEare O thou shepherde of Israel, thou ỹ leadest Joseph lyke a shepe: be we thy selfe also thou that sytest vpon the Cherubyns.

Before Ephraim, Ben Jamin, and Manasses stere vp thy strēgth, and come helpe vs. Turne vs agayne, O God, shewe the lyght of thy countenaunce, and we shalbe whole. O Lorde God of hostes, how lōge wilt thou be angry wyth thy people that prayeth? * Thou fedest the with ỹ bred of teares and geuest them plētousnes of teares to dryncke. * Thou hast made vs a very stryfe vnto oure neyghbours, and oure enemyes laugh vs to scorne. Turne vs agayne, thou God of hostes, shewe the lyght of thy countenaunce, and we shalbe whole. Thou hast brought a vyne out of Egypte, thou hast cast out the heathen, and planted it. Thou madest rowme for it: and whan it had taken rote, it fylled the lande.

The hylles were couered with ỹ shadowe of it, & the bowes therof were lyke ỹ goodly Cedre trees. She stretched out her braunches vnto the see, and her bowes vnto the ryuer. Why hast thou then broken downe her hedge, that all they whych go by, plucke of her grapes? The wylde boze out of the wood doth rote it vp, and the wylde beastes of the felde deuoureth it. Turne ỹ agayne, thou God of hostes, loke downe from heauen, beholde, and vyset thys vyne. And the place of the vnyarde that thy ryght hande hath planted, and the braunch that thou madest so stronge for thy selfe. * It is brent wyth fyre, and cut downe: ¶ and they shall perysh at the rebuke of thy countenaunce. Let ¶ thy hand be vpon the man of thy ryght hande, & vpon the sonne of man whom thou madest so strong for thyne awne selfe. And so will not we go backe from the: Oh let vs lyue, & we shall call vpō thy name. Turne vs agayne, O Lorde God of hostes, shewe the lyght of thy countenaunce, & we shalbe whole.

¶ The.lxxxi. Psalme.

EXVLTATE DEO

To the chaunter ¶ vpon Githith (a Psalme) of Asaph (in the fifth wake of the Sabbaoth)

SInge we merely vnto God ỏ strēgth, make a chearfull noyse vnto the God of Jacob. Take the Psalme, bryng hyther the tabret, the mery harpe wỉ the lute.

Blowe vp the trompett in ỹ newe mone, euen in the tyme appoynted, and vpon oure

solempne

*Leui.23. ſolēpne feaſt daye. *For this was made a ſtatute for Iſrael, & a lawe of ☞ God of Jacob. This he ordeyned in Joſeph for a teſtymony, when he came out of the lande of Egypt, and had heard a ſtraūge language.

I eaſed hys ſhoulder from the burthen, & his handes were delyuered from (makyng) the potters. Thou calledſt vpō me in troubles, and *I delyuered the, and heardē the *Exo.19.b. *what tyme as the ſtorme fell vpon me. *I proued the alſo at ☞ waters of ſtrife. Sela. *Exo.17.c. *Num.20.b.

Heare, O my people, and I will aſſure the of Iſrael, yf thou wylt herken vnto me.

There ſhall no ſtraunge God be in the, neither ſhalt thou worſhippe any other God.

*I am ☞ Lorde thy God, whych brought *Exod.20.a. the out of the lande of Egypt, ope thy mouth wyde, and I ſhall fyll it. But my people wold not heare my voyce, and Iſrael wolde not obey me. *Do I gaue them vp vnto *Rom.1.d. their awne hertes luſt, and let them folowe their awne ymaginacyons. O that my people wolde haue herkened vnto me, for yf Iſrael had walked in my wayes.

I ſhulde ſoone haue put downe their enemyes, & turned myne hand agaynſt their aduerſaryes. The haters of ☞ Lorde ſhulde haue bene fownde lyars, but ☞ their tyme ſhulde haue endured for euer. He ſhuld haue fed them alſo with the fyneſt wheate *Deut.32.b. flour, and *with hony out of the ſtony roke ſhulde I haue ſatiſfyed the.

¶ The.lxxxij.Pſalme.

DEVS STETIT IN SINAGOGA.

A Pſalme of Aſaph.

*Exo.21.c. *Deut.1.b. *Iud.5.b. GOd ſtandeth in the congregacyon of prynces: he is Iudge amonge *Godes. & how longe will ye geue wrōg iudgement, and accept the perſonnes of the vngodly? Sela. Defende the poore and fatherleſſe, ſe that ſuch as be in nede and neceſſite haue ryght. Delyuer the out caſte & poore: ſaue them from the hande of the vngodly. They wyll not be lerned ner vnderſtande, but walcke on ſtyll in darckneſſe: all the foundacyons of the erth be out of courſe.

I haue ſayde, ☞ ye are Goddes, and ye all are chyldren of the moſt hyeſt. But ye ſhall dye lyke men, and fall lyke one of ☞ prynces. Aryſe, O God, and iudge thou ☞ earth, for thou ſhalt take all heathē to thine enheritaunce.

¶ The.lxxxij.Pſalme.

DEVS QVIS SIMILIS.

A ſonge and pſalme of Aſaph.

HOlde not thy tōge, O God, kepe not ſtyll ſylence, refrayne not thy ſelf O God. For lo *thyne enemyes make a murmuryng, and they that hate the haue lyft vp their heade. They haue ymagyned craftely agaynſt thy people, and taken counſell agaynſt thy ſecrete ones.

They haue ſayde: come, & let vs rote them out that they be nomore a people, & that the name of Iſrael maye be nomore in remembraunce. For they haue caſt their heades together with one conſent, and are confederate agaynſt the. The tabernacles of the Edomites and Iſmaelytes, the Moabytes and Hagarenes. Gebal, and Ammon, & Amalech: ☞ Philiſtynes with them ☞ dwell at Tyre. Aſſur alſo is ioyned vnto them, and haue holpen the chyldren of Loth. Sela.

But do thou to them * as vnto the Ma- *Iud.7.
dianites, vnto Siſera, and vnto Jabin & at the broke of Kyſon. Whych peryſhed at Endor, and became as the dounge of ☞ earth. *Iud.8.

Make them & their prynces lyke * Oreb and Zeb. Yee, make all their Prynces lyke as Zebea and Salmana. Whych ſaye: let vs take to oure ſelues the houſes of God in poſſeſſyon. O my God, make them lyke vnto a whele, & as * the ſtubble before ☞ wynde. *Iud.8.

Lyke as a fyre that burneth vp the wod, and as the flame that conſumeth the mountaynes. Perſecute them euen ſo with thy tempeſt, and make them afrayed with thy ſtorme. Make their faces aſhamed, O Lorde, that they maye ſeke thy name. Let them be cōfounded and vexed euer more and more: let them be put to ſhame and periſh.

And they ſhall know, that thou (whoſe name is Jehoua) art only the mooſt hyeſt ouer all the earth.

¶ The.lxxxiij.Pſalme.

QVAM DILECTA TABERNACVLA.

To the chaunter vpon Githith, a Pſalme of the ſonnes of Corah.

HOw amyable are thy dwellynges, thou Lorde of hoſtes? My ſoule hath a deſyre and longinge to entre into the courtes of the Lorde: my hert and my fleſh reioyſe in the lyuyng God. Yee, ☞ ſparow hath founde her an houſe, and the ſwalowe a neſt, where ſhe may laye her ponge: euen thy aulters O Lorde of hoſtes, my kynge and my God. Bleſſed are they that dwell in thy houſe, they wilbe all waye prayſyng the. Sela. Bleſſed is that mā whoſe ſtrength is in the, in whoſe herte are thy wayes. Whych goinge thorow the vale of miſery vſe it for a well, and the pooles are fylled with water. They wyll go from ſtrength, and vnto the God of Goddes appeareth euery one of them in Sion. O Lorde God of hoſtes, heare my prayer: herken O God of Jacob. Sela. Behold O God oure defender, and loke vpon the face of thyne anoynted. For one daye in thy courtes is better then a thouſande. I had rather be a doore keper in ☞ houſe of my God, then

then to dwell in the tentes of vngodlyneſſe.

For the Lorde God is a lyght and defence, the Lorde will gene grace and worſhype, and no good thynge ſhall he wythholde from them that lyue a godly lyfe. O Lorde God of hoſtes, bleſſed is the mã, that putteth his truſt in the.

¶ The.lxxxv.Pſalme.

BENEDIXISTI DOMINE.

To the chaunter, a Pſalme of the ſonnes of Corah.

LOrde, thou art become gracyous vnto thy lande, thou haſt turned awaye the captiuite of Jacob. Thou haſt forgeuen the offence of thy people, and * couered all theyr ſynnes. Selah. Thou haſt taken awaye all thy diſpleaſure, and turned thy ſelfe from thy wrathfull indignacyon.

Turne vs then, O God oure Sauyour, and let thyne anger ceaſſe from vs. Wylt thou be diſpleaſed at vs for euer? and wylt thou ſtretch out thy wrath from one generacyon to another? Wylt thou not turne agayne & quycken vs, that thy people maye reioyſe in the? Shewe vs thy mercy O Lorde and graunt vs thy ſaluacyon. I wyll herken what the Lorde God will ſaye: for (concerninge me) he ſhall ſpeake peace vnto his people and to hys ſayncten, that they turne not agayne. For his ſaluacyon is nye thẽ that feare him, that glory maye dwell in oure lãde. Mercy and truth are met together, ryghteouſneſſe and peace haue kyſſed eche other. Truth ſhall florith out of the earth, & ryghteouſneſſe hath lohed downe frõ heauen. Yee, the Lorde ſhall shewe louynge kyndneſſe, and oure lande ſhall gene her encreaſe. Ryghteouſneſſe ſhall go before hym, and he ſhall directe hys goynge in the waye.

¶ The.lxxxvj.Pſalme.

INCLINA DOMINE AVREM.

A prayer of Dauid.

BOwe downe thyne eare, O Lorde, & heare me, for I am poore & in miſery. Preſerue thou my ſoule, for I am holy: my God ſaue thy ſeruaunt, that putteth his truſt in the. Be mercyfull vnto me (O Lorde) for I wyll call daylye vpõ the. Comforte the ſoule of thy ſeruaunt, for vnto the (O Lorde) do I lyft vp my ſoule.

* For thou Lord art good and gracious, and of greate mercy vnto all them that call vpon the. Geue eare Lorde vnto my prayer, and ponder the voyce of my humble deſyres. In the tyme of my trouble I wyll call vpõ the, for thou heareſt me. * Amonge the Goddes there is none lyke vnto the (O Lorde) there is not one that can do as thou doeſt.

All nacyons whom thou haſt made, ſhall come and worſhyppe the (O Lorde) and ſhall glorifye thy name. For thou art great, and doeſt wõderous thynges, thou art God alone. Teach me thy waye, (O Lorde) and I will walke in thy trueth: O knyett my hert vnto the, that it maye feare thy name. I wyll thanke the, O Lorde my God with all my hart, and wyll prayſe thy name for euer.

For great is thy mercy towarde me and * thou haſt delyuered my ſoule from the nethermoſt hell. O God, the proude are ryſen agaynſt me, and the congregacyons of naughtye men haue ſought after my ſoule, and haue not ſet the before theyr eyes.

* But thou, O Lorde God, art full of compaſſyon, and mercy, lõge ſufferynge, plenteous in goodnes and trueth. O turne the then vnto me and haue mercy vpon me: gene thy ſtrength vnto thy ſeruaũt, and helpe the ſonne of thyne handmayde.

Shewe ſome token vpon me for good, that they whych hate me, maye ſe it, and be aſhamed, becauſe thou Lord haſt holped me, and comforted me.

¶ The.lxxxvij.Pſalme.

FVNDAMENTA EIVS

A Pſalme and ſonge of the ſonnes of Corah.

HEr foundacyõs are vpõ the holy hylles: the Lorde loueth the gates of Sion more then all the dwellynges of Jacob. Very excellent thynges are ſpoken of the, thou cyte of God. Selah. I wyll thynke vpon Rahab and Babylon, wyth them that knowe me. Beholde, yee the Philiſtynes alſo, and they of Tyre with the Morians. Lo, there was he borne. And of Sion it ſhalbe reported, that he was borne in her, and the moſt hyeſt ſhall ſtablish her. The Lorde ſhall rehearſe it, whan he wryteth vp the people, that he was borne there. Selah. The ſyngers alſo and trompetters ſhall be rehearſe, All my freſhe ſpryngs ſhalbe in the.

¶ The.lxxxviij.Pſalme.

DOMINE DEVS SALVTIS.

¶ A ſong and Pſalme of the ſonnes of Corah, to the chaũter vpon Mahelath, to gene thankes: an inſtructiõ of Heman the Ezrahyte.

O Lorde God of my ſaluacion, I haue cryed daye and nyght before the: Oh let my prayer entre into thy preſence, encline thyne eare vnto my callynge.

For my ſoule is full of trouble, and my lyfe draweth nye vnto hell. I am counted as one of the y go downe vnto the pytte, and I haue bene eue as a man y hath no ſtrẽgth.

Free amonge the dead, lyke vnto the that be wounded lye in the graue, whych be out of remembraũce, and are cut awaye frõ thy hande: Thou haſt layed me in the loweſt

pytt, in a place of darkneſſe and in the deps.

Thyne indignacyon lyeth harde vpō me, and thou haſt vexed me wyth all thy ſtormes. Selah. Thou haſt put awaye myne acquayntaunce farre fro me, and made me to be abhorred of the: I am ſo faſt in preſon, that I can not get forth. Myne eye lyeth for very trouble: Lorde I haue called dayly vpon the, I haue ſtretched out myne handes vnto the. * Doeſt thou ſhewe wonders amonge the dede? Or ſhall the dede ryſe vp agayne, and prayſe the?

* Pſal.lvi.a Eſa.xxvi.b

Shall thy louynge kyndnes be ſhewed in the graue, or thy faythfulneſſe in deſtruccyō?

Shall thy wonderous workes be knowen in the darcke, and thy ryghteouſnes in the lande (where all thynges are forgotten)? Vnto the haue I cryed O Lorde, and early ſhall my prayer come before the.

D

Lorde, why abhorreſt thou my ſoule? and hydeſt thou thy face fro me? I am in myſery, & lyke vnto hym that is at the poynt to dye (euen from my youth vp) thy terrours haue I ſuffred with a troubled mynde.

Thy wrathfull diſpleaſure goeth ouer me, and the feare of the hath vndone me.

They came rounde about me dayly lyke water, and compaſſed me together on euery ſyde. Myne louers and frendes haſt thou put awaye fro me, and hyd myne acquayntaūce out of my ſyght.

The.lxxxix.pſalme.

MISERICORDIAS DOMINI.

An inſtruccyon of Ethan the Ezrahyte.

I

* Pſal.ci.a.

MY* ſonge ſhalbe all waye of the louynge kyndneſſe of the Lorde, wyth my mouth wyll I euer be ſhewynge thy trueth from one generacyon to another.

For I haue ſayde: mercy ſhalbe ſet vp for euer, thy trueth ſhalt thou ſtablyſh in the heauens. * I haue made a couenaunt wyth my choſen, I haue ſworne vnto Dauid my ſeruaunt. * Thy ſede wyll I ſtablyſh for euer, and ſet vp thy trone from one generacyon to another. Selah. O Lorde * the very heauens ſhall prayſe thy wonderous workes, & thy trueth in the congregacyon of the ſayntes. For who is he amōge the cloudes, that ſhall be compared vnto the Lorde? And * what is he amōge the goddes, that ſhalbe lyke vnto the Lorde?

* 2.Reg.vii.b.
2.Par.vi.b.
Pſal.cxxxii.b
* Pſal.xix.a.

* Pſal.lxxx.
and.lxxxvi.b.

God is very greatly to be feared in the counſell of the ſayntes, and to be had in reuerence of all them that are aboute hym.

O Lord God of hoſtes, who is lyke vnto the? thy trueth (moſt myghtie lord) is on euery ſyde. * Thou ruleſt the raginge of the ſee, thou ſtilleſt the wawes therof, when they ryſe. Thou haſt ſubdued Egypte and deſtroyed it, thou haſt ſcatred thyne enemyes

* Exo.xiiii.b
Pſal.lxxxix.b

abroad wyth thy myghtie arme. The heauens are thyne, the earth alſo is thyne: thou haſt layed the foundacyō of the rounde worlde, and all that therin is. Thou haſt made the north and the ſouth. Tabor and Hermō ſhall reioyce in thy name. Thou haſt a myghtie arme, ſtronge is thy hāde, and hye is thy ryght hande. Rygheouſnes and equite is the habitacyon of thy ſeate, mercy and trueth ſhall go before thy face. Bleſſed is the people (O Lorde) that can reioyce in the: they ſhall walke in the lyght of thy countenaunce. They ſhall be glad in thy name, & in thy rygheouſneſſe ſhall they make their boaſt. For thou art the glory of their ſtrength, & in thy louynge kyndneſſe ſhalt lyft vp oure hornes. For the * Lord is oure defence, The holy one of Iſrael is oure kynge. Thou ſpakeſt ſometyme in viſyōn vnto thy ſayntes, and ſayde: I haue layed helpe vpō one that is myghty, I haue exalted one choſen out of the people. * I haue founde Dauid my ſeruaunt: wyth my holy oyle haue I anoynted him. Myne hād ſhall holde hym faſt, and myne arme ſhall ſtrengthen hym: The enemye ſhall not be able to do hym violence, the ſonne of wickednes ſhall not hurte hym. I ſhall ſmyte downe hys foes before hys face, and plage the that hate hym. Myne trueth alſo and my mercy ſhalbe wyth hym, and in my name ſhall hys horne be exalted. * I wyll ſet hys dominion alſo in the ſee, and hys ryght hāde in the flouds. He ſhall call me: thou art my father, my God, & my ſtronge ſaluacyō. And I wyll make hym my fyrſt borne, hyer then the kynges of the earth. Myne mercy wyll I kepe for hym for euermore, & my couenaunt ſhall ſtande faſt wyth hym. Hys ſede alſo wyll I make to endure for euer, and hys trone as the dayes of heauen. But yf hys chyldren forſake my lawe, and walke not in my iudgementes. * If they breake my ſtatutes and kepe not my commaundementes.

C

* Pſal.lxxxix.a

D

* Act.xiii.b 1. Reg.xvi.a
ii.Reg.v.a.

* ii.Reg.vii.

E

* I wyll viſet their offences with the rod and their ſynne wyth ſcourges.

2 Ezro.iv.a

Neuertheleſſe, my louynge kyndneſſe will I not vtterly take from hym, ner ſuffre my trueth to fayle. Myne couenaunt wyll I not breake, nor alter the thinge that is gone out of my lippes. I haue ſworne once by my holyneſſe, that * I wyll not fayle Dauid.

* Act.xiii.

Hys ſede ſhall endure for euer, and hys

F

ſeate is lyke * as the ſunne before me.

* Pſal.lxxii.a

He ſhall ſtande faſt for euermore as the moone, and (as the faythfull wytneſſe in heauen. Selah: But) thou haſt abhorred & forſaken thyne anoynted, & art diſpleaſed at hi.

Thou haſt broken the couenaunt of thy ſeruaūt, and caſt his crowne to the grounde.

* Thou haſt ouerthrowne all hys hedges, and broken downe hys ſtronge holdes.

All

All they that go by, ſcoffe hym, and he is become a rebuke vnto hys neyghboures.

Thou haſt ſet vp the ryght hande of hys enemyes: & made all hys aduerſaryes to reioyce. Thou haſt taken a waie the edge of his ſwearde: & geuen hym not victory in the battayle. Thou haſt put out his glory, & caſt his trone downe to the grounde. The dayes of his youth haſt thou ſhortened: and couered him w dishonoure. Selah. Lorde, howe longe wilt thou hyd thy ſelfe for euer? and ſhall thy wrath burne lyke fyre?

Remembre, how ſhorte my tyme is, wherfore haſt ꝑ made all men for naught? * What man is he that lyueth, and ſhall not ſe death? and ſhall he deliuer his awne ſoule from the hande of hell? Selah. Lorde, where are thy olde louyng kyndneſſes, which thou ſworeſt vnto Dauid in thy treuth? Remember (Lorde) the rebuke ꝑ thy ſeruauntes haue & how I do beare in my bosome the rebukes of many people. Wher with thyne enemies haue blaſphemed the, & ſclaunder the fote-ſteppes of thyne anoynted. Prayſed be the Lorde for euermore: Amen: Amen.

The.xc. Pſalme.

DOMINE REFVGIVM.

A prayer of Moſes the man of God.

LOrde, thou haſt bene oure refuge from one generacyon to another. Before the mountaynes were brought forth, or euer the earth & the worlde were made, thou art God from euerlastyng and worlde without ende.

Thou turneſt man to deſtruccion. Agayne, thou ſayeſt: come agayne ye chyldren of men. * For a thouſande yeares in thy ſyght are but as yesterdaye, seynge that is paſt as a watch in the nyght. As ſone as thou ſcatreſt them, they are euen as a ſlepe, and fade awaye ſodenly lyke the graſſe,

In the morninge it is grene and groweth vp, but in the euenynge it is cut downe (dryed vp) and withered. For we conſume awaye in thy diſpleaſure, & are afrayed at thy wrathfull indignacyō. Thou haſt ſet oure mildedes before the, and oure ſecrete ſynnes in the lyght of thy countenaunce. For when thou art angrye, all oure dayes are gone: we bringe our yeares to an ende, as it were a tale that is tolde.

The dayes of oure age are thre ſcore yeares and ten: and though men be ſo stronge that they come to foure ſcore yeares, yet is their ſtrength then but labour & ſorowe: ſo ſoone paſſeth it awaye, and we are gone.

But who regardeth the power of thy wrath, for euen therafter as a man feareth, ſo is thy diſpleaſure. * O teach vs, to nombre oure dayes, that we maye applye oure hertes vnto wyſdome. Turne the agayne (O Lorde) at the laſte, and be gracious vnto thy ſeruauntes. O ſatisfye vs with thy mercy, and that ſoone: ſo ſhall we reioyce and be glad all the dayes of oure lyfe.

Comforte vs agayne, now after the tyme that thou haſt plaged vs, and for the yeares wherin we haue ſuffred aduerſyte.

Shewe thy ſeruauntes thy worke, and their chyldren thy glory. And the glorious maieſty of the Lorde oure God be vpon vs: proſpere thou the worke of oure hādes vpō vs, O proſpere thou oure handy worke.

The.xci. Pſalme.

QVI HABITAT.

WHo ſo dwelleth vnder the defence of the moſt hyeſt, ſhal abyde vnder the shadow of ꝑ Almightye. I wyll ſaye vnto the Lorde: Thou art my hope, and my ſtronge holde, my God, in hym will I truſt. For he ſhall deliuer the from the ſnare of the hunter, and frō the noyſome peſtylence. He ſhall defende the vnder hys wynges, and thou ſhalte be ſafe vnder hys fethers: hys faythfulneſſe and trueth ſhall be thy ſhylde and buckler. Thou ſhalte not be afrayed for any terrour by nyght, nether for the arow that flyeth by daye. For the peſtilence that walketh in the darckneſſe, nether for the ſickneſſe that deſtroyeth in the noone daye. A thouſande ſhall fall beſyde the & ten thouſande at thy ryght hand, but it ſhall not come nye the. Yee, with thyne eyes ſhalt thou beholde, and ſe the rewarde of the vngodly. For thou Lorde arte my hope, thou haſt ſet thyne houſe of defence very hye

There ſhall no euell happen vnto the, nether ſhall eny plage come nye thy dwellyng.

* For he ſhall geue his angels charge ouer the, to kepe the in all thy wayes. * Mat.iiii.a Luke.iiii.b.

They ſhall beare the in their handes, that thou hurt not thy fote agaynſte a ſtone.

Thou ſhalt go vpon the Lyon and Adder, the yonge Lyon and the Dragon ſhalte thou treade vnder thy fete. Becauſe he hath ſet hys loue vpō me, therfore ſhall I deliuer him: I ſhall ſet him vp, becauſe he hath knowne my name. * He ſhall call vpon me, & I will heare hym: yee I am with hym in trouble, I will deliuer hym, and bringe hym to honoure. With longe lyfe will I ſatisfye hym, and ſhewe hym my ſaluacion. * Pſal.xlix.a

The.xcij. Pſalme.

BONVM EST CONFITERI.

A Pſalme and longe for the Sabboth daye.

IT * is a good thing to geue thankes vnto the Lorde, and to ſynge prayſes vnto thy name, O moſte hyeſt. * Deu.xviii.a

To tell of thy louyng kyndneſſe early in the mo3nyng, and of thy treuth in the nyght ſeaſon. Upon an inſtrument of ten ſtrynges, & vpõ the lute: vpõ a lowde inſtrument & vpõ the harpe. For thou Lo3d haſt made me glad thoro3w thy wo3kes, and I wyll reioyce in geuyng prayſe for the operacions of thy handes. O Lo3d, how glo3ious are thy wo3kes: thy thoughtes are very depe.

25 An vnwyſe man doth not well cõſidre this, and a foole doth not vnderſtande it. Whan the vngodly are grene as the graſſe, & whan all the wo3kers of wyckednes do flo3iſh, then ſhall they be deſtroyed for euer. But ꝓ Lo3d art the moſt hyeſt for euermo3e. For lo, thyne enemyes, O Lo3d, lo thyne ennemies ſhall perithe, and all the wo3kers of wickednes ſhalbe deſtroyed. But my ho3ne ſhalbe exalted like the ho3ne of an Vnicorne, for

℣ I am anoynted with freſh oyle: Myne eye alſo ſhall ſe hys luſt of myne enemyes, and myne eare ſhall heare hys deſyre of the wycked that ryſe vp agaynſt me. The ryghtrous ſhal flo3iſh lyke a palme tree, and ſhal ſpre de abro3ade lyke a Cedre in Libanus.

Suche as be planted in the houſe of ꝓ Lo3de

℣ ſhall flo3iſhe in ꝓ courtes of (of the houſe) of our God. They ſhall alſo bryng fo3th mo3e frute in theyr age, & ſhalbe fat and well lykyng.

That they maye ſhewe, how true ꝓ Lo3d my ſtrength is, and that there is no vnryghtuouſneſſe in hym.

℣ The.xciij.Pſalme.

DOMINVS REGNAVIT.

A The Lo3d is kyng, and hath put on glo ryous apparell: the Lo3de hath put on his apparell, & gyrded hym ſelfe with

*Pſ.xcviij.a ſtrength: *he hath made the rou3de wo3lde ſo ſure, that it can not be moued. Euer ſens the

*Pſa.xcvi.a wo3ld begã̃e hath thy ſtate bene prepared, thou art from euerlaſtynge. *The floudes are ryſen (O Lo3d) the floudes haue lyft vp theyr noyſe, the floudes lyft vp the waues.

The waues of the ſee are myghtie, & rage fo3tribly: but yet the Lo3de that dwelleth on hye, is mightier. Thy teſtimonies, O Lo3de, are very ſure, holyneſſe becommeth thyne houſe for euer.

℣ The.xciij.Pſalme.

DEVS VLTIONVM.

A O Lo3d God * to whome vengeaũce be lõgeth: thou God to whome vẽgeaũce belongeth, ſhewe thy ſelfe. Aryſe

*Deu.xxxij.d Roma.xij.d. Hebr.x.f. thou iudge of the wo3lde, and rewarde the proude after theyr deſeruynge. Lo3d how longe ſhall the vngodly, how longe ſhall the vngodly triumphe? howe longe ſhall all wicked doers ſpeake ſo diſdaynfully, & make ſoch proude boaſting? They ſmyte down thy people, O Lo3de, and trouble thyne he-

23 ritage. They murthur the wyddow and the ſtraũger, and put ꝓ fatherleſſe to death.

And yet they ſaye. Tuſh * the Lo3de ſhal not ſe, nether ſhall ꝓ God of Jacob regard it. *Pſ.ix.xxxij.

Take hede, ye vnwyſe amonge the people, O ye fooles, whan will ye vnderſtande? He that planted the eare, ſhall he not heare? Or he that made the eye, ſhall not he ſe? Or he ꝓ nurtureth the heathen, it is he ꝓ teacheth man knowlege, ſhal not he punyſh? * The Lo3de knoweth the thoughtes of mã, ꝓ they are but vayne. Bleſſed is the man, whome thou chaſteneſt (O Lo3de) & teacheſt hym in thy lawe. That thou mayeſt geue hym pa- ℣ cience in tyme of aduerſitie, vntyll the pyt be dygged vp for the vngodly. For the Lo3de will not fayle hys people, nether will he forſake his inheritaunce. Untill righteouſnes turne agayne vnto iudgemẽt all ſoch as be true of hert ſhall folow it. Who will ryſe vp wt me agaynſt the wicked? Or who will take my part agaynſt the euell doers? If the Lo3d had not holpen me it had not failed, but my ſoule had bene put to ſylence. * But whe I ſayd: my fote hath ſlipped, thy mercy (O Lo3d) helde me vp. * In the multitude of the ſo3owes ꝓ I had in my herte thy com- fo3tes haue refreſhed my ſoule. Wilt thou haue any thynge to do with ꝓ ſtoole of wic- ℣ kednes, whiche ymagineth miſchefe as a lawe? They gather the togeither agaynſte the ſoule of the righteous, and condemne the innocẽt bloude. But the Lo3d is my refuge, & my God is the ſtrength of my cõfidẽce.

*Pſ.xxxiij. Iob.xxij. Luke.xvi. 1.Iohan.ij. 2.Cor.xi.

He ſhall recompence the their wickednes and deſtroye them in their owne malice, yee the Lo3de our God ſhall deſtroye them.

℣ The.xcv. Pſalme.

VENITE EXVLTEMVS.

O Come, let vs ſynge vnto ꝓ Lo3d, * let A vs hertely reioyce in the ſtrẽgth of our ſaluacion. Let vs come before his pre- *Ephe.iij. ſence wt thankeſgeuynge, & ſhewe oure ſelfe glad in hym wt pſalmes. For the Lo3de is a great God, & a great kynge aboue all godes. In his hande are all the cozners of the earth, & the ſtrẽgth of the hylles is his alſo.

The ſee is hys, and he made it, & his hãdes prepared the drye lande. O come, let vs wo3ſhyppe & fall downe, and knele before ꝓ Lo3d oure maker. For he is our (the Lo3d) oure *

God: and we are ꝓ people of his paſture, and ℣ ꝓ the ſhepe of his handes. * To daye yf ye will heare his voyce, harde not your hertes, as in ꝓ prouocacio & as i ꝓ daye of tẽptacion in the wildernes. Whe youre fathers tẽpted me, proued me, and ſawe my wo3kes. *Deut.vi. and.viij.

Fourty yeares long was I greued with ꝓ generacion, & ſayd: it is a people ꝓ do erre in theyr hertes: for they haue not knowen my wayes. * Unto whõ I ſware in my wrath that they ſhulde not enter in to my reſt. *Nu.xiiij. Hebr.iij.

℣ The.xcvi. Pſalme.

CANTATE DOMINO.

O ſynge

A Syngē vnto the Lorde a new ſonge, ſynge vnto the Lorde all the whole earth. Syngē vnto the Lorde, and prayſe his name, be tell ynge of his ſaluacīō from daye to daye. Declare hys honoure vnto the heathen, ād his wonders vnto all people. * For the Lord is great, and can not worthely be prayſed: he is more * to be feared then all goddes. As for all ꝑ goddes of the heathen, they be but Idols, but it is the Lorde that made the heauens.

Glorye and worſhyppe are before hym, power & honoure are in hys Sanctuary.

B Aſcrybe vnto the Lord, (O ye kynredes of the people) aſcrybe vnto the Lorde worſhipe and power. * Aſcrybe vnto ꝑ Lord the honoure due vnto his name, bryngē preſentes, & come into hys courtes. O worſhipe the Lord in the beutye of holynelle, lett the whole earth ſtande in awe of hym.

Tell it out amonge the heathen, that the Lorde is kynge: and that it is he which hath made the rounde worlde ſo faſt, that it can not be moued, and how that he ſhall iudge the people ryghteouſly. Let the heauens reioyſe, and let the earth be glad: let the ſee make a noyſe, and all that therin is.

C Let the felde be ioyfull and all that is in it, ſhall all the trees of the wodd reioyce.

before the Lorde, for he commeth: for he commeth to iudge the earth: and with righteouſnelle to iudge the worlde, and the people with his trueth.

¶ The.xcvii.Pſalme.

DOMINVS REGNAVIT.

A The Lorde is kynge, the earth maye be glad therof: yee the multytude of the Iles maye be glad therof. Cloudes and darckneſſe are rounde aboute hym, ryghteouſneſſe and iudgment are the habitacyon of his ſeate. There ſhall go a fyre before hym, and burne vp hys enemyes on euery ſyde. His lightenynges gaue ſhyne vnto the worlde, the earth ſawe it and was afrayed. * The hilles melted lyke waxe at the preſence of the Lorde, at the preſence of ꝑ Lord of the whole earth. ‡ The heauens haue declared his ryghteouſnes, & all the people haue ſene hys glory. * Confounded be all they ꝑ worſhipe carued ymages, and that delyte in vayne goddes: worſhipe hym all ye goddes. Sion heard of it and reioyſed: and the daughters of Iuda were glad becauſe of thy iudgementes, O Lorde. For thou Lorde art hyer then all that are in the earth, thou art exalted farre aboue all goddes. O ye that loue the Lorde, ſe that ye hate the thynge whych is euell: the Lorde preſerueth the ſoules of hys ſayntes, he ſhall delyuer them from the hande of the vngodly. There is ſprōge vp a lyght for the ryghteous, and a ioyfull gladneſſe for ſoch as be true herted.

* Reioyſe in the Lorde, ye ryghteous: and geue thanckes for a remembraunce of his holynelle.

¶ The.xcviii.Pſalme.

CANTATE DOMINO.

A Pſalme. (for Dauid).

A * Syngē vnto ꝑ Lord a new ſonge, for he hath done marueilous thynges. With hys awne ryght hande and wyth his holy arme hath he gotten hym ſelfe the victory. The Lord declared hys ſaluacyon, his ryghteouſnes hath he openly ſhewed in the ſyght of the heathen. He hath remembred hys mercy and trueth toward the houſe of Iſrael: * and all the endes of the worlde haue ſene the ſaluacyon of oure God. Shewe youre ſelues ioyfull vnto the Lorde all ye landes, ſynge, reioyſe, and geue thankes. * Prayſe ꝑ Lorde vpon the harpe, ſynge to the harpe wyth a pſalme of thanckelgeuyng. With trompettes alſo and ſhawmes: O ſhewe youre ſelues ioyfull before the Lorde the kynge.

Let the ſee make a noyſe and all ꝑ therin is, the rounde worlde, and they that dwell therin. Let the floudes clappe their handes, and let the hylles be ioyfull together.

Before the Lord, for he is come to iudge the earth. Wyth ryghteouſnes ſhall he iudge the worlde, & the people with equite.

¶ The.xcix.Pſalme. (of Dauid.)

DOMINVS REGNAVIT.

A The Lorde is kynge, be the people neuer ſo vnpacient: he ſytteth betwene the Cherubins, be the earth neuer ſo vnquiet. The Lorde is greate in Sion, and hye aboue all people. They ſhall geue thākes vnto thy name, which is great, wōderfull & holy. The kynges power loueth iudgemēt, ꝑ haſt prepared equyte, thou haſt executed iudgment ād ryghteouſnes in Iacob. O magnifye the Lorde oure God, and fall downe before his fote ſtole, for he is holy. Moſes and Aaron among his preaſtes, and Samuel amonge ſoche as call vpō B hys name: theſe called vpon the Lorde, and he hearde them. He ſpake vnto them * out of the cloudy pyller, for they kepte hys teſtimonyes, and the lawe that he gaue them.

Thou hearde ſt them (O Lord oure God) thou forgaueſt them O God, and punyſhedſt theyr awne inuencyons. O magnifye the Lorde oure God, and worſhippe him vpon his holy hyll, for the Lorde oure God is holy.

¶ The.c.Pſalme.

IVBILATE DEO.

A Pſalme for thankes geuynge.

* Be iopfull in the Lorde (all ye landes) ſerue the Lorde with gladnes, and come before hys preſence with a ſonge. Be ye ſure, that the Lorde he is God: He is he that hath made vs, and not we our ſelues: we are his people, and the ſheepe of his paſture. O go youre waye into hys gates with thanckeſgiuyng, ād into his courtes wyth prayſe: be thankfull vnto hym, and ſpeake good of hys name. For the Lorde is gracyous, * hys mercy is euerlaſtynge, and his treuth endureth from generacion to generacion.

* Pſal.xcvii.a

¶ The.ci. Pſalme.

MISERICORDIAM ET

A Pſalme of Dauid.

My * ſonge ſhalbe of mercy and iudgment: vnto ſ (O Lorde) will I ſynge. O let me haue vnderſtandynge in the waye of godlyneſſe: When wylt thou come vnto me? I wyll walcke in my houſe with a perfecte herte. I wyll take no wicked thinge in hand. I hate the ſynnes of vnfaythfulneſſe, there ſhall no ſoch cleue vnto me. A frowarde herte ſhall departe fro me, I wyll not knowe a wycked perſonne. Who ſo preuely ſlaundreth hys neyghboure, hym will I deſtroye: Who ſo hath alſo a proude loke and an hye ſtomack, I wyll not ſuffre hym. Myne eyes loke vnto ſoch as be faithfull in the lande, that they maye dwell with me: who ſo leadeth a godly lyfe, he ſhalbe my ſeruaunt. There ſhall no diſceatfull perſonne dwell in my houſe: he that telleth lyes, ſhall not tary in my ſyght. I ſhall ſoone deſtroye all the vngodly that are in the lande, that I maye rote out all wycked doers from the cytie of the Lorde.

A *pſal.xxxiii.a

¶ The.cii. Pſalme.

DOMINE EXAVDI ORATIONEM.

A prayer of the afflyct, when he hath an heuy hart, and powereth out hys complaynte before the Lorde.

Here * eare my prayer, O Lorde, ād lett my crienge come in vnto the. Hyde not thy face fro me in the tyme of my trouble: Bclyne thyne eares vnto me when I call, O heare me, and ſ ſyght ſoone. For my dayes are cōſumed awaye lyke ſmoke, ād my bones are brent vp, as it were a fyre brande. Myy hert is ſmytten downe and wytherd lyke graſſe, ſo that I forget to eate my bred. For the voyce of my gronynge, my bone wyll ſcarſe cleue to my fleſh. I am become lyke a Pellycane of ſ wildernes, ād lyke an owle ſ is in ſ deſerte. I haue watched, ā am eu̇ as it were a ſparow, that ſitteth alone vpon the houſe toppe. Myne enemyes reuyle me all the daye lōge: ā they that are madd vpō me, are ſwozne together agaynſt me. For I haue eaten aſhes as at were bred, and meged my drynck with weppynge. And that becauſe of thyne indignacyon ā wrath, for thou haſt taken me vp, ā caſt me downe. Myy dayes are gone lyke a ſhadowe, and I am wytherd lyke graſſe. But thou, O Lord, ſhalt endure for euer, and thy remembraunce thorow out all generacyons. Thou ſhalt aryſe, ā haue mercy vpō Sion, for it is tyme that thou haue mercy vpō her, yee the tyme is come. And why: * thy ſeruaūtes thinck vpon her ſtones, and it pitieth them to ſe her in the duſt. The heathē ſhall feare thy name, O Lord, ā all the kynges of the earth thy maieſty. When the Lord ſhall buylde vp Sion, and when his glory ſhal apeare:

A *pſal.xxxiii.a

C

* Eſay.i.a and.lvi.c

When he turneth him vnto the prayer of the poore deſtitute, ā deſpyſeth not theyr deſyre. This ſhalbe wrytten for thoſe that come after: * ā ſ people which ſhalbe borne, ſhall prayſe the Lord. For he hath loked downe from his Sāctuary, out of the heauen dyd the Lorde beholde ſ earth. That he might heare the mournynges of ſoch as be in captiuite, and delyuer the chyldren appoynted vnto death. That they maye declare the name of the Lorde in Sion, ād his worſhipe at Jeruſalem: Whē the people are gathered together, ā ſ kyngdomes alſo to ſerue the Lorde. He brought downe my ſtrength in my iourney, and ſhortened my dayes. But I ſayed: O my God, take me not awaye in the myddeſt of myne age: as for thy yeares, they endure thorow out all generacions. * Thou Lorde in the begynnyng haſt layed the foundacyon of the earth, and the heauens are the worcke of thy handes. They ſhall perithe, but thou ſhalt endure: they all ſhall were olde as doth a garment, and as a veſture ſhalt thou chaunge them, and they ſhalbe chaūged. But thou art ſ ſame, and thy yeares ſhall not fayle. The chyldrē of thy ſeruaūtes ſhall cōtynue, ā their ſede ſhall ſtonde faſt in thy ſyght.

* Gene.i.a iiii. Eſdr. b.i Heb.i.i

¶ The.ciii. Pſalme.

BENEDIC ANIMA MEA.

Of Dauid.

A † Pſal.ciii.i

Prayſe * the Lord, O my ſoule, and all that is wyth me prayſe his holy name. Prayſe the Lorde, O my ſoule, and forget not all hys benefytes. Whych forgeueth all thy ſynne, ā healeth all thyn infirmities. Which ſaueth thy lyfe from deſtruccyon, and crowneth the with mercy ād louynge kyndneſſe. Whych ſatiſfyeth thy mouth wyth good thynges, makyng the yonge and luſty as an Egle. The Lorde executeth ryghteouſneſſe and iudgment, for all them that are oppreſſed with wronge.

He ſhewed

he ſhewed hys wayes vnto Moſes, hys
woꝛckes vnto the chyldꝛen of Iſrael.
* The Lozd is full of cõpaſſyon & mercy,
longe ſufferyng, and of great goodneſſe.
He will not allwaye be chydynge, neyther keepeth he his anger foꝛ euer. He hath not deale with vs after oure ſynnes, nor rewarded vs accoꝛding to oure wyckednelles.
* Foꝛ loke how hye the heauen is in com-
paꝛiſon of the earth, ſo greate is hys mercy alſo towarde thẽ yͭ feare him. Loke how wyde alſo the eaſt is from the weſt, ſo farre hath he ſet oure ſynnes from vs. Yee like as a father pitieth his awne chyldꝛen, euẽ ſo
is the Lozde mercyfull vnto thẽ yͭ feare him.
Foꝛ he knoweth wherof we be made, * he remẽbꝛeth yͭ we are but duſt. The dayes of man are but as graſſe, foꝛ he flouꝛiſheth as a floure of the felde. Foꝛ as ſoone as the wynde goeth ouer it, it is gone, and yͭ place therof ſhall knowe it nomoꝛe. But the mercyful goodneſſe of yͭ Lozde endureth foꝛ
euer & euer, vpon them that feare him, & hys
ryghteouſneſſe vpon chyldꝛens chyldꝛen.
Euẽ vpon ſuch as kepe his couenaunt, &
thincke vpon hys commaundementes to do them. The Lozd hath prepared hys ſeate
in heauen, ād his kyngdome ruleth ouer all.
O prayſe the Lozde ye angels of his, ye yͭ
excell in ſtrength: ye that fulfyll his cõmaũdement, & herken vnto the voyce of his woꝛ-
des. O prayſe the Lozd all ye his hoſtes, ye ſeruauntes of his, that do his pleaſure.
O ſpeake good of yͭ Lozd all ye woꝛkes
of his, in all places of his dominion: prayſe
thou the Lozde, O my ſoule.

¶ The.ciiij. Pſalme. (Of Dauid.)

BENEDIC ANIMA.

A * Prayſe yͭ Lozd O my ſoule: O Lozd
my God, thou art become exceadynge
gloꝛious, thou art clothed with maieſty and honoure: Thou decheſt thy ſelfe with lyght, as it were with a garment, and ſpꝛeadeſt out the heauens lyke a curtayne.
Which layeth the beames of his chãbers
in the waters, & maketh the cloudes his cha-
ret, & walketh vpõ the wynges of yͭ wynde.
* He maketh his angels ſpꝛetes, and his mynyſters a flamynge fyre. He layed the foundacyõ of the earth, that it neuer ſhulde moue at eny tyme. Thou couꝛedſt it w
the depe lyke as wyth a garmẽt: the waters ſtande in the hylles. * At thy rebuke they flye, at the voyce of thy thonder they are afꝛayed. They go vp as hye as the hylles, and downe to the valleys beneth: euen vn-
to the place, which thou haſt appoynted foꝛ
them. * Thou haſt ſet them their boundes, which they ſhall not paſſe: neyther turne agayne to couer the earth. He ſendeth the ſpꝛynges into the ryuers, which rũne amõg
the hylles. All beaſtes of yͭ felde dꝛynche therof: and the wylde aſſes quench theyr thyrſte. Beſyde them ſhall the foules of yͭ ayre haue theyr habitacyon, & ſynge amõge
the braſſches. He watreth the hylles from aboue, the earth is fylled wyth the frute of thy woꝛckes. He bꝛyngeth foꝛth graſſe
foꝛ the cattell, ād grene herbe foꝛ the ſeruice
of men: that he maye * bꝛynge fode out of the earth: and wyne that maketh glad the herte of man, and oyle to make him a cheaꝛ-
full countenaũce, and bꝛed to ſtrengthẽ mãs herte. The trees of the Lozd alſo are full of ſappe, euẽ the Cedꝛes of Libanus which he hath planted. Wherin the bꝛydes make their neſtes, and the fyꝛre trees are a dwel-lyng foꝛ the ſtoꝛcke. The hye hilles are a refuge foꝛ the wilde goates, and ſo are the ſtony rockes foꝛ the conyes. He appoynted the Moone foꝛ certayne ſeaſons, and the Sunne knoweth hys goynge downe.
Thou makeſt darcknelle, that it maye be nyght, wherin all the beaſtes of the foꝛeſt do moue. The lyõs roaring after their pꝛaye to ſeke theyr meate at God. The ſunne aryſeth, and they get them awaye together,
and lye thẽ downe in their dennes. * Man
goeth foꝛth to his woꝛcke, ād to hys labouꝛe
vntyll the euenyng. * O Lozde, how ma-nifolde are thy woꝛckes in wyſdome haſt yͭ
made them all: the earth is full of thy ryches. So is this greate ād wyde ſee alſo, wherin are thynges creppynge innumerable,
both ſmall and greate beaſtes. There go the ſhippes, and there is that * (or Leuia-thã, whom thou haſt made, to take hys paſtyme therin. ‡ Theſe wayte all vpõ the,
that thou mayeſt geue them meate in due ſeaſon. When thou geueſt it them, they gather it: and when thou openeſt thyne hãd,
they are fylled with good. Wher thou hydeſt thy face, they are troubled: whan thou takeſt awaye their bꝛeth, they dye, and are turned agayne to their duſt. When thou letteſt thy bꝛeth goo foꝛth, they ſhalbe mad,
and thou ſhalt renue the face of the earth.
The gloꝛious maieſty of the Lozd ſhall endure foꝛ euer, the Lozde ſhall reioyſe in hys woꝛckes. The earth ſhall tremble at the loke of hym: yͭ he do but touch the hylles, they ſhall ſmoke. I wyll ſynge vnto
the Lozde as longe as I lyue, I will prayſe my God whyle I haue my beynge. And ſo ſhall my woꝛdes pleaſe hi: my ioye ſhalbe
in the Lozde. As foꝛ ſynners, they ſhalbe conſumed out of the earth, and the vngod-ly ſhall come to an ende: * prayſe thou the Lozde, O my ſoule. Prayſe the Lozde.

¶ The.cv. Pſalme.

(Prayſe the Lorde.)

CONFITEMINI DOMINO.

A

*1.par.xvi.b
*Esa.xii.a

*Geue thankes vnto the Lorde, & cal vpon hys name: tell the people, what thynges he hath done. O let your songes be of hym: and prayse hym, and let youre talkynge be of all hys wonderous workes. Reioyse in his holy name, let the hert of them reioyse, that seke ꝑ Lorde. Seke the Lord, and his strength, seke his face euermore. Remembre the marueilous workes that he hath done, his wõders and the iudgementes of his mouth. O ye sede of Abraham his seruaunt, ye chyldre of Jacob his chosen. He is the Lorde oure God: his iudgementes are in all the worlde.

He hath bene alwaye myndfull of hys couenaunt, and promyse that he made to a thousand generacions. *Euen the couenaunt that he made with Abraham, and ꝯ ooth that he sware vnto Isahac. *And apoynted the same vnto Jacob for a lawe, and to Israel for an euerlastynge testamẽt.

*Gene.xvii.b
ꝯGene.xxvi.a
*Ge.xxviij.c

Sayenge: vnto the wyll I geue ꝑ lande of Canaan, the lot of youre inherytaunce.

B

When there was yet but a fewe of them, and they straungers in the lande. What tyme as they went from one nacion to another, frõ one kyngdome to another people.

*Gene.xxiij.d
and.xx.a

*He suffred no man to do them wrong, but reproued euen kynges for their sakes. Touch not myne anoynted, & do my prophetes no harme. Moreouer, he called for a darth vpon the lande, and destroyed all the prouisyon of bread. *But he had sent a man before them, euen Joseph whych was solde to be a bonde seruaunt. Whose fete they hurt in the stockes *the yron entred in to his ☞ soule. Until the tyme came ꝑ his cause was knowne, the worde of ꝑ Lord tryed hym. *The kyng sent and delyuered hym: ꝑ prince of the people let him go free.

*Gene.xlv.b
*Luke.ii.c
*Gene.xli.b

He made him Lorde also ouer his house, & ruler of all his substaũce. That he might enfourme his princes after his will, & teach his Senatours wysdome. *Israel also came into Egypte, and Jacob was a straũger in the land of Ham. *And he increased his people exceadingly, and made them stronger then their enemies. Whose hert turned, so that they hated his people, & dealt vntruly with his seruãtes. *Then sent he Moses his seruaunt, and Aaron, whõ he had chosen. And these shewed his tokens amonge them, and wonders in the lande of Hã. *He sent darcknesse, & it was darcke, ☞ and they were not obedyent vnto hys worde. *He turned theyr waters into bloude, and slewe their fysshe. *Their lãd brought forth frogges, yee euẽ in their kynges chambers. *He spake the worde, and there came all maner of flyes, and lyce in all their quarters. *He gaue the hayle stones for rayne, and flammes of fyre in their lãde.

*Ge.xlv.c
*Gene.xlvi.c
*Exod.a Actes.vij.c
*Gene.xli.b
Actes.vij.b
*Exod.iij.a
*Exo.vii.b
Psal.civ.viii.c
*Exod.viii.b
*Exod.viii.a
*Exo.ix.a

He smote theire vines also and fyge trees, & destroyed the trees that were in their coastes. *He spake the worde, & grethoppers came, & caterpyllers innumerable. And dyd eate vp all the grasse in their land, and deuoured the fruite of their grounde.

*He smote all the fyrst borne in their lande, euen the chefe of all theye strength. He brought them forth also with syluer & golde, there was not one feble persõe amõg their tribes. Egypte was glad at their departyng, for *they were afrayed of thẽ. *He spred out a cloude to be a couerynge, and fyre to geue lyght in ꝑ nyght season. *At their desyre, he brought quayles, and he fylled the with the bread of heauen. *He opened the rocke of stone, & the waters flowed out: so that ryuers ranne in the dry places. For why? he remembred hys holy promes, and Abraham his seruaunt. And he brought forth his people with ioye, and his chosen in gladnesse. And gaue them the landes of ꝑ heathen, and they toke the labours of the people in possessyon. That they myght kepe hys statutes, and obserue hys lawes. Prayse the Lorde.

*Exo.xii.a
*Exod.xiij.a
*Exo.xvi.a
*Num.xi.a
*Exod.xvij.b
Num.xx.b

D

¶ The.cvi.Psalme.

CONFITEMINI DOMINO.

Prayse the Lorde.

A

*1.par.xvi.b
Psal.cvij.a
1.Mach.xiij.c
Judith.xiij.
Esa.xii.a

*Geue *thancke vnto the Lorde, for he is gracyous, and his mercy endureth for euer. Who can expresse ꝑ noble actes of the Lorde or shewe forth all hys prayse? Blessed are they ꝑ allwaye kepe iudgement, and do ryghteousnes. Remembre me, O Lorde, accordynge to ꝑ fauoure that thou beareste vnto thy people: O vyset me wyth thy saluacyon. That I maye se the felicite of thy chosen, & reioyse in the gladnesse of thy people, & geue thankes wyth thyne enherytaunce. We haue synned wyth oure fathers, we haue done amysse, and dealt wyckedly. Oure fathers regarded not thy wonders in Egypte, neither kepte they thy greate goodnesse in remembraunce: but were dysobedient at the see, euen at the reed see. Neuertheles, he helped them for hys names sake, that he myght make hys power to be knowne.

B

*He rebuked the reed see also, & it was dryed vp: so he ledd them thorow the depe as thorow a wyldernesse. And he saued them from the aduersaries hande, and delyuered them from the hande of the enemye.

*Psal.cvij.a

*As for those that troubled them, ꝑ waters ouerwhelmed them, there was not one of them left. *Then beleued they hys wordes, and sange prayse vnto hym.

†Exo.xiij.a
*Exo.xiv.a

But wythin a whyle they forgat hys workes, & wolde not abyde hys counsell.

But

C But lust came vpon them in the wildernesse, and they tempted God in the deserte.
And he gaue them their desyre, and sent leanesse withall into their soule.
They angred Moses also in the tentes, and Aaron the sayncte of the Lorde. *So the earth opened, and swalowed vp Dathan, & couered the cõgregacion of Abiram. And the fyre was kyndled in their company, the flame brent vp the vngodly. *They made a calfe in Horeb, and worshipped ỹ molten ymage. *Thus they turned their glory into the similitude of a calfe, that eateth haye. And they forgat God their Sauioure, which had done so greate thynges in Egipte. Wonderous workes in the lande of Ham, and fearfull thinges by the reed see.
So he sayd he wolde haue destroyed thẽ, had not Moses his chosen stãde before hym in that gappe: to turne awaye his wrathful indignacion, lest he shulde destroye them.
*Yee they thought scorne of ỹ pleasaunt lande, and gaue no credence vnto his word.
But murmured in their tentes, and herkened not vnto the voyce of the Lorde.
Then lyft he vp his hand agaynst them, to ouerthrowe them in the wilderness. To
C cast out their sede amonge the nacions, ād to scater them in the landes. *They ioyned them selues vnto Baal Peor, ād eate the offeringes of the dead. Thus they prouoked him vnto anger with their awne inuencions and the plage was greate amonge them.
*Then stode vp Phinehes and prayed, & so the plage ceased. And that was counted vnto him for righteousnesse, amonge all posterites for euermore. *They angered him also at the waters of stryfe, so ỹ he punyshed Moses for their sakes. Because they prouoked his spyrte, so ỹ he spake vnadusedly with his lyppes. Nether destroyed they the heathen, *as the Lorde commaunded them. But were myngled among the heathẽ, and lerned their workes.
I In so moch ỹ they worshipped their ydoles, which turned to their awne decaye. *Yee they offred their sonnes and their daughters vnto deuels. *And shed innocent bloude, euen the bloude of their sonnes & of their daughters, whõ they offred vnto the ydoles of Canaan, ād the lande was defyled with bloud.
Thus were they stayned with their awne workes, and went a whorynge wyth their awne inuencions. Therfore was ỹ wrath of ỹ Lorde kyndled agaynst hys people, in so moch ỹ he abhorred hys awne enheritaunce.
And he gaue thẽ ouer into the hande of ỹ
G heathẽ, and they that hated them, were lordes ouer them. Their enemyes oppressed them, and had them in subiection. Many a tyme did he delyuer them, but they rebelled agaynst him with their awne inuencions, & were brought downe in their wyckednesse.
Neuertheles, when he sawe their aduersyte, he herde their cõplaynte. He thought vpõ his couenaũte, & *pytied thẽ, accordyng vnto ỹ multitude of his mercyes. Yee he made all those ỹ had ledd thẽ awaye captiue, to pytie them. Delyuer vs (O Lorde oure God) and gather vs from amonge the heathen: that we maye geue thãckes to thy holy name, & make oure boast of thy prayse.
*Blessed be the Lorde God of Israel frõ euerlastyng and worlde without ende, & let all people saye: Amẽ, Amen. Prayse ỹ Lorde

*Deu.xxx.b

*Luke.i.c

C The.cvii. Psalme.

CONFITEMINI DOMINO.

A *Geue thanckes vnto the Lorde, for he is gracyous, and his mercy endureth for euer. Let them geue thãckes whom the Lorde hath redemed, and delyuered from the hande of the enemye.
And gathered thẽ out of the landes, frõ ỹ East, and from the west, from the North ād frõ the South. They wẽt a straye in the wyldernesse out of ỹ waye, & founde no citie to dwell in. Hongrie & thirstye: their soule faynted in them. So they cryed vnto the Lorde in their trouble, ād he delyuered them from their distresse. He led them forth by the ryght waye, ỹ they myght go to the cytie where they dwelt. O that mẽ wolde ther
B fore prayse the Lorde, for his goodnes, ād declare the wonders ỹ he doth for the chyldren of men. *For he satisfyed ỹ empte soule, and filled the hongrye soule with goodnesse.
Soch as syt in darcknesse & in the shadow of death, beyng fast bound in mysery & yrõ.
Because they rebelled agaynst the wordes of the Lorde, and lyghtly regarded the counsell of ỹ most hyghest. He also brought downe their hart thorow heuinesse: they fell downe, & there was none to helpe thẽ. So whã they cried vnto ỹ Lorde in their trouble, he deliuered thẽ out of their distresse. For he brought thẽ out of darcknesse & out of ỹ shadow of death, & brake their bõdes in sonder.
O ỹ mẽ wold therfore prayse ỹ Lorde for hys goodnesse: & declare ỹ wõders ỹ he doth
C for the children of men. For he hath broken the gates of brasse, and smytte the barres of yron in sonder. Foolysh mẽ are plaged for their offence, & because of their wyckednesse.
Their soule abhorred all maner of meat, and they were euẽ hard at deathes dore.
So whã they cryed vnto ỹ Lorde in their trouble, he delyuered them out of their dystresse. *He sent his word, and healed thẽ, and they were saued from their destruccion.
O that men wold therfore prayse ỹ Lorde for hys goodnesse, and declare the wonders that he doth for the chyldren of men.
*That they wold offre vnto hym the sacrifyce of thanckesgeuyng, and tell out hys

*Exod.xvi.a Deute.viii.d

*Mark.viii.a

*Heb.xiii.b Gene.xxvi.d Acres.x.a Rom.xii.d Phil.iii.b

C ỹ workes

wozches vñ gladnes. They ꝑ go downe to the see in shyppes, and occupie their busynesse in great waters. These men se the wozches of the Lord, and his wõders in the deape. * Jonas.1.b. * Foz at his word, ꝑ stormy wynd ariseth, which lyfteth vp the waues therof.

They are carped vp to the heauen, and downe agayne to the deape, their soule melteth awaye because of the trouble. They reie to and fro, and stacker lyke a dronchen man, & are at their wittes ende. So whã they crye vnto ꝑ Lord in their trouble, he de- * Psal.106.c lyuereth thẽ out of their distresse. Foz * he maketh the storme to cease, so that ꝑ waues therof are styll. Then are they glad because they be at rest, ād so he bryngeth them vnto the hauen where they wolde be. O that D men wold therfoze prayse the Lorde foz hys goodnes, and declare the wondzes ꝑ he doth foz the children of men. That they wolde exalte him also in the congregacion of ꝑ people, and loaue him in the seat of the elders.

* Psal.106.c * Which turneth the flouds into a wildernesse: and dryeth vp the water sprynges. A frutefull lande maketh he barr, foz the wyckednesse of them that dwell therin.

Agayne, he maketh the wildernes a standynge water, and water sprynges of a drye ground. And there he setteth the hongrie, that they maye buylde them a cytie to dwell in That they maye sowe their londe, and plante vyneyardes, to yelde them frutes of increase. He bleseth thẽ, so that they multiplye exceadingly, and suffreth not their catell to decrease. And agayne: whẽ they are minished and brought lowe thozow oppression, thozow eny plag oz trouble. Though he suffre them to be euell intreated thozowe tyrannes, and lett them wandze out of the waye in the wildernesse. Yet helpeth he the pooze out of misery, & maketh him houshoIdes lyke a flocke of shepe. The ryghteous wyll consydze this, and reioyce, & the mouth of all wyckednesse shall be stopped. Who so is wyse, wyll pondze these thynges: and they shall vnderstãd the louyng kyndnesses of the Lozd.

¶ The.cviii. Psalme.

PARATVM COR MEVM.

A songe and a Psalme of Dauid.

A * Psal.108.b c d

GOd * my hert is redy (my hart is stedfast) I will synge, and geue prayse, w the best membre that I haue. Awake thou lute and harpe, I my selfe wyll awake ryght early. I will geue thankes vnto ꝑ (O Lozde) among the people, I wyll synge prayses vnto the among the nations.

Foz thy mercy is greater then the heauẽs and thy trueth reacheth vnto the cloudes.

25 * Psal.108.b * Set vp thy selfe (O God) aboue ꝑ heauens, and thy glozy aboue all the earth.

That thy beloued maye be delyuered: let thy ryght hande saue them, and heare ꝑ me.

* God hath spoken in his holynes, I wyll reioyce. therfoze, and deuyde Sichem, and meete out the valley of Suchoth. * Psal.lx.b

* Gilead is myne, and Manasses is myne, Ephraim also is ꝑ strẽgth of my head, Juda is my lawgeuer. Moab is my washpotte, ouer Edõ will I cast out my shoe: vpõ Philistea will I triumphe. Who wyll leade me in to the stronge cytie? And who wyll bryng me in to Edom? Hast not thou forsaken vs (O God)? And wilt not ꝑ God, go forth with oure hostes? O helpe vs agaynst ꝑ enemye: for vayne is the helpe of man. * Psal.lx.b C

Thozow God we shall do great actes: & it is he, ꝑ shall treade downe our enemyes.

DEVS LAVDEM MEAM.

To the chaunter, a Psalme of Dauid

HOlde not thy tonge (O God) of my prayse. Foz ꝑ mouth of ꝑ vngodly, yee and the mouth of the discreatfull is opened vpõ me, & they haue spoken against me with false tonges. They cõpased me about also with wozdes of hatred, & fought agaynst me without a cause. Foz the loue ꝑ I had vnto them, lo, they take now my cõtrary part, but I geue my selfe vnto prayer. A

Thus haue they rewarded me euell foz good, ād hatred foz my good wyll. * Set thou an vngodly man to be ruler ouer hym, * and let Satan stande at his ryght hande. * Deu.xvii.b * 1.Sa.xii.a

When sentence is geuen vpõ him, let him be condemned, ād let his prayer be turned in to synne. * Let his dayes be few, and let another take his office. Let his chyldre be fatherlesse, ād his wyfe a wydow. Let his children be vagabounders, & begg their bred: lett them seke it also out of desolate places. * Actes.i.a

Let the extorcioner consume all ꝑ he hath, and let straungers spoyle his labour. 25

Let there be no man to petye hym, ner to haue compassyon vpon his fatherlesse chyldren. Let his posterite be destroyed, and in the next generacyon let hys name be cleane put out. Let ꝑ wickednesse of hys fathers be had in remembraunce in the syght of the Lozde, and let not the synne of his mother be done awaye. Let them alwaye be befoze the Lozde, that he maye rote out the memoriall of them from of the earth. And that because hys mynde was not to do good, but persecuted the pooze helpelesse man, that he myght slaye him, that was vexed at the hert his belyfe was in cursyng, & it shall happen vnto him: he loued not blessyng, therfoze shall it be farre from him. He clothed him selfe with cursyng lyke as with a rayment: & it shall come in to his bowels lyke water, ād lyke oyle in to hys bones. Lett it be vnto him as the cloke that he hath vpõ him, ād as the gyrdle that he is alwaye gyrded wt all. C

Let it thus happen from the Lozde vnto

myne

myne enemyes, ād to thole that speake euell agaynst my soule. But deale thou wt me (O Lorde God) accordyng vnto thy name, for swete is thy mercy. O delyuer me, for I am helpelesse and poore, & my hert is wounded within me. I go hence lyke ꝑ shadow that departeth, and am dryuē awaye as the grashopper. My knees are weake through fastyng, my flesh is dryed vp for wānt of fatnesse. I became also a rebuke vnto them: *they that loked vpon me, shaked their heades. Helpe me (O Lord my God) oh saue me accordynge to thy mercye. And they shall know, how that thys is thy hand, and that thou Lord hast done it. Though they curse, yet blesse thou: and let them be cōfounded, that ryse vp agaynst me, but let thy seruaunt reioyse. Lett myne aduersaryes be clothed with shame: and let them couer them selues wt their owne cōfusion, as wt a cloake.

As for me, I wyll geue great thanckes vnto the Lorde with my mouth, and prayse him among the multitude. For * he shall stand at the ryght hand of the poore, to saue his soule from vnrighteous iudges.

¶ The.cx. Psalme.

DIXIT DOMINVS DOMINO.

A Psalme of Dauid.

A *Matt.xxii.b *Mark.xii.b Luce.xx.d Heb.i.c 1.Cor.xv.b.

THe Lorde sayde vnto my Lorde: *Sytt thou on my ryght hand, vntill I make thine enemyes thy fotestole. The Lord shall sende the rodde of thy power out of Sion, be ꝑ ruler euen in the myddest among thyne enemyes. In the daye of thy power shall thy people offre the frewyll offrynges wt an holy worshippe, the dewe of thy byrth is of ꝑ wōbe of the morynyng. * The Lord sware, & wyll not repent: * Thou art a preest for euer after ꝑ order of Melchisedec. The Lorde vpon thy ryght hande, shall wounde euen kynges in the daye of his wrath. He shall be iudge among ꝑ heathen, he shall fyll the places with deed bodyes, & smyte a sonder the heades ouer diuerse countres. He shall dryncke of the broke in the waye, therfore shall he lyft vp his head.

*Heb.vii.c *Heb.viii.c and.x.i.c

¶ The.cxi. Psalme.

CONFITEBOR TIBI DOMINE.

Prayse the Lorde.

A *pl.cxxxvii.a

I * Wyll geue thanckes vnto the Lord with my whole hert: secretly among the faythfull, and in the congregacio. * The worckes of the Lorde are great, sought out of all thē ꝑ haue pleasure therin. His worcke is worthy to be praysed & had in honoure, and his righteousnesse endureth for euer. The mercyfull & gracious Lorde hath so done his maruelous workes, ꝑ they ought to be had in remembraunce.

*Pſal.cxxvii.b. *He hath geuen meat vnto them ꝑ feare hi, he thal euer be mindfull of hys couenaūt. ‡ Gene.xv.c

He hath shewed his people the power of his worckes, ꝑ he maye geue them thē herytage of the heathen. The worckes of his handes are verye & iudgement, all his commaundmentes are true. They stand fast for euer and euer, and are done in trueth and equite. He sent redempcyon vnto his people, he hath commaunded his couenaunt for euer, holy and reuerent is his name. * The feare of the Lorde is the begynning of wisdome, a good vnderstandyng haue all they that do therafter: ꝑ prayse of it endureth for euer.  (Prayse the Lorde for the returnyng agayne of Lazarus and suthary the prophetes.)

‡ Job.xxviii.b Prouer.i.a and.ix.c Eccli.i.c

¶ The.cxii. Psalme.

BEATVS VIR.

Prayse the Lorde.

A *pl.cxxviii.a †pſa.xxxvij.c

BLessed is the man that feareth the Lord, he hath great delyte i hys commaundmentes. * His sede shall be myghtye vpon earth: the generacyon of the faythfull shalbe blessed: Ryches and plenteousnesse shalbe in hys house, and his righteousnes endureth for euer. Vnto the godly there aryseth vp * lyght in the darcknesse ꝑ he is mercyfull, louyng and ryghteous.

*pſal.cxlvii.a Prouerb.xi.c pſalm.cxxxvi.c

A good man is mercyfull, and lendeth: ād wyll gyde his wordes wt discreciō. For he shall neuer be moued: and the righteous shall be had in an euerlastyng remembraūce.

He will not be afrayed for eny euell tydinges, for his hert standeth fast, ād beleueth in in the Lord. His hert is stablished: & will not shrincke, vntill he se his desyre vpon his enemyes. * He hath sparsed abroad, and geue to the poore: and his righteousnes remayneth for euer, hys horne shalbe exalted wyth honoure. The vngodly shall se it, and it shall greue him: he shall gnash with his teeth, & cōsume awaye: the desyre of the vngodly shall perysh.

*ii.Cor.ix.b

The.cxiii. Psalme.

LAVDATE PVERI.

Prayse the Lorde.

A *pl.cxxxvii.a and.cxxxv.a

PRayse the Lord (ye seruauntes) O prayse the name of the Lorde. Blessed be the name of the Lorde, from thys tyme forth for euermore.

The Lordes name is praysed, from the rysyng vp of the Sunne vnto the goyng downe of the same. The Lord is hye aboue all heathen, and his glory aboue ꝑ heauens.

Who is lyke vnto the Lorde oure God, ꝑ hath hys dwellyng so hye, & yet hūbleth him self, to behold the thynges that are in heauen & earth? * he taketh vp the simple out of ꝑ dust, and lyfteth the poore out of the myre.

*i. Reg.ii.b

That he maye sett him with the princes, euē with the princes of his people.

He maketh the barē womā to kepe house, and to

and to be a ioyfull mother of children.
Prayse the Lorde.

¶ The.cxiii. Pſalme.

IN EXITV ISRAEL.

I When Iſrael came out of Egypt, & the houſe of Jacob from amonge ꝑ ſtraung people. * Juda was his ſanctuary, and Iſrael his dompcion. * The ſee ſawe that, and fled * Jordan was driuen backe. The mountaynes ſkypped lyke rammes, and the lytle hilles lyke yonge ſheepe. What ayleth the, O ꝑ ſee, that thou fleddeſt? & thou Jordan, that thou waſt driuen backe? Ye mountaynes, that ye ſkypped lyke rammes: & ye lytle hylles, lyke yong ſheepe? Tremble thou erth at the preſence of the Lorde, at the preſence of the God of Jacob. * Which turned ꝑ hard rocke in to a ſtandynge water, and the flynt ſtone into a ſpryngynge well.

¶ The.cxv. Pſalme.

NON NOBIS DOMINE.

I Not vnto vs (O Lorde) not vnto vs, but vnto thy name geue ꝑ prayſe, for thy louyng mercy, & for thy truethes ſake. * Wherfore ſhall ꝑ heathē ſaye: where is now their God? As for oure God, he is in heauen, he hath done whatſoeuer pleaſed him. * Their ydoles are ſyluer and gold, euen the worcke of mens handes. They haue mouth, and ſpeake not: eyes haue they, and ſe not. They haue eares, & heare not: noſes haue they, and ſmell not. They haue handes and handle not: fete haue they, & walke not, nether ſpeake they thorow their throte. They that make the, are lyke vnto them, and ſo are all ſuch as put their truſt in them. But * (houſe of) Iſrael truſt thou in the Lorde, he his * their ſuccoure & defence.

Ye houſe of Aaron put youre truſt in the Lorde: he is their helper and defender.

Ye that feare the Lorde, put youre truſt in the Lorde, he is their helper and defender.

The Lorde hath bene mynded of vs, & he ſhall bleſſe vs: euen he ſhall bleſſe the houſe of Iſrael, he ſhall bleſſe ꝑ houſe of Aaron.

He ſhall bleſſe them that feare the Lorde, both ſmall & great. The Lorde ſhall encreaſe you more and more: you, & youre children. Ye are the bleſſed of the Lorde, which made heauen & earth. All the whole heauens are the Lordes, the earth hath he geuē vnto ꝑ children of men. * The dead prayſe not ꝑ (O Lorde) nether all they ꝑ go downe in to the ſylence. But we wyll prayſe the Lorde, from thys tyme forth for euermore.

Prayſe the Lorde.

¶ The.cxvi. Pſalme.

DILEXI QVONIAM.

I Am well pleaſed, that the Lorde hath herd the voyce of my prayer. That he hath enclined his eare vnto me, therfore will I call vpō him as longe as I lyue.

* The ſnares of death cōpaſſed me rounde about, and the paynes of hell gat hold vpon me, I ſhall fynde trouble and heuynes, and I ſhall call vpon the name of the Lorde (O Lorde) I beſech the delyuer my ſoule.

Gracious is the Lorde, and ryghteous, yee oure God is mercyfull. The Lorde preſerueth the ſymple: I was in myſery, and he helped me. Turne agayne then vnto thy reſt, O my ſoule, for the Lorde hath rewarded the. And why * thou haſt delyuered my ſoule from death, mine eyes from teares, and my fete from fallyng. I will walcke before the Lorde, in the land of the lyuyng.

* I beleued, and therfore wyll I ſpeake, but I was ſore troubled. I ſayd in my haſt: * All men are lyers. What reward ſhall I geue vnto the Lorde, for all the benefytes ꝑ he hath done vnto me? I wyll receaue the cuppe of ſaluacion, and call vpon the name of the Lorde. I wyll paye my vowes now in the preſence of all his people, ryght deare in the ſyght of the Lorde is the death of hys ſayncts. Behold (O Lorde) how that I am thy ſeruaunt: I am thy ſeruaunt, and the ſonne of thy handmayde, thou haſt broken my bondes in ſonder. I wyll offre to the, the ſacrifyce of thanckeſgeuynge, and wyll call vpon the name of the Lorde. * I wyll paye my vowes vnto the Lorde in the ſyght of all his people, in the courtes of the Lordes houſe, euen in the myddeſt of the, O Jeruſalem.

Prayſe the Lorde.

¶ The.cxvii. Pſalme.

LAVDATE DOMINVM.

* Prayſe the Lorde all ye heathē, prayſe him all ye nacions. * For his mercyfull kyndnes is euermore and more toward vs, and the truth of the Lorde endureth for euer.

Prayſe the Lorde.

¶ The.cxviii. Pſalme.

CONFITEMINI DOMINO.

* Geue thanckes vnto the Lorde, for he hys gracious, becauſe hys mercy endureth for euer. Let Iſrael now confeſſe, * (that he is gracious, and) ꝑ his mercy endureth for euer. Let the houſe of Aaron now confeſſe, ꝑ his mercy endureth for euer.

Yee let them now that feare the Lorde cōfeſſe, that his mercy endureth for euer.

I called vpon the Lorde in trouble, and the Lorde herd me at large. * The Lorde is on my ſyde, I wyll not feare what man doeth vnto me. The Lorde taketh my parte with them that helpe me: therfore ſhall I ſe my deſyre vpon myne enemyes. It is better to truſt in the Lorde, then to put eny confydence in man. It is better to truſt in the Lorde, then to put eny confydence in prynces.

All nacions compaſſed me rounde about, but in ꝑ name of ꝑ Lorde will I deſtroy the.

They

They kept me in on euery syde, they kept me in (I saye) on euery syde, but in the name of the Lorde, I wyll destroye them. They came aboute me lyke bees, and are extincte, euen as the fyre amonge the thornes, for in the name of the Lorde I wyl destroye them.

☞ Thou hast thrust sore at me, that I myght fall, but the Lorde was my helpe.

* The Lorde is my strength, & my sõge, and is become my saluacion. The voyce of ioye and health is in ỹ dwellynges of the ryghteous: the ryght hande of the Lorde bryngeth myghtye thynges to passe. The ryght hande of the Lorde hath ỹ preemynence, the ryght hande of the Lorde bryngeth mightie thynges to passe. * I wyll not dye, but lyue, and declare the workes of the Lorde.

The Lorde hath chastened & correcte me, but he hath not geuen me ouer vnto death.

Open me the gates of rightousnes, that I may go into them, & gene thankes vnto ỹ Lorde. Thys is the gate of the Lorde, the ryghteous shal entre into it. I wyl thãke the, for thou hast herde me, and arte become my saluacion. * The same stone whyche the buylders refused, is become the heade stone in the corner. Thys was the Lordes doynge, and it is maruelous in oure eyes.

Thys is the daye, whych the Lorde hath made, we wyll reioyse and be glad in it.

helpe vs (me) now O Lorde, o Lorde, sende vs nowe prosperitie. * Blessed be he that commeth in the name of the Lorde, we haue wyshed you good lucke, ye that be of ỹ house of the Lorde. God is the Lorde, Whyche hath shewed vs lyght: bynde ỹ sacrifice with coardes, yee euen vnto the hornes of ỹ aulter

Thou arte my God, and I wyll thanke the: thou arte my God and I wyl prayse the.

O gene thankes vnto the Lorde, for he is gracious and hys mercye endureth for euer.

¶The. cxix. Psalme.

BEATI IMMACVLATI.

BLessed * are those that be vndefyled in the waye: and walke in the lawe of the Lorde. Blessed are they that kepe hys testimonies, and seke hym wyth theyr whole herte. For they whych do no wyckednes, walke in hys wayes. Thou hast charged that we shall diligently kepe thy cõmaundementes. O that my wayes were made so directe, that I myght kepe thy statutes.

So shall I not be confounded, whyle I haue respecte vnto al thy cõmaundementes: I wyl thanke ỹ wyth an vnfayned herte, whan I shall haue learned the iudgementes of thy ryghteousnesse. I wyll kepe thy ceremonies, O forsake me not vtterly.

Where wyth all shall a yonge man clense hys waye? Euen by rulynge hymselfe after thy worde. Wyth my whole herte haue I sought the, O let me not go wronge out of thy commaundementes. * Thy wordes haue I hyd wythin my herte, that I shulde not synne agaynst the. Blessed art thou O Lorde, O teach me thy statutes. Wyth my lyppes haue I bene tellynge of all the iudgementes of thy mouth. I haue hadde as great delyte in the waye of thy testimonies, as in all manner of ryches. I wyll talke of thy cõmaundemẽtes, and haue respect vnto thy wayes. My delyte shalbe in thy statutes, and I wyll not forget thy worde.

O do wel vnto thy seruaunt, that I may lyue and kepe thy worde. Open thou mine eyes, that I maye se the wonderous thinges of thy lawe. * I am a straunger vpõ earth, O hyde not thy commaũdementes from me.

My soule breaketh out, for the very fernent desyre that it hath al way vnto thy iudgementes. Thou hast rebuked the proude, and cursed are they that do erre from thy commaũdementes. O turne fro me shame and rebuke, for I haue kept thy testimonies.

Princes also dyd sytte & speake agaynst me, but thy seruaunt is occupied in thy statutes. For thy testimonies are my delyte, and my counceilers. ☞ * My soule cleaueth to the dust, O quycken thou me accordynge to thy worde. I haue knowledged my wayes, and thou herdest me, O teach me thy statutes. Make me to vnderstande the waye of thy commaundementes, and so shall I talke of thy wonderous workes.

My soule melteth awaye for very heuynesse, comforte thou me accordyng vnto thy worde. Take from me the way of lyeng, & cause thou me to make much of thy lawe.

I haue chosen the waye of truth, and thy iudgementes haue I layed before me.

I haue stycken vnto thy testimonies, O Lorde confounde me not. I wyll runne the waye of thy commaundementes, when thou hast set my herte at lybertie. Teach me O Lorde the waye of thy statutes, and I shal kepe it vnto the ende. Geue me vnderstandynge, and I shall kepe thy lawe, yee I shall kepe it wyth my whole herte. Make me to goin the path of thy commaũdementes, for therin is my delyte. Enclyne my herte vnto thy testimonies, and not to couetousnesse. O turne away myne eyes, lest they beholde vanitie: and quycken thou me in thy waye. O stablyshe thy worde in thy seruaunt that I maye feare the. Take awaye the rebuke that I am afrayed of, for thy iudgementes are good. Beholde, my delyte is in thy commaundementes, O quycken me in thy ryghteousnesse. Let thy louynge mercy come also vnto me, O Lorde, euen thy saluacion accordyng vnto thy word.

So shal I make answere vnto my blasphemers

* Deute. vi. b

* Ge. xlvii. c Job. xxxix. b.

* ps. cxix. b.

phemers, for my trust is in thy worde.

O take not the worde of treuth vtterly out of my mouth, for my hope is in thy iudgementes. So shall I alwaye kepe thy lawe, yee for euer & euer. And I will walke at liberty, for I seke thy commaundemēts. I will speake of thy testimonies also euen before kynges, & will not be ashamed. And my delite shalbe in thy cōmaundementes, which I haue loued. Myne handes also will I lyfte vp vnto thy commaundementes whyche I haue loued, and my studye shalbe in thy statutes. O, thincke vpō thy seruaūt as concernynge thy worde, wherin thou hast caused me to put my trust.

The same is my comforte in my trouble, for thy worde hath quyckened me. The proude haue had me exceadynglye in derision yet haue I not shrynked from thy lawe.

For I remembred thyne euerlastynge iudgementes, O Lorde, and receaued comforte: I am horrible afrayed for the vngodly, that forsake thy lawe. Thy statutes haue bene my songes, in the house of my pylgremage. I haue thought vpon thy name, O Lorde, in the night season, and haue kept thy lawe. Thys I hadde, because I kepte thy cōmaundementes. * Thou arte my portion, O Lorde, I haue promysed to kepe thy lawe. I made myne humble peticion in thy presence with my whole herte, O be mercyfull vnto me accordynge vnto thy worde. I call myne owne wayes to remembraūce, and tourne my fete into thy testimonies. I made haste, and prolonged not the tyme, to kepe thy commaundementes.

The congregacions of the vngodly haue robbed me, but I haue not forgotte thy law. At mydnyght will I ryse, to gyue thankes vnto the, bycause of thy ryghtuous iudgementes. I am a companion of all them that feare the and kepe thy commaundementes. * The earth, O Lorde, is full of thy mercy. O teache me thy statutes.

O Lord, thou hast dealt graciously with thy seruaunt, accordynge vnto thy worde. O learne me true vnderstandynge, and knowledge, for I haue beleued thy cōmaundementes. Before I was troubled, I went wronge, but nowe haue I kept thy worde: * Thou art good and gracious, O teach me thy statutes. The proude haue ymagined a lye agaynst me, but I will kepe thy commaundementes with my whole herte.

Their herte is as fat as brawne, but my delyte hath bene in thy lawe: It is good for me that I haue bene in trouble, that I maye learne thy statutes. The lawe of thy mouth is dearer vnto me, then thousandes of golde and syluer. * Thy hādes haue made me and fashioned me, O geue me vnderstandynge, that I maye learne thy commaundementes. They that feare the, will be glad whē they se me, because I haue put my trust in thy worde. I knowe, O Lorde, that thy iudgementes are ryghte, & that thou of very faythfulnesse haste caused me to be troubled. O Let thy mercyfull kyndnesse be my comforte, accordyng to thy worde vnto thy seruaunte. O let thy louynge mercyes come vnto me, that I may lyue, for thy lawe is my delyte. Let the proude be confounded, for they go wyckedly about to destroye me: but I will be occupyed in thy cōmaundementes. Let soch as feare the, and haue knowen thy testimonies, be turned vnto me. O let myne herte be sounde in thy statutes, that I be not ashamed. Myne soule hath longed for thy saluacion: and I haue a good hope because of thy worde.

Myne eyes longe sore for thy worde, sayenge. O whan wylte thou comforte me.

For I am become lyke a bottell in the smoke, yet do not I forget thy statutes.

How many are the dayes of thy seruaūt? when wylt thou be auēged of them that persecute me? The proude haue dygged pyttes for me, whych are not after thy lawe.

All thy commaūdementes are true, they persecute me falsly, O be thou my helpe.

They had almost made an ende of me vpō earth, but I forsoke not thy cōmaūdementes. O quycke me after thy louyng kyndnes, & so shall I kepe the testimonies of thy mouth.

O Lorde, thy worde endureth for euer in heauen. * Thy truth also remaynyth frō one generacion to another: thou haste layed the foundacion of the earth, and it abydeth.

They continue thys daye accordynge to thyne ordinaunce, for all thynges serue the.

If my delyte had not bene in thy lawe, I shulde haue perysshed in my trouble. I wyl neuer forget thy cōmaundementes, for with them thou hast quickened me. I am thyne, Oh saue me, for I haue sought thy cōmaundementes. The vngodly layed wayte for me to destroye me, but I will consyder thy testimonies. I se that al thynges come to an ende, but thy commaundement is exceadynge broade.  (Lorde) What loue haue I vnto thy lawe! al the daye longe is my studye in it. Thou thorow thy commaundementes hast made me wyser than myne enemyes, for they are euer with me. I haue more vnderstandynge than my teachers, for thy testimonies are my studie. I am wyser then the aged, bycause I kepte thy cōmaūdementes. I haue refrayned my fete from euery euel way, that I may kepe thy worde. I haue not shrynked from thy iudgementes, for thou teachest me. O how swete are thy wordes vnto my throte! Yee sweter than hony vnto my mouth. Thorowe thy commaundementes I get vnder-

O vnderſtandynge, therfoze I hate all wycked
Pſal.xii.c. wayes. * Thy wozde is a lanterne vnto
my fete, and a lyght vnto my pathes. I haue ſwozne and am ſtedfaſtly purpoſed, to kepe thy righteous iudgementes. I am troubled aboue meaſure: quycke me, O Loz-de, accozdynge vnto thy wozde. Let the free wyll offerynges of my mouth pleaſe the,
O Lozde, and teache me thy iudgementes.

כ * My ſoule is alwaye in my hande,
Pſal.xviii.a. xxxix.c. yet do not I forget thy lawe. The vngod-
ly haue layed a ſnare foz me, but yet I warued not I from thy commaundementes. Thy teſtymonies haue I clayned as myne herit-
tage foz euer: and why? they are the very ioye of my hert. I haue applied myne herte to fulfyll thy ſtatutes alwaye, euen vnto the ende. I hate them ꝑ ymagin euell thyn-ges, but thy lawe do I loue. Thou art my defence and ſhylde, and my truſt is in thy wozde. Awaye fro me ye wycked, I will kepe the cõmaundementes of my God.

O ſtablyſhe me accozdinge vnto thy woz-
de, that I maye lyue, and let me not be diſapoynted of my hope. Holde thou me vp, and I ſhall be ſafe: yee my delite ſhall euer be in thy ſtatutes. Thou haſt troden downe
all them that departe from thy ſtatutes, foz
they ymagin, but diſceate. Thou putteſt awaye all the vngodly of ꝑ earth lyke droſſe therfoze I loue thy teſtimonyes. Ry fleſhe tremblyth foz feare of the, and I am afrayed ם of thy iudgementes. I deale with ꝑ thynge that is lawfull & ryght, O gene me not ouer vnto myne oppreſſours. Raſe thou thy ſeruãt to delyte in that which is good, that the proude do me no wzonge. Ryne eyes are waſted awaye with lokynge foz thy health, and foz ꝑ wozde of thy ryghteouſnelle.

O deale wyth thy ſeruaunt accozdynge
vnto thy louynge mercy, and teache me thy ſtatutes. I am thy ſeruaunt, O graunte me vnderſtandinge, that I maye knowe thy teſtimonyes. It is tyme foz the Lozde to laye to thyne hande, foz they haue deſtroyed thy lawe. For I loue thy cõmaundemẽ nt-es aboue gold & ꝓcious ſtone. Therfoze holde I ſtreyght all thy commaundementes
and all falſe wayes I vtterly abhoꝛre.

ר Thy teſtimonyes are wonderfull, ther-foze doth my ſoule kepe them. When thy wozde goeth fozth, it geueth lyght and vnderſtandynge euen vnto ꝑ ſymple. I opẽ-ned my mouth and dzewe in my bzeath, foz
my delyte was in thy commaundementes.

O loke thou vpon me, & be mercyfull vn-
to me, as thou vſeſt to do vnto thoſe ꝑ loue thy name. Oꝛder my ſteppes in thy woz-de, and ſo ſhall no wyckednelle haue dominion ouer me. O delyuer me fro the wzongfous dealynges of men, and ſo ſhall I kepe thy commaundemẽtes. Shewe the lyght of thy countenaunce vpon thy ſeruaunt, and teache me thy ſtatutes. Myne eyes guſhe out wyth watee, becauſe men kepe not thy lawe. Ryghteous art thou, O Lozde, and ש true is thy iudgement. The teſtimonies that thou haſt commaunded are exceadynge
ryghteous and true. * Ry zele hath euen *Pſ.cxix.b.
conſumed me, becauſe myne enemyes haue Iohn.ii.b.
fozgotte thy wozdes. * Thy wozde is tried ‡ Pſal. xc.b.
to the vttermoſt, and thy ſeruãte loueth it. and.xviij.c.

I am ſmall and of no reputacyon, yet do not I fozget thy commaundementes. The righteouſneſſe is an euerlaſtinge righteouſnes, and thy lawe is the trueth. Trouble and heuynelle haue taken holde vpon me, yet is my delyte in thy cõmaundemẽtes. The ryghteouſneſſe of thy teſtimonyes is euerla-ſtynge, O graunte me vnderſtandynge, & I ת ſhall lyue. I call wt my whole hert, heare me, O Lozd, I will kepe thy ſtatutes. Yee euen vpõ the do I call, helpe me, and I ſhall
kepe thy teſtimonies. Early in the moz-nynge do I crye vnto the, foz in thy wozd is my truſt. Ryne eyes preuente the nyght watches, ꝑ I myght be occupied in thy woz-
des. Heare my voyce, O Lozd, accozdinge vnto thy louynge kyndneſſe: quycken me ac-cozdynge as thou art wont. They dzawe
nye that of malice perſecute me, and are farre
from thy lawe. Be thou nye at hande, O ו
Lozde, foz all thy cõmaundemẽtes are true.

As concernynge thy teſtimonyes, I haue
knowne longe lens, that thou haſt grounded thẽ foz euer. O conſydze myne aduerſyte,
and delyuer me, foz I do not fozget thy lawe

Iudge thou my cauſe, and delyuer me,
quycken me accozdynge vnto thy wozde.

Healthis farre from the vngodly, foz they regarde not thy ſtatutes. Greate is thy mercy, O Lozde, quycken me as ꝑ art wont.

Many there are that trouble me, and perſecute me, yet do not I ſwarue from thy te-ſtimonyes. It greueth me, when I ſe the tranſgreſſours: becauſe they kepe not thy lawe. Conſydze, O Lozde, howe I loue thy cõmaundementes, O quycken me accozdynge to thy louynge kyndneſſe. Thy woz-de is true frõ euerlaſtynge, all ꝑ iudgemẽtes
of thy ryghteouſneſſe endure foz euer more. ל

Pzynces haue perſecuted me wythout
cauſe, but my herte ſtandeth in awe of thy wozdes. * I am as glad of thy wozde, as *Eſa.ix.a.
one that kyndeth greate ſpoyles. As foz lyes, I hate and abhoꝛre them, but thy la we do I loue. Seuē tymes a daye do I prayſe
the, becauſe of thy ryghteous iudgementes.

Greate is the peace that they haue wyth
loue thy lawe, and they are not offẽded at it.
Lozd, I haue loked foz thy ſauynge health,
and done after thy commaundementes.

Ry ſoule hath kept thy teſtimonyes, and loued thẽ exceadyngly. I haue kept thy cõmaundmentes

maundementes and testimonyes, for all my wayes are before the. Let my complaynte come before ℣, O Lorde, geue me vnderstã-℣ dynge, accordinge vnto thy worde. Oh let my supplicacyõ come before the, delyuer me accordynge to thy worde. Thy lippes shall speake of thy prayse, whan ℣ hast taught me thy statutes. Yee, my tonge shall synge of thy worde, for all thy cõmaundementes are ryghteous. Let thyne hande helpe me, for I haue chosen thy cõmaundemẽtes. I haue longed for thy saluynge health, O Lord, and in thy lawe is my delite. Oh let my soule lyue and it shall prayse ℣, and thy iudgemẽtes shall helpe me. I haue gone astraye, lyke a shepe that is lost: Oh seke thy seruaũt, for I do not forget thy commaundementes.

¶ The.cxx.Psalme.

AD DOMINVM CVM TRIBVLARER.

A songe of the steares.

A * Iohn. 6.a. WHen I was in trouble, * I called vpon the Lorde, and he harde me.

Delyuer my soule, O Lorde, frõ lyenge lyppes, and frõ a disceatfull tonge. What rewarde shall be geuen or done vnto ℣, ℣ false tonge? Euen myghtie ℣ sharpe arowes, wt hote burnynge coales.

Woo is me, ℣ I am constrayned to dwell with ☞ Meiech, and to haue myne habita-☞ cyon amõge the tentes of Cedar. My soule hath longe dwelt amonge them, that be enemyes vnto peace. I laboure for peace, but ℣ when I speake (vnto them) therof, they make them to battayle.

¶ The.cxxj.Psalme.

LEVAVI OCVLOS.

A songe of the steares.

A I Will lyft vp myne eyes vnto the hylles, from whence commeth my helpe?
* Vul.cxxiiij 2. * My helpe commeth euen from ℣ Lorde, which hath made heauen and earth.

He wyll not suffre thy fote to be moued, and he that kepeth the, wyll not slepe.

* Esa.5.g. * Beholde, he that kepeth Israel, shall neyther slombre nor slepe. The Lorde hym selfe is thy keper, ℣ Lorde is thy defence vpõ thy ryght hande. So that the sunne shall not burne the by daye, neyther the moone by nyght. The Lorde shall preserue the from all euell, yee it is euen he that shall kepe thy soule. The Lorde shall preserue thy goynge out and thy commynge in, from thys tyme forth for euer more.

¶ The.cxxij.Psalme.

LETATVS SVM.

A songe of the steares of Dauid.

A I Was glad, when they sayde vnto me:
* Esa.2.a. Mich.iiij.a. * we will go into the house of ℣ Lord. Our fete shall stande in thy gates, O Ierusalem. Ierusalem is buylded as a cytie, ℣ is at vnite in it selfe. For thyther the trybes go vp, euen ℣ trybes of the Lorde: to testifye vnto Israel, to geue thãkes vnto the name of the Lorde. For there is ℣ seate of iudgement, euen the seate of the house of Dauid. O praye for the peace of Ierusalẽ: they shall prosper that loue the. Peace be within thy walles, and plẽtifulnes wythin thy palaces. For my brethren and companions sakes, I wyll wyshe the prosperite. 15

Yee, because of the house of the Lorde oure God, I wyll seke to do the good.

¶ The.cxxiij.Psalme.

AD TE LEVAVI.

A songe of the steares.

A * Esa.37.a. Esa.38.c. Acto.vij. 6.Dan.ij. VNto the lyft I vp myne eyes, * thou that dwellest in the heauens.

Beholde, euen as the eyes of seruauntes loke vnto the hãde of their maisters: and as the eyes of a mayden vnto the hande of her maistresse, euen so our eyes wayte vpõ the Lorde oure God, vntyll he haue mercy vpon vs. Haue mercy vpon vs, O Lorde, haue mercy vpon vs, for we are vtterly despysed. Oure soule is fylled wyth the scornefull reproffe of the welthy, and wyth the despitefulnesse of the proude.

¶ The.cxxiiij.Psalme.

NISI QVIA DOMINVS.

A songe of the steares of Dauid.

A * Psal.xxiij IF the Lorde hym selfe had not bene of our syde (nowe maye Israel saye) If the Lord hym selfe had not bene of our syde wh̃ me rose vp agaynst vs. * They had swalowed vs vp quycke, wh̃ they were so wrathfully displeased at vs. Yee, the waters had drowned vs, and ℣ streame had gone ouer oure soule. The depe waters of the proude had gone euen ouer our soule.

But praysed be ℣ Lorde, wh̃ych hath not geuen vs ouer for a praye vnto their teeth.

Our soule is escaped, euen as a byrde out of the snare of the fouler: the snare is broke, and we are holpened. * Our helpe stan-
* Psal.xxiij dethin the name of the Lorde, wh̃ych hath made heauen and earth.

¶ The.cxxv.Psalme.

QVI CONFIDVNT.

A songe of the steares.

A * Psal.xiij THey that * put their trust in ℣ Lorde, shalbe euen as ℣ mount Syon, which maye not be remoued, but standeth fast for euer. The hylles stande about Ie-rusalem, euen so standeth the Lorde rounde about hys people, from thys tyme forth for ☞ euermore. For ☞ the rod of the vngodly cometh not into the lot of the ryghteous, lest the ryghteous put their hãde vnto wyckednesse. Do well, O Lorde, vnto those that be good and true of herte. As for soche as turne backe vnto their awne wyckednesse, ℣ Lorde, shall leade them forth wyth the euyll doers, but * peace shall be vpon Israel. * Gala.vi.

¶ The

¶ The.cxxvj. Pſalme.

IN CONVERTENDO.

A ſonge of the ſtayres.

A When the Lord turned agayne the captiuyte of Sion, then were we lyke vnto them that dreame. Then was oure mouth fylled with laughter, and oure tonge with iope. Then ſayd they amonge the heathē: the Lorde hath done greate thynges for thē. Yee, the Lorde hath done greate thynges for vs all ready, wherof we reioyce. Turne oure captyuite, O Lorde, as the ryuers in the ſouth.

They that ſowe in teares, ſhall reape in iope. He that nowe goeth in his waye weepynge and beareth forth good ſede, ſhall doubtles come agayne with iope, and bringe his ſheaues with him.

NISI DOMINVS.

A A ſonge of Salomon of the ſtayres.

Except the Lorde buylde the houſe, their laboure is but loſt that buylde it. Except the Lorde kepe the cytie the watchman waketh but in vayne. * It is but loſt labonre that ye haſte to ryſe vp early, and ſo late take reſt, and eate the breade of carefulneſſe: for ſo he gyueth his beloued ſleape. Lo, chyldren and the frute of the wombe are an herytage and gyfte, that commeth of the Lorde. Lyke as the arowes in the hande of the gyaunt, euen ſo are the yonge chyldren. Happy is the man, that hath his quyuer full of them, they ſhall not be aſhamed, when they ſpeake with theyr enemyes in the gate.

* Pſal.lxxvij.c.

¶ The.cxxviij. Pſalme.

BEATI OMNES.

A ſonge of the ſtayres.

A Bleſſed are all they that * feare ꝑ Lord, and walke in his wayes. For thou ſhalt eate the laboures of thyne hādes O well is the, and happy ſhalt thou be.

* Deut.viii.b

Thy wyfe ſhalbe as the frutefull vyne vpon the walles of thy houſe. Thy chyldren lyke the Oliue braſiches roūde aboute thy table. Lo, thus ſhall the man be bleſſed, ꝑ feareth the Lorde. The Lorde frome out of yon ſhall ſo bleſſe the, ꝑ thou ſhalt ſe Jeruſalem in proſperyte all thy lyfe lōge.

Yee that thou ſhalt ſe * thy chylders chyldren, and peace vpon Iſrael.

* Gene.l.b. Exo.xiii.b. Deu.viii.a.

¶ The.cxxix. Pſalme.

SEPE EXPVGNAVERVNT.

A ſonge of the ſtayres.

A Many a tyme haue they fought agaynſt me fro my youth vp (maye Iſrael nowe ſaye.) Yee, many a tyme haue they vexed me fro my youth vp, but they haue not preuayled agaynſt me. The plowers plowed vpō my backe, & made longe forowes. But the ryghteous Lorde hath hewen the ſnares of the vngodly in peces. Let them be confounded and turned backwarde, as many as haue euyll will at Sion. Let them be euen as the graſſe growynge vpon the houſe toppes, whych wythereth afore it be plucked vp. Wherof the mower fylleth not his hande, nether he that byndeth vp the ſheaues, his boſome.

So that they whych go by, ſaye not ſo moche: as the Lorde proſpere you, we wyſh you good lucke in the name of the Lorde.

¶ The.cxxx. Pſalme.

DE PROFVNDIS.

A ſonge of the ſtayres.

A Out of the depe haue I called vnto the O Lorde, Lorde heare my voyce. Oh let thyne eares conſyder well the voyce of my complaynte. * If thou Lorde wylt be extreme to marche what is done amyſſe, Oh Lorde who maye abyde it?

* Job.ix.a. * Pſal.cxliii.a.

For there is mercy with the, therfore ſhalt thou be feared. I loke for the Lord, my ſoule doth wayte for him, in his worde is my truſt. My ſoule fleythe vnto the Lorde, before the morynge watche (I ſaye) before the morynge watche: O Iſrael truſt in the Lorde, for with the Lorde there is mercy, and with him is plenteous redempcyon. And he ſhall redeme Iſrael, from all his ſynnes.

¶ The.cxxxi. Pſalme.

DOMINE NON EST EXALTATVM.

Dauids ſonge of the ſtayres.

A Lorde, I am not hye mynded, I haue no proude lookes. * I do not exercyſe my ſelfe in greate matters, which are to hye for me. But I refrayne my ſoule and kepe it lowe, lyke as a chylde that is weaned frō his mother: yee, my ſoule is euen as a weaned chylde. O Iſrael truſt in the Lorde, from thys tyme forth for euermore.

* Eccl.iii.c.

¶ The.cxxxii. Pſalme.

MEMENTO DOMINE DAVID.

A ſonge of the ſtayres.

A Lorde, remembre Dauid, and all his trouble. * howe he ſwore vnto the Lorde, and vowed a vowe vnto the almyghtye God of Jacob: I wyll not come wythin the tabernacle of my houſe, nor clyme vp in to my bedd. I wyll not ſuffre myne eyes to ſlepe, nor myne eye lyddes to ſlōber or (nether the temples of my heade to take anye reſt.) Vntill I fynde out a place for ꝑ tēple of ꝑ Lorde, an habitaciō for the myghtye God of Jacob. Lo, we harde of the ſame at Ephrata, and founde it in the wood. We wyll go in to his tabernacle, and fall lowe on oure knees before his fote ſtole. * Aryſe, O Lord, into thy reſtynge place, thou and the arcke of thy ſtrength.

* ii.reg. xxv. iiii.d. i.para. xvii.b

Let thy Prieſtes be clothed wyth ryghteouſneſſe, & let thy ſayncters ſynge with ioyfulneſſe. For thy ſeruaunt Dauids ſake, turne not awaye ꝑ preſence of thyne anoynted. * The Lorde hath made a faythfull othe vnto Dauid, & he ſhall not ſhrynke from it: * Of the frute of thy body ſhall I ſet vpon thy ſeate. If thy chyldren wyll kepe my couenaunt, and my teſtimonyes that I ſhall lerne them: theyr chyldren alſo ſhall ſyt vpon thy ſeate for euermore. For the Lord hath choſen Sion, to hyr an habitacio for him ſelfe hath he lōged for her. ☞ This ſhalbe my reſt for euer, here wyll I dwell, for I haue a delyte therin. I wyll bleſſe her vytayles wyth increaſſe, & will ſatiſfye her poore wyth bread. ☞ I will decke her Prieſtes wyth health, and her ſayncters ſhall reioyſe and ſynge. There ſhall I make * ☞ the horne of Dauid to flouryſh. I haue ordened a lāterne for myne anoynted. As for hys enemyes, I ſhall clothe them wyth ſhame, but vpon hym ſelfe ſhall hys crowne flouryſhe.

¶ The.cxxxiij. Pſalme.

ECCE QVAM BONVM

A ſonge of the ſtayres of Dauid.

BEholde, howe good and ioyfull a thing it is, * brethren to dwell together in vnitye. It is lyke the precyous oyntment vpō ꝑ heade, that ranne downe vnto the beerd: euen vnto Aarons beerd, and wēte downe to the skyrtes of hys clothynge. Lyke the dewe of Hermon, which fell vpon the hyll of Sion.

For there ꝑ Lord promiſed hys bleſſynge, and lyfe for euermore.

¶ The.cxxxiiij. Pſalme.

ECCE NVNC BENEDICITE.

A ſonge of the ſtayres.

BEholde, (awake) * prayſe the Lorde, all yee ſeruauntes of the Lorde, yee ꝑ by nyght ſtande in the houſe of the Lorde, * (euen in the courtes of the houſe of our God.)

* Lyft vp youre handes in the Sanctuary, & prayſe the Lorde. * The Lorde that made heauen and earth, gyue the bleſſynge out of Sion.

¶ The.cxxxv. Pſalme.

LAVDATE NOMEN DOMINI.

O * prayſe the Lorde laude ye the name of the Lorde, prayſe it Ye ſeruauntes of the Lorde. Ye that ſtande in the houſe of the Lorde, in the courtes of the houſe of oure God. O prayſe the Lorde, for ꝑ Lord is gracious: O ſynge prayſes vnto his name, for it is louely. * For why? ꝑ Lorde hath choſen Jacob vnto hym ſelfe, & Iſrael for hys awne poſſeſſyon. For I knowe ꝑ the Lorde is greate, and that oure Lorde is aboue all goddes. Whatſoeuer the Lorde pleaſed, that dyd he in heauen and in earth, in the ſee, & in all deape places: * He bringeth forth the cloudes from the endes of the worlde, & ſendithe forth the lyghteninges with the rayne, bryngynge the wyndes out of hys treaſuryes. He * ſmote the fyrſt borne of Egypte, both of man & of beaſt: * He hath ſent tokens and wonders into the myddeſt of the, O thou lande of Egypte, vpon Pharao and all hys ſeruauntes. * He ſmote diuerſe nacyons, and ſlewe myghtye kynges: * Sehon kynge of ꝑ Amorytes, and Og the kinge of Basan, & all ꝑ kingdomes of Canaan. * And gaue theyr lande to be an heritage, euē an heritage vnto Iſrael his people. Thy name, O Lorde, endureth for euer, ſo doth thy memoryall, O Lorde, from one generacyō to another. * For the Lord wyll auenge hys people, & be gracyous vnto his ſeruauntes. * As for the ymages of the heathen, they are but ſyluer and golde, the worcke of mens handes. They haue mouthes, & ſpeake not: eyes haue they, but they ſe not. They haue eares, and yet they heare not, nether is there any breth in theyr mouthes. They that make them, are lyke vnto them, and ſo are all they that put theyr truſt in them. Prayſe the Lorde ye houſe of Iſrael, prayſe the Lorde ye houſe of Aarō.

Prayſe the Lorde ye houſe of Leui, ye that feare the Lorde, prayſe the Lorde.

Prayſed be ꝑ Lord out of Sion, which dwelleth at Jeruſalem. Halleluiah.

¶ The.cxxxvj. Pſalme.

CONFITEMINI DOMINO.

O * geue thankes vnto the Lorde, for he is gracyous, and hys mercy endureth for euer. O geue thankes vnto the God of all goddes, for hys mercy endureth for euer. O thāke the Lord of all Lordes, for hys mercy endureth for euer. * Wyrch only doth greate wonders, for his mercy endureth for euer. Which by his excellent wyſdome made the heauēs, for hys mercy endureth for euer. Wyrch layed out the earth aboue the waters, for hys mercy endureth for euer. * Wyrch hath made greate lyghtes, for hys mercy endureth for euer. The ſunne to rule the daye, for hys mercy endureth for euer. The moone and the ſtarres to gouerne the nyght, for his mercy endureth for euer. * Wyrch ſmote Egypt wyth theyr fyrſt borne, for hys mercy endureth for euer. And brought out Iſrael from amonge them, for hys mercy endureth for euer. Wyth a myghtye hande and ſtretched out arme, for hys mercy endureth for euer. Wyrch deuyded the reed ſee into partes, for hys mercy endureth for euer.

* And made Iſrael to go thorowe the myddeſt of it, for hys mercy endureth for euer. But as for Pharao and hys hooſt, he ouerthrewe them in the reed ſee, for hys mercy endureth for euer.

* Wyrch

* Which led his people thorowe the wil-
derneſſe, for hys mercy endureth for euer.
* Which ſmote great kynges: for his mercy endureth for euer. Yee, & ſlue myghtye
kynges: for his mercy endureth for euer.
* Sehon kynge of the Amorites: for hys mercy endureth for euer. And Og ꝑ kyng of Basan: for hys mercy endureth for euer.
And gaue away theyr lande for an heritage: for his mercy endureth for euer. Euen for an heritage vnto Israel hys ſeruaũt: for hys mercy endureth for euer. Which remẽ bred vs, whẽ we were in trouble: for his mercy endureth for euer. And hath delyuered vs frõ oure enemyes: for his mercy endureth
for euer. * Which geueth fode vnto all fleſhe: for hys mercy endureth for euer.
O geue thanckes vnto the God of heauẽ,
for hys mercy endureth for euer. ℣ (O geue
thankes to the Lorde of Lordes, for hys mercye endureth for euer.

¶ The.cxxxvij.Pſalme. ℣ (Of Jeremy.)

SVPER FLVMINA.

BY the waters of * Babilon we ſat
downe and weapte, when we remẽbred ℣ (the o) Syon. As for oure harpes, we hãged thẽ vp vpõ the trees, ꝑ are therin. For they that led vs away captyue, requyred of vs
then a ſonge & melody in our heuynes: ſynge vs one of the ſonges of Sion. Howe ſhall
we ſynge the Lordes ſonge in a ſtraũge lan-de. If I forget the, O Jeruſalem, let my ryght hande forget her cõnynge. If I do not remẽbre the, let my tong cleue to the rofe
of my mouth: yee, yt I preferre not Jeruſalẽ in my myrth. Remembre the chyldren of
* Edom, O Lorde, in the daye of Jeruſalẽ,
how they layde: downe w̃ it, downe with it:
euen to the grounde. O ☞ daughter of Babylon, waſted with miſerye: yee, happy
ſhall he be, that rewardeth the, as thou haſt ſerued vs. * Bleſſed ſhall he be, that taketh thy chyldren, and throweth thẽ aga-ynſt the ſtones.

¶ The.cxxxviij.pſalme:

CONFITEBOR TIBI,

Of Dauid.

I * Will geue thãkes vnto ꝑ, O Lord,
with my whole hert, euen ☞ before
the goddes, wyll I ſynge prayſe vnto
the. * I wyll worſhippe towarde thy ho-lye tẽple, and prayſe thy name, becauſe of thy louynge kyndneſſe and trueth: for thou haſt
magnifyed thy name and thy worde aboue
all thynges. When I called vpõ the, thou hardeſt me, and endewdeſt my ſoule w̃ moch
ſtrength. ☞ All the kynges of the earth
ſhall prayſe ꝑ, O Lorde, for they haue heard the wordes of thy mouthe. Yee, they ſhall ſynge in the wayes of the Lorde, that great is the glory of the Lorde. * For though ꝑ Lorde be hye, yet hath he reſpecte vnto the lowly: as for the proude, he beholdeth him a farre of. Though I walke in the myddeſt of trouble: yet ſhalt ꝑ refreſſh me: thou ſhalt
ſtretch forth thyne hand vpõ the furiouſnes
of myne enemyes, & thy ryght hãd ſhall ſaue
me. The Lord ſhall make good his louyng kyndneſſe towarde me: yee, thy mercy, O Lorde, endureth for euer, * deſpyſe not then
the worckes of thyne awne handes.

¶ The.cxxxix.pſalme.

DOMINE PROBASTI.

To the chaunter, a pſalme of Dauid.

O Lorde, thou haſt ſearched me out, and knowen me. Thou knoweſt my downe ſyttinge and myne vpryſing:
thou vnderſtandeſt my thoughtes longe before. Thou art about my path, and about my bedd: & ſpyeſt out all my wayes. For lo, there is not a worde in my tõge, but ꝑ, O Lorde knoweſt it all together. Thou haſt faſhyoned me behynde and before, and layed thyne hande vpon me. Soch knowledge is to wonderfull & excellent for me: I can not attayne vnto it. * Whyther ſhall I go then frõ thy ſpirite? or whither ſhall I go then frõ thy preſence? If I clyme vp into heauen, thou art ther: yf I go downe to hell thou, art
there alſo. If I take the wynges of the mor-nynge, & remayne in the vttermoſt partes of the ſee. Euen ther alſo ſhall thy hãde lead me: and thy ryght hande ſhall holde me If I ſaye: paraduenture the darckneſſe ſhall couer me, then ſhall my nyght be turned to daye. Yee, the darckenes is no darckenes with the: but the night is all cleare as the daye, the darckenes & lyght (to the) are both a lyke.
For my reynes are thyne, thou haſt coue-red me in my mothers wõbe. I will geue thankes vnto the: for I am fearfully & won-derouſly made: maruelous are thy worckes, & ꝑ my ſoule knoweth right well. Why bones
are not hyd frõ ꝑ, though I be made ſecretly and faſhioned beneth in the earth. Thyne eyes dyd ſe my ſubſtaunce, yet being vnper-fect: & in thy boke were all my mẽbres written. Which daye by daye were faſhyoned, when as yet there was none of thẽ. Howe deare are * thy cõſeils vnto me, O God? O howe great is the ſumme of thẽ? If I tell thẽ, they are mo in nõbre then the ſande: whẽ
I wake vp, I am preſent w̃ the. Wylt ꝑ not ſlaye the wicked, O God: departe from me ye bloude thirſty men. For they ſpeake vnrighteouſly agaynſt the: & thyne enemies take thy name in vayne. Do not I hate the, O Lorde, ꝑ hate the? & am not I grieued with thoſe that ryſe vp agaynſt the? Yee,
I hate them ryght ſore, euen as though they were myne enemyes. * Try me, O God,
and ſeke the grounde of myne hert: proue me
and examen my thoughtes. Loke well yf

there be any waye of wyckednes in me, and leade me in the waye euerlastynge.

¶The.cxl.psalme.

ERIPE ME.

To the chaunter, a psalme of Dauid.

1 DEliuer me, O Lorde, from the euell man, and preserue me from the wycked mā. Which ymagin myschefe in their hertes: and stere vp strife all the daye lōge. They haue sharpened their tōges like
*Roma.iij.c a serpēt: *adders poyson is vnder their lyppes. Sela. Kepe me, O Lorde, from the handes of the vngodly: preserue me from the wycked men, which are purposed to ouerthrowe my goynges. The proude haue layed a snare for me: and spred a net abroad with coardes: yee, & set trappes in my waye Sela. I sayde vnto the Lorde: thou art
25 my God, heare the voyce of my prayers, O Lorde. O Lorde God, thou strēgth of my health, thou hast couered my heed in the day of battayll. Let not the vngodly haue his desyre, O Lorde, let not hys mischeuous ymaginacyon prosper: lest they be to proude.
* Psal.xcj.b Sela. * Let the mischefe of their awne lippes fall vpon the heed of them, that compasse me about. Let hote burninge coales fall vpon them: let them be cast into the fyer and into ꝑ pyt: ꝑ they neuer ryse vp againe.

A mā full of wordes shal not prosper vpō the erth: euell shall hunte the wycked person, to ouerthrowe hym. Sure I am, that the Lorde will auenge the poore, and maintayne the cause of ꝑ helpeles. The righteous also shall geue thankes vnto thy name, and the iust shall contynue in thy syght.

¶The.cxlj.psalme.

DOMINE CLAMAVI.

A psalme of Dauid.

1 LOrde, I call vpon the: haste the vnto me, & consider my voyce, when I crye vnto the. Let my prayer be set forth
* Gro.xxx.b. in thy sight * as the incense: & let the lyftyng vp of my handes be an eueninge sacrifyce.
* Eccl.xxxii.f * Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth & kepe the doze of my lippes. O let not myne herte be inclyned to any euell thynge: let me not be occupyed in vngodly workes, with ꝑ men ꝑ worke wickednesse, & lest I eate of ☞ soch thynges as please the. Let the righteous rather smyte me frendly & reproue me.

But let not ther precious balmes breake myne heed: yee, I will praye yet agaynste theyr wickednesse. Lett theyr iudges be 25 ouerthrowen in stony places: that they may heare my wordes: for they are swete. Our bones lye scatered before the pit, lyke as whē one breaketh and heweth wood vpō ꝑ erth.

But myne eyes looke vnto the, O Lorde God: in the is my trust, Oh cast not out my soule. Kepe me frō ꝑ snare which they haue layed for me: & frō the trappes of ꝑ wicked doers. Let ꝑ vngodly fall into their awne nettes together: and whyle me euer escape them.

¶The.cxlij.psalme.

VOCE MEA AD DOMINVM.

The instruccyon of Dauid, a prayer whan he was in the caue.

I *Cryed vnto the Lorde w̄ my voyce: *pſ.xxxvi.a yee, euen vnto the Lorde dyd I make my supplicacyō. I powred out my complaynte before hym, and shewed hym of my trouble. Whē my spyrite was in heuynesse, thou knewest my path: in the waye wherin I walked haue they preuely layed a snare for me. I loked also vpon my right hande, and se, there was no man that wolde knowe me. I had no place to flee vnto, and no man cared for my soule. I cryed vnto the, O Lorde, and sayde: thou arte my hope, and my porcyon in the lande of the lyuynge.

Consydre my cōplaynte: for I am broughte very lowe. O deliuer me frō my persecutours: for they are to stroge for me. Bringe my soule out of prison, ꝑ I maye geue thankes vnto thy name: which thynge yͤ thou wylt graunte me, then shall the ryghteous resorte vnto my company.

¶The.cxliij.psalme.

DOMINE EXAVDI.

A psalme of Dauid. (when hys awne soune persecuted hym.)

HEare my prayer, O Lorde, and consydre my desyre: herkē vnto me for thy I treuth and righteousnes sake. And entre not into iudgement with thy seruaunt: for * in thy sight shall no man lyuinge be iustifyed. For the enemy hath persecuted my soule: he hath smytē my lyfe downe to ꝑ grounde: he hath layed me in the darckenes, as ꝑ men that haue bene longe deed. Therfore is my spyrite vexed within me: and my herte within me is desolate. *Yet do I remembre the tyme past, I muse vpon all thy workes: yee, I exercyse my selfe in the worckes of thy handes. I streach forth myne hādes vnto the: my soule gaspeth vnto ꝑ as a thyrsty lāde. Selah. * Heare me, O Lorde, & ꝑ soone: for my spyrite waxeth faynte, hide not thy face frō me, lest I be lyke vnto them that go downe into the pyt. O let me *heare * er.xxxviii.a pſal.lxxxviii.a Jere.xxxii.b Joel.ii.c thy louing kindnes by tymes in ꝑ morninge for in the is my trust: shewe ꝑ me the waye ꝑ I should walke in, for I lyft vp my soule vnto the. Deliuer me, O Lorde, from myne enemyes: for I flye vnto the to hyde me.

Teach me to do the thynge ꝑ pleaseth the, for ꝑ art my God, let thy louinge spyrite leade me forthe vnto the lande of ryghteousnes. Quycken me, O Lord, for thy names sake, & for thy ryghteousnes sake bringe my soule out of trouble. And of thy goodnes slaye myne enemyes, and destroye all them that vexe my soule, for I am thy seruaunt.

¶The

¶ The.cxliiij. Pſalme.

BENEDICTVS DOMINVS.

Of Dauid.

A BLeſſed be the Lord my ſtrēgthe, which teacheth * my handes to warre, & my fyngers to fyght. ℣ My hope and my foȝtreſſe, my caſtell, and delyuerer, my defen der in whō I truſt, whych ſubdueth my peo ple that is vnder me. * Lorde, what is mā, that thou haſt ſoch reſpect vnto him? Oȝ the ſonne of man, that thou ſo regardeſt hym?

* ℣ Man is lyke a thynge of naught, his ty me paſſeth away lyke a ſhadowe. B Bowe thy heauens, O Lorde, & come downe, tou
che the mountaynes, & they ſhall ſmoke.

Caſte foȝth the lyghtynynge, & teare thē,
ſhote out thyne arowes, and conſume thē.

Sende downe thyne hande frō aboue, dely
uer me, & take me out of the great waters,
from the hande of ſtraunge chyldȝen,

Whoſe mouth talketh of vanyte, & theyr
ryght hande is a ryght hande of wyckednes.

I wyll ſynge a newe ſonge vnto the, O
God, & ſynge prayſes vnto the vpon a ten ſtrynged lute. Thou that geueſt victoȝy vnto kynges, and haſt delyuered Dauid thy ſeruaunt from the parell of the ſwerde.

Haue me, and delyuer me from the hāde
of ſtraunge chyldȝen, whoſe mouth talketh
of vanite, and theyr ryght hande is a ryght
hande of iniquite. That oure ſonnes maye growe vp as the ponge plantes, & that oure
daughters maye be as the polyſhed cozners
of the temple. * That oure garners may be full and plenteous with all maner of ſto
are: that oure ſhepe maye bryngе foȝth thou ſandes, and ten thouſandes in oure ſtretes.

That oure oxen maye be ſtronge to la boure, that there be no decaye, no leȝynge in to cape yuitie, & no complaynynge in our ſtre
tes. Happye are the people that be in ſoche
a caſe: yee bleſſed are the people, whych haue
the Lorde foȝ theyr God.

¶ The.cxlv. Pſalme.

EXALTABO TE DEVS.

A thankeſgeuynge of Dauid.

I * Wyll magnifye the, O God my kynge, and I wyll prayſe thy name
foȝ euer and euer. Euery daye wyll I geue thāckes vnto the, and prayſe thy name foȝ euer & euer. Greate is the Lorde, & marueloꝰ woȝthy to be pray ſed, there is no ende of hys greatneſſe. One generacyon ſhall prayſe thy woȝkes vnto
another, and declare thy power. As foȝ me I wyll be talkyng of thy woȝſhip, thy glo ry, thy prayſe, & wōderous woȝches. So B that me ſhall ſpeake of the myght of thy mar
uelous actes, and I wyll alſo tell of thy gre
atnes. The memoȝy of all of thyne aboun dant kyndnes ſhalbe ſhewed, and men ſhall
ſynge of thy ryghteouſneſſe. * Thy Lorde
is gracyous and mercyfull, long ſuffeꝛynge,
and of greate goodneſſe. The Lord is lo
uyng vnto euery mā, and hys mercy is ouer
all hys woȝkes. All thy woȝckes prayſe
the, O Lord, and thy ſayncte ſ geue thāckes
vnto the. They ſhewe ſ glory of thy kyng dome, and talke of thy power. That thy ¶ power, thy glory & mightineſſe of thy kyng *Deu.iii.f.
dome, myght be knowne vnto mē. * Thy and.vii.d.
kyngdome is an euerlaſtynge kyngdome, & Luke.i.f.
thy dominiō endureth thoȝowe out all ages.

The Lorde vpholdeth all ſoche as fall, & †Pſal.cxliii.b
lyfteth vp all thoſe that be downe. * The &.c.
eyes of all wayte vpon the, (O Lorde) & thou
geueſt them theyr meate in due ſeaſon.

Thou openeſt thyne hāde, and fylleſt all D
thynges lyuynge wyth plenteouſneſſe.

The Lorde is ryghteous in all his wayes,
and holy in all hys woȝckes. The Lorde is nye vnto all them that * call vpon hym, *Deu.iiii.
yee all ſoche as call vpon hym faythfully.

He wyll fulfyll the delyre of thē that feare
hym, he alſo wyll heare theyr cryе, & will helpe them. The Lorde ꝓſerueth all thē that loue hym, but ſcatereth abroade all the vngodly. ℣ My mouth ſhall ſpeake ſ prayſe
of the Lorde, and let all fleſh geue thankes
vnto hys holy name foȝ euer and euer.

¶ The.cxlvj. Pſalme.

LAVDA ANIMA MEA.

(A pſalme of Aggeus and zachary.)

Halleluiah.

PRayſe ſ Lorde, O my ſoule: whyle A
I lyue will I prayſe the Lorde:
yee as long as * I haue any beyng
e, I will ſynge prayſes vnto my * pſal.cxliii.a God. * O put not youre truſt in Princes, *pſal.cxlvii.a
noȝ in any chylde of man, foȝ there is no hel
pe in them. Foȝ when the breth of mā go eth foȝth * he ſhall turne againe to his earth, * Gene.iii.b.
and then all his thoughtes peryſhe: Bleſ Iob.xxxiiii.c
ſed is he that hath the God of Jacob foȝ hys
helpe, * and whoſe hope is in the Lorde hys * Pſal.xliii.c God. Which made heauen and earth, the ſee, and all that therin is, whych kepeth hys promyſe foȝ euer. Whych helpeth them to ryght that ſuffre wrōge, whych fedeth the B hongrye. The Lorde loſeth mē out of pri ſon, the Lorde geueth ſyght to the blynde.

The Lorde helpeth them vp that are fallē,
the Lorde careth foȝ the ryghteous. The Lorde careth foȝ the ſtraūgers, he defendeth
the fatherleſſe & wyddowe: as foȝ the waye
of the vngodly, he turneth it vpſide downe,

The Lorde thy God, O Sion: ſhall be kynge foȝ euermoȝe, and thoȝowe out all ge neracyons. Halleluiah.

¶ The.cxlvij. Pſalme.

LAVDATE DOMINVM.

O Prayſe the Lord, foȝ it is a good thing A to ſynge prayſe vnto oure God: yee & ioyfull and pleaſaūt thynge is it to be thankfull. The Lorde doth buylde vp Ieruſalem, and ſhall gather to gether the outcaſtes of Iſrael. He healeth thoſe that are broken in harte & gyueth medycyne to heale their ſores. * He telleth the nombre of the ſtarres, and calleth them all by their names.

Greate is oure Lorde, and greate is hys power: yee hys wyſdome is infynite. The Lorde ſetteth vp the meke, and caſteth the vngodly downe to the grounde. * O ſynge vnto the Lorde with thankeſgeuynge, ſynge prayſe vpon the harpe vnto oure God.

Whych couereth the heauen with cloudes, and * prepareth rayne for the earth, and maketh the graſſe to growe vpon the mountaynes. (and herbe for the vſe of men) Whych geueth foode vnto the catell, & * feedeth the yonge rauens that call vpō hym. He hath not pleaſure in the ſtrength of an horſe, neither delyteth he in any mans legges. But the Lordes delyte is in them that feare hym, and put their truſt in hys mercy. Prayſe the Lorde, O Ieruſalē: prayſe thy God, O Sion. For he hath made faſt the barres of thy gates, & hath bleſſed thy children wythin the. He maketh peace in thy borders, and fylleth the with ſ fleure of wheate. He ſendeth forth hys commaundement vpon earth, and hys worde runneth very ſwyftly. He geueth ſnowe lyke wolle, & ſcatereth the horefroſt lyke aſhes. He caſteth forth hys yce lyke morſels. who is able to abyde hys froſt?

He ſendeth out his worde & mealteth the, he bloweth with his wynd, and the waters flowe. He ſheweth hys worde vnto Jacob, hys ſtatutes & ordinaūces vnto Iſrael. He hath not dealte ſo wt anye nacyō, neither haue the heathen knowledge of hys lawes.

Halelujah.

¶ The.cxlviij. Pſalme.

LAVDATE DOMINVM DE CE.

Halelujah.

Prayſe the euerlaſtynge.

PRayſe the Lorde of heauen, prayſe hym in the heygth. Prayſe hym all ye angels of hys, prayſe hym all hys hoſt. Prayſe hym Sunne and Moone, prayſe hym all ye ſtarres and lyght.

Prayſe hym all ye heauens, & ye waters that be (ſ) above the heauens. Let them prayſe ſ name of the Lorde, for (he ſpake the worde, and they were made) * he commaunded, and they were created. He hath made them faſt for euer and euer, he hath geuen them a lawe, whych ſhall not be broken. Prayſe the Lorde vpon earth, ye dragōs, and all deepes. Fyre and hayle, ſnowe and vapours, wynde and ſtorme, fulfyllynge hys worde.

Mountaynes & all hylles, frutefull trees and all Cedres. Beaſtes and all catell, wormes and feathered foules. Kynges of ſ earth and all people, Princes and all iudges of the worlde. Yonge men and maydens, olde men and chyldren: prayſe the name of ſ Lorde, for his name only is excellent, & hys prayſe aboue heauen and earth. He ſhall exalte the horne of hys people, all hys ſayntes ſhall prayſe hym, euen the chyldren of Iſrael, euen the people that ſerueth hym.

Halelujah.

¶ The.cxlix. Pſalme.

CANTATE DOMINO.

Halelujah.

Prayſe the euerlaſtynge.

SYnge vnto the Lorde a newe ſonge, let the congregacyon of ſayntes prayſe hym. Let Iſrael reioyce in him that made hym, and let the chyldren of Sion be ioyfull in their king.

Let thē prayſe his name in ſ dannce, let thē ſynge prayſes vnto hym with tabrette & harpe. For the Lorde hath pleaſure in hys people, and helpeth the meke harted. Let ſ ſayntes be ioyfull with glory, let thē reioyſe in their beddes. Let the prayſes of God be in their mouth, and * a two edged ſwerde in their handes. To be auēged of the heathen, and to rebuke the people. To bynde their kynges in cheynes, and their nobles wt lynkes of yron. * That they maye be auēged of them, as it is wrytten: ſoche honoure haue all hys ſayntes.

Halelujah.

¶ The.cl. Pſalme.

LAVDATE DOMINVM IN.

Halelujah.

PRayſe God (ſ) in his holynes, prayſe hym in the fyrmamēt of his power.

Prayſe hym in hys noble actes, prayſe hym accordynge vnto hys excellent greatneſſe. Prayſe hym in the ſounde of the trompet, prayſe hym vpon the lute & harpe.

Prayſe him in the cymbales and daunſe, prayſe him vpon the ſtrynges and pype.

Prayſe hym vpon the welltuned cymbales, prayſe hym vpon the loude cymbales.

Let euery thynge that hath breth, prayſe the Lorde.

Halelujah.

Prayſe the euerlaſtynge.

¶ The ende of the Pſalter.

¶ The prouerbes of Salomon.

¶ The first Chapter.

¶ The profyte of wysdome. We may not herken vnto the bolsterous pronuncacyon and intycemēt of synners. Wysdome complayneth her to be despysed of all men, and prophecyeth destruccyon vnto her despysers.

THe prouerbes of Salomon, the sonne of Dauid kynge of Israel: to learne wisdome, & to perceaue the instruccyon, and to perceaue the wordes of vnderstondynge: & therby to receaue prudence, rygh-teousnes, iudgement and equite. That the very symple myght haue wyt, and ỹ the ponge me̅ myght haue knowledge and true vnder-stādyng. By hearing the wise mā shall come by more wysdome: and he ỹ is endewed vñ vnderstādyng shal optayn wit to perceaue a parable, & the interpretacyon therof, ỹ wor-des of the wyse, & the darcke speaches of the same. * The feare of the Lorde is the begyn-nyng of wysdome. But fooles despyse wys-dome & instruccion. ¶ My sonne, heare thy fa-thers doctrine: & forsake not the lawe of thy mother: for that shall bringe grace vnto thy heed, and shalbe as a cheyne about thy neck. ¶ My sonne, cōsente not vnto synners, yf they entise the, & saye: come with vs, we will laye wayte for blonde, & lurcke preuely for the in-nocent without a cause: we shall * swalowe them vp lyke the hell, & deuoure them quycke and hole, as those ỹ go downe into the pyt. So shall we fynde all maner of costelye ry-ches, & fill our houses vñ spoyles. Cast in thy lot amōg vs: & let vs haue all one purse. ¶ My sonne, walke not thou with thē: refrayne thy fote frō their waye. For * their fete runne to euell: & are hasty to shed blond. But in vayn is ỹ net laied forth before ỹ byrdes eyes: yee they thē selues laye wayte one for anothers blond & one of thē wold slepe another. These are ỹ wayes of all such as be couetous, ỹ one wold raupsh anothers lyfe. * Wisdome cry-eth wout, & putteth forth her voyce in ỹ stre-tes. She calleth before the cōgregacyon in the open gates, & sheweth her wordes thorow ỹ citye, saying: O ye childre, how lōge wyll ye loue childishnes? how lōge wyll ỹ scorners delyte in scorning, & the vnwyse be enemyes vnto knowledge? O turne you vnto my cor-rection: lo, I wyll expresse my mynde vnto you, & make you vnderstande my wordes. * I haue called, & ye refused it: I haue stret-ched out my hande: & no mā regarded it: but all my cōsels haue ye despised: & set my cor-rection at nought. Therfore shall I also laugh in youre destruccion, & mocke you, when that thinge that ye feare cōmeth vpon you: euen when the thynge that ye be afrayed of, fal-leth in sodenly lyke a storme, & your misery lyke a tempest: yee, when trouble & beanes cō-meth vpon you. Then shal they call vpō me, but I wyll not heare: they shall seke me ear-ly, but they shall not fynde me. And that be-cause they hated knowledge, & receaued not the feare of the Lorde: but abhorred my cōn-cell, and despysed all my correccion. Therfo-re shall they eate the frutes of their awne waye, & be filled with their awne inuencions: for the turnynge away of the vnwyse shall slaye thē, and the prosperytie of fooles shalbe their awne destruccyon. * But whoso harke-neth vnto me, shall dwell safely, and be sure from any feare of euyll.

¶ The ij. Chapter.

¶ Wysdome is to be embraced and set by. And an aduouterous woman is to be eschued.

MY sonne, yf thou wilt receaue my wor-des, and kepe my commaundemētes by the, that thou wylt enclyne thyne eare vnto wysdome, applye thyne hert then to vnderstandynge. For yf thou cryest after wisdome, and callest for knowledge: yf thou seekest after her as after money, and dyggest for her as for treasure, then shalt thou vnder-stande the feare of the Lorde, and fynde the knowledge of God. * For it is the Lorde ỹ geueth wisdome, out of his mouth commeth knowledge and vnderstandynge. He hydeth vp healthe for the rygheous. He preserueth the welfare of the ryghteous, and defendeth them that walke synceirly: he kepeth them in the ryght pathe, and preserueth the waye of soche as serue hym with godlynesse. Then shalt thou vnderstande ryghteousnesse, iud-ment, and equyte: yee, and euery good path. Yf wysdome entre into thyne herte, and thy soule delyte in knowledge: then shall coun-cell preserue the, and vnderstandynge shall kepe the. That thou mayest be delyuered frō the euell waye, and from the man that spea-keth frowarde thinges. From soche as leaue the bye strete, & walke in the wayes of dar-cheneesse: which reioyse in doynge euell: and delyte in wycked thynges: whose wayes are croked, and they frowarde in their pathes. That thou mayest be delyuered also * frō the straūge womā, and frō her that is not thyne awne: which geueth swete wordes, forsa-keth the husbande of her youth, & forgetteth the conuenaunt of her God. For her house is enclyned vnto death, & her pathes vnto hell. All they ỹ go vnto her come not agayn, ne-ther take they holde of ỹ waye of lyfe. Ther-fore, walke ỹ in the waye of soch as be ver-tuous, and kepe the pathes of the ryghtuous. For the iust shall dwell in the lāde: and they that be perfecte shall remayne in it: but the vngodly shalbe rotted out of the lande: and ỹ wycked doers shalbe rotted out of it.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

¶ The commaundementes of god must be diligently regarded and obserued.

A * Deute.vi.a

MY sonne, * forget not thou my lawe, but let ꝙ thyne hert kepe my commaundementes. For they shall prolonge the dayes & yeres of thy lyfe, and bringe ꝙ peace. Let mercy and faythfulnes neuer go frō the: bynde them about thy necke, and wryte thē in the tables of thyne herte. So shalt ꝙ fynde fauour & good vnderstādyng, in the syght of God and men. Put thy trust in God with all thyne herte: and leane not vnto thyne awne witte. In all thy wayes haue respecte vnto hym: & he shall ordre thy goynges. * Be not wyse in thyne awne conceate: but feare the Lorde, and departe from euell: so shall thy

B * Ecc.v.c Rom.xij.c

(☞ ☞ nauell be whole, and thy bones stronge.

(☞ ☞ * Honoure the Lord wt thy substaunce: and with thy firstlinges of all thyne encrease ✠ (geue vnto the poore:) so shall thy barnes be fylled with plenteousnesse: and thy presses shall rowe ouer with swete wyne. ¶ My sonne, despyse not the chastenynge of the Lorde, nether faynte whē thou art rebuked of hym.

‡ Deb.xii.b Deute.xxvi.a Mala.ij.b Ecc.xxix.c. and.xxxiij.c

* Hebr. xij.b. Apoc.iii.b

* For whom the Lorde loueth, hym he chasteneth, and yet delyteth in him, euen as a father in his awne sonne. Well is him that findeth wysdome, and optayneth vnderstandinge: for the getting of it is better then any marchaundise of syluer, and the profet of it is better then golde. * Wysdome is more worth then precious stones: and all the thinges that thou canst desire are not to be compared vnto her. ¶ Upon her ryght hande is longe lyfe, and vpon her left hande is riches and honour. Her wayes are pleasaut wayes and all her pathes are peaceable. She is a

C * Pro. viij.a

* Gene.ij.b

*tree of lyfe to them that laye hold vpō her, and blessed is he that kepeth her fast.

With wysdome hath the Lorde layed the foundacion of the erth: and thorowe vnderstandinge hath he stablysshed the heauens. Thorowe his wisdome the deapthes breake vp, and the cloudes dropp downe the dew.

¶ My sonne, let not these thynges departe from thyne eyes: but kepe my lawe and my councell, that thou mayest haue the pleasure of longe lyfe and vnderstandynge: for they shalbe lyfe vnto my soule, & grace vnto my mouth. Then shalt thou walke safely in thy waye: and thy fote shall not stomble. * If ꝙ slepest, thou shalt nott be afrayed: but shalt take thy rest, and slepe swetely. Thou nedest

* Pro.vi.b

D not to be afrayed of any soden feare, nether for the vyolent ruthynge in of the vngodly when it commeth. For the Lorde shall stode by thy syde, and kepe thy fote, that thou be not taken. Withdrawe no good thinge from them that haue nede, so longe as thyne hand is able to do it. Saye not vnto thy neyghboure: go thy waye, & come agayne, to morowe wyll I geue the: where as thou haste nowe to geue hym. Intende no harme vnto thy neyghboure, seynge he dothe dwell in rest by the. Stryue not lyghtely with anye man without cause, where as he hathe done the no harme. * Folowe not a wicked mā, * Pro.i.a and chose none of hys wayes: for the Lorde abhorreth the frowarde: but hys councell is amonge ꝙ ryghteous. The curse of the Lorde is in the house of the vngodly: but he blesseth the dwellynges of the ryghteous. As for the scornefull dothe he laugh them to scorne: but he geueth grace vnto the lowly. The wise shall haue honour in possession: but shame is the promocion that fooles shall haue.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

¶ Wysdome and her frutes ought to be searched.

HEare, O ye chyldren, the fatherly exhortacyon, and take good heade, that ye maye lerne wysdome. For I haue geuen you a good doctryne, forsake nott ye my lawe. For when I my selfe was my fathers deare sonne, and tenderly beloued of my mother: he taught me also, and sayde vnto me: * Lett thyne herte receaue my wordes, * Deu.vi. vi.c.xxxij.d kepe my commaundementes, and thou shalt lyue. Get the wysdome: and get the vnderstanding: forget not ꝙ wordes of my mouth, and chrynke not from them. Forsake her not and she shall preserue the: loue her, and she shall kepe the. The chefe poynte of wysdome is, that thou be wyllynge to optayne wysdome: and before all thy goodes to gett the vnderstandynge. * Make moche of her and she shall promote the: yee, yf thou embrace her, she shall bringe the vnto honoure.

A

B * Deu.xvi

She shall make the a graceous herd, and garnysshe the with a crowne of glory. Heare my sonne, and receaue my wordes and the yeares of thy lyfe shall be many. I haue shewed the, the waye of wysdome, and ledd the into the ryght pathes. So that yf thou goest therin, there shall no straytenes hynder the: and when thou runnest, thou shalte not fall. Take fast golde of doctryne, and let her nott go: kepe her, for she is thy lyfe. * Come nott in the pathe of the vngodly: and walke nott in the waye of the wycked. Abhorre it, and go not therin: departe aside, and passe ouer by it. For they cannot slepe, excepte they haue fyrst done some myschefe: nether take they anye reste, excepte they haue fyrst done some harme. For they eate the breade of wyckednesse, and drynche the wyne of robberye.

C * Pfal.j and.xxxvij.i

The pathe of the ryghtewes shyneth as the lyght, that is euer brighter and brighter vnto the perfect daye. But the waye of the vngodly is as the darcknesse: they knowe nott where they fall. * My sonne, marche my wordes, and enclyne thyne eare vnto my sayinges. Let the not departe from thyne eyes: but kepe them euen in the myddest of thyne herte.

D * Deu.xi and.xl.i

herte. For they are lyke vnto all thoſe that fynde the, and health vnto all theyr bodyes.

Kepe thyne herte with all diligẽce, for there vpon hangeth lyfe. Put awaye from the a frowarde mouth, & let the lyppes of ſclaunder be farre from the. Let thyne eyes beholde the thyng yͭ is ryght, and let thyne eye lydes loke ſtrayght before the. Poyſe the path of thy fete, and let all thy wayes be ordred a ryght. * Turne not aſyde, neither to yͤ ryght hande nor to the lefte, but withholde thy fote from euell. (For the Lorde knoweth the wayes that are on the ryght hande. As for the wayes that be on the lefte hande, they be frowarde. For he ſhall directe thy goynges, and thy wayes ſhall be guyde in peace.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ He warneth to eſchue and flee whordome. He forbyddeth prodigalitie and waſteull ſpending. He wylleth ne to lyue of oure awne laboures, ayen muſt loue theyr wyues.

MY ſonne, geue hede vnto my wyſdome, and bowe thyne eare vnto my prudence: that thou mayeſt regarde good councel, and that thy lippes maye kepe knowledge. (Applye not thou thy ſelfe to the diſcretfulneſſe of a woman) * For yͤ lyppes of an harlot are a droppyng honycombe and her throte is more glatterynge then oyle. But at the laſt ſhe is as bytter as wormwod, and (her tonge) as ſharpe as a twoedged ſwerde. Her fete go downe vnto death and her ſteppes pearſe thorowe vnto hell. Parchaũce thou dwellynge with her wylt ponder the path of lyfe: ſo vnſtedfaſt are her wayes, yͭ thou canſt not knowe the. Heare me nowe therfore (O my ſonnes) & departe not frõ the wordes of my mouth. Kepe thy waye farre from her, and come not nye the dores of her houſe. That thou gene not thy ſtrength vnto other, & thy yeares to yͤ cruell. That other men be not fylled with thy goodes, and that thy labours come not in a ſtraunge houſe. Yee that thou mourne not at the laſt (when thou haſt ſpent thy body and luſty greane youth) and the ſaye: Alas, why hated I nourtoure: why bid my herte deſpiſe correction? Wherfore was not I obedient vnto the voyce of my teachers, and herkened not vnto them that inſourmed me? I am come almoſt into all miſfortune, in the myddeſt of the multitude and cõgregacion. Drinche of the water, of thyne awne well and of yͤ ryuers that runne out of thyne awne ſpringes. Let thy welles flowe out abroade, that there may be ryuers of water in the ſtretes: but let the be onely thyne awne, and not ſtraungers with the. Let thy well be bleſſed and be glad with the wyfe of thy youth. Louynge is the hynde, and frendly is the Roe: let her breſtes alwaye ſatisfye the, and holde the euer conteñ with her loue. Why ſonne, why wylt thou haue pleaſure in an harlot, & embrace the boſome of another woman? * For euery mans wayes are open in the ſyght of the Lorde, and he poyſeth all theyr goynges. The wycked dneſſe of the vngodly ſhall catch hym ſelfe, and with the ſnares of hys awne ſynnes ſhall he be trapped. He ſhall dye without amendement, and for hys greate folyſhneſſe he ſhall go aſtraye.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ The ſlouthfull and lougyſh is pricked and ſtyrred to worche. The ſlaunderer is reproued. Aduoutrye ought to be earneſtly auoyded.

MY ſonne * yf yͭ be ſuertye for thy neyghboure, and haſt faſtened thyne hãd for another man, thou art bounde wͭ thyne awne wordes, and taken with thine awne ſpeache. Therfore, my ſonne, do thys & thou ſhalt be diſcharged: whẽ thou art come into thy neighbours daũger. Goo thy wayes then ſoone, bable thy ſelfe, and with thy frendes intreate thy creditour: let not thyne eyes ſlepe, ner thyne eye lydes ſlomber. Haue thy ſelfe as a doo from the hande of the huntre, & as a byrde from the hande of the fouler. Go to the Emmet (thou ſlougard) conſyder her wayes & lerne to be wyſe. She hath no guyde, no ouerſear nor ruler: yet in yͤ Sõmer ſhe prouideth her meate, and gathereth her fode to gether in the harueſt. * Howe longe wylt thou ſlepe, thou ſlougyſh man? When wylt thou aryſe out of thy ſlepe? Yee ſlepe on ſtyll a lytle, ſlõber a lytle, foulde thyne handes together yet a lytle, that yͭ mayeſt ſlepe: ſo ſhall powerty come vnto the as one that trauayleth by the waye, & neceſſyte like a weapened man. (But yͤ thou benot ſlougyſhfull, thy harueſt ſhall comen as a ſpringynge well, & powerty ſhall fare farre from the.) An vngodly perſon, a wycked mã goeth with a frowarde mouth he wynckeyth with his eyes, he tokeneth with hys fete, he poynteth with hys fyngers, he is euer ymagenynge myſchefe, and frowardneſſe in hys herte, & cauſeth diſcorde. Therfore ſhall hys deſtruccyon come haſtily vpon him, ſodenly ſhall he be all to broken, and not be healed. * Theſe ſyxe thynges doth the Lorde hate, and the ſeuenth he veterly abhorreth: A proude looke a lyinge tõge, handes yͭ ſhed innocent bloude, an hecte that goeth aboute wyth wycked ymaginacyons * fete that be ſwyfte in rennynge to do myſchefe, a falſe wytneſſe that bringeth vp lyes, and ſoche one as ſoweth diſcorde amonge brethren.

¶ My ſonne, kepe thy fathers commaundemẽt, and forſake not the lawe of thy mother. Put the vp together in thyne herte, and bynde the aboute thy neck. That they may leade the where thou goeſt, preſerue the whẽ thou art a ſlepe, and that when yͭ awakeſt, thou mayeſt talke of them. For * the commaundement is a lanterne, and the lawe a lyght: yee chaſtenyng and nourtoure is the waye of lyfe that they may kepe the from * the euell woman, and from the flatteryng tonge of yͤ harlot:

* Pro.i.a.
* Pro.v.b. vi.d. vii.b.
* Pro.vi.a.
* Pro.vii.b.
* Pro.vii.d.
* Pro.xv.b.
* Pro.vi.a.
* Pro.vii.a.

harlote: that thou lust not after her beutye in thyne herte, and lest thou be taken with her fayre lookes. An harlot wyll make a man to begge his bread, and a woman wyll hunt for the precyous lyfe. Maye a man take fyre in hys bosome, and hys clothes not be brent?

D Or can one go vpon hote coales, and hys fete not be burnt? Euen so, whosoeuer goeth into his neyghbours wyfe, and toucheth her, cannot be vngylty. * Men do not vtterly dyspyse a theefe that stealeth to satisfye hys soule, when he is hungry: but yf he maye be gotten, he restoreth agayne seuen tymes as moche, or els he maketh recompense with all the good of hys house. But whoso committeth aduoutry with a woman, he is a foole and bringeth his lyfe to destruction. He getteth hym selfe also shame and dishonour, so the as shall neuer be put out. For the gelousy and wrath of the man wyll not be intreated, no though thou woldest offre him great gyftes to make amendes, he will not receaue the.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ God ought to feared and honoured. Into cōmaundementes ought to be kepte, wanton appetytes and desyres ought to be shonned.

A
* Deute. vi. b and. xi. a.

Y sonne, * kepe my wordes, & laye vp my commaundementes by the. Kepe my commaundementes and my lawe, euē as the apple of thyne eye, & thou shalt lyue. Bynde them vpon thy fyngers, and wryte them in the table of thyne hert. Saye vnto wysdome: thou art my syster, and call vnderstandynge thy kynswomā: * that they maye kepe the from the straunge woman, and frō the harlot which geueth swete wordes. For out of the wyndowe of my house I loked thorowe the latyse, & beheld the symple people: and amonge other yonge folkes I spyed one yonge foole, goinge ouer ye stretes, by the corner in the waye towarde ye harlotes house, in the twylight of the euenynge, when it beganne nowe to be nyght & darcke.

* Prou. vi. b and. xi. a.

B And beholde, there mett hym a woman * wt open tokēs of an harlot, onely her herte was hyde, she was full of loude wordes, & redy to daly: whose fete coulde not abyde in the house, nowe is she without, now in the stretes, and layeth a bayte in euery corner, she caught the yongeman, kyssed hym, and was not ashamed, sayinge: I had a vowe of peace offerynges to paye, & and thys daye I performe it. Therfore came I forth to mete ye, that I myght seke thy face, and so I haue founde the. I haue decked my bed with couerynges and clothes of Egypte. My bed haue I made to smell of Wirre, Aloes, and Cynamon. Come lett vs ly together, and take our pleasure tyll it be daye lyght: and we wyll enioye the pleasures of loue. For the good man is not at home, he is gone farre of.

* Ecclesi. xx. a.

He hath taken the bagge of money with hym: And will retourne home at ye appoynted solempne feste. Thus with many swete wordes she ouercame him, and with her flatterynge lyppes she entysed hym sodenlye to folowe her: as it were an ore led to the slaughter, & lyke as it were a foole that laugheth whē he goeth to the stockes, to be punished, so longe tyll she had wounded hys lyuer with her dart: lyke as yf a byrde hasted to the snare, not knowynge that the parell of hys lyfe lyeth ther vpon. Heare me nowe therfore, O my children, and marcke the wordes of my mouth. Let not thyne herte wandre in her wayes, and be not thou disceaued in her pathes. For many one hath she wounded and cast downe, yee many a stroge man hath bene slayne by the meanes of her. Her houses are the waye vnto hell, and bringe men downe into the chambers of death.

D

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ The prayse of the wysdome of God.

A
* Prou. i. c.

Doth not * wysdome crye, doth not vnderstandynge put forth her voyce: Standeth she not in the hye places in the stretes and wayes? doth she not crye before the whole cytie, and in the gates where men go out and in? It is you, O ye men (sayeth she) whom I call: Vnto (the children of men) do I lyft vp my voyce. Take hede vnto knowledge O ye ignorāt be wyse in herte, O ye foles. Geue eare, for I wyll speake of greate matters, and open my lyppes to tell thynges that be ryght. For my throte shalbe talkynge of the trueth and my lyppes abhorre vngodlynesse. All the wordes of my mouth are righteous, there is no frowardnesse nor falshede therin. They are all playne to soche as wyll vnderstande, and ryght to them that fynde knowledge. Receaue my doctryne, and not syluer: and my knowledge, more then fyne golde. For * wysdome is more worth then precious stones, yee all thynges that thou canst desyre, maye not be cōpared vnto it. I wysB dome haue my dwellynge with knowledge, and prudent councell is myne awne. The feare of the Lorde abhorreth wyckednesse, pryde, dysdayne, and the euell waye: and a mouth that speaketh wycked thynges, I vtterly abhorre. I can geue councell, and I cōferre thynges: I haue vnderstanding, I haue strength. * Thorowe me, Kynges regne: thorowe me counselars make iust lawes. Thorowe me, do prynces beare rule, and all iudges of the earth execute iudgement. I am louynge vnto those that loue me: and * they that seke me early, shall fynde me. Ryches and honoure are with me, ye excellent goodes and ryghteousnes. My frute is better then golde and precious stone, and myne encrease more worth then fyne syluer. I wyll

* Prou. iii. b

* Dan. vii. b Sapien. vi. b

* Luke. xi. b

guyde

guyde the in the waye of ryghteousnes, and in the stretes of iudgement. That I maye sende prosperite to those that loue me, and to encrease their treasure. ☞ * The Lorde him selfe had me in possessyon ☞ in the begynnynge of his wayes, or euer he beganne his worckes a fore tyme. * I haue bene ordened from euerlastynge, and frō the begynnynge or euer the earth was made. When I was borne, there were neither depthes nor sprynges of watre. Before the foundacyons of the mountaynes were layed, yee before all hylles was I borne. The earth and all that is vpon the earth was not yet made, no not the grounde it selfe. * For when he made the heauens, I was present: when he sett vp the depthes in order, whē he hanged the cloudes aboue: whē he fastened ẏ sprynges of the depe: When he shut the see within * certayne bownder, that the waters shulde not go ouer their marches ẏ he cōmaunded.

When he layed the foundacyōs of ẏ earth I was with him, ordrynge all thynges: delytinge dayly, and reioysynge all waye before him. As for the rounde cōpase of thys worlde, I make it ioyfull: for my delyte is to be amonge the chyldren of men. Therfore herken vnto me, O ye chyldren, blessed are they that kepe my wayes. O geue eare vnto nurtoure, be wyse, and refuse it not. Blessed is the man that heareth me, watchynge dayly at my gates, and geuynge attendaūce at ẏ postes of my dores. For who so fyndeth me, fyndeth lyfe, and shall obtayne fauour of the Lorde. But who so offendeth agaynst me, hurteth his awne soule. All they that hate me, are the louers of death.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ Wysdome moueth all men to embrace her. The propertye of a whore.

WYsdome hath buylded her selfe an house, & hewen out seuen pyllers: she hath kylled her vitayles, powred out her wyne, & prepared her table. She hath sent forth her maydens to crye vpon ẏ hyest place of the cytie: Who so is ignorannt, let hym come hyther. And to the vnwyse she sayde: O come on your waye, eate my bread, and drincke my wyne, which I haue poured out for you. Forsake ignorannce, and ye shall lyue: and se that ye go in the waye of vnderstandynge. Who so reproueth a scornefull personne, getteth him selfe dishonour: and he that rebuketh the vngodly, stayneth him selfe. Reproue not ☞ a scorner lest he owe the euell wyll: but rebuke a wyse man, and he wyll loue the. Geue a discrete man but an occasyon, and he wyl be ẏ wyser: teache a ryghteous mā, and he wyll increase in knowledge. * The feare of the Lorde is ẏ beginnynge of wysdome, & the knowledge of holy thynges is vnderstandynge. For thorowe me thy dayes shalbe prolōged, and the yeares of thy lyfe shalbe many. If thou be wyse, thy wisdome shall do thy selfe good but yf thou skornest scorne therof, it shalbe thyne awne harme. A folysshe restlesse woman, full of wordes, and soch a one as hath no knowledge, sytteth at ẏ dore of her house, and in the hye places of the cyte, to call soch as go by, and that walke streyght in their wayes. Who so is ignorannt (sayth she) let hym come hyther, and to the vnwyse she sayeth: stollen waters are swete, and ẏ bread that is preuely eaten, hath a good taste.

And he doth not consydre, that they are but dead which be there, and that her gestes are in the depe of hell. ☞ (For he that wyll be ioyned vnto her, shall go downe to hell: but he that auoydeth from her, shalbe saued.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ In thys chapter and in all that folowe vnto the ende, the wyse mān exhorteth by diuers sentences which he calleth Parables, to folowe vertues and lie from vyces: And sheweth also what profet cometh of wysdome, and what hyndrannce procureth of folysshenesse.

¶ Proverbes of Salomon.

A ☞ wyse * sōne maketh a glad father, but an vndiscrete sonne is an heuynesse vnto hys mother. ‡ Treasures ẏ are wyckedly gotten, profyte no thynge: but ryghteousnesse deliuereth frō death. * The Lorde wyll not let the soule of the righteous suffre hōger, but he taketh away the ryches of ẏ vngodlye: An ydle hande maketh poore, but a quycke labouringe hāde maketh ryche. ☞ (Who so regarded lesynges, feedeth ẏ wynde, and doth but folowe byrdes that haue taken their flyght.) ‡ Who so gathereth in Sommer, is wyse: but he that is slouthfull in haruest, bringeth him selfe to confusyon. Blessynges are vpon the heade of the righteous, and the mouth of the vngodly kepeth myschefe in secrete. * The memoryall of the iust shall haue a good reporte, but the name of the vngodly shall stinche. A wyse mā will receaue warnynge, but a prattinge fole shall be punyshed. ‡ He that leadeth an innocent lyfe, walketh surely: but who so goeth a wronge waye shalbe knowne. * He ẏ wynketh with his eye, will do some harme: but he that hath a foolysshe mouth, shalbe beaten. The mouth of a ryghteous man is a well of lyfe, but ẏ mouth of the vngodly kepeth mischefe in secrete. Euyll wyll stereth vp stryfe, * but ☞ loue couereth ẏ multitude of synnes. In ẏ lyppes of him ẏ hath vnderstandynge, a man shall fynde wisdome, but ẏ rod belongeth to ẏ backe of the folysshe. Wyse mē laye vp knowledge, but ẏ mouth of ẏ folysshe is nye destructiō. The riche mās goodes are his stronge holde, but sheere awne pouertye feareth ẏ poore. The ryghteous labou-

reth to

A
*prou.xb.c.
‡ prou.xi.a.
Eccle.b.b:
*pl. rrriiij.b
B
*pfal.cxij.a.
‡pfal.rrriij.a.
*Ecc.rxbii.b
*i.pet.iiij b.
i.Cor.riij.b.
C

reth to be good, but the vngodly vseth hys encreasse vnto synne. To take heede vnto ꝑ chastenynge of nurtoure, is the waye of lyfe: but he that refuseth to be reformed deceaueth hym selfe. * Dissemblynge lyppes kepe hatred secretely, and he that speaketh any slaūder, is a foole. Where moch babblynge is, there must nedes be offence: and he that refrayneth his lyppes, is wyse. An innocent tonge is a noble treasure, but the herte of the vngodly is nothynge worth. The lyppes of the ryghteous feede a whole multitude, but fooles shall dye in their awne folye.

The blessynge of the Lorde maketh ryche men * as for carefull trauayle, it doth nothynge therto. A fole doth wickedly and maketh but a sporte of it, but wysdome euleth the man that hath vnderstandynge.

The thynge that the vngodly are afrayed of, shall come vpon them, but the ryghteous shall haue their desyre. The vngodly passeth when the tempest commeth: but the ryghtwyse remayneth sure for euer. As vyneger D is to the teth, and as smoke is vnto the eyes, euen so is a slouthfull personne to them that sende hym forth. The feare of the Lorde maketh a longe lyfe, but the yeares of the vngodly shalbe shortened. The pacient abydinge of ꝑ ryghteous shalbe turned to gladnesse, but the hope of the vngodly shall perisshe. The waye of ꝑ Lorde geueth a courage vnto the godly, but it is a feare for wyched doers. * The ryghteous shall neuer be ouerthrowne, but the vngodly, shall not remayne in the lande. * The mouth of the iust wyshe talkynge of wysdome, but ꝑ the tonge of the frowarde shall perysshe.

The lyppes of ꝑ ryghteous are occupyed in acceptable thynges, but the mouth of the vngodly taketh them to the worst.

¶ The.xj. Chapter.

A * Falce balaūce is an abhominacyō vnto ꝑ Lorde, but a true weight pleaseth hem: Where pryde is, there is shame also and confusyon: but where as is lowlynes, there is wysdome. The innocent dealynge of the iust shall leade them, but the wyckednes of such as dissemble, shalbe their awne destruccyon. * Riches helpe not in the daye of vengeaūce, but ryghteousnesse delyuereth frō death. The ryghteousnes of the innocēt ordreth his waye, but the vngodly shall fall in his awne wyckednesse.

The ryghteousnesse of the iust shall delyuer the, but the wycked shalbe taken in theyr awne vngodlynesse. * When an vngodly man dyeth, his hope is gone, the confydence of riches shall perisshe. The ryghteous shalbe delyuered out of trouble, and the vngodly shall come in his stede. Thorowe ꝑ mouth of ꝑ dissembler is his neyghboure destroyed, but thorowe knowledge shall the iust be delyuered. * When it goeth well with the ryghteous, the cyte is merye: and when ꝑ vngodly perysshe, there is gladnesse. Wher the iust are in wealth, the cyte prospereth: but when the vngodly haue the rule, it decayeth. A foole bringeth vp a slaūder of his neyghbour, but a wyse man wyll kepe it secrete. * A dyssemblynge person wyll discouer preuy thynges, but he that is of a faythfull herte, wyll kepe counsell. * Where no good counsell is, there the people decaye: ¶ but where as many are that can geue counsell, there is wealth. * He that is suretye for a straūger, hurteth him selfe: and he that medleth not wt surtieshyppe, is sure. A gracious woman maynteyneth honestye, as for the wycked, they mayntayne ryches. * He that is mercyfull doth hym selfe a benefyte, but who so hurteth his neyghboure, is a tyraunt. The labour of the vngodly prospereth not, but he that soweth ryghteousnes, shall receaue a sure rewarde. Lyke as ryghteousnes bringeth lyfe: euen so to cleue vnto euell, bringeth death. The Lorde abhorreth the that be of a layned herte, but he hath pleasure in them that are of an vndefyled conuersacyon. The wycked amendeth not for plage vpon plage, but the sede of the ryghteous shalbe preserued. A fayre woman without discrete maners, is lyke a rynge of gold in a swynes snoute. The desyre of the ryghteous is acceptable, but the hope of the vngodly is indignacyon. * Some mā geueth out his goodes, and is the rycher, but the nygard (haupnge nought) wyll departe from nothynge, and yet is euer in powertye.

* He that is liberall in geuynge, shall haue plenty, and he that watereth, shall be watered also him selfe. Who so hoordeth vp his corne, shalbe cursed amonge the people: but blessynge shall lyght vpon his head that geueth foode. He that laboureth for honesty, fyndeth his desyre: but who so seketh after myschefe, it shall happen vnto hym.

He that trusteth in his ryches, shall haue a fall, but * the ryghteous shall florysshe as the grene leafe. Who so maketh disquyetnes in his awne house, he shall haue wynde for his heritage, and the foole shalbe seruaunt to the wyse. The frute of the ryghteous is a tree of lyfe: and he that endeuoureth him selfe to wynne mens soules is wyse. * If ꝑ ryghteous be recōpensed vpon earth, howe moch more then the vngodly and the synner?

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

Who so loueth wysdome, wyll be ch- A tē to be reformed: but he ꝑ hateth to be reproued, is a foole. * A good man is acceptable vnto the Lorde, but the wycked ymaginer will he condempne. A man cannot endure in vngodlynesse, but the rote

the rote of the ryghteous shall not be moued.
☞ A vertuous womā is ☞ a crowne vnto her husbande: but she that behaueth her selfe vn-honestly, is a corrupcio in hys bones. The thoughtes of the ryghteous are ryght, but the ymagination of the vngodly are disceat-full. The talkynge of the vngodly is howe
they maye lape waste for bloud, but ỹ mouth of the ryghteous wyll deliuer them. * God ouerturneth the estate of the wycked, ỹ they stande not: but the house of ỹ ryghteous shall stande steadfaste. A man shalbe commē-ded for hys wysdome, but a fole shalbe des-pysed. * A symple man which laboureth
and worketh, is better then one that is gor-gyous and lacketh bread. A ryghteous mā regardeth the lyfe of hys catell, but the vngodly haue cruel hertes. * He that tylleth
his lande, shall haue plenteousnesse of bread:
but he ỹ followeth ydylnes: is a very foole.
¶ (who so hath pleasure to estimate at the wyne, leaueth dishoneste in hys awne dwellynge.) The desyre of ỹ vngodly hunteth after myschefe, but the rote of the ryghteous bringeth forth frute. The wycked falleth into the snare thorow ỹ malyce of hys awne mouth, but the iust shall eschape out of parell. Euery mā shall enioye
good accordynge to the frute of hys mouth,
and after the workes of hys handes shall he be rewarded. Loke what a foole taketh in hande, he thynketh it well done: but he that is wyse, wyll be counceled. A foole vttereth hys wrath in all the haste, but a discrete man couerith wronge. A iust man wyll tell the trueth, and therwe the thynge that is ryght: but a false witnesse disceaueth. A sclaunderous person prycketh lyke a swerde
but a wyse mans tonge is wholsome.
A trewe mouth is euer cōstant, but a dissem-blynge tonge is soone chaūged. They that ymagyn euell in theyr mynde, wyll disceaue:
but the coūcelers of peace, shall haue ioye folowynge them. There shall no myschefe happē vnto the iust, but the vngodly shal-
be fylled with misery. * The Lorde abhorreth lyinge lyppes, but they that labour for trueth please hym. He that hath vnderstan-dynge, ☞ doth hyde wysdome: but an vn-
discrete herte telleth out hys folysshnesse.
A diligent hande shall beare rule, but the ydle shalbe vnder tribute. * Heuynesse discorageth the herte of man, but a good worde maketh it glad agayne. The ryghteous excelleth hys neygboure, but the waye of the vngodly wyll disceaue them selues.
The disceptfull man shall not roste, that he toke in būtynge, * but the riches of the inste man is of great valewe. In the waye of ryghteousnesse there is lyfe, and in the same waye there is no death.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

A wyse sonne wyll herken to hys fathers warnynge, but he that is scornefull, will not heare whē
he is reproued. A good man shall enioye ỹ frute of his mouth
but he that hath a frowarde mynde, shalbe
spoyled. He that kepeth hys mouth kepeth hys lyfe: but who so openeth hys lyppes to euell, destroyeth hym selfe. The slogarde wolde fayne haue, & cannot get hys desyre:
but the soule of the diligent shall haue plēty.
A ryghteous man abhorreth lyes, but the
vngodly shameth both other and hym selfe.
Ryghteousnesse kepeth the innocent in the waye, but vngodlynesse doth ouerthrowe
the synner. * Some men are ryche, though they haue nothynge, agayne some men are poore, hauing greate ryches. With goodes euery man delyuereth his lyfe, and the poore
wyll not be reproued: The lyght of the ryghteous maketh ioyfull, but * the candle of the vngodly shalbe put out. Amonge the proude there is euer stryfe, but amonge those that do all thynges with aduisement, there is wysdome. Hastynesse gotten goodes are soone spent: but they that be gathered to gether with the hande, shall increase. Longe tarynge for a thynge that is differred, gre-
ueth the herte: but whē the desyre commeth:
it is a tree of lyfe. ☞ Whoso despyseth anye
thinge, shalbe hurt for the same: but he ỹ feareth the commaundement, shall haue the re-warde. ¶ (A disceatfull sonne shall haue no good: but a discrete seruaunt shall do full well, and hys waye shall pros-pere.) The lawe is a well of lyfe vnto ỹ wyse, that it maye kepe hym from the snares of death: Good vnderstandinge geueth fauour,
but harde is ỹ waye of the despysers. A wyse man doth all thynges with discrecion, but a foole wyll declare hys folysshnesse. An vngodly messaūger falleth into myschefe, but a fayth-full ambassadour is wholsome. He ỹ thinketh scorne to be reformed, commeth to pouerte & shame: but whoso regardeth correctiō shall come to honoure. When a desyre is brought to passe, it delyteth ỹ soule: but fo-oles counteit abhominacyon to departe from euell. He that goeth in the cōpany of wyse men, shalbe wyse: but whoso is a companyō
of fooles, shalbe hurte. Myschefe followeth
vpon synners, but the ryghteous shall haue
a good rewarde. He that is vertuous, lea-ueth an enheritaunce vnto hys childers children * and ỹ ryches of the synner is layed vp for the iust. There is plenteousnesse of fode
in the feldes of the poore, but ỹ felde not well
ordred is without frute. ‡ He ỹ spareth the ☞ rodde, hateth hys sonne: but whoso lo-
ueth hym, chastiseth hym by tymes.
* The ryghteous eateth, and is satisfyed,
but ỹ bely of ỹ vngodly hath neuer ynough,

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

Wyse

A Wyse women vpholde theyr house, but a folysh wyfe plucketh it downe. He ꝑ walketh in the ryght path of the Lorde feareth him: but he ꝑ turneth him selfe awaye frō his wayes, dispyseth hym.

In the mouth of the foolysh is the rodd of pryde, but the lyppes of the wyse wyll preserue them. Where no oxe are, there ꝑ crybbe is empteye: but where the ox laboure ther is moche frute. A faythfull wytnesse wyll not dissemble, but a false recorde wyll make a lye. A scornefull body seketh wysdome, and fyndeth it not: but * knowledge is redy to come by, vnto hym that wyll vnderstande. Go that thou medle not with a foole, in whō thou perceaueste to be no knowledge. The wysdome of hym that hath vnderstādyng is, to take hede vnto his waye but the folysshnesse of the vnwyse disceaueth.

* Pro. viii.a

Fooles make but a sporte of synne, but there is fauorable loue amōge the ryghteous.

The herte feleth hys owne lyues bytternesse: nether shall straūger be partaker of his ioye. The house of the vngodly shalbe ouerthrowne, but the tabernacle of the ryghteous shall florysshe. * There is ☞ a waye which some men thynke to be ryght, but the ende therof leadeth vnto death. ☞ The herte is sorowefull euen in laughter, and the ende of myrthis heuynes. A backslydynge hert shalbe fylled wᵗ his awne wayes, but a good mā shall lyue of his frutes. An ignorāt body beleueth all thinges: but who so hath vnderstādinge, loketh well to his goinges. (A discreatfull sonne shall haue no good, but a discrete seruaūt shall do fullwell, & hys waye shall prosper.) A wyse man feareth, and departeth frō euell, but a furiouse foole goeth on presūptuously:

* Pro. xvi.b Deute. xv. d. Ecclesi. xix.b

An vnpacyent man dealeth folyshly: but he that is well aduysed, is hated of the fole.

The ignorāunt haue folysshnes in possessyon, but the wyse are crowned with knowledge. The euell shall bowe them selues before the good, and ꝑ vngodly shall wayte at the dores of the ryghteous. The poore is hated euen of hys awne neyghboures, but the ryche hath many frendes. Who so despyseth his neyghboure doth a mysse: but * blessed is he ꝑ hath pyte of ꝑ poore. (He that putteth hys trust in the Lorde, loueth to be mercyfull.) Without doute they erre that ymagyne wyckednes, but they that muse vpon good thynges, vnto soche shall happen mercy and faythfulnesse. In euery labour there is some profecte. But only lippe labour, bryngeth forth penurye. ☞ Ryches are as a crowne vnto the wyse, but the ignorāunce of fooles is very folysshnesse. A faythfull witnesse delyuereth soules, but a disceytfull wytnesse bryngeth forth lyes. The feare of ꝑ Lorde is a stronge holde, and hys chyldren are vnder a sure defence. The feare of the Lorde is a well of lyfe, to auoyde the snares of death. The increase and prosperite of the comens is the kynges honoure, but the decaye of the people is the confusyon of the Prynce. He that is pacient, hath muche vnderstandyng: but he that is soone displeased, prouoketh folysshnesse. A merry herte is the lyfe of the body, but rancoure consumeth awaye the bones. * He that doth a poore mā wrōg, blaspemeth his maker: but who so hath pyte of the poore, doth honoure vnto God. The vngodly is cast awaye for hys iniquitye, but the ryghteous hath a good hope euen in death. Wysdome resteth in the herte of hym that hath vnderstandyng and it shalbe knowen amonge them that are vnlerned. * Ryghteousnesse setteth vp the people, but the sacrifyce of the hethen is synfull. A discrete seruaunt is a pleasure vnto the kynge, but one that is not honest prouoketh hym vnto wrath.

* Pro. xiii.b

* Pro. xiii.a

* Pro. xv.a

* Pro. xiii.a

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

* Softe answere putteth downe displeasure, but frowarde wordes prouoke vnto anger. The tonge of suche as be wyse, vseth knowledge a right, as for a folysh mouth it blabbeth out nothyng, but folysshnesse. The eyes of the Lord loke on euery place, beholdyng both the good & badd. A wholsome tonge is a tree of lyfe, but he that abuseth it, hath a broken mynde. A foole despyseth hys fathers correccyon, but he that taketh hede whan he is reproued shall haue the more vnderstandinge. (where ryghteousnes is plenteyfull, there is very greate power: but the ymagynacyons of the vngodly shall be voted out.) The house of the ryghteous is full of ryches, but the increase of ꝑ vngodly are nye destrucciō. A wyse mouth poureth oute knowledge but the herte of the folysh doth not so. * The Lord abhorreth the sacrifyce of the vngodly, but the prayer of the ryghteous is acceptable vnto hym. The waye of the vngodly is an abhominacyō vnto the Lord: but who so foloweth ryghteousnesse, hym he loueth.

A * Pro.xiii.a

* Pro.viii.a

* prou.xxi. Eccl.xxxiii. Esay.lxvi.c

He that forsaketh the ryght strete, shalbe sore punyshed: and who so hateth correccyon, shall dye. The hell with her payne is knowen vnto the Lorde, howe moche more then the hertes of men? * A scornefull body loueth not one that rebuketh hym nether will he come vnto the wyse. ‡ A merry herte maketh a chearefull countenaunce, but an heuy herte compelleth a man to sygth. The hert of hym that hath vnderstandyng, doth seke after knowledge, but the mouth of fooles is fedd with foolysshnesse. All the dayes of ꝑ poore are myserable, but a quyete herte is

* Esayi.lvi.

‡ Pro. xiii. and. xvii. Eccl. xxx.

hert is as a cõtinual feast. * Better is a lytle with the feare of the Lorde, then greate treasure with sorowe. Better is a measse of potage with loue, thē a fat oxe with euell will.

* An angrye man stereth vp stryfe, but he that is pacient, stylleth discorde. The waye of a slouthfull mā, is as it were hedged with thornes, but the strete of ỹ ryghteous is well clensed. * A wyse sonne maketh a glad father, but an vndiscrete body shameth his mother. A foole reioyseth in foolyshe thinges, but a wyse man loketh well to his awne goynges. Vnadvysed thoughtes shall come to naught, but where as mē are ỹ canne geue councell, there is stedfastnesse. A ioyfull thynge is it, to a man whē his counsell is followed: and very pleasunt is a worde spoken in due season. The waye of lyfe leadeth vnto heauen, that a man shulde beware of hell beneth. The Lorde will breake downe the house of ỹ proude, but he shall make fast the borders of ỹ widdowe. The Lorde abhorreth the ymaginacyons of the wycked, but pure wordes of innocētes are pleasaunt vnto hym. The couetous man roteth vp hys awne house, but who so hateth rewardes, shall lyue. (Thorowe mercy and fayth are synnes pourged, and thorowe ỹ feare of the Lorde doth euery one eschue euell.) The herte of ỹ ryghteous studieth his answere afore. but ỹ wycked mās mouthe spueth out myschefe. The Lorde is farre frō ỹ vngodly, but he heareth ỹ prayer of ỹ ryghteous. Lyke as the clearnesse of the eyes reioyseth the herte, so doth a good name fede the bones. The eare that harkeneth to the refourmacyon of lyfe, shall dwell amonge the wyse. He that refuseth to be refourmed, despyseth hys awne soule: but he that submytteth hym selfe to correccyon, is wyse. The feare of the Lorde is the ryght science of wysdome, and lowlynes goeth before honoure.

¶ The .xvj. Chapter.

MAn maye well ☞ purpose a thynge in hys herte, but the answere of the tonge commeth of the Lorde. * A man thynketh all hys wayes to be cleane, but it is the Lorde that iudgeth the myndes.

* Commytte thy workes vnto the Lorde and loke what thou deuysest, it shall prosper. The Lorde doth all thynges for hys awne sake, yee and when he kepeth the vngodly for the daye of wrath. The Lorde abhorreth all such as be of a proude herte, his hāde is against ther hande and they shall not escape as innocētes. The beggynnynge of a good lyfe is to do ryghtwysnesse for that is more accepted vnto God, then to offer vp sacrifyces.) With louinge mercy & faythfulnesse, synnes be forgeuen, & who so feareth ỹ Lord eschueth euell. Whē a mans wayes please the Lorde, he maketh his very enemyes to be his frendes. Better is it to haue a lytle thynge with ryghteousnes, then greate rentes wrōgeously gotten. * A man deuiseth a waye in his herte, but it is ỹ Lorde that ordreth hys goynges.

☞ When the prophecy is in the lyppes of the kynge, his mouth shall not go wronge in iudgmēt. * A trewe measure & a trewe balaunce are the Lordes iudgment, he maketh all weyghtes. It is a greate abhominacyon when kynges are wycked, for a kynges seate shulde be holden vp with ryghteousnesse. Ryghteous lyppes are pleasaūt vnto kynges: and he that speaketh the trueth shalbe beloued. The kynges displeasure is a messaunger of death, but a wyse man will pacifye him. The cherefull countenaunce of the kynge is lyfe, and his louynge fauoure is as the euenynge dewe. * To haue wysdome in possessyon is better then to haue golde: and to get vnderstandynge, is rather to be chosen them to haue syluer. The path of ỹ ryghteous is to eschue euell: & who so loketh well to his wayes, kepeth his awne soule.

Presumptuousnes goeth before destruccyon, and after a proude stomahe there followeth a fall. Better is it to be of humble mynde with the lowly, then to deuyde the spoyles with the proude. He that handleth a matter wysely, optayneth good: & * blessed is he, that putteth hys trust in the Lorde.

Who so hath a wyse vnderstandynge, shalbe called to councell: and he ỹ can speake fayre, shall haue the more lernynge. Vnderstandinge is a well of lyfe vnto him that hath it: as for the chastenynge of fooles, it is but foolyshnesse. A wyse hart ordreth hys mouth wysely, and amēdeth the doctryne in his lyppes. Fayre wordes are an hony cōbe, a refreshynge of the mynde, & health of ỹ bones. * There is a waye that mē thynche to be ryght, but the ende therof leadeth vnto death. A troublous soule disquyeteth her selfe, for her awne mouth hath brought her therto. An vngodly personne stereth vp euell, and in his lippes he is as an whote burnynge fyre. A frowarde body causeth stryfe, and he that is a blabbe of hys tonge, maketh deuysyon amonge prynces. A wycked man begyleth hys neyghbour, and leadeth him in to the waye that is not good.

The vngodly ỹ winketh gastely wt hys eyes ymagineth myschefe, & whē he mouueth his lyppes, he wyll do some harme. Age is a crowne of worshippe, yf it be foūde in the waye of ryghteousnes. A pacient man is better then one stroge: and he that can rule him selfe, is more worth then he that wynneth a cytye. The lotte is cast in to the lappe, but the ordrynge ther of standeth all in ỹ Lorde.

¶ The .xvij. Chapter.

Better

BEtter is a drye morsell wyth quyetnesse, then a house full of fatt offrings wyth stryfe. * A discrete seruaunt shall haue more rule the the sonnes that haue no wysdome, and shall haue lyke heritage wyth the brethern. * Lyke as syluer is tryed in the fyre, and golde in the fornace, euē so doth the Lorde proue the hertes. A wycked body gyueth audience to false lyppes, and a frowarde persoune geueth eare to a dissemptfull tonge.

* Eccle.27.b. * Deu.27.b. Iob.31.c.

Who so laugheth the poore to scorne, blaspheemeth his maker: and he that is glad of anothers mans hurte, shall not be vnpunyshed.

Childres childrē are a worshyppe vnto the eldres, and the fathers are the honoure of the children. Spleach of auctoryte becōmeth not a foole, moche lesse a lyinge mouth then besemeth a prince. A rewarde is as a precious stone vnto him that hath it: but vnto whōsoeuer it turneth it maketh him vnwise.

B

Who so couereth another mās offence, seketh loue: but he that discloseth the faute, setteth the prynce agaynst him selfe. One reproue onely doth more good to hym that hath vnderstandynge, then an C. stroppes vnto a foole.

* 1. Esdr. 16.c.

* A spytious persoune seketh mischefe, and therfore is a cruell messanger sent agaynst him. It were better to come agaynst a she Beare robbed of her whelpes, then agaynst a foole (in his folishnes). * Who so rewardeth euell for good, the plage shall not departe from his house. The begynnynge of stryfe is as when a man maketh an Issue for water, therfore or the metynge be leaue of cōtencyon. The Lorde hateth as well him that iustifieth the vngodly, as him that condempneth the innocent. What helpeth it to geue a foole treasure in his hande, where as he hath no mynde to lye wysdome?

v.9 * Prou.28.b. v.10 (who so buyldeth his house to hye, seketh destruccyon: and he that refuseth to learne, shall fall into mischefe.) he is a frende that all waye loueth, and in aduersyte a man shall knowe who is his brother.

C

* Prou.18.a. * Prou.17.a.

* Who so promyseth by the hande, and is suertye for his neyghboure, he is a foole.

He that delyteth in synne loueth stryfe: and who so setteth his dore to hye, seketh after a fall. Who so hath a frowarde herte, optayneth no good: and he that hath an ouerthwarte tonge, shall fall into mischefe. He that begetteth a fole begetteth his sorowe, and the father of a foole can haue no ioye. * A merye herte maketh a lusty age, but a sorowfull mynde dryeth vp the bones. The vngodly taketh gyftes out of the bosome, to wreste the wayes of iudgement. * Wysdome shyneth in the face of him that hath vnderstandynge, but the eyes of fooles wandre thorowe out all landes. * An vndiscrete sonne is a grefe vnto his father, and an heuynesse vnto his mother. To punysshe the innocent, and to smyte the prynces that geue true iudgement, are both euell. * A wyse man, vseth fewe wordes, and he is a man of vnderstandynge: that maketh moch of his spyrite. * Yee a very foole (when he holdeth his tonge) is counted wyse, and to haue vnderstandynge, when he shutteth his lyppes.

D

* Prou.18.b and 19.b. Eccl.27.c. * Eccle.11.c. and.b.11.a. * Prou.27.b.

The.xviij. Chapter.

HE accompanieth hym selfe with all stedfastnesse that holdeth some doctryne, that hath a feruēt delyte to it and is separate from companye. A foole hath no delyte in vnderstandynge, but only in those thinges wherin his herte reioyseth. When the vngodly cometh, then cōmeth also dyspayre, and with the dishonest persoune commeth shame and dishonour. The wordes of a wyse mans mouth are lyke depe waters, and the well of wysdome is lyke a full streame. * It is not good to regarde the persoune of the vngodly, or to put backe the ryghteous in iudgement. A fooles lyppes are euer bye a welpynge, and his mouth prouoketh vnto battayll.

A

* Prou.24.a.

B

A fooles mouth is his owne destrucyon, and his lyppes are the snare for his owne soule. The wordes of a sclaunderer are very wodnes, and go thorowe vnto the vnmost partes of the body. v.8 (Feare taketh hym that is slouthfull: and the soules of such as true in wyckednesse shall hunger.) Who so is slouthfull and slacke in his labour, is the brother of him that is a waster. The name of the Lorde is a stronge castell, the ryghteous flyeth vnto it, and is in sauegarde. But the ryche mans goodes are his stronge holde, ye he taketh the for an hye wall rounde about him.

C

* Prou.15.b

After pryde commeth destrucyon, and honour after lowlynes. * He that geueth sentence in a matter before he heare it, is a foole, and worthy to be cōfounded. A good stomacke dryueth away a mans disease, but whē the spyrite is vexed, who maye byde it? A wyse herte laboureth for knowledge and a prudent eare seketh vnderstandynge. Lyberalite bryngeth a mā to honoure and worshyppe, and setteth him amonge great men.

D

The ryghteous declareth his owne cause first ynne selfe, yf his neyghboure come, he shall finde hi. The lott pacifyeth the variaūce, and parteth myghtye a sunder. A brother though he be greued w offence, yet is he more worth then a very strōge castell: and they that holde together are lyke the barre of a palace. A mās belye shalbe satisfyed w the frute of his owne mouth, and with the increase of his lyppes shall he be fylled. Death and lyfe are in the instrument of the tonge: and they that loue it, shall enioye the frute therof. * Who so fyndeth a (good) wyfe fyndeth a good thynge, and receaueth an wholsome benefyte of the Lorde.

* Prou.19.a.

(he that putteth away a good woman, putteth away a good thyng: but he that kepeth an harlot, is a foole and vnwyse.) The poore maketh supplicacyon and prayeth prayeth mekely: but the riche geueth a rough answere. A mā that loueth his frendes wyll be compynable with them: and some frende sticketh faster to a man then his brother.

¶ The.xix. Chapter.

Better * is the poore that ipueth godly, then ꝑ blasphemer that is but a fole. Where no discretyon is, there ꝑ soule is inclined to the thyng that is not good, and is swyft on foote, and offendeth. Rolysheues maketh a man to go out of hys waye, & then is hys herte vnpacient against the Lorde. Ryches make many frendes: but the poore is forsaken of hys neyghboure. * A false witnes shall not remayne vnpunyshed: and he ꝑ speaketh lyes shall not escape. The multitude hangeth vpon great men: and euery man fauoureth hym that geueth rewardes. As for the poore, he is hated amonge all his brethren: yee, hys awne frendes withdraw them frō him: and yf he aske them the cause, they dysdayne to answere hym. He that is wyse, loueth hys awne soule: and kepeth vnderstandinge, that he maye prospere. A false witnes shall not remayne vnpunyshed: and he that speaketh lyes shall perysshe. Pleasure becommeth not a foole, moch more vnsemely is it, a bonde man to haue the rule of prynces.

A wyse man can put of displeasure: and it is hys honoure to lete some fautes passe.

* The kynges displeasure is lyke the roarynge of a lyon, but * hys frendshippis lyke the dewe vpon the grasse. * An vndyscrete sonne is the heuynes of his father: & a braulyng wyfe is lyke the top of an house, where thorowe it is euer droppynge. House and rychesse maye a man haue by the herytage of hys elders: but * a discrete womā is the gyft of the Lorde. Slouthfulnes bryngeth slepe: and a soule accustomed with craftes shall suffre honger. Whoso kepeth the cōmaundmēt, kepeth his awne soule: but he that regardeth not hys waye, shall dye. He that hath pitye vpon the poore, lendeth vnto the Lorde: and lohe what he layeth out, it shalbe payed hym agayne. Chasten thy sonne whyle there is hope: but let not thy soule be moued to slaye hym. A mā of great wrath beareth a payne: and though thou once deliuer hym, thou must agayne do a moch for hym. Geue eare vnto good councell, and be content to be reformed, that thou mayest be wyse in thy latter dayes. * There are many deuyses in a mans herte: neuertheles, the councell of the Lorde shall stande (for euer.) It is a mans worshipp to do good & better it is to be a poore mā then a dissembler. The feare of the Lord bringeth a man to lyfe: and he shall rest the hole nyght in plentyousnes, without visitacyon of anye plage. * A slouthfull man shuteth his handes into his bosom, as into the pot: and wyll not take payne to put it to hys mouth. * If thou smytest a scornefull persone, the ignorant shall take better herd: and yf thou reprouest one that hath vnderstondynge, he wyrke the wyser. He that hurteth his father or shuteth out hys mother, is a shamefull and an vnworthy sonne. Myy sonne, heare nomore the doctrine that leadeth the vnto errours from the wordes of vnderstondinge. A false witnes laugheth iudgement to scorne: and the mouth of the vngodly eateth wickednesse. Punysshementes are ordeyned for the scornefull: and stryppes for fooles backes.

¶ The.xx. Chapter.

Wyne maketh a mā to be scornefull: and stronge drynke causeth a mā to be vnquyete: who so delyteth therin, shall neuer be wyse. * The kynge ought to be feared as the roaryng of a lion: who so prouoketh him vnto anger offendeth agenst his awne soule. It is a mans honour to kepe him selfe frō strife: but they that haue pleasure in braulynge are fooles euery one. A slouthfull body wyll not go to plowe for colde of the wynter: therfore shall he go a beggyng in sommer, & haue nothynge. Wyse councell in the herte of man is lyke a water in the depe of the earth: and a man that hath vnderstondynge bryngethe it forth. Many there be that wolde be called good doers: but where shall one fynde a true faythfull man. * Whoso leadeth a godly and an innocēt life: is righteous & happy shall hys chyldre be whom he leaueth behynde him. A kyng that sitteth in the throne of iudgment, and loketh well about hym, dryueth away all euell. * Who can saye, my herte is cleane, I am innocent from synne? To vse two maner of weyghtes, or two maner of measures, both these are abhominable vnto the Lorde. A childe is knowne by his ouerlacion, whether his workes be pure & ryght. The eare to heare, the eye to se: the Lorde hath made the both. Delyte not thou in slepe, lest thou come vnto pouertye: but open thyne eyes, ꝑ thou mayst haue bred ynough. It is naught it is naught (sayeth he that byeth any thynge:) but when he cōmeth to his awne house, then he boasteth of hys peny worth. A man that hath a mouth of vnderstondynge hathe many precyous stones and costly Jewels. * Take hys garment that is suretye for a straunger: and take a pledge of hym for the vnknowne mās sake. Euery man ipeth the bred that is gotten with disceate: but at the last hys mouth shalbe fylled with grauell. Thorowe councell, the thynges that men deuyse go forwarde: and wt discrecion oughe warres to be taken in hande. The crafty discreatfull bewrayeth secret councell: and to him that custometh flatterynge lyppes ioyne not thy selfe. * Whoso curseth hys father & mother: his lyght shalbe put out in the myddest

of darkines. * The heritage that commeth to hastely at the first, shall not be prayed at the ende. * Saye not thou: I will recōpense euell: but put thy trust in the Lorde, and he shall defende the. * The Lorde abhorreth two maner of weyghtes, and a false balaūce is an euell thinge. * The Lorde ordreth surely mans goinges: howe maye a mā then vnderstande hys awne waye? It is a snare for a mā to deuoure that which is holy: and after the bowe to turne to thyne awne vse, the thynge thou hast vowed. * A wyse king destroyethe the vngodly, and bryngeth the whele ouer them. The lanterne of the Lorde is the brethe of mā: and goth thorowe all the inwarde partes of the body. * Mercye and fayethfulnes preserue the kinge: and with louynge kyndnes hys seate is holden vp. The strength of yonge men is theyr worthynesse, and a gray heed is an honour vnto the aged. Wounded bryng awaye euell, & so do stryppes the inwarde partes of the body.

¶ The. xxj. Chapter.

The * kynges herte is in the hande of the Lorde, lyke as are the ryuers of water: he maye turne it whitherso-euer he wyll. Euery man thynketh hys awne waye to be ryght: but the Lorde iudgeth the hertes. * To do ryghteousnesse and iudgement is more acceptable to the Lorde then sacrifyce. A presūptuous loke, a proude stomache: and the plowynge of the vngodly is synne. The deuyces of one that is diligent bringe plenteousnes: but he that is vnaduisedly cōmeth vnto pouertye. Whoso hoordeth vp ryches with the dyscreatfulnesse of hys tonge, he is vayne and a foole, and lyke vnto the that seke theyr awne deeth. The robberyes of the vngodly shalbe theyr awne destruccyon: for they wyll not do the thynge that is ryght. The wayes of the frowarde are straunge: but * the worckes of hym that is cleane are ryght. * It is better to dwell in a corner vnder the house toppe, then with a braulynge woman in a wyde house. The soule of the vngodly wysheth euell: and hath no pitye vpon hys neyghboure. * When the scornefull is punyshed, the ignorannt take the better heade: and when he seyeth the wyse men prosperr, he wyll receaue the more vnderstandynge. The ryghteous man wysely consydereth the house of the wicked: and for theyr wickednes God ouerthroweth the vngodly. * Whoso stoppeth hys eares at the crienge of the poore: he shall crye hym selfe, and not be heard. A preuy rewarde pacyfyeth displeasure, and a gyfte in the bosome, stylleth furiousnesse. The iuste delyteth in doynge the thyng that is ryght: but ouer the worckers of wickednesse bageth destruccyō. The mā that wandreth out of the waye of wysdome, shall remayne in the congregacyō of the deed. * He that hath pleasure in banckettes, shalbe a poore man. Whoso delyteth in wyne and delycates, shall neuer be ryche. The vngodly shalbe geuen for the ryghteous: and the wycked for the iuste.

* It is better to dwell in a wilderne then with a chydynge & angrye woman. In a wyde mannes house, there is greate treasure and oyle: but a foolysh body spendeth vp all. Whoso followeth ryghteousnesse and mercy, fyndeth bothe lyfe, ryghteousnesse, and honoure. A wyse man wynneth the cytye of the myghtye: and ouerthrowe the strength that they trust in, he bryngeth it downe. * Whoso kepeth his mouth and hys tonge: the same kepeth hys soule from troubles. He that is proude and presumptuous, is called a scornefull man, which in wrath darre worche malicyousnye. The voluptuousnesse of the slouthfull is hys awne death: for his handes wyll not labour. He couetethand desyreth all the dayes longe: but the ryghteous is allwaye geuynge, and kepeth nothynge backe. The sacrifyce of the vngodly is abhominacyon: howe moche more when they offre the thynge that is gotten with wyckednesse?

* A false wytnes shall perysshe: but he that is a true man boldely speaketh that he hathe heard. An vngodly man goeth forth rashly: but the iuste reformeth hys awne waye.

* There is no wisdome, there is no vnderstandynge, there is no councell agaynst the Lorde. * The horse is prepared agaynst the daye of battayll: but the Lorde geueth the victorye.

¶ The. xxij. Chapter.

* Good name is more worth then greate rychesse, and louynge fauoure is better then syluer and golde. The ryche and poore are together: the Lorde is the maker of them all. A wyse man seeth the plage, and hydeth hym selfe: but the foolysh go on styll and are punyshed. The ende of lowlynes and the feare of God is ryches, honoure, prosperite, and health. Thornes and snares are in the waye of the frowarde: but he that doeth kepe hys soule, wyll flye from soche. Teache a chylde in hys youth what waye he shulde go: for he shall not leaue it, when he is olde. The ryche ruleth ouer the poore: & the borower is seruaunt to the lender. He that soweth wyckednesse shall reape sorowe: and the rodde of hys crueltye shall perysshe. * He that hath a louynge eye shalbe blessed: for he geueth of his breed vnto the poore. * Whoso geueth rewardes, shall optayne honoure & honour: but he taketh awaye the soule of suche as receaue them.) Cast out the scornefull man, and so shall stryfe go out with hym: yee, variaūce & slaunder shall ceasse. Whoso delyteth to be of a cleane herte and of gracyous lyppes, the kynge kynge shall be his frende. The eyes of the Lorde preserue knowledge, but as for ꝑ wordes of ꝑ despytefull, he bringeth the to naught. The slouthfull body sayeth: there is a lyon without, I mygbt be slayn in the strete. *The mouth of an harlot is a depe pyt, wherin he falleth that the Lorde is angrie wyth all. Folysbnes stycketh in the herte of the lad, ꝑ the rodd of correccio shall dryue it awaye. ¶ Who so doth a poore man wronge to increase his awne riches, ꝑ geueth vnto ꝑ riche to please hi, at ꝑ last cometh to pouerte him selfe. ¶ My sonne, bowe downe thyne eare, and herken vnto the wordes of wysedome, applye thy mynde vnto my doctryne: for thou shalt be excellent yf ꝑ kepe it in thine herte, ꝑ practise it in thy mouth: that thou mayest put thy trust i the Lorde. I haue shewed the this daye the thynge ꝑ thou knowest. Haue not I warned ꝑ very ofte with counsel ꝑ learnyng? ꝑ I might shew the the truth, and that thou with the verite mygbtest answere the that sende vnto the? ¶ Se that thou robbe not ꝑ poore, because he is weake, ꝑ oppresse not the simple in iudgment: for ꝑ Lord him selfe will defende their cause, ꝑ do violence vnto them ꝑ haue vsed violence. ¶ Make no frendshyppe wt an angrye wilfull man, ꝑ kepe no compony wt ꝑ furious: lest ꝑ learne his wayes, ꝑ receaue hurte in thy soule. *Be not ꝑ one of the that bynde theyr handes vpō promyse, ꝑ are suertie for wayghty causes: for yf ꝑ hast nothyng to paye, they shall take awaye thy bed frō vnder the. *Thou shalt not remoue the lande marche, which thy fore elders haue sett. ¶ Seest ꝑ not, ꝑ they which be diligēt i theyr busynes, stande before kynges and not amonge the symple people?

¶ The. xxiii. Chapter.

¶ When ꝑ sytteste at the table to eate wt a Lorde, ordre thy selfe manerly wt the thynges ꝑ are set before the. ¶ Measure thyne appetite: ꝑ yf ꝑ wylt rule thyne awne selfe, be not ouer greedy of bys meate, for meate begyleth ꝑ deceaueth. *Take not ouer greate trauayle ꝑ labour to be riche, beware of such a purpose. *Why wilt ꝑ set thyne eye vpō the thynge, which sodēly vanisheth awaye? For riches make the selues wynges, ꝑ take theyr flyght lyke an Aegle in to ꝑ ayre. Eate not ꝑ with the envyous, ꝑ desyre not his meat, for he doth as a mā ꝑ prescribeth a measure to ꝑ i his herte. ¶ He sayth vnto the: eate ꝑ drynche, where as his herte is not wt the. Yee, the morsels ꝑ thou hast eaten shalt ꝑ perdyake ꝑ lese those swete wordes. Tell not thige i to yeares of a foole, for he will despyse the wysdome of thy wordes. *Remoue not the olde lāde marche, ꝑ come not within the felde of ꝑ fatherlesse: For he ꝑ defendeth the, is mighty, and he shall defende theyr cause against the. Applye thyne herte vnto correccion, ꝑ thyne eare to the wordes of knowledge.

*Withholde not correctiō frō the childe, for yf ꝑ beatest hi wt the rodd, he shall not dye therof. Yf ꝑ smyte hi wt the rodde, ꝑ shalt deliuer his soule frō hell. ¶ My sonne, yf thy herte receaue wysdome, my herte also shall reioyce: yee, my reynes shalbe very glad: yf thy lippes speke the thige ꝑ is ryght. *Let not thyne herte be gelous to folowe synners, but kepe the stylle i the feare of ꝑ Lord all the daye lōge: for the ende is not yet come, ꝑ thy paciēt abydynge shall not be in vayne. ¶ My sonne, geue eare ꝑ be wyse, and set strayte thyne herte i the waye of ꝑ Lord.

*Kepe no compony wt wyne bybbers ꝑ ryotous eaters of flesh: for soch as be dronkardes ꝑ ryotous shall come to pouerte, ꝑ he ꝑ is geuen to moch slepe, shall go wt a ragged coate. Geue eare vnto thy father ꝑ begat the, ꝑ despyse not thy mother wbē she is olde. Labour for to get the trueth: sell yt not awaye, ꝑ so do by wysdome, nourtour ꝑ vnderstādyng: for a ryghteous father is marueilous glad of a wyse sonne, and he ꝑ begetteth a wyse chylde shall haue grete pleasure of hi. Do so ꝑ thy father ꝑ mother may be glad of the, ꝑ ꝑ she ꝑ bare the may reioyse. ¶ My sonne, geue me thyne herte, ꝑ lett thyne eyes haue pleasure in my wayes. *For an whore is a depe graue, and an harlot is a narow pytt. She lurketh lyke a theefe, and bringeth vnto her such mē as be full of vyce. ¶ Who hath wo? who hath sorow? who hath stryfe? who hath braulig? ꝑ who hath wōdes without cause? Or who hath red eyes? Euen they ꝑ be euer at ꝑ wyne, ꝑ seke excesse. Loke not ꝑ vpō ꝑ wyne, how redd it is, ꝑ what a colour it geueth in the glasse. It goeth downe softly, but at ꝑ last it byteth lyke a serpēt, ꝑ stingeth as an Adder. Yo shall thine eyes loke vnto straūge wemē, ꝑ thyne herte shall muse vpō frowarde thynges. Yee, ꝑ shalt be as though ꝑ layest i the myddest of ꝑ see, or slepeste vpon ꝑ toppe of ꝑ mast of a shippe. They wounded me (shalt ꝑ saye) but it hath not hurte me: they haue all to bȳsshē me, but I felt it not. Whā I am well wakened, I will go to ꝑ dricke againe.

¶ The. xxiiii. Chapter.

*Be not thou gelous ouer wycked men, and desyre not to be amonge the. For ther herte ymagyneth to do hurte, and theyr lyppes talke of myschefe. Through wysdome is an house buyled, and wyth vnderstandynge is it sett vp. Through discrecion shalt the chābers be fylled with all costly and pleasaunt ryches. A wyse mā is euer stroge, yee, a mā of vnderstanding encreaseth of strength.

For with discrecyon must warres be ta-hem in hāde, & where as are many that can geue coūcell, there is the victory. Wysdom is to hye a thinge for a fole, for he darre not open his mouth in the gate. He that ymagyneth myschefe, maye welbe called an vngracious perſonne. The thought of the foolyſh is ſynne, & the ſcornefull is an abhominacion vnto men. If thou be ouerſene and negligent in tyme of nede, then is thy ☞ ſtrēgth but ſmal. ☞ Deliuer thē þ go vnto 25 death, & are led awaye to be ſlayne, & be not negligēt therin yf þ be able to do thē good. If þ wilt ſaye: I knewe not of it. Thinkeſt thou þ he which made the hertes, doth not cōſidre it? & he whichregarded thy ſoule, ſeeth it not? Shall not he recōpence euery man accordīg to his workes? Eate thy honye, my ſonne, for it is good, & ſwete in thy mouth. Euē ſo ſhall þ knawledge of wyſdome be vnto thy ſoule, allone as þ haſt gotten it. And thow ſhalt haue longe dayes, yet, thy hope ſhall not be in vayne. Laye no priuy wayte (o wicked mā) vpō the house of the ryghteous, & diſquiete not his reſtyng place. * For a iuſt man falleth ſeuē tymes, & ryſeth vp agayne, but þ vngodly fall into wyckednes. ‡ Reioyce not þ at þ fall of thyne enemye, & lett not thyne herte be glad whē he ſtombleth. Leſt the Lord (when ſeith it) be angrye, and turne hys wrath from hym vnto the. * Let not thy wrath & gelouſy moue the, to folowe the wycked & vngodly. And why? the wicked ſhall haue no poſterite, ād * the cādle of the vngodly ſhall be put out. ‡ Myn ſonne, feare þ the Lord & the kynge, & hepe no company wt thē þ flyde backe from his feare: for theyr deſtrucciō ſhall come ſodenly, & who knoweth þ aduerſyte þ maye come? ☞ from them both? Theſe are alſo þ ſayenges of þ wyſe. * It is not good, to haue reſpecte of any perſone in iudgemēt. He þ ſayeth to the vngodly: þ arte ryghteous hym ſhall the people curſe, yee, the cōmētie ſhall abhorre him. But they þ rebuke the vngodly, In thē doth God delite, & a ryche bleſſyng ſhall come vpō thē. ☞ Euery mā ſhall kyſſe his lyppes, þ geueth a good anſwere. Fyll make vp thy worck yis without, & loke well vnto þ which þ haſt in the felde & then buylde thyne house. Be no falſe witneſſe againſt thy neyghbour & ſpeake no falſhode wt thy lyppes. Saye not: I will hādle hī, euē as he hath dealte wt me, & wyll rewarde euery mā accordīge to his dedes. I wēt by þ felde of þ ſlouthfull, & by þ vyneārde of the foolyſh man. And lo, it was all couered wt nettels, & ſtode full of thyſtles, & the ſtone wall was broken downe. Thys I ſawe, & conſidered it well: I loked vpon it, & toke it for a warnyng. * Yee, ſlepe on ſtyll, ☞ a lytle, ſlōbre a lytle, folde thy handes together yet a lytle: ſo ſhall pouerte come vnto the as one that trauayleth by the waye, & neceſſite lyke a weapened man.

¶ The .xxv. Chapter.

¶ Theſe alſo are the parables of Salomō, which the men of Ezechiah kynge of Juda copied out.

IT is þ honour of God to hepe a thinge ſecrete, but þ kynges honour is to ſearch out a thyng. The heauen is hye, the earth is depe, & the kynges herte is vnſearcheable. Take þ droſſe frō þ ſyluer, & there ſhalbe a cleane veſſell therof. Take awaye vngodlyneſſe frō þ kinge, & his ſeate ſhalbe ſtabliſhed wt ryghteouſnes. Put not forth thy ſelfe in the preſēce of þ kīg, & preace not into þ place of greate mē. * Better is it that it be ſayde vnto þ: come vp hyther, then þ to be put lower in the preſence of the prince whō þ ſeyſt wt thyne eyes. ‡ Be not haſtie to go to the lawe, leſt happlye þ do ſome offēce after þ ſtrife be ēded wherby thy neyghbour put the to ſhame. Handle thy matter wt thy neyghbour him ſelfe, ād diſcouer not another mās ſecrete: leſt when mē heare therof, it turne to thy diſhonoure, and leaſt thyne euell name do not ceaſſe. (Grace and frendſhyppe doth deſyre: wherfore that thou kepe for thy ſelfe, leſt thou be reproued.) A worde ſpoken in due ſeaſō, is lyke apples of golde in a graued worke of ſyluer. The cōtrecciō of þ wyſe is to an obedīēt eare, a goldē cheine & a Jewell of golde. Lyke as the witter coole i the harueſt, ſo is a faythfull meſſāger to thē þ ſend hī: for he refreſheth his maſters mynde. Whoſo maketh greate boaſtes & geueth nothyng, is lyke cloudes & wynde without rayne. With pacīēce is a prīce pacified, & * wt a ſoft tōg is rygorouſnes broken. If þ ſideſt hony, eate ſo moch as is ſufficiēt for þ: leſt þ be ouerfull, & perbrake it out agayne. Withdraw thy foote from thy neyghbours houſe leaſt he be wery of þ, & ſo abhorre þ. Who ſo beareth falſe wytneſſe againſt his neyghbour, he is a very clubb, a ſwearde, & a ſharpe arowe. The hope þ is put in a falſe mā i tyme of neade, is lyke a rottē toth & a ſlypperi foote. Who ſo taketh awaye a mās garmēt i the colde wether, is lyke vyneger vpō chalck, or lyke hi þ ſyngeth ſōges to an heuie hart. * (Lyke as the moth hurteth a garment, and a worme the tree, ſo doth the heuines of a man hurt the hart.) * If thyne enemye hōger, feade him: yf he thyrſt, geue him drinke: for ſo ſhalt thou heape coales of fyre vpon hys head, and the Lorde ſhall rewarde the. The North wide driueth awaye the rayne, euē ſo doth an earneſt ſober countenaūce a backbyters tonge. * It is better to ſyt in a corner vnder the rofe, then with a braulig woman in a wyde houſe: A good repor-

te out

te out of a farre cõtre, is lyke coulde water to a thyrstie soule. ☞ A rygh-teous man ☞ fallynge downe before the vngodly, is lyke a troubled well & a sprynge that is destroyed. Lyke as it is not good to eate to *Eccle.iii.c. moch hony, * euē so he that will search out hye thynges, it shall be to heuy for hym.

He ỳ cannot rule hym selfe, is lyke a cyte which is broken downe, & hath no walles.

¶ The.xxvi. Chapter.

AS Ihe as snowe is not mete in sõmer, ner rayne in haruest, euen so is worshipe vnsemely for a foole. Lyke as the byrde & the swalowe take theyr flyght & flie here & there, so the curse ỳ is geuen in Pr.xxvii.b. vayne, shall not lyght vpõ a mã. Vnto the horse belõgeth a whyppe, to the Asse a brydle, & a rodde to the fooles bache. Geue not the foole an answere after his foolyshnesse, lest ỳ become lyke vnto hi: but make the foole an ãswere to his foolyshnesse, lest he be wyse in his awne cõceate. He is lame of his fete, yer dryncken is he ỳ vanyte, ỳ B cõmitteth eny message to a foole. Lyke as in a lame mã his legges ar not equall, euen so is a parable i the fooles mouth. He that setteth a foole i hie dignite, ỳ is euē as yf a mã put a stone in a slynge. A parable in a fooles mouth is lyke a thorne ỳ prycketh a dr. dryncken mã in the hãde. dr (Geue is he ỳ hath forgeuen all thynge: he rewardeth ỳ fole & recompenceth ỳ traunsgressore.) A mã of experiẽce discerneth all thinges wel: but he ỳ putteth ỳ fole to sufferce endeth the stryfe. * Lyke as the dogg turneth *ii.Petri.ii.d. agayne to his vomyte, euē so a foole begineth hys folyshnesse agayne a fresh. If ỳ seest a man ỳ is wyse in his awne conceate, there is more hope in a foole then in hym. *Pro.xxvi.b. ¶ The slouthfull sayeth: there is a lyon in the waye, & a lyon in the myddest of ỳ stretes. Lyke as the doze turneth aboute vpõ the hinges, euen so doth the slouthfull welter him selfe in his bedd. *Pro.xix.c * The slouthfull body thrusteth his hãde into hys bosome, and it greueth hym to put it agayne to his mouth. The slogarde thinketh hi selfe wyser, then ☞ seuē men ỳ sytt & teach. Who so goeth by & medleth wt other mens stryfe he is lyke one ỳ taketh a dogge by ỳ eares. Lyke as a madd mã that caryeth fyre brandes, and shooteth deadly arowes and dartes euē so doth a dissembler wt his neyghboure. dr And then sayth he: dr (when he is taken) I dyd it but in sporte. Where no wodd is, there the fyre goeth out: Euen so where the tale betrayer is take awaye, there ỳ stryfe ceaseth. *Ec.xxviii.b * Coles kyndle heate, & wodd the fyre: euē so doth a brauling felowe stere vp variaũce. A talebearers wordes are lyke men ỳ stryke with hãmers, but they pearse the inwarde partes of the body. Clenymous lyppes and a wyched herte, are lyke a potsher- D de couered with syluer drosse. An enemye shalbe knowē by his talkyng, & i the meane season he ymagyneth mischefe, but whē he speaketh fayre, beleue him not, for there are seuē abhominacions in his herte. Who so hideth euell will, secretly to do hurte, his malyce shalbe shewed before the whole cõgregacyon. * Who so dygged vp a pytt, *Eccle.x.b shall fall therin: & he that weltreth a stone, Eccli.xxviii shall stomble vpon it him selfe. A dyssemblinge tõge hateth one ỳ rebuketh hym, ād a flatterynge mouth worcketh myschefe.

¶ The.xxvii. Chapter.

A MAke not thy boost of to morowe * for ỳ knowest not what maye happē to daye. Let another mã *Luke.xii.c praise the, and not thyne awne mouth: yet other folckes lyppes, and not thyne. The stone is heuy and the sande weyghtye: but a fooles wrath is heuyer then them both. Wrath is a cruell thinge and furiousnesse is a very tẽpest: but who is able to abyde enuye? An open rebuke is better then a secrete loue. Faythfull are the woundes of a louer, but the kysses of an enemye are cruell. He that is full, abhoreth an hony combe: but vnto him that is hongrye, euery sowre thinge is swete. He B that ofte tymes flytteth, is lyke a byrde ỳ forsaketh her nest. Walme and swete encense make the hert mery: so is the swete counsell of a mans frende that agreeth to his purpose. Thyne awne frende and thy fathers frende se thou forsake not: but go not into thy brothers house in tyme of thy trouble. For better is a frende at hand then a brother farre of. Wy sonne, be wyse, and thou shalt make me a glad herte so that I shall make answere vnto my rebukers. A wyse man seynge the plage, hydeth hym selfe, as for fooles they go on styll, and suffer harme. *Take hys *Proue.x.c garment ỳ is suertye for a straunger, and take a pledge of hi for the vnknowen mãs sake. He that is to hastye to prayse hys neyghboure aboue measure, shalbe taken as one that geueth hym an euell reporte. ¶ * A braulynge woman and the rofe of the house droppynge in a raynye daye, maye *Pro.xix.b well be compared together. He that refrayneth her, refrayneth the wynde, & holdeth oyle fast in hys hande. Lyke as one yron whetteth another, so doth one mã cõforte another. Who so kepeth hys figge tre, shall eniope the frutes therof: euen so, he that wayteth vpon his master, shall come to honoure. Lyke as in one water there apeare dyuerse faces, euen so diuerse mẽ haue diuerse hertes. Lyke as ☞ hell and ☞ destruccyõ are neuer full, euen so * the eyes *Eccle.i.a of men can neuer be satisfyed. Syluer is Eccle.xliii.a Ecclus.xxxi.a

tryed in the moulde, and golde in the fornace, and so is a man, when he is openly prayssed to hys face. (The hart of a wycked man seketh after vnryghtewesnesse, but a true hart seketh for knowlege.)

D Though þ thuldest bray a foole wt a pestell in a morter lyke frumentye corne, yet will not hys foolysshnesse go from hym. Se þ þ knowe the nombre of thy catell thy selfe, & loke well to thy flockes. For ryches abyde not alwaye, & ☞ the crowne endureth not for euer. The heye groweth, the grasse cõmeth vp, & herbes are gathered in the mountaynes. The lambes shall clothe the and for þ goates thou shalt haue money to thy husbãdry. Thou shalt haue goates mylck ynough to fede the, to vpholde thy houshold, and to sustayne thy maydens.

¶ The .xxviii. Chapter.

A The vngodly flyeth whã no man chaseth hym, but the ryghteous standeth styf as a lyon. * Because of synne, þ lande doth oft chaũge her prince: but thorow men of vnderstãdynge and wysdome a realme endureth longe. One poore man oppressynge another by violence, is lyke a continuall rayne that destroyeth the frute.

They that forsake the lawe, prayse the vngodly: but soch as kepe þ lawe, abhorre the. * Wycked men discerne not the thynge that is ryght, but they that seke after þ Lorde, discusse all thynges. * A poore man leadynge a godly lyfe, is better then the ryche that goeth in frowarde wayes.

Who so kepeth the lawe, is a chylde of vnderstandynge: but he that is a cõpanyõ of ryotous men, shameth his father. He that by vsurye and vnsuffe gaynes gatherith ryches: he shall laye them in store for a man that will pytye the poore. * He that turneth awaye hys eare from hearing the lawe, hys prayer shalbe abhominable.

Who so leadeth the ryghteous into an euell waye, shall fall into hys awne pyt, but the iust shall haue the good þ possessiõ. The ryche mã thynketh him self to be wyse, but the poore þ hath vnderstandynge, can perceaue him well ynough. * When ryghteous men are in prosperite, then both honoure flourysh but when þ vngodly come vp, þ state of men chaungeth. He that hydeth his synnes, shall not prospere: but * whoso knowledgeth the and forsaketh them, shall haue mercy. Well is him that standeth alwaye in awe: as for him that hardeneth his herte, he shall fall i to myschefe. Lyke as a roarynge lyon and an hongrye beare, euẽ so is an vngodly prynce ouer the poore people. Where the prince is without vnderstãdynge, there is greate oppressyon and wronge: but yf he be soch one as hateth couetousnesse, he shall longe raygne. * He that by violence shedeth eny mans bloude, shall be a rennagate vnto hys graue, and no man shall be able to succourre hym. * Who so leadeth a godly & an innocent lyfe, shalbe saued: but he that goeth froward wayes, shall once haue a fall.

* He that tylleth his land, shall haue plenteousnesse of bread: but he þ followeth vayne folysshnesse, shall haue powerte ynough. A man þ dealeth faythfully, shalbe fylled with blessynges: & * he that maketh to moch haste for to be ryche, shall not be vngylty. To haue respecte of persones in iudgemẽt is not good: And why? A mã will do wronge, yee, euen for a pece of bread. He þ wyll be ryche all to soone, hath an euell eye, and consyderith not, þ powerte shall come vpon hym.

D He that folowynge my precepts rebuketh a man: shall fynde more fauoure at the last, then he that flatterth hym. * Who so robbeth his father and mother, and sayeth it is no synne: the same is lyke vnto a destroyer.

He that is of a proude stomache & without feare, stereth vp stryfe: but he that putteth hys trust in the Lorde, shalbe well fedd.

He that trusteth in hys awne herte, is a foole: but he þ dealeth wysely, shalbe safe.

* He that geueth vnto the poore, shall not lacke: but he that turneth awaye hys eyes frõ soch as be in necessyte, shall suffre greate powerte hym selfe. * When the vngodly are come vp, men are fayne to hyde them selues: but when they perysh, the ryghteous increase.

¶ The .xxix. Chapter.

H E that is stynecked, & wyll not be refourmed, shall sodenly be destroyed without eny help. * When the ryghteous haue the ouerhande, the people are in prosperite: but when the vngodly beareth rule, there the people mourne. Who so loueth wysdome maketh his father a glad mã: * but he that kepeth company with harlottes, spendeth awaye that he hath. With true iudgemẽt the kynge setteth vp the lande, but yf he be a man þ oppresseth the people with gatheringes, he turneth it vp syde downe. Who so flatreth hys neyghboure, layeth a nette for his fete. * The synne of þ wicked is his awne snare, but the ryghteous both syng & reioyse. The ryghteous considereth þ cause of þ poore: but the vngodly regarded no vnderstãdynge. Wycked people bylde a cyte in deceyte, but wyse mẽ set it vp agayne. If a wyse man go to lawe wt a foole (whether he deale wt him frendly or roughly) he getteth no rest. The bloude thyrstie hate the ryghteous: but þ iust ☞ seke his soule. A foole powreth out hys spyrte altogether but a wyse mã kepeth it in tyll afterwarde. If a prince delyte i lyes, all his seruãtes are vngodly. The poore and the lender mete together,

C together, & the Lord lyghteneth both theyr eyes. * The seate of the kynge that faithfully iudgeth the poore, shall continue sure for euermore. The rodde and correccyon minister wysdome, but yf a chylde be not loked vnto, he bryngeth his mother to shame. When the vngodly come vp, wyckednes increaseth: but the ryghteous shall se theyr fall. Nurtoure thy sonne wt correccion, and thou shalt be at rest, yee, he shall do the good at thyne herte. When the worde of god is not preached, the people perysshe, but well is hym that keepeth ỹ lawe. A seruaunt wyll not be the better for wordes, for though he vnderstande, yet wyll he not regarde them. Yf thou seest a man ỹ is hastye to speake vnaduysed, thou mayest trust a foole more then hym. He that delycately bryngeth vp his seruaunt from a chylde, shall make hi hys master at length.

An angry man stereth vp stryfe, and he that beareth euell wyll in his mynde, doth moch euell. After pryde commeth a fall, * but a lowely spryte bringeth greate worshyp. Who so kepeth company wyth a thefe, hateth his awne soule: he heareth blasphempes, and telleth it not forth. He that feareth mẽ, shal haue a fall: but who so putteth hys trust i the Lorde is with out daũger. Many there be that seke the Princes fauoure, but euery mans iudgement cõmeth from the Lorde. The ryghteous abhorreth the vngodly: but as for those that be in the ryght waye, the wycked hate thẽ.

(A chylde ỹ keepeth ỹ worde, shalbe with out destruccion).

C The.xxx. Chapter.

C The parenes of the worde of God: and what we ought to require of God, with certen wonderfull thinges that are in hys worde.

A THe wordes of Agur the sonne of Jakei, and the prophecie that the same man spake vnto Ithiel, euen vnto Ithiel, and Uchal: I am more foolysh then any man, ād haue no mans vnderstandyng I neuer lerned wysdome, ner had knowledge of holy thynges. Who hath clymed vp into heauen? Who hath come doune from thence? Who hath holden the wynd fast in his hande? Who hath comprehended the waters in a garment? Who hath sett all the endes of the worlde? What is hys name, or his sonnes name? Canst thou tell * all the wordes of God are pure and cleane, for he is a shylde vnto all thẽ, that put theyr trust in hym. ‡ Put thou nothyng vnto hys wordes, lest he reproue the, and thou be founde a lyar. Two thynges haue I requyred of the, that thou wylt not denye me before I dye. Remoue fro me vanite and lyes: geue me nether powerte nor ryches, onely graunte me a necessary lyuynge. Lest yf I be to full, I denye the, and saye: * Who is the Lorde? And lest I beinge constrayned thorow powerte, fall vnto stealynge, and take the name of my God in vayne. Accuse not a seruaunt vnto hys master, lest he speake euell of the, and thou be hurte. There is a generacyon that curseth theyr father, and doth not blesse theyr mother. There is a generacion that thynke them selues cleane, and yet is not clẽsed from theyr fylthynesse. There is a generacyon that hath a proude loke, & doth cast vp theyr eye lydes. There is a generacion whose teth are swerdes, & with theyr chaw bones they cõsume & deuoure ỹ symple of the earth, and the poore from amõge men. The horsleche hath two daughters cryeng: bryng hyther, bryng hyther.

There be thre thynges that are neuer satysfyed, yee, fowre thynges sayeth neuer hoo. The graue: a womans wombe closed: and the earth that hath neuer water ynough. As for fyre, it sayeth neuer hoo. C

* Who so laugheth hys father to scorne, and setteth hys mothers commaundement at naught: the rauens pycke out hys eyes i the valleye, and deuoured be he of the yonge Aegles. There be thre thynges to hye for me, yea foure that passeth my knowledge. The waye af an Aegle in ỹ ayre, ỹ waye of a serpẽt ouer a stone, the waye of a shyp in the see, and the waye of a man wyth a ponge woman. Soch is the waye also of a wyfe that breaketh wedlocke, which wypeth her mouth lyke as when she hath eatẽ and sayeth: As for me, I haue done no harme. Thorow thre thynges the earth is vnquieted, & the fourth may it not beare: Thorow a seruaunt ỹ beareth rule. Thorow a foole ỹ hath to moche breed, thorow a wife worthy hatered whẽ she is maryed, and thorow an hand mayden that is heyre to her maistres. These be foure thynges i the earth, the which are very lytle: but in wysdome they exceade the wyse. The emmettes are but weake people * yet gather they theyr meate together in the haruest. D

The Conyes are but a feble folke, yet make they theyr couches amonge the rockes. The grashoppers haue not a gyde, yet go they forth together by heapes. The spyder laboureth with her handes, & is in kynges places. There be thre thynges that go stykly, yea fowre are comlye in goinge. A Lyon, which is strongest amõg beastes, ād geueth place to noma: A greyhoũde stroge i the hynder partes: A rãme also & a kyng, agaynst whom no mã aryseth vp. Yf thou hast done foolyshly whan thou wast in hye estate, or yf thou hast taken euell councell: then laye thyne hande vpon thy mouth.

Who so chyrmeth mylcke, maketh butter: and he that rubbeth hys nose, maketh it blede: Euē so he that causeth wrath bryngeth forth stryfe.

¶ The .xxxi. Chapter.

¶ Kynges ought to fudge iustly. The propertye of an honest maryed wyfe.

¶ The wordes of

Kyng Lamuel, & the lesson that hys mother taught hym.

1 MY sōne (why do ye so) ꝑ sōne of my body: O my deare beloued sōne, geue not ouer thi strēgth & waies vnto wemē, which are ꝑ destrucciō eue of kynges. O Lamuel, yt is not for kynges, it is not (I saye) for kinges to drinke wyne, nor Princes stronge drynche: (for ther is no secret where dronckennesse reigneth) lest they bryngе drōcken forgett the lawe, and peruerte the iudgement of all poore mēs childerne. Geue stronge drinche vnto soch as are condempned to death, and wyne vnto those that mourne: that they maye drincke it, and forgett theyr mysery & aduersytie.

8 Be thou an aduocate, for the dombe and stande in iudgement thy selfe, to speake for all soch as be socourles in this transitorye worlde. Opē thy mouth, defende the thynge that is lawfull and ryght, and the cause of the poore and helpelesse.

10 Who so fyndeth an honest faythfull woman, she is moch more worth then perles.
11 The hert of her husband maye safely trust in her, so that he shall fall in no pouertye.

12 She will do hym good and not euell, all the dayes of her lyfe. She occupyeth woll and flaxe, & laboureth gladly with her hādes. She is lyke a marchauntes shyppe, that bryngeth her vytayles from a farre.

15 She is vp in the nyght season, to prouyde meate for her housholde, and fode for her maydens. She consydreth lande, & byeth it, and with the frute of her hādes she planteth a vyneyarde. She gyrdeth her loynes with strength, & courageth her armes. And yf she perceaue that her houswyferye doth good, her candle goeth not out by nyght. She layeth her fyngers to the spyndell: and her hande taketh holde of ꝑ distaffe. She openeth her hande to the poore, yee C
20 she stretcheth forth her handes to soche as haue nede. She feareth not that the colde of wynter shall hurte her house, for all her housholde folkes are clothed with skarlett. She maketh her selfe fayre ornamētes, her clothynge is whyte sylke & purple.

23 Her husband is moch set by in the gates, when he sytteth amonge the rulers of the land. She maketh cloth of sylke and selleth it, & delyuereth gyrdles vnto the marchaunt. Strength and honoure is her clothynge, & in the latter daye she shall reioyse. She openeth her mouth with wysdome, and in her tonge is the lawe of grace.
25 She loketh well to the wayes of her housholde: & eateth not her bred with ydylnes.
26 Her childzen shall aryse, and call her blessed: & her husband shall make moch of her.
28 Many daughters there be that gather riches together, but thou goest aboue them all. As for fauoure, it is disceatfull, and beutie is a vayne thynge: but a womā that feareth ꝑ Lorde, she is worthy to be praysed. Geue her of ꝑ frute of her hādes and let her awne workes prayse her in the gates.

¶ The ende of the Prouerbes of Salomon.

¶ The booke of the preacher, otherwyse called ecclesiastes.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ That is in thys worlde is vanytie.

A THese are the wordes of the Preacher, ꝑ sonne of Dauid, kynge of Ieruſalē. * All is but moste vayne vanite (sayeth ꝑ Preacher) & all is moste vayne (I say) & but plaine vanite. For what els hath a mā, of all ꝑ labour ꝑ he taketh vnder ꝑ Sunne? One generacyon passeth awaye, another cōmeth, but ꝑ earth abydeth styll. The Sunne aryseth, ꝑ sunne goeth downe, & returneth to hys place, ꝑ he maye there rise vp againe. The wynde goeth toward ꝑ South, & turneth vnto the northe, fetcheth his cōpasse, whirleth aboute, & goth forth, & his circuite returneth B agayne to him selfe. * All floudes rūne into the see, & yet ꝑ see yt selfe is not fylled: for loke vnto what place ꝑ waters rūne, thence they come to flowe agayne. All thiges are so harde to be knowen, ꝑ no mā can expresse thē. * The eye is not satisfyed wt syght, the eare is not fylled wt hearinge. * The thing ꝑ hath bene, cōmeth to passe agayne: & ꝑ thinge ꝑ hath bene done, shall be done agayne, there is no new thig vnder ꝑ sunne. Is there eny thig wherof it maye be sayde: lo, this is new? For it was longe agoo in ꝑ tymes ꝑ haue bene before vs. The thing ꝑ is past, is C out of remēbraunce: Euen so the thinges ꝑ are for to come, shal no more be thought vpon amōge them ꝑ come after. I my selfe ꝑ Preacher, was kyng of Israel at Ieruſalē, & dyd applie my mynde to seke out & search for ꝑ knowledge of all thinges that are done vnder heauē. Soch trauayle and labour hath God geuē vnto ☞ ꝑ children of men, to exercyse them selues therin.

D Thus I haue consydred all the thinges ꝑ come to passe vnder the Sunne, and lo, they are all but vanite, & veracīō of minde. The croked cānot be made straight, nor ꝑ thige ꝑ is vnperfecte, cānot be acōpted wt thinges ꝑ are perfecte. I cōmoned wt mine awne herte, sayinge: lo, I am come to a great estate, & haue gotte more wysdome, thē all they ꝑ haue bene before me in Ieruſalē. Yee my herte had greate experience of wisdome & knowledge, for there vnto I applied my mynde: ꝑ I myght knowe what were wisdome & vnderstādyng, what were errour & folishnes: & I perceaued, ꝑ this also was but a veracyō of minde: for where moch wisdome is, there is also greate trauaile & disquietnes: & ꝑ more knowledge a man hath, ꝑ more is hys care.

¶ Aboundaunce of ryches, or pleasure & of bugildinge are vayne thynges.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

THē sayd I thus in my herte: Now go to, I wil take mine ease & haue good dayes. But lo, ꝑ is vanite: also in soch ꝑ I sayd vnto ꝑ mā gyue to laughter: ꝑ arte madd, & to myrth: what doest thou? So I thought I my herte, to gyue my flesh vnto wyne and agayne to applie my mynde vnto wysdome, and to comprehēde folyshnes vntyll the tyme ꝑ (amōge all ꝑ thinges whych are vnder the Sunne) I myght se what were best for men to do, so longe as they lyue vnder heauen.

* I made gorgious fayre workes. I buylded me houses, and planted vyneyardes. I made me orchardes and gardēs of pleasure, and planted trees in them of al maner frutes. I made poles of water, to water ꝑ greene and fruteful trees withall. I bought seruauntes and maydens, and had a greate housholde. As for catell and shepe, I had more substaunce of them, then all they that were before me in Ieruſalē. I gathered syluer & golde together, euē a treasure of kynges and landes.

I prouyded me syngers & women, which coulde playe of instrumentes, to make men myrth and passtime. I gat me psalteries & songes of musicke. And I was greater and in more worshipe, thē all my predecessours in Ieruſalem. For wisdome remained with me: & loke whatsoeuer myne eyes desyred, I let thē haue it: and wherin soeuer my herte delyted, or had eny pleasure, I with helde it not frō it. Thus my herte reioyced in all that I dyd, and this was my porcion of all my trauayle. But when I cōsydred all the workes that my handes had wrought, and all ꝑ labour that I had take therin: lo, all was but vanite and veracion of mynd, and nothing of eny value vnder ꝑ Sunne. Thē turned I me to considre wysdome, errour, and folyshnesse (for what is he among men that myght be compared to me the kyng in soch workes?) and I sawe: that wysdome excelleth foolishnesse, as farre as light doth darcknesse. For a wyse man hath his eyes C in his head, but the foole goeth in the darknesse: I perceaued also, ꝑ they both had one ende. Thē thought I i my mynde, If it happen vnto the foole as it doth vnto me, what nedeth me then to labour eny more for wisdome? So I confessed within my herte, that this also was but vanite. For the wyse are euer as lytle in remembraūce as the folish, for ꝑ dayes shal come whē all shal be forgotten, yee ꝑ wise man dieth as well as ꝑ foole. Thus beganne I to be weery of my lyfe, in so moch that I coulde awaye with nothing that is done vnder the Sunne, for all was but vanite & veracion of minde: Yee I was weery of all my labour, whych I had taken vnder the Sunne, because I shulde be fayne to leaue them vnto another man that cometh after me: And who knoweth, whether he shalbe a wyse mā or a fole? And yet shall he be lord of all my labours, which I with soch wysdome haue taken vnder the Sūne Thys is also a vayne thyng.

werye

So I turned me to refrayne my mynde from all soch trauayle, as I toke vnder the Sunne: for so moch as a man shulde weery hym selfe with wysdome, with vnderstanding and opportunite, & yet be fayne to leaue his labours vnto another that neuer swett for thē. This is also a vayne thing & greate misery. For what getteth a mā of all the laboure and trauayle of his mynde, that he taketh vnder the Sunne, but heuynesse, sorowe and desquyetnes all the dayes of hys lyfe? In so moch that his hert cānot rest in the nyght. this is also a vayne thing? * Is it not better then for a mā to eate & drynke, & his soule to be mery in his labour? Yee I sawe that thys also was a gyfte of God: For who will eat or go moze lustely to hys wozche then I? And why? God gyueth to the man that is good before him, wysdome, vnderstandyng, & gladnesse. But vnto the synner he geueth weerynes (and superfluous care) that he maye gather and heape together the thynge, that afterwarde shalbe geuen vnto him, whom it pleaseth God. This is now a vayne thinge, yee a very disquietnesse and veracyon of mynde.

* Eccle. v.d.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ All thynges come in their tyme, and passe away in their tyme.

EVery thinge hath a tyme, yee all þ is vnder the heauen, hath his cōuenient season. There is a tyme to be borne, and a tyme to dye.

There is a tyme to plante and a tyme to picke vp the thing, that is planted.
A time to slaye, and a time to make whole.
A tyme to breake downe, & a tyme to build vp. A tyme to wepe, and a tyme to laugh:
A tyme to mourne, and a tyme to daunse.
A time to cast awaye stones, and a tyme to gather stones together. A tyme to embrace, and a tyme to refrayne from embracing.
A tyme to wynne, and a tyme to lese. A tyme to spare, and a tyme to spēde. A tyme to cut in peces, and a tyme to sowe together.
* A tyme to kepe silence, & a tyme to speake. A tyme to loue, and a tyme to hate.
A tyme of warre, and a tyme of peace.

What hath a man els (þ doth any thing) but werynesse & labour? For as touchinge the trauayle and carefulnesse whych God hath geuen vnto men, I se þ he hath geuen it them, to be exercised in it. All thys hath he ordened maruelous goodly, to euery thig his due tyme. He hath planted ignorāunce also in the hertes of mē, that they shuld not comprehende the ground of hys worckes, which he doth from the beginning to þ ende. So I perceaued, þ in these thinges there is nothing better for a man, then to be mery and to do well so longe as he lyueth. For all that a mā eateth & drynketh, yee what soeuer a mā enioyeth of all his labour, that same is a gyfte of God. I consydered also þ whatsoeuer God doth, it cōtinueth for euer and that nothing can be put vnto it, nor taken from it, and that God doth it to the intent, that mē shuld feare hym. * The thing that hath bene, is nowe: and the thyng that is for to come, hath bene afore time, for God restoreth agayne the thynge that was past. Moreouer, I sawe vnder the Sūne vngodlynesse in the steade of iudgement, and iniquyte in stede of ryghteousnesse. Then thought I in my minde: God shal separate the ryghteous from the vngodly, and then shalbe the tyme and iudgement of all counceils and worckes. I commened with myne awne hert also, concernynge the childzen of men: how God hath chosen them, & yet letteth them apeare: as though they were beastes: for it happeneth vnto men as it doth vnto beastes, and as the one dyeth, so dyeth the other: yee they haue both one maner of breth: so þ (in this) a man hath no preemynence aboue a beast, but all are subdued vnto vanyte. They go all vnto one place, for as they be all of dust, so shall they all turne vnto dust agayne. * Who knoweth þ spirite of mā that goeth vpwarde, and the breth of the beast that goeth downe into þ earth? Wherfore I perceaue, that there is nothing better for a man, thē to be ioyfull in hys labour, for that is hys porcyon. But who wyll bringe him to se the thinge that shall come after hym?

* Eccle. xv. a fffi. b. fffiii a

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ The mysteryes of the innocent. The superfluous labours of men. The childe that is poore, and lyte, &c.

SO I turned me, & * considred all þ violent wrong that is done vnder the sunne, & beholde, the teares of soch as were oppressed, & there was no man to confort thē, or þ wolde delyuer & defende thē from the violence of their oppressours. Wherfore I iudged those that are deed, to be more happye then soch as be alyue: yee, him that is yet vnborne to be better at ease then they both, because he seyth not the miserable worckes that are done vnder the sunne.

* Ecclesi. Eccle. b.b.

Agayne, I sawe that all trauayle, & dilygence of labour, þ euery man taketh in hande, was done of enuy agaynst his neyboure

This

This is also a vaine thinge, and a veracion of mynde. The foole foldeth his handes together, and eateth vp hys awne flesshe. One hãde full (sayeth he) is better with rest, then both the handes full with laboure & trauayle of minde. Moreouer, I turned me, & behold de yet another vanyte vnder the Sunne.

There is one man, no mo but hym selfe alone, hauyng nether chylde ner brother: yet is there no ende of his carefull trauayle, his eyes can not be satysfyed with riches, & (yet doth he not remembre hym selfe, and sayr.) For whom do I take soch trauayle? For whose pleasure do I thus consume awaye my lyfe? This is also a vayne & mysserable thinge! Therfore, two are better then one, for they maye well enioye the profyt of theyr laboure.

For If one of them fall, his cõpanyon helpeth him vp agayne: But wo is him that is alone, for yf he fall, he hath not another to helpe him vp. Agayne, when two slepe together, they are warme: but how cã a body be warme alone? One maye be ouertome, but two maye make resistaũce: A threfold cable is not lyghtly broken. A poore childe beynge wyse, is better then an olde kynge, þ doteth, and cãnot beware in tyme to come. * Some one commeth out of preson, and is made a kynge: and another which is borne in the kyngdome, commeth vnto powerte. And I perceaued, that all men lyuynge vnder the sonne, go with þ seconde childe, that shall stonde vp in the steade of the other.

As for the people þ haue bene before him, and þ come after hym, they are innumerable: And they þ come after him shall not reioyse of him. This is also a vayne thynge & a veracyon of mynde. When þ commest in to þ house of God, kepe thy foote & draw nye þ God which is at hãde may beare: * þ thou gyue not the offeringes of fooles, for they knowe nowght, but to do euell.

The. v. Chapter.

A mouicyon to beware of rashe communicacyon: we ought not to merueil at the oppressyõ of the poore. The couetous is not satisfyed with his ryches.

BE not hastye with thy mouth, and let not thine hert speake eny thing rashly before God. For God is in heauen, and þ vpon earth, therfore let thy wordes be few. For where moch carefulnesse is, there are many dreames: and where many wordes are, there men maye heare fooles. * If thou make a vowe vnto God, be not slacke to performe it. As for folysh vowes, he hath no pleasure in thē: If thou promyse eny thinge, paye it: for better it is that thou make no vowe, thē that thou shuldest promyse, and not paye. Suffre not thy mouth to cause thy flesh for to synne, nether saye thou before the angell, þ it is thy ignorauce. For then God wilbe angrie at thy voyce, & destroye all the workes of thyne handes. And why? where as are many dreames and many wordes, there are also diuerse vanytes: but loke that thou feare God. * If thou seyst the poore to be oppressed and wrongeously dealt withall, so that equite & the ryght of the lawe is wrasted in the lãde: marueil not thou at soch a thyng, for one greate man kepeth touch with another, & þ myghtie men are in auctorite ouer the poore. The encrease of þ erth vpholdeth all thinge, yea the kynge himselfe is mayntened by husbãdrye. He that loueth money, wyll neuer be satisfyed w̃ money: & who so deliteth riches, shal haue no profyt therof. This is also a vayne thinge. Where as moche ryches is, there are many also that spende them awaye. And what pleasure more hath he that possesseth thē, sauynge that he maye loke vpon them with his eyes? A labouringe mã slepeth swetely, whether it be lytle or moch that he eateth: but the aboundaũce of the ryche will not suffre him to slepe. Yet is there a sore plage, which I haue sene vnder the sunne (namely) ryches kepte to the hurte of him that hath thē in possession. For ofte tymes they perysh with his greate misery & trouble: & yf he haue a chylde, it getteth nothynge. * Lyke as he came naked out of hys mothers wombe, so goeth he thither agayne, & carieth nothing awaye with hym of all his laboure. This is a mysserable plage, that he shall go awaye euen as he came. What helpeth it hym then, that he hath laboured in the wynde? All the dayes of his lyfe also he dyd eate in þ darcke, with greate carefulnesse, sycknesse and sorow. * Therfore me thincke it a better & a fayrer thyng, a man to eate and drynche, and to be refreshed of all hys labour, þ he taketh vnder the Sunne all þ dayes of his lyfe which God geueth hym, for this is hys porcyon.

For vnto whosoeuer God geueth riches goodes and power, he geueth it hym to enioye it, to take it for hys porcyon, and to be refreshed of hys labour: thys is þ gyfte of God. For he thinketh not moch howe lõge he shall lyue, for so moch as God fylleth his herte with gladnesse.

The. vi. Chapter.

The mysserye of the ryche and couetous. The difference of a fole and a wyse man.

THere is yet a plage vnder the sunne, & it is a generall thing among men: when God geueth a man ryches, goodes and honoure, so that he wanteth nothynge of all that hys herte cã desyre: and yet God geueth him not leaue to enioye þ same, but another man spendeth them

* Eccl. iiij. a. Deut. i. a

* Eccle. v. b.

* Iob. i. b. 1 Timot. vi. b.

* Eccle. ii. b.

them. This is a vayne thinge & a miserable
B plage. If a mā begett an hudred childzen, & lyue many yeares, so þ his dayes are many
in nombze, and yet can not enioye his good,
nether be buryed: as foz him I saye, þ an vn
tymely byrth is better then he. Foz he com
meth to naught, & spēdeth his tyme in darc knes, & his name is forgotte. Moreouer, he seeth not þ sonne, & knoweth not of it: & yet
B hath he moze rest thē the other. Yee though he lyued two thousande yeares, yet hath he no good lyfe. Come not all to one place? All the labour þ a man taketh, is foz him selfe, & yet his desire is neuer fylled after his min
de. Foz what hath þ wyse moze thē þ foole?
What helpeth it the pooze, þ he knoweth to walke bfore the lyuig? The clea re syght of the eyes is better, thē þ the soule shulde walke after desires of þ lust. Howbeit, this is also a vayne thige & a dysquiet nesse of mynde. The thige þ hath bene: is na med allready, & knowen yt is euen mā him
D selfe: nether maye he go to lawe wh hym þ is myghtier thē he. Many thiges ther be þ increase vanite, & what hath a man els. Foz who knoweth what is good foz mā lyuige, i
the dayes of hys vayne lyfe, which is but a shadowe? Oz who wyl tell a mā, what shal happen after him vnder the Sunne?

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ What wbych passeth our strengthes and wyttes ought we not to seke after.

A
* Pro. xxii. a & Eccle. i. a.
* Good name is moze worth then & a precyous oyntment, and the daye of deathe is better thē the daye of byrth.
It is better to go to an house of mourninge, then into a bāchetinge house. Foz there is the ende of all men, & he þ is liuig, taketh
it to hert: grauytie is better then to laugh:
foz when the countenaūce is heuy, the herte is reformed. The hert of the wyse is in the mourning house, but the hert of the folysh
* Pro. xvii. a is in the house of myrth. * It is better to geue eare to the chastenynge of a wyse man then to heare the songe of fooles. Foz the laughinge of foles is lyke the crackynge of thornes vnder a pot. And that is but a vay ne thynge.

The wyse man hateth wzonge delynge:
& abhozreth the harte þ couetith rewardes.
Better it is to cōsydre, the ende of a thinge
then the begynninge. The pacīēt of spyrite is better thē the hye mynded. Be not hastily angrie in thy mynde, foz wzath resteth in B the bosome of fooles. Saye not þ: What is the cause, þ the dayes of the olde tyme were better, thē they þ be nowe: foz þ were no wy se question. Wysdome wh enheritaūce is good yet better is it wh them þ without care may beholde the sonne. Foz wysdome defendeth
as well as moneye, & the excellēt knowledge & wysdome geueth lyfe vnto him þ hath it in possession. Consydre the wozke of God
how þ no man can make the thing straight which he maketh croked. Use wel the tyme of prosperite, & remēbre the tyme of mysfoz
tune: foz God maketh the one by the other, C
so þ a man cā fynde nothing els. All thiges
haue I consydred in the tyme of my vanite:
þ the iust mā perisheth foz his righteousnes
sake, & the vngodly lyueth in hys wyckednesse. Therfoze * be þ nether to ryghteous
ner ouer wyse, þ thou perishe not: be nether
to vnryghteous also ner to folysh, lest thou dye befoze thy tyme. It is good foz the to take holde of this, & not to let that go out of thy hand. Foz he that feareth God, commeth foorth with them all.

Wysdome geueth moze corage vnto the wyse, thē ten myghtie mē of the citye: * foz
there is not one iust vpō earth, þ doth good,
and synneth not. Take not hede vnto euery
wozde that is spokē, lest thou heare thy ser
uaūt curse þ: foz thine awne hert knoweth
that þ thy selfe also hast oft tymes spoken euell by other mē. All these thinges haue I proued i wysdome: foz I thought to be wyse * but she wēt farther fro me then she was befoze, yet & so depe that I might not reach vnto her. I applyed my mynde also vnto D knowledge, & to seke & searche oute science,
wysdome & vnderstādīng: to knowe the foo
lysshnesse of the vngodly, & the errour of do-tinge fooles. And I founde, þ * a woman is bytterer thē death: foz she hath cast abzode,
her herte as a nett that men fysshe with, and her handes are cheynes. Who so pleaseth God, shall escape from her: but the synner
will be taken with her.

Beholde (saye th the preacher) thys haue
I diligently searched oute & proued. One thinge must be cōsydred with another, that a man may come by knowledge: whych as yet I seke, & fynde it not. Amog a thousande mē I haue foūde one, but not one womā
amonge all. Lo, this onely haue I founde, þ
* God made man iust and ryght, but they sought many inuencions.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ The kynges commaundement ought to be obeyed.
Gladness: one of the chefe thynges vnder þ sonne.

Who is wyse? Who hath knowledge I to make answere? A mans wysdome
* maketh hys face to shine: but vn-shamefastnes putteth it out of fauoure. I must kepe the kynges commaūdement, and the oth that I haue made vnto God. Be not hastye to go out of hys syght, and se thou continue in no euell thinge: foz whatsoeuer it pleaseth hym, that doeth he. Lyke
as when a kynge geueth a charge, his commaundement is myghtye: Euen so * who mays

maye saye vnto him: what doest þ? * Who so kepeth the commaundemẽt: shall fele no harme: but a wyse mans herte discerneth þ tyme & iudgemẽt: For euery thing will haue opportunite & iudgement, and this is the thynge that maketh men full of carefulnes and sorowe. And why? a man knoweth not what is for to come: for who will tell him? Nether is there eny man þ hath power ouer the spyrte, to kepe it yll þ spyrte, ner to haue eny power in the tyme of death: is it not he also that can make an ende of the battayle, nether maye vngodlynes deliuer them that medle with all.

All these thinges haue I considered, and applied my mynde vnto euery worcke that is vnder the sonne: howe one mã hath lordshype vpõ another to his awne harme. For * I haue seane often þ vngodly brought to ther graues: and yet they haue retorned in to the citye ageyne, and came from the place of holy men, which in the citye were grouen out of memory as were those also that lyued well. Thys is also a vayne thynge. Because now that euell worckes are not hastely punyshed, the hert of man geueth hym selfe ouer vnto wyckednesse. But though an euell persone offende an hundred tymes, & God differ gyuinge him lõge lyfe: yet am I sure, þ it shal go well wt them that feare God, because they haue hi before their eyes. Agayne, as for þ vngodly, it shall not be well wt him, nether shall he prolonge his dayes: but euen as a shadowe, so shall he be that feareth not God.

Yet is there a vanyte vpon earth: There be iust men, vnto whom it happeneth, as though they had the worckes of the vngodly: Agayne, there be vngodly, with whom it goeth as though they had the worckes of the ryghteous. Thys haue I called also a vayne thyng. Therfore I commende gladnesse, because a mã hath no better thing vnder the Sunne, then to eate and dryncke, & to be merry: for þ shall he haue of his labour all the dayes of his lyfe, which God geueth him vnder the sunne. And so I applied my mynde to learne wysdome, & to knowe the trauayle that is i the worlde (and þ of soch a fassyon, þ I suffred not myne eyes to slepe nether daye ner nyght) I vnderstode of all the worckes of God, but it is not possible for a mã, to attayne vnto the worckes þ are done vnder the Sũne: and though he bestowe his laboure to seke them out, yet can he not reach vnto them: yee though a wyse man wolde vntertake to knowe them, yet shall he not fynde them.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ A mã wotteth not, by þ ryghteousnes of thes thinges worckes, whether he be worthye of loue or hate. A mã ought to lyue merely with his wyfe. ¶ prayse of wysdome

For all these thinges purposed, I in my mynde to seke out. The ryghteous and wyse, yee and they? seruauntes also, are in þ hãde of God: and ¶ there is no man þ knoweth ether loue or hate, but all thynges are before thẽ. It happeneth vnto one as vnto another: it goeth with þ ryghteous as with þ the vngodly: * with the good and cleane as wyth the vncleane: wyth hym that offereth as with him that offereth not: lyke as it goeth wyth þ vertuous, so goeth it also with the synner: As it happeneth vnto the periured, so happeneth it also vnto him that is afrayed to be forswore. Amonge all thynges that come to passe vnder the Sunne, thys is a misery þ it happeneth vnto all a lyke. This is the cause also that the hertes of mẽ are full of wyckednesse, & madd foolishnesse is in their hertes as longe as they lyue, vntyll they dye.

And why? As lõge as a mã lyueth, he hath a hope: for a quycke dogg (saye they) is better thẽ a deed lyõ: for they þ be lyuig, knowe þ they shall dye: but they þ be deed: knowe nothing, nether deserue they eny more. For their memorial is forgotte, so that they be nether loued, hated ner enuyed: nether haue they enymore parte in the world, i all that is done vnder þ Sunne. Go thou thy waye then, eate thy bred wyth ioye, and dryncke thy wyne with a glad hart, for thy worckes please God. Let thy garmentes be allwaye whyte, & * let thy head lack none oyntmẽt. * Vse thy selfe to liue ioyfully with thy wife whom thou louest, all the dayes of thy lyfe which is but vayne, þ God geueth the vnder the Sunne, all the dayes of thy vanite: for that is thy porcion in this lyfe, of al thy labour and trauyle that thou takest vnder the Sunne. Whatsoeuer thou takest in hande to do, that do with all thy power, for in the graue that þ goest vnto, there is nether worcke, councell, knowledge ner wysdome.

So I turned me vnto other thinges vnder the Sunne, & I sawe, that in runnyng, it helpeth not to be swyft: in batayle, it helpeth not to be stroge: to fedynge, it helpeth not to be wyse, to riches, it helpeth not to be suttell: to be had i fauoure, it helpeth not to be cõnyng: but that all lyeth in tyme & fortune. For * a man knoweth not hys tyme, but lyke as the fyshe are take with the angle, and as the byrdes are catched with the snare: Euen so are men take in the perlous tyme, when it cõmeth sodenly vpon them.

Thys wysdome haue I sene also vnder the Sunne, & me thought, it a greate thig. There was a lytle citie, & a fewe mẽ within it: so there came a greate kyng and beseged it, and made greate bulwarkes agaynst it.

And

And in ꝑ citie there was fonde a poore mā, (but he was wyse) which with his wysdome delyuered the citye: yet was there no bo dy that had ony respect vnto soch a symple man. Then sayde I: wysdome is better ꝺ̄ strength. Neuertheles, a symple mans wysdome is despised, & his wordes are not herde. The wyse mans counsell that is folowed in silence, is farre aboue the crye of a captayne amōge fooles. * For wysdome is better ꝺ̄ harneis: but one vnthryfte alone destroyeth much good.

* Eccl. vi. a. & Wis. viii. c & Mag. xvii. c

¶ The. x. Chapter.

¶ The difference betwyxt a foole and a wyse man. ꝑ vntowarde and happye in their rule which bare a wyse prince.

A Verdāye both corrupt swete oyntement & maketh it to stynk: Euen so oft tymes he that is made for wysdome & honour, is abhorred because of a lytle foolishnes. ¶ A wyse mās herte is vpō ꝑ ryght hāde, but a fooles herte vpō ꝑ lefte. A foole will shewe him selfe whē he goeth by ꝑ way, yet thinketh he ꝑ euery mā both as foolyshly as hi selfe. If a prīcipal spyrite be geuē ꝑ to beare rule, * be not negligēt thē in thine office: for he ꝑ can take cure of him selfe, auoydeth great offences. Another plage is there, which I haue sene vnder the sonne: namely, ꝑ ignorāunce ꝑ is cōmenly amonge princes: in that a foole lyfteth in greate dignite, & the ryche are sett downe beneth: I haue sene seruaūtes ryde vpon horses, and princes goyng vpon their fete as it were seruaūtes. * But he ꝑ dyggeth vp a pyt, shal fall therin him selfe: and who so breaketh downe the hedge, a serpēt shall byte hym. Who so remoueth stones, shall haue trauayle withall: & he ꝑ heweth wood, shalbe hurt therwith.

* Pro. xxvi. b Eccl. xxvii. b

When an yrō is blont, and the poynt not sharpened, it must be whet agayne, and ꝑ is myght: Euē so both wysdome folowe diligence. A babler of byā tōge is no better, then a serpent that stingeth wythout hyssynge. The wordes out of a wyse mās mouth are gracious, but the lyppes of a foole will deuoure him selfe. The beginnyng of his talkynge is foolyshnes, & the last worde of his mouth is starke madnesse. A foole is full of wordes, & a man cannot tell what shall come to passe: who will then warne him of it that shall folow after him? The laboure of the foolysh is grenous vnto thē, whyle they knowe not howe to go into the citye.

Wo be vnto the (O thou lande) whose kynge is but a child, and whose princes are early at their bankettes. But well is the (O thou lande) whose kynge is come of noble, & whose princes eate in due season, for neccessyte & not for lust. Through slouthfulnesse the bolches fall downe, & through ydle hādes it rayneth in at the house. Meat maketh men to laugh, and * wyne maketh the merry: but vnto money are all thinges obedient. With ꝑ kyng no cuell in thy thought & speake no harte of the ryche in thy preuy chābre: for a byrd of the ayre shall betraye thy voyce, and with his fethers shal he bewraye thy wordes.

* Eccl. xxxi. a

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

¶ Charyte ought to be extended vnto the nedy.

CAst thy bredde vpon weate faces, & so shalt thou fynde after many dayes. Gene parte. vii. dayes, and also vpō the eyght, for ꝑ knowest not what misery shall come vpō earth. When ꝑ cloudes are full, they powre out rayne vpon the earth. And when the tre falleth (whether it be toward ꝑ South or North) in what place soeuer it fall, there it lyeth. He that regardeth the wynde, shall not sowe and he that hath respecte vnto the cloudes, shal not reape. Lyke as ꝑ knowest not the waye of ꝑ spirite howe he entred into ꝑ body beinge yet in a mothers wōbe: Euē so ꝑ knowest not the workes of God, whych is the workemaster of all.

Cease not thou therfore with thy handes to sowe thy sede, whether it be in the morninge or in the euenynge: for thou knowest not whether this or that shal prospere, and yf they both take, it is ꝑ better. The lyght is swete, & a pleasaunt thynge is it for the eyes to loke vpon the Sunne. If a man lyue many yeares, and be glad in the all, let him remembre the dayes of darcknesse, whych shalbe many: and that folowyth, all thinges shall be but vanyte. Be glad then (O thou yonge mā) in thy youth, and let thyne hert be merry in thy yong dayes, folowe ꝑ wayes of thyne awne herte, & the lust of thine eyes but be thou sure, that God shall bringe the into iudgement for all these thynges.

¶ The. xii. Chapter.

¶ From euyl youth ought we to conuerte, and vse gayne the greuous of age.

PUt a waye displeasure out of thyne herte, & remoue euell from thy body: for chyldehode & youth is but vanyte. Remembre thy maker the louer in thy youth, or euer the dayes of aduersytie come & or ꝑ yeares drawe nye, when ꝑ shalt saye: I haue not pleasure in them: before ꝑ sunne the lyght, ꝑ moone & starres be darckened, & or the cloudes turne agayne after ꝑ rayne, when the keepers of ꝑ house shall tremble, & when ꝑ stronge mē shall bowe them selues: when ꝑ mylleres stāde styll, because they be so fewe, & whē ꝑ lyghtes of ꝑ wyndowes shall

waxe

ware hymme, when the dores in the stretes shalbe shut, and when the voyce of the mylner shalbe layed downe: when men shall ryse vpat the voyce of the byrde, and when all ꝑ daughters of musyke shalbe brought lowe: when men shall feare in hye places, and be afrayed in the stretes: when the Almonde tree shall flourishe and be laden with the grashopper, and when all lust shall passe (because man goeth to his longe home, and the mourners go aboute the stretes.) Or euer the syluer lace be taken awaye, and or the golden well be broken. Or the pot be broken at the well, and the whele vpon the cysterne: Then shall the dust be turned agayne vnto earth from whence it came, and the spyrite shall returne vnto God, which gaue it. * All is but vanite (sayth the Preacher) all is but playne vanyte. The Preacher was yet more wyse, and taught the people knowledge: he gaue good hede, sought out the grounde, and set forth many parables. Hys diligence was to fynde out acceptable wordes, ryght scripture, and the wordes of trueth. For * the wordes of ꝑ wyse are lyke pryckes and nayles that goo thorow, wherwith ꝑ stuffe gathered is holden vp: for they are geuen of one shepherde onely. Therfore beware (my sonne) of that doctrine that is beyde thyz: for to make many bokes it is an endles worke: and to longe cryinge wery eth the bodye.

Let vs heare the conclusyon of all thynges: Feare God, and kepe hys commaundementes: For that toucheth all men.

For God shall iudge all workes and secrete thynges, whether they be good or euell.

The ende of the boke of the Preacher / other wyse called / Ecclesiastes.

The Ballet of Ballettes of Salomon: called in Latyn, Canticum Canticorum.

The fyrst Chapter.

The mysticall songe of the spirituall and godly loue, betwene Christ the spouse, and the churche or congregacyon hys spouesse.

O That he wold kysse me with the kysses of his mouth: for thy loue is more pleasaunt then wyne, that, because of ꝑ goods pleasaũt sauoure of thy most precious balmes. Thy name is * al wete fuellynge oyntment when it is shed forthe, therfore do the maydẽs loue the. Draw me vnto ꝑ: we wyll runne after the. The kynge hath brought me into hys preuy chambres. We wyll be glad & reioyce in the, we thynke more of thy loue then of wyne. They that be ryghteous loue ꝑ. I am black (O ye daughters of Ierusalẽ) lyke as * the tẽtes of ꝑ Cedarenes, & * as the hangynges of Salomon: but yet am I fayre & well fauoured withall. Maruell not at me ꝑ I am so black: for why? the sunne hath shyned vpõ me. My mothers chyldren had euell wyll at me, they made me ꝑ keper of the vyneyardes: but myne owne vyneyarde haue I not kept. Tell me of him whõ my soule louethe where thou fedest the shepe, where thou makest thẽ rest at ꝑ noone daye: for why shall I be lyke him, that goeth wronge aboute ꝑ flockes of thy cõpanyons? Yf thou knowe not thy selfe (O thou fayrest amõge wemẽ) then go thy waye forth after ꝑ foteteppes of the shepe, and fede thy goates beyde the shepeherdes tentes. Unto * the hoost of Pharaos charettes haue I compared the, O my loue. Thy chekes and thy neck is beawtyfull as ꝑ turtyls, and hanged with spanges and goodly Jewels: a neck bãde of golde wyll we make the with syluer buttõs.

When the kynge sytteth at the table, he shall smell my Nardus: a boudell of Myrre is my loue vnto me: he wyll lye betwixte my breastes. A cluster of Camphire in the vyneardes of Engaddi is my loue vnto me.

* O how fayre art thou (my loue) Oh how fayre art thou? thou hast doues eyes. O how fayre art thou (my beloued) howe well fauored art ꝑ? Oure bed is decte with floures, the sylynges of oure house are of Cedre tree, and oure crosse toyntes of Cypresse.

The.ii. Chapter.

I Am the lylie of the felde, and rose of the valleyes: as the rose amonge the thornes, so is my loue amonge the daughters. Lyke as the apple tree amonge the trees of the wodd, so is my beloued amõg the sõnes. My delyte is to syt vnder hys shadowe, bowge, for hys frute is swete vnto my chaw-

ter. He bringeth me into hys wyne sellor, hys banner ouer me, is loue. Set about me cuppes of wyne, cherysshe me with apples,
for I am sycke of loue. * Hys left hande is vnder my heade, & hys ryght hande shall embrace me. * I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalē) by the Roes and hyndes of the felde, that ye wake not vp my loue nor stou-
the her, tyll she be content her selfe. He thinke
I heare the voyce of my beloued: lo, there co-
meth he hoppynge vpon the mountaynes, & leappynge ouer the lytle hylles. My beloued, is lyke a Roo or a ponge hart. Beholde, he standeth behynde our wall, he loketh in at the windowe, and pepeth thorowe the grate. My beloued answered and sayde vnto me.

Arise vp my loue, my beutyfull, and go
forthe a wne: for lo, the wynter is now past
the rayne is awaye and gone. The flowres are come vp in the felde, the tyme of the hyr-des synginge is come, and the voyce of the turtle doue is herde in our lāde. The fygge tree bringeth forth her fygges, and the vynes beare blossoms & haue a good smell. Arise vp the & come my loue, my beutyfull, & come
I saye (O my doue) out of the caues of the ro-ches, out of the holes of the wall: O let me se thy countenaunce and heare thy voyce for swete is thy voyce, and fayre is thy face. Get vs the foxes, yee the lytle foxes, that hurt the vynes, for oure vynes beare blossoms. * My loue is myne, and I am hys, which feedeth amonge the roses, vntyll the daye breake, and tyll the shadowes be gone. Come agayne (O my beloued) and be lyke as a Roo or a ponge part vpō the wylde mountaynes.

The iii. Chapter.

BY nyght I my bed I sought hī, whō
my soule loueth: I sought him, but I colde him not. I wyll get vp (thought I) and go aboute
the cytie, in the wayes in all the stretes wyll
I seke him whom my soule loueth: but when I sought hym, I founde hym not. The watchemen also that go aboute the cytie, founde me. Sawe ye not him whom my soule lo-ueth? So when I was a lytle past the, I founde him whō my soule loueth. I haue gotten holde vpon hym, and wyll not let him go vntyll I bringe hym into my mothers house, and into her chambre that bare me.

* I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, by the Roes and hyndes of the felde,
that ye wake not vp my loue nor touche her,
tyll she be content her selfe. Who is thys, that commeth vp out of the wyldernesse like vapours of smoke, as it were a smell of Myrre, frankencense, and all maner spyces of the Apotecary? Beholde, aboute Salo-mons bedstede ther stande .lx. valeaunt men of the most myghtie in Israel. They holde swordes curry one, and are expert in warre:
Euery man also hath hys sworde vpon hys
thygh, because of feare in the nyght: Kynge Salomon had made him selfe a palace of the wod of Libanus, the pilers are of syluer, the couerynge of golde, the seate of purple, the ground is pleasauntly paued with loue for the daughters of Jerusalem. Go forth (O ye daughters of Syon) and beholde kynge Salomon in the crowne: wherewith his mother crowned him in the daye of hys mariage,
and in the daye of the gladnesse of his hert.

The iiii. Chapter.

O how fayre art thou, my loue, how fa-
yre art thou? thou hast doues eyes, besyde that which lyeth hyd with-
in. * Thy heare lockes are like the wolle of a flocke of goetes that be shewe vpon mount Gilead: Thy teth are like theme of the same bignesse, which went vp from the washynge place: where curry one beareth
two twynes, and not one vntruetfull amonge them. Thy lippes are like a rose coloured ry-bande, thy wordes are louely, thy chekes are like a pece of a pomgranat within thyne hea-
res. Thy neck is lyke the tower of Dauid builded with costly stones lyinge out on the sides
wher vpon there hang a thousande shyldes, yee all the weapens of the geauntes. * Thy
two brestes are lyke two twynes of younge roes, which fede amonge roses. O that I myght go to the mountayne of Myrre, & to the hyll of frankencense: tyll the daye breake & tyll
the shadowes be past awaye. Thou art all fayre, O my loue, & no spotte is there in the.
Come to me frō Libanus (O my spouse) come to me frō Libanus loke from the toppe of Amana, from the toppe of Sanir & Hermō,
frō the lyons dennes and from the mountaynes
of the leopardes. Thou hast with loue be wit-ched my hert, O my syster, my spouse, thou hast
bewitched my herte, with one of thyne eyes,
and with one chayne of thy neck. O howe fayre are thy brestes, my syster, my spouse! Thy brestes are more pleasaunt then wyne, and the smell of thyne ointmentes passeth all spyces.
Thy lippes, O my spouse, droppe as the hony
combe, yee myche and hony is vnder thy tong,
and the smell of thy garmentes is lyke the smell of Libanus. A garden well locked is my syster, my spouse, a garden well locked, and a sealed well. The frutes that are planted in the,
are lyke a very Paradyse of pomgranates
with swete frutes: as Camphire, Nardus, and Safferō, Calamus, & Cynamom with all swete smelling trees: Myrre, Aloes and all the best spyces: a well of gardes, a well of lyuinge waters, which reame downe frō Li-banus. Vp thou northe wynde, come thou south wynde, and blowe vpon my garden, that
the smell therof may be carped on euery syde:
yee that my beloued may come into hys garden, and eate

ꝑ rate of ꝑ swete frutes that grobe therin.

¶ The .v. Chapter.

Am come into my garden, O my sister, my spouse: I have gathered my Myrre with my spyce. I have eaten hony with my hony cobe, I have dronke my wyne with my mylke. Eate, O ye frendes, drynche and be mery, O ye beloued.

I am aslepe, and my hert is waking I heare voyce of my beloued, whe he knocketh. Open to me, O my sister, my loue, my doue, my derlynge: for my heade is full of dewe, & the lockes of my heare are full of the nyght drypper. I have put of my cote, how can I do it on agayne? I have washed my fete, how shall I syle the agayne?

My loue put in his hand at the hole, and my hert was moued within me. I stode vp to ope vnto my beloued, & my hades dropped with Myrre, & the Myrre ranne downe my fyngers vpō ꝑ locke. I opened vnto my beloued, but he was departed and gone his waye. Now when he spake, my hert was gone: I sought hym, but I coulde not fynde hym: I cryed vpō him, neuertheles, he gaue me no answere. The ꝑ watchmen ꝑ wente about the cytie, founde me, smote me, & wounded me: Yee, they ꝑ kepte ꝑ walles, toke awaye my herchefe fro me.

I charge you therfore, O ye daughters of Ierusalem, yf ye fynde my beloued, that ye tell hym, how that I am sycke for loue.

What maner of man is thy loue aboue other louers? O ꝑ fayrest amonge wemē? Or what can thy loue do, more then other louers, that thou chargest vs so straytely?

As for my loue, he is white and redde coloured, a goodlye persone amōge ten thousande: his heade is as the most fyne golde, the lockes of hys hearre are bushed, and black as a crowe. His eyes are as ꝑ eyes of doues by the water brokes, as though they were washed with mylk, & are sett by the perles in golde. Hys chekes are lyke a gardē bedd, where in the Apotecaries plāte all maner of swete thynges: Hys lyppes are lyke roses that droppe swete smelling Myrre. His handes are lyke gold rynges fauige enclosed ꝑ precyous stone of Thar sis. His body is as the pure yuory, bete ouer with Saphires: His legges are as the pylers of Marbell, set vpon soketes of golde. His face is as Libanus, and as ꝑ bewty of the Cedre trees. The wordes of his mouthe are swete, yee, he is altogether louely. Suche one is my loue. O ye daughters of Ierusalem, soch one is my loue.

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

Whither is thy loue gōe then (O thou fayrest amonge wemen) whither is is thy loue departed? we will seke yt with the: My loue is gone downe into hys garden, vnto the swete smellyng bedes, that he may refresh hym selfe i the garden, and gather roses. My loue is myne & I am his, which feedeth amōge the roses.

Thou art beautyfull, o my loue, as is the place of Thirza, thou art fayre as Ierusalem, fearfull as an armye of men, wh they banners. Turne awaye thyne eyes fro me, for they haue set me on fyre. * Thy hearrye lockes are lyke a flocke of goates shorne vpon the mount of Gilead. Thy teth are lyke a flock of shorne shepe, which go out of ꝑ washyng place: where euery one bereth twyns, & not one vnfrutefull among them. Thy chekes are lyke a pece of a pōgranate, within thy volupers. There are * lx. Quenes. lxxx. wyues, and damesselles wythout nōbre. One is my doue, one is my derlynge. ¶ She is the onely beloued of her mother, & deare vnto her ꝑ bare her. Whē ꝑ daughters sawe her, they sayde, she was blessed. Yee the Quenes and wyues prayse her. What is she this, ꝑ loketh forth as the morynge? fayre as the moone, cleare as the sunne, and fearful as an armye of men wh their baners. I wente downe into ꝑ nutt gardē, to se what grewe by ꝑ brokes, & to loke yf the vyneyarde flourished, or yf ꝑ pomgranates were shot forth. I knewe not ꝑ my soule had made me ꝑ charyote of the people that be vnder tribute. Turne againe, turne agayne, O thou perfecte one turne ageyne, turne agayne, & we will loke vpon the. What wil ye se in the Sulamyte? She is lyke men of warre syngynge in a companye.

The seuenth Chapter.

How pleasaunt are thy treadynges with the shoes, thou princes daughter? Thy thighes are like a fayre iewell, which is wrought by a conyng workeman master.

Thy nauell is lyke a rounde goblet, which is neuer without drinke. Thy wōbe is lyke a heye of wheat that is sett about wh roses

* Thy two brestes are lyke two twyns of younge roes. Thy neck is as it were a tower of yuory: thine eyes also are lyke the water poles ꝑ are in Hesebō, beside ꝑ porte of Rabbim: thy nose is lyke the tower of Libanus, which loketh toward Damascus. That head ꝑ standeth vpō the, is lyke Carmel & the hearre of thy heade is lyke purple and lyke a kynge goynge forth wh his garde about hym. O how fayre & louely art ꝑ my dearlynge, I pleasures? Thy stature is lyke a Palme tree & thy brestes lyke the grapes. I sayde I will clyme vp into ꝑ Palme tree, & take holde of his hye braūches. Thy brestes also shalbe as ꝑ vyne clusters ꝑ smell of thy nostrels lyke is the smell of applet, and thy lawes lyke the beste wyne. Whiche goeth strayte vnto my beloued and hasteth forth by ꝑ lyppes of the auncyent elders. There wyl I turne me vnto my loue ꝙ he shall turne hym vnto me. O come on my loue, we will go forth into the felde, ꝙ take ourr lodgynge in the villages. In the mornynge wyll we go se ꝑ vyneyarde: we will se yf the vyne be sprunge forth, yf the grapes be growne, and yf the pōgranates be shot out. There will I geue ꝑ my brestes: ꝑ Mandragoras geue theyr swearte smell: and beside ourr doores are all maner of pleasaunt frutes: both newe, ꝙ olde: whych I haue kepte for the, o my beloued.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

O That I myght fynde the wythout, and kysse the, whom I loue as my brother whych sucked my mothers brestes: and that thou shalt not be despised I will leade the, and bringe the in to my mothers house: that thou myghtest teach me, ꝙ that I myght geue the drynke of spiced wyne, ꝙ of the swete sappe of my pongranates. * his left hande shalbe vnder my head ꝙ hys ryght hande shall embrace me.

* Cant. ii. c.

I charge you, O ye daughters of Jerusalem, ꝑ ye wake not vp my loue, ner touch her, tyll she be content her selfe. What is she this, that commeth vp from the wildernes, and leaneth vpon her loue? I waked the vp amonge the apple trees, where thy mother conceyued the, where thy mother (I saye) brought the into the worlde. O set me as a seale vpon thine herte, and as a seale vpon thyne arme: for loue is myghtie as the death, ꝙ gelousy as the hel. her coales are of fyre, ꝙ a very flame of the Lorde: so ꝑ many waters are not able to quenche loue, nether maye the streames droune it. Yee, yf a man wolde geue all the good of his house for loue, he shuld counte it nothyng. Our syster is but ponge, ꝙ hath no brestes: what shall we do for our syster, whan she shall be spoken for? Yf she be a wall, we shal bylde a syluer bolwercke ther vpō: yf she be an open doze, we shall fasten her with boordes of Cedre tree. I am a wall, and my brestes lyke towres, then was I as one that hath founde fauoure in his syght. Salomon hath a vyneyarde at Baal hamon, ꝙ thus vyneyarde delyuered he vnto the keepers: ꝑ euery one for the frute therof shulde geue hym a thousande peces of syluer. Myn vyneyard is in my sight: thou (O Salomon) must haue a thousande, and the keepers two hundred with the frute. Thou that dwellest in the gardens, O let me heare thy voyce, that my companyons maye herken to the same. O get the away, my loue, and be as a roo or a yong hert vpō the swete smellynge mountaynes.

¶ The ende of the Ballet of Ballettes of Salomon: called in Latyn: Canticū Canticorū.

¶ The booke of the prophete Esay

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Esay prophesyeth that the angrii of God shall ouer
me vpon Jerusa em bycause of theyr synnes.

A The vision of Esay ꝑ sonne of Amos which he sawe vpon Juda and Jerusalem: in the dayes of Vzia and Joathā. Achaz & Jehezkiah kynges of Juda.
Heare, O heauen, & herken O earth: For the Lorde hath spoken: I haue norished āb promoted children, but they haue done wyckedly against me. The oxe hath knowne his owner & ꝑ asse his masters cribb: but Is rael hath receaued no knowledge, my peo ple hath no vnderstandyng. Alas for thys
B synfull nacion, a people of great iniquitie:
a seed of vngracious people corruptinge
ther wayes. They haue forsaken the Lorde, they haue prouoked the holy one of Israel vnto anger, and are gone backward.
Wherby shulde ye be plaged any more: for ye are euer fallige awaye. The whole head is syck, & ꝑ hert is heuy. Frō the sole of the fote vnto ꝑ head, there is no whole parte in all your body: but all are wondes, botches,
sores, & stripes, whych cā nether be helped,
bounde vp, molifyed, nether eased wt any oynt-
C ment. Your land lyeth waste, your cyties are brent vp, your enemyes deuoure youre
lāde, & ye must be layne to stāde, & loke vpō
it: & it is desolate, as they were subuerted ꝑ were alienate frō ꝑ Lorde. Moreouer, the daughter of Syon ys left alone lyke a co-
tage in a vineyard, lyke a lodge in a gardē of cucumbers, lyke a wasted cytie. Ande-cepte ꝑ Lorde of hostes had left vs a fewe alyue: we shuld haue bene as Sodoma, and lyke vnto Gomorra. Heare ꝑ worde of the lorde ye Lordes of Sodoma: & herkē vnto
ꝑ lawe of our God, ꝑ people of Gomorra.
What vse ye so many sacrifices vnto me
saith Lorde? I am full of ꝑ brent offrynges of wethers, āb of ꝑ fatnesse of fedbeastes. I D haue no pleasure in ꝑ blood of bullocks, lā-bes and goates. When ye come to apeare before me, who requireth this of you to treade within my porches? Therfore offre me no mo oblacions, for it is but lost labou-
re. Incense is an abhominable thinge vnto
me. I maye not awaye with youre newe moones, your Sabbathes & gatherige to-gyther at ꝑ solēpne dayes. I hate your ne-we mone dayes & solēpne feastes, cuē from my very hert. I can not awaye wt suche vanitie & boldinge in of the people. They lye vpon me as a burthen, and I am wery of beringe
thē. When ye holde out your hādes, I will turne myne eyes from you. And though ye make many prayers, yet wil I heare no-thynge at all, seyng your handes are ful of E bloude. Wash you therfore, and make you cleane, put awaye your euell entētes out of my syght, cease from doynge of euell.
Learne to do ryght, applye your selues to e-
quite, delyuer ꝑ oppressed, helpe ꝑ fatherles
to his ryght, let the widowes coplainte come before you. Come I praye ye (sayeth ꝑ Lorde) let vs reasō oure matter together.
Though youre sinnes be as read as scarlet,
thei shalbe as white as snowe. And though they were lyke purple, they shalbe as whit
as wolle. If ye be louynge & obediēt, ye shal enioye ꝑ best thyng ꝑ groweth i ꝑ lād. But if ye be obstinate & rebellyous, ye shalbe de noured wt ꝑ swerde: for thus ꝑ Lorde hath promised wt his awne mouth. How happe-neth it then ꝑ ꝑ ryghteous cytie (which was full of equite) is become vnfaythfull
as an whore? ryghteousnes dwelt i it, but now murtherers. Thy syluer is turned to drosse, & thy wyne myxte with water. Thy
F princes are wicked & companyōs of theues.
They loue gyftes altogether, and gape for rewardes. As for ꝑ fatherles, they helpe hi not to his ryght, nether wyll they lett the wydowes causes come before thē. Therfore, sayeth ꝑ Lorde God of hostes, ꝑ myghty gouerner of Israel, Oute vpon ye, I will ease me of myne enemyes, & I will auenge
me of myne aduersaryes, I shall laye my hād vpon ꝑ, & burne out thy drosse frō ꝑ fy-nest & purest, & put out all thy tynne, & set
thy iudges agayne as they were somtyme & thy Senatours as they were frō ꝑ begi-nynge. Then shalt ꝑ be called ꝑ ryghteous cytie, ꝑ faythfull cytie. Sīō shalbe redemed
G wt equite, & they shal turne againe vnto her ryghteousnesse. For ꝑ trāsgressours & vngodly, and soch as are become vnfaythfull
vnto the Lord, must altogether be vtterly destroyed. For they shall be ashamed of the goddes ꝑ you longed for. And ye shall be put to shame for ꝑ Idols grouegardēs ꝑ ye haue chosen: ye shalbe as a tree whose lea-ues are fallen awaye, & as a garden ꝑ hath no moysture. And as for the glory ☞ of ☜ your graued Images, it shalbe turned to dyre strawe, and he ꝑ made them to a spar-
he. And they shal both burne together, so that no man shalbe able to quench them.

¶ The second Chapter.

¶ Of the comming and death of Christ, and of the
callynge of the heathen.

A Thys is the worde ꝑ was opened vnto
Esay the sonne of Amos, vpon Juda & Jerusalem. It wilbe also ☞ in the ☜ last dayes ꝑ ꝑ hyll where ꝑ house of ꝑ Lor-
de is builded, shall be ꝑ chefe amōge hylles, and exalted aboue all lytle hylles. And all nacyons shall preace vnto hym, and the multytude of people shal go speakig thus

*Esa.xxxvi.a with.xxxvii.a one to another: vp, * let vs go to ꝓ hyll of the Lord, & to the house of the God of Jacob: that he maye shewe vs his waye, and ꝓ we maye walcke in his pathes. For the lawe shall come out of Sion, and the word of the Lorde from Jerusalē, and shall geue sentēce amonge the heathen, and shall reforme the multitude of people: They shall breake theyr swerdes also to mattockes, and theyr speares to make sythes. And one people shall not lyft vp weapen agaīst another, nether shal they learne to fyght from thēs forth. Come ye (O house of Jacob) let vs walcke i the lyght of ꝓ Lorde. But thou hast forsaken thy people ꝓ house of Jacob, because they go farre beyonde ꝓ east cotreys i Sorcerye (whō they haue as ꝓ Philistines had) and in straunge chyldren they thinke them selues to haue ynough. Theyr Land is full of siluer and gold, nether is there any ende of theyr treasure: Theyr lād is also full of horses, & no ende is there of theyr charets. Theyr lande is also full of vayne goddes, and before ꝓ worcke of theyr awne handes haue they bowed thē selues, yee, euē before the thinge that theyr awne fyngers haue made. There kneleth the man, there falleth the man downe before thē, but ꝓ (o Lorde) wilt not leaue them vnpunished.

And therfore get the in to some rock, and hyde ꝓ in the grounde for feare of the Lord, and for the glory of his magestye: Which casteth downe the high lookes of presūptuous personnes, and bringeth lowe ꝓ pryde of man, and the Lorde only shall be exalted in that daye. For the daye of ꝓ Lord of hostes shall go ouer al pride and presumptiō, vpon all them that exalte them selues, and shall bringe thē all downe: vpō all ꝓ hygh and stoute Cedre trees of Libanus, & vpon all the okes of Basan, vpon all hygh hylles, and vpon all stoute mountaynes, vpon all costly towres, & vpon all stronge walles, vpon all shyppes of Tharsis, and vpon euery thyng that is glorious and pleasaūt to loke vpon. And it shall bringe downe the pryde of man, and laye mans presumptuousnesse full lowe, and the Lorde shall only haue the vpcrop in that daye. But the Idols shall vtterly be roted out. Then shall creepe in to holes of stone, and into caues of the earth, for feare of the Lorde, and for the glory of hys magestye: what tyme as he shall aryse vp to condemme ꝓ earth. Then shall man cast awaye hys goddes of syluer, and hys goddes of gold (which he neuertheles had made to honour them) vnto Molles & Backes: And they shall creepe in to the caues and rockes, & into the clyftes of hard stones, for feare of God, and for the glory of hys magestye, whan he ryseth to condemme the earth. Feare not ye then any man, whose breth is in hys nostrels. For what is he of reputacion?

The thyrd Chapter.

The prophecyeth that at the comming of Christ all strength and powre shall be put forth of Jurye.

FOr lo, the Lorde God of Hostes doth take awaye from Jerusalē and Juda, all possessions & power al meat and dryncke, the captayne and the soudyar, the iudge and prophete, the wyse and the aged man, the prince of fyftie yeare olde, and the honorable: the Senatours, and men of vnderstādynge: the master of craftes and oratours. And I shall geue thē children to be theyr princes, & babes shall haue the rule of you. The people also shalbe pylled and polled, and one shall euer be doynge violence and wronge to another. The boye shall presume agaynst the elder, and the vyle persone agaynst the honorable. Yee, one shall take a frēde of hys awne kynred by the bosome, and saye: thou hast clothynge, thou shalt be our head, for thou mayest kepe vs frō thys fall & parell. Then shall he sweare & saye I cannot helpe you. Moreouer, there is nether meate ner clothyng in my house, make me no ruler of the people. For Jerusalē is ouerthrowne & Juda must fall to ꝓ grownde, because that both theyr wordes & councels are agaynst the Lorde, to prouoke the presence of hys magesty vnto anger. The chaungynge of theyr countenaunce bewrayeth them, yee, they declare theyr awne synnes, thē selues, as the Sodomites, & hyde thē not. Wo be vnto theyr soules for they haue retourned euyll vnto thē selues. Syd the ryghteous do well, for they shall enioye the frutes of theyr studies. But wo be to ꝓ vngodly and vnryghteous, for they shalbe rewarded after theyr workes. Children are extorcioners of my people, and wemen haue rule of them.

O my people, those that call the blessed deceaue the, and bepraue the waye of thy fotesteppes. The Lorde is ryssen vp to cōmen of the matter, and stādeth vp (I saye) to geue iudgement of the people. The Lorde shall come forth to reason with the Senatours and princes of hys people. It is ye that haue burnt vp my vyneyarde, the extorcyon done to the poore is i your houses. Wherfore do ye oppresse my people, & marre ꝓ faces of ꝓ poore? sayeth the Lorde God of hostes. Moreouer, thꝰ sayth ꝓ lord: Seing ꝓ daughters of Sion are become so proude, and come in wt stretched out neckes and with vayne wanton eyes: seynge they come i tryppyng so nycely with theyr fete: Therfore shall the Lorde shaue the heades of the daughters of Siō, and shal discouer

theyr

theyr shame. In that daye shall ꝓ Lord take awaye the gorgiousnes of theyr apparell, and spanges, cheynes, partelettes, and colarres, bracelettes and hooues, ꝓ goodly floured, wyde and brodered rayment, brooches, and headbandes, rynges and garlandes, holy daye clothes and vales, kercheffes and pinnes, glasses and cypresses, bonettes and taches.

And in steade of good smell, there shalbe stynck amonge thē. And for theyr gyrdles there shalbe lowle bādes. And for well sett heare there shalbe baldenesse. In steade of a stomacher, a sack cloth, and for theyr bewty witherdnesse, and sonne burnyng. Youre housbandes and myghtie men shall perysh with the swerde in batayle.

3 It that tyme shal ☞ theyr gates mourne and complayne, and they shall sytt as desolate folck vpon the earth.

The fourth Chapter.

¶ For want of men, seuen wemen desyre to haue one man.

AND then shall seuen wyues take holde of one man, and saye: we wyll saye all our meate and clothynge together in comen, only that we may be called thy wyues, & that thys shamefull reproche maye be taken frō vs. After that tyme shall the braunche of the Lorde be bewtyfull and myghtye, and the frute of the earth shalbe fayre and pleasaunt for those Israelytes that shal escape therof. Then shall the remnaunt in Sion & the remnaunt at Jerusalem be called holy: Namely all soch as are wrytte among the lyuynge at Jerusalem: what tyme as the Lorde shall wasshe awaye the fylthynes of the daughters of Sion, and pourge ꝓ blonde out from Jerusalem with the wynde of hys iudgmente and with fyre. Moreouer, vpon all the dwellynges of the hyll of Sion and vpon theyr whole congregacion, shall the Lorde prouyde a cloude and smoke by daye, & the shynynge of a flammynge fyre by nyght: for all theyr glory shalbe preserued. And Jerusalem shall be a tabernacle for a shadowne because of hete in the daye tyme a place and refuge where a man maye kepe hym from wether & rayne.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ Of Christ and hys vyneyarde, with an exclamacion of couetousnes and dronckenes.

NOw will I syng my beloued frēde a songe of my frēdes, because of hys vyneyarde. My beloued frende hath a vyneyarde in a very frutefull plentyous grounde. This he hedged, thys he walled rounde aboute, and plāted it with goodly grapes. In the myddest of it buylded he a towre, and made a wyne presse therin. And afterwarde when he loked that it shulde bringe hi grapes, it brought forth thornes. Now therfore (Dye Cytysens of Jerusalē and whole Juda:) Iudge I praye you betwixte me, and my vyneyard. What more could haue bene done for it that I haue not done? Wherfore then hath it geuē thornes, where I loked to haue had grapes of it.

Well, now I shall tell you how I wyll do with my vyneyarde: I will take ꝓ hedge from it, that it maye perysh, and breake downe the wall, that it maye be trodē vnder fote. I will laye it waste, that it shall nether be digged nor cut, but beare thornes and briars. I will also forbyd the cloudes that they shall not rayne vpō it. As for the vyneyarde of the Lord of hostes it is the house of Israel, and whole Juda hys fayre planting. Of these he loked for equite, but se there is wrong: for ryghteousnesse, lo, It is but mysery.

C Wo vnto thē that ioyne one house to another, & bring one lande so nygh vnto another, that ꝓ poore can get no more grounde, & ꝓ ye maye dwel vpon the earth alone. These thynges are I the ears of the Lorde of Hostes: shall not many greater & more gorgyous houses be so waste, that no man shall dwell in thē? And ten akers of dynes shal geue but a Quarte, and. xxx. bushels of sede shall geue but an ☞ Epha.

D Wo be vnto them, that ryse vp early to folowe dronckennes, and to them that continue so, vntyll nyght, & tyl they be sett on fyre with wyne. In those cōpanyes are harpes and lutes, tabrettes & pipes, and wyne. But they regarde not the worcke of the Lord, and cōsydre not the operacyon of his hādes. Therfore commeth my folk also in to captyuite, because they haue no vnderstandynge. Theyr glory is famished with hūger, and theyr pryde is marred for thyrste. Therfore gapeth hell, and openeth her mouth marueilous wyde: that theyr pryde, boastinge and welth, with soch as reioyse therin, maye descende into it.

Thus hath man a fall, and is brought lowe, and the hygh loke of the proude shalbe layde downe. But the Lord of hostes is exalted in iudgement, and God that is holy, is praysed in ryghteousnes: Then shall the shepe eate in order, and the ryche mens landes that were layde waist, shall straūgers deuoure. Wo be vnto thē, that drawe wyckednes vnto them with coardes of vanite and synne, as it were with a cart rope.

Which vse to speake on thys maner: let hym make haste nowe, & go forth with hys worcke, that we maye se it. Lett the councell of the holy one of Israel come, and drawe nye, that we maye knowe it.

E Wo be vnto them ꝓ call euell good, and good euell, which make darcknesse lyght, &

lyght darckneſſe, that make ſowre ſwete, & ſwete ſowre. Wo be vnto them that are wyſe in theyr awne ſyght, and thynke thē ſelues to haue vnderſtādynge. Wo be vnto them, that are ſtrong to ſuppe out wyne and experte men to ſett vp dronckeneſſe.

Theſe geue ſentēce with the vngodly for rewardes, but condempne the iuſt cauſe of the ryghteous.

Therfore, lyke as fyre lycketh vp the ſtrawe, and as the flame conſumeth the ſtubble: Euen ſo theyr rote ſhalbe as corrupcion: and theyr bloſſome ſhall vanyſh awaye lyke duſt: for they haue caſt awaye the lawe of the Lord of hoſtes, & blaſphemed the worde of the holy maker of Iſrael.

A Therfore is the wrath of the Lord kindled alſo agaynſt hys people, and he ſtaketh his hande at them: yee, he hath ſmyten, ſo that the hylles dyd trēble. And theyr carcaſes dyd lye I the opē ſtreates, lyke myre. And (all thys, the wrath of God hath not ceaſſed, but hys hande is ſtretched out ſtyl. And he ſhall gyue a token vnto a ſtraunge people: and call vnto thē in a farre cōtre: and beholde, they ſhall come haſtely with ſpede. There ſhall not be one faynt nor feble amōge thē, no not a ſlogyſh nor ſleepy perſone. There ſhall not one of thē put of the gyrdle from his loynes, nor lowſe theyr lachet of his ſhooe. Hys arowes are ſharpe, & al his bowes bent. His horſe hooſes are lyke flynt, & his cartwheles lyke a ſtormy wynde. His crye is as it were of a lyon, and he roareth lyke lyons whelpes. They ſhall roare, & hantch vp the praye, & no mā ſhall recouer it or get it from thē. In that daye they ſhalbe ſo fearce vpon them, as the ſee. And yf we looke vnto the lāde, beholde, it ſhalbe all darckneſſe & ſorowe. If we lohe toward heauen: beholde, it ſhalbe darcke.

¶The.vi.Chapter.

¶ Eſay ſawe the glory of the Lorde, and was ſent to prophecye the deſolacyon of Iuye.

I N the ſame yeare that kinge Oziah dyed, I ſawe I the Lorde ſyttynge vpon an hygh and glorious ſeate, & his trayne fylled the tēple. And aboute hi ſtode the Seraphins, wherof euery one had ſixe wiges. With twayne eche couered his face, w̄ twayne hys fete, and with twayne dyd he flye. They cried alſo eche one to a ther on thys maner: holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hoſtes. The whole worlde is full of his glory. Yee, ꝑ greaſtes and dorechekes moued at his crye, and the houſe was full of ſmoke. Then I ſayde, O wo is me for I am loſt in almoch as I am a man of vncleane lyppes, & dwell amōge people ꝑ hath vncleane lyppes alſo: for myne eyes haue ſene the kynge and Lorde of hooſtes.

Then flewe one of the Seraphins vnto me, hauynge a hote cole in his hande, which he had taken from the aulter with the tonges, and touched my mouth, and ſayde, lo: this hath touched thy lyppes, & thyne vnryghteouſnes is taken awaye, & thy ſynne C forgeuen. Alſo, I herd the voyce of ꝑ Lord ſayēge on this maner: Whom ſhall I ſend, and who wylbe oure meſſaunger? Then I ſayde: here am I, ſende me. And he ſayde, go, and tell this people: * ye ſhall heare in dede, but ye ſhall not vnderſtande: ye ſhall playnely ſe, and not perceaue. Harden the harte of this people, ſtoppe theyr eares, & ſhut theyr eyes, that they ſe not with theyr eyes, heare not with theyr eares, and vnderſtand not with theyr hertes, and conuerte and be healed.

* Mat.xiii. Mar.iiii. Luke.viii. Actes.xxviii. Iohn.xii. Rom.xi.

Then ſayde I: Lorde, how longe? he anſwered: vntill the cyties be vtterly waſted without inhabitours, & the houſes without men, tyll the lande be alſo deſolate, and lye vnbuylded. For the Lorde ſhall take ꝑ men farre awaye, ſo that the lāde ſhal lye waſte a longe ſeaſon, yet in yt ſhall ſucceade .x. kinges, and the lande ſhall retorne and be layde waſte. And as the terebint tre and oke in winter caſt their leaues, and yet haue ther ſappe in them ſo ſhall the holy ſead cōtynue in theyre ſubſtance.

¶The.vii.Chapter.

¶ The Syrians wont batayle agaynſt Ieruſalem. A byrgyn ſhall beare a chylde.

I T happened in the tyme of Ahaz the ſonne of Iotham, which was the ſonne of Uziah kynge of Juda: ꝑ* Razin the kynge of Syria, and Pechah ꝑ ſonne of Romelyah, kynge of Iſrael: went vp toward Ieruſalem to beſege it, but Razin was not able to winne ye. Now when the houſe of Dauid (that is Ahaz) herde worde therof, ꝑ Syria & Ephraim were confederate together: his herte quaked (yee and the hertes alſo of his people) lyke as whan a tree in the felde is moued with the wynde. I

* iiii.Re.xvi. ii.par.xxviii.

Then ſayde God vnto Eſay: go mete Ahaz (thou and thy ſonne Sear Iaſub) at the head of the ouer pole, in the fote path by the fullers groūde, & ſaye vnto hym, take hede to thy ſelfe & be ſtyll, but feare not, nether be faynt harted, for theſe two tayles: ꝑ is: for theſe two ſmokyng fyre brandes, the wrath and furiouſnes of Razin the Syrian and Romelies ſonne: becauſe that the kynge of Syria Ephraim and Romelies ſonne haue wickedly cōſpyred agaynſt the ſayīg: We wyll goo vp agaynſt Juda, vexe them, and bringe them vnder vs, and ſet a kynge there, euen the ſonne of Tabeel

For thus

For thus sayeth the Lorde God therto, It
shal not so goo forth, nether come so to pas
se: for ☞ the head cytie of ꝓ Syriãs is Damascus, but the head of Damascꝰ is Ray-zin. And after fyue ⁊ thyrtie yeare, shall Ephraim be no more a people. And ꝓ chefe cytie of Ephrai is Samaria, but the head of Samaria is Romelies sõne. Yf ye beleue not: it commeth of thys: that ye are vn-faithfull to God. Moreouer, God spake once agayne vnto Ahaz, sayinge, requyre
a token of the Lorde thy God, whether it be toward the depth beneth, or towarde ꝓ heygth aboue. Then sayd Ahaz: I will re-quyre none, nether wyll I tempte ꝓ Lorde
The Lorde answered: Then heare to, ye of ꝓ house of Dauid: Is it not ynough for you
ꝓ ye be grenous vnto men, but ye must gre-C ue my God also And therfore ꝓ Lord shall geue you a token: Behold, a vyrgin shall conceaue and beare a sonne, and (ꝓ hys mo☞ ther) shalt cal his name ☞ Emanuel. But ter ãd hony shall he eate, ꝓ he maye knowe to refuse the euell, and chose the good. For or euer the chyld come to knowledge, to eschue the euel and chose the good. The lande (that thou so Abhorrest) shalbe desolate of both her kynges. The Lorde also shall sende a tyme vpon the, vpon thy people, ⁊ vpon thy fathers house (soch as neuer came sence the tyme that Ephraim departed frõ Juda) thorowe the kynge of the Assirians.
For at ꝓ same tyme shall the Lord whystle
for the flyes that are aboute the water of Egypt, and for the Bees in ꝓ Assirians lãde.
These shall come, and shall lyght all in the desolate valeyes, in the holes of stones,
vpon all thornye and bushye places.
☞ At the same tyme shall the Lord ☞ sha-D ue the heare of the head and the fete and ꝓ beerd cleane of, with the rasoure that he shall hyer beyõde the water: namely, with the kynge of the Assirians. At the same tyme shall a man lyue with a kowe, and two shepe. Then, because of the aboundaunce of mylck, he shall make butter ⁊ eate it. So that euery one which remayneth in the lãde, shall eate butter and hony. At the same tyme all vyneyardes (though there be a thousande vynes in one, ⁊ were solde for a thousande syluerlynges) shalbe turned to brears ⁊ thornes. Lyke as they shall come in to the lande w̃ arowes ⁊ bowes, so shall
all the lande be come brears and thornes.
And as for al hylles that are hewẽ downe,
ther shall not come vpon thẽ anye feare of brears ⁊ thornes. But ꝓ catell shal be dry-uen thyther, and the shepe shall fede there.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ The deliuerraunce of the lande by Emanuel. 1. ⁊ 5
Stone of offence, at whych many shal stomble.

Moreouer, the lord sayd vnto me: A Take ꝓ a greate leaf, ⁊ ☞ write ☞ in it, as men do w̃ a penne, make haskye spede to robbe, ⁊ haste to ꝓ spoyle. And I called vnto me faythfull witnesses to recorde. Uryah the preest, ⁊ zachariah the sonne of Barachiah. After that wẽt I vnto the Prophetisse, ꝓ had conceaueued ⁊ borne a sonne. Then sayde the Lorde
to me: geue him this name: a spedie robber:
an haskie spoiler. For why, or ouer ꝓ chylde
shal haue knowledge to crye father, ⁊ mother: shall the ryches of Damascus ⁊ ꝓ substaunce of Samaria be taken awaye by ꝓ
spoyler, before the kyng of the Assirians.
The Lorde spake also vnto me, sayinge: B
for so moch as thys people refuseth the still rennynge water of Syloa, and put theyr de-lyte in Razin ⁊ Romelies sonne: Behold,
the Lorde shall brynge myghtie ⁊ greate
floudes of water vpon them: namely, the kynge of the Assirians with all his power:
Which shall clyme vp vpõ all his floudes,
and renne ouer all theyr banckes. And shal breake in vpon Juda, flowinge ⁊ increasig in power, tyll he gett hi by ꝓ neck. He shall fyll also the wideneſſe of thy lande ☞ with ☞ hys brode winges, O Emanuel. Breake downe (o ye peple of Assur) and ye shall be,
broke downe: herken to all ye of farre coũ-trees. Muster you, and you shalbe broken downe, prepare you to batell and you shall be torne in peces: take your councell together, yet must your coũcel come to naught:
go in hande withall, yet shall it not prospere: for God is with vs. For the Lord spake thus to me in the powre of his hande, ⁊ C warned me, sayinge vnto me: that I shulde
not walcke in the waye of this people.
He sayde moreouer: rounde with none of thẽ, whosoeuer saye: ponder people are bounde together: feare them not, nether be a-frayd of them, but sanctifie the Lord of hostes, lett hym be youre feare and drede. For he shall be the holy place to flye to, and stone to stomble at: the rock to fall vpon: a snare and net to both the houses of Israe-
el, and the inhabitours of Jerusalem.
And many shall stomble, fall, and be broke vpon hym: yee, they shalbe snared ⁊ taken. D
Now laye the witnesses together ⁊ seale
the lawe w̃ my disciples. Thus wil I wayte vpon the Lorde that hath turned his face from the house of Jacob, and I will loke
for him. But lo, as for me, and the childre which the lord hath geuen me: we are a token and a wondre in Israel, for the Lord of hostes sake, which dwelleth vpon the hyll of Sion.
And yf they saye vnto you: aske councell
at the sothesayers, witches, charmers and conjurers, then make them thys answere.

Is there a people eny where, þ asketh not
* Luk. xviii. counsell at his God/ * shulde me reme vnto the dead for þ ignorace/ If eny mā want lyght, lest hym loke vpō the lawe, and the testimony, whether they speake not after this meanig. If he do not thys, he stombleth and suffreth hunger. And yf he suffre hunger
he is out of pacience, and blaspheameth his kyng & his God. Then loketh he vp warde, & downewarde to þ earth, & beholde, the re is trouble and darckenesse, veratiō is ro-
unde aboute hym, and the cloude of errour.
And out of soch aduersite, shal he not escape. Euen lyke as in tyme past, it hath bene well sene, that the lande of Zabulon and the lande of Nephtaly (where thorow þ see waye goeth ouer Jordane into the lande of Galilee) was at the fyrst in lytle trouble:
but afterwarde sore vexed.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ He prophecyeth of Christes natyuyte & dominyō.

THe people that walke in darckenes haue sene a greate lyght. As for them that dwell in the lande
of the shadowe of death, vpon
them hath þ lyght shyned. Thou
* Psa. cxlv. c hast multyplyed the people, & not increased
theyr ioye. * They reioyse before the, euen
as men make mery in haruest, and as men
that haue gotten þ victory, whē they deale
the spoyle. For thou hast broken the yocke of þ peoples burthen: the staff of hys shoulder and the rod of hys oppressoure, as in the dayes of Madian.

And trulie euery batayll þ the warryo-
ure accōplisheth, is done wt cōfused noyse & defylinge ther garmentes wt bloude: But this batayle shall be wt burnynge & consumynge of fyre. For vnto vs a chylde is borne, & vnto vs a sonne is geuen. Upon hys shoulder doth the kyngdome lye, and he is called wt hys awne name: wonderfull. The geuer of cōsell, þ myghtye God, þ euerlastinge father, the prince of peace, he shall make no ende to encrease þ kyngdome & peace, & shall syt vpon the seate of Dauid & in his kyngdome, to set vp the same, & to stablish
it wt equyte and ryghteousnesse, from hēce forth for euermore. Thys shall the gelousy
of the Lorde of hostes bringe to passe.

The Lorde sent a worde into Jacob, the same is come into Israel. And all the people of Ephraim shall knowe, and they that dwell in Samaria, þ can saye with pryde
and hye stomackes, on this maner. The tyle worche is fallē downe, but we will buyl-de it wt squared stones. The Wolberry tym-
bre is broke, but we shall sett it vp agayne with Cedre. Neuertheles, þ Lord shall prepare Razin the enemye agaynst them, and so ordre theyr aduersaryes, that the Syrians shall laye holde vpon them before, and the Philistynes behynde, and so deuoure
Israel with open mouth.

After all thys is not the wrath of þ Lor-
de ceassed, but yet hys hande stretched oute
styll. For the people turneth not vnto hym that chastyseth them, nether do they seke
the Lorde of hostes. Therfore hath þ Lorde roted oute of Israel both head and tay-
le, braunche and twigge in one daye.

By the head, is vnderstande the Sena-
toure and honorable man, and by the tayle
the Prophet that preached lyes. For all they which enfourme the people that they be in a ryght case, soch be disceauers. Soch as men thynche also to be perfecte among these, are but cast awayes.

Therfore shall the Lorde haue no pleasu- D
re in theyr yōge men, nether fauoure theyr fatherlesse & wydowes. For they are all together prophetes and wycked, and all theyr mouthes speake foly. After all thys is not þ Lordes wrath ceassed, but yet hys hande is stretched out styll. For vngodlynesse burneth, as a fyre in the bryers and thornes. And as it were out of a fyre in a wood or a rede bush, so ascendeth the smoke of theyr pryde.

For cause of the wrath of the Lorde of hostes, is the lande full of darckenesse, and the people be consumed, as it were with fy-re, no mā doth spare his brother, but he rob byth on þ ryght hand: & doth famishe, he eateth on the lefte hāde, and he shall not ha ue ynough. Euery man shall ✠ eate the T flesh of his awne arme. Manasses shall ea-te Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasses, and they both shall eate Juda. After all thys is not the Lordes wrath ceassed, but yet is hys hande stretched out styll.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ He threatneth the oppressours of the poore, and prophecyeth agaynst Sennaherib.

WO be vnto the þ make vnryght- A
teous lawes, & deuyse thinges,
which be to harde for to kepe:
wher thorow the poore are oppressed, on euery syde, and þ in-nocentes of my people robbed of iudgemēt:
that wyddowes maye be theyr praye, and that they maye robbe þ fatherlesse. What will ye do in tyme of the visitacyon, and whan destruccion shall come frō farre? To whom wyll ye ronne for helpe? and to whō
wyll ye geue youre honoure, that he maye
kepe it? that when I with drawe my hāde
ye come not amonge the presoners, or lye amonge the dead? After all this doth not B
the wrath of the Lord ceasse, but yet is his hande stretched out styll.

Wo be

vnto be also vnto Assur, which is a staf of my wrath, in whose hande is the rod of my punyshmẽt. I shall sende hym amõge those ypocritish people, amõge the people that haue deserued my displeasure: shall I send hym: that he may vtterly robbe thẽ, spoyle thẽ, and treade them downe lyke the myre in ꝑ strete. Howbeit, his meanyng is not so nether thynketh his hert of thys fashyon. But he ymagineth onely, how he may rote out and destroye moch people, for he sayeth are not my Peynces all kynges? Is not ☞ Calno as easye to wynne, as Charchamis? Is it harder to conquere ☞ Hamath then Arphad? Or is it lyghter to ouercome Damascus then Samaria? As who say: I were able to wynne the kyngdome of the Idolaters and their goddes: but not Jerusalem & Samaria. Shal I not do vnto Jerusalem & their ymages, as I dyd vnto Samaria and their ydoles?

Wherfore ꝑ Lord sayeth: Allone as I haue perfourmed my whole worcke vpon the hyll of Syon and Jerusalem, then wyll I ☞ vysyt the noble and stoute hart of the kynge of Assyria, with hys proude lookes. For he standeth thus in his awne conceate: This do I thorowe ꝑ power of myne awne hãde, and thorow my wysdome: For I am wyse, I am he that remoue the lãdes of the people: I robbe their treasures: and (lyke one of the worthyes) I dryue them frõ their hye seates. My hande hath founde out the strẽgth of the people, as it were a nest. And lyke as egges, that were layde here and there, are gathered together: So do I gather all countrees. And there is no man, ꝑ darre be so bolde, as to touch a fether, that darre open his mouth, or once whysper.

Shall the axe boast it selfe, agaynst him that heweth therwith? or doth ꝑ sawe make vp bragging agaynst him that ruleth it? That were euẽ lyke, as yf the rod dyd exalte it selfe agaynst him that beareth it: or as though the staff shulde magnifye it selfe, as who saye: it were no wood. Therfore shal ꝑ Lord of hostes send hi amõge his fatlinges leanes, & burne vp his glory, as it were wt a fyre. But the lyght of Israel shalbe that fyre, and his Sanctuary shalbe the flamme and it shall kyndle, and burne vp his thornes and breers in one daye, yee ☞ all the glory of his woddes and feldes shalbe consumed with body & soule: And they shalbe as an hoost of men, whose standerd bearer fayleth. The trees also of hys felde which remayne, shalbe of soch a nõbre, that a childe maye tell them.

After that daye shall the remnaũt of Israel, & soch as are escaped out of the house of Jacob, seke nomore comforte at him that smote thẽ, but with faythfulnesse & treuth shal they trust vnto the Lord, the holy one of Israel. The remnaunt, euen the Posterye of Jacob, shall conuerte vnto God the myghty one. For though thy people (O Israel) be as ꝑ sande of the see, yet shal ꝑ remnaunt of them conuerte in hym. Perfecte is the iudgement of him that floweth in rygh trousnesse, and therfore the Lorde of hostes shall perfectly fulfyll the thynge, ꝑ he hath determined in ꝑ myddest of ꝑ whole worlde Therfore thus sayeth the Lord God of hostes: Thou my people, ꝑ dwellest in Syon, be not afrayed, for ꝑ kynge of the Assiriãs: He shal smyte the with a rodd, & shal wagg his staff at the, as the Egyptians dyd some tyme: But soone after, shall my wrath and myne indignaciõ be fulfylled i the destruccion of them.

Moreouer, the Lord of hostes shall prepare a scourge for hi, lyke as was ꝑ slaughter of Madiã vpon the rock of Oreb. And he shall lyft vp his rodd ouer the see, as he dyd somtyme ouer the Egyppcians. Then shall hys burthen be taken from thy shoulders, and his yock from thy neck, yee, the same yock shall be corrupte for very fatnesse. He shall come to Aiath, and go thorow toward Mygron: at Mychmas shall he laye vp his harnesse, and go ouer the foorde. Gybea shall be their restynge place, Rhamah shalbe a fraped, Gybea Saul shall flye awaye. The voyce of ꝑ neyes of thy horses (O daughter Gallim) shalbe herde vnto Lays & to Anathoth, which also shalbe in trouble. Madmena shall tremble for feare, but ꝑ citesins of Gabim are manly, yet shal he remayne at Nob ꝑ daye. After that, shal he lyft vp hys hãde agaynst the mount of ꝑ daughter Syõ, the hyll of Jerusalem. But se, the Lord God of hostes shall take awaye the proude from thence, with feare. He shall hewe downe the proude, & fel the hye mynded. The bull hes also of ꝑ wood shal be rote out with yron, and Lybanus shall haue a myghtye fall.

¶ The. xi. Chapter.

¶ He prophecieth of the natiuite of Christ and of hys people: of the remnaunt of Israel, and of the fayth of the Heathen or Gentyles.

AND there shall come a rodd forth of the kynred of Jsai, and a blossome shall florish out of hys rote. The spyrite of ꝑ Lord shall lyght vpon hym: the spyrite of wysdome, and vnderstãdynge: ꝑ spyrite of councell, & strength the spyrite of knowledge, and of the feare of the Lorde: and shall make hym feruent in the feare of God.

For he shall not geue sentence, after the thyng that shal be brought before his eyes, nether reproue a matter at ꝑ fyrst hearing: but wt rygh trousnesse shal he iudge ꝑ poore, and with

and with holynes shal he reformme the simple of the worlde.

He shall smyte the worlde with the rodd
of hys mouth, & wt the breath of hys mouth
shall he slaye the vngodly. Rygh̄teousnesse shalbe the gyrdle of his loynes, & trueth &
faythfulnesse, the gyrdynge vp of hys ray-
nes. The wolfe shall dwell with the lambe,
and the Leoparde shal lye downe by ꝑ goa-
te. Bullockes, Lyõs & catell shall kepe com pany together, so ꝑ a lytle chylde shall rule them. The kowe & the Bere shall fede together, & their yonge ones shall lye together.
The Lyõ shall eate strawe lyke the oxe, or the kowe. The childe whyle he sucheth, shal haue a desire to the serpẽtes nest, and when he is weaned, he shall put hys hãde into the Cockatrypce denne. No man shall do euel to another, no mã shal destroye another, in all the hyll of my holynes. For the earth shal-be full of the knowledge of the Lord, eue as
the see flowerth ouer with water.

And in ꝑ daye shal the gentyles enquere
after ꝑ rote of Jesse which shalbe set vp for a token vnto the people, & hys dwellynge
shalbe glorious. ℣ At ꝑ same time shal ꝑ lord
take in hande agayne, to conquere the rem
naũt of his people (which shalbe left alyue)
from the Assyrias, Egyptians, Arabiãs, Moabiãs, Elamites, Caldeyes, Antiochiãs and frõ the Ilandes of the see. And he shall sett vp a token amonge the Gentyles, and gather together the dispersed of Israel, pee
& the out castes of Juda from the foure corners of the worlde. The hatred of Ephraim also and enemyes of Juda shalbe cleane roted oute. Ephraim shall beare no euell will
to Juda, and Juda shal not hate Ephraim:
but they both together shall flye vpon the shoulders of ꝑ Philistines toward the west,
and spoyle thẽ together that dwell towarde the East. The Idumytes and the Moabites shall lett their handes fall, & the Am-monites shalbe obedient vnto them.

The Lorde also shall cleue the tunges of the Egyptians see, & with a myghtie wynd shall he lyft vp his hãde ouer Nilus, and shall smyte hys seuen streames, and make men go ouer drye shod. And thus shal there be a waye for his people, ꝑ remayneth from the Assirians, lyke as it happened to the Is raelites, what tyme they departed out of ꝑ land of Egypt.

¶ The.xii. Chapter.

¶ The songe of the Church for the obtayninge of the victorye and ouer comyng of the worlde.

SO that then ꝑ shalt saye: O Lorde,
I wyll thanke the, for thou wast
displeased at me, but refrayne thou from thy wrath, and comforte me. Behold,
God is my saluacion in whom I will trust,
and not be afrayde. For the Lorde God is my strength, & my songe, he also is become my saluacion. Therfore with ioye shall ye drawe water out of the welles of the Sa-uioure, & ℣ then shall ye saye: geue thanc- ℣
kes vnto the lorde, call vpon his name, de- 25
clare his councels amonge the people, kepe
them in remembrance, for his name is excel lent. O syng prayses vnto the Lord, for he hath done greate thynges, as it is knowne
in all the worlde. Crye out, and syng thou ꝑ dwellest in Syon, for great is the holy one of Israell in the myddes of the.

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

¶ The prophecieth the destruccion of Babylon, the captyuite, and the comyng agayne of the people.

THis is ℣ the heuy burthen of Ba I bylon, which Esay the sonne of A- ℣ mos dyd se. Lyft vp the banner vpon the hye hyl, call vnto thẽ, hol-
de vp youre hande that the Prynces maye go in at the doze. I haue sent for my dehy-tes & my gyauntes (sayth the Lord) which shall execute wrath. I wyll call for soch, as triumphe in my glory.

There is a noyse of a multytude in the
moũtaynes, like as of a great people, a rus
shynge, as though the kyngdomes of ꝑ na-cions came together. (And the Lord of hostes, mustreth his armye to bataile.) They come out of a farre countree, from the ende of heauen: Euen the Lord hym selfe wt the ministers of his wrath, to destroye ꝑ wholle lande. Mourne ye, for ꝑ daye of the Lord is at hande, and shall come as a destroyer
from the almyghtie. Therfore shall all han des be letten downe, & all mens hertes shal
melt awaye, they shall stãde in feare, care-fulnesse and sorow shall come vpon them, &
they shall haue payne, as a woman ꝑ trauayleth with childe. ℣ One shall be abas- ℣ shed of another, and their faces shall burne 25
lyke the flamme of fyre.

Beholde, the daye of the Lord shall come,
terrible, ful of indignaciõ, furoure & wrath
to make the lande waste, & to roote out the synners therof. For the starres & planetes of heauen shal not geue their lyght, the sun-ne shalbe darkened in the ryssynge, and the moone shall not shyne with his lyght. And I wyll punysh the wyckednesse of the worl
de, and the synnes of the vngodly, sayeth
the Lorde. The hye stomaches of the proyde wyll I take awaye, and wyll laye dow-ne the boastynge of tyrauntes. I will make C a man dearer the fyne golde, and a mã to be more worth then a golde wedge of Ophir.
Therfore, I wyll shake the heauen, and the earth shall remoue out of her place: in the wrath of the Lord of hostes, and in the daye
of hys fearfull indignacion. And Babylon shalbe as an hunted or chased doo, and as a shepe

shepe þ no man taketh vp. Euery mā shall turne to hys awne people, and flye eche one into his awne lande. Who so is founde alone, shalbe shot thorow: And who so gather together, shalbe destroyed with the swerde.
* Their chyldren shalbe slayne before their eyes, their houses spoyled, and their wyues rauished. For lo, I shall bringe vp the Medes agaynst them, which shall not regarde syluer, nor be desirous of gold. With bowes shall they destroye the yong children, & haue no pytie vpon wemen wyth chylde, & their eyes shall not spare the chyldren. And Babylon (that glory of kyngdomes and bewty of the Caldees honour) shalbe destroyed euen as God destroyed * Sodome and Gomorre. It shall not endure for euer, nether shall there be any more dwellyng there, fro generacyon to generacyon.

The Arabias shall pytch no tentes there, nether shal þ shepheardes make their folde there any more: but fearfull wild beastes shall lye there, & þ houses shalbe full of greate Oules. Estriches shall dwel there, & Apes shal daūse there. Wild cattes shal crye in the palaces, and Dragōs shalbe in þ pleasaūt houses. And as for Babylons tyme it is at hād, & her dayes shal not be prolōged.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

The returne of the people from captiuitye. The ouerthrowe of the people of God, and exaltacyon of theyr enemyes. The pryde of Babylon.

But the Lord wylbe mercyfull vnto Jacob, and wil yet chose Israel agayne, and set them in their awne lande. Straungers shal cleaue vnto them, & get them to the house of Jacob. The people shal take them, & cary them home to their awne lāde. And make the to enherite þ house of Israel in þ lande of þ Lord þ they maye be seruauntes & handmaydes of the Lord. They shal take those prisoners whose captyues they had bene afore: & rule those þ had oppressed them. Whē the Lord now shal bringe the to rest, fro the trauayle, feare, & harde bondage þ thou wast laden wt all: thē shalt thou vse thys mocking vpon the kyng of Babylon, & saye: How happeneth it þ the oppressour leaueth of? Is the golden tribute come to an ende? The Lord hath broke þ ceptre of þ vngodly & the rodd of the lordly. Which whē he is wroth smyteth þ people wt cōtinual strokes, & tyrānou sely reigneth ouer þ hethen whom he persecuted without compassion. And therfore the whole worlde is now at rest & quyetnes and men synge for ioye.

Ye, euē þ Fyre trees & Cedres of Libanus reioyse at thy fall sayēg: Nowe þ thou art layd downe, there come no mo vp to hewe downe vs. Hell also beneth trembleth to mete þ at thy cōmynge, & for thy sake hath rayred his deade, & all myghtie mē & princes of þ earth. All kynges of þ earth stāde vp fro their seates, þ they may all answere & speake vnto þ. Art þ become weake also as we? art thou become lyke vnto vs? Thy pompe and thy pryde is layde downe into the pyt, and so is the melody of thy instrumentes. Wormes be layde vnder the, & wormes are thy couerynge.

How art thou fallen from heauē (O Lucifer) thou faire morynge childe? how hast thou gotten a fall euen to the grounde, and art become weaker thē þ people? For thou saydest in thyne herte: I will clyme vp into heauen, & exalte my throne aboue beyde þ starres of God, I will syt also vpon the holy mount towarde the North, I will clyme vp aboue the cloudes, and wylbe lyke the hyghest of al. Yet thou shalt be brought downe to þ depe of hell. They that se the, shall narowly loke vpō the, and thynke in them selues, sayenge: Is thys the mā, þ brought all lādes in feare, and made the kingdomes afrayde? Is this he that made the worlde i a maner waste, and layde the cytyes to the grounde, which let not his prisoners go out?

The kynges of the nacions lye euery one in his awne house with worshype, and þ art cast out of thy graue lyke a filthy abhominable braūch: lyke as dead mens raymēt þ are shot thorow with the swerde, & go downe to the stones of the depe: as a dead coarse that is troden vnder fete: and art not buried with them. Euē because that thou hast wasted thy lande, and destroyed thy people. The generacyō of the wycked shalbe without honour, for euer. Let there a waye be sought to destroye their children, that be in their fathers wyckednes, þ they come not vp agayne to possesse the lande, and fyll the worlde full of enemyes.

I will stande vp agaynst thē (sayeth the lord of hostes) & roote out þ name & remaūt sonne, & sonnes sonne of Babylō (sayeth þ Lord) & will geue it to þ Otters, & will make water poddels of it. And I wyll swepe thē out wt the besome of destrucciō, sayeth þ Lorde of hostes. The Lord of hostes hath sworne an othe, sayinge: It shall come to passe as I haue determyned, and shalbe fulfylled as I haue deuysed. So that Assiria shal I destroye in my lande, & vpō my mountaynes will I treade hi vnder foote. Wher thorow his yock shal come from them, and his burthen shalbe taken fro their shoulder. Thys deuyce hath God taken thorow the whole worlde, and thys is hys hande stretched out ouer all people. For yf the Lord of hostes determē a thynge, who is able to dysanulle it? And yf he stretch forth his hāde, who maye holde it in agayne?

The same yeare that kynge Ahaz dyed, god threatened on this maner: Reioyse not thou (thou whole Paleſtyna) becauſe the rod of hym ꝑ beateth the is broken: for out of the ſerpētes rote, there ſhall come an adder, & ꝑ frute ſhalbe a fyrie flynge worme. But the ☞ fyrſt borne of ꝑ poore ſhalbe fed, & ꝑ ſymple ſhal dwel in ſafetye. Thy rote alſo will I deſtroye vō honger, & it ſhal ſlaye thy remnaūt. Mourne ꝑ porte, wepe ꝑ citye, for (O whole land of Paleſtina) ꝑ art layde waſte for there ſhall come frō ꝑ North, a ſmoke that not one alone may abyde in his place. Who ſhall then anſwere ꝑ meſſangers of ꝑ Gētyles? For ꝑ Lord hath ſtablyſhed Syō, & the poore of his people ꝑ be therin, do put they? truſt in him.

¶The.xv.Chapter.

¶ A prophecie agaynſt Moab.

THis is the heuy burthen vpō Moab: Ar of Moab was deſtroyed & overthrowen in ꝑ nyght ſeaſon: Kir alſo in Moab was deſtroyed & peryſhed in the nyght. They wente vp to the ydols houſe, euen to Dibō to the hye places, to wepe for Nebo, and Moab vpō mourne for Medba: ☞ All they? heades were balde & all they? beardes ſhauen. In they? ſtretes are they gyrded aboute with ſack cloth. In all ꝑ toppes of their houſes & ſtretes ſhalbe nothynge but mournynge & weppynge. Heſebon & Eleale ſhall crye, ꝑ they? voyce ſhalbe heard vnto Jahaz. The worthyes alſo of Moab ſhall bleare out and crye for very ſorow of their Myndes: Who ſhall my herte be for Moabs ſake. They ſhal flye vnto ꝑ cyte of Zoar, which is lyke a fayre yong bullock of thre yere olde, for they ſhall all go vp to Luith, wepinge. Euē ſo by ꝑ waye toward Horonaim they ſhall make lamētacion for ther vtter deſtrucciō. For ꝑ waters of Nimri ſhalbe dried vp, by reaſon wherof ꝑ graſſe is withred, ꝑ herbes deſtroyed, & the grene thynges gone. For the reſidue ꝑ he hath done, they are ſorry. As for they? ſubſtaūce, ꝑ enemyes haue caried thē to the broke of ꝑ wyllyes. For ꝑ crie wēt ouer ꝑ whole lande of Moab: vnto Eglaim & vnto Beer Elim was there nothing but mournyng, becauſe the waters of Dimō were full of bloude: for I the Lord ſhall ſende more bloude vpō Dimon, & lyons vpō the remnaunt of the lande, & on them that are eſcaped from Moab.

¶The.xvi.Chapter.

¶ The deſtruccyon of Moab.

SEnde ꝑ Lord of the worlde a lābe, frō the rocke ꝑ lyeth towarde ꝑ deſerte, vnto ꝑ hil of the daughter Syō. For as for the daughters of Moab, they ſhalbe as a trēblyng byrde, ꝑ is put out of her neſt, for they ſhal carye them vnto Arnon: gather your counſel, come together in iudgemēt, couer vs wt your ſhadowe in the myddaye, as the nyght doth hyde the chaſed, and be wraye not them that are fled: let my perſecuted people dwell amōge you ☞ Moab, be thou their refuge againſt the deſtroyer: for the aduerſary is brought to naught, ꝑ robber is vndone, the tyraunt is wayſted out of the land. And in mercy ſhall the ſeate be prepared, and he ſhal ſyt vpō it in the trueth, i the tabernacle of Dauid iudgyng and ſekyng iudgemēt, & making haſt vnto rpghteouſnes. We haue heard of the pryde of Moab, he is very proude, preſumptrous, arrogant, and full of indignacyon, & vayne are hys lyes. Therfore ſhal Moab make lamentaciō becauſe of the Moabites (that ſhalbe ſlayne) yee they ſhal wayle all togither. Becauſe of the ☞ foundacyōs of the citye that is made of brick, ſhal ye complayne: euē ☞ ye lame people that are left onely behinde.

For ☞ the vynes of Heſbon are cut downe: As for the vyne of Sibma, the Lordes of the heithen haue broken downe hyr principall braūches: they are come euen vnto Jazer, they wēt on wādering vnto ꝑ wyldernelle. Hyr goodly braunches were throwen downe, as they wēt ouer the ſee. Therfore will I mourne for Jazer, & for the vyne of Sibma. I will poure my teares vpon the, O Heſebō and Eleale, for the crie of thyne enemyes is fallen vpon thy ſommer frutes, and vpon thyne haruelt. The Myrth and chere is taken awaye out of the plentifull felde, and in the vyneyardes there ſhal be no ioye ner gladneſſe.

The treader ſhall treade out no wyne in the preſſes, ꝑ ſong of they? mery chere haue I layde downe. Wherfore, my bowels ſhal romble lyke an harpe for Moabs ſake, and myne inwarde partes for the citryes ſake ꝑ is made of brych. And it ſhal come to paſſe, that whā it is ſene that Moab ſhalbe made werry of hys hyll chapels, ☞ he ſhall come to his tēple to praye, but he ſhal not be able ſo then, thys is the ſayēg ꝑ the Lord hath ſpoken concernyng Moab lens that tyme. But now the Lord hath ſpoken ſayeng. In thre yeares which ſhalbe as ☞ the yeares of an hyred ſeruaunt: ſhall the glorye of Moab be turned into cōfuſion, thorow out al his multitude, which is very great. And that whych remaynyth, ſhalbe very ſmall and feble.

¶The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ A prophecie agaynſt Damaſcus.

THys is the heuye burthen vpon Damaſcus: Beholde, Damaſce is taken awaye, to be nomore a citye, but ſhalbe an heape of broken ſtones. The waſte citryes of Aroer ſhalbe ſoldes for cattel which ſhal lye there, and there ſhalbe none to fraye them awaye ☞ Ephraim alſo ſhall nomore be ſtrong.

strong, & Damasc⁹ shall nomore be a kyng dome, & the remnaunt of Syria shalbe as ꝑ glorye of ꝑ children of Israel, sayeth ꝑ Lord of hostes. And in ꝑ daye it shal come to pas se ꝑ Jacob shalbe made very poore, & ꝑ fatnesse of hys flesshe shall waxe leane. And he shalbe as one ꝑ gathereth vp corne in harueste, euē lyke him whose arme reapeth ꝑ eares of corne. He shalbe also lyke hym ꝑ gathereth eares of corne in the valley of Rephaim. Some gathering in dede shal there be left in it, euē as in the shakyng of an olyue tre there remayne two or thre beryes in the toppe of the vppermost bowe, & foure or fyue in ꝑ brode frutefull braunches therof, sayeth the Lorde God of Israel.

Then shall mā turne agayne to his maker, & his eyes shall haue respecte to ꝑ holy one of Israel. As for the altares which are his awne handy worke, he shal not regarde them, & the thynges ꝑ his fyngers haue made (as groues & ymages) those shall he not cast his eye vnto. In ꝑ daye shal their stroge cities be as the forsaken shrubbes & braunches, which ☞ they left because of the children of Israel, & the londe shalbe desolate. Because thou hast forgotten God thy saluacion, and hast not bene myndefull of thy ☞ strong rock, ☞ therfore shalt thou set pleasaunt plantes, & shalt graffe the braūche of another mans vyne. In the daye shalt thou make thy plāt to growe, & early in the morninge shalt thou make thy sede to florish. The harueste shalbe gone in the daye of enheritaunce, & there shalbe sorowe without ☞ hope of cōforte. ☞ Wo shalbe to the multitude of moche people, which shall make a ☜ sounde lyke the noyse of ꝑ see: And the violence of ꝑ nacions, which shal rage lyke the rushyng in of many waters: Euē lyke many waters shall the people rage. God shall rebuke him, and he shal flye farre of. He shal be chaced awaye lyke as drye strawe vpon the mountaynes before the wynde, and lyke a thing that turneth before the storme. At euen beholde, there is trouble: & or euer it be morninge, lo, he is gone. This is ꝑ portyon of them that oppresse vs, and the lott of them that robbe vs.

¶The.xviii. Chapter.

¶A prophecie agaynst Egypte.

A ☞ That lande that trusteth vnder ☞ the shadowe of wynges, that lande which is beyonde the waters of Ethiopia: Sendinge messaungers by the see, euen in vessels of redes ouer the water. Get you hence (ye spedye messaungers) to a naciō that is scatred & robbed of that they had: a fearfull people from their begynninge hytherto: a nacion troden downe by lytle and ☞ lytle, whose lāde ☞ the floudes haue spoyled. All ye inhabiters of the worlde and indwellers of ꝑ earth, loke vp whā he setteth a token in the mountaynes, and harken whan he bloweth wyth the trompe. For so ꝑ Lorde sayde vnto me, as for me, ☞ I will take my rest, & loke vpon the matter in my habitaciō, lyke a fayre heate after ꝑ rayne, & lyke a cloude of dew in ꝑ heat of harueste. For afore the harueste, whā the braunche is growne, there shal come ripe frute out of the floure, & he shall cut downe the increace wyth sythes, & the braunches shall he take awaye with hokes. Thus shal they be left together vnto the foules of ꝑ mountaynes, and to the beastes of the erth: for in sommer the byrdes shall remayne vpon it, and euery beest of ꝑ lande shalbe vpon it in ꝑ wynter. In ꝑ tyme shal there a present be brought vnto the Lorde of hoostes: euē a people that is scatred abrode, and robbed of that they had, that same people which hath bene fearfull from their begynnyng hytherto: a nacyon troden downe by lytle and lytle whose lande the floudes haue spoyled: To the place of the name of ꝑ Lord of hoostes, euen to the mount Syon.

¶The.xix. Chapter.

¶The prophecie agaynst Egypte.

A THe heuye burthen of Egypte: Beholde, ☞ the Lorde rydeth vpon a swyfte cloude, and shall come in to Egypte, & the ydols of Egypte shall tremble at the presence of hym, & the hert of Egypte shall quake in the myddes of her. And I wyll set the Egyptians one agaynst another, so that one brother shall fyght agaynst another, & one neyghboure agaynst another, citye agaynst citye, & realme agaynst realme. The mynde also of Egipte shalbe cleane without cōcell within it selfe, & the deuyce that they take, wyll I destroye, so that they shall seke councell at ydols & at sorcerers, at workers with spretes & at sothsayers. And the Egyptiās will I geue ouer into the hande of a maruelous cruell Lorde, & a myghtie kynge shall haue dominion ouer them, sayeth the Lord God of hostes. The waters of the see shal fayle, & the ryuer shall decreace and be dryed vp. The waters shalbe drawen out: the ryuers of Egypte shalbe emptyed & dryed vp, the redes and flagges shalbe cut downe.

The graffe in the ryuer & by the ryuers banck, & all that groweth by the ryuer shal wither awaye, and be brought to naught. The fyshers also shal mourne and all they that cast angle into the water, shal make lamentacion, and they that laye forth theyr nett beside ꝑ waters, shalbe roted out. Moreouer, they ꝑ worke in flaxe, and make fyne workes, shall be confounded, and so shall they ꝑ weaue open workes. For theyr open

workes

worthes shalbe euen destroyed, and all they that make pooles and stewes for fish shall come to naught.

But ye foolish princes of Zoan, ye wyse counselours of Pharao, whose wit is turned to foolyshnes, how saye ye vnto Pharao: I am come of wyse men & of auncient kynges? Wher ar they? where are (I saye) thy wyse men? Let the tell & (yf they can) what the Lord of hoostes hath deuysed vpon Egypte.

¶ The princes of Zoan are become fooles, the princes of Noph are disceaued, they haue disceaued Egypte, euen they that were taken for the cheefe kynred therof. In the myddes of it hath the Lord powred the spirite of wyckednes, and they haue disceaued Egypte in euery worke therof, euen as a dronken man stackereth in his vompte. Neither shall the head or tayle, the braunch or rede be able to do anye worke in Egipte. In that daye shall Egypte be lyke vnto women: It shal be afrayed and stode in feare at the moeyon of the hand of the Lord of hoostes, which he shaketh ouer it. And Egipt shalbe afrayed of the land of Juda: so that euery one which maketh mencyon of it, shalbe afrayed therat, be cause of the councell of the Lord of hoostes which he deuyseth for it.

In that daye shall fyue cities in the land of Egypte speake the language of Canaã, & sweare by the Lord of hoostes: the citye of desolacio shalbe called one of them. In that daye shall the altare of the Lord be in the myddes of the land of Egypt, & thys title beside it: VNTO THE LORDE. And it shalbe a token and witnesse vnto the Lord of hoostes in the lande of Egypte. For they shall crye vnto the Lorde because of such as trouble them, & he shall send the a Sauiour & a great man to deliuer them.

And the Lord shalbe knowne in Egipte, and the Egyptcians shall knowe the Lord in that daye, and do sacrifice and oblacio: yee they shall vowe a vowe vnto the Lord, and performe it. The Lord also shal smyte Egypte sore, & heale them again, & they shalbe conuerted vnto the Lord, and he shalbe intreated of them, & shall heale them. In that daye shall there be a come waye out of Egypte into Assyria, and Assyria shall come into Egypte, & Egypte in to Assyria, so that the Egyptcias and the Assyrias shall serue the Lorde together. In that daye shal the nacio of Israel be the thyrde wyth Egypte & Assyria, and they shalbe blessed in the myddes of the lande, which lade the Lord of hoostes hath blessed, saying: blessed is my people of Egypte, Assur also is the worke of myne handes, and Israel is myne inheritaunce.

¶ The.xx. Chapter.

¶ Against Egypte and Ethiopia.

IN the yeare that Tharthã came vnto Asdod (whan ☞ Sargon the kyng of Assyria had sent him) and had fought agaynst Asdod and taken it. At the same tyme spake the Lorde by the hãde of Esay the sonne of Amos, saying: Go and take of ☞ the sacke clothe from thy loynes, & put of thy shooe from thy foote. And he dyd so, walkynge naked and bare foote. And the Lord sayde: lyke as my seruaunt Esay hath walked naked, and bare fote for a signe and wonder thre yeares vpon Egypte, and Ethiopia: Euen so shall the kynge of Assyria take awaye out of Egypte and out of Ethiopia, chyldren and olde men, naked and bare fote wyth their loynes vncouered, to the greate shame of Egypte.

They shalbe brought in feare also, & ashamed one of another: Ethiopia of Egypte, and Egypte of Ethiopia, considerynge what glory they were in afore. And they that dwell in that same yle, shal saye in that daye: Beholde, thus are we regarded. Whither shall we flye for helpe, that we maye be deliuered fro the kyng of Assyria? And howe shall we escape?

¶ The.xxi. Chapter.

¶ Against Babylon, Idumea, and Arabia.

THe burthe of ☞ the wayst see: Euen as the stormy wether that passeth thorow at the noone daye, to come from the wyldernesse, from that horrible lande. A greuous visio was shewed vnto me: Let one dysceatfull offender come agaynst another, & one destroyer agaynst another. Up Elam, laye syege thou of Media: ☞ all their gronynge haue I layed downe. Therfore are my loynes fylled with sorow, deuynes, hath taken holde vpon me, as the pãges of a woman that is traueyling. It made me stoupe when I herde it, & it vexed me when I sawe it. My hart pãted, fearfulnes came vpõ me. ☞ The nyght of my voluptcousnes hath he turned agaynst me into feare.

Whyle they garnished the table, the watchman loked: And while I was eatynge and drynkyng (it was sayde:) vp ye captaynes, take you to your shylde. For thus hath the Lord sayd vnto me: ☞ Go and set a watchman, to tell what he seyth. And he sawe a charet, which two horsmen sat vpon, with the cariage of an Asse, and the cariage of a camell. Who he loked & toke very diligẽt hede. And the lyon cried, Lord, I stode wayting all the whole daye, & am appoited to kepe my watch euery nyght. And beholde, here cõmeth a charet of men, with two horsmen And he answered & sayde: Babylon is fallen, it is fallen, & all the ymages of hyr goddes hath he smyttẽ downe vnto the grounde. ☞ Thou art he whom I must threshe, and thou belongest to my corne flooze. This that I herde of the Lozde of hooftes ꝑ God of Israel haue I shewed vnto you.

and thou

C The burthen of Duma: he calleth vnto me out of Seir: Watchma, what hast thou rsyped by nyght? Watchman, what hast ꝑ rsyped by nyght? The watchman sayde: ☞ The mozynynge commeth, & so doth the nyght. Yf ye wyll aske anye queſtion, then aske it, retourne and come agayne.

The burthen cõcernyng Arabia: In the pleasaũt groſide of Arabia shal ye tary all nyght, euen in the streetes of Dedanim. The inhabitours of the lãde of Thema brought foozth water to him that was thyrſtie, they preuented him with their bzed that was fled awaye. Foz because of swerdes are they be come fugitiue, euen foz the dzawen swerde, and foz the bent bowe, & because of the greuousnes of warre. Foz thus hath the lozde sayde vnto me: There is yet a yeare accozdynge to the yeares of an hyzed seruaunt, & all the glozy of Cedar shall fayle. And the nombze of them that shall escape from the bowes, shall be mynished by the myghtye chyldren of Cedar, foz so the Lozde God of Israel hath spoken.

C The.xxii. Chapter.

C A prophecye agaynſt Jerusalem.

A ☞ The burthen of ☞ the valley of vi sion: What hast thou to do here, that thou clymest vnto the houſe toppes? Thou that art full of occupieng, thou seditious & proude citye: thy slayne men are nether put to death wyth swerde, ner deed in batell. All thy captaynes are fugitiue together, the archers haue taken them preſoners: All they ꝑ are founde in the, are in captiuyte together, because they fled farre of. Therfoze sayd I: let me alone & * I wyll make lamẽtacion. Ye shall not be able to comfozte me, because of the deſtruccyon of the daughter of my people. Foz thys is a daye of trouble, of ruyne, & of deſtruccyon ꝑ the Lozde wyll bzyng to paſſe in the valley of vision, breakyng downe the citye, & crying vnto mountaynes.

* Iude.xiy.c Iere.xl.a.

B Elam bare the quyuer wꝫ a charet of sote men and of hozsmen, and the cytye of Kyz shewed the shylde opẽ. Thy chefe valley also was full of charetes, and the hozsmen set theyr faces directly towarde the gate. And ☞ in ꝑ daye dyd the enemye take awaye ☞ ꝑ bewtye of Juda, and thẽ dyddeſt thou loke towarde the armoure of the houſe of the foreſt. Yee haue sene also ꝑ broken places of ꝑ citye of Dauid, how that they are many, & ye gathered together the waters of the lower pole. As foz the houſes of Jerusalem ☞ ye haue nombzed them, and the houſes haue ye brokẽ downe to make ꝑ wall strõg. Alſo haue ye made betwene the two walles, foz the waters of the olde pole, and haue not regarded the maker therof, nether had reſpecte vnto him that toke it in hãde.

And in that daye dyd the Lozde God of hooſtes call men vnto wepyng and mournyng, to baldneſſe & gyrdyng about wyth sack cloth. ☞ And behold, they haue ioye and gladneſſe, slayeng oxen & kylling shepe eatyng flesh & drynkyng wyne: * Let vs eate and drynke: foz tomozowe we shal dye. And it came to the eares of the Lozd of hooſtes: This iniquite shall not be pourged frõ you till ye dye, sayeth ꝑ lozd God of hooſtes.

C

☞

* 1.Cor.xv.d. Sapien. ii.b.

Thus sayeth the Lozd God of hooſtes: Go, get the into younder treaſurer, euen vnto * Sebna, which is ꝑ ruler of ꝑ houſe. What hast thou to do here? and whom hast thou here, that thou shuldeſt here hewe the out a ſepulcre, as it were one that heweth hym out a ſepulcre an hye, oz ꝑ grauyth an habitacion foz him self in a hard rock?

* Esa.xxxvi.d

Beholde, O thou man, the Lozd shall carye the awaye vnto captiuite, & shall surely couer the wyth cõfuſion. The Lozd shall turne the ouer lyke a ball wyth hys handes ☞ (and shall sende the) into a farre contre: There shalt thou dye, & there (in steade of the charettes of thy põpe) shall ꝑ houſe of thy lozd haue confuſion. ☞ I will dzyue the frõ thy place, & out of thy dwellyng shall he ouerthzow the. And in that daye shall I call my ſeruaũt Eliakim the ſonne of Helkia. And ☞ with thy garmentes will I clothe him, and wyth thy gyrdle will I ſtrengthe hym: thy power also will I cõmitte into his hãde & he shalbe a father of such as dwel in Jerusalem, and in the houſe of Juda.

D

☞

☞

* And the keye of the houſe of Dauid will I laye vpon his shoulder, so ꝑ he shall open and no man shall shut. He shall shut, and no man shall open. And I wyll faſten hym as a nayle in a sure place, and he shall be the glozyous seate of hys fathers houſe. Moreouer, all generacions and poſterites shall hang vpõ him, all the glozy of their fathers houſe, all veſſels both great and small, and all inſtrumẽtes of meaſure and muſyck. In that daye (sayeth the Lozde of hooſtes) shall the nayle that is faſtened ī the sure place departe, be broken and fall, and the burthen ꝑ was vpõ it, shall be plucte awaye, foz so the lozde hath spoken.

E

* Job.xii.b. Apoc.iii.b.

C The.xxiii. Chapter.

C A prophecie agaynſt Tyrus, and a promes that it shalbe reſtozed agayne.

I The burthen of * Tyre: Mourne ye shyppes of ☞ Tharsis, foz there commeth such deſtruccyon that ye shall not haue an houſe to entre into: Out of the lande of Cittim haue they knowlege of thys plage. Be styll, ye that dwell in ꝑ Ile, the marchauntes

* Ezec.xxvi.a

chaūtes of zidon, and such as passe ouer the see, haue made ꝑ plentyous. The corne that groweth by the great waters of Nilus, and the frutes of the ryuer were hyr vitailes, so that it became a comen marte of ꝑ nacions ☞ 23 Be ashamed thou zidon, for the see (euē
the strēgth of the see) hath spokē, sayēge: I haue not trauayled, ner brought forth chil dren, ner norished vp young mē, or brought vp virgins.
25 Whā tydinges commeth to the Egipciās
they shall be sory for the rumore that goeth of Tyre. Get you to Tharsis, mourne ye ꝑ dwell in the Ile. Is not this that glorious cyte of youres, which hath bene of olde anti quite? hyr awne fete shall cary hyr forth to be a sogeourner in to a farre countre. Who hath deuysed thys agaynst Tyre (that geneth garlādes vnto other cities) whose mar
chauntes are princes, and whose captaines are honorable in the worlde? Euen the lord of hooستes hath deuysed thys, to put downe
the pryde of all such as be glorious, and to mynish all them that be proude vpō earth:
Get the out of thy lāde vnto ꝑ daughter of Tharsis, seyng thou hast nomore strength.
C 26 He that smote the kyngdomes together,
holdeth out his hande ouer the see: euen the lorde hym self hath geuen a cōmaundement
agaynst the same comen place of mārchādi
se, that they shall vtterly destroye ꝑ might ☞ therof. And he sayd: ☜ Make nomore thy boast (O virgin thou daughter zidon) thou shalt be brought downe: Up, get the ouer
vnto Citim, where neuertheles thou shalt haue no rest. Behold, this people came not of the Caldees, but Assur made them strōg with great shippes. They set vp the strong holdes therof, & destroyed his palaces, & be brought it i decaye. Mourne ye shippes of tharsis for your strēgth is brought downe.
D 30 And in that daye shall Tyre be forgotten
seuētye yeares (accordinge to the yeares of one kyng) and after the ende of the seuētye
yeares shall Tyre syng as doth an harlot.
31 Take an harpe, & go about the cītye (thou harlot that hast bene forgottē) make swete
melody, sing moo songes, that thou mayest
be had in remembraūce. 32 And after the ende
of the seuentye yeares shall the lorde visyt ☞ Tyre, & she shall conuerte vnto her ☜ re-warde, and shall committe fornicatiō with all the kyngdomes of the earth ꝑ are in the worlde. Their occupieng also and their re-warde shalbe holy vnto ꝑ lord. Their gaynes shall not be layde vp ner kepte i store,
but it shalbe theyrs that dwell before the lorde, that they maye eate ynough, & haue clothyng sufficient.

¶ The .xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ A prophecie of tribulation to come vpon the worlde because of synne.

BEholde the lord maketh the earth A wayst and emptye: he turneth it
vp syde downe, & scatreth abrode
ꝑ inhabitours therof: And ꝑ prest
shalbe as the people, & the master as the ser
uāut, ꝑ mastresse lyke ꝑ mayd, ꝑ seller lyke
the byer: he that lendeth vpon vsury, lyke
hym that boroweth vpon vsury: the credi-tour as the better. The worlde shalbe clea
ne wasted & vtterly spoyled, for so the lorde hath spoke. The earth is sory & consumeth awaye, the worlde is feble & perisheth, the proude people of ꝑ erth are come to naught
The earth also is become vnprofitable vn
der the inhabitours therof, which haue trās
gressed the lawes, chaūged the ordinaunce,
broken the euerlasting couenaunt.
6 Therfore hath ꝑ curse consumed ꝑ earth, B and they that dwell therin, are fallen into trespace. Wherfore, the inhabitours of the earth are perished ☜ with drouth, & fewe ☜ mē are left behynde. The wyne faileth: the vyne hath no myght, all they ꝑ haue bene mery of hart, are come to mournyng. The myrth of tabrettes is layed downe, ꝑ noyse
of such as haue made mery, is ceassed, ꝑ tope
at ꝑ herpe is at an ende. They shall drynke nomore wyne wt̄ myrth, strong drynke shal
be bytter to them that drynke it. The cītye of vanite is broken downe, euery house is shut vp, ꝑ noman maye come in. In ꝑ stre-tes is there a crye because of wyne, all the re is vanished awaye, ꝑ myrth of the worl-
de is gone, in the cītye is left desolacyō and
the gate is smytten with destruccion.
14 For in the myddes of the worlde, euen a- C
monge the people, it shall come to passe, as
at the shakyng of Olyues, and as the grapes are whā ꝑ wyne harueste is done. They shall lyft vp their voyce: and make a mery noyse, and in magnifyeng of the Lord shall they crye out of the weste. Wherfore, prayse ye the lord in the valleys, euen the name of the lord God of Israel in the Iles of the see From ꝑ vttermost parte of ꝑ earth haue we heard prayses and myrth because of the ryghteous. And I sayd: ☜ I knowe a thyng ☜ in secrete, I knowe a thyng i secrete, wo is me, the trāsgressours haue offended, the trās-gressours haue grenously offended. Fearful-nesse, the pytt and the snare are vpō the, O thou that dwellest i the earth. It wil come to passe, that whoso escapeth the fearfull noyse, shall fall in to the pytt. And he that commeth vp out of the pytt, shalbe taken wyth the snare. For the wyndowes from an hye are open, and the foundacions of the earth are moued.
19 The earth is vtterly broken downe, the D
earth hath a sore ruyne, the earth quaketh exceadyngly. The earth shall rele to & fro lyke a dronkerd, and shalbe remoued lyke a tent

¶ like a tent, ☞ (of one syde) & the iniquitie therof shalbe heuy vpō it. It shall fall, & not ryse vp agayne. And in that daye shall the Lord visit the hoste aboue þ is on hye: & the kinges of the worlde þ are vpō the erth. And they shal-be gathered together, as they þ be in prison:
Luke.xxi.c & they shalbe shut vp inwarde, & after many
daies shall they be visited. * The mone shall be abashed, and the sunne ashamed, whē the Lorde of hostes shall raygne in mount Sion and in Ierusalem with worshyp, and in the syght of suche as shalbe of hys councell.

¶ The.xxv. Chapter.

¶ A thankesgeuyng to God for hys workes.

A THou arte the Lorde my God, I wyll magnifye þ, I wyll geue thākes vnto thy name. For þ hast brought wōderfull thinges to passe, accordyng to thyne olde cōcels truly & faythfully. * Thou hast mad Esa.xxvi.a of a citye an heape of stones, and brought a stronge towne vnto decaye. The habitation ☞ ☞ of straūgers hast þ made to be no citye, nether shall it be builded any more. Therfore shall þ mighty people geue glory vnto þ: the citye of þ valeaūt heithen shall feare þ. For thou hast bene a strēgth vnto the poore, and a succour for the neady in his trouble. A refuge agaynst euell wether, a shadowe against þ heate. For the blast of ragyng men is lyke a storme that casteth downe a wall.

B Lyke as thou bryngest heate downe out of a drye place, so shalt þ suppresse þ noyse of aliaūtes. ☞ The heate is in þ shadow of þ ☞ cloude: þ braūch of þ mighty shalbe brought Luk.xiiii.b lowe. And in this moūtaine shal * þ Lord of hostes make vnto all people a feaste of plēteous & delicate thinges, euē of most pleasaunt & deyntie dishes. And in this moūtayne shall þ Lorde destroie the couering, þ all people are wraped in, and the hanging þ is spred vpon all nacyōs. * As for death, he hath de-Apoc.xvi.c stroyed it for euer. & And þ Lorde God shall Ieer.xxxi.c wype a waye teares frō all faces, and the re-Apo.xxi.c buke of his people shall he take awaie out of Luke.xvi.c all the earth. For so the Lorde hath sayde.

And in that daye it shalbe sayde: Lo, this ¶ is our God, we haue wayted for hym, * & he Esay.xl.a shall saue vs. Thys is the Lord, in whō we haue hoped, we wylbe mery & reioyce in the saluation that commeth of hym. For in this moūtayne shall the hande of the Lorde reste and Moab shalbe threshed vnder him, euen as strawe is threshed vpō þ grounde. And he shall stretch out hys hande in the myddes of them (as he that swymmeth, casteth out his handes to swymme) and with the strēgth of his hāndes shall he bring downe their pryde. The strōgholde also and fence of thy walles hath he ouerthrowē & cast downe, & brought them to the grounde, euen vnto dust.

¶ The.xxvi. Chapter.

¶ A songe of the deliuerannce of the people.

IN þ daye shall thys songe be songe in the lande of Juda. * We haue a stronge citye. ☞ Saluacion shall ☞ God appoynte in steade of walles and bulwarke. * Open ye þ gates þ the rightteous people which keepeth the trueth maye entre in. Their minde is set vpon the, because thou preseruest them * in peace per, euen in peace: because they put their trust in the. Put ye your trust allwaye in the Lorde: for in the Lorde God there is strength for euermore. * For he hath brought downe hye mynded citizens. As for þ proude citye, he hath brought it lowe: euen vnto the grounde shall he cast it downe, & bring it vnto dust. The fote euen the fote of the poore: and the steppes of suche as be in necessitie shall treade it downe.

B The path of equitye wilt thou graūt vnto the iuste, o thou most ryghteous, * thou Hier.xii.b shalt order þ path of him that is ryghteous.
☞ Yee, ☞ in the waye of thy iudgmentes, O ☞ Lord, haue we put our trust in the. Thy name also: & the remēbraunce of the, is þ thyng that oure soule longeth for. * My soule hath Psal.lxiii & and.cxiiii.a longed for the all the nyght, and wt my spyrite (which is within me) wyll I seke the early in the morning. For when thy iudgementes are in the erth, the inhabitatours of þ worlde shall learne righteousnes. Shall the vngodly man be fauoured, which hath not learned ryghteousnes, but doth wickedly in the erth where nothynge ought to be done, but that which is ryghteous, (he shall not se the glory of the Lorde. Lorde, when thy hande is lyfte vp to stryke, they se it not: but they shall se it, and be confounded with the zele of the people, and the fyer that cōsumeth thyne enemyes, shall deuoure them.

Lord, vnto vs thou shalt prouyde peace: ¶
Philip.ii.a * for thou also hast wrought all our workis in vs. O Lorde our God, other lordes beside the hath subdued vs: but we wylbe mindfull only of the & of thy name. ☞ The deed ☞ will not lyue, & they þ be out of lyfe, will not ryse agayne: therfore hast thou visited & roted them out, and destroyed all the memory of them. Thou hast increased the people (O Lorde) thou hast increased the people, & thou art praysed: thou hast sent thē fare of vnto all the coastes of the erth. * Lorde in trouble
Leu.xxvi.g haue they visited the: they powred out their prayer, whē thy chastenyng was vpō them.
* Lyke as a woman wt chylde that draweth D
Joh.xvi.c nye towarde her trauell, is sory & cryeth in her paynes, euē so haue we bene in thy syght,
Rom.viii.b O Lorde. * We haue bene wt chylde & suffred
☞ payne, ☞ as though we had brought forth ☞ winde. For there is no saluation in the erth, nether do þ inhabitours of þ worlde submyt thē selues. * Thy deed mē shall lyue, euen wt
i.Cor.xv.d my body shall they rise agayne. Awake and syng ye that dwell in dust. For ☞ thy dewe ☞

is euen as the dewe of herbes, and the earth shall cast out them that be vnder her. Come
* Gene.xix.c my people, * enter thou into thy chambers,
1 Apo.vi.a. and shut thy doores about the: * hyde thy selfe
a lytle for a whyle, vntyll the indignatiō be
* Mich.i.a. ouerpast. * For lo, the Lorde is cōmyng out of his place, to visit the wickednes of suche
as dwell vpō earth. The earth also shall disclose her awne bloud, and shall nomore hid them that are slayne in her.

¶ The.xxvij.Chapter.

¶ A prophecy of the comming of Christ, and destruccion of ydolatrye.

IN that daye, the Lorde wᵗ his sore,
great and myghtye swearde shall visit ☞ * Leuiathan the fugityue
* Isai.xxvii.c. Apo.xx.c serpent, euē Leuiathan that croked serpent, and he shall slaye the dragon that is in the see. In that daye, se ye syng of the congregatiō which is the vyneiard, that bringeth forth the best wyne. Euē I the Lorde do kepe it, In due seasons shall I water it, & lest the enemye do it any harme, I will both nyght and daye preserue it. There is no displeasure in me, els (when the vyneiarde bringeth me forth briers & thornes) I wold go thorow it by warre, & burne it vp together. Let it take holde of my strength, and it shalbe at one wᵗ
me, euen at one shall it be with me.

The dayes are cōmyng, that Jacob shall take rote, Israel shalbe grene & flourysshe, and the worlde shalbe fylled with frute. Hath he smytten him as sore, as he did the other that smote him? Or is he slain wᵗ so sore a slaughter as they that slew hym? In measure doth
he smyte him, whyle he sēdeth vnto him soch
thinges, wherby he commeth to hys mynde agayne. For in the daye that the east wynde bloweth sore, it taketh awaye the frutes.
Thus therfore shall the iniquytie of Jacob be reconcyled, and here is all the frute of the takynge awaye of his synne, yf he make all the stones of the aultars of ydolles, as chalke stones that are beaten in sunder, that they groues and ymages ryse not vp agayne.

Els, shall the stronge citye be desolate, &
the habitation forsaken & left lyke a wilder-
nes. There shall the calfe fede, & ther shall he lye, & eate vp the graffes therof. ☞ When
* Deu.xxxii.b braūches of it are drie, they are broken of, & the wemen come, and set thē on fyer. * For it is a people of no vnderstanding, & therfore he that made them, shall not fauoure thē,
and he that created thē, shall geue them no grace. And in that daye shall the Lorde make a threshing from the middes of the riuer Euphrates vnto the riuer of Egipt: and ye chil-dre of Israel shalbe gathered together one to another. In that daye shall ☞ the great trōpe be blowne, so that they which were lost in the lāde of Assiria: & they that were banished into the lande of Egipt, shall come and worshyp the Lorde in the holy mount at Jerusalem:

¶ The.xxviij.Chapter.

¶ Against the pryde of Ephraim, & against false
prestes and preachers.

WO be vnto the crowne of pryde, euē
* to the dronken people of Ephraim whose great pōpe is as a flour that fadeth awaye) ☞ vpon the head of the valleye of such as be in welth, and are ouerladen with wyne. Beholde, * ther commeth a vehemēt and sore daye frō the Lorde
lyke an vnmeasurable hayle and perellous tempest, euen lyke the force of myghtye and horrible waters, that violētlye beareth downe
all thinges. The crowne of the pryde of the dronken Ephraemites shalbe troden vnder fote: * so that the floure of hys fayrenes and bewty, which is in the head of ☞ the valley
of fatnes, shall fade awaye, as doth an vn-timely rype frygg afore hervest. Which whā
a man spyeth, he loketh vpon it: and whyle
it is yet in his hande, he eateth it vp.

In that daye shall the Lorde of hostes be the crowne of glory, & diademe of bewtye vnto
the residue of his people. He wilbe also a spi-rite of perfyte knowledge to him that sitteth in iudgement, & strength vnto them that turne
awaye the battell to the gate of the enemies.
But they are out of the waye by reason of wyne: yee, farre out of the waye are they thо-rowe strong drynke. ☞ * The preste also &
the prophet are gone astraye by the meanes
of strong drincke, they are dronkē wᵗ wyne,
they go amisse thorowe strong drincke: they fayle in pphecying & stōble in iudgmēt. For tables are so full of vomyte and fylthines, that no place is cleane. Whō then shall such one teach knowledge? And whom shall he make to vnderstōde the thing that he heareth? For they are as ignorāt as yong childre, that are taken frō the mylke and are weened.

For they that be such must haue ☞ after one lesson, another lesson: * after one cōmaūdement, another commaundemēt, after one rule another rule, after one instruccion another instruccyon, there a lytle and there a lytle. For he that speaketh vnto this people is euen as one that vseth rudenes of speche, and a straunge language. Yf any man saye vnto them: lo, this is the rest wherwith ye maye
ease hym that is weerye, thys is the refres-shinge, they wyll not herken. * Therfore, the worde of the Lorde (lesson vpō lesson, commaundement vpon commaundēment, rule vpon rule, instruccyon vpon instruccion, there a lytle and there a lytle) shall be vnto them an occasyon of stombling that they maye go on, and fall backward, be bru-
sed, tangled and snared.

Wherfore, heare the worde of the Lorde
ye mockers, ye that haue rule of this people which is at Jerusalē. Because ye haue sayd:

☞ We

we haue made a couenaunt with death, & with hell are we at agrement. And though there go forth a sore plage, it shall nott come vnto vs. For we haue made falshode our refuge, and vnder vanitie are we hid. Therfore thus sayth the Lorde God: Beholde, I laye in Sion for a foūdation a stone, euē a tryed stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foūdatiō: Whoso beleueth, let hym not be to hastye. Judgment also will I laye to the rule, and righteousnes to the balance: so that the hayle shall take awaye your vayne confidence as a broome, and the preuy place of youre refuge shall the waters renne ouer.

And thus the couenaunt that ye made with death, shalbe disanulled: and your agrement that ye made with hell, shall not stand. Yee, when the sore plage goeth forth, ye shalbe troden downe vnder it. From the tyme that it goeth forth, it shall take you awaye. For early in the morninge euery daye: yee, both daye & night shall it go thorowe: & when the noyse therof is perceaued, it shall gendre vexation. For the bed is narow, and nott large: & the couering so small that a man can not wynde him selfe vnder it. * For the Lorde shall stonde as in mount Perazim, and shalbe wrothe lyke as in the valley * Gibeō, that he maie do his worke, his straūg worke & bring to passe his acte, his straunge acte.

Esa.xxviii.f. Esa.xxviii.b. 2.Reg.v.b.b. * Iosue.x.b 1.Par.xiv.b.

Now therfore se ye be no mockers, lest your punyshment increace: for I haue heard of the Lorde of hostes, that there shall come a short ende vpon the whole earth. Heare ye then, & herken vnto my voyce, consider & pōdre my speech. Doth not the husbandmā plowe all the daie, and openeth & breaketh the clottes of his grounde, & he maye sowe? Whā he hath made it playn, will he not spred abrode the fitches, and sowe comyn, & cast in whete by measure, & the appoynted barlye and rye in their place? God will instructe hym to haue discretion, euen his God wyll teach hym. For fitches shall not be treshed with an harowe: nether shall a carte whele be brought thorowe the comyn: but the fitches are beatē out with a staffe, and comyn wt a rodd. But the seede that bread is made of, is treshed, though it be not alwaye a threshing. And the carte whele must be brought ouer it, lest he grynde it with his teth. This also commeth of the Lorde of hoostes, which worcketh wt wonderfull wysdome, and bringeth excellēt workes to passe.

The .xxix. Chapter.

A prophecye against Jerusalem, and against the vayne traditions of men.

Woo vnto the Ariel Ariel thou citye that * Dauid dwelt in. Go on from yeare to yeare, and let the lambes be slayne. I will laye syege vnto Ariel, so that there shalbe heuynes and sorowe in it: and it shalbe vnto me euen an aultar of slaughter. I wyll besege the round about, and fight agaynst the thorowe a bulwarke: and wyll reare vp diches agaynst the. Thou shalt be brought downe, & shalt speake out of the grounde, and thy speech shall go lowe out of the duste. Thy voyce also shall come out of the grounde lyke the voyce of a witch: and thy talkyng shall whisper out of the dust. Moreouer, the noyse of thy straūge enemyes shalbe lyke thynne dust, & the multitude of tyrauntes shalbe * as drye strawe, that cannot tary: euen sodenly and in hayste shall theyr blast go. * Psal.i.b

Thou shalt be visited of the Lorde of hostes wt thōdre, erthquake, and wt a great noise: with storme and tempest and wt the flame of a cōsuming fyer. And the multitude of all nations that fyght agaynst Ariel, shalbe as a dreame sene by night: * euē so shall all they be that make warre agaynst it, and stronge holdes to ouercome it, and that laie eny sege vnto it. In conclusion, it shalbe euē as when an hongry man dreameth that he is eating, and when he awaketh, hys soule is emptye. Or as when a thurstye man dreameth that he is drincking: and when he awaketh, he is yet faynt: and his soule lacketh the appetite. Euen so shalbe the multitude of all nations that fyght agaynst Syon. * pſal.lxxxiij.c

Wondre thele thynges once in your wyndes, & wondre. * Blinded are they them selues and the blind guides of other. They are dronken: but not with wyne: they are vnstable, but not thorowe strong drincke. For the Lorde hath couered you with a slomberinge spyrete, and hath closed your eyes. Your prophetes also & rulers that shuld se, thē hath he couered. * And the vision of all the prophetes is become vnto you, as the wordes of a boke that is sealed vp, which men deliuer to one that is learned, saying: Reade thou in it. And he sayth: I cannot, for it is sealed. And the boke is geuen vnto him that is not learned, saying: Reade thou in it, and he sayth: I am not learned. Therfore thus hath the Lorde sayde: * For lomoche as this people when they be in trouble, do honour me with their mouth & wt their lippes: but their hert is far fro me, & the feare which they haue vnto me, proceadeth of a cōmaūdment that is taught of men. Therfore wyll I do maruayls amonge this people, euē maruelous thinges (I saye) & a wonder. * For the wysdome of their wise men shall perysh, & the vnderstanding of their wittye men shall hyd it selfe. * Esa.lxvi.b Matth.xv.b Mar.vij.a

Wo vnto thē that kepe secrete their thoughtes, to hyde their councell frō the Lorde, and do their workes in darknesse, sayinge: * who seeth vs? & who knoweth vs? Doutles, your destruccion is (in my handes) in reputacyon as the potters claye. And doth the * Esa.xlvij.b Eccle. xxiij.b Eze.xi.d

worcke saye of hym that made it, he made not me? And doth an earthen vessell saye of him that fashioned it, he had no vnderstandinge? Is it not hard at hande, that ☞ Libanus shalbe turned into a lowe felde, and that the lowe felde shalbe take as the wodde? And in that daye shall deafe men heare the wordes of the boke, and the eyes of ꝑ blinde shall se euen out of the cloud and out of darcknes. The meke spreted also shalbe mery in the Lorde, and the poore amonge them that be lowly, shall reioyce in the holy one of Israel. For he that dyd violence, is brought to naught, and the scornefull man is consumed: and they rooted out that were hastie so soone ☞ to vnrighteousnes, ☞ makynge a man to synne in the worde, and that tolde hym a snare which reproued them in the open place: and they that haue turned the cause of the righteous to naught. Therfore thus sayth the Lorde vnto the house of Jacob, euē thus * Esa.xxix.a. sayeth he that redemed Abraham: * Jacob shall not nowe be cōfoūded, ner his face pale. But when he seeth hys chyldren the worcke of my hādes in the middes of him, they shall sanctifie my name, and prayse the holy Lord of Jacob, and feare the God of Israel. They also that haue bene of an errony ouse spirite, shall come to vnderstandyng: and they that haue bene scornefull, shall learne doctryne.

¶ The.xxx. Chapter.

¶ Agaynst them that forsake the counsell of God, & cleue to the counsell of men. The prophet also threatneth the remnaunt of the people, that after the destruccyon of Jerusalem went into Egypte.

ALas, for those disobedient chyldren (sayth the Lorde) * that they wyll * Esa.xxix.b. take councell without me. Alas, ꝑ they wyll take a secret aduice, and not out of my spirite, and therfore adde they synne vnto synne. Euen they that walke to go downe into Egypte, and haue asked no question at my mouth: but seke strength in the myght of Pharao, and trust in the shadowe of Egypt. Therfore shall the strength of Pharao be your confusion, and the truste of the shadowe of Egypte youre shame. For his captaynes were at Zoan, and his ambassadours came vnto Hanes. * They were all * iiii.Regū. xviii.b Jerr.xvi.b Ezec.xxii.a ashamed of the people that could do them no good, and that might not helpe the, ner shewe them any profyt, but were theyr confusyon and rebuke.

The heauy burthen of the beastes of the south in a lande of trouble and anguyshe, from whence shall come the yonge and olde lion, the wyper and fyrye serpent that flyeth agaynste them that vpon coltes beare theyr riches, and vpon camels their treasures, to a people that can do them no good. For vaine and nothynge worth shall the helpe of the Egipcyans be. Therfore haue I cryed vnto Jerusalem. ☞ They shall haue strength ynough, yf they wyll settle their myndes in quietnes. * Now therfore, go thy waie, and * Esa.xxx.a. wryte thys before the in a table, & note it in a boke, that it maye finally remayne and be kept styll for euer. For it is an obstinat people; * and dissembling chyldren, childre that * Esa.i.b refuse to heare the lawe of the Lorde.

For they saye vnto the seers: ¶ Se not, and ¶ to the ꝑ be cleare of iudgement: loke not out ryght thinges for vs: but speake fayre wordes vnto vs: & ☞ loke out errours, gett you ☞ out of this waye, departe out of this path, & turne the holy one of Israel frō vs. Wherfore thus sayth the holy one of Israel: Because ye loure hertes rise agaynst this worde, & because ye trust in wrongeous dealyng & peruerse iudgment, & put your confidēce therin. Therfore shall ye haue thys my schefe for pō destrucciō and fall lyke as an hye wall that falleth, because of some ryfte or blast, whose * Psal.ii.b breaking commeth sodenly. * And the hurte therof is lyke an erthen vessell, which breaketh without helpe: so that in ꝑ burstyng of it, there is not found one sheuer to fetch fyre in, or to take water withall out of the pyt.

For thus sayth the Lorde God, euen the ¶ holy one of Israel: ☞ In repentaunce & in ☞ * rest shall ye be safe: in quietnes and sure cō- * Esa.xxxii.c. i.Para.xx.c. fydēce shalbe your strēgth. But ye haue had no lyst therto. For ye haue sayd: No, but we will escape thorowe horses. (Therfore shall ye flye) & we will get vs vp vpō swyft beastes. And therfore shal your persecutours be swyfter. * I. (M). shall flye at the rebuke of * Leu.xxvi.c Josue.xxiii.c one, & at the rebuke of. v. shall ye all flye, tyll ye be left as a shypp mast vpon the topp of a mountayne, and as a beaken vpon an hyll. * Therfore doth ꝑ Lorde cause you to wayte, ꝑ he maye haue mercy vpō you: to thintēt that he maye haue the preemynence, when he is gracyous vnto you. For the Lorde is the God of iudgement. Blessed are all they that hope in hym. * Rom.xi.a ¶ Yf the people remayne in Syon and at Jerusalem, thou shalt not be in heuines: but at the voyce of thy complaynte shall he haue mercy vpon the. And when he heareth it he shall geue the an answer. And though the Lorde geue you the bread of trouble, and the water of aduersitie, thy rayne shalbe nomore so skant, but thyne eyes shall see thy rayne. Yee, and thyne care shall ☞ heare ꝑ talkynge of hym that doeth speake behynde the. * Thys is ꝑ waye, walke ye in it. Turne not aside nether to the ryght hande ner to the lyft. Ye shall destroye also the couerynge of youre syluer ymages, and the deckinge of youre golden ydols. Euen as filthynes shall ye put them awaye. And thou shalt say vnto it. Gett the hence. Then shall God geue rayne vnto thy seede, that thou shalt sowe the ground withall, and bred of the increase of the earth, which shalbe fat and very plenteous. In that daye also, shall thy catell be fed in large pasture. The oxen lykewise and the yonge asses, that eate the grounde, shall eate cleane prouender, which is pourged with the wynde and the fanne.

of the

F Finally, vpon euery hye mountaine and hyll shall ther be riuers and streames of waters, * in the daye of the greate slaughter, when the towers fall. Moreouer, the lyght of the moone shalbe as the light of the sunne, and the sunne lyght shalbe seuen folde, and haue as much shyne as in seuē dayes beside: when the Lorde byndeth vp the sore of hys people, and healeth the stroke of their wouñd. Beholde, the fame of the Lord commeth frō farre, and his presence is so hote, that no mā is able to abyde. His lyppes are full of indignation, and hys tonge is as a consumynge fyer. Hys breth is as a vehement stoude of water, that reacheth vp to the necke. That he maye syft awaye the heythen in the syue of vanitye. And his breth is as a bridle of errour in the chawes of the people.

G And ye shall syng, lyke as in the nyghte, when the holy solēpnitye beginneth. And ye shall haue gladnes of hert, lyke as when one commeth with a pype vnto the hyll of the Lorde, and to the mooste mightye one of Israel. And the Lorde shall cause his glorious voyce to be heard, and shall declare his stretched out arme with a terrible countenaunce and with the flame of a cōsuming fyer, with noysome lyghtenynge, with a shower, and with hayle stone. For thorowe the voyce of the Lorde shall * Assur be destroyed, which smote other men with the rodde. And it shall come to passe, that whyther soeuer he goth, ꝑ rodde shall cleue vnto him, which the Lorde shall laye vpon him ☞ with tabrettes and harpes: and with greate warre shall he fyght agaynst his hoost. * For the fyer of payne is ordeyned from the begynning: yee, euen for kynges is it prepared. Thys hath ꝑ Lorde set in the depe, and made it wyde: the burninge wherof is fyer and muche wodde. The breth of the Lorde, which is a ryuer of brymstone, doth kyndle it.

4.Pet.iii.b

esa.j.a.

☞

*Mat.xxv.b

¶The.xxxj.Chapter.

¶ He curseth them that forsake God, and seke for the helpe of men.

A WO be vnto them that go downe into Egypte for helpe, and truste in horses, and put their confidence in charettes, because they be manye, and in horsemen, because they be lusty and strong. But they regarde not the holy one of Israel, and they aske no question at ꝑ Lord. Where as he neuertheles (beynge wyselest of all) plageth the wycked, and yet goeth not from his worde, when he stretcheth forth, and taketh the victory agaynst the housholde of the frowarde, and agaynst the helpe of euell doers. Nowe the Egiptians are men, and not God, and their horses flesh and not spyrite. And assoone as the Lorde stretcheth oute hys hande, then shall the helper fall, and he that shulde haue bene helped, and they shall all together be destroyed. For thus hath the Lorde spoken vnto me: Like as the * lyon or lyons whelpe roareth vpon the praye that he hath gotten, and is not afrayed, though the multitude of shepherdes crye out vpon hym, nether abashed for all the heape of thē. So shall the Lorde of hoostes come downe to fyght for mount Syon, and defende hys hyll. Lyke as byrdes flotre about their nestes, * so shall the Lorde of hoostes kepe, saue, defende and delyuer Jerusalem.

A

B

* Apo.b.a.

‡ Gen.xlix.b

C

* deu.xxxii.b

Therfore, O ye chyldren of Israel, turne agayne, from that infydelitye, wherin you drowned your selues. * For ☞ in that daye euery man shall cast out hys ydolles of syluer and hys ydolles of golde, which ye haue made with youre awne handes vnto youre synne. * Assur also shalbe slayne with the swearde, not with a mans swearde, nether shall the swearde of eny man deuoure hym: And he shall flie from the slaughter, and his seruauntes shalbe discomfyted in their hertes. He shall go for feare to hys strongeholdes, and hys princes shall flie from hys badge. Thys hathe the Lorde spoken, whose lyght burneth in Syon, and his fyer in Jerusalem.

* Esa.ii.c.

D

* ec.xxxix.c.

40

¶The.xxxij.Chapter.

¶ The condicyons of good rulers and officers.

BEholde, a king shall gouerne after the rule of ryghteweinesse, and the princes shall rule, accordyng to the balaunce of equitye. And that man shalbe vnto men as a defence for the wynd, and as a refuge for the tempest: lyke as a riuer of water in a thirstye place, and the shadowe of a greate rocke in a drye lande. The eyes of the seynge shall not be dym, and the eares of them that heare, shall take diligent hede. The hert of the vnwyse shall attayne to knowledge, and the vnparfyte tong shall speake playnely and distinctlye. Then shall the folysshe nygarde be nomore called gētle, ner the churle liberall. But the nygarde will be nigardly minded, and his hert wyll worke euell and playe the ypocrite, and ymagyn abhominations agaynst God, to make the hongry leane, and to withholde drincke from the thirsty. These are the perlous weapons of the churlysh, these be his shamefull councels: that he maye begyle the poore with discreatfull wordes: yee, euen there as he shulde gene sentence with the poore. * But the lyberall persone ymagineth honest thynges, & commeth vp for liberalytie vnto promotyō:

A

B

* Pro.xvij.b

¶ Up (ye ryche and ydell women) herken vnto my voyce. Ye careles cities, marke my wordes. After yeares and dayes shall ye be brought i feare, O ye careles cities. For har uest shalbe out, & the grape gatherynge shall not come. O ye rych ydell cities ye that fear no parell. Be abashed, you that lyue in aboundaūce: tremble, you that lyue careles: cast of your rayment, make your selues bare, put sacke cloth aboute you. For as the infantes wepe when their mothers tetes ar dryed: so shall you weape for your fayre felds and frutefull vyneyardes. Thy peoples felde shall brynge thornes and thistles: and so shall it be euen in euery house of voluptuousnesse and in euery citye that reioyseth.

D The palaces also shalbe broke, & the greatly occupyed cityes desolate. The towres and bulwarches shall become dennes for euermore, ỳ pleasure of mules shalbe turned to pasture for shepe: vnto the tyme that ỳ spryte be powred vpon vs from aboue.

Then shall the wyldernes be a frutefull felde, and the plenteous feld shalbe rekened for a wodde. Then shall equytie dwell in ỳ desert, and righteousnes in a frutefull land.

* Roma.v.a * And the rewarde of righteousnesse shalbe peace, and her frute rest & quietnes for euer.

* Ie.xxxii.c * And my people shall dwell in the pryncs of peace, and in sure dwellinges in safe places of confort. And when the hayle falleth, it shall fall in the wodde, and ☞ the citye shalbe set lowe in the valleye. O howe happy shall ye be, when ye shall safely sowe your seed beside all waters, and dryue thyther the fete of your oxen and asses.

¶ The .xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ Threatninge against the Assyrians. & defaryng of them that shall se the Lorde.

A WOo to the that destroiest, whē thou waste not destroyed, thou breakest the leage, where as none hath broken it with the: for when thou shalt leaue destroying, * thou thy self shalt be destroyed. And when thou ceasest from breakinge the leage, then shall they breake it to the. O Lorde, haue mercy vpon vs: we haue put our hole trust in the. Be an arme to suche early: and * our helth, in ỳ tyme of trouble. At that confuse noyse, the people fledd, and at thyne exaltinge, the heythen were scatred. And the spoyles shalbe gathered (which shalbe poures) as are the gathering of Bruchus. And the multitude going to it, shalbe as locustes runnyng to and fro.

* Ezech.xvi.b Leui.xxvi.a. Esai.xl.f. Matth.vii.a.

* Psal.xx.b.

The Lorde is exalted, for he is he ỳ dwelleth an hye: he hath fylled sion with iudgement and righteousnes. And a sure stablysshing of thy tymes shalbe strength, health, wisdome & knowledge: and the very feare of the Lorde shalbe ỳ treasure of it. Beholde, ỳ messengers shall crie without: & the ambassatours of peace shall weape bytterly: The stretes are wast, ther walketh no mā therin: God hath broken the appoyntment, the cyties are cast awaye, & mē are nothing regarded ỳ desolat erth is in heynes. Libanus is shamed: & hewē downe. Sarō is lyke a wylderues: Basan & Charmel are despoyled of their frutes. And therfore sayth the Lord: I will vp nowe: now will I be auaūced: now will I be exalted as a mighty God. * Ye shall cōceaue stubble, & beare strawe, & youre spyete shalbe the fyer, ỳ it maye cōsume you, & ỳ people shalbe burnt like lyme, & as thornes burne ỳ are hewen of, & cast in the fyer.

* Iere.b.c.

Now herke to ye ỳ are farre of, how I haue done, & consydre my power, ye ỳ be at hande. ☞ The sinners at sion are afrayde, a sodē fearfulnes is come vpon ỳ ypocrites. What is he amōge vs, say they, ỳ shall dwell by ỳ cōsuming fier: which of vs maye abyde that euerlasting heate? * he ỳ ledeth a godly lyfe, say I, & speaketh the trueth. He ỳ abhorreth gaines wōne by violence & discrete: he ỳ kepeth his hāde ỳ he touch no rewarde: which stoppeth his eares, ỳ he heare no councell agenst ỳ innocēt bloude: which holdeth downe his eyes, ỳ he se none euell. He it is, ỳ shall dwell on hye: whose sauegarde shalbe in a bulwarcke of rockes, to hym shalbe geuen meate, & hys waters shall not fayle. Thyne eies shall se ỳ king in his glory: eue ỳ king of ỳ farre countreis shall they se: thyne herte studied for feare thinkinge thus. * What shall then become of ỳ scribe? of ỳ receyuer of our money? what of him ỳ taxed our fairest houses? There shalt ỳ not se a people a straunge tong to haue so diffuled a lāguage, ỳ it may not be vnderstād: nether so straūge a speach but it shalbe perceaued. There shall sion be sene the heed citye of oure solempne feastes. There shall thyne eyes se Jerusalē that glorious habitatyō: * ỳ tabernacle ỳ neuer shall remoue: whose nayles shall neuer be taken out wotid vbout ende: whose coardes euerychone shall neuer corrupte: for the glorious magestie of ỳ Lorde shall there be present among vs: as a place, where fayre broade ryuers & streames are, thorow the which shall nether galey rowe, ner greate shyppe sayle. * For the Lorde is our iudge, the Lorde is our lawe geuer. The Lorde is our king, and he him selfe shalbe our sauioure. There are ỳ coardes so layde abroade, ỳ they cannot be better. And therfore they haue not fyxed their maste, nor spredde abroade their sayle. Then there is dealed great spoyle: yee, lame men rōne after the pray. There lyeth no mā that sayth: I am syck, but all euell is taken awaye from the people that dwell there.

* 1.Cor.i.i

* Esai.xl.i

* Iacob.iiii.i

¶ The .xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ The last destruccyon of the Synagoge, in which the kyngdome and preesthode of that people was translated to the church and congregation of Christ.

Come

A COme ye heythen and heare, take hede ye people. Herken thou erth & all ꝑ is therin: ꝑ round cõpasse and all that groweth there vpon: for the Lorde is angry w all people, and his displeasure is kindled agaynst all the multitude of them, he hath destroied them, & deliuered them to the slaughter. So ꝑ their slayne shalbe cast out, and their bodyes stynck: that euen the very hylles shalbe wet w the bloud of thẽ. All the starres of heauen shall waist, and the heuẽ shall folde together lyke a roll, and all the starres therof shall fall, lyke as ꝑ leaues fall from the vynes and fyggetrees.

B For my sweard shalbe bathed in heauẽ, and shall immediatly come downe in iudgment vpon Idumea, and vpon the people which I haue cursed for my vengeaunce.

And the Lordes sweard shalbe full of blonde, & be ruddy w the fatnes and blonde of lambes and goates, with the fatnesse of the kidneys of wethers. For the Lord shall kill a great offering in Bozra, & a great slaughter in the lande of Idumea. There shall the vnicornes fall w them, and the bulles w the gyaunts: and their lande shalbe throwely soaked with blonde, & their grounde corrupt with fatnes. Unto the also, O zion, shall come the daye of ꝑ vengeaũce of God, and the yeare when thyne awne iudgmentes shalbe recompensed. And his floudes shalbe turned to pytch, and his earth to brimstone: & there with shall the land be kindled, so that it shall C not be quenched daye ner nyght: but smoke euermore, and so forth to lye waste. And no man shall go thorowe it for euer. But pellicanes, storkes, great owles and rauens shall haue it in possession, and dwell therin.

For God shall spreede out the lyne of desolation vpon it, & weye it with the stones of emptines. When kynges are called vpon there shalbe none, & all prices shalbe awaye. Thornes shall growe in their palaces, netels and thistles in their strongholdes, that the dragons may haue their pleasure therin, and that they maye be a court for estryches. There shall straunge wilures and monstruous bestes mete one another, and the wylde kepe company together. There shall the lamia lye, & haue her lodging. There shall the D owle make her nest, buylde, be there at home and bring forth his yonge ones. There shall the kytes come together, echone to his lyke.

Seke thorow the scripture of the Lorde and reade it. There shall none of these thynges be lefte out, there shall not one, ner lyche lyke, fayle. For what his mouth commaundeth that same doeth his spyrit gather together, or fulfylleth. He hath cast ꝑ lot for thẽ, and to those beastes hath his hãdes deuyded the line: therfore those shall possesse the enherytaunce from generatyon to generatyon, and dwell therin for euer.

¶ The.xxxv. Chapter.

¶ Of the tyme and kyngdome of Christ.

A BUt the deserte and wildernes shall reioyce, the waste grounde shalbe glad and flowryth as the lylly. She shall flowrythe pleasauntlye, and be ioyfull, and euer be geuyng of thankes more and more. For the glory of Libanus, the bewtye of Charmel and Saron shalbe geuen her. These shall knowe the honoure of the Lorde, and the magesty of oure God. * And * Heb.xij.b therfore strength the weake hãdes, and confozte the feble knees.

B Saye vnto them that are of a fearefull hert. Be of good chere, and feare not. * Beholde, youre God commeth to take vengeaũce: and you shall se the rewarde that God geueth: God commeth his awne selfe, & will delyuer you. * Then shall the eyes of ꝑ blinde be lyghtened, and the eares of the deaffe opened. Then shall the lame man leape as an hert, & the * dõme mans tonge shall geue thãckes. ‡ In the wildernes also, there ‡ all welles spring, & floudes of water in ꝑ desert. C The drye grounde shall turne to riuers, and the thursty to sprynges of water. Where as dragõs dwelt afore, ther shall growe swete floures and grene rushes. There shalbe fote pathes & comẽ stretes, this shalbe called the holy waye. No vnclene person shall go thorowe it: for the Lorde him self shall go with them that waye, and the wayferer, nor ignorant shall not erre. There shalbe no lyõ & no rauishing beast shall come therin, nor be D there but mẽ redemed shall go there fre and safe. And the redemed of the Lorde, I saye, shall conuerte and come to zion with thanckesgeuing. Euerlastyng ioye shall they haue: pleasure and gladnes shalbe among thẽ. And as for all sorowe and heuynes, it & all vanysh awaye.

¶ The.xxxvj. Chapter.

¶ Ierusalem is affraied of Sennacherib, in the tyme of kyng Ezechias.

A IN * the.xiiij. yere of king Hezekias came Sennacherib kyng of the Assirians downe, to laye seage vnto all the stronge cityes of Juda, to conquer thẽ. And the kyng of Assiryans sent Rabsaketh frõ Lachis towarde Jerusalem, agaynst king Hezekias, w an erreading hoste, which set him by the condyte of the ouerpole in the waye ꝑ goeth thorow the fullers lãde. And so ther came forth vnto him Eliakim Helkias sonne the prelident * Sobna ꝑ scribe, and Joah Asaphs sonne ꝑ secretary. * Esa.xxii.a

And Rabsaketh sayde vnto them: Tell Hezekias, that the greate kynge of Assiria sayth thus vnto him: What presumpcion is thys, that thou trustest vnto? I sayde, Surely thou trustest in thy lyplabourr, when councell & strength are necessary to battayl:

ore elles wher to truste ſt ꝑ, that ꝑ caſteſt thy ſelfe of frome / * lo, thou putteſt thy truſt in a broke ſtaf of rede (I meane Egipt) which he
ꝑ leaneth vpō, it goeth into his hāde & thur-ſteth hym thorowe. Euen ſo is Pharao the kynge of Egipte, vnto all them that truſt in
hym. But yf ꝑ wolde ſaye to me: we truſte in ꝑ Lord our God. I goodly God in deed:
whoſe hye places and aultars Hezekia toke
downe, and cōmaunded Juda and Jeruſalē to worſhyp onely before the aultare. Nowe therfore delyuer hoſtages that thou rebelle
nomore agaynſt my Lorde the kynge of Aſſirians. And I wyll geue the two thouſande horſes: yf thou be able to ſet men vpon
them: how darreſt thou reſiſt the power of ꝑ
ſmalleſt prynce, ꝑ my Lord hath? how dareſt thou truſt in the charettes and horſt men of Egipt? Moreouer, thinckeſt thou ꝑ I am come downe hyther to deſtroye this lād wout
ꝑ Lordes will? The Lord ſayde vnto me: go downe into ꝑ lāde, that ꝑ mayeſt deſtroie it.
Then ſayd Eliakim, Sobna and Joah vn-
to Rabſaketh: Speake to vs thy ſeruaūtes (we praye the) in the Syryās language: for we vnderſtāde it wel. And ſpeake not to vs in the Jewes tong, leſt ꝑ folcke heare which lyeth vpō the wall. Then anſwered Rabſakeh: Thincke ye, ꝑ the kyng ſent me to ſpea-ke this only vnto ꝑ Lord and ꝑ? hath he not ſent me to them alſo, that lye vpō the wall?
that they maye be cōpelled to eate their a-
wne donge, & drynck their awne ſtale wō you?

C And Rabſaketh ſtode ſtil, and cryed with a loude voyce in the Jewes tong, and ſaide:
Nowe take hede, howe the great king of the Aſſyriās geueth you warning. Thus ſayth the king: Let not Hezekias diſceaue you: for he ſhall not be able to delyuer you. Moreouer
let not Hezekias conforte you in the Lorde,
when he ſayth: The Lord wout doubt ſhall
defende vs, and ſhal not geue ouer this citye
into the handes of the kyng of the Aſſyriās, beleue hym not. But thus ſayth the kyng of Aſſyria: optayne my fauoure, enclyne to me:
ſo maye euery man eniope hys vynepardes
and fygg trees, and drynke the water of his cyſterne: vnto the tyme that I come my ſelf,
and bringe you into a lāde that is lyke your awne: wherin is wheate and wyne, which is both ſowen with ſeede, and planted with vynepardes. Let not Hezekia diſceaue you,
when he ſayth vnto you: the Lorde ſhall de-lyuer vs / * Myght the Goddes of the Gentils kepe euery mans lande, from the power of the kynge of the Aſſirians? Where is the God of Hemath and Arphad? Where is the God of Sepharuaim? And who was able to defende Samaria out of my hande? Or which of all the Goddes of theſe lādes hath delyuered their countrey out of my power?
is the Lorde in dede able to delyuer Jeruſalem fro my hande? Unto this Hezekias meſſaungers helde their tonges, and anſwered
not one worde: for the king had charged thē,
that they ſhulde geue hym none anſwere.
So came Eliakim Helkias ſonne the preſi-dent, Sobna the ſcribe, and Joah Aſaphs
ſōne the ſecretary, vnto Hezekias with rent clothes, and tolde hym the wordes of Rabſaketh.

C The.xxxvij. Chapter.

C Hezekias bideth him ſelfe before the Lorde. The meſſage of Sennaherib is ſigne of the aungell of the Lord: and he him ſelfe is ſlayne of his awne ſonnes.

When Hezekias heard that, he rent A hys clothes, * and putt on a ſacke * iij. Reg.
cloth, and went into the temple of xix.a the Lorde. But he ſente Eliakim the preſident, Sobna the ſcribe, with the el-deſt preſtes clothed in * ſacke, vnto the pro- * Jona.iij.a
phet Eſay the ſonne of Amoz, and they ſaid vnto hym: Thus ſayth Hezekias: Thys is the daye of trouble, of plage and of blaſphemye: for the children are come to the place of byrth: but there is no power to bringe them forth. The Lorde thy God (no doubte) hath well conſydered the wordes of Rabſaketh, whom his Lorde the king of Aſſirians hath ſent to defye & blaſpheme the lyuynge God:
with ſoche wordes as the Lorde thy God
hath heard ryght well. And therfore, lyfte vp thy prayer for the remnaunt, that yet are left. So the ſeruauntes of the kynge Heze-kias came to Eſay.

And Eſay gaue the thys anſwere: Saye B
thus vnto your lorde: thus ſayth the Lorde:
Be not afraied of the wordes that thou haſt
harde wherwith the kyng of the Aſſirians
ſeruaūtes haue blaſphemed me. * Beholde, * Eſa.xix.
I will cauſe a wynde to go ouer him, aſſone
as he heareth the rumour, he ſhall go again
into hys contrey: there wyll I deſtroye hym
with the ſwearde in his awne lāde. * Nowe * i. Regum.
when Rabſaked returned, he founde ꝑ king xix.c
of Aſſiria laying ſege to Libnas: for he had
vnderſtande ꝑ he was departed frō Lachis.
For ther came a rumour ꝑ Tharhakas kige
of Ethiopia was come forth to warre aga-ynſt him. And whē the king of Aſſiria heard that, he ſent other meſſaungers to kyng He- C zekias wō this commaundement: Saye thus to Hezekias king of Juda: Let not thy God
diſceaue the, in whō thou hopeſt, and ſayeſt:
Jeruſalem ſhall not be geuen into the hādes
of the king of Aſſiria. For lo, thou knoweſt well howe the kinges of Aſſiria haue handled all the landes that they haue ſubuerted,
and hopeſt thou to eſcape? Were the people of Gentyles (whom my progenitours conquered) delyuered at any tyme thorow their goddes? * As namely, Gozan, Haran, Re- * iij. Regum.
zeph, and the chyldren of Eden, which were xviij.a at Thalaſſar. Where is the kynge of He-mah, and the kyng of Arphad, and the king
of the

* iij. Regū. xviij.b Eſa.xxxvj.a

* Eſa.x.b.

of the cytie Sepharuaim, Ena & Ana? Now when Ezekia had receaued the letter of the messaungers, and read it, he went vp into ꝑ house of the Lorde, and opened the letter before the Lorde. And Ezekia prayed before ꝑ Lorde on this maner. O Lorde of hostes, ꝑ God of Israel, which dwellest vpon * Cherubin. Thou art the God, that onely is God of all the kyngdomes of the worlde, for thou onely hast * created heauen and earth. * Enclyne thyne eare Lorde & consyder, open thyne eyes, O Lorde, and se, and ponder all the wordes vpon Sennaherib, which hath sent his embassage to blaspheme the lyuyng God Je tis true, O Lorde, that the kynges of Assyria haue conquered all kyngdomes and landes, and cast theyr goddes in the fyre. Notwithstandynge those were no goddes, but ꝑ workes of mens handes, of wood or stone, therfore haue they destroyed them. Delyuer vs then, O Lorde our God, from the hãdes of Sennaherib, that all kyngdomes of the earth maye knowe, that thou onely art the Lorde. Then Esaye the sonne of Amoz sent vnto Hezekia, sayinge: Thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God of Israel. Where as thou hast made thy prayer vnto me, as touchyng Sennaherib ꝑ kynge of Assyria, this is the answere, that ꝑ Lorde hath geuen concernynge hym. Despised art ꝑ, and mocked (O daughter of Syõ) he hath shake his head at the, O daughter of Jerusalem. But thou Sennaherib. * whom hast thou defyed and blasphemed? Agaynst whom hast thou lifted vp thy voyce, and exalted thy proude lookes? euen agaynst ꝑ holy one of Israel. Thou with thy seruauntes hast blaspheмed the Lorde, and thus boldest thou of thy selfe. I will couer the hye mountaynes, and sydes of Libanus with my horsmen. And there will I cut downe the hye Cedre trees and the sayrest Fyre trees. I wyll vpinto the heygth of it, and into the chefest of hys tymbre woddes. If there be no water, I wyll graue and drinke. And as for waters of defence, I shall dryue thẽ vp with the fete of myne hoost. Yee, hast thou not hearde, what I haue taken in hande, & brought to passe of olde tyme? That same wyll I do nowe also: waste, destroye, and bringe stronge cyties vnto heapes of stones. For theyr inhabitatours shalbe lyke lame men, brought in feare and confounded. They shalbe lyke ꝑ grasse & grene herbes in the felde, lyke the hey vpon house toppes, that withereth afore it be growne vp.

I knowe thy wayes, thy goinge forth and thy commynge home, yee, & thy madnesse agaynst me. Therfore thy furiousnes against me, and thy pryde is come before me. I wyll put my rynge in thy nose, and my bridle byt in thy chawes of the, and turne the about, eue the same waye thou camest. I wyll geue the also this token (O Hezekia) thys yere shalt thou eate such as groweth of ye selfe & the secõde yeare, ꝑ which springeth agayne of the same, and in the thyrde yeare, ye shall sowe & reape, yee, ye shall plãte vineyardes, and enlope the frutes therof.

And soche of the house of Juda as are escaped, shall come together, and the remnaũt shall take rote beneth, and bringe forth frute aboue. For the escaped shall go out of Jerusalem, and the remnaunt from the mounte Syon.

And thys shall the gelousy of the Lorde of hostes bring to passe. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde, concernynge the kynge of the Assyrians. He shall not come into this cyte, and shal shote no arowe into it, there shal no shilde hurt it, nether shal they cast ditches about it. The same waye ꝑ he came, he shal retourne, and not come at thys cytie. sayeth ꝑ Lorde. And I wyll kepe and saue ꝑ cytie (sayeth he) for myne awne, and for my seruaũte Dauids sake.

* Thus the angel went forth, and slewe of the Assyrians hoost, an hũdred fourescore and fyue thousande. And whẽ men arose vp early in the mornynge. Beholde, they were slayne, and all laye full of deed bodyes. So Sennaherib the kyng of the Assyriãs brake vp, & dwelt at Ninive. Afterwarde it chaunsed, as he prayed in the temple of Nesrah his God, that Adramalech and Sarazer hys awne sonnes slewe him with the sweard, and fled into the lande of Armenia. And Asarhadon his sonne raygned in his steade.

* iiii. Reyñ. xix.c. Ecc. xlviii. d. Esay. xxxi. b. ii. Mach. xv. b

The. xxxviii. Chapter.

Ezekia is sycke vnto the deeth, but is yet restored by the Lorde, and lyueth fyftene yeares after, for which benefyte he geueth thankes.

In those dayes was Hezekia sycke vnto the deeth, * & the prophete Esay ꝑ sonne of Amoz came vnto hi, & sayd: Thus cõmaundeth the Lord: Set thyne house in ordre, for thou must dye, and shalt not escape. Then Hezekia turned hys face towarde the wall, and prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Remembre (O Lorde) that I haue walcked before the in treuth and a stedfast herte, & haue done the thynge that is pleasaunt to the. And Hezekia wepte sore. Then sayde God vnto Esay: Go and speake vnto Hezekia: the Lord God of Dauid thy father sendeth the this worde: I haue hearde thy prayer, and consydred thy teares, * beholde, I will put fyftene yeares mo vnto thy lyfe, and delyuer the and the cytie also, from the hande of the kynge of Assyria, for I wyll defende the cytie: * And take the thys token of the Lord, that he will do it, as he hath spoken: Beholde, I wyll returne the shadowe of Ahaz dyal, that nowe is layed out with ꝑ

* iiii. Reyñ. xx. a. ij. Par. xxxii. f

* Jona. iij. b.

* i. Reg. ii. g.

Sunne and bringe it ten degrees backward.
* Iosue. x.c. * So the Sunne turned ten degrees backwarde, the which he was defended afore.

¶ Thanckesgeuynge, which Hezekia kynge of Juda wrote, when he had bene sycke, and was recouered.

I thought I shulde haue gone to the gates of hell when myne age was shortened, and haue wanted the residue of my yeares.

¶ I spake within my selfe: I shall neuer visett the Lorde (the Lord I saye) in thys lyfe: I shal neuer se man amõg the dwellers of the worlde. Myne age is folden vp together, & taken awaye fro me, lyke a shepherdes cotage: I haue hewen of my lyfe by my synnes, lyke as a weuer cutteth of hys webb.

He wyll with pyninge sycknesse make an ende of me: yee, he wyll make en ende of me
* Iob.xiii.b. in one daye. * I thought I wolde haue lyued vnto the morowe, but he brosed my bones lyke a lyon, and in one daye thou wilt make an ende of me.

Then chatred I lyke a swalowe, and lyke a crane, and mourned as a doue.

I lyfte vp myne eyes into the heygth: O Lorde (sayde I) my sycknes hepeth me downe: ease thou me.  What shall I saye? The Lorde hath made a promise to me. Yee, and he him selfe hath performed it. I shall therfore as longe as I lyue remembre thys bitternes of my lyfe. O Lorde men maye lyue beyond theyr yeares, and I wyll declare to all men: that eue in those yeres I haue a ioyfull lyfe, and that it was thou that causedest me to sleape and agayne thou hast geuen lyfe to me. Beholde bytter as gall was my pensyuenesse, so sore longed I for helth. And it was thy pleasure to deliuer my lyfe, from the fylthye pyt, for thou hast (O Lorde) that hast cast all my synnes behynde
* Psal. lxxx. lxxxviii.b. and.xcv.b. thy backe. * For hell prayseth not the, death doth not magnifye the.

They that go downe into the graue prayse not thy trueth: but the lyuinge, yee, the lyuing a knowledge þ, lyke as I do thys daye.

The father telleth hys chyldren of thy
* Luke.i.g. faythfulnesse. * To helpe me it is the Lordes worcke, and we wyll synge my songes in thy house, all the dayes of oure lyfe. And Esaye sayde: take a playster of hygges, and laye it vpon the sore, so shall it be whole.

Then sayd Hezekia: O what a great miracle is this, that I shall go vp into the house of the Lorde?

¶ The.xxxix. Chapter.

¶ Hezekia is reproued of Esaye, because he shewed hys treasure vnto the embassytours of Babylon.

AT * the same tyme Merobach
* iiii. Regũ. xx.c. Baladam, Baladamus sonne kynge of Babylon, sent lettres & presentes to Hezekia. For he vnderstode howe þ he had bene syck, & was recouered agayne. * And Hezekia was glad therof, & shewed the the comodities of his treasure, of syluer, of gold, of spices & rotes, of precious oyles, all that was in his cubbordes & treasure houses. There was not one thinge in Hezekias house, and so thorow out all his kyngdome, but he let the se it.

Then came Esaye the prophete to kynge Hezekia, and sayd vnto him. What haue the men sayde, and from whece came they vnto the? Hezekia answered: they came oute of a farre countre vnto me, out of Babylõ: Esay sayde: what haue they loked vpon in thyne house? Hezekia answered. All that is in myne house haue they sene: and there is nothynge in my treasure, but I shewed it them.

Then sayde Esay vnto Hezekia: Vnderstande þ worde of the Lord of hostes: * Beholde, the tyme wyll come, that euery thyng which is in thyne house, and all that thy progenitoures haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, shalbe caried to Babilon, and nothing left behynde. This sayeth the Lord. Yee, and parte of thy sonnes, that shall come of the, & whom þ shalt get, shalbe caryed hence, and become gelded chamberlaynes in the kynge of Babylons courte. Then sayde Hezekia to Esay. Now God prospere his awne counsell, which þ hast tolde me. He sayde moze ouer: So þ there be peace & faithfulnes I my tyme.

* iii. Regũ. xxiiii.c.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

¶ The commynge of S. Iohn baptist. The preparacion of the Apostles. The callynge of the Gentyles.

COmforte my people (Ye prophetes) cõforte my people, sayeth your God, cõforte Jerusalẽ at the hert, & tell her: þ her trauayle is at an ende that her offence is pardoned, that she hath receaued of the Lordes hande sufficient correctiõ for all her synnes. * A voyce crieth in wildernes. Prepare the waye for þ Lorde in the wildernesse, make streyght þ path for oure God in þ deserte. Let all valleyes be exalted, & euery mountayne & hill be layed lowe, what so is croked, let it be made straight: & let the rough be made playne feldes. * For þ glory of the Lorde shall appeare, and all flesh shall at once se it, for why: the mouth of the Lorde hath spoken it.

The same voyce spake: Nowe crye. And þ prophet answered: what shall I crye? * that all flesshe is grasse, & that all the godlines therof, is as þ floure of þ felde. The grasse is wythered, þ floure falleth awaye. Euẽ so is the people as grasse, when the breath of þ Lorde bloweth vpõ thẽ. Neuertheles, whether the grasse wyther, or þ floure fade awaye. * Yet þ word of our God endureth for euer. Go vp vnto þ hye hyll (O Syõ) þ that bringest good tydynges, lyfte vp thy voyce with power, O thou preacher Jerusalẽ. Lyfte it vp without feare, and saye vnto the cyties of Juda:

Beholde

Beholde youre God, beholde the Lord God shall come with power, and beare rule with his arme. Beholde, he bringeth hys treasure with him, and his worckes go before hym. He shall fede his flock lyke an herdman. He shall gather the lambes together with hys arme, and carye them in his bosome, & shall kyndely intreate those that beare ponge.

Who hath holden the waters in hys fyst? Who hath measured heauen w̄ his spanne, & hath cōprehended all the earth of ꝑ worlde in thre measures? Who hath weyed ꝑ moūtaynes & hylles in a balaunce. Who hath perfourmed the mynde of ꝑ Lorde? or to whō hath he shewed his counsell. * Or who is of his coūcell to teach him? or who hath geuen him vnderstandynge and hath taught him the path of iudgement Who taught him cōninge and opened to him the waye of vnderstandynge. Beholde, all people are in cōparyson of hym, as a droppe to a bocket full, & are counted as the lest thinge that the balaūce weyeth. Yee & ꝑ Iles he taketh vp as a very lyttel thig. Libanus is not sufficiēt to minister fyre for hys offeringe, and all the beastes therof are not ynough to one sacrifice. All people in cōparyson of him are rekened as nothing, * yt they be cōpared with him lesse then nothyng and as it that is not. To whō then wyll ye liken God? or what similitude will ye set vp vnto him? Shall the caruer make him a carued ymage? & shall ꝑ goldsmyth couer hym with golde, or cast him into a fourme of syluer plates? Wore ouer, shall the ymage maker (that the poore man which is disposed, maye haue some thing to sett vp also) seke out and chose a tree, ꝑ is not roten, & carue therout an ymage, ꝑ moueth not? Knowe ye nothing o wretches? hearde ye neuer of it? hath it not bene preached vnto you sence the begynning? haue ye not bene enfourmed of this, by the foūdacyon of the earthe, that he sytteth vpon the circle of the worlde, and that all the inhabitoures of the worlde are in comparyson of him, but as grethopers. * That he spreadeth out ꝑ heauens as a couerynge, that he stretched them out, as a tent to dwell in. That he bringeth ꝓynces to nothing, and the iudges of the earth to dust: so ꝑ of the it may be sayde they be not planted nor sowē agayne, nether their stock roted agayne in the earth? For as soone as he bloweth vpon the, they wither & fade awaye, like ꝑ straw in a whyrle winde.

To whō nowe will ye lyken me, & whom shall I be lyke, sayeth the holy one? Lyft vp your eyes on hye, & cōsyder. * who hath made those thinges, which come out by so great heapes? & he cā call them all by their names. For there is nothing hid vnto the greatnesse of hys power, strength, & myght. Howe may then Jacob thincke, or how may Israel saye: My wayes are hid frō the Lorde, & my God knoweth not of my iudgementes. Knowest thou not, or hast thou not hearde, that the euerlastynge God, the Lorde which made all ꝑ corners of the earth, is nether weery nor faynt: and that his wysdome cānot be cōprehended: but that he geueth strength vnto the weery, and power vnto the faynte? Children are weery and faynt, and the strongest men fall. * But vnto them that haue the Lord before theyr eyes, shall strength be encreased. Aegles wynges shall growe vpon the. Whē they runne they shall not fall: and when they go, they shall not be weery.

The. xli. Chapter.

Of the goodnes and mercy of God to warde the people.

Be styll (ye Ilandes) and herke vnto me. Be stronge ye people, Come hyther, and shewe youre cause, we wyll go to ꝑ lawe together. Who raysed vp ꝑ iust man frō the rysinge of the Sunne, & called him to go forth? Who cast downe the people, and subdued the kynges before him: that he maye throwe them all to the groūde with his swearde, and scatre the lyke stubble with his bowe? He foloweth vpon the, and goeth safely him self. And that in a waye where, before his fote had not troden. Who hath made and created thes thinges? euen he that called the generacions from the begynnyng? * Euē I the Lorde, which am ꝑ fyrst, and with the last. The yles sawe it, & did feare, and the endes of the earth, were abashed, drewe nye, & cam hither. Euery man exhorted hys neyghboure, & brother, and bad him be stroge. The carpenter cōforted the goldsmyth, & the goldsmyth ꝑ hāmer mā, saying: Glue wyll dowery wel in it. It shalbe good, ꝑ we fasten this cast worke: & then they fastened it with nayles, that it shulde not be moued, But thou Israel art my seruaunte: thou Jacob art electe, thou art ꝑ sede of Abraham my beloued thou art he whō I led frō the endes of ꝑ earth by the hāde. For I called the frō farre euē frō amōg the gloriouse mē of it, & sayd vnto the. Thou art my seruaūt. I haue chosen the, and not cast the awaye: * be not afrayed, for I am w̄ the. Melt not awaye as ware, for I am thy God, to strēgth the, helpe ꝑ, & to kepe the w̄ this ryght hāde of myne. Beholde, all they that resyst the shall come to cōfusyon & shame: and thyne aduersaries shalbe destroyed & brought to naught. So ꝑ whoso seketh after the, shall not fynde the. Thy destroyers shall perysh, and so shall they ꝑ vndertake to make batayll agaynst the be as that is not, & as a thinge of naught. For I thy Lorde and God will strengthen thy ryght hand. Euen I that saye vnto the. Feare not. I wyll helpe ꝑ Be not afrayde thou lytle worme Jacob, & thou despysed Israel: for I wyll helpe the, sayeth the Lorde, and the holy one of Israel thyne auenger. Beholde, I wyll make ꝑ a treading cart and

cart and a new flayle, that thou mayst thresshe and grinde the mountaynes, and bryngethe hylles to poulder. Thou shalt fanne them and the wynde shall carye them awaye, and the whirlwynde shall scater them. But thou shalt reioyse in the Lorde, and shalt delyte in prayslnge the holy one of Israel.

E * When the thyrsty and poore seke water & fynde none, and when theyr torge is drye of thyrst, I geue it them sayth the Lorde. I * Gene.xvii.c

* Esa.xxxv.b xliii.c.xliiii.a * God of Israel forsake them not. * I bryngeforth floudes in the hylles, and welles in the playne feldes. I turne the wylderness to ryuers, and the dryelande to condyttes of water. I plante in the waste grounde trees of Cedre, Boxe, Myrre and Oliues. And in the dryeI set fyrre trees, Elmes, & hawthornes together. All this do I, that they altogether may se and marcke, perceaue with their hertes and cõsydre, that the hande of the Lorde maketh these thynges, and that the holy one F of Israel bryngeth them to passe. Stande at youre cause (sayeth the Lorde) & bringe forth youre strongest grounde, sayth the kynge of Jacob. Let thẽ bring forth their goddes, and let ther goddes tel vs what shall chaũce here after: yee, let thẽ shewe vs the thynges that are past, what they be: let thẽ declare thẽ vnto vs that we maye take them to herte, and knowe them herafter. Ether, shewe vs thynges for to come, & tel vs what shalbe done herafter: so shall we knowe, that you are goddes do somthing, ether good or bad: so will we both knowledge the same: and tell it out.

G Beholde, ye goddes are of naught, & youre mahynge is of naught, yee abhominable is he * Esa.xlii.a man that hath chosen you. Neuertheles, * I haue waked vp one from the North, and he shall come. And another frõ the East, which shall call vpon my name, & shall treade vpõ princes as vpõ claye, & as the potter treadeth downe the myre. Who declared this from the begynning, and we wyll knowe him. Or frõ the olde tymes, & we will cõsyder, and saye that he is righteous. But there is none that sheweth or declareth eny thing, there is none also that heareth youre wordes. The fyrst is he that shall saye to syon, Beholde, beholde they are present, & to Jerusalẽ it selfe will I geue an Euãgelyste. But when I cõsyder there is not a man amonge thẽ, nor any that can geue counsell, nor that when I examen them that can answer one word. Lo, wicked are they & vayne, & the thinges also that they take in hãd: yee, their ymages are but wynde & vayne thiges.

¶ The. xlii. Chapter.

The commynge of Christ, and hys baptyme.

* Matth.iii.b xvii.a.c.xvii.a BEcholde, * * this is my (Or seruaunte vpon whom I leane, myne electe, In whom my soule is pacifyed. I haue geuen hym my spyrite, that he maye shewe forth iudgement and equitye among the Gentiles. He shall not be an outcrier, ner lyfte vp his voyce, his voyce shal not be heard in the stretes. And a bryssed rede shall he not breake, and the smoking flaxe shall he not quench: but saythfully and truly shall he geue iudgement, not be pensyue nor carefull, that he maye restore ryghteousnes vnto the earth, and the Gentyles also shal kepe his lawes. * For thus sayeth God * Esay.xl. and.xliii.c. the Lorde vnto hym (euen he that made the heauẽs, and spred them abrode, and set forth the earth w̃ her increase: which geueth breath vnto the people that is in it, and spirite to them that dwell therin) I the Lorde haue called the in ryghteousnes, and led the by the hãde. * Therfore wyll I also defende the, and * Esa.xlix.i geue the for a couenaunnt of the people, and to be the * lyght of the Gentiles. That thou * Luke.ii.c mayest open the eyes of the blynde, * let out the * Zach.ix.i prisoners frõ ther bondes & them that syt in darcknesse, out of the dongeon house. Euen I am the Lorde, and this is my name: * And * Psal.xcvii.a my glory wyll I geue to none other, nether myne honourt to grauen ymages. Beholde, olde thinges are come to passe, & new thynges do I declare. And or euer they come, I tell you of them.

* Synge vnto the Lorde, a newe songe of thanckesgeuinge, blowe out his prayse from the ende of the worlde. They that be vpõ the see, and all that is therin, prayse hym, the Iles and they that dwell in them. Let the wylderness with the cyties lifte vp her voyce, the townes also that they of Cedar dwell in. Let thẽ C be glad that syt vpõ rockes of stone, and let them crye downe from the hye mountaynes: ascrybynge glorye vnto the Lorde, and magnifynge hym amonge the Gentyles. The Lorde shall come forth as a gyaũte, and take a stomack to hi lyke as a freth mã of warre. He shall roare & crie, & ouercome hisenemies.

I haue longe holden my peace (sayeth the Lorde) I haue bene styll and refrayned my selfe, but nowe I wyll crye lyke a trauelynge womã, & at once wyll I destroye, and deuoure. I will make wayste both mountayne and hill, & drye vp euery grene thing that groweth theron. I will drye vp the floudes of water, and drincke vp the ryuers. I wyll bring the blinde into a strete, that they knowe not, and lede them into a fote path, that they are ignorannt in. I shall make darcknesse lyght before them, and the thynge that is croked to be streyght. These thinges haue I done vnto them, and not forsaken them: * They are * Esa.xlviii fallẽ backe yee, and let them be ashamed earnestly, that hope in Idoles, & saye to fachyoned ymages: ye are oure goddes.

D Heare, O ye deafe men, and sharpe youre * Matth.xiii eyghtes to se (O ye blinde.) * Who is blinde, but my seruaũt? Or so deafe, as my messaũger, whom I sent vnto them? For who is the rule

so blynde (saye they) as the perfecte man and so blynde as the Lordes seruaũte? Thou vnderstondest moch, and kepest nothynge: the eares are open, & no man heareth. The Lorde is merciefull vnto thē for his ryghteousnesse sake: that his worde myght be magnifyed ād praysed. But the people them selues is robbed and trodē vnder the fote chayned in dongeons and they all (I saye) be shut into prison houses. * They be caryed awaye captiue and no man doth lowse thē: They be troden vnder fote, and no mā doth laboure to bring them agayne. * But who is he amonge you, ỹ ponderyth this, that consyderyth it, & taketh it for a warnynge in tyme to come?

* Who suffred Jacob to be troaden vnder fote, and Israell to be spoyled? Dyd not the Lord? Because we haue synned agaynst him & haue had no delyte to walke in his wayes, nether bene obedient vnto his lawe. Therfore hath he poured vpon hym hys wrathfull displeasure, and stronge battayll, which fyreth hym on euery syde, yet wyll he not vnderstande. He burneth hym vp, yet syncketh it not into hys herte.

¶The.xliii.Chapter.

¶ God promyseth to send hys Christ, which shall deliuer hys people. He forgeuith synnes for hys awne sake.

A BVt nowe, the Lorde that made the O Jacob, and he that fashyoned the: O Israel, sayeth thus: * feare not, for I haue redemed the. * I haue called the by name: thou art myne awne. * yf thou goest thorow the water, I wilbe with the, that the stronge floudes shulde not pluck the awaye. * And yf thou walckest thorowe the fyre, it shall not burne the, and the flame shall not kyndle vpō the. For I am the Lord thy God the holy one of Israel, thy Sauioure. I gaue Egypte for thy deliueraunce, the Mozians & the Sabees for the: because thou wast deare in my syght, and because I set by the, and lo-ued the. I wyll geue ouer all men for the, and delyuer vp all people for thy sake, feare not: for I am with the. * I wyll bringe thy sede frō the East, and gather the together frō the west. I wyll saye to the North, lett go. And to the South, kepe not backe: & but bring me my sonnes from farre, and my daughters frō the endes of ỹ worlde. Namely, all those that be called after my name. For them haue I created, fashyoned, & made for myne honour.

* Bringe forth that people, which is blinde & yet hath eyes, which are deafe although they haue eares. * If all nations come in one and be gathered together, which amonge thē shall declare soche thynges, and tell vs what is to come? Let them bringe theyr witnesse so shall they be fre: els, let them heare, and saye, it is truth. You are my witnesses (sayth the Lorde) and my seruaunt, whom I haue chosen: therfore be certified ād geue me faithfull credence: and consydre, * that I am he, before whom there was neuer any God, and that ther shalbe none after me. I am euen, I am the only Lorde & beside me ther is no Sauioure. I gaue warninge, I made whole I taught you when there was no straunge God amonge you. And this recorde must ye beare me youre selues, (sayth the Lord) that I am God. And euen he am I from the begynnynge, and * there is none that can take any thynge out of my hande. I do the worke and who shall be able to let it.

Thus sayeth the Lorde the holy one of Israel youre redemer: * for youre sake I haue sent to Babylon, and brought downe ỹ strōgest of them. All they are fugityue with the Chaldees that boost them of theyr shyppes: Euen I the Lorde youre holy one which haue made Israel, and am youre kynge. Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde (* euen he that maketh a waye in the * see, & a footpath in the myghty waters: * which bringeth forth ỹ charettes & horses, the hoste & the power of warre, that they may fall and neuer ryse, and be extincte, lyke as towe is quenched.

Remembre not thynges of olde, and regarde nothinge that is past. Beholde I shall make a newe thynge, and shortly shall it appeare, & shall you not knowe it: I wyll make stretes in the deserte, and ryuers of water in the wyldernes: The wylde beastes shall worshyppe me: the dragons, and the yonge Estriches. * For I shall geue water in the wyldernes, and streames in the desert: that may geue drincke to my people, whō I chose. Thys people haue I made for my self, and they shall shewe forth my prayse. For thou (Jacob) wouldest not call vpon me, but thou haddest an vnlust towarde me, O Israel. Thou gauest me not thy beastes for burnt offeringes nether dydest honour me with thy sacrifyces. Thou boughtest me no deare spyce with thy money, nether couredest the fat of thy sacrifyces vpō me. * howbeit I haue not bene chargeable vnto the in offeringes, nether greuous in incēse. But thou hast ladē me with thy synnes, & weryed me with thyne vngodlynes.

* Where as I yet, euē I am he onely, that for myne awne selfes sake do awaye thyne offēces, and forget thy synnes: so that I will neuer thincke vpon them. Put me now in remembraunce (for we wyll reason together) and shewe what thou hast for the, to make the ryghteous. * Thy fyrst father offended sore, and thy rulers haue synned agaynst me. Therfore I ether sulpēded, or slue the chefest prynces. I dyd curse Jacob, and gaue Israel into reproffe.

¶The.xliiii.Chapter.

¶Christ

¶ Christ promyseth to deliuer his chosen.

2 SO heare nowe, O Jacob my ſeruaunt, and Iſrael whō I haue choſen. For thus ſayth the Lord, that made the, faſhyoned ſ, and helped the, euen from thy mothers wombe. Be not afrayed, O Jacob my ſeruaunt, thou ryghteous, whō I haue choſen. * For I ſhall powre water vpon the drye grounde, & ryuers vpon the thurſtye. * I ſhall poure my ſpirite vpon thy ſede, and myne encreaſe vpon thy ſtock. They ſhall growe together, lyke as ſ graſſe, and as the wyllowes by the waters ſyde. ☞ One ſhall ſaye: I am the Lordes. Another ſhall call hym ſelfe after the name of Jacob. The thyrde ſhall ſubſcribe with hys hande vnto the Lorde, and gene him ſelf vnder the name of Iſrael.

* Eſa.xxxv.b xli.c.xliii.c.

* Eſay.xxxii.b Joel.ii.f. Actes.ii.b.

☞

5 Thus hath the Lorde ſpoken: euen the kynge of Iſrael, and his redemer, the Lorde of hoſtes: * I am the fyrſt and the laſt, and without me is there no God. Yf any be lyke me, lett hym call forth the thynge paſte and openly ſhewe it, and laye it playne before me what hath chaūſed ſynce I apoynted ſ people of the worlde, and what ſhall be ſhortly or what ſhall come to paſſe, in tyme longe to come, let them ſhewe thes thynges. Be not abaſhed nor afrayde. For haue not I euer tolde you hytherto, and warned you? Ye can beare me recorde youre ſelues. Is there any God excepte me? or any maker, that I ſhulde not knowe hym?

* Eſay.xliii.a. Apoca.i.b Eſay.xlviii.c Apoca.xxi.c. Eſay.xliii.b.

All caruers of Images are but vayne, & the carued ymages that they loue, can do no good. They muſt beare recorde the ſelues, that (ſeynge they can nether ſe nor vnderſtande) they ſhalbe confounded. * Who darre the make a God, or faſhyon an ymage, that is profytable for nothynge? * Beholde, all the felowſhyppe of them muſt be brought to cōfuſyon. And truly all the worke maſters of them ar men, they ſhall all be gathered to gyther, they ſhall ſtande, trēble, and be confounded one with a nother. The ſmith maketh an axe, and tempereth it with hoate coales, and faſhyoneth it with hāmers, and worketh vp it with all the ſtrength of hys armes: yee, ſometyme he is faynt for very hunger, and ſo thurſtye, that he hath no more power. The carpenter (or ymage caruer) taketh meaſure of the tymbre: and ſpreadeth forth his lyne: he marketh it with ſome colour. he playneth it, he rulleth it, and ſquareth it, and maketh it after the ymage of a man, and accordyng to the bewty of a man: ſ it maye ſtande in the temple.

* Eſay.xliii.b

* Dt.xxvii.b. Baſil.xiv.c.

¶ Moreouer, he goeth oute to hewe downe Cedre trees. He bryngeth home Elmes and Okes: and takynge a bolde corage, he ſeleeth out the beſt tymbre of the woodde. he him ſelfe hath planted a pyne tree, which the rayne hath ſwelled, which woodd ſerueth for men to burne. Of this he taketh and warmeth hym ſelfe withall: he maketh a fyre of it to bake breade. And after warde maketh a God there of, to honoure it: & an Idole to knele before it. One pece he burneth in ſ fyre, with another he roſteth fleſh, that he maye eate roſte pig & be ly full: with the thyrde he warmeth him ſelf, and ſayeth: Aha, I am well warmed, I haue bene at the fyre. And of the reſidue he maketh hi a God, & an Idole for him ſelfe. He kneleth before it, he worſhippeth it, he prayeth vnto it, & ſayeth: delyuer me, for thou art my God.

* Yet men nether conſydre nor vnderſtande, becauſe they? eyes are ſtopped, that they cannot ſe: and their hertes, that they cannot perceaue. They pondre not in they? myndes, for they haue nether knowledge ner vnderſtandynge, to thincke thus. I haue brent one pece in the fyre. I haue baked bread with the coles there of, I haue roſted fleſh with all, & eaten it: ſhall I nowe of the reſydue make an abhominable Idole, and fall downe before a rotten pece of wood? Thus he doth but leſe hys laboure, and hys herte which is diſceaued, doth turne hym aſyde: ſo that none of them can haue a free cōſcience to thincke: maye not I erre?

* Eſa.xl.

D

Conſydre thys (O Jacob and Iſrael) for thou art my ſeruaunt. I haue made the, that thou myghteſt ſerue me. O Iſrael, forget me not. * As for thyne offences, I haue dryuen them awaye lyke the cloudes, and thy ſynnes as the myſt. Turne the agayne vnto me, for I haue redemed the.

* Eſay.xliv.

Reioyſe ye heauens, whō the Lorde hath made for the Lorde hath dealte graciouſly w hys people, let all that is here beneth vpon ſ earth, be ioyfull. Reioyſe ye mountaynes and woddes, with all the trees therof: for ſ Lorde hath redemed Jacob, and wyll ſhewe hys glory vpon Iſrael. Thus ſayth the Lord thy redemer, euē he that faſhyoned the from thy mothers wombe. * I the Lorde, do all thynges my ſelfe alone. I only ſpreade out the heauens and I only haue layde the foundacyō of the earth by myn awne ſelfe. I deſtroye the tokes of witches, and make the Sothſayers fooles. As for the wyſe, I turne them backwarde, and make they? conning folyſhneſſe.

* Gene.i.a Eſay.xl.

He doth ſet vp the purpoſe of his ſeruaūte, and fulfyllyeth the councell of his meſſaungers Concernynge Jeruſalem, he ſayeth: It ſhalbe inhabited. And of the cyties of Juda: They ſhalbe buylded agayne, and I will repayre they? decayed places. He ſayeth to the groūde: be dryc. And I will dryc vp thy waterſloudes. he ſayeth of Cyrus. ☞ He is myne herdman: ſo that he ſhall fulfyll all thynges after my will. He ſayeth alſo of Jeruſalem: It ſhall be buylded, and of the temple: It ſhalbe faſt grounded.

D

¶ The.xlv. Chapter.

¶ The

¶ The deliuerance of the people by Cyrus. The comynge of Christ and callynge of the Gentyles.

THus sayeth the Lord vnto Cyrus his anoynted whom I haue taken by ꝑ ryght hãde, to subdue natiõs before hi. * I wyll lowse the gyrdle of kynges, & I wyll open ꝑ gates before his face, and not to shut their dores. I will go before the, and make the croked streyght, I shall breake the brasen dores, & burst the yron barres. I shall geue the ꝑ hyd treasures, & the thynge which is secretly kept: ꝑ thou mayest knowe that I am ꝑ Lorde God of Israel which haue called the by thy name: & * that for Jacob my seruauntes sake, & for Israel my chosen. For I called the by thy name, and ordeyned the or euer thou knewest me. * Euẽ I the Lord before whõ there is none other: for without me ther is no God. ✣ I haue prepared the or euer thou knewest me, that I myght be knowne frõ the ryling of ꝑ sunne to the goynge downe of the same, that all is nothynge without me. For I am ꝑ Lorde, and there is els none: It is I ꝑ * created the lyght & darckenes. * I make peace and trouble: yee, euẽ I the Lorde do all these thinges. ✣ Ye heauens frõ aboue drop downe, & let the cloudes rayne ryghteousnes. The earth open it selfe, and bringe forth health, that therby righteousnes maye flourysh. Euen I the Lorde bringe it to passe.

* Wo be vnto him ꝑ stryueth wt his maker, the potsherde with the potter. Sayeth ꝑ clay to the potter. What makest thou: or thy worke serueth for nothing? Wo be vnto him that sayeth to hys father. Why begettest ꝑ? And to his mother: why bearest thou? Thus sayeth the Lorde, euen the holy one, & maker of Israel. Aske me of thynges for to come, cõcernynge my sonnes: and put me in remẽbraunce, as touching the worckes of my hãdes. I haue made the earth, and created man vpõ it. With myne handes haue I spred forth heauen, and geuen a commaundement for all the hoost therof. I shal wake him vp with ryghteousnes, and order all his wayes. * he shall buylde my cytie, and let out my prisoners: & that nether for gyft nor rewardes, sayeth the Lord of hoostes. Thus sayeth the Lord. The occupiers of Egypt, the marchauntes of the Morians and Sabees, shall come vnto the with tribute, they shalbe thyne, they shall followe the, and go with cheynes vpõ their fete. They shall fall downe before the, and make supplicacyon vnto the. For God (without whom there is none other God) shalbe with the. * O howe prfounde art ꝑ O God, thou God and Sauioure of Israel? Confounded are they all, and put to dishonoure: they are gone hence together with shame, euen ꝑ makers of ymages. But Israel shalbe saued in ꝑ Lorde, which is the euerlastinge saluacyõ. Ye shall not come to shame ner confusyon, worlde without ende.

For thus sayeth the Lord: * euen he that created heauẽ, the God that made the earth, that fashyoned it, and sett it forth. He dyd not make it for naught, but to be enhabited: Euen I the Lorde, without whom there is none other. * I haue not spokẽ secretly, nether in darcke places of the earth. It is not for naught, that I sayde vnto the sede of Jacob: seke me. I am the Lorde, which when I speake, declareth the thing that is righteous & true: gather you & come together, draw nie hyther, you ꝑ are escaped of the people. * haue they eny vnderstandynge, that set vp the stockes of theyr Idols, & praye vnto a God, that cãnot helpe them? draw nye, come hyther, and let thẽ aske councell one at another and shewe forth. What is he, that tolde thys before? or, who spake of it euer sence the begynning? haue not I the Lord done it? * wt- out whom there is none other God? the true God and Sauioure, and ther is els none but I? ✣ And therfore turne you vnto me (all ye endes of the earth) that ye maye be saued: for I am God, & there is els none. I sweare by my selfe: oute of my mouth cõmeth the worde of ryghteousnesse, and that maye no mã turne: * but all knees shall bowe vnto me, and all tunges shall sweare by my name, saying. Verely, in the Lord is my ryghteousnes and strength. To him shal men come: but all they that thincke scorne of him, shalbe confoũded. And the whole sede of Israel shalbe iustified and make their boast in the Lorde.

¶ The. xlvi Chapter.

¶ Idolatrye is reproued. The health that commeth by Christ is prophesyed.

BEll ✣ is fallẽ, Nabo is brokẽ downe: whose ymages were a burthen for the beastes and catell, to ouerlade them, and to make them weery. They are soncke downe, and fallen together: for they maye not ease them of theyr burthẽ, therfore must they go into captiuitie.

Herken vnto me, O house of Jacob, and all ye that remayne yet of the houshold of Israel: whom I haue borne from youre mothers wombe, and brought you vp frõ youre byrth, tyll ye were growẽ. I, I, which shall beare you vnto youre last age. I haue made you, I wyll also norysh you, beare you and saue you. * Whom wyll ye make me lyke or to whom wyll ye make me equall or cõpare me that I shulde be lyke hym, in fashyon or ymage, that I maye be lyke him? * Ye fooles (no doute) wyll take out syluer & golde oute of youre purses, and weye it, & hyre a goldsmyth to make a God of it, that men maye knele downe and worshyppe it. * Yet must he be take on mennes shoulders & borne, and set in his place, that he maye stande and not moue out of his place. Alas, yͤ shuld crye vnto

✣ Gene.i.a.
* Exod.xx.c.
D
* Esa.xliii.f Baruc.iii.c.
* Esa.xlvi.b.
✣ Esa.xliij.b
* Ro.xiiii.b. philip.ii.a.
✣ Bel.c. 1.Regũ.xb.a. Jerempe.l.a.
B
* Exod.xx.a.
* Ero.xxxii.a
C
* Esa.xliiii.c Baruc.vi.c.

crie vnto him which geueth no answere: and delyuereth not the man that calleth vpō him, from hys trouble.

Consyder this well, and be ashamed. Go into youre awne selues (O ye runnagates.) Remēber the thynges which are past, sence ỹ begynninge of the worlde: that I am God & that there is els no God, yee & that there is nothinge, lyke vnto me. In the begynnynge of a thynge. I shewe the ende therof: & I tell before, thinges that are not yet come to passe. Myne deuice standeth, stedfastly stablyshed, & * Esay.xlvi.a I fulfyll all my pleasure. * I call a byrde out of the East, & the mā by whō my counsell shall be fulfylled out of farre countrees, as soone as I thincke to deuise a thynge, I do it.

Heare me, O ye ỹ are of an hye stomacke, but farre from ryghteousnesse, I shall bringe forth my ryghteousnes. It is not farre, & my health shall not tary lōge awaye. I wyll laye health in Sion, and in Israel my glory.

¶ The.xlvii. Chapter.

¶ The worde of the Lorde Against Babylon.

A Bvt as for the (O daughter, ỹ vyrgyn Babilon) sytt thou downe in the dust syt vpō the grounde, & not in a throne (O thou mayden of Caldea.) Thou shalt no more be called tender & pleasaunt. ☞ Bring forth the querne, & grinde meale, vntrusse thy broyded heare, put of thy shoes, make bare thy knees & wade thorowe ỹ water ryuers.

* Esa. xlvi.b. Iaum.iii.a. * Thy shame shalbe discouered and thy vyntryes shalbe seue. For I wyll auenge me of the & wyll shewe no mercy to the as, I do to other men sayeth oure redemer, which is called ỹ Lorde of hoostes the holy one of Israel.

B Sytt styll, holde thy tunge, and get the into some darcke corner (O daughter Chaldea) for thou shalt nomore be called lady of kyngdomes. I was so wroth vō my people, that I punished myne enheritaunce, and gaue them into thy power. * Neuertheles, ỹ shewedest thē no mercy, but euen the very aged men of them, dydest thou oppresse ryght sore with thy yoch, and thou thoughtest thus: I shalbe lady for euer. And beside all that, thou hast not regarded these thynges, nether remembred what was the ende of that cytie Ierusalem. Heare now therfore, thou wylfull, that sittest so careles, and speakest thus in thyne herte: * I am alone, and without me is there none: I shall neuer be wydowe, ner desolate agayne. And yet both these thynges shall come to the vpō one daye in the twynclinge of ¶ an eye: † Namely, wyddowhead, and desolacyon. They shall myghtely fall vpon the, for the multitude of thy witches, and for the greate heape of thy coniurers. For thou hast trusted in thy wickednes, and hast sayd.

* Eccl.viii.c. * No man seyth me. Thyne awne wysdome and coonyng hath deceaued the. In that thou hast sayde: I am alone and without me ther is none. Therfore shall trouble come vpon the, and thou shalt not knowe, from whence it shall aryse. Myschefe shall fall vpon the, which thou shalt not be able to put of. A sodayne vtter destruction, shall come vpon the or euer thou be aware.

Nowe go to thy coniurers, & to the multitude of thy wytches (with whom thou hast wered thy selfe frō thy youth) yf they maye helpe the, or strengthen the. Thou hast hytherto had many councels of them, so let the heauen gasers and the beholders of starres and mone prophetes come on nowe and delyuer the: yee, and lett thē shewe, when these newe thinges shall come vpon the. Beholde, they shalbe lyke strawe, whith yf it be kyndled with fyre, no man mayerydde it for the vehemencye of the flame. And yet it geueth no synders to warme a man by, ner cleare fyre to syt by. Thus are they with whō thou hast wery ed thy selfe, and thus are thy marchauntes that haue bene with the from thy youth. Euery one hath taken his awne waye and shall none of them defende the.

¶ The.xlviii. Chapter.

¶ The ypocrysy of the Iewes to reproued. The Lorde alone wirbe worshipped, which hath chosen vs, and which socoureth vs for his awne sake.

H Eare this, O thou house of Iacob: ye that are called by the name of Israel, ād are come out of one stocke with Juda: which sweare by the name of the Lorde, and beare witnes by the God of Israel (but not with trueth and ryght) which are called * fremen * Esay.lxi. of the holy cytie, & are groūded vpō the God of Israel, † whose name is ỹ Lord of hoostes. † Esay.li. and.liij.a Iere.xxxi.

The thinges that I shewed you euer sence the begynnynge haue I not brought them to passe, immediatly as they came out of my mouth, and declared them, and they are come. Howbeit, I knowe that thou art obstinate, and that thy neck hath an yron veyne, & that thy browe is of brasse. Neuertheles, I haue euer sence the begynninge shewed the of thinges for to come, and declared thē vnto the, or euer they came to passe: that ỹ shuldest not saye, myne Idol hath done it, my carued or molten ymage hath shewed it. Thou herdest it before, and beholde, It is come to passe, and whether can ye prophecye of thynges to come? But as for me, I tolde the before at the begynnynge, newe and secret thynges, that thou knowest not of. * And some done nowe, not of olde tyme, wherof thou neuer herdest before they were brought to passe: ỹ thou canst not saye: Beholde, I knewe of them: Moreouer, there be some wherof ỹ hast nether hearde ner knowne, nether haue they bene opened vnto thyne eares afore tyme. For I knewe that thou woldest maliciously offende, therfore haue I called the a trāsgressour, euen from thy mothers wombe.

* Esa.xlv. xlvij.c

Neuerthe-

Neuertheles, for my names sake, I will wdzawe my wzath: & it shalbe for myne honours sake, yt I pacientlye forbeare the, and do not rote ꝑ out. Beholde, I haue pourged
the, yet not as siluer. * I haue chosen the in ꝑ fyer of affliccyon: and that onelye for myne awne sake: yee, * euē for myne awne sake will I do this: or els, what dishonour wolde they do to my name? Herken vnto me, O Jacob, and Israel whom I haue called, I am he. I am euen he that is, I am the fyrst & the last.
My hande hath layde the foundacyon of the earth: and my right hande hath spāned ouer
the heauens. I alone as I call them they are there. Gather you all together, and herken:
Which of yonder goddes hath declared this?
The Lorde hath a loue ☞ vnto him, and he shall perfourme hys will agaynst Babel, & declare hys power agaynst the Chaldees. I my selfe alone, euen I haue told you this before. Yee, I dyd call hym & bringe hym forth:
and he shall geue a prosperous iorney. Come nye and heare thys: haue I spoken eny thing
darckly, sens the begynnynge? when a thyng
beginneth, I am there.

Wherfore, the Lorde God and hys spryte hath sent me. And thus sayth the Lord God thy redemer, the holy one of Israel: I am the Lorde thy God, which teach the * profitable
thynges, and leade the the waye, that thou shuldst go. * O that thou hadst regarded my commaundementes, then had thy welthy-nes bene as the water streame: and thy righ-teousnes as the waues flowynge in the see:
Thy seede also had be like as the sande in the
see, and the frute of thy body lyke ꝑ grauelle stones therof. His name shulde not be roted out: nor destroyed before me. * Go awaye
frō Babilon, flye frō the Chaldees wt a mery voyce speake of this, declare it abroade, and go forth vnto the ende of the worlde, saye:
The Lorde hath redemed hys seruaunt Jacob, that they suffred no thurst, he lead them
thorow the wildernes, and caused ꝑ waters
to flowe out vnto them frō out of the roche.
* he claue the roche a sonder, and the water gushed out. * As for the vngodly, they haue no peace, sayth the Lorde.

¶ The .xlix. Chapter.

¶ Christ shall gather together all nacyons, be they neuer so farre of.

HEre ye yles, herken vnto me, & take heede ye people from farre. The Lorde hath called me fro my birth, and made mēcyon of my name fro my mothers wombe:
☞ he * hath made my mouth * like a sharpe swerde: vnder the shadowe of hys hāde hath
he defended me, and hyd me in hys quyuer ☞ as a good arowe, & sayd vnto me. Thou art my seruaunt Israel, ↑ I wilbe honoured
in the. Then answerde I: I haue lost my laboure, I haue spent my strength in vayne.
Neuertheles, I will cōmyt my cause and my wozcke vnto the Lorde my God. And nowe sayth the Lorde, euen he that fashyoned me
fro my mothers wombe to be his seruaūte, ꝑ
I maye bryng Jacob agayn vnto him: howbeit, Israel wyll not be gathered vnto hym agayne. In whose sight I am greate, which also is my Lorde, my God and my strength.
And he sayde: It is but a small thinge that ꝑ
art my seruaunt, to sett vp the hynredes of Jacob, and to restore the destruccyon of Israel. * For I haue made the the light of the Gentyls, that thou mayst be my healeth vn-
to the ende of the worlde.

Moreouer, thus sayth the Lorde the aun-cyent and holy one of Israel: because of the ab-
horynge and despysynge amonge the Gentiles, concerning the seruaunt of all them that beare rule. Kynges and princes shall se, and aryse and worshyp, because of the Lord that is faythfull: & because of the holy one of Israel, which hath chosen the. And thus saith ꝑ Lorde: * In the tyme accepted haue I heard the, and in the daye of saluacion haue I helped the. * I will preserue the and make the to be the atonement of the people, that ꝑ mayst
helpe vp the earth agayne: & possesse agayne
the desolate herytages. * That thou mayest
saye to the presoners: go forth, and to them
that are in darcknesse: come into the lyght, ☞ they shall fede in the hye wayes, and get their pasture in all hye places. * They shall nether höger, ner thurst: heate nor sunne shall not hurte them. For he that fauoureth them, shall leade the, and geue them drynche of the springe welles. I will make wayes vpō all my mountaynes, and my fote pathes shalbe exalted. And beholde, they shall come frō far:
lo, some from the north and west, some from
the lande of Sinis, which is in the south.
* Reioyse ye heauens: & synge prayses, thou earth. Talke of ioye ye hylles, for God hath comforted hys people, and wyll haue mer-
cye vpon his that be in trouble.

But Sion sayde: * God hath forsaken, & my Lorde hath forgotten me. Wyll a wyfe forget the childe of her wombe, and not pitie
the sonne whō she hath borne? And though they do forget, yet will not I forget ꝑ. Be-holde, I haue written the vp vpō my hādes, thy walles are euer in my syght. ☞ They make haste to buylde the vp agayne. As for those that ouerthrowe the, and made the waste, they shall departe from the. * Lyft vp thyne eyes, and loke about the: all these gather the together, & come to the. As truly as I lyue (sayth the Lord) thou shalt put them
all vpon the, as an apparell, & gyrde them to the as a bryde doth her iewels. As for thy lād that lyeth desolate wasted and destroyed: it shalbe to narowe for the that shall dwell in
it. And they ꝑ wolde deuoure the, they shalbe farre awaye. Then the childe whō the baren shall bringe forth vnto ꝑ, shall saye in thyne eare: thys place is to narowe, gyue place ꝑ I maye haue rowme. Then shalt thou thynke by thy selfe: Who hath begotten me these? seinge I am baren and alone, a captyue and an out cast? And who hath nozyshed thē vp for me? I am desolate and alone, but from whence come these?

And therfore thus sayth the Lorde God: Behold, I wyll stretch out myne hande to ꝑ Gentyls, and set vp my token to the people. They shall bring the thy sonnes in their lappes: and carye thy daughters vnto the vpon their shoulders. For kinges shalbe thy nurslyng fathers, and quenes shalbe thy nursing mothers. They shall fall before the wt their faces flatt vpon the earth: and lycke vp the dust of thy fete: that thou mayst knowe how that I am the Lorde. * And who so putteth his trust in me, shall not be cōfounded. Who spoyled the gyaūte of his praye? or who taketh the prisoner frō the mightye? And therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde. The prisoners shalbe taken from the gyaūte, and the spoyle delyuered from the violente: for I wyll mayntayne thy cause agaynst thyne aduersaryes, and saue thy sonnes. And wyll fede thyne enemyes with theyr awne flesche, and make them dryncke of their awne bloude, as of swete wyne. And all flesch shall knowe, O Jacob, that I am the Lorde thy sauiour, thy noble redemer.

G
* Ecclus.xlvi.b

¶ The.l. Chapter.

¶ The Jewes are reproued, and sith called.

Thus sayth ꝑ Lord: * ☞ where is ꝑ byll of your mothers deuorcement, that I sent her awaye? or who is ꝑ vsurer, to whō I solde you? * Behold, for your awne offences are ye solde, & because of youre transgression, is youre mother forsake. For why wolde no mā receaue me, when I came: and when I called, no mā gaue me answere. * Is my hande shortened that it might not helpe? or haue I not power to deliuer? lo, * at a worde I dryncke vp the see, and of water floudes I make drye lāde: so that for want of water, the fysshe corrupt and dye for thurst. * I clothe heauen, I clothe it with darcknesse, and put as it were a sack vpon it.

I
* Jere.iii.a
☞
* Esa.liii.a
* Ecclus.xl.a
B
1 Esd.viii.a
* Josua.iii.b
* Esa.x.c

The Lorde God hath geuē me a well lerned tonge, * so that I can conforte thē which are troubled: yee, and that in due season. He waketh myne eare vp by tymes in ꝑ morninge: by tymes in the morninge, I saye, he will waken myne eare, that I myght herke as to ꝑ scole maisters. * The Lord God hath opened myne eare, therfore can I nott saye, naye: nor withdraw me fro him: * but I offre my backe vnto the smyters, & my cheekes to the nippers. * I turne not my face frō shame and spitteng, & the Lord God shall helpe me: therfore shall I not be cōfounded. I haue hardened my face like a flynt stone, for I am sure, ꝑ I shall not come to cōfusiō. He is at hād that iustifieth me, who will then go wt me to lawe? Let vs stande one against another: yf there be any ꝑ wyll reason with me, let hym come here forth to me. * Beholde, the Lorde God standeth by me, what is he then ꝑ can cōdempne me? lo, * they shalbe all like as an olde clothe, the mothe shall eate them vp.

* Esa.l.a
* Esa.xl.b
* Esa.li.b

Therfore, whoso feareth the Lord amōg you, let him heare the voyce of his seruaunt, Whoso walketh in darcknesse, and no lyght shyneth vpon him, lett hym put his trust in the name of the Lorde, and holde him by his God. But take hede, ☞ ye all kyndle a fyre of the wrath of God, and sterre vp the coales: walke on in the glistering of your awne fyre & in ꝑ coales ꝑ ye haue kindled. This cometh vnto you fro my hāde, namely that ye shall slepe in sorowe.

¶ The.li. Chapter.

¶ Consolacyon & exhortyt to prompt vnto the faythfull.

Herken vnto me, ye ꝑ holde of righteousnes, & ye that seke the Lorde. Take hede vnto ꝑ stone, wherout ye are hewen, & to the graue wherout ye are dygged. Consider * Abraha your father, & Sara ꝑ bare you: howe ꝑ * I called him alone, & blessed hym, and encreased him. Therfore shall the Lorde cōforte Syō, & repayre all her decaye: making her desarte as a paradise, & her wildernesse as ꝑ garde of the Lorde. Ioye and lope shalbe founde there, thākesgeuing & ꝑ voyce of prayse. Haue respect vnto me ttt, O my people both hygh & lowe & laye thyne eare to me: * for a lawe & an ordinaūce shall go forth fro me, to lyghte the Gentils. It is hard by, that my health & my righteousnes shall go forth, and the people shalbe ordred with myne arme.

I
* Gene.xii.a
* Esa.xxxv.a
* Ecclus.xl.a
B
* Esa.li.a

The plandes, ꝑ is the Gentils, shall hope in me, and put their trust in myne arme. Lift vp your eyes to warde heauen, and lehe vpō the earth beneth. * For the heauēs shall vanyshe awaye lyke smoke, and the earth shall ware olde lyke a cloth, & they ꝑ dwell therin shall perysh in lyke maner. But my saluacio shall endure for euer, and my righteousnesse shall not ceasse. Herken vnto me, ye that haue pleasure in righteousnes, ꝑ people ꝑ * beareth my lawe in thyne hert. * Feare not the curse of men: be not afrayde of their blasphemyes and reuplges: * for wormes & mothes shall eate thē vp lyke cloth & woll. But my righteousnes shall endure for euer, & my sauynge health frō generacion to generacyon. Wake vp, wake vp: and be stronge. O thou arme of the Lorde, wake vp, lyke as in tyme past, euer and sterre the worlde beganne.

C
* Esa.xxxiii.a
* Esa.xxxvii.a
* Esa.xl.a
* Esa.xlvi.b

Art

D

* Art not thou the same arme, that hast wounded the proude Egypte, and hewen the dragon in peces? Art not þ cut he, which hast dryed vp the depe of the see, which hast made playne þ see grounde, þ the delyuered myght goo thorow? Therfore þ redemed of þ Lord shall turne agayne, & come wyth ioye vnto
Sion, there to endure for euer: * That myrth & gladnesse myght be with the: that sorowe
and wo myght flie from them: * Yet I, I am euen he, that all thynges greueth you con-solacyon. What art thou then, that feareste a mortall mã, the chylde of mã, which * goeth
awaye as heeth the floure? And forgetteste þ Lorde that made the, that spred out the hea-
uens, and layde the foundacion of the earth?
But thou art euer afrayde for the fyght of
thyne oppressoure, which is ready to do har-
me: where is the wrath of the oppressoure?
E The tyme commeth on faste whe the prisо-ner shall be loosened, and he shall not dye in the dongeon nor yet be consumed by lamp-herment. * I am the Lorde thy God (that make the see to be styll, & rorage:) * whose name is the Lorde of hostes. * I haue put my wordes in thy mouth, & haue defended the in the shadowe of my hande: that I maye plãte
the heauens, & leye the foũdacyõ of the earth,
and saye vnto Sion: thou art my people.

F Awake, awake, and stande vp, O Jerusalem, thou that from the hãde of the Lord,
hast dronchen out * the cuppe of hys wrath:
thou that hast supped of, and sucked out the
dregges of his deadly cuppe to the botome.
For amõg all the sonnes whõ he hath begotten, there is not one þ maye holde it vp: & not one to leade it by the hande, of all the sonnes
that he hath norysshed. Both these thynges are happened vnto the, but who is sory for it? Yee, destruccyon, wastynge, hunger and swerde: but who wyll cõforte the? Thy son-nes lye comfortles at the heade of euery stre-te lyke a taũe venyson, and are full of the ter rible wrath of the Lorde, and punishment of thy God. And therfore thou miserable and dronchen (howbeit not wyth wyne) heare
this. Thus sayeth thy Lorde: thy Lorde and God, the defender of hys people: Beholde, I wyll take the slombrynge cuppe out of thy hande, euen the cuppe wyth the dregges of my wrath: that frõ hence forth thou shalt neuer drinke it more, but I wyll putt it into their hãde þ trouble þ: whych haue spoken to thy soule: stoupe downe, þ we maye go ouer
the: & thou layedest thy body euen wyth the grounde, and as the strete to go vpon.

¶ The.lij. Chapter.

¶ Cõsolacyon and comforte to the people of God.

A Wake, awake, put on thy strength vn-
to the: put on thyne honest rayment O Jerusalem, thou holy cytie. For frõ hys tyme forth, there shall no
vncircumcysed nor vncleane person come in þ.
Shake the frõ the dust, aryse & stande vp, O
Jerusalem. Plucke out thy neck frõ the bõde:
O þ captyue daughter Sion. For thus sayeth
the Lord: * ye are solde for naught, therfore
shall ye be redemed also without eny mony.

For thus sayeth þ Lorde God: * My people went downe afore tyme into Egypte,
there to be straũgers, * and the kynge of the Assyrias oppressed them wythout anye cause. And nowe what profyte is it to me (sayth
the Lorde) that my people is frely carped awaye, and brought in to bondage by their rulers, * & my name euer styll blasphemed (sayeth þ Lorde)? Therfore that my people maye knowe my name, therfore I say in that daye
they shall knowe it, that I am he þ do spea-
ke. I saye euen I. * O howe beutifull are þ feete of the Embassitoure, þ bryngeth þ message frõ þ mountayne, & proclameth peace: that bryngeth the good tydynges, and preacheth
health, and sayeth vnto Sion: Thy God is þ kynge. Thy watchmen shall lyft vp their voyce: with lowde voyce shall they preach of hym: for they shall * se hym present, whe the Lorde shall conuerte Sion.

* Be glad, with thankes gyuynge. O þ desolate Jerusalẽ, & reioyce together: for the Lorde hath cõforted hys people, he hath delyuered Jerusalẽ. The Lorde hath made bare hys holy arme, and shewed it forth in the syght of all the Gentiles, * & all the endes of the earth haue sene the sauinge health of our God. * Awaye, awaye, get you out frõ hence and touche no vncleane thynge. Go oute from amonge soche. And be cleane, that beare the vessell of the Lorde. For ye shall not escape by rennynge nor by flyght awaye: but
* the Lorde shall go before you, and the God
of Israel shall gather you together.

Beholde, my seruaunt shall deale wysely,
therfore shall he be magnified, exalted & greatly honoured. Lyke as the multitude shall wondre vpõ hym, because hys face shalbe so deformed & not as a mãs face, hys * bewtye lyke no mans: Euen so shall the multitude of the Gentyles loke vnto hym, & kynges shall shut their mouthes before him. * For they þ haue not bene tolde of hi, shall se hym, & they
þ herde nothynge of hym, shall beholde hym.

¶ The.liij. Chapter.

The prophecyeth expressly of the passion of our Sauioure Jesus Christ.

BVt who hath * geuen credẽce vnto the thynge we haue hearde? Or to whom is the arme of the Lord knowne? For he dyd growe before the Lord lyke as a braunche, & as a rote in a drye grounde, * he hath neither beutye nor shuoure. When we shall loke vpon hym, there shalbe no fayrnesse: we shall haue no lust vnto hym. * he is despised & abhorred of men, he is such a man as is full of sorowe & as hath good experience of infir mytes. We haue reckened hym so vyle, that we hyd oure faces from hym, ye he was despised & therfore we regarded him not. Howbeit * he only hath taken on hym oure infyrmitie, & borne our paynes. Yet we hyd iudge

hym, as though he were plaged & cast dowe of God: and punished * where as he (not wythstandynge) was wounded for oure offences, and smytten for oure wyckednes. For ꝑ chastysement of oure peace was layde vpon
hym, and wyth hys strypes are we healed.

* All we, we haue gone all astraye (like shepe) euery one hath turned hys awne way.
But the Lorde hath heaped together vpon
him the iniquitie of vs all. He suffred violēce
and was euell intreated, & hyd not yet open his mouth. * He shalbe led as a shepe to be layne, yet shall he be as styll as a lābe before the shearer, and not open hys mouth. He was had awaye from presōn hys cause not herde, and wythout eny iudgement: Whose generacyon yet who maye nombre? he was cut of from & the grounde of the lyuynge:
Wherfo punyshment dyd go vpon hym, for the transgressyon of my people, wherby in deade had deserued that punyshment, * hys
grane was grue hym wyth the condemned,
and & wyth the ryche man at hys deeth. *
Where as he hyd neuer violēce nor vnryght,
nether hath there bene eny discretfulnesse in
hys mouth.

* Yet hathet pleased the Lorde thus to bruste hym wyth plages, and to smyte hym
wyth infyrmite, that when he had made hys
soule an offeryng for synne, he myght se lōge lastynge sede. And thys deuyce of the Lorde shall prospere in hys hande. With trauayle & laboure of hys soule, shall he optayne frute,
and he shall be satisfyed * by the knowlesdge
of hym wherby is my ryghteous seruaunt be shall iustifye the multitude, for he shall beare awaye their synnes. Therfore wyll I geue hym the multitude for hys parte, and he shall deuyde the spoyle wyth the stronge
because he geueth ouer hys soule to death, *
and is reckened amonge the transgressours,
wherby neuertheles hath take awaye the syn
nes of the multitude, and made intercessyon
for the mysdoers.

¶ The liii. Chapter.

¶ Of the greate dominion of Christ. The instgracyon of God endureth but a short space, but hys mercy is euerlastynge.

BE glad now, * thou barr that ben
eest not, reioyce, synge and be me-
ry thou that art not wyth chylde:
For ꝑ desolate hath moo chyldre,
the the maryed wyfe, sayeth ꝑ Lorde. Make thy tētes wyder, and spre de out the hāgynges of thyne habitacōs: spare not, laye forth
thy coardes, and make fast thy stakes: for ꝑ shalt be multiplied on the ryght syde & on the left, and thy sede shall haue the Gentyles in possessyon and dwell in the desolate cytes.
Feare not, for thou shalt not be confounded:
Be not ashamed, for thou shalt not come to confusyon. Yee & thou shalt forget the shame of thy youth, & shalt not remembre the dis-honoure of thy wedowhead. For he ꝑ made the, shalbe thy Lord * & husbande (whose name is the Lorde of hostes) and thy redemer
shalbe euen the holy one of Israel, the Lorde of the whole worlde. For the Lord hath called the, beynge as a desolate sorowfull woman, & as a younge wyfe that hath bene
her wedlocke: sayeth thy God.

* A lytle whyle haue I forsaken the, but wt
greate mercyfulnes shall I take the vp vnto
me. Whē I was angry, I hydde my face frō
ꝑ for a lytle season, but thorow euerlastinge
mercye haue I pardoned the, sayeth the Lord
thyne auenger. * And this is vnto me as the water of Noe: for lyke as I haue swore ꝑ I wyll not bringe the water of Noe eny more vpon the worlde: * so haue I swore that I
wyll neuer be angry with the, nor rebuke ꝑ:
The mountaynes shall remoue, and the hyl-
les shall fall downe: but my louynge kyndnesse shall not moue, and the bonde of my peace shall not fall downe from the, sayeth the Lorde thy mercyfull louer. Beholde ꝑ pore, ouerwhelmed with tēpest & * wythout cō-forte. I will make thy walles of precyous stones, & thy foundacyō of Saphyres, thy wyn
dowes of Chrystal, thy gates of fyne cleare
stone, & all thy borders of pleasaunt stones.
* Thy children shall all be taught of God, &
I wyll geue thē pietreousnes of peace. In ry-ghteousnes shalt thou be grounded, & be fare from oppressyō: for the whych thou nedest
not be afrayed, nether for hynderaūce, for it shall not come nye the. Beholde, the aleaunt
that was farre from me, shall dwell with ꝑ:
& he that toyneth batayle agenst the shall pe
rishe. Beholde, I make the smith that bloweth the coales in the fyre, & he maketh a wea-pen after hys hādy worcke. I make also the waster to destroye: but all the weapens that are made agaynst the, shall not prospere. *
And as for all tuges, ꝑ shall resyste ꝑ in iud-
gement, thou shalt ouercome them, & cōdēne them. Thys is the heritage of the Lordes ser uaūtes, and their ryghteousnes commeth of me, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The lv. Chapter.

¶ A consolacyon and comforte to the people. The fruyt and profyt of the worde of God.

* Come to the waters all ye, ꝑ
be thursty, and ye that haue no money. Come, bye, ꝑ ye maye haue to eate. Come, bye wyne and mylch, wythout any money, or money worth. Wherfore do ye laye
out

out youre money, for the thynge that feedeth not, & spende youre laboure aboute ꝑ thynge that satisfyeth you not. But herken herken rather vnto me, & ye shall eate of ꝑ best, and youre soule shall haue her pleasure in plenteousnes. Encline your eares, and come vnto me take hede (I saye) & your soule shall lyue. * For I will make an euerlastynge couenaunt wyth you, euē ꝑ sure mercyes of Dauid.

Beholde, I gaue him for a wytnesse amōg the folke, for a prynce and captayne vnto the people. Lo, thou shalt call an vnknowne people: & a people that had not knowledge of the, shall runne vnto the: because of the Lord thy God, and the holy one of Israel, whych glorifyeth ꝑ. Seke the Lorde, whyle he may be founde, and call vpon hym whyle he is nye. * Let ꝑ vngodly man forsake his owne wayes, & the vnrygh teous hys owne ymagynacyons, and turne agayne vnto the Lorde: so shall he be mercyfull vnto hym: and to oure God, * for he is very ready to forgeue. For thus sayeth the Lorde: my thoughtes are not youre thoughtes, and youre wayes are not my wayes, but as farre as the heauens are hyer then the earth, so farre do my wayes exceade yours, and my thoughtes yours. * And lyke as the rayne & showre cōmeth downe from heauē, and returneth not thyther agayne, but watereth ꝑ earth, maketh it frutefull and grene, that it maye geue corne vnto the sower, and breade to hym that eateth. So the worde also that cōmeth out of my mouth shall not turne againe vorde vnto me, but shall accōplyshe my wyll and prospere in ꝑ thynge wherto I sende it. And so shall ye goo forth wt ioye, & be led wt peace. The mountaynes & hylles shall synge wyth you for ioye, & all the trees of the felde shall clappe theyr hādes. For thornes, there shall growe fyrre trees, & the wylde tre in the steade of breers. And thys shall be done to ꝑ prayse of the Lorde, and for an euerlastynge token, that shall not be taken awaye.

¶ The.lvj. Chapter.

¶ An exhortacyon to iudgement and rygh teousnes, & to the spirituall keppynge of the Sabboth. Against hypocrites that denoure theyr flock.

Thus sayeth the Lorde, * kepe equite, and do rygh, for my sauyng health shall come shortly, & my rygh teousnes shalbe opened. Blessed is ꝑ mā that doth thys, and the mans chylde wych kepeth the same. * He that taketh hede, that he vnhalowe not the Sabboth (that is) he that kepeth hym selfe that he do no euel. Then shall not the straūger, which cleaueth to ꝑ Lorde, saye: * Alas, the Lorde hath shut me cleane out frō hys people. Lykewyse shall the * geldeh mā saye: lo, I am a dry tre. For thus sayeth the Lorde, vnto the gelded that kepeth my Sabboth: Namely, that holdeth greatly of the thynge that pleaseth me, and kepeth my couenaunt: Unto them wyll I geue in my housholde and wythin my walles, a better herytage & name, then yf they had bene called sonnes & daughters. * I will geue the an euerlastinge name, ꝑ shall not perish. Agayne the straūgers that flycke to the Lorde, to serue hym, and to loue hys name: * and to be hys seruauntes. And all they, whych kepe the selues, that they vnhalowe not the Sabboth, namely, that they fulfyll my couenaunt: Them wyll I bringe to my holy mountayne, and make them ioyfull in my house of prayer. Theyr burnt offrynges and sacrifyces shalbe accepted vpon myne aulter. * For my house shalbe called an house of prayer for all people.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God whych gathereth togethe the scatred of Israel: I will bringe yet another congregacyon to hym. Come all ye beastes of the felde, that ye may deuoure, all ꝑ beastes of ꝑ wodd. * For hys watchmē are all blynde, they haue all togethe no vnderstandynge, they are all domme dogges, not beynge able to barcke, they are slepy: slogysh are they, and lye snoztynge: they are shamelesse dogges, that be neuer satisfyed. The shepherdes also in lyke maner haue no vnderstandynge, * but euery man turneth his awne waye, euery one after his awne couetousnes wityall hys power. * Come (saye they) I wyll fetch wyne, so shall we fyll oure selues, that we maye be dronken. And do to morowe, lyke as to daye, yee and moche more.

¶ The.lvij. Chapter.

¶ The Iewes are rebuked for theyr iniurye done to Christ.

The * rygh teous perisheth, and no mā regardeth it in hys hert, Good godly people are take away, and no mā consydereth it. Namely, that the rygh teous is cōuayed awaye from the wycked. He commeth into peace, & godlye mē rest in theyr chābres, and before the godly man goeth peace. Come hyther therfore ye charmers children, * ye sonnes of the aduoutrer and the whore: Wherin take ye youre pleasure? Upon whō gape ye with youre mouth, & bleare out youre tonge? Are ye not children of aduoutry, and a sede of dissimulacō? * Ye make youre fyre vnder the okes, and vnder all grene trees, and ye offre chyldren in the valleys, and dennes of stone. Thy parte shalbe with the stony rockes by the riuer: Yee, euē these shall be thy parte. For there ꝑ hast poured meate & drincke offringe vnto them. Shulde I delite in that? Thou hast made thy bed vpon hye mountaynes, thou wentest vp thyther, and there hast thou slayne sacrifices. * Behynde ꝑ dores and postes, hast thou sett vp thy remembraunce.

When thou haddest discouered thy selfe to another then me, when thou wokest downe and made thy bed wyder, and wyth those Idols hast thou made a couenaunt, and louedest their couches, where thou sawest the. C
* Exo.xxxi.b. Deut.vij.a. Thou wentest streyght to kynges wyth * oyle & dyuerse oyntmētes (that is) thou hast sent thy messaungers farre of, & yet art thou fallen into the pyt therby. Thou art weery for the multitude of thyne awne wayes, * Deut.xv.b. yet saydest thou neuer: I wyll leaue of. * Thou hast had ꝑ lyfe ꝑ thy hādes wrought, & therfore thou art carelesse. For when wylt thou be abashed or feare, seynge thou hast broken thy promyse, and remembrest not me, nether hast me in thyne hert? Thynkest thou, that I also wyll holde my peace (as a fore tyme) that thou fearest me not? Yee, verely I wyl declare thy goodnes and thy workes, but they shall not profyt the: when thou cryest, let thy chosen heape deliuer the. But the wynde shall blowe them furth, and vanite shall take the all awey. * Neuertheles, * Roma.xi.c. they that put their trust in me, shall inherit the lande, & haue my holy hyll in possessyon.

And therfore thus he sayeth: * Make playne, make playne, & clense the strete, take vp the stōblynge blockes out of the waye that leadeth to my people. For thus sayeth the hye & excellent, euen he that dwelleth in euerlastynguesse, whose name is the holy one: * I dwell hye aboue and in the sanctuary, and wyth hym also, that is of a cōtrite and humble spyrete do I dwell: ꝑ I maye healc a troubled mynde, and a cōtrite herte. * For I chyde not euer, & am not wroth wyth out ende. But the blastyng goeth from me, and is incluoed in the body, and I made the breath. I am wroth wyth hym for his couetousnes, I smyte him, I hyde me, and am angrye, when he turneth him selfe, & foloweth the by waye of his awne hert. I haue seen his wayes and I heale hym * I leade him and restore to hym cōforte, and to those that were sory for him I make the frutes of thankesgeuynge, that he maye saye. Peace peace * vnto them that are farre of, and to them that are nye, sayth the Lorde, and I make hym whole. But the wycked are lyke the ragynge see, that cānot rest, whose water foameth wyth the myre & grauel. Suche so the * wycked haue no peace, sayeth God.

¶ The lviij. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde (by the mouth of the Prophete) reproueth the people for their fastynges, which were ful of hypocrisye.

Crye * nowe, as loude as ꝑ canst. Leaue not of, lyft vp thy voyce lyke a trōpet, & shewe my people their offences, & the house of Jacob their synnes. For they seke me dayly, & wyll knowe my wayes, euē as it were a people that dyd ryght, and had not forsake the statutes of their God. They argue wyth me concernynge ryghte iudgement, and will be nye vnto God. * Wherfore fast we (saye they) and thou seest it not? we put our lyues to straytenes, and thou regardest it not? * Esa.l.b.

* Beholde, whē ye fast, youre lust remayneth styll: for ye do no lesse wyolence to youre betters: lo, ye fast to stryfe and debate, & to smyte wyth youre fyst without mercy. Now ye shall not fast thus that youre voyce myght be hearde aboue. * Thynke ye this fast pleaseth me, that a man shulde chasten him selfe for a daye, and to wrythe his head aboute lyke an hoope, & to lye vpon the earth in an hary cloth? Shulde that be called fastynge, or a daye that pleaseth the Lorde? Doth not this fastynge rather please me, that thou * loose him out of bondage, that is in thy danger: that thou breake the ooth of wycked bargaynes, that thou lett the oppressed go free, and take from the all maner of burthes: * to deale thy bread to the hongry, & bringe the poore wandringe, home into thy house, when thou sest the naked ꝑ thou couer him, and hyde not thy face from thy neyghboure (and despise not thyne awne flesshe.) * Esa.xlviij.c. Mat.xxv.d. B C

* Then shall thy lyght breake forth as the morninge, & thy healch florysshe ryght shortly: thy righteousnesse shall go before the, and the glory of the Lorde shall embrace the. * Luke.xij.b.

* Then ꝑ thou callest, the Lorde shall answere the: ꝑ thou cryest, he shall saye: here I am. Yee, ꝑ thou layest away frō the thy burthes, and holdest thy fingers, & ceasest from blasphemous talkinge, * ꝑ thou hast cōpassyon vpon the hōgrye, & refreshest the troubled soule: Then shall thy lyght sprynge out in the darknesse, & thy darknesse shalbe as ꝑ noone day. The Lorde shall euer be thy guyde, & satisfie the desyre of thyne herte in ꝑ tyme of drought he, & fyll thy bones wt mary. Thou shalt be lyke a freshe watered garden * & lyke the fountayne of water, ꝑ neuer leaueth rūnynge. Then the places that haue euer bene waste, shalbe builded of the: there shalt thou laye a foundacīō for many kynredes. Thou shalt be called the maker vp of hedges, & the builder agayne of the waye of ꝑ Sabboth. * Psal.xxxvij. D * Esa.lviij.

Yee, ꝑ thou turne thy fete in the * Sabbath, so that thou do not the thynge which pleaseth thy self in my holy daye: & thou call the pleasaunt, holy, and glorious Sabbath of the Lorde, and that thou gyue him the honnour: so that thou do not after thyne awne ymagination, nether leke thyne awne wyll, nor speake thyne awne wordes. Then shalt thou haue thy pleasure in the Lord, and I wyll carye the hye aboue the earth, and fede the wyth the herytage of Jacob thy father: for ꝑ Lordes awne mouth hath so promysed. * Esa.lviij.b.

The

¶ The.lix.Chapter.

¶ Dyē Lorde is myghtye to saue, and readye to heare oure requestes.

BEholde * the Lordes hande is not so shortened that it can not helpe, nether is his eare so stopped that it maye not heare. But * youre mysdedes haue separated you from youre God, & your * synnes hyde his face frō you, that he heareth you not. For youre handes are defyled wyth bloude, & youre fyngers wt vnrighteousnesse: Your lyppes speake lesynges, and youre tonge setteth oute wyckednes. No man regardeth ryghteousnes, and no man iudgeth truly. Euery man hopeth in vayne thynges, and ymagineth disceate * conceaueth weerynesse, and bryngeth forth euell. They brede cockatrice egges, and weaue the spyders webb: Who so eateth of their egges, dyeth. But yf one treade vpon thē, there commeth vp a serpent. Theyr webbe maketh no clothe, and they maye not couer them wyth their labours. Their dedes are vnprofytable dedes of wyckednes, and the worcke of robbery is in their handes. * Theyr fete renne to euell, and they make haste to shed innocent bloude. Theyr counceils are wicked counceils, harme * and destruccyon are in their wayes. But the waye of peace they knowe not. In theyr goinges is no equyte: their wayes are so croked, that whosoeuer goeth theryn, knoweth of no peace.

And this is the cause that equite is so farre from vs, and that righteousnes commeth not nye vs. * We loke for lyght, lo, it is darcknesse: for the morynge shyne, se, we walcke in the dazcke. * We grope lyke the blynde vpon the wall, we grope euen as one yt hath none eyes. We stomble at the none daye, as though it were toward nyght: in the fallynge places, lyke mē that are halfe deed. We roare all lyke Beers, and mourne styll lyke doues. We loke for equyte, but there is none: for healthe, but it is farre from vs. For oure offences are many before the. & oure synnes testifye agaynst vs. Yee, we muste confesse yt we offende, & knowledge that we do amysse: Namely, transgresse & dissemble agaynst the Lorde, and fall awaye from oure God: vsynge presumptuous and traytorous ymaginacyons, and castinge false matters in oure hertes. And therfore is equite gone aside, and ryghteousnes standeth farre of * treuth is fallen downe in the streete, and the thynge that is playne and open, maye not be shewed. Yee, the treuth is taken awaye, and he that refrayneth him selfe from euell, must be spoyled.

Whē the Lord sawe thys, it displeased him sore, yt there was no equite. He sawe also, yt there was no mā, ryghtwise, & he wōdered yt ther was no man to helpe hym. Wherfore he helde hym by his awne power, and he sustayned him by his awne righteousnes. * He put ryghteousnes vpō him for a brest plate, & set the helmet of healthe vpon hys head. He put on wrath in steade of clothynge, & toke gelousy about hym for a cloke: (lyke as whē a man goeth forth wrathfully to recompence hys enemyes, & to be auēged of hys aduersaryes.) Namelye, yt he myght recompence & rewarde the Ilādes, wher thorowe the name of the Lorde myght be feared, frō the rysynge of the Sunne: and hys magesty, vnto the goinge downe of the same.

For he shall come as a violēt waterstreame, whych the wynde of the Lorde hath moued. * But vnto Sion there shall come a redemer, and vnto thē in Jacob that turne frō wyckednesse, sayeth the Lorde. I wyll make thys couenaunt wyth them (sayth the Lorde:) My spirete that is vpō the, and the wordes which I haue put in thy mouth, shall neuer go out of thy mouth, nor out of yt mouth of thy chylders chyldre, frō thys tyme forth for euermore worlde wythout ende sayth yt Lorde.

¶ The.lx.Chapter.

¶ A consolacyō and comforte to Jerusalem.

ARyse vp by tymes, & be bryght, o (Jerusalem) for thy * lyght cōmeth, & the glory of the Lorde is rysen vp vpō the. For lo, whyle the darcknesse & cloude couereth the earth and the people, the Lorde shall shewe yt lyght, & his glory shall be sene in y. * The Gentiles shall come to thy lyght, and kynges to the bryghtnes yt springeth forth vpō the. * Lyft vp thyne eyes, & loke rounde aboute the: All these gather thēselues, & come to the. Thy Sonnes shall come vnto the frō farre, and thy daughters shall gather thēselues to the on euery syde. Then thou shalt se thys: and be glorious, thou shalt maruell exceadyngly, and thyne hert shalbe opened: when the abundaunce of the see shalbe conuerted vnto the (that is) when the ryches of the Gentiles shall come vnto the. The multitude of Camels shall couer the, the dromedaries of Madian & Epha * All they of Saba shall come, bryngynge golde & incense, & shewinge the prayse of the Lord. All the catell of Cedar shalbe gathered vnto the, yt rāmes of Nabaioth shall serue y, to be offred acceptablye vpō myne aulter, * which I haue chosen, & in the house of my glory which I haue garnysshed. But what are these, that flee here lyke the cloudes, & as the doues sytynge to theyr wyndowes?

The Iles also shall wayte for me, & specially the shyppes of Tharsis: that they maye bryng thy sonnes frō farre, & theyr syluer & their golde with them, vnto the name of the Lorde thy God, vnto the holy one of Israel, that hath glorifyed the. * Straungers shall

C buylde vp thy walles, & theyr kynges shall do the seruyce. For when I was angrie, I smote the: and of my mercye, I pardoned the:
* Apoc.xxi.b. * Thy gates shall stande open styll both daye
and nyght, and neuer be shut: that the power of the Gentiles maye come, and that theyr
kinges maye be brought vnto the. For euery people and kyngdome that serueth not the,
shall perysh, & be destroyed wt vtter destruccyon. The glory of Libanus shall come vnto the. The Pyne trees, Boxes and Cedres together, to garnyshe the place of my Sanctuary, for I wyll glorifye the place of my fete.
Moreouer, those shall come knelyng vn-
to the, that haue vexed the: and all they that despysed the, shall fall downe at thy fote.
Thou shalt be called the cytie of the Lorde, Sion the cytie of the holy one of Israel. Because thou hast bene forsaken and hated, so that noman wēt thorowe the: I wyll make
the glorycous for euer and euer, and ioyful
* Esa.xiix.c. thorow out all posteritees: * Thou shalt suche the mylck of the Gentiles, and kynges brestes shall fede the. And thou shalt know, that I the Lorde am thy Sauyoure and redemer, the myghty one of Jacob. For brasse, D wyll I gene the golde, and for yron syluer:
for wod brasse, & for stones yron. I will for-ne thyne oppressyon into peace, & thyne exacyons into ryghteousnes. Violence and rob bery shall neuer be heard of in thy lande, nether harme and destruccyon with in thy borders. Thy walles shalbe called healeth, and
* Apo.xxi.a. thy gates the prayse of God. * The Sunne
shall neuer be thy daye lyght, and the lyght
of the Moone shall neuer shyne vnto the: but the Lorde him selfe shalbe thyne euerlastyng
lyght, and thy God shalbe thy glory.
*Apo.xxii.b. * Thy Sunne shall neuer go downe, and thy Moone shall not be hydde, for the Lorde hym selfe shalbe thy euerlastynge lyght. and thy sorowfull dayes shalbe ended. Thy people shalbe all ryghteous, and possesse the lande euer: the floure of my plantynge, the worke of my handes, wherof I wyll reioy-
ce. Thy yongest and leest shall growe in to a thousande, and the symplest in to a stronge people. I the Lorde shall shortly bringe this thinge to passe in his tyme.

C The.lxi. Chapter.

C The prophecyeth that Christ shalbe anoynted and sent to preache.

A
* Luke.iiii.c. and.vii.c. Esa.xl.a. * The spirite of the Lorde God is vpon me, for the Lorde hath anoynted me,
and sent me, to preach good tydynges
vnto the poore, that I myght bynde vp the
* Esa.lvi.b. and.lxvi.a. wounded hertes, * that I myght preach dely
uerance to the captyue, and open the prison
to them that are bounde: that I myght declare the acceptable yeare of the Lorde, and the
* Esay.b.a. and.xl.a. daye of the vengeaunce of oure God: * that I myght comforte all the that are in heuy-nesse, that I myght geue vnto them that mour-ne in Sion, that I myght geue I saye, bewty in the stede of ashes, ioyfull oyntement for sorowfulnesse, pleasaunt raymēt for an heuy mynde: That they myght be called trees B
of ryghteousnesse, a plantynge of the Lorde
for hym to reioyce in.
They shall buylde the longe rough wyldernes, & sett vp the olde deserte. They shall repayre the waste places, & soch as haue bene voyde thorowe out many generacyons.
Straungers shall stande and fede youre cat-
tel, and the Alcauntes shalbe youre plowme & dressers of youre vynes. * But ye shalbe * Esa.lvi.c. Jere.xxxiii.b named the prestes of the Lorde, and me shall call you the seruauntes of oure God. Ye shall enioye the goodes of the Gentiles, and trius-phe in their substaunce. For youre greate re-prose youe shall haue double ioye, and for shame, shall they haue ioye of their porcyon.
For they shall haue double possessiō in their C
lāde, and euerlastynge ioye shalbe with the.
For I the Lorde, which loue ryght and hate robbery (though it were offred me) shall ma ke theyr workes full of faythfulnes & make an euerlastinge couenaunt with them.
Their sede also and their generacion shal-
be knowē amonge the Gentiles, and amōge
the people. All they that se the, shall knowe D that they are the hye blessed sede of the Lord. * Luke.ii.b.
And therfore * I am ioyfull in the Lorde, &
my soule reioyseth in my God. * For he hath Apoc.xxi.b
put vpon me the garment of saluacio, & cou-
red me with the mātle of ryghteousnes. * he * Esa.lxi.b.
shall decke me lyke a brydegrome, and as a bride hath hyr apparell vpon her. For lyke
as the grounde bryngeth forth frute, & as the garden shoteth forth his sede: So shall the Lord God cause righteousnes, and prayse to God
to flowryth forth, before all the heathen.

C The.lxij. Chapter.

C A prophecy of the commynge of Christ.

For Sions sake therfore wyll I A not holde my tunge, and for Je-rusalems sake I will not cease:
vntyll their righteousnes breake forth as the shynynge lyght,
and their saluacyon as a burnynge lampe.
Then shall the Gētiles se thy ryghteousnes,
and all kynges thy glory. Thou shalt be named with a * newe name, which the mouth of the Lord shall shewe. Thou shalt be a crow- * John.i.b Apoc.ii.c
ne in the hande of the Lorde, and a glorious B
garlande in the hande of thy God. Fro thyn tyme forth thou shalt neuer be called forsaken, and thy lande shall nomore be called wildernesse. But thou shalt be called: C My D pleasure is in her, & thy lande shalbe called:
the maryed woman: for the Lord loueth the,
& thy lande shalbe ioyned in mariage. * And * Gen.ii.b.
lyke as a yōge mā taketh a daughter to ma- Osee.ii.c.
tinge, so shall thy sonnes be maryed vnto the. Esa.liiii.b.

And

And as a brydegrome is glad of hys bryde, so shall thy God reioyse ouer the.

C I haue set watchmen vpon thy walles (O Jerusalem) which shall nether cease daye nor night to preache the Lorde. And ye also that remēbre the Lorde ye shall not kepe him close, nor leaue to speake of him, vntyll Jerusalē be sett vp, & made the prayse of the worlde. The Lord hath sworne by his right hande & by his stronge arme, that from hence forth he wyll not geue thy corne to be meate for thyne enemyes, nor thy wyne (wherin ꝑ hast laboured) to be droncke for the straungers. But they that haue gathered in the corne, shall eate it, & geue thankes to the Lord: & they ꝑ haue borne in the wyne, shall drinck it in the court of my Sanctuary.

D Go you, go you thorowe the gatis, make cleane the way, make playne, make playne ꝑ fote pathe, & take awaye ꝑ stones, out of ye & set out a token for the people. Beholde, the Lord proclameth vnto ꝑ endes of ꝑ worlde: * tell the daughter Syon: se, thy sauyour cōmeth, beholde, he bringeth his treasure with him, & his workes go before him. For they whō ꝑ Lord deliuereth, shalbe called ꝑ * holy people: & as for the: thou shalt be named ꝑ greatlye occupyed, & not the forsaken cytie:

C The.lxiij.Chapter.

Of the vengeaunce vpon prompted to the people.

3 What is he thys, ꝑ cometh frō Edom, wt redd coloured clothes of Bosra: (which is so costly cloth) & cometh in so myghtelye wt all hys strength. I am he that teacheth ryghtuousnes, & am of power to helpe. Wherfore then is thy clothynge read, & thy rayment lyke his that treadeth in the wyne presse? I haue troaden the presse my selfe alone, and of all people there is not one with me. Thus wyll I treade downe myne enemyes in my wrath, and set my fete vpō them in my indignacyon. And their blonde shalbe spronge vpō my clothes, and so wyll I stayne all my rayment. * For the daye of vengeaunce is assigned in my hert, & the yeare wherē my people shall be delyuered, is come. I lohed about me, and there was no man to shewe me eny helpe, I maruayled ꝑ no man helde me vp. Then I helde me by myne awne arme, & my feruētnesse susteyned me. And thus will I treade downe ꝑ people in my wrath, & bathe thē in my displeasure: and vpon the earth will I laye their strēgth.

* I will declare the goodnesse of ꝑ Lord, ye and the prayse of the Lorde for all that he hath geuen vs, for the greate good ꝑ he hath done for Israell: which he hath gyuen them of his awne fauoure, & accordynge to ꝑ multitude of his louynge kindnesses. For he sayde: These no doute are my people, & no shrinkynge chyldre, and so he was their sauyoure. In their troubles he * was also troubled wt them, and the angell ꝑ went forth from hys presence, delyuered the: Of very loue & kyndnesse ꝑ he had vnto them, redemed he the. He hath borne them, and caryed them vp euer, sence ꝑ worlde begannie. But after they prouoked him to wrath & vexed his holy mynde he was their enemye, & fought agaynst them him selfe. Yet remēbred Israell the olde tyme of Moses & his people. * sayinge wher is he ꝑ brought the from ꝑ water of the see, * with the ꝑ feed his shepe? where is he ꝑ hath geuen his holy spyrete amonge them? he ledd the by the ryght hāde of Moses with hys glorious arme: deuidinge ꝑ water before the (wherby he gat him selfe an euerlastinge name) he led the in the depe, as an horse is led in ꝑ playne, ꝑ they shulde not stōble, as a tame beast goeth in the felde: and the breath gyuen of God gyueth him rest.

Thus (O God) hast thou led thy people, to make thy selfe a glorious name with all.

D * Loke downe then frō heauen, & beholde the dwellynge place of thy sanctuary & thy glory. Howe is it, ꝑ thy gelousy, thy stregth, the multitude of thy mercyes & thy louynge kyndnesse, wyll not be entreated of vs? Yet art thou * our father. For Abrahā knoweth vs not, nether is Israel acquaynted wt vs. But ꝑ Lorde art our father & redemer, & thy name is euerlastynge. O Lorde, wherfore hast ꝑ led vs out of thy waye: * Wherfore hast thou hardened our hertes, ꝑ we feare the not? Be at one wt vs agayne, for thy seruātes sake and for the generacyon of thyne herytage. Thy people hath had but lytle of thy Sanctuary in possessyon, for oure enemyes haue troden downe the holy place. And we were thyne frō the begynnynge: when thou wast not their Lorde, for they haue not called vpon thy name.

C The.lxiiij.Chapter.

C The prophete (vnder ꝑ person of the Jewes) bewayleth their cryes & bamptinent, affirmes rychtewesnes is lyke a cloth spiled with the flowers of a woman.

3 O That thou woldest cleue ꝑ heauen in sonder, & come downe: that the mountaynes myght melte awaye at thy presence, lyke as at an hote fyre: & that the malicyous myght boyle, as the water doth vpon ꝑ fyre: Wherby thy name myght be knowne amōge thyne enemyes, & ꝑ the Gentyls myght tremble before the. When thou wroughtest wonderous straūge workes, we lokedy not for the. Thou cammest downe and the hylles melt at thy presence. For sence the begynnynge of the worlde it hath not bene hearde or perceaued, * nether hath eny eye sene another God beyde the: which doth so moche for the, that put their trust in the.

B Thou helpest him that doth ryght with cheerefulnesse, & them that thynke vpon thy wayes. But lo, thou hast bene angrye, for we offended & haue bene euer in synne, * yet shall we be saued. We are all as an vncleane thynge, & all oure ryghteousnes are as the clothes stayned with ꝑ floures of a woman: we fall euerychone as the leafe, for oure synnes cary vs a waye lyke the wynde. There is no man that calleth vpon thy name, that standeth vp to take holde by the. Therfore hydest thou thy face from vs, and consumest vs, because of oure synnes.

But nowe O Lorde, ꝑ father of oures: * we are the claye, & thou art oure potter, & we all are the worcke of thy hādes. * Be not to sore displeased (O Lorde) & kepe not oure offences to longe in thy remembraunce, but consydre that we all are thy people. The cyties of thy Sanctuary lye waste. * Syon is a wyldernesse, and Jerusalem a desert. Oure holy house which is oure beawty, where oure fathers praysed the, is brent vp: ye, all oure cōmodities & pleasures are wasted awaye. Wylt thou not be intreated (Lorde) for all this? Wylt thou holde thy peace, and scourge vs so sore?

¶ The lxv. Chapter.

¶ The reiectye of Jerusalem, and the callynge of the Heathen.

I * They seke me, that bytherto haue not asked for me: they fynde me, ꝑ bytherto haue not sought me. * I haue sayde I am here, I am here. I am founde of a people that neuer called vpon my name. For thus longe haue I euer holden out my hādes to an vnfaythfull people, ꝑ go not the ryght waye, but after their awne ymaginacyons: To a people that is euer defyinge me to my face. * They make their oblacyons in gardens, and their smoke vpon * aulters of brycke, they lurcke amōge the graues, and lye in the dennes all nyght. * They eat swynes flesche, & vncleane broth is in their vessels. If ꝑ comest nye them, they saye touch me not, for I am holyer then thou

All these men when I am angry, shalbe turned to smoke & * fyre, that shall burne for euer. Beholde it is wryten before my face, & shall not be forgotten, but recompensed. * I shall rewarde it them into their bosome: I meane youre mysdedes, and the mysdedes of youre fathers together (sayeth the Lorde) which haue made their smokes vpon ꝑ mountaynes, and blasphemed me vpon the hylles: therfore will I measure their olde dedes into their bosome againe. Moreouer, thus sayeth the Lorde: * lyke as when one wolde gather holy grapes, men saye vnto hym: breake it not of for it is holy: * euen so wyll I do also for my seruauntes sakes, that I wyll not destroye them all. But I wyll take a sede out of Jacob, & out of Juda one, to take possessiō of my hyll. My chosē shall possesse these thinges, & my seruauntes shall dwell there. Saron shalbe a shepefolde, & * the valley of Achor shall geue ꝑ stallynge for the catell of my people, ꝑ seare me. * But as for you, ye are they ꝑ haue forsaken the Lord, and forgotten my holy hill. Ye haue set vp an aulter vnto Jupiter, & geuen ryche dryncke offerynges vnto the planettes. Therfore wyll I noumbre you with the swerde, ꝑ ye shall be destroyed all together. For when I called, no man gaue me answere: when I spake, ye herkened not vnto me, but dyd wyckednes before myne eyes, and chose the thynge ꝑ pleased me not.

Therfore thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God: Beholde, my seruauntes shall eate, but ye shall haue honger: Beholde, my seruauntes shall drynke, but ye shall suffre thurste. Beholde, my seruauntes shall be mery, but ye shall be confounded. Beholde, my seruauntes shall reioyce for very quyetnesse of herte: But ye shall crye for sorowe of herte, and complayne for veracyō of mynde. Youre name shall you leaue accursed amonge my chosen, for God the Lorde shall slaye you, and call his seruauntes by another name. * Who so reioyceth vpon earth, shall reioyce in ꝑ true God. And who so sweareth vpon earth, shall sweare in the true God. For ꝑ olde enmyte shalbe forgotten, and taken away oute of my syght. * For lo, I shall make a newe heauen, and a newe earth. And as for ꝑ olde, they shall neuer be thought vpō, nor kepte in mynde: but ꝑ Lorde sayth be glad and euermore reioyse, for the thynges, that I shall do.

For why: Beholde, I shall make a ioyfull Jerusalem, and his people ioyfull, yee, I my selfe will reioyse wyth Jerusalem, & be glad wt my people. * And the voyce of weppynge and waylinge shall not be herde in her from thēce forth. There shall nether be chylde nor olde mā, that haue not their full dayes. But when the chylde cōmeth to an hōdreth yeare olde, it shall dye. And yf he ꝑ is an hundreth yeare of age do wronge, he shalbe cursed. * They shall buylde houses, & dwell in the: they shall plante vyneyardes, & eate ꝑ frute of them. They shall not buylde, and another possesse: they shall not plant and another eate: * But the lyfe of my people shalbe lyke a tree, and so shall the worcke of their hādes. My chosen shall lyue longe, they shall not labour for vayne, nor begett wyth trouble: for they are the hye blessed sede of the Lorde, and their frutes with them. And it shalbe, that or euer they call, I shall answere them. Whyle they are yet but thynckynge howe to speake, I shall heare them. * The wolfe and the lambe shall fede together, and the lyon shall eate haye lyke the bullock. * But earth shalbe the serpentes meate. There shall no man hurte nor slaye another, in all my holy hyll, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The

¶ The.lxvj. Chapter.

¶ God dwelleth not in temples made by mannes hande. He despyseth sacrifices done without mercy & faith. God comforteth them that are troubled for his sake. Amonge the Christen, the Sabboth is euerymall.

THus sayeth the Lorde: * heauen is my seate, & the earth is my foote stole. Where shall nowe ỹ house stande, that ye wyll buylde vnto me? And where shall be the place, that I wyll dwell in? As for these thynges, my hande hath made them all, & they are all created, sayeth the Lorde. * Whych of them shall I then regarde? Euen him that is poore and of a lowly troubled spyrite, & standeth in awe of my wordes. For who so slayeth an oxe for me, doth me so greate dishonoure, as he that kylleth a mã. He that kylleth a shepe for me, knetcheth a dogge. He that bryngeth me meat offrynges, offreth swynes bloude: Who so maketh me a memorypall of incense, prayseth ỹ thynge that is vnryghte. Yet take they suche wayes in hande, and their soule delyteth in these abhominacyons.

* Therfore wyll I also haue pleasure in laughynge them to scorne, and ỹ thynge that they feare, wyll I brynge vpon them. * For when I called, no man gaue answere: when I spake, they wolde not heare: But did wickednesse before myne eyes, and chose ỹ thynges ỹ displease me. Heare the worde of God all ye that feare the thynge which he speaketh. Youre brethren that hate you, and cast you out for my names sake, sayd: The Lorde is haynouse against vs, but you shall se him in ioye when they shalbe confounded.

* Then shall be heard a greet noyse frõ the cytie and the temple, the voyce of the Lorde, ỹ wyll reward, & recompence his enemyes: lyke as when a wyfe bringeth forth a man chylde, or euer she suffre the payne of ỹ byrth & anguyshe of ỹ trauayle. Who euer heard or sawe suche thynges? doth the grounde beare in one daye? or are the people borne all at once, as Syon trauayled in childe byrth and bare her sonnes? For thus sayeth the Lorde. * Am I he that maketh other to beare, and beare not my selfe? Am not I he that beareth and maketh baren? sayeth thy God. Reioyse with Jerusalem, and be glad with her, all ye that lone her. * Be ioyfull with her, all ye ỹ mourned for her. For ye shall suche comforte out of her breastes, and be satisfyed. Ye shall taste, and haue delyte in the plenteousnesse of her power. For thus sayeth ỹ Lorde: beholde, I wyll lett peace into her, lyke a water floude, and the myght of the heythen lyke a flowynge streame. Ther shall ye suche, ye shall be borne vpon her sydes, and be ioyfull vpõ her knees. For lyke as a chylde is comforted of his mother, so shall I comforte you, and ye shalbe comforted in Jerusalem. And whe ye se thys, youre herte shall reioyse * and youre bones shall florysshe lyke an herbe. * Pro.xvi.a. Eze.xxxvij.a.

Thus shall the hande of the Lorde be G knowne amonge hys seruauntes, and hys indignacyon amonge hys enemyes. For beholde, the Lorde shall come with fyre, & hys charet shall be lyke a whorle wynde, that he maye recõpence his vengeaũce in his wrath and hys indignacyon with the flame of fyre. For the Lorde shall iudge all flesh wyth the fyre and with his swerde, and there shalbe a greate nombre slayne of the Lorde. Soch as haue made them selues holy and cleane in the gardens, & those ỹ haue eaten swynes flesh, myce, and other abhominacyons, shalbe taken awaye together, sayeth the Lorde. For I wyll come to gather all people & tonges with their workes and ymaginacyõs: these shall come, and se my glory. Vnto them shall I
I
gene a token, and sende certayne of them (that be delyuered) amonge the Gentiles: into Cilycia, Affryca, and Lydia (where men can hãdle bowes) into Italye and also Greke lande.

* The Iles farre of, that haue not herde G speake of me, and haue not sene my glory, * Esa.xlix.a. lij.a.lv.a.& lvb.a.
shall preache my prayse amonge the Gentiles, and shall brynge all youre brethren for an offrynge vnto the Lorde, out of all the people, vpõ horses, charrettes and horse lyters, vpon Mules and cartes to Jerusalem my holy hyll (sayeth the Lorde) lyke as the chylder of Israel bryngethe offrynge in cleane vessels, to the house of the Lorde.

* And I shall take out certayne of them * Esa.lxi.a. i.Pet.ii.b. Roma.xii.d.
for to be prestes and leuites, sayeth ỹ Lorde. For lyke as the newe heauen and the newe earth which I wyll make, shalbe fast stablished by me: (sayeth ỹ Lorde) So shall youre sede and youre name cõtynue, and there shalbe a newe Moone for the other, and a newe Sabbath for the other, and all flesshe shall come to worshippe before me (sayeth ỹ Lorde) And they shall go forth and loke vpõ the carcyons of them that haue transgressed agaynst me. * For their * Mar.ix.d.
wormes shall not dye, nether shall their fyre be quenched, & all flesh shall abhorre them.

¶ The ende of the boke of the Prophete Esay.

¶ The boke of the prophete Jeremye.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The boke of Jeremye, and in what tyme he prophecyed. He refuseth hym selfe y wolde refuse the office of a prophete, because he is younge and vnexpert. He is taught of the Lorde, y becometh hym to be. God openeth vnto hym, that the destruccyon of the Jewes, by the Babylonians, is at hande. Jeremye is commaunded to speake the worde of God vnto the Jewes, wythout feare.

The wordes of Jeremy the sonne of Helkiah the preste, one of them that dwelt at * Anathoth in the lande of Ben Jamin: when the Lorde had fyrst spoken with him, in the tyme of Josiah the sonne of Amon kynge of Juda, in the .xiij. yeare of his regyne: and so duryng vnto the tyme of Jehoiakim the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda, * and vntyll the .xi. yeare of Sedechiah y sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda were ended: when Jerusalem was taken, euen in the fyfth mo-neth. The worde of y Lorde spake thus vnto me: * Before I fashioned y in thy mothers wombe, I dyd knowe the. And or euer thou wast borne, I sanctifyed y, and ordeyned y, to be a prophete vnto y people. Then sayde I: * Oh Lorde God, I canne not speake, for I am yet but younge. And the Lorde answered me thus: Saye not so, I am to younge: * For thou shalt goo to all that I shall sende the vnto, * and whatsoeuer I commaunde the, that shalt thou speake. Be not afrayed of their faces, for I am wyth the, to helpe the, sayeth the Lorde.

* And wyth that, the Lorde stretched oute his hande, and touched my mouth, & y same Lorde sayde vnto me. Behold, I put my wordes in thy mouth, and beholde thys daye do I set the ouer the people & kyngdomes: that thou mayest rote out, breake of, destroye, & make waste: and y thou mayest buylde vp & plante. After this, the Lorde spake vnto me sayinge: Jeremy, what seyst y? And I sayde: I se a rodde of an almond tree. Then sayde y Lorde vnto me: thou hast sene right, for I wyll make haste spedelye vpon my worde, to performe it.

It happened afterwarde, that the Lorde spake to me agayne, and sayde: What seest thou? And I sayde: I do se a seethynge * pot, lokynge from out of the north.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: * Out of the north shall come a plage vpō all y dwellers of the lande. For so * I wyll call all the kinredes of y kyngdomes of y north (sayeth the Lorde.) And they shall come, & euery one shall sett his seate in the gates of Jerusalem, and in all their walles rounde about & in all cyties of Juda. And thorowe the I declare my iudgemēt, vpō all the wyckednesse of those men y haue forsaken me: that haue burnt incense vnto straunge gods, & worshypped the workes of their awne handes.

* And therfore girde vp thy loynes, aryse, and tell the all, that I geue the in commaundement. Feare them not, lest I destroye the before the. * For beholde, this daye do I make the a stronge fensed towne, an yron pyller, and a brasen wall agaynst the whole lande, agaynst the kynges and myghtye men of Juda, agaynst the prestes and people of the lande. They shall fyght agaynst the: but they shall not be able to ouercome the for I am wyth the, to helpe the, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The .ij. Chapter.

¶ God vpbraydeth his benefytes haue bene the Jewes. Against Hyeles y Prophetes or preachers y contemne & despyse God. The Jewes are blynded wyth because they forsake God, & because they runne in vayne hauntynge after Idols.

Moreouer, the worde of y Lorde came vnto me sayinge: Go thy ways, crye in the eares of Jerusalē, & saye: Thus sayeth the Lorde: I remēbre y, for the kyndenesse of thy youth, and because of thy stedfast loue: at the tyme of thy bespousynge, in that thou folowdest me thorowe y wyldernesse, in an vntylled lāde. Israel was an halowed thynge vnto the Lorde, and so was his fyrst frutes. * All they y deuoure Israel shall offende: myschefe shall fall vpon the, sayeth the Lorde. Heare therfore the worde of the Lorde, O thou house of Jacob, and all the generacyōs of the house of Israel. Thus sayeth the Lorde.

What vnfaythfulnesse founde youre fathers in me, that they wente so farre awaye from me, fallynge to lightnesse, and beynge so vayne? They thought not in their hertes, Where haue we lest the Lorde, that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte * that led vs thorowe the wildernesse, thorowe a desert & rough lande, thorowe a drye and a deedly lande, yee, a lāde that no man had gone thorowe, and wherin no man had dwelt. * And when I had brought you into a pleasaunt welbuylded lande, that ye myght enioye the frutes and all the commodyties of the same: ye wet forth and defyled my lāde, & brought myne heritage to abhominacyon.

The prestes the selues sayde not: Where is the Lorde? They that had y lawe in their handes, knewe me not: the shepherdes offended agaynst me. The prophetes dyd seruyce vnto Baal, & folowed such thynges as shall brynge them no profyt.

Wherfore, I am constrayned (sayeth the Lorde) to make my complaynte vpō you, & vpō youre childres childre: Go in to y Iles of Cethim, and loke well: sende vnto Cedar, take diligent hede: and se, whether such thynges be done there, whether the Gētils the selues

deale

deale so falsly and vntruly w̄ their goddes, (which yet are no goddes in dede) But my people hath gruē ouer their hye honoure, for a thynge that maye not helpe them.

Be astonyshed (Oye heauens) be afrayde, & abashed at soch a thinge, sayeth the Lorde. For my people hath done two euels. They haue forsaken me the well of the * water of lyfe, and dygged them pyttes, pere vyle and broken pyttes, that can holde no water. Is Israel a bonde seruaunt, or one of the houssholde? Why then is he so spoyled? Why do they roare and crye then vpō him, as a lyon? They haue made his lande waste, * hys cyties are so brent vp, þ there is no man dwellynge in them. Yee, the chyldre of Noph and Taphnes haue defyled thy neck.

* Cōmeth not this vnto the, because thou hast forsaken the Lorde thy God, euer sence he led the by the waye? And what hast thou now to do in the strete of Egypte? to drynche the water of Nilus? Ether, what makest þ in the waye of Assyria? To drynche water of the floude? * Thyne awne wickednesse shall reproue the, & thy turnynge a waye shall cōdemne the: þ thou mayest knowe & vnderstāde: howe euell and hurtfull a thynge it is, þ thou hast forsaken the Lorde thy God, & not feared him, sayeth the Lorde God of hoostes.

* Thaue euer broke thy yoch of olde, & burste thy bondes: yet sayest þ, * I wyll nomore offend, but (lyke an harlot) þ runnest about vpon all hye hilles, & amōge all grene trees, where as I planted the as a noble vyne, & a good rote whose seed is all faithfull. * How art þ turned then in to a bytter, vnfrutefull, & straūge grape? Yee, & that so sore: þ though thou washe the w̄ Nitrus & make thy selfe to sauoure with that swete smellinge herbe of Boxith: yet in my syght þart stayned wyth thy wyckednesse, sayeth the Lorde thy God.

Saye not nowe: I am not vnclene, and I haue not folowed Baal. * Loke vpon thyne awne wayes in þ woddes, valleys and dennes: so shalt thou knowe, what þ hast done. Thou art lyke a swyft Dromedary, þ goeth easely his waye: and thy wāntonnes is lyke a wylde Asse, that vseth the wyldernesse, and that snoffeth and bloweth at his wyll. Who can tame the? All they that seke the shall not fayle, but fynde the in thyne awne vnclēnes. Kepe thou thy fote from nakednes, and thy throte frō thyrste, and without shame thou answerest. Nay, for I haue loued straūgers and them will I folowe.

Lyke as a theefe that is taken with þ dede commeth to shame, euen so is the house of Israel come to cōfusion: the comen people, their kynges and rulers, their prestes & prophetes. * For they saye to a stocke, thou art my father, and to a stone: þ hast begotten me * yee, they haue turned their backe vpon me, & not their face. * But in the tyme of their trouble, when they saye, stande vp, and helpe vs, I shall answere the: Where are nowe thy goddes, þ thou hast made the lett the stāde vp, & helpe the in the tyme of nede? yf they be able. * For lorne howe many cyties thou hast (O Juda) so many goddes hast thou also.

Wherfore then will ye goo to lawe with me, seynge ye all are synners agaynst me, sayeth the Lorde? It is but lost labour, that I smyte youre chyldren, for they receaue not my correctiō. * Youre awne swearde deuoureth youre pphetes, lyke a deuouringe lyon. O ye people, loke vpō the worde of þ Lorde. Am I then become a wyldernesse vnto the people of Israel? or a lande þ hath no lyght? Wherfore sayeth my people the: we are Lordes, we will come no more vnto the? Doth a mayden forget her rayment, or a bryde her stomacher? But as for my people they haue forget me, dayes innumerable. Why boastest thou thy wayes so hylie (to optayne fauoure there thorowe) when thou hast yet stayned the with blasphemyes? and teachest thyne awne wayes.

* Upon thy wynges is foūde the bloude of poore and innocent people, & þ not in corners & holes only, but openly in all these places. Yet darest þ saye: I am (without synne) & gyltiesse. Suth, his wrath can not come vpō me. Beholde, I condempne the in iudgemēt, because thou darest saye: I haue not offended. And why runnest thou so often to and fro, to chaunge thy wayes? For thou shalt be confounded, as well of Egypte, as of the Assyrians: yee, thou shalt go thy waye from them, and smyte thyne handes together vpō thy head. Because the Lorde doth abhorre þ confydence and hope of thyne, and thou shalt not prosper with all.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

God bryngē mercyfull called vnto repentaūce his people, which he had forsaken for their whoredome with Idoles. He exhorteth Israel vnto repentaunce, promysynge them hys pardō, that shulde dare the true knowlinge of God. Therturne of Israel vnto God confessyng their synne.

COmenly, * when a man putteth awaye his wyfe, and she goeth frō him & marieth with another, then the question is: shulde he resorte vnto her eny more after that? Is not this selde then defyled and vncleane? * But as for the, thou hast played the harlot with many louers, yet turne agayne to me, sayeth the Lorde. Lyft vp thyne eyes vnto þ hilaulters & loke, yf thou be not defyled with whoredome. Thou hast wayted for the in the stretes, and as a murtherer in the wyldernesse. Thorowe thy whordome & shamefull blasphemyes, is the lande defyled.

* This is þ cause, þ therayne & rueninge dewe hath ceased. Thou hast gotten the an whores forehead, and wilt not be ashamed.

Els

Wilt thou saye vnto me: O my father, thou art he that hast brought me vp, & led me from my youth: Wylt thou then put me awaye, & cast me of for euer? Or wolt thou withdraw the fyre cleane fro me? Neuertheles, thou speakest soch wordes, but thou art euer doinge worst and worse.

C

* The Lorde sayde also vnto me: In the tyme of Josiah the kynge: hast ꝑ sene what that rebell yon Israel hath done? howe she hath ronne vp vpō all the hylles, and amōge all thick trees, and there played the harlot. hast ꝑ sene also (when she had done all thys) howe I sayde vnto her: that she shulde turne agayne vnto me, & yet she is not returned? * Juda that vnfaythfull syster of hers also sawe thys: Namely, ꝑ after I had well sene the aduoutrye of the thynchyng harlot Israel, * I put her awaye, and gaue her a bill of deuorcement.

Yet all this, her vnfaythfull syster Juda was not ashamed, but went backe & played the whore also: Yee, and ꝑ noyse of her whordome hath defyled the whole lande. For she hath committed fornycacyon wyth stones and stockes.

Neuertheles, her vnfaythfull syster Juda is not * turned vnto me agayne wyth her whole herte, but fayndly, sayeth the Lorde. And ꝑ Lorde sayde vnto me: * The backslyder Israell is more ryghteous, then the vnfaythfull Juda: & therfore go preache these wordes towarde the north, and saye: Thou disobedient Israell, turne agayne (sayeth ꝑ Lorde) & I wyll not let my wrathe fall vpō you, for I am mercyfull (sayeth the Lorde) & I wyll not alwaye * beare displeasure agaynst ꝑ: but this I will, that thou knowe thy greate blasphemy: Namely, ꝑ thou hast vnfaythfully forsaken ꝑ Lorde thy God, & hast made thy selfe part taker of straunge Goddes * vnder all grene trees, but hast had no wyll to heare my voyce, sayeth the Lorde.

D

E

* Turne agayne sayeth the Lorde: & I wyll be maryed wyth you. For I wyll take one out of the cytie, & two out of one generacyon, frō amōge you, and bringe you in to Syon: and wyll geue you herdmē after myne awne mynde, which shall fede you with learnynge & wysdome. Moreouer, when ye be increased and multiplyed in the lande, then (sayeth the Lorde) there shall no more boast be made of ꝑ arche of the Lordes testamēt: No mā shall thinke vpon it, nether shall any man make mēcyon of it: for from thence forth it shall nether be vysyted, nor honoured with gyftes.

* Then shal Jerusalē be called ꝑ Lordes seate, & all heathen shalbe gathered vnto it, for ꝑ name of the Lordes sake, which shalbe set vp at Jerusalem. And from ꝑ tyme forth, they shall folowe no more the ymaginacyon of their awne frowarde herte.

Then those ꝑ be of ꝑ house of Juda, shall go vnto ꝑ house of Israell: & they shall come together out of the North, into ꝑ same lande ꝑ I haue geuen your fathers. I bare her wel also, howe I toke the vp beynge but a childe & gaue the a pleasaunt lande for thyne herytage, yee, & a goodly hoste of the heathen, & howe I cōmaunded the, ꝑ thou shuldest * call me father only, and not to forsake fro me.

But lyke as a woman vnfaythfully sayleth her husbande, so are ye vnfaythfull vnto me (O ye house of Israel) sayeth the Lorde.

* And therfore the voyce of the chyldren of Israell was hearde on hye, weepinge and waylinge: for they haue defyled their waye, and forgotten God their Lorde.

O ye disobedient chyldren, turne agayne (sayinge: lo, we are thyne, for ꝑ art the Lorde oure God:) And so shall I heale youre backturninges. Truly vaynly trusteth he for helpe ꝑ loketh for it in the hylles and in wayne is it soughte in the multitude of the mountaynes, * but the healthe of Israell stādeth only vpō God oure Lorde.

* Confusyon hath deuoured oure fathers labour from oure youth vp: yee, their sheepe and bullockes, their sonnes and daughters. Oo do we also slepe in oure confusyon, and shame coureth vs: * for we & oure fathers frō oure youth vp vnto this daye haue synned agaynst the Lorde oure God, and haue not obeyed the voyce of the Lord oure God.

F

* Shall go

G

* Jere.

H

* Dan.ix. Baruch.ii. Jere.xiiii.

* Psal.xcv. cvi. Esa.lviii. Jere.iii. Ezech.xx. xxiii. xxxvi. xxxvii. xxxix. xliii.

C The.iiij. Chapter.

C The true repentaunce of returninge to God. He exhorteth to the circumcision of ꝑ herte. The destruccion of Jewry ys prophecyed. For the matyce of their herte.

O Israel, yf ꝑ wylt turne the, then turne vntome, sayeth the Lorde. And yf ꝑ wylt put awaye thyne abhominacyons out of my syght, ꝑ shalt not be moued: * And shalt sweare: The Lord lyueth: in trueth, in equyte and ryghteousnesse: and all people shall be fortunable & ioyfull in him. For thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde, to all Juda & Jerusalē: plowe your lande, and sowe not amonge the thornes.

I

* Jere.lii. e.ii.c. Zoll.b.

* Be circumcysed in ꝑ Lorde, and cut awaye the foreskynne of youre hertes, all yee of Juda, and all the indwellers of Jerusalē: * that my indignacyō breake not out lyke fyre and kyndle, so ꝑ no man maye quench it, because of the wyckednes of youre ymaginacyons.

* Jere.xxi.

K

* Preach in Juda and Jerusalē, crye out and speake: blowe the trōpettes in the lande, crye ꝑ euery mā maye beare gather together, & saye: Gather you together, and we will go in to stronge cyties. Set vp ꝑ token in Syon, spede you, and make no tarienge: * for I wyll bringe a greate plage, and a greate destruccyon from the north. For the spoyler of the Gentyles is broken vp from his place, as a lyō out of his denne, that he maye make thy lande

L

Esa.xiii.

* Jere.li.

lande waste, and destroy the cyties, so that no man maye dwell therin. Wherfore, gyrd youre selues about with sacke clothe, mourne, and wepe, for the fearfull wrath of the Lord is not withdrawen from vs.

E At the same tyme (sayth the Lorde) the herte of the kynge and of the princes shall be gone, the preastes shalbe astonished, and the prophetes shalbe sore afrayed. Then sayd I: O Lorde God, hast thou then disceyued this people and Jerusalem, saying: * ye shal haue peace, and nowe the swearde goeth thorowe theyr tynes: Then shall it be sayde to the people & Jerusalē: * a stronge wynde in the hye places of the wyldernesse cōmeth thorow the waye of my people, but neyther to fan, nor to cleanse.

D After that, shall there come vnto me a stronge wynde from those places, and then wyll I also gyue sentence vpon them. For lo, he commeth downe lyke as a cloude, and his charrettes are lyke a stormye wynde: * his horsemen are swyfter then ỹ Egle. Woo vnto vs, for we are destroyed. O Jerusalem, * wash thyne hert frō wickednesse, that thou mayest be holpen. How long shal thy noysom thoughtes remayne with the?

For a voyce from Dan and from the hyl of Ephraim speaketh out, and telleth of a destruction. Remēbre ỹ heythen, and gyue Jerusalē warnyng, and preache vnto her, that watchers ouer her are cōmyng from far countreys. They haue cryed out agaynst ỹ cities of Juda. And they haue beset her aboute in euery place lyke as the watchmen in the feld: * For they haue prouoked me to wrath, sayth the Lorde.

E * Thy wayes and thy thoughtes, haue brought the vnto this, suche is thyne owne wyckednesse and disobedyence: and bycause it is a bytter thing, it hath strikē the to ỹ hert. Ah my bely, ah my bely, (shalt thou cry) how is my hert so sore? my hert pāteth within me: I cannot be styll, for I haue herde the crying of the trompettes, and peales of warre.

They crye: murther vpon murther, the hole lande shal perish. Immediatlye, my tentes were destroyed, and my hangynges in the twynkelynge of an eye. How longe shall I se the tokens of warre, and heare the noyse of the trompettes?

F Neuertheles, this shall come vpon them, * bycause my people is become foolysshe, and hath not knowen me. * They are the childzen of foolyshnesse, and without any discretion. To doo euyll, they haue wyt ynoughe: but to doo well, they haue no wysdome. I haue loked vpon the erth, and lo: it was waste and voyde. I loked towarde heauen, and it had no shyne.

I beheelde the mountaynes, and lo, they trembled, and all the hylles were in a feare. I loked aboute me, and there was no bodye, and all the byrdes of the ayre were awaye. I marked wel, and the plowed felde was become waste: yea, all theyr cyties were brokē downe at the presence of the Lorde, and indignacion of his wrath.

For thus hath the Lorde sayd: The whole G lande shalbe desolate, yet wil I not then haue done. And therfore, shall the earth mourne, & the heauen be sory aboue: for the thynge that I haue spoke to the Prophetes purposed and taken vpon me to do, shall not repent me, and I wil not go frō it. The hole lande shall flye, for the noyse of the horsemen and bowemen: they shal runne into tentes, into woddes, and clyme vp the stonye rockes. All ỹ cyties shall be voyde, and noman dwellyng therin.

What wylt thou now do, thou beinge de- stroyed? * For though thou clothest thy selfe *Jere.ii.c. with scarlet, & deckest the wt golde: * though *iiii.reg.ix.f thou paynest thy face with colours now, yet shalt thou trym thy selfe in vayne.

For those that hytherto haue bene thy greate fauourers, shall abhorre the, and goo about to slaye the. For I heare a noyse, lyke as it were of a woman trauaylynge, or one labourynge of her fyrst chylde: Euē the voyce of the doughter Syō, that casteth out her armes, and lowneth, saying: Ah woo is me, how sore vered and faint is my hert, for feare of the murtherers!

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ In Jewry is there no rightous or faythfull man founde, eyther amongest the people or the rulers, for whos sake ỹ Lorde shulde spare the cytie. Wherfore Jewry is destroyed of the Assyrians.

L Oke thorowe Jerusalem, beholde R and se: Seke thorowe her stretes also within, if ye can fynde one mā that doeth equall and ryght, or seketh for the truthe, and I shall spare that cytie (sayeth the Lorde) * For though they can *ie.liij.a.rt.b saye: the Lorde lyueth, yet they sweare to disceyue. Where as thou (O Lord) lokest onely vpon fayth and truthe.

Thou hast scourged them, but they toke no repentaunce: thou hast corrected them for amendement, but they refused thy correction. They made theyr facis harder then a stone, and wolde not amende.

Therfore I thought in my selfe: per- V aduenture they are so symple and foolysshe, that they vnderstand nothing of the Lordes way, and iudgementes of our God. * Therfore, *Deu.xvi.g wyll I go vnto theyr heedes & rulers, & talke with them: yf they knowe the waye of ỹ Lord and the iudgementes of oure God. But these (in lyke maner) haue broken the yocke, and burst the bondes in sondre.

* Wherfore, a Lyon out of the woodde *deut.xxii.g hath hurte them, and a wolfe in the euenynge shall destroye them. The Leoparde doth lye lurkynge by theyr cytyes, to teare in peces all they all them that come therout. For theyr offences are multyplyed, and theyr departynge awaye is encreased. Shulde I then for al this haue mercy vpon the? Thy chyldren haue forsaken me, and * sworne by them that are no goddes. And albeit that I fed them to the full yet they fall to aduoutrye, and haunt harlottes houses.

In the desyre of vncleny lust they are become lyke the stoned horse * euery man neyeth at his neyghbours wyfe: * Shulde I not correct this, sayth the Lorde?

Shulde I not be auenged of euery people, that is lyke vnto this? Clyme vp vpon theyr walles, beate them downe, but destroye them not vtterly, take away theyr forestrelles, because they are not the Lordes: For vnfaythfully hath the house of Israel and Juda forsaken me, sayth the Lorde. * They haue denyed the Lorde, and sayde: it is not he that loketh vpō vs: we shall see neither swerde ner hunger. * As for the warnynge of the Prophetes they take it but for wynde, yea, there is none of these whiche wyll tell them, that such thinges shall happen vnto them.

Wherfore, thus sayth the Lorde God of hoostes: because ye speake suche wordes, beholde: * The wordes that are in thy mouth wyl I turne to fyre, and make the people to be wood, that the fyre maye consume them.

* Lo, I wyll bryng a people vpon you frō farre, O house of Israel (sayeth the Lorde) a myghty people, an old people, a people whose speach thou knowest not, neyther vnderstandest what they saye. Theyr arowes are lyke open death: yea, they them selues be verye gyauntes. This people shal eate vp thy frute & thy meate, yea, they shall deuoure thy sones & thy doughters, thy shepe & thy bullockes.

They shall eate vp thy grapes, & fygges. As for thy strōg & wel defensed cyties, wherin thou dyddest trust, they shall bryngе to pouertie, and that thorowe the swerde. * Neuertheles I wyll not then haue done with you, sayth the Lorde. But yet they saye: wherfore doth the Lorde our God all this vnto vs?

Then answer thē: * because, that lyke as ye haue forsaken me, and serued straūge goddes in your owne lande, euen so shall ye serue other goddes also in a straunge lande.

Preache this vnto the house of Jacob, and crye it out in Juda, and saye thus: heare this (thou foolish & vnwyseret people) * ye haue eyes but ye se not: eares haue ye, but ye heare not.

Feare ye not me, sayth the Lorde? Are ye not ashamed to loke me in the face? * whiche bynde the see with the sande, so that it cannot passe his bounder. For though it rage, yet can it do not bynge, and though the wawes therof do swell, yet maye they not go ouer.

But this people hath a false and obstinate hert, they are departed and gone away frō me They thynke not in theyr hertes: O let vs feare the Lord our God, that giueth vs rayne earlye and late, when nede is: whiche kepeth euer styll the harueste for vs yerly.

* Neuertheles, your mysdedes haue turned these from you, and your synnes haue robbed you hereof. For amonge my people are founde wicked persones, that priuily lay snares & wayte for men, to take them & destroye them. And lyke as a net is full of byrdes, so are theyr houses ful of that whiche they haue gotten with falshed and disceyte. Herof commeth theyr great substaunce and richesse, herof are they fat and welthy, and are more mischeuous then any other. * They mynistre not the lawe, they make no ende of the fatherlesse cause, yea, and they prospere: yet they iudge not the poore accordynge to equytie.

* Shulde I not punish these thinges, sayth the Lord? shulde not I be auenged of all suche people as these be? Horyble & greuous thynges are done in the lande.

The prophetes teache falsely, and the prestes receyue gyftes, & my people * haue pleasure therin: but what wil come therof at the last?

The. vi. Chapter.

The synnes for which Jerusalem is afflicted. Vncyrcumcysed eares. Contentiousnesse. Disceyte. The Lorde reiecteth the sacrifices of the Jewes. The comynge of the Babilonians is prophecyed against.

Come out of Jerusalē, ye stronge chyldren of Benjamin: blowe vp the trōpettes ye * Tecuytes, set vp a token vnto Bethcaran, for a plage and a greate myserye appeareth out from the North.

I wyll lyken the doughter Sion to a fayre and tender woman, and to her shall come the shepherdes with theyr flockes. Theyr tentes shall they pytche rounde about her, and euery one shall fede them that are vnder his hande. Make battayle agaynst her (shall they saye) Aryse, let vs go vp, whyle it is yet daye.

Alas, the daye goeth awaye, and the nyghte shadowes fall downe: Aryse: let vs go vp by nyght, & destroye her stronge holdes. For thus hath the Lorde of hoostes commaunded.

Hewe downe her trees, and set vp bulwarkes agaynst Jerusalem, for the tyme is come that this cytie must be punyshed: for in her is all malicyousnesse. Lyke as a cōdyte spouteth oute waters, so she spouteth out her wickednesse. Robberye & vnrighteousnesse is herde in her for owe and woundes are euer there in my syghte. Amend the (O Jerusalem) lest I withdrawe my hert frō the, & make the desolate: & thy lād also, & nomā dwel in it. For thus saieth the Lorde of hoostes: The reliqve of Israel shalbe gathered, as the remnaunt of grapes.

And therfore turne thyne hande agayne into the basket, lyke the grape gatherer. But

vnto

vnto whom shall I speake, whom shall I warne that he maye take hede? * Their eares are so vncircumcised, that they maye not heare.

Beholde, * they take the worde of God but for a scorne, & have no lust therto. And therfore, I am so full of thyne indignacyon, (O Lord) þ I maye suffre no longer. But shede it out vpon þ chyldren þ are without, and vpon all yonge men. Yee, the man must be taken prisoner with the wyfe, & the aged with the crepel. Theyr houses with theyr landes & wyues shall be turned vnto straungers, when I stretch out myne hande vpon the inhabytatours of this land, sayeth the Lorde. * For from the leest vnto the most, they hange all vpon couetousnesse, & from the prophete vnto þ preest, they go all aboute with falsheed and lyes.

* And beside that, they heale the hurt of my people with swete wordes, sayeng: peace, peace, whē there is no peace at all. Were they ashamed when they hadd committed abhominacyon? Truly ye nay they be past shame! * And therfore they shall fall amōge þ slayne, & in the houre when I shall vysit them, they shall be brought downe, sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Lord: go into the streates, consyder & make inquisicyon for þ olde waye: and yf it be þ good and ryght waye, then go therin, that ye maye fynde rest for youre soules. But they saye: we wyll not walcke therin, and I wyll sett wacthmen ouer you, & therfore take hede vnto þ voyce of þ trōpett. But they saye: we wyll not take hede. Heare therfore ye Gētyles, & thou cōgregacyon shalt knowe, what I haue deuyled for them. Heare þ earth also: behold, * I will cause a plage to come vpō this people, euen þ frute of their awne imaginacōs. For they haue not bene obediēt vnto my wordes & to my lawe, but abhorred them. Wherfore, * bryng ye me incense from Saba, & swete smellyng Calamus from farre countrees: Your burnt offerynges displease me, & I reioyce not in your sacrifyces.

And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: behold, I wyll make this people fall, and there shall fall from among them the father w the chyldren, one neyghboure shall perysshe wyth another.

Thus sayeth the Lord. * Beholde, there shal come a people from þ North, & a great people shal aryse from þ endes of the earth, with bowes and with dartes shall they be weapened. It is a rough & fearce people, & an vnmercyfull people, theyr voyce roareth lyke þ see, they ryde vpon horses well apointed to þ battaill agaynst þ, O daughter Sion. The crye of them haue we herde. Oure armes are feble, heuynesse & sorowe is come vpon vs, as vpon a woman trauelyng with chylde. Let no man go forth into þ felde, let no man come vpon þ hye streate: for the swearde and feare of the enemy is on euery syde.

Wherfore, gyrde a sack cloth aboute the (O thou daughter of my people) syrynkle thy selfe w asshes, * mourne & wepe bitterly as vpon thy only beloued sonne. For the destroyer shal sodenly fall vpō vs. The haue I set for a stroge tower (o thou prophete) & a well fensed wall amonge my people, to seke out and to trye theyr wayes. * For they are all stubberne apostates and fallen awaye, walkige disceitfully, they are cleane brasse & yron, for they hurt & destrope euery man. The bellous are brēt in þ fyre, þ lead is not molten, þ melter melteth in vayne for þ euell is not taken awaye from them. Therfore do they call thē naughty syluer, because the Lorde hath cast them out.

The.vii. Chapter.

Jeremy is commaunded to shewe vnto the people the worde of God, which trusteth in the outwarde seruyce of the temple. The euelles that shall happen to the Jewes for the despytyng of theyr prophetes. Sacrifyces doth not the Lorde chefely require of the Jewes, but þ they shuld obey hys word.

THese are the wordes that God spake vnto Jeremye: sayēge. * Stāde vnder the gate of the Lordes house, and crye out these wordes there w a loude voyce, and saye. Heare þ worde of the Lord all ye of Juda, that go in at this dore, to worshyppe the Lorde. Thus sayeth the Lord of hostes the God of Israell. * Amēde youre wayes & your councels, and I wyll let you dwell in this place. Trust not in false lyēge wordes, sayeng: here is þ temple of þ Lord, here is the temple of the Lord, here is þ temple of the Lorde.

But rather in deade amēde your wayes and councels, * and iudge ryght betwirte a man and his neyghbour: oppresse not the straūger, þ fatherles, & the wyddowe: shede not innocent bloud in thys place: cleue not to straūge goddes to your awne destrucciō: then wyll I let you dwell in this place, yee, in þ lād that I gaue afore tyme vnto youre fathers for euer. But take hede: ye trust in lyuige tales, þ begyle you & doyou no good. For when ye haue stollen, murthured, committed aduoutry, & periury. When ye haue offred vnto Baal, folowyng straunge & vnknowne goddes shall ye be vnpunyshed? Yet then come ye, & stande before me in this house, * (which hath my name geuen vnto it) & saye. Tush, we are absolued quite, though we haue done all these abhominacyōs.

* What? thynche you this house þ beareth my name, is a denne of theues? * And yea I se what you thynke, sayeth the Lo-

de. Go to my place in Siloh, * wherunto
I gaue my name a fore tyme, and loke well
what I dyd to ꝑ same place for the wyckednes of my people of Israell. And nowe, though ye haue done all these dedes (sayeth
the Lorde) and I my self rose vp euer by tymes to warne you & to comen with you, yet
wolde ye not heare me. * I called, ye wolde not answere. And therfore, ꝛ euen as I haue done vnto Siloh, so wyll I do to thys house, that my name is geuen vnto (& that ye put youre trust in) ye vnto ꝑ place that I haue geuen to you and your fathers. And I shal thrust you out of my syght, * as I haue cast out all youre brethren the whole sede of Ephraim.

* Therfore, thou shalt not praye for thys people, thou shalt nether geue thãkes, nor byd praier for them: ꝑ shalt make no intercession to me for them, for in no wyse wyll
I heare ꝑ. Seyst ꝑ not what they do in the cyties of Juda, & in ꝑ streats of Jerusalem.
* The children gather stycks, the fathers
kyndle ꝑ fyre, ꝑ women knede ꝑ dowghe,
to bake cakes for the quene of heauen.
They poure out drynckoffrynges vnto
straũge goddes, to prouoke me vnto wrath.
Howbeit they hurte not me (sayeth ꝑ lord)
but rather cõfounde, & shame them selues.
And therfore thus sayeth the Lord God:
behold, my wrath & my indignacion shalbe
poured out vpõ this place, vpõ men & catell
vpon ꝑ trees in ꝑ felde & frute of ꝑ lãde, & it shall burne so ꝑ no man maye quench it.
Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes ꝑ God
of Israel: ☞ heape vp your * burnt offryn
ges wyth your sacrifyces, and eate ꝑ flesshe.
* For when I brought youre fathers out of Egypt, I spake no worde vnto them of burnt offrynges & sacrifyces: but this I cõ
maunded them, sayinge: * herken & obeye
my voyce, and I shalbe youre God, and ye shall be my people: so that ye walcke in all the wayes, whych I haue cõmaunded you,
that ye maye prosper.
* But they were not obediẽt, they incly-
ned not their eares there vnto, but wẽt after their awne ymagynacyons & after the mocyons of their awne wycked herte, & so turned them selues awaye, and conuerted
not vnto me. And this haue they done, frõ
the tyme that youre fathers came out of Egypt, vnto thys daye.
* Neuertheles, I sent vnto you, all my ser nauntes ꝑ prophetes. I rose vpearly, & sent you worde, yet wolde they not herken, ner
offre me their eares, but were obstynate, & worse then their fathers. And ꝑ shalt now speake al these wordes vnto them, but they shall not heare the: ꝑ shalt crye vpon them,
but they shall not answere the. Therfore,
shalt thou saye vnto them: this is the people, ꝑ nether heareth the voyce of the Lorde
their God, ner receaueth hys correccyon.
* Faythfulnesse and treuth is cleane rooted
out of their mouth.
* Wherfore cut of thyne heaire O Jeru- G
salem, & cast it awaye, take vp a cõplaynte
on hye, for ꝑ Lord hath cast awaye, and sca tred ꝑ people ꝑ he is displeased with all. For the cyldren of Juda haue done euell in my syght, sayeth the Lord. * They haue set vp their abhominacyõs, in ꝑ house ꝑ hath my name, and haue defyled it. They haue also buylded an auiter at * Tophety, which is in the valley of ꝑ chyldren of Hennom: that they myght burne their sonnes & daughters in fyre, which I neuer cõmaũded them, nether came it euer in my thought. And therfore beholde, ꝑ dayes shall come (sayeth
the Lorde) ꝑ it shall nomore be called Topheth, or ꝑ valley of ꝑ chyldren of Hẽnom,
but the valley of slaughter, * for in Topheth, they shalbe buried, because they shall els haue no rowme. * Yee, the deed bodyes
of this people shalbe eaten vp of the foules
of the ayre & wylde beastes of the erth, and no man shall fraye them awaye. * And as for ꝑ voyce of myrth & gladnes of ꝑ cytyes of Juda, & Jerusalem, the voyce of ꝑ brydegrome, and of the bryde. I wyll make them cease, for the lande shalbe desolate.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ The destruccyon of the Jewes. The Lord mouth the people to amendement, reckenyng vp their synnes, he reprehendeth the lying doctryne of the prophetes and preestes.

AT the same tyme sayeth ꝑ Lorde, the I bones of ꝑ kynges of Juda, ꝑ bones
of his prynces, the bones of ꝑ preestes & prophetes, yee, & the bones of the cytezins of Jerusalem, shall be brought out of their graues & layed agaynst the. * Sunne, the Moone & all ꝑ heauenly hoost: whom they loued, whom they serued, whom they ranne
after, whom they sought and worshypped.
They shall nether be gathered together ner
bureyed, but shall lye as dõge vpon ꝑ earth,
to their shame and despyte.
* And all they ꝑ remayne of this wycked generacion, shall desyre rather to dye thẽ to lyue: where soeuer they remaine, and where
as I scatre them, sayeth the Lord of hostes.
Thys shalt ꝑ saye vnto them also. Thus sayeth the Lorde. Do men fall so, that they aryse not vp agayne? Or yf Israell repent, wyll not god turne ageyn to them? Wherfore then is this people & Jerusalem gone
so farre backe, that they turne not agayne?
They are euer the lõger the more obstinat,
and wyll not be conuerted.
* For I haue loked, & cõsydered: but there is no man ꝑ speaketh a good word: there is no man that taketh repentaunce for hys
synne, that wyll so much as saye: wherfore, haue I

haue I done thys? But euery man (as soone as he is turned backe) rüneth forth styll, lyke a wylde horse i a battayll. The Storke in ꝑ ayer knoweth hys apoynted tyme, the Turtle doue the Swalow & the Crane consydre the tyme of theyr trauayll, * but my people wyll not knowe the tyme of the punyshment of ꝑ Lorde. How darre ye saye then, we are wyse, we haue the lawe of the Lorde amonge vs?

C

* Esa.i.a.

Suerly in vayne hath he prepared his pẽne, & vaynly haue the wrytters wryten it: therfore shall the wyse be confounded, they shalbe afrayed & taken: for lo, * they haue cast out the worde of the Lorde: what wyshome can then be amõge them? Wherfore, I wyll geue theyr wyues vnto aleauntes, and theyr feldes to destroyers.

* Ier.vi.b. * Esa.lvi.c. Ier.i.b. Ier.viii.d.

D

* For from the lowest vnto ꝑ hyest, they folowe all filthy lucre: & from ꝑ Prophete vnto ꝑ preste, they deale all wt lyes. * Neuer thelesse, they heale ꝑ hurte of my people very slenderlye, sayenge: peace, peace, where there is no peace at all.

* Ier.vi.d.

Are ye for shame, how abhominable thynges do they? and yet they be not ashamed, yee, they knowe of no shame.

* Wherfore, in the tyme of theyr visytacion, they shall fall amõge ꝑ deed bodyes, & be ouerthrowne sayeth the Lorde.

* Ier.viii.b.

Moreouer, I wyll consume thẽ in deade (sayeth the Lord) so ꝑ there shall not be one grape vpon ꝑ vyne, nether one fygg vpon the fygge tre, and the leaues shalbe pluckt of. And tye thynge ꝑ I haue gyuen them shall be taken frõ thẽ: why prolonge we ꝑ tyme? Let vs gather ourr selues together, and go into ꝑ stroge cytie, there shall we be in rest. For ꝑ Lorde ourr God hath put vs to sylẽce, & geuen vs water mixte wt gall, to drynke: because we haue synned agaynst hym.

E

* We loked for peace, & we fare not the better, we wayted for the tyme of health, & lo, here is nothynge but trouble.

F

The noyse of his horsses is hearde from Dan, ꝑ whole lãde is afrayed at ꝑ neyenge of his stronge horsses: for they are come in, & haue deuoured ꝑ lãde, wt all ꝑ is in it: ꝑ cyties, and those ꝑ dwell therin. * Moreouer, I wyll sende Cockatrices & serpẽtes amonge you (which wyll not be charmed) & they shall byte you, sayeth the Lorde.

* Ier.viii.b. * Ier.xxvi.b.

G

I wolde haue had cõfort agẽst sorowe: but sorowe is come vpon me, and heuynes vexeth my hert: for lo, ꝑ voyce of ꝑ crienge of my people is herde for feare of them, that come from a farre coũtre. Is not the Lorde in Syon? Is not ꝑ kyng in her? Wherfore then haue they greued me (shall the Lorde saye) wt theyr ymages & foolysh straunge fathyons of a forreyne god? The harueste is gone, the Somer hath an ende, & we are not holped. I am sore vexed, because of ꝑ hurte of my people. I am heuy & abashed, is ther no triacle at Gilead? Is ther no physycyon ther? Why then is not the helthe of my people recouered?

The.ix. Chapter.

The complaynte and bewaylyng of the prophete, the malyce of the people. In the knowledge of God oughe we onely to reioyse. The vnexcusablenesse of the vnrt.

A

O Who * wyll geue my head watter ynough, and a wel of teares for myne eyes: ꝑ I maye wepe night and daye: for ꝑ slaughter of my people? Wolde God, that I had a cotage some where farre from folcke, ꝑ I myght leaue my people, and goo frõ thẽ: for they be all aduoutrers & a shryn chynge sorte. They bẽde theyr tunges lyke bowes, to shote out lyes. They war stroge vpon erthe. As for ꝑ trueth, they maye no thynge awaye with all in the worlde. For they go from one wyckednes to another, and wyll not knowe me, sayeth the Lorde.

* Ier.xiii.b.

B

* Yee, one must kepe hym selfe from another, no mã may safely trust his awne brother: for * one brother vndermyndeth another, one neyghboure begileth another. Yee one dissembleth wt another, and they speake wt no trueth. * They haue practysed theyr tũges to lye, & taken great paynes to do mischefe. Thou sytteste i ꝑ myddes of a dysceatfull people, which for very dissemblyng falshede, wyll not knowe me, sayeth the Lorde.

* Ier.ix.a. * Mat.x.c. Mich.vii.a. * Psal.xxxviii.a.

Therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: beholde, I wyll melte them, and trye them, for what shuld I els do to my people. * Theyr tunges are lyke sharpe arowes, to speake dysceate. Wyth theyr mouth they speake peaceably to theyr neyghboure, but priuely they laye wayte for hym. * Shulde I not punysh thẽ for these thynges, sayeth ꝑ Lorde? Or shulde I not be aueged of any soche people as thys? Upon ꝑ mountaines will I take vp a lamentacion & a sorowful crie, & a mournige vpõ ꝑ fayre playnes of ꝑ wildernesse. Namely, how they are so brẽte vp, ꝑ no man goeth there any mooze. Yee, a man shall not heare one beaste crye there.

C

* Ier.v.b. * Ier.ix.a.

Byrdes & catell are all gone from thẽce * I will make Jerusalẽ also an heape of stones, & a denne of venymous wormes. And I will make ꝑ cyties of Juda so waste, that no man shall dwell therin. What man is so wyse, as to vnderstande thys? Or to whom hath ꝑ Lorde spoken by mouth, that he may shewe this, & saye. O ꝑ lande, why perishest thou so? Wherfore art ꝑ so brent vp, & lyke a wylderne, ꝑ no man goeth thorow? Yee, the Lorde hym selfe tolde ꝑ same vnto thẽ, that forsoke hys lawe, & kepte not ꝑ thynge ꝑ he gaue them in cõmaundemẽt, nether lyued therafter: * but folowed the wickednes of theyr awne hertes, & serued straunge Goddes, as theyr fathers taught them.

D

* Psal.lxxix. Mich.iii.c.

* Deu.xxix.b. Iosu.xxiii.c.

E Therfore, thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde of hostes, the God of Israel. Beholde, ↔ I wyll fede this people wt wormwod, & geue them gall to drynke, * I wyll scatre thē also among the heathen, whom nether they ner they? fathers haue knowne: * & I will sende a swearde amōge them, to persecute them, vntill I bryng them to naught. Moreouer, thus sayeth the Lord of hostes. Beware of ꝓ vengeaunce that hangeth ouer you: and cal for mourning wyues, & sende for wyse women: that they come shortly, and synge a mournynge songe of you: that ꝓ teares may fall out of oure eyes, and ꝓ our eye lyddes maye gushe out of water.

Deu. xviii. b. xxx. xxviii. c.

Deut. xxv. c.

F For there is a lamentable noyse hearde of Sion. O how are we so sore destroyed? O how are we so pyteously cōfounded? We must forsake our awne naturall countre, & we are shut out of oure awne lodgynges. Yet heare the worde of the Lorde (Oye women) & let youre eares regarde the wordes of his mouth: ꝓ ye may lerne youre daughters to mourne, & that euery one may teach her neyghboures̄e, to make lamentacyon. Namely thus: Death is clymynge vp in at oure wyndowes, he is come into oure houses, to destroye the chylde before ꝓ doore, and the ponge man in the strete.

G But tell thou playnely, thus sayeth the Lorde. * The deed bodyes of men shall lye vpon the grounde, as ꝓ donge vpon ꝓ felde, & as the heye after ꝓ mower, & ther shalbe no man to take them vp. Thus sayeth the Lorde. Let not the wyse man reioyse in his wysdome, ner ꝓ strong man in his strength, nether the ryche man in his rychesse: * But who so will reioyse, let hym reioyse in this, that he vnderstandeth, & knoweth me: for I am ꝓ Lorde, which do mercy, equyte and ryghteousnesse vpon ꝓ earth. * Therfore, haue I pleasure in soch thynges, sayeth the Lorde. Beholde, the tyme cōmeth (sayeth the Lorde) ꝓ I wyll vyset all them, whose fore skynne is vncircumcysed. The Egyptians, the Iewes, the Edomytes, the Ammonytes, the Moabites. * and the shauen Madianytes, that dwell in the wyldernes. For all the Gentiles are vncircumcysed in the flesh, but all the house of Israell are vncircumcysed in the herte.

* Ierre. viii. d. and. viii. d.

Esa. lv. c. 1. Corin. i. d. ii. Cor. xi. a.

* Gyat. ix. d. and. xii. a. Deut. vi. b.

* Ierre. xxv. c. Ierre. xiii. a. and. vi. b. Roma. ii. c.

¶ The. x. Chapter.

¶ The counsellaryes of the Barres are not to be feared. Of the weakenes of Idols, and of the power of God. Of euell curates.

A Heare the worde of the Lorde that he speaketh vnto the, O ꝓ house of Israel. Thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde. * Ye shall not lerne after ꝓ maner of ꝓ heathen, & ye shall not be afrayed for ꝓ tokēs of heauen: for ꝓ heathen are afrayed of soch: yee, al ꝓ customes and lawes of the Gētyles are not thynge, but vanyte. * They hewe downe a tree in ꝓ wod with ꝓ handes of ꝓ workeman, and fashyon it wt the axe: they couer it ouer with golde or syluer, they fasten it with nayles & hāmers, that it moue not. It standeth as styf as ꝓ palme tree, it cā nether speake ner go one foote, but must be borne. * Be not ye afrayed of soch, for they can do nether good ner euell. But there is none lyke vnto ꝓ, O Lorde, * & great is the name of thy power. Who wolde not feare the, O kyng of the Gentils for thyne is the dompnion.

* Esa. xliii. b.

* Ierre. x. b. iiii. Mac. xvii. g.

* Apo. xv. a.

B For amonge all ꝓ wyse men of the Gentyles, and in all they? kyngdomes, there is none ꝓ maye be lickened vnto ꝓ. They are all together vnlerned & vnwyse in this one thynge. All they? commynge is but vanyte: namely, wod, syluer, which is brought out of Tharsis, & beaten to plates: and golde from * Ophir, a worcke ꝓ is made with the hāde of ꝓ craftesman & the caster, clothed wt pelowsylck & scarlet: euen so is the worcke of they? wyse men all together. But ꝓ Lorde is a true God, a lyuynge God, & an euerlastynge kynge. * If he be wroth, the earth shaketh: all the Gentyles maye not abyde his indygnacyon.

* i. Reg. ix. c.

* Naum. i. a.

As for they? goddes thus shall you saye to them: they are goddes, that made nether heauen ner earth therfore shall they perysh from the earth, and from all thynges vnder heauen. But (as for oure God) * he made ꝓ earth wt his power, and with his wysdome doth he order ꝓ whole cōpasse of ꝓ worlde, with his discrecyon hath he spred out ꝓ heauens. At his voyce ꝓ waters gather togethe in ꝓ ayre, * he draweth vp ꝓ cloudes frō the vttemost partes of ꝓ earth: he turneth lyghtenyng to rayne, & bryngeth forth the wyndes out of their treasures. His wysdome maketh all men fooles. And cōfounded be all casters of ymages, for ꝓ they cast, is but a vayne thynge, & hath no lyfe. * The vayne craftesmen wt their worckes, ꝓ they in their vanyte haue made, shall perysh one wt another i ꝓ tyme of visitacyō. Neuertheles, Jacobs portyon is no soch: but it is he, ꝓ hath made all thynges, & Israel is ꝓ rodd of his inherytaūce. The Lorde of hostes is his name. Gather vp thy wares out of the land, ꝓ that art in ꝓ stroge place. For thus sayeth ꝓ Lord. Behold, I wyll now throwe as wt a stone synge ꝓ inhabitoures of this lāde: at this once, and I wyll bryngе trouble vpon them, that they shall proue trewe the wordes ꝓ I haue spoken by the prophetes.

C

* Ierre. li. c.

* Esa. xl. b. and. xliii. b. Ierre. vi. c.

D Alas, how am I hurt? Alas how paynefull are my scourges vnto me? For I consydre this sorow by my self, and I must sufre it. My tabernacle is destroyed, and all my my coardes are broken. Myne chyldren are gone fro me, & can no where be founde. Now haue I none to spreade out my tent, or to set vp my hangynges. For ☞ the herdmen haue done folyshly, that they haue not sought the Lord. Therfore, haue they dealt vnwyselye with theyr cattell, & all are scatred abrode. Beholde, the noyse is harde at hand, & great settyng out of the north: to make the cyties of Juda a wylderne, & a dwellynge place for Dragons. * Now I knowe (O Lorde) that it is not in mans power to ordre hys awne wayes, or to rule his awne steppes & goynges. Therfore, chasten thou vs, o Lord, but with fauoure * & not in thy wrath, bryng vs not vtterly to naught. ‡ Poure out thyne indygnacyon rather vpon the Gentiles, that knowe the not, & vpon the people that call not on thy name. * And that because they haue consumed, deuoured and destroyed Jacob, and haue made his habytacyon waist.

* Sap.vi.b.
* Pſal.vi.a. and.xxxviii.a & xlii.b.
‡ Pſal.lxxix.a. and.xcvi.a.
* Jere.xxx.c. and.l.b.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ A curſse of them that obey not the worde of Godes promesse. The people of Juda folowyng the steppes of theyr fathers, worshypped straunge Godes. The Lorde sayeth that he wyll not heare the Jewes, and forbydeth also Jeremy to praye for them.

THys is another Sermon, whych the Lorde cõmaũded Jeremy for to preach, saying: Heare the wordes ☞ of the couenaunt, & speake vnto the men of Juda, & to all the that dwell at Jerusalem. And saye thou vnto them. Thus sayeth the Lord God of Israell: * Cursed be euery one that is not obedient vnto the wordes of this couenaunt: whych I cõmaũded vnto youre fathers, what tyme as I brought them out of Egipt, from the yron fornace, saying: * Be obedient vnto my voyce, & do accordynge to all that I cõmaunde you: so shall ye be my people, & I wilbe youre God, and wyll kepe my promyse, * that I haue sworne vnto youre fathers. Namely, that I wolde geue them a lande which floweth with mylck & hony: as ye se, it is come to passe vnto this day. Then answered I, and sayd: Amen. ☞ Let it be euen so Lorde, as thou sayest.

* Deu.xxvii. and.xxviii.b. Gala.iii.b.
* Ero.xix.a.
* Deut.xv.c. xvi.a. and xbuiic.

Then the Lorde sayde vnto me agayne: Preache this in the cyties of Juda & roũde about Jerusalem, & saye. Heare the wordes of this couenaũt, that ye maye kepe them. For I haue diligẽtly exhorted your fathers, euer sence the tyme that I brought them out of the land of Egypt, vnto this daye. I gaue them warnyng by tymes, saying: herken vnto my voyce. * Neuertheles, they wolde not obeye me, nor encline theyr eares vnto me, but folowed the wicked ymaginations of theyr awne hertes. And therfore, I haue accused the as transgressours of all the wordes of this couenaunt, that I gaue them to kepe which they (notwithstandinge) haue not kepte.

* Jere.xi.b.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me. It is found out, that whole Israel and all these citezins of Jerusalem are gone backe. They haue turned them selues to the blasphemyes of theyr forefathers, which had no lust to heare my worde. Euen lykewyse haue these also folowed straunge goddes, and worshypped them. The house of Israell & Juda haue broken my couenaũt, which I made with theyr fathers. ℭ

Therfore, thus sayeth the Lord. Behold, I wyll sende a plage vpon the, which they shall not be able to escape: & though they crye vnto me, I wyl not heare the. * Then shall the townes of Juda & the citezins of Jerusalem go, & call vpon ‡ theyr goddes vnto whom they made theyr oblacyons: but they shall not be able to helpe them in tyme of theyr trouble. * For as many cyties as thou hast, O Juda, so many goddes hast thou had also. And loke how many stretes there be in the, (O Jerusalem) so many shamefull aulters haue ye set vp, aulters I saye to offre vpon the vnto Baal. * Therfore, praye not thou for this people, byd nether prayse ner prayer for the, for though they crie vnto me in theyr trouble, yet will I not heare them.

* Zacha.xii.b
‡ Deu.xxxii.d
‡ Jere.ii.d.
* Jere.xii.a. and.xb.a.

What parte hath my beloued in my house, seinge he hathe worked abomination seruynge many goddes? * The holy fleash offringes in the tẽple are goone fro the O Juda, and thou when thou hast done euell maiest thy boast of ytt. * The Lorde called the a grene olyue tre, a fayre one, a frutefull one, a goodly one: but with greate clamor hath the enemy sett fyre vppon it and the braches of yt are destroyed. For the Lorde of hoostes that planted the, hath deuysed a plage for the (O thou house of Israell and Juda) for euell that ye haue done to prouoke hym to wrath, in that ye dyd seruyce vnto Baal.

* Aggi.ii.b.
* Jer.xxii.b. and.xxii.b. Roma.xi.c.

This (O Lord) haue I lerned of the, and vnderstãdit, for thou hast shewed me theyr ymaginacyõs. * But I am (as a meke lam be an ore) that is caryed awaye to be slayne, not knowynge, that they had deuysed soch a councell agaynst me, sayeng: * We wyll destroye his meate with wodd, & dryue him out of the land, of the lyuyng: that his name shall neuer be thought vpon. Therfore, * I will beseche the now (O Lord of hoostes) thou ryghteous iudge, thou that tryest the reynes & the hertes: lett me se the auẽged of them, for vnto the haue I cõmitted my cause. The Lorde therfore spake thus of the citezins of Anathoth, that sought to slaye me, sayẽge: * Preache not vnto vs in the name of the Lord, or els thou shalt dye of our hãdes. Thus (I saye) spake the Lorde of hoostes. Behold,

D
* Eſa.liii.b.
* Jer.xviii.b
* Jere.xx.a. and.xbii.b.
* Eſa.xxx.b.
* Amos.viii.b.

I wyll vyset vpon. Youre younge men shall perysh with ꝓ swearde, your sonnes & your daughters shall vtterly dye of honger, so ꝓ none shall remayne. For vpon the eyetzings of Anathoth will I bryng a plage, euen the
yeare of theyr vysytacyon.

¶ The .xii. Chapter.

¶ The prophete marueyleth greatly at the prosperi-tye of the wycked, although he confesse God to be ryghteous. The Iewes are forsaken of the Lorde. He speaketh against Curates and preachers that seduce
the people. The Lorde threatneth destruccyon vnto
the nacyons that bordered vpon Iewry, whych troubled and vexed it.

A RIghteous art thou, O Lorde, thou art more ryghteous, then ꝓ I shulde dispute w̄ the. Neuertheles, lett me talke with the in thynges reasonable. * How hap peneth it, that the waye of the vngodly is so prosperous? & that it goeth so well with them, whych (wythout any shame) offende & lyue in wickednes? Thou plantest them,
they take rote, they growe, & bryngе forth
frute. They boast moch of ꝓ, yet art ꝓ farre from ther reynes. But ꝓ Lorde (to whom I am well knowne) thou ꝓ hast sene, & proue
* ii. Pet. ii. c. ued my herte, * take them awaye, lyke as a flock is caryed to the slaughter house, and apointe them for the daye of slaughter.

* Jer. xiiii. a How longe shall the lande mourne, * and all ꝓ herbes of ꝓ felde perish, for ꝓ wycked-
nes of them that dwell therin.

B
The catell and the byrdes are gone, yet
* Deu. xxx. c. Jere. b. b. and. xxiii. a. Sopho. i. c. say they vnto, * God wyll not destroye vs vtterly.

Seyng, thou art weery in runnyng with ꝓ fote men, how wilt thou then runne with horses? In a peaceable sure lande ꝓ mayest be safe, but how wilt thou do in the furyous pryde of Iordane? For thy brethren & thy
* Jere. xi. a. kynred haue all together despysed the, and cryed out vpon ꝓ in thyne absence. * Beleue
them not, though they speake fayre wor-des to the. As for me (I saye) I haue forsaken myne awne dwellyng place, & left my-ne heritage. (M)yne lyfe also ꝓ I loue so wel,
* Esa. xii. c. haue I geuen into the handes of myne enemies. * (M)yne heritage is become vnto me, as a Lyon in ꝓ wood. It cryed out vpō me,
therfore haue I forsaken it. (M)yne heryta-
ge is vnto me, as a spechled byrde, a byrde
of dyuerse coloures is vpon it. Come, & gather ye to geather al ꝓ beastes of the felde.
Come that ye maye eate it vp.

¶
* Esa. lxi. c. * Dyuerse herdmen haue broken downe ‡ Esa. v. a. my ‡ vyneyarde, and troden vpon my porcyon. Of my pleasaunt porcyon, they haue made a wylderues and desert. They haue layed it waste: & now ꝓ it is waste, it sigheth vnto me. Yee, the whole land lyeth waste, & no man regardeth it. The destroyers come ouer the heth euery waye, for the sweard
of the Lorde doth consume from ꝓ one ende
of the land to the other, & no flesh hath rest.
They haue sowe wheate, & reaped thornes.
They haue taken herytage in possessyon,
but it doth them no good. And ꝓ prophets were ashamed of your frutes, because of the great wrath of the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Lorde vpon all myne
euell neyghbours, that laye hāde on myne D herytage, whych I haue possessed, euen my people of Israell. Beholde, I wyll plucke them (namely Israel) out of their lāde, and put out ꝓ house of Juda from among them.
* And when I haue roted them out, I wyl- Deu. iii. c. and. xxx. a. Esa. liii. b. & i. Esd. i. a.
be at one with them agayne, & I wyll haue
mercy vpon them: * & bryngе them agayne, euery man to his awne herytage, and into his lāde. And yf they (namely that trouble my people) wyll lerne ꝓ wayes of them, to sweare by my name. The Lorde lyueth (lyke
as they learned my people to sweare by Baal) then shal they be reckened amōg my people. * But yf they wyll not obeye, then * 2. Esd. xvi. i.
wyll I rote out the same folke, & destroye
them, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The .xiii. Chapter.

¶ The destruccyon of the Iewes is prefigured, and their sparynge abyde, why Israel was reckened to be the people of God, and why they were forsaken.

THus sayeth ꝓ Lorde vnto me: go thy A waye, & get me a lynnen breche, &
gyrde it aboute thy loynes, & let it not be wet. Then I got me a breche, accordynge to the cōmaundemēt of the Lorde, and put it aboute my loynes. After this ꝓ seconde tyme, the Lorde spake vnto me agayne. Take ꝓ breche ꝓ thou hast prepared & put about the, & get ꝓ vp, & go vn-
to Euphrates & hyde it in a hole of ꝓ rock.
So went I, & hydd it at Euphrates, as the Lorde cōmaūded me. And it happened longe after this, ꝓ the Lorde spake vnto me. Vp, & get ꝓ to Euphrates, and fet ꝓ breche from
thēce, which I cōmaunded ꝓ to hyde there.
Then went I to Euphrates, & dygged vp, & toke ꝓ breche from the place where I had hydd it: & beholde, the breche was corrupt, so that it was profitable for nothynge.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto me. Thus B sayeth the Lorde. Euen so wyll I corrupte
ꝓ pryde of Juda, & the hye mynde of Jerusalem. This people is a wicked people, * they * Jere. xi. c. xi. f. xvii. a. and. xiii. c.
wyll not heare my worde, they folowe the wicked ymaginacyōs of their awne herte, & hange vpon straunge Goddes, them they serue & worshyppe: & therfore shalbe
as this breche, that serueth for nothynge.
For as straytely as a breche lyeth vpon a mans loynes, so straytely dyd I bynde the whole house of Israel, and the whole house of Juda vnto me, sayeth ꝓ Lorde: * ꝓ they Deu. iii. c. and. xxvi. b. Jere. xxx. b.
myght be my people: that they myght haue
a glorious name: that they myght be in honour: but thei wold not obeye me. Therfore

saye

laye this ryddle before them, & saye: Thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God of Israell: Every pot shalbe fylled wt wyne. And they shal saye: thynckest ꝑ we knowe not, that every pot shalbe fylled wt wyne? Then shalt ꝑ saye vnto them. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lord: Behold, I shall fyll all ꝑ inhabitours of thys lande wt dronckennes, the kynges that syt vpon Dauids stole, ꝑ prestes & prophetes, wt all that dwell at Jerusalem. And I wyll sett them one agaynst another, ye, the fathers agaynst the sonnes, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ I wyll not pardon them, I wyll not spare them, ner haue pytie vpon them: but destrope them. Be obedient, geue eare, take not disdayne at it, for it is ꝑ Lord him selfe that speaketh. Honoure ꝑ Lord your God here in, or he take hys lyght from you, & or euer youre fete stomble in darckenesse at the hyll: lest when ye loke for the lyght, he turne it into ꝑ shadowe & darckenesse of death. But yf ye wyll not heare me, that geue you secrete warnyng, I wyll mourne from my whole hert for youre stubburnes. * Pyteously wyll I wepe, & ꝑ teares shall gusshe out of myne eyes. For ꝑ Lordes flocke shall be caryed awaye captyue. Tell the kynge & the quene: humble youre selues, sett you downe lowe, for your dignytye shall be throwne downe & the crowne of your glory shall fall from youre head. The cyties towarde ꝑ south shalbe shut vp, & no mā shall open them. All Juda shallbe caryed awaye captyue, so that none shall remayne.

D Lyft vp your eyes, & beholde the, ꝑ come from the North. Wher is ꝑ flocke (o ꝑ lāde) ꝑ was gyuen ꝑ. And wher are thy farre ryche cheape. To whom wylt ꝑ make thy mone, when ꝑ ennemy shall come vpon the? for ꝑ hast taught them thy selfe, & made the maisters ouer ꝑ. Shall not sorowe come vpō ꝑ, as on a woman trauaylyng wt childe? And yt ꝑ woldest saye the in thyne herte. Wherfore come these thynges vpō me? * But for ꝑ multytude of thy blasphemyes, shal thy hynder partes & thy fete be discouered. For lyke as the man of Inde maye chaunge his shynne, & ꝑ cat of ꝑ mountayne her spottes: so maye ye ꝑ be exercysed in euell, do good. Therfore wyll I scatre them, lyke as ꝑ stobie ꝑ taken awaye wyth ꝑ south wynde. Thys shall be youre porcion, & the porcion of your measure, wherwith ye shalbe rewarded of me, sayeth the Lorde: because ye haue forgotten me, & put youre trust in dysceatfull thynges. * Therfore shall I turne thy clothes ouer thy heade, & discouer thy thyghes, ꝑ thy preputies maye be seue, thy abhomynacyons, thy beestly maner, thy wantōnesse, & thy shamefull whordome. For vpon ꝑ feldes and hylles I haue seue thy abhominacyons. Wo be vnto the (o Jerusalem) when wylt thou euer be clensed eny more?

¶ The .xiii. Chapter.

¶ Of the dearth that shulde come in Jewrye. The plaint of the people makyng mone of the Lorde. The vnfaithfull people are not heard. Of prayer, & erynge, & of false prophetes that seduce the people.

THe worde of ꝑ Lorde shewed vnto Jeremy, concernynge ꝑ derth of ꝑ frutes. Juda hath mourned, his gates are desolate: they are brought to heuynesse euen vnto ꝑ grounde, & the crye of Jerusalē goeth vp. The lordes sent theyr seruātes to fetch water, & whē they came to ꝑ welles, they dyd fynde no water, but caried their vessels home emptie. They be ashamed & cōfounded, & couer theyr heades. * For the grounde is dryed vp, because there cōmeth no rayne vpon it. The plowmen also be ashamed, & couer theyr heades. The hynde also forsoke ꝑ ponge sawne, ꝑ he brought forth in the felde, because there was no grasse. The wylde Asses dyd stande in the hye places, and drewe in theyr wynde lyke the dragons, theyr eyes dyd sayle for want of grasse.

Doutles ouer awne wyckednes doth rewarde vs. But lorde do ꝑ accordyng to thy name, though oure transgressyōs & synnes be many, and agenst the haue we synned. * For ꝑ art ꝑ cōforte & helpe of Israel in ꝑ tyme of trouble. Why wilt ꝑ be as a straūger in ꝑ lande, & as one ꝑ goeth ouer ꝑ felde, & cōmeth in only to remayne for a nyght? Why wilt ꝑ make thy selfe a cowarde, & as it were a gyaunt ꝑ yet maye not helpe? For thou (O Lorde) art in the myddest of vs, & thy name is called vpon of vs: forsake vs not. Thus hath ꝑ Lord sayd vnto this people: For seyng they haue had suche a lust to wāder abrode, & haue not refrayned theyr fete, & therfore displeased the Lord: but he wyll now brynge agayne to remēbraūce all their mysdedes, & punysshe all theyr synnes.

Yee, euen thus sayde the Lorde vnto me: * Thou shalt not praye for this people good. For though they fast, I wil not heare their praiers, and though they offre burnt offringes & sacrifyces, yet wyll not I accepte them. For I will destrope the wt the swearde, hoger & pestilence. Then answered I: O Lorde God, * ꝑ prophetes saye vnto the: Tush, ye shall nede to feare no swearde & no hoger shall come vpō you, but ꝑ Lorde shall geue you cōtynuall rest in this place.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: The prophetes preach lyes in my name, where as I haue not * sent them, nether gaue I them eny charge, nether dyd I speake vnto them: yet they preach vnto you false visiōs, charming, vanite, & disceatfulnes of their awne herte. Therfore, thus sayeth ꝑ Lord. As for those prophetes ꝑ preach in my name (whō I neuer thelfe haue not sent) & that saye:

Tush, there shall no swerde ner honger be
*Sacha.viii.a in this land. * With swearde & with hoger shall those prophetes perysh, & ye people to who they preache shalbe cast out of Jerusalem, dye of honger, & be slayne wt the swear-
*Jere.xvi.a. de, * (& there shalbe no man to burye them)
both they & theyr wyues, theyr sonnes and theyr daughters. For thus will I poure D theyr wyckednesse vpon them. Thys shalt *Exeme.i.b. and.ii.g. thou say also vnto the. * Myne eyes shall wepe without ceassynge daye & nyght. For my people shalbe destroyed wt greate harme, & shall perysh with a greate plage. For yf I go into the felde, lo, it lyeth all full of slayne me. If I come into the cytie, lo, they be all famyshed of honger.

Yet, theyr prophetes also & preistes shal-
be led into an vnknowne lande.

Hast thou then vtterly forsaken Juda?
Dost thou so abhorre Syon? Or hast thou
so plaged vs, that we can be healed nomore?
*Jere.viii.c. * We loked for peace, and there cometh no good: for the tyme of health, and lo, here is nothig but trouble. We knowledge (o Lor-
de) all our mysdedes, & the synnes of our fathers, that we haue offended the. We not displea-
*Esa.xlix.b. sed, (O Lorde) for thy names sake, * forget not thy louing kyndnesse. Remembre the throne of thyne honourr, breake not the co-Jere.b.d. uenaunt, that thou hast made wt vs. * Are there eny amoge the goddes of the Gétyles, that sende rayne or geue the showers of heauen?
Or may the heuens thrope rayne without thy commaundement? Dost not thou it, O Lorde our God, in whom we trust? Yet Lorde, thou dost all these thynges.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ The Lord will not heare Moses or Aaron, yf they praye for the people, but will wrappe them in many myseryes. The cause of suche great myseryes.

A
1 Jere.xii.b. xl.c.xliii.b. Ezec.xiiii.c. Then spake the Lord vnto me: * Thou-ghe Moses & Samuell stode before me, yet haue I no hearte to thys peo ple. Drive them awaye, that they maye go out of my syght. And yf they say vnto the, Whither shall we go? Then tell them: The lord
*Ezec.v.c. gyueth you thys answere. * Some vnto death, some the swearde, some to hoger, some into captyuyte. For I will bryng foure plages vpon them, sayeth the Lorde. The *Jere.xvi.a. swearde shall slaye them, the dogges shall teare them in peaces, * the foules of the ayre, & beastes of the earth shall eate them vp, and destroye them. I will scatter them aboute also in all kyngdomes and lades to *iiii.Reg. xxi.d. be plaged because of * Manasseh the sonne
of Hezekia kynge of Juda, for the thynges
that he dyd in Jerusalem.

B Who shall then haue pyte vpon the, O Je rusalem? Who shall be sory for the? Or who shall make intercession, to optayne peace
for the? Seynge thou goest fro me, & turnest backwarde, sayeth the Lorde? Therfore, I dyd stretch out myne hade agaynst the, to de-stroye the, & I haue bene sorye for the so longe
that I am werye. I haue scatred the abrode wt
the fanne on euery syde of the lad. * I haue wa- * Jere.li.c.
sted my people & destroyed them. Yet they haue had no lust to turne from theyr awne wayes. I haue made theyr wydowes mo in nobre, then the sandes of the see. Upon the mothers of their chyldre dyd I bryng a destroyer in the none daye. * Sodenly and vn- * 1. Thes.v.c.
awares dyd I sende a feare vpon theyr cy-ties. She that hath borne seuen chyldren, hath noone, her herte is full of sorowe.

* The Sunne doth fayle her in the cleare * Amos.viii.
daye, she is cofounded and fayntie for very heynesse. As for those that remayne, I will delyuer them vnto the swearde before theyr
enemyes, sayth the Lorde. * O mother, alas * Jere.xv.a.
that euer the bydest beare me, a brawler & re-
buker of the whole lande: Thoughe I neuer
lente ner receaued vpon vsury, yet all men speake euell vpon me. And the Lorde answe- C red me: Verely thy remnaunte shall haue welthe. Come not I to the, when thou art in trouble: and helpe the, when thyne enemy oppresseth the? Doth one yron hurte another or one metall that cometh from the North,
another? * As for thy richesse and treasure, * Jere.xvii.a.
I will geue them out into a praye, not for and.xx.b.
eny money, but because of all thy synnes, that thou hast done in all thy coastes. * And I will * Deut.xxi.
bryng the with thyne enemyes into a land, c.
that thou knowest not: for the fyre is kyndled
in my indignacyon, shall barne you vp.

O Lord, thou knowest: therfore remem-
bre me, & vyset me, delyuer me fro my perse cuters. Take me not from this lyfe in the tyme of the longe pacyence, thou knowest,
that for thy sake I suffer rebuke. * When I * Psal.xl.
had founde thy wordes, I dyd eate them vp cxix.iii.a.
gredely: they haue made my herte ioyfull D & glad. For thy name was called vpon me,
O Lorde God of hostes. I dwell not amoge the scorners, nether is my delyte therin:
but I dwell only in the feare of thy hand, for thou hast fylled me with bytternes. Shall my heynes endure for euer? Are my plages then so greate, that they maye neuer be healed? Wilt thou be as one vnfaithfull & as a water, that faileth, and cannot continue?
Upon these wordes, thus sayde the Lorde vn
to me. If thou wilt turne agayne, I shall sett
the in my seruice: and yf thou wilt take out
the thynges that is precious from the vile, thou shalt be euen as myne awne mouth. * They * Jere.xli.
shall conuerte vnto the, but turne not thou
vnto them: & so shall I make the a stronge bra
sen wall agaynst this people. * They shall * Jere.i.c.
fighte agaynst the, but they shall not preuay-
le. For I my selfe will be wt the, to helpe the,

and

and deliuer the, sayeth ꝑ Lorde. And I wyll ryd the out of the handes of the wicked, and deliuer the out of the hande of tiraunters.

¶ The.xvi.chapter.

¶ He prophecyeth the myserye of the Iewes. Of their vnthankfulnesse, that ꝑ wer ignoraunt of Goddes lawe, in the cause of their myserye. He prophecyeth the captiuitie of Babylon, & their deliueraunce from thence agayne, ꝑ callyng of ꝑ gentiles.

THus sayde the Lorde vnto me. Thou shalt take ꝑ no wyfe, ner beget chyldre in this place, For of the chyldre that are borne in this place, & of their mothers that haue borne them, and of their fathers that haue begotten them in this lande thus sayeth the Lorde. They shall dye an horrible deeth, * no mā shall mourne for the ner bury them, but they shall lye as donge vpon the earth. They shall perishe thorow the swearde and hoger, * and their bodyes shall be meate for the foules of the ayre, ād beastes of ꝑ earth. For thus saieth ꝑ Lorde: Go not ꝑ in vnto them ner come to mourne and wepe for them: for I haue take my peace from thys people (sayeth the Lorde) yee my fauoure & my mercy. And in this lande shall they dye, olde and yonge, and shall not be buried: no man shall bewepe the, no man shall clyppe or shaue him selfe for them.

There shal not one visit another, to mourne wyth them for their deed, or to comforte them. One shal not offre another the cuppe of consolacyon, to forget their deuynes for father and mother. * Thou shalt not go in to their feast house, to sye downe, to eate or drincke with the. For thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde of hostes the God of Israell: * Beholde, I shall take awaye out of this place, ꝑ voyce of myrth ād gladnesse, the voyce of the bryde grome and of the bryde: yee, and that in youre dayes, that ye maye se it.

Now when thou shewest this people all these wordes, & they saye vnto the. * Wherfore hath the Lorde denysed all thys greate plage for vs? Or what is the offence & synne, that we haue done agaynst ꝑ Lorde our God? Then make thou them this answere: * Because youre fathers haue forsaken me (sayeth the Lorde) and haue walked after straunge goddes, whom they haue honoured and worshypped: but me haue they forsaken, and haue not kepte my lawe. * And ye with your shamefull blasphemyes, haue exceaded the wyckednes of youre fathers. For euery one of you hath folowed the frowarde and euell ymagination of his owne herte, and is not obediente vnto me.

* Therfore wyll I cast you oute of thys lande, into a lāde that ye and youre fathers knowe not: and there shall ye serue straūge goddes daye and nyght, there wyll I shewe you no fauoure. * Beholde therfore (sayeth the Lorde) the dayes are come, that it shall nomore be sayde: The Lorde lyueth, which brought the children of Israel out of ꝑ lāde of Egypte: but, it shall be sayde, the Lorde lyueth, that brought the children of Israell from the North, and from all landes where he had scatred them. For I wyl bryng the agayne into the lande, that I gaue vnto their fathers.

Beholde (sayeth the Lorde) * I wyl sende out many fyshers to take them, and after ꝑ wyll I sende out many hunters to hunte them out, from all mountaynes and hylles and out of ꝑ caues of stone. For myne eyes beholde al their wayes, and they cannot be hyd fro my face, nether can their wycked dedes be kepte close out of my syghte. But first wyll I sufficiētly rewarde their shame full blasphemies and synnes, because they haue defyled my lande: Namely with their stinckyng Idols & with the carayns of their abhominations, wherwith they haue filled myne herytage. * O Lorde, my strēgth, my power, and refuge in tyme of trouble. The Gentyles shall come vnto the frō the endes of the worlde, and saye: Verely our fathers haue cleaued vnto lyes, their Idols are but vayne & vnprofitable. How can a mā make those his goddes, whyche are not able to be goddes. And therfore I will once teach the, sayeth the Lorde, I wyll shewe them my hande & my power, that they maye knowe, that my name is the Lorde.

¶ The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ The frowardnesse of the Iewes. Cursed be they that put their confydence in man, & they blessed ꝑ trust to God. Mannes herte is wycked. God is the searcher of ꝑ hert. The liuing waters are forsaken. The halowyng of the Sabboth is commaunded.

WOure synne (O ye of the trybe of Iuda) is writtē in the table of your hertes, and grauen so vpon the edges of your aulters with a penne of yrō and wyth an adamāt clawe: ꝑ as the fathers thyncke vpon their chyldre so thincke you also vpō your aulters, woddes, thicke trees, hye hylles, mountaynes & feldes. * Wherfore I wil make my mounte ꝑ standeth in the felde all your substaūce & treasure be spoyled, for the great synne ꝑ ye haue done vpon youre hye places thorowe out all the coostes of youre lāde. Ye shall be cast out also frō ꝑ heritage, that I gaue you. And I wil subdue you vnder the heuy bondage of your enemies, in a lande that ye knowe not. For ye haue mynistred fyre to my indignacio, which shal burne euermore. Thus sayeth the Lorde. * Cursed be the man that putteth his truste in mā, and that taketh flesche for his arme: and he, whose herte departeth from the Lorde: he shall be lyke the heath, that groweth in the wyldernes. As for ꝑ good thyng that is for

to come, he shall not se it: but wonet in a drye place of the wylderne, in a salt and vnoc-cupped lande. * O blessed is the man, that putteth his trust in the Lorde, & whose hope is the Lorde him selfe. * For he shalbe as a tre, that is planted by ꝑ water syde: whyche spredeth out the rote vnto moystnesse, whom the heate cannot harme, when it cometh, but his leafe shalbe grene. And though there growe but lytle frute because of drouth, yet is he not carefull, but he neuer leaueth of to bringe forth frute. Amonge all thynges, man hath the most deceatfull and stubberne herte.

C Who shall then knowe it? * Euen I the Lorde searche out the grounde of the herte, and trye the reynes, * & rewarde euery man accordynge to his wayes, and accordynge to the frute of his workes.

☞ * The partriche maketh a nest of egges, whych she layde not, he cometh by ryches, but not rychteously. In the myddest of his lyfe must he leaue them behynde him, and at the last be founde a very foole. But thou (O Lorde) whose throne is most glorious, excellent and of most antyquite, which dwellest in the place of our holy rest: Thou art the comforte of Israel. All they that forsake the, shalbe confounded: al they that departe from the, ☞ shalbe wrytten in earth * for they haue forsaken the Lorde the very conduyte of the waters of lyfe.

Heale me, O Lorde, and I shall be whole: saue thou me, and I shalbe saued, for thou art my prayse. Beholde, these me saye vnto me, where is ꝑ worde of the Lorde? Lett it come now. Where as I neuertheles obediently folowed the as a shepherde, and haue not vncalled taken this office vpō me, this knowest thou well. Thy wordes also were ryght before the. Be not now terrible vnto me, O Lorde * for thou art he in whome I hope, when I am in perell. Let my persecuters be confounded, but not me; let them be afrayed, and not me. Thou shalt bryng vpō them the tyme of their plage, and shalt destroye them vyght sore.

Thus hath ꝑ Lorde sayde vnto me: * Go and stande vnder the gate, where thorowe the people and the kynges of Juda go out and in, yee vnder all the gates of Jerusalē, and saye vnto them. Heare the worde of the Lorde, ye kynges of Juda, and all the people of Juda, and all ye cytesyns of Jerusalem, that go thorowe these gate. Thus the Lorde commaundeth. * Take heede for youre lyues, that ye carye no burthen vpō you in the Sabboth, to bringe it thorowe ꝑ gates of Jerusalem: ye shall beare no burthē also out of youre houses in ꝑ Sabboth. Yet shall do no labour therin, but ☞ halowe the Sabboth, * as I commaunded youre fathers. Howbeit, they obeyed me not, neither herkened they vnto me: but were obstynate and stubburne, & neither obeyed me: nor receaued my correccio. Neuertheles, yf ye will heare me (sayeth ꝑ Lorde) and beare no burthen into the cytie thorowe this gate vpon the Sabboth: Yf ye will halowe the Sabboth, so ꝑ ye do no worcke therin: then shall there go thorowe the gates of thys cytie, kynges and princes, that shall syt vpō the throne of Dauid: They shall be caryed vpō charettes, & ryde vpon horses, both they & their princes. Yee, whole Juda & all the cytesyns of Jerusalem shall go here thorow, and this cytie shal euer be the more and more inhabited. There shall come men also frō the cyties of Juda, from about Jerusalem, and from the lande of Beniamin, from the playne feldes, from the mountaynes, & from the wylderne: which shall bringe burnet offeryngs, sacrifices, oblacions, and incense, and offre vp thāckesgeuyng in the house of the Lorde. But yf ye will not be obedient vnto me, to halowe ꝑ Sabboth, so that ye will beare your burthens thorowe the gates of Jerusalē vpon the Sabboth. Then shall I set fyre vpon the gates of Jerusalem, and it shall burne vp the houses of Jerusalem, and no man shall be able to quenche it.

C The .xviii. Chapter.

¶ God threatneth by the example of a potter, that it is in his power to destroye the besyeged of his worde and to helpe them agayne when they amende. The conspiracy of the Iewes against Jeremy. His prayer against his aduersaryes.

THis is another communication, that God had with Jeremy, saying: Aryse, and goo downe into the Potters house, and there shall I tell the more of my mynde. Now when I cam to the Potters house, I founde hym makynge his worcke vpon a whele. The vessell that the Potter made of claye, brake amōge his handes: so he began a new, and made another vessell accordynge to his mynde. Then sayde the Lorde thus vnto me. * Maye not I do with you, as this Potter doth, O ye house of Israel, sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, ye house of Israel: ye are in my hande, euē as the claye in the Potters hande.

* When I take in hande to rote out, to destroye, or to waste awaye ony people or kyngdome * yf that people (against whom I haue thus deuysed) conuerte from their wyckednes: I repēte of the plage, that I deuysed to bringe vpon them. * Agayne, whē I take in hande, to buylde, or to plante a people or a kyngdom: yf the same people do euell before me, and heare not my voyce: I repente of the good, ꝑ I deuise to do for the.

Speake now therfore vnto whole Juda: and to them that dwell at Jerusalē. Thus sayeth sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, I am deuisyng a plage for you, and am takynge a thyng in hande agaynst you.

*Therfore let euery man turne from his euell waye, take vpon you ꝑ thynge that is good, and do right. But they sayde. Nomore of this *we wyll folowe our awne ymaginacions, and do euery man accordynge to the wylfulnesse of his awne mynde.

Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde. Aske among the heathen, yf eny man hath herde soch horryble thynges, as the daughter of Sion hath done. Shall not the snowe (that melteth vpon the stony rockes of Libanus) mopsten the feldes? Or maye the sprynges of waters be so grauk awaye, that they rüne nomore, geue moystnesse, ner make frute full? But my people hath so forgotten me, that they haue made sacrifyce vnto vayne Goddes. And theyr propheters make them fal in theyr wayes trō the auncyēt pathes, ād to go into a fote waye not vsed to betroden of iust men. Wherefore thorowe they haue brought their lāde into an euerlastyng wildernesse ꝙ scorne. *So ꝑ whosoeuer trauayleth therby, shalbe abashed, ꝙ wagge theyr heades. With an East wynde wyll I scatre thē, before their enemie. And when their destruccion commeth, I wyll turne my backe vpon thē, but not my face. Then sayde they *come, let vs ymagen somthynge agaynst this Jeremye. For ☞ the prestes shall not be destitute of ꝑ lawe, nether shall the wyse men be destitute of councel, ner ꝑ propheters destitute of the worde of God. Come, and ☞ let vs smyte him with the tong, and let vs marke all his wordes. Consyder me, O Lord, and heare the voyce of myne enemies *shall they recompence euell for good? for they haue digged a pit for my soule. ‡Remēbre, howe that I stode before the, to speake good for them, ꝙ to turne awaye thy wrath from them.

*Therfore let their childzen dye of hunger, ād let them be oppressed wyth the swearde. Let their wiues be robbed of their childzen, and become wyddowes: let their husbandes be slayne, let their ponge mē be kylled with the swearde in the felde. Lett the noyse be herde out of their houses, when the murtherer commeth sodenly vpon them. ‡For they haue dygged a pyt to take me, ꝙ layed snares for my fete. Yet Lorde, ꝑ knowest all their councell, that they haue deuised, to slaye me. Forgeue not their wyckednes, and let not their sinne be put out of thy syght: but let them be iudged before the as the gyltie: This shalt thou do vnto them in the tyme of thy indignacion.

¶ The.xix.chapter.

¶ The prophecyeth the destruccion of Jerusalem, for the contempt and despysynge of the wordes of God.

THus sayde the Lorde: Go thy waye and bye the an earthen pytcher, and bryng forth the Senatours ād chefe prestes into the valley of the chyldzen of Hennom, which lieth before the doze that is made of bryche, and shewe them there the wordes, that I shall tell the, and saye thus vnto thē. Heare the worde of the Lorde, ye kynges of Juda, and ye cytesyns of Jerusalem. *Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israell: ‡Beholde I wyll bring soche a plage vpon this place, that the eares of all that heare it shal glowe. And that because they haue forsaken me, and vnhalowed this place, ꝙ haue offred in it vnto straunge goddes: whome nether they, theyr fathers, ner ꝑ kynges of Juda haue knowne. They haue fylled thys place also with the bloude of innocentes *for they haue sett vp an aulter vnto Baal, to burne their childzē for a burntoffering vnto Baal, which I neither commaunded, ner charged thē, nether thought once there vpon.

Beholde therfore ‡the tyme cōmeth (sayeth the Lorde) that this place shall nomore be called Topheth, ner the valley of ꝑ childzen of Hennō, but the valley of slaughter: For in this place will I slaye ꝑ Senatours of Juda ꝙ Jerusalem, and kyll them downe with the swearde in the syght of theyr enemies, ād of them that seke their lyues. And their deed carcases will I geue to be meate for the fowles of the ayre, and beastes of the felde. And I will make this citie so desolate and despysed: * that who so goeth ther by, shall be abashed and iealt vpon her, because of all her plages.

‡I wyll fede thē also with the flesh of their sonnes ād their daughters. *Yee, euery one shall eate vp another in the besegynge and straytnesse, wherwith their enemyes (that seke their lyues) shal kepe them in. And the pitcher shalt thou breake in the sight of the men, that shalbe with the, ꝙ saye vnto the: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes: *Euen so wyll I destroye this people and cytie: as a man breaketh an earthen vessell, that cā not be made whole agayne.

‡In Topheth shal they be buried, for they shall haue none other place. Thus wyll I do vnto this place also, sayeth the Lord, ād to them that dwel therin: yee, I wil do to this citie as vnto Topheth (For ꝑ houses of Jerusalē and the houses of the kynges of Juda shalbe defyled, lyke as Topheth) because of all the houses, in whose parlers they dyd sacrifyce vnto all the hoost of heauen and powred drinke offeringes vnto straunge goddes. And so Jeremy cam from Topheth, where the Lorde had sent him to prophecie, and stode in the court of the house of the Lorde, ād spake to all the people: Thus sayeth

saieth the Lorde of hostes ꝑ God of Israel: Beholde, I wyll bringe vpon this citie and vpon euery towne aboute it, all the plages
* Jerr. vii. c. and. viii. b that I haue deuised against them: * for they haue bene obstinate, and wolde not obeye my warnynges.

¶ The .xx. Chapter.

¶ Jeremye is smytten and cast into prison. for prea-chyng of the worde of God. He prophecyeth the cap-tiuytie of Babylon. He complayneth ꝑ he is a mo-kynge stocke for the worde of God. He is compelled by the spyrite to preache the worde.

A WHen Phashur ꝑ preste, the sonne of Emer, chefe in the house of ꝑ Lorde, herde Jeremy preache so stedfastly: * he smote Jeremy & put him in the stockes, that are by the hye gate of Ben Jamin, in the house of the Lorde. The nexte daye folowynge Phashur brought Jeremy out of ꝑ stockes
* Job. xviii. c Actu. xvii. a agayne. Then sayd Jeremy vnto him. The Lorde shall call the nomore Phashur (that is excellent and increasynge) but Magor (ꝑ is fearfull & afrayed) euery where. For thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde, I wyll make the afrayed, euen thy selfe, & all that fauoure ꝑ: which shall perish with the swearde of their enemies, euen before thy face.

B And I wyll geue whole Juda vnder the power of the kynge of Babylon, which shal carye some vnto Babylō prisoners, & slaye some with the swearde. * Moreouer, al the
* iiii. Reg. xx. c Jerr. xl. c. and. xvii. a substaunce of this lande, all their precious and gorgeous worckes, all costlynes, and all the treasure of the kynges of Juda: wyl I geue into ꝑ hādes of their enemies, which shall spoyle them, and carie them vnto Babylō. But as for the (O Phashur) thou shalt be caried vnto Babylō with all thine house-holde, & to Babylon shalt thou come, where thou shalt dye, and be buried: thou and al thy fauourers, to whō thou hast preached lyes. O Lorde, yf I am disceaued, then hast thou disceaued me: thou hast deale stōgly, and hast preuayled, and maiest me stronge
* Ezec. iii. b agayne. * All the daye lōge am I despised, & laughed to scorne of euery man: because I haue now preached longe agaynst malycious Tyranny, and shewed them of destruc-
* Jerr. xl. b cion. * For the whyche cause they cast the worde of the Lorde in my teeth, and take me euer to the worst.

C Wherfore, I thought frō hence forth, not to speake of him, ner to preache eny more in his name. But the worde of the Lorde was a very burnynge fyre in my hert and in my bones, whiche when I wolde haue stopped,
* Psa. xxxi. b I myght not. For why * I herde so many derisions and blasphemies on euery syde of me: complayne vpon him, saye they, and we will tell his tale, yee euen of myne awne cōpanions, and such as were conuersant with me: went about to murther me, saying vpō him, We shall one waye or other begyle him and preuayle agaynst him, and be auenged of hym.

But the Lorde stode by me, lyke a myghtie giaunt: therfore my persecutours fell, & coulde do nothing. They shalbe sore confoū ded, for they haue done vnwysely, they shal haue an euerlastinge shame. * And now, O
* Jerr. xi. b Lorde of hostes, thou ryghteous searcher (which knowest the reynes ād the very hertes:) let me se them punished, for vnto the I committe my cause.

D Synge vnto the Lorde, and prayse him, for he hath deliuered the soule of the oppres-sed, from the hande of the violent. * Cursed
* Job. iii. a Jerem. xv. b be the daye, wherin I was borne, vnhappie be the daye, wherin my mother brought me forth. Cursed be the man, that brought my father ꝑ tydinges to make him glad, sayīg: thou hast gotten a sonne. Let it happen vn-to that man, as to the cyties * which ꝑ Lorde
* Gene. xix. c turned vp syde downe. Lett him heare crye-nge in ꝑ morninge, and at none daye lamē table howlynge. Why slewest ꝑ not me, as sone as I cam out of my mothers wōbe: O that my mother had bene my graue her self, that the byrth myghte not haue come out, but remayned styll in her. * Wherfore cam
* Job. x. c I forth of my mothers wombe: To haue ex-perience of laboure and sorowe: and to lead my lyfe with shame?

¶ The .xxi. Chapter.

¶ The prophecyeth that Zedekiah shall be taken, and the cytie burned.

THese are the wordes that the Lorde A spake vnto Jeremy * what tyme as
* Jer. xxxvii. c kyng Zedekiah sent vnto hi Phashur the sonne of Melchias, and Sophonias the sonne of Maasias preste, sayinge. * I she
* iiii. Reg. xxiii. ii. par. xxxv. Jerr. xlvi. councell at the Lorde (we praye the) of our behalfe, for Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babilon beleageth vs, yf the Lorde (peradu-enture) will deale with vs, accordynge to his maruelous power, & take him from vs.

Then spake Jeremy. Geue Zedekias this answere. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God of Is-rael: beholde, I wil turne backe the weapōs that ye haue in youre handes, wherwith ye fyght agaynst the kynge of Babylon & the Caldees, which beleage you round aboute ꝑ walles, and I will bringe thē together into the myddest of this cytie, & I my selfe wyll fyght against you, with an outstreteched hā-de, & with a myghtie arme, in great displea-sure and terrible wrath: & wyll smyte thē, that dwel in this citie: yee, both men ād ca-tell shall dye of a great pestilence.

* And after this (sayeth the Lorde) I shal B deliuer Zedekias the kinge of Juda, and his
* Jer. xxxvii seruauntes, his people (and such as are esca-ped in the citie, from the pestilence, swearde and honger) into the power of Nabuchodo-nosor

noſor kynge of Babylon: yee, into the handes of theyr enemyes, into ꝓ handes of thoſe that ſolowe vpon their lyues, which ſhall ſmyte them with the ſweard, they ſhal not pytie them, they ſhall not ſpare them, they ſhall haue no mercy vpon them.

C And vnto this people ꝓ ſhalt ſaye. Thus ſayeth ꝓ Lord: * beholde, I laye before you the waye of lyfe & deeth. ‡ Who ſo abydeth in this cytie, ſhall perish: ether with ꝓ ſweard, wyth honger, or wyth peſtilence. But who ſo goeth out to holde on the Chaldees parte, that beſege it, he ſhall ſaue hys lyfe & ſhall wynne his ſoule for a pray. * For I haue ſet my face agaynſt this cytie (ſayeth the Lord) to plage it, and to do it no good. It muſt be geuen into the hande of the kyng of Babylon, and be brent with fyre.

And vnto the houſe of the kyng of Juda, ſaye thus: Heare the worde of the Lorde (O thou houſe of Dauid) for thus ſaith ꝓ Lord: * Minister ryghteouſnes, & that ſoone, deliuer the oppreſſed from violent power ‡ or euer my terrybl̃ wrath breake out lyke a fyre, and burne ſo, that no man maye quẽch it, becauſe of the wyckednes of youre ymaginacions. * Beholde (ſayeth the Lorde) I will come vpon you, that dwell in the valleyes, rockes and feldes, and ſaye. ‡ Tuſh: who will make vs afrayed: or who will come into oure houſes? For I wyll vpſet you (ſaieth the Lorde) becauſe of the wickednes of your inuencions, and wyll kyndle ſoche a fyre in youre wood, as ſhall cõſume al that is aboute you.

C The. xxii. Chapter.

C Therebuketh the kynge of Juda to iudgment and ryghteouſnesſe, why Jeruſalem is brought into captyuite. The death of Selum the ſonne of Joſua is prophecyed.

THus ſayde the Lorde, Go downe into the houſe of the kynge of Juda, & ſpeake there theſe wordes, and ſaye: Heare the worde of the Lorde, thou kyng of Juda that ſytteſt in the kyngly ſeat of Dauid: thou and thy ſeruaũtes and thy people that go in and out at this gate. Thus the Lorde cõmaundeth: * kepe equyte and righteouſneſſe, deliuer ꝓ oppreſſed frõ the power of the violent: do not greue ner oppreſſe the ſtraunger, the fatherleſſe ner the wyddow, and ſhed no innocent bloude in this place.

And yf ye kepe theſe thynges faythfully then ſhal there come in at ꝓ doze of this houſe kinges, to ſit vpõ Dauids ſeate: they ſhal be caried in Charettes & ryde vpon horſes both they and their ſeruauntes, and theyr people. But yf ye will not be obedient vnto theſe commaundemẽtes, * I ſweare by myne awne ſelfe (ſayeth the Lorde) thys houſe ſhal be waſte. For thus hath the Lorde ſpoken vpon the kynges houſe of Juda. Thou Gilead art vnto me the head of Libanus.

Shall I not make ꝓ ſo waſte (& thy cyties alſo) that no man ſhall dwell therin? I wil prepare a deſtroyer with his weapẽs for ꝓ, to hewe downe thy ſpeciall Cedre trees, & to caſt them in the fyre.

And all the people that go by this cytie, ſhal ſpeak one to another. * Wherfore hath the Lorde done thus vnto this noble cytie? Then ſhall it be anſwered: ‡ becauſe they haue broken the couenaũt of ꝓ Lorde theyr God, and haue worſhypped & ſerued ſtraũge goddes. * Mourne not ouer the deed, & be not wo for thẽ, but be ſory for hym that departeth awaye: for he cõmeth not agayne, and ſeeth his natiue countre no more.

For thus ſayeth the Lorde, as touchynge * Selum the ſonne of Joſias kynge of Juda, which raygned after his father, & is caried out of this place, he ſhal neuer come hyther agayne, for he ſhal dye in ꝓ place, whervnto he is led captiue, & ſhall ſe this lande nomore. ‡ Wo worth hi, that buyldeth hys houſe with vnrighteouſnes, & his parlers with the good ꝓ he hath gotten by vyolẽce: which neuer recompenſeth his neyghbours labour, ner payeth him his hyre. He thynketh in him ſelfe. I wyll buylde me a wyde houſe, & gorgeous parlers. He cauſeth windowes to be hewen therin, and the ſylynges and toyſtes maketh he of Cedre, and paynteth thẽ with Synaper. Thynkeſt thou to raygne, now ꝓ thou prouokeſt me to wrath with the Cedre trees?

Dydnot thy father eate and drincke, and proſpere well, as longe as he dealt wt equite and righteouſneſſe? Yee, when he helped the oppreſſed and poore to their right, thẽ proſpered he well.

From whence came thys, but onely becauſe he had me before hys eyes, ſayeth the Lorde? Neuertheles, as for thyne eyes and thyne herte, they loke vpon couetouſneſſe, to ſhed innocent bloude, to do wronge & violence. * And therfore, thus ſayeth the Lorde agaynſt Jehoakim, ꝓ ſonne of Joſias kyng of Juda. They ſhall not mourne for him (as they vſe to do) alas brother, alas ſyſter. Ner ther ſhal they ſaye vnto him: Alas ſyr, alas for that noble prince. But as an Aſſe ſhal he be buryed, corrupte and be caſt without the gates of Jeruſalem.

Clyme vp the hyll of Libanus (O thou daughter Sion) lyft vp thy voyce vpõ Basan, crye from all partes: for all thy louers are deſtroyed. I gaue the warnynge, whyle thou waſt yet in proſperyte. But thou ſaydeſt: I wyll not heare. And this maner haſt thou vſed frõ thy youth, that thou woldeſt neuer heare my voyce. All thy herdmẽ ſhalbe dryue with the wynde, and thy derlynges ſhalbe caryed awaye into captiuite. Then ſhalt thou be brought to ſhame & confuſion

becauſe

* Deut. xxiii. b iii Reg. ix. b

‡ Deu. xxix. b iii. Reg. ix. b iiii. Re. xxiii. ii. Para. xxxiv. * iiii. Reg xxiii. c

* ii Par. xxxvi. c

* Eſa. v. c Agge. i. a

* iiii. Reg xxiii. c and. xxiv. b Jere. xxvi. a because of al thy wickednes: ꝓ that dwellest vpon Libanus, & makest thy nest in ꝓ Cedre trees* O how litle shalt ꝓ be regarded whē thy sorowes & pangues come vpon the, as a woman trauelynge with childe.

*Esa. viii. b and. xxi. a Ierem. xlii. b and. xxv. a.

*As truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lorde:) Though Conanias the sonne of Jehoakim kynge of Juda were the sygnet of my right hande, yet will I plucke him of. And I will geue the into the power of them that seke to slaye the, and into the power of them that thou feareste: into the power of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, and into the power of the Caldees. Moreouer, I wyll sende the, and thy mother that bare the into a straunge lande, where ye were not borne, and there shall ye dye. But as for the lande that ye wyll desyre to returne vnto, ye shal neuer come at it agayne. This man Conanias shall be lyke an ymage robbed & torne in peces, which pleaseth noman, for all hys apparell. Wherfore both he and his sede shal be sent awaye, and cast out into a lande, that they knowe not.

*1 Mach. xxiiii. b

O thou earth, earth, earth: heare ꝓ worde of the Lorde. Thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde: Wryte this man amonge the outlawes, for no prosperite shall this man haue all his lyfe loge. Nether shall eny of his sede be so happie, as to syt vpon the seat of David, and to beare rule in Juda.

¶ The. xxiii. chapter.

¶ He speaketh agaynst euel Curates that make hauock of ꝓ flocke of ꝓ Lorde. Of the conuersion of ꝓ remnaunt of the Jewes to the farth. The commynge of the true shepherde Christ is prophecyed. Agaynst false prophetes, when a Prophete preacheth the worde of God, God conuerteth the hertes of the hearers. Agaynst Prophetes that preache ieas vnder the name of God. The practices of false Prophetes.

A

*Ezech. xxxiiii. a

WO be *vnto the shepherdes, that destroye, and scatre my flocke, sayeth ꝓ Lorde. Wherfore this is the cōmaundement of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto the shepeherdes that fede my people: Ye scatre & thrust out my flocke, & loke not vpon thē. Therfore now wyll I vyset the wickednes of youre ymagynacions, sayeth the Lorde. And wyll gather together ꝓ remnaunt of my flocke, from all landes that I had dryuen thē vnto, and will bringe them agayne to their pastures, that they maye growe and mereale. I wyll set shepherdes also ouer them, which shall fede them. They shall nomore feare and drede, for there shall none of them be lost, saieth the Lorde.

B

*Jer. xxxiii. c

*Behold, the tyme cōmeth, sayeth the Lorde, ꝓ I wyll rayse vp the *ꝛyghteous braunche of David, *which kynge shall beare rule, and be shall prosper with wysedome, & shall set vprequite & righteousnes agayne in ꝓ erth.

*Esay. xi. a

*Deu. xxviii. c

*In this tyme shall Juda be saued, and *Israell shall dwell without feare. And this is the name that they shal call him: *euen the Lorde oure ryghteousnesse.

*1 Cor. i. b

*And therfore beholde, the tyme cōmeth, sayeth the Lorde, that it shall nomore be sayde: the Lorde lyueth, which brought the chyldren of Israell out of the lande of Egypte: But the Lorde lyueth, which brought forth, and led the sede of the house of Israel, out of the North lande, and from all countrees where I had scatred thē, and they shall dwell in their awne lande agayne.

My herte breaketh in my body because of the false prophetes, al my bones shake: I am become lyke a dronken man (that by reason of wyne can take no rest) for verye fere of the Lorde, and of his holy wordes: Because the lande is full of aduoutrers & thorowe swering it mourneth * & the pleasaunt pastures of the deserte are dryed vp.

*Jer. xiii. c

C

Yee, the waye that men take, is wicked, and theyr gouernaunce is nothinge lyke the holy worde of the Lorde. For prophetes and ꝓ prestes them selues are polluted ypocrites, and theyr wyckednes haue I founde in my house, saieth ꝓ Lorde. Wherfore, their way shall be slyppery in the darcknesse, where in they maye stacker & fall. For I wyll bryng a plage vpon them, euen the yeare of theyr visitacīō saieth the Lorde. I haue sene foly amonge the Prophetes of Samaria, that they preached for Baall, and disceaued my people of Israell.

I haue sene also amonge the Prophetes of Jerusalem foule aduoutry, and presumpteous lyes. They take the most shamefull men by the hande, flattringe them, so ꝓ they cannot returne from theyr wyckednes. All these vnto me their cytesyns are vntome, as Sodome, and as the inhabitours of Gomorre.

Therfore thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde of hoostes concernynge the prophetes: * Beholde, I will fede them with wormwod, and make thē drincke the water of gall. For from the prophetes of Jerusalem is ypocrisye come into all the lande.

*Jer. ix. b

D

And therfore the Lorde of hoostes geueth you this warninge. Heare not the wordes of the prophetes, that preach vnto you, and disceaue you: surely they teache you vanyte for they speake the meanynge of their awne herte, & not out of the mouth of the Lorde. *They saye vnto thē that despyse me: The Lorde hath spokē it: Tush: ye shal prospere ryght well. And vnto all thē, that walcke after the lust of theyr awne hert, they saye: Tush, there shall no mysfortune happē you.

*Jer. xxvii. a and. xxviii. Hoseae. xi.

For who hath syttē in the councell of the Lorde, ꝓ he hath herde & vnderstande, what he is aboute to do: Who hath marcked hys worde, and herde it? *Beholde, the storme wether of ꝓ Lorde (that is, his indignacīō) shall go forth, and a vyolent whirlwynde shall fal downe vpon ꝓ heade of ꝓ vngodly.

*Jer. xxx. b

And

And the wrath of the Lorde shall not turne agayne, vntyll he perfourme and fulfyl the thoughte of hys herte. * And in the latter dayes ye shall knowe his meanynge.

I haue not sent these prophetes (saieth ꝑ Lorde) & yet they ranne. * I haue not spoke to the, and yet they preached. But yf they had continued in my councell they had opened to my people my wordes & they had turned my people frō their euell wayes & wyked ymagynacions. * Am I then God that seyth but the thinge, whiche is nye at hande, ād not that is farre of (saieth the Lorde. * Wayne eny man hyde hym selfe so ꝑ I shall not se hym (saieth the Lorde. * Do not I fulfyll heauen and earth (saieth the Lorde. I haue herde well ynough, what ꝑ prophetes saye ꝑ preache lyes in my name, sayeng: I haue dreamed, I haue dreamed. How longe wyll this continue in the prophetes hert to tell lyes, ād to preache the crafty sotylte of their awne hert: Whose purpose is (with the dreames that euery one tell) to make my people forget my name, as they? fathers dyd, when Baall came vp. The prophet that hath a dreame let hym tell it * ād he that vnderstandeth my worde, let hym shewe it faythfully.

For what hath chaffe and wheate to do together (saieth ꝑ Lorde. Is not my worde lyke a fyre, saieth the Lorde, and lyke an hammer, ꝑ breaketh the harde stone. Therfore thus saieth the Lorde: beholde, I wyll vpon the prophetes, that steale my worde priuely frō euery man: Beholde, here am I (saieth the Lorde) agaynst the prophetes, that make tunges tender to speake, & saye: The Lorde hath sayde it. Beholde, here am I (saieth the Lorde) agaynst those prophetes, ꝑ darre prophecy lyenge dreames, and disceaue my people with their vanyties, ād myracles, whom I neuer sent, ner cōmaunded them. They shall do this people greate harme, saieth the Lorde.

Yf this people, ether eny prophet or preste aske the and saye: what is ¶ the burthē of the Lorde? Thou shalt saye vnto the: what burthen? Therfore wyll I cast you fro me, (saieth ꝑ Lorde) because ye your selues are a burthen. And the prophet, preste or people that vseth this terme (the burthen of ꝑ Lorde) hym wyll I visit, and his house also.

But thus shall ye saye, euery one to another, & euery man to his brother. ¶ What answere hath ꝑ Lord geuen? or what is the Lordes comaundement? And as for ꝑ burthen of the Lorde, ye shal speake nomore of it: for euery mās awne worde is his burthē because ye haue altered the wordes of ꝑ lyuynge God the Lorde of hostes our God.

Thus shall euery man saye to the prophetes: what answere hath the Lorde geuē the? Or, what sayeth the Lorde? And not once to name the burthen of the Lorde. Therfore thus saieth the Lorde. For so moche as ye haue vsed thys terme (the burthen of the Lorde) where as I notwithstandynge sent vnto you, and forbade you to speake of the Lordes burthen.

Beholde therfore, I wyll repute you as a burthen, and will cast you out of my presence: yee, and the citie also, that I gaue you and your fathers: and will bryng you to an euerlastinge confusion, and into soch a shame, as shall neuer be forgotten.

¶ The. xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ The vysyon of the two pannyers of fygges. The first vysyon sygnyfyeth that parte of ꝑ people shuld be brought agayne from captiuyte. The second that zedekias & the rest of the people shulde be destroyed.

A The Lorde shewed me a vysion: Beholde, there stode two maundes of fygges before the temple of the Lorde, after that * Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon had led awaye captiue Jechonias the sonne of Jehoakim kynge of Juda, ꝑ myghtie men also of Juda, with the worckmaisters, and connynge men of Jerusalem, vnto Babilon. In the one maunde were very good fygges, euen lyke as those ꝑ be first ripe. In ꝑ other maūde were very naughty fygges, which might not be eaten, they were so euell. Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: what seyst thou Jeremy? I sayde * fygges, wherof some be very good, ād some so euel, that no man maye eate them.

B Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, after this maner: Thus saieth the Lorde the God of Israell: lyke as thou knowest the good figges, so shall I knowe ꝑ men led awaye, whom I haue sent out of this place into the lande of the Caldees, for their profyte: and I will set myne eyes vpon the for the best, for I wyll bryng the agayne into this lande: I wyll buylde them vp, and not breake them downe: I will plante them, ād not rote them out. * And I wyll geue them an herte, to knowe how that I am the Lorde. They shalbe my people, & I will be their God, for they shall returne vnto me with their whole herte.

C * And lyke as thou knowest the naughtie figges, which maye not be eate, they are so euell: Euen so wyll I (saieth the Lorde) let zedekias the kynge of Juda, (ye and all his princes, & the residue of Jerusalem that remayne ouer in thys lande, and them also that dwell in Egipte) to be vexed and plaged in all kyngdomes and lādes. And wyll D make them to be a * reproffe, a comē by worde, a laughynge stocke and shame, in all the places, where I shall scatter them. I wil sende the swearde, honger & pestilence amonge them, vntyll I haue cleane consumed them out of

* 3 Reg. iii xviii. d

* Deut. xxix. b

* Jere. xxiv. g

* Psa. lxxix. & Baruc. iii. a

out of the lande, that I gaue vnto them & their fathers.

¶ The .xxv. Chapter.

Hereafter prophecyeth that they shall be in captiuite .lxx. yeres, because they contemned and despised the worde of God. He sheweth that after .lxx. yeares the Babylonians shulde be destroyed. The destruccion of all nacions is prophecyed. He maketh the prouerbe of the nacions to begynne.

THE sermon that was geuen vnto Jeremy, vpon all the people of Juda. In the fourth yeare of Jehoakim the sonne of Josias kynge of Juda that was in the fyrst yeare of Nabuchodonosor kyng of Babylon. Which sermon, Jeremy the prophet made vnto all the people of Juda, and to all the inhabitours of Jerusalem, on this maner.

From the thyrtene yeare of Josias the sonne of Amon kynge of Juda, vnto this present daye (that is euen .xxiii. yeare) the worde of the Lorde hath bene comitted vnto me. * And so I haue spoken to you, I haue ryssen yearly, I haue geuen you warnynge in season, but ye wolde not heare me. ‡ Though the Lorde hath sent his seruauntes, all the prophetes vnto you in seasō. Yet wolde ye not obeye, ye wolde not enclyne youre eares to heare.

He sayde * turne agayne euery man from his euell waye, and from your wicked ymaginacions, and so shall ye dwell for euer in ꝑ lande, that the Lorde promised you & youre forefathers. And go not after straūge goddes, serue them not, worship them not, and angre me not with the worckes of your hāndes: then wyl not I punish you. Neuertheles ye wolde not heare me (sayth the Lord:) but haue defied me with ꝑ worckes of your handes, to your awne greate harme.

Wherfore thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde of hostes: * Because ye haue not herkened vnto my worde, lo, I wyll sende out, & call for all the people, that dwell in the North, sayeth the Lorde, and will prepayre Nabuchodonosor the kynge of ‡ Babylon my seruaunt, and will bringe the vpon this lande, and vpon all that dwell therin, and vpon all the people that are aboute them, and wyll vtterly rote them oute. I will make of the a wilderneſſe, a mockage, and a continuall deserte.

* Moreouer, I wyll take from them the voyce of gladneſſe and solace, the voyce of the bryde grome and the bryde, the voyce of the anoynted, with the crelbettes: and this whole lande shall become a wyldernes, and these nacions shall serue the kynge of Babylon, thre score yeares and ten. ‡ When the lxx. yeares are expired, I wyll vyset also ꝑ wyckednesse of the kynge of Babylon and his people sayeth the Lorde: yee, and the lande of the Caldees, and wyll make it a perpetuall wyldernes, and wyll fulfyll all my wordes vpon that lande, which I haue deuised agaynst it: yee, all that is wrytē in this boke, which Jeremy hathe prophecyed of all people: so that they also shall be subdued vnto diuers nacions & great kynges * for I wyll recompense them, accordynge to their dedes and worckes of their awne handes.

For thus hath ꝑ Lorde God of Israel spoken vnto me: Take this ‡ wyne cuppe of indignacion fro my hande, that thou mayest cause all the people, to whom I send the, for to drynche of it: that when they haue dronchen therof, they maye be mad, & out of their wyttes, when the swearde commeth, that I wyll sende amonge them. Then toke I the cuppe from the Lordes hande, and made all people to drynche therof, vnto whome the Lorde had sent me.

But fyrst the cytie of Jerusalem, & all the cyties of Juda, their kynges & prynces, to make them desolate, wast, despysed, & dysfased at, and cursed, accordynge as it is come to passe this daye. Yee, and Pharao ꝑ kinge of Egypte, his seruauntes, his princes and his people all together one wyth another & all kynges of the lande of Hus, all kynges of the Philistines lande, Ascalon, Azah, Accaron and ꝑ remnaunt of Asdod, ꝑ Edomites, the Moabites and the Ammonites al ꝑ kynges of Tirus & Sidō: the kinges of the Iles that are beyonde the see: Dedan, Thema, Buz & all the ꝑ dwell in the vttermost partes of ꝑ worlde: all the kinges of Arabye and (generally) all the kynges that dwel in the deserte: al the kinges of Zamri, al ꝑ kynges of Elam, all the kinges of the Medes, all kynges towarde ꝑ North, whether they be farre or nye, euery one agaynst his neyghbours: Yee, and all the kyngdomes that are vpon ꝑ whole earth. The kynge of Sezach sayde he shall drynche with them also.

Therfore saye thou vnto them: Thus is the commaundement of the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: Drincke and be dronckē, spewe and fall, that ye neuer ryse, and that thorowe the swearde, whych I wyll sende amonge you. But yf they will not receaue the cuppe of thy hande, and drynche it, then tell them: Thus doth the Lorde of hostes threaten you: drynche it ye shall, and that shortely. For lo, * I begynne to plage ꝑ cytie, that my name is geuē vnto: thincke ye then that I wyll leaue you vnpunished. Ye shal not go quyte, for why, I call for a swearde vpon all the inhabitours of the earth, sayeth the Lorde of hostes.

Therfore tell them all these wordes and saye vnto them. * The Lorde shall crye fro aboue, and let his voyce be herde from his holy habytacion. With a great noyse shall he crye

he crye from hys couete regall. He shall geue a great voyce, lyke the grape gatherers, and the sounde ther of shalbe heard vnto the endes of the worlde. For the Lorde hath a iudgement to geue vpon all people, & will holde his court of iustice with all flesh, and punish the vngodly, sayeth the Lorde.

25 For thus sayeth the Lord of hostes: * Behold, a miserable plage shall goo from one people to another, and a greate stormy water shall aryse frō all the endes of the earth. And the same daye shall the Lorde him selfe slaye them, from one ende of the earth to another. There shall no mone be made for eny of them, none gathered vp, none buryed: but shall lye as dunge vpon the grounde.

Mourne, O ye shepherdes, and crye: sprinkle youre selues with asshes, O ye rammes of the flocke: for the tyme of youre slaughter is fulfylled, that ye shall slaye one another, and you shalbe scatred, and ye shall fall lyke vessels connyngly made.

* The shepherdes shall haue no waye to flie, and the rammes of the flocke shall not escape. Then shall the shepherdes crye horyply, and the rammes of the flocke shall mourne: for the Lorde hath consumed their pasture, and they? best feldes lye deed because of ? horyble wiath of the Lord. They haue forsaken they? holdes lyke as a lyon. For they? lande is waste, because of his furiouse cruelty, and of his fearfull indignation.

¶ The.xxvj. Chapter.

¶ Jeremy mouth the people to amendement. He is take of the prophetes and priestes, and brought to iudgment. Uriah the prophete is killed of Joachim, contrary to the will of God.

1 In the begynninge of the rayne of Jehoakim the sone of Josiah kyng of Juda, came thys worde fro the Lorde, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde: * Stande in the court of the Lordes house, and speake vnto all them which (oute of the cyties of Juda) come to do worshyp in the Lordes house, all the wordes that I cōmaunde the to saye. * Loke that thou kepe not one worde backe, yf peraduenture they wyll herken, and turne euery man from hys wycked waye: * that I maye also repente of the plage, which I haue determyned to bringe vpon them, because of they? wicked inuencyons.

25 And after thys maner shalt thou speake vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde: yf ye will not obey me, to walke in my lawes, which I haue geuen you, and to heare the wordes of my seruauntes the prophetes, whō I sent vnto you, rysynge vp tymely, and styll sendynge. If ye wyll not folowe them (I saye) then I wyll do to thys house * ☞ as I dyd vnto Silo, and wyll make thys cytye to be abhorred of all the people of the earth. And the preastes, the prophetes and all the people hearde Jeremy preache these wordes, in the house of the Lorde.

Nowe when he had spoken out all the wordes that the Lorde commaunded him to preach vnto the people, then the priestes, the prophetes and all the people toke holde vpō him, and sayde: thou shalt dye. Howe dareste thou be so bolde, as to saye in the name of ? Lorde, it shall happē to thys house as it dyd vnto Silo: and thys cytye shalbe so waste, that no man shall dwell therin?

And when all the people were gathered ¶ about Jeremy in the house of the Lorde, the princes of Juda hearde of this rumour, and they came loone oute of the kynges palace, into the house of the Lord: and sat them downe before the * new dore of the Lorde. Then spake the priestes and the prophetes vnto the rulers and to all the people, these wordes: ¶ * Thys man is worthy to dye, for he hath preached agaynst thys cytye, as ye youre selues haue heard with youre eares.

* xxxvi. xxxvii. b. Jere. xxxvi. b

Then sayde Jeremy vnto the rulers and to all the people: The Lorde hath sent me to preache agaynst this house and agaynst this cytie all the wordes ? ye haue heard. Therfore amende youre wayes, and youre adupsementes, and be obedient vnto the voyce of the Lorde youre God: so shall the Lorde repente of the plage, that he hath deuised agaynst you. Nowe as for me: I am in your hādes, do with me, as ye thynke expedient and good. But this shall ye knowe: yf ye put me to death, * ye shall make youre selues, thys cytye and all the inhabytours therof, guilty of innocent bloude. For thys is of a truethe that ? Lorde hath sent me vnto you, to speake all these wordes in youre eares.

* mat. xxiii. c.

Then sayde the rulers and the people vnto the priestes and prophetes: This mā maye not be condēpned to death, for he hath preached vnto vs in the name of the Lorde oure God. The elders also of the lande stode vp, and saide thus vnto all the people: Michea the Morasthite, * which was a prophet vnder Ezechias kynge of Juda, spake to all the people of Juda. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: * Syon shalbe plowed lyke a felde, Jerusalē shalbe an heape of stones, and the hyll of the Lordes house shalbe turned to an hye wod. Dyd Ezechias the kynge of Juda, and the people of Juda put hym to death for this? No verely: * but rather feared ? Lord, and made they? prayer vnto hym. For the which cause also the Lorde repented of the plage, that he had deuysed agaynst them. Shulde we then do soch a shamefull dede agaynst oure soules? There was a prophete ¶ also, that preached stylly in the name of the Lorde, called Uriah the sonne of Semeiah of Cariathiarim: this man preached also agaynst this cytye and agaynst this lande, ac-

* micheas. i. a.

* micheas. iii. c

* Jonas. iij b

rdyng to all as Jeremy sayth. Nowe whē
* xli.xx.xlii.b * Jehoakim the kinge with all the estates & prynces had heard hys wordes, the kynge
* xli.xx.xlii.a Math.6.c went about to slaye hym. * When Uriah perceaued that, he was afrayed, and fledd, and departed into Egipte.

Then Jehoakim the kinge sent seruauntes into the lande of Egypt, namely Elnathan the sonne of Achbor, and certayne men with hym into Egipt, which fetched Uriah out of Egipt, and brought him vnto kynge Jehoakim, that slewe him with the sword, and cast hys dead body into the comen peoples graue. But Ahikam the sonne of Saphan holped Jeremye, that he came not into the handes of the people to be slayne.

¶ The.xxvij. Chapter.

¶ Jeremy, at the commaundement of the Lorde, sendeth bondes to the kynge of Juda, and to the other kynges that were nye, whereby they are monished to become subiectes vnto Nabuchodonosor. He warneth the people and ꝑ kinges and rulers, that they beleue not false prophetes.

IN the begynninge of the reygne of Jehoakim the sone of Josiah kyng of Juda, came this word vnto Jeremy from the Lorde, which spake thus vnto me: Make the bondes and chaynes, and put them about thy necke, and send them to the kynge of Edom, to the kynge of Moab, to the kynge of Ammon, to the king of Tirus, and to the kynge of Sidon: and that by the messengers, which shall come to Jerusalem vnto Zedekiah the kinge of Juda: and byd them saye vnto theyr masters: Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel: speake thus vnto your masters: * I
* Deut.4.c am he that made the earth, the men and the catell that are vpon the grounde, with my great power and outestretched arme, and haue geuen it vnto whō it pleased me. * And
* Gene.1.a Judic.11.b 3.Esdr.viii.a. Dani.iii.c. 2.Esdr.vii.b. now will I delyuer all these landes into the power of Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon * my seruaunt. The beastes also of the feilde shall I geue hym to do hym seruyce.
* Jere.xvi.b xxviii.a.and xlix.c * And all people shall serue hym, & hys sonne, and his children children, vntill the tyme of the same lāde become also: yet, many people and great kinges shall serue him.

Moreouer, that people and kyngdome, which wyll not serue Nabuchodonosor, and that wyll not putt theyr neckes vnder the yocke of the kyng of Babilon: the same people wyll I vysit with the swearde, with hōger, with pestilence, vntyll I haue consumed them in hys handes, sayeth the Lorde.
* Jer.xxix.c and xxxi.b * And therfore, folowe not your prophetes, sothesayers, expounders of dreames, charmers and wytches: which saye vnto you: ye shall not serue the kynge of Babylon. For they preache you lyes: to brynge you farre from your lande, and that I might cast you out, and destroye you. But the people that put theyr neckes vnder the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serue hym, those I will let remayne styll in their awne lande, sayth the Lorde, and they shall occupye it, and dwell therin.

All these thynges tolde I Zedekiah the king of Juda, and saye: * Put your neckes ¶ * ii.xxviii. vnder the yocke of the king of Babilon, and serue him and his people, that ye maye lyue. Why wyll thou and thy people perysh with the swearde, with honger, with pestylence: lyke as the Lorde hath deuysed for all people, that wyll not serue the kynge of Babylō? * Therfore, geue no eare vnto those pro- * Jere.xxvii. phetes, that tell you: ye shall not serue the kyng of Babylon: for they preache you lies: nether haue I sente them, sayeth the Lorde. Howbeit they are bolde, falsely to prophecy in my name: that I myght the sooner dryue you out, and that ye myght perysshe with yo preachers. I spake to the preistes also, and to all the people. Thus sayth the Lorde: Heare not the wordes of those prophetes, ꝑ preache vnto you, and saye: Beholde, * for the ves- * Jere.xxvii. selles of the Lordes house shall shortlye be brought hyther agayne from Babilon. For they prophecye lyes vnto you. Heare them not, but serue the kynge of Babylon, that ye maye lyue. Wherfore wyll ye make thys cytye to be destroyed? But yf they be true prophetes in very dede, and yf the worde of the Lorde be committed vnto them, then let them praye the Lorde of hostes, that the remnaunt of the ornamentes (which are in the house of the Lorde, and remayne yet in the house of the kynge of Juda and at Jerusalem) be not caryed to Babylon also: For thus hath the Lorde of hoostes spoken concernynge the pyllers, the lauer, the seate and the residue of the ornamentes that yet remayne in thys cytye, which Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon tolde not, * when * iii.Reg. xxiiii.c he caryed awaye Jechoniah the sonne of Jehoakim king of Juda with all the power of Juda and Jerusalem, from Jerusalem vnto Babylon, captyue.

Yee, thus hath the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel spoken, as touchynge the residue of the ornamentes of the Lordes house, of the kynge of Judaes house, and of Jerusalem. * They shalbe caryed vnto Babi- * iii.Reg. xxv.c lon, and there they shall remayne ¶ vntyll ¶ * Esdr.i. I vysit them, sayeth the Lorde. * Then wyll I brynge them hyther agayne. And thys was done in the same yeare, euen in the begynnynge of the raygne of Zedekiah kynge of Juda.

¶ The.xxviij. Chapter.

¶ The false prophecye of Hananiah the prophete. Jeremye sheweth that the prophecye of Hananiah is false, by example of the other prophetes. He beynge inspyred of the Lorde, reproueth Hananiah, prophecyinge hys death.

But

A But in the.iiij. yeare of the raygne of Zedekiah kinge of Juda, in the v. moneth, it happened ꝑ Hananiah the sonne of Azur ꝑ prophet of Gibeō, spake to me in the house of the Lorde, in the presence of the prestes, & of all the people, and sayde: Thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: I haue broken the yocke of the king of Babylon, * & after two yeare will I bringe agayne into this place: all the ornamentes of the Lordes house, that Nabuchodonosor king of Babylon caried awaye from this place vnto Babilon. Yee, I will bringe agayne Iechoniah the sonne of Iehoakim ꝑ kinge of Juda hym selfe, with all the presoners of Juda (that are caryed vnto Babilon) euen into thys place, sayth the Lorde: for I will breake the yocke of the kinge of Babylon.

Then the prophet Jeremy gaue answere B vnto the prophet Hananiah, before the prestes and before all the people that were present in the house of the Lord. * And the prophete Jeremy sayde: Amen, the Lorde do ꝑ, and graunte the thyng which thou hast prophecyed: that he maye bryng agayne all the ornamentes of the Lordes house, and restore all the presoners from Babylon into this place. Neuertheiesse, herken thou also, what I will saye, that thou and all the people maye heare. The prophetes that were before vs in tyme past, which ꝓphecyed of warre, or trouble, or pestilence, ether of peace, vpō many nacyons and great kingdomes, were prouoked by thys (ꝑ God had sende thē in very dede) * when the thynge came to passe, which that prophete tolde before.

C And Hananiah the prophet toke ꝑ chayne from the prophete Jeremyes necke, and brake it, and with that sayde Hananiah, ꝑ all the people might heare. Thus hath the Lorde spoken: Euen so will I breake ꝑ yocke of Nabuchodonosor king of Babilon, from the neck of all nacions: yee, and that within this two yeare. And so the prophet Jeremye went his waye. Nowe after that Hananiah the prophete had taken the chayne from the prophete Jeremyes necke, and broke it. The worde of the Lorde came vnto the prophete D Jeremy, saieng: Go, and tell Hananiah thes wordes. Thus sayth the Lorde. Thou hast broken the chayne of wodd: but in steade of wodd thou shalt make cheynes of yron. For thus sayth the Lord of hoostes the God of Israel: I will put a yocke of yron vpō the neck of all this people, that they maye serue Nabuchodonosor the king of Babilon: yee, and so shall they do. And I will geue hym the beastes in the felde. Then sayde the prophet * Jeremy vnto the prophet Hananiah: * heare me Hananiah: The Lorde hath not sent ꝑ but thou bringest this people into a false beleue. And therfore thus sayth the Lorde: beholde, I will sende the out of the lande, and within a yeare thou shalt dye, because thou hast falsely spoken agaynst the Lorde. So Hananiah the prophete dyed the same yeare in the seuenth moneth.

¶ The.xxix. Chapter.

¶ The pitie of Jeremy, sent vnto them that were in captiuite in Babylon. He prophecyeth their returne from captiuite after.lxx. yeares. He prophecyeth the destruccyon of the kynge and of the people that remayned in Jerusalem. He threatneth two prophetes that seduced the people. The death of Semeiah the Nehelamite is prophecyed.

These are the wordes of the boke, A that Jeremy the prophet sent frō Jerusalem vnto the presoners, ꝑ senatoures, prestes, prophetes, & all the people, whō Nabuchodonosor had led vnto Babilon: after that time that king Iechoniah and his quene, his chāberlaynes, the princes of Juda and Jerusalem, the workemasters of Jerusalem were departed thyther. Which boke Elasah the sonne of Saphan, and Gamariah the sonne of Helkiah dyd beare, whō zedekiah ꝑ kyng of Juda sent vnto Babilon to Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babilon: these were the wordes of Jeremyes boke.

Thus hath the Lorde of hoostes the God B of Israel spoke vnto all the presoners, that were led from Jerusalem vnto Babylon: * buylde you houses to dwel therin: plāte you gardēs, that ye maye eniope the frutes therof: * take you wyues, to beare you sonnes & daughters, prouyde wyues for your sonnes and husbādes for your daughters that they maye get sonnes and daughters, and that ye maye multiplye there. Labour not to be fewe, but seke after peace and prosperite of ꝑ citye, wherin ye be presoners, * & praye vnto God for it. For in ꝑ peace therof, shall yō peace be. For thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel. * Let not these prophetes and sothsayers ꝑ be amōg you disceaue you: & beleue not your awne dreames. For why? * they preache you lyes in my name, and I haue not sent them, sayth the Lorde.

But thus sayth the Lorde: * Whē ye haue fulfylled.lxx. yeares at Babylon, I will bringe you home, & of myne awne goodnes I will carye you hyther agayne into thys place. For I know what I haue deuised for you, sayth the Lorde. My thoughtes are to geue you peace, and not trouble (which I geue you all ready, and that ye myght haue hope agayne. * Ye shall crye vnto me, ye shall go and call vpon me, and I shall heare you. ‡ Ye shall seke me and fynde me. Yee, yf so be that ye seke me with your whole hert, I will be founde of you, sayth the Lorde, and will delyuer you oute of presō, and gather you together agayne out of all places, wherin I haue scatered you, sayeth the Lorde, and wyll bryngе you agayne to the same place, frō whence I caused you to be caried awaye captyue. But where as ye saye, ꝓ God hath raised you vp prophetes at Babilon. Thus hath the Lorde spoken to the kinge that sytteth in the throne of Dauid, and to all the people that dwell in this cytye, youre brethren * that are not gone with you into captiuytie. Thus (I saye) speaketh the Lord of hostes: Beholde, * I wyll sende a swearde, honger and pestilence vpon them, and wyll make them lyke vntuncly fygges, ꝓ maye not be eaten for bitternes. And I will persecute them with the swearde, with honger, and pestilence.

* 3.reg.22. 4.reg.25.b

* Ie.xxiiii.b

I will delyuer them vp to be vexed of all kingdomes, to be cursed, abhorred, laughed to scorne, and put to confusyō of all the people, amonge whom I haue scatered thē: and that because they haue not bene obedient vnto my commaundementes, sayth the Lorde, which I sente vnto them by my seruauntes the prophetes. * I stode vp early, and sent vnto them: but they wolde not heare, sayeth the Lorde. Heare therfore the worde of the Lorde, all ye prisoners, whom I sente from Jerusalem vnto Babilon. Thus hath the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel spoken of Achab the sonne of Colaiah, and of Zedekiah the sonne of Maasiah, which prophecye lyes vnto you in my name. Beholde, I wyll deliuer them into the hande of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon, that he maye slaye them before youre eyes. And all the prisoners of Juda, that are in Babilon shall take vpon them terme of cursynge, and saye: Howe God do vnto the, as he dyd vnto Zedekiah and Achab, whom the king of Babilon rosted in the fyer, because they synned shamefully in Israel.

* Jere.xxix.a and.xxxii.a

E

For they haue not onely defiled their neyghbours wyues, but also preached lyinge wordes in my name, which I haue not commaunded them. This I testifye, and assure, sayth the Lorde. But as for Semeiah the Nehelamite thou shalt speake vnto hym.

N

Thus sayth ꝓ Lord of hostes the God of Israel: Because thou hast sealed letters vnder thy name vnto all ꝓ people that is at Jerusalem, and to Sophoniah the sone of Maasiah the preste: yee, & sent them to all the prestes: wherin thou wrytest thus vnto hym: The Lorde hath ordeyned the to be preste in the stead of * Jehoiada the preste: that thou shuldest be the chefe in the house of the Lord above all prophetes, and preachers, and ꝓ ꝓ mightest set them vpon the pillery, or in the stockes. Howe happeneth it then, that ꝓ hast not reproued Jeremye of Anathoth, which neuer leaueth of his prophecienge. And beside all this, he hath sent vs worde * vnto Babilon, and tolde vs playnely, that oure

* iiii.reg.xi.a ii.par.xxiii.a

* Jere.xxix.c

captiuite shall longe endure: that we shulde buylde vs houses to dwell therin: & to plāte vs gardens that we maye enioye the frutes therof. Which lettre Sophoniah the preaste redde, and let Jeremy the prophete heare it.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremy, sayinge: Sende worde to all them that be in captiuyte, on thys maner: Thus hath the Lorde spoken concerning Semeiah the Nehelamite: * Because that Semeiah hath prophesyed vnto you without my cōmyssiō, & brought you into a fals hope, therfore thus the Lorde bothe certifye you: Beholde, I will viset Semeiah the Nehelamite, and his seede: so that none of hys shall remayne amonge this people, and none of the shall se the good, that I will do for this people, sayth the Lorde. For he hath preached falsely of the Lorde.

G

* Jer.xxix.

The.xxx.Chapter.

The retourne of the people from Babilon. God by hys chastenyng sheweth that the people is synfull. The destruccyon of the enemyes of Israel.

THese are the wordes, that the Lord shewethe vnto Jeremye, sayinge: Thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: * Wryte vp diligently all the wordes, that I haue spoken vnto the, in a booke. For lo, the tyme commeth, sayth the Lorde, that I wyll bryng agayne the prisoners of my people of Israel and Juda, sayth the Lord. For I wyll restore them vnto the lande, that I gaue to theyr fathers, & they shall haue it in possession.

A

* Jere.xxx.

Agayne, these wordes spake the Lorde, concerning Israel and Juda: Thus sayth ꝓ Lorde: We haue hearde a terrible crye, feare and disquietnes. For what elles do thys signifye, that I se? Namely, that all stronge men smyte, euery man hys hande vpon hys loynes, as a womā in the paine of her trauayle. Who euer sawe a man trauayle with childe? Enquyre therafter, and se. Yee, all their facers are maruelous pale.

c

* Jere.xlix.

Alas for this daye, which is so dredefull that none maye be likened vnto it: and alas for the tyme of Jacobs trouble, frō ꝓ which he shall yet be delyuered. For in that daye, sayth the Lorde, I will take his yocke from of thy neck, & breake thy bondes: And strangers shall nomore serue hym: but they shall do seruice vnto God theyr Lorde, and to * Dauid theyr kynge, whom I wyll rayse vp vnto them. ‡ And as for the, O my seruaunt Jacob, feare not, sayth the Lorde, and be not afrayed, O Israel. For lo, I wyll helpe the also from farre, and thy seed from the lande of their captiuytie.

B

* Jere.xxxiii.

‡ Jere.xlvi.

And Jacob shall turne agayne, he shalbe in rest, and haue a prosperous lyfe, & no man shall make him afrayed. For I am with the to helpe the, sayth the Lorde. * And though

* Amos.ix.

I shall

I shall destroie all the people, amõge whom I haue scatered the, yet wyll I not destroye the, but correcte the, *and that with discretion. For I knowe that thou art in no wyse *without faute. Therfore thus sayth the Lord: Thy bruisinges are perylous, & thy woundes ready to call ꝑ in to sickines. Ther is no man to medle with thy cause, or to lay plaster vpon the, or to bynde vp thy woundes: there maye no man helpe the.

All thy louers haue forgotte the, and care nothynge for the. For I haue geuen the a cruell stroke, and chastened the roughly: and that for the multitude of thy mysdedes: for thy synnes haue had the ouer hande. Why makest thou mone for thy harme? in dede, thou art sore wounded & in ieopardye: *but for the multitude of thy mysdedes and synnes, I haue done this vnto the:

*And therfore, all they that deuoure the, shalbe deuoured: and all thyne enemies shal be led into captiuite. All they that make the waste, shalbe wasted them selues, & all those that robbe the, wyll I make also to be robbed. For I wyll geue the thy health agayne and make thy woundes whole, sayeth the Lorde: because they reuyled the, as one cast awaye and despised, Syon (sayde they) is she whom no man regardeth.

D For thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde, *I will bring agayne the captiuytie of Jacobs tentes, and defende his dwelling place. The citye shalbe buylded in her olde estate, and ꝑ houses shall haue their ryght foundacion, And out of them shall go thakesgeuing, and the voyce of ioye.

I will multiplye them, and they shall not be fewe. I shall endue them with honoure, & no man shall subdue them. Theyr chyldren shalbe as a fore tyme, and their cõgregacion shall cõtinue in my syght. And all those that vexe them, wyll I vysit.

*A captayne also shall come of them: and a prynce shall sprynge out from the myddest of them: hym will I chalẽge to my selfe, and he shall come vnto me. *For what is he, ꝑ grueth ouer his hert to come vnto me? sayth the Lorde. *Ye shalbe my people also, and I wilbe youre God. *Beholde, on the other syde shall the wrath of the Lorde breake out as a stormy water as a mighty whirle winde: and shall fall vpon the heades of the vngodly.

The terrible displeasure of the Lorde shall not leaue of, vntyll he haue done, and performed the intent of hys herte, *which in the latter dayes ye shall vnderstande. At the same tyme, sayth the Lord, shall I be the God of all the generatyons of Israel, and they shalbe my people.

¶ The .xxxj. Chapter.

¶ He prophecyeth that the people of Israel shalbe restored agayne vnto their prosperitie. To be turned from synne is the gyfte of God. The birth of Christ is prophecyed. All the lynckes shall bye in their vnkindnes. The new testamẽt and couenaunt is prophecyed. The christian are taught and instructe of the Lorde. Ouer synnes shall so be remytted, that they not ones be thought on. God promyseth, that he wyll call of the Jewes. The buyldynge agayne of Jerusalem.

THus sayeth the Lorde: *The people of Israel, which escaped in the wildernesse from the swearde, founde grace to come into theyr rest. Euẽ so shall the Lorde now also apeare vnto me from farre, and saye: *I loue the with an euerlasting loue, therfore, by my mercye I haue drawen the to me. I will repayre the agayne, O thou daughter of Israel, ꝑ thou mayest be fast and sure. Thou shalt take thy tabrettes agayne, and go forth with them, that leade the daunce.

Thou shalt plante vynes agayne vpon ꝑ hylles of Samaria, and the grape gatherers shall plante, and commenly eate of it.

For the dayes shall come when the watchemen vpon the mount of Ephraim shall crye: *aryse, let vs go vp vnto Sion to our Lorde God, for thus sayth the Lorde: Reioyce with gladnes because of Jacob, crie vnto the head of the Gentils: speake out, syng, and saye: O Lorde saue thy people, the remnaunt of Israel, and make them whole. Beholde, I wyll bringe them agayne from out of the north lande, and gather them from the endes of the worlde, with the blynde and lame that are amonge them, with the wemen that be great with chylde, and soch as be also delyuered: and the company of them that come agayne, shalbe greate.

They shall come weping and with mercyfull pitye wyll I bring the hyther agayn. I wyll leade them to the ryuers of water in a straycht waye, where they shall not stomble. *For I am Israels father, & + Ephraim is my fyrst borne.

Heare the worde of the Lorde, O ye Gẽtiles, preach in the yles, that lye farre of, and saye: he that hath scatered Israel, shall gather hym together agayne, & shall kepe hym as a shepherde doth his flocke. For the Lord hath redemed Jacob, and eyd hym from the hande of the violent. And they shall come, & reioyce vpon the hyll of Sion, and shall haue plenteousnes of goodes, which the Lorde shall geue the. Namely, wheate, wyne, oyle, yõge shepe & calues. And theyr cõstitucõ shalbe as a well watred garden, for they shall nomore be hongrye.

Then shall the mayde reioyce in the daũce, yee, both yonge and olde folkes. For I wyll turne their sorowe into gladnesse, and wyll conforte them from theyr sorowes and make them ioyfull. I wyll powre pitefulnesse vpon the hertes of the prestes, and my people shalbe satisfyed with my goodnesse, sayth the Lorde

Thus sayth the Lorde: ☞ * The voyce of heuynes, weping and lamentatiō was heard on hye: euen of Rachel mournyng for her children, and wolde not be conforted, because they were awaye. * Jere.xl.c. Math.ij.c

But nowe, sayth the Lorde, leaue of frō weppynge and crienge, withholde thyne eyes from teares, for ☞ thy labour shalbe rewarded, sayth the Lorde. And they shall come agayne out of the lande of their enemies: Yet, euen thy posterite shall haue consolation in this, sayth the Lorde, ꝑ thy children shall come agayne into their awne lande.

Moreouer, I heard Ephraim, that was led awaye captiue, cōplayne on this maner: * O Lorde, thou hast correct me, & thy chastenynge haue I receaued, ☞ as an vntamed calfe. * Conuerte thou me, and I shalbe conuerted: for thou art my Lorde God. Yee, assone as thou turnest me, I shall returne my selfe: and when I vnderstande, I shall smyte vpon my thyghe. For verely I haue commytted shamefull thinges. For I haue borne the reproche and cōfusion of my youth. * Deut.xxx.c. ☞ Jerme.v.c. Zacha.i.a

D Upon this complaynte, I thought thus by my selfe: * is not Ephraim my deare sonne? Is he not the childe, with whom I haue had all myrth and pastyme? For sens the time ꝑ I first cōmened with hym, I haue him euer in remēbraunce: therfore, my very hert dryueth me vnto him, gladly and louyngly wyll I haue mercy vpon him, sayth ꝑ Lord. Set the watchmen, prouyde teachers for ꝑ, set thyne hert vpon the ryght waye, ꝑ thou shuldest walke, and turne agayn, O ꝑ daughter of Israel, turne agayne to these cityes of thyne. Howe longe wilt thou go astraye, O thou shrynking daughter? For the Lord wyll worke a newe thing vpō earth. A woman shall compasse a man. * Gen.xlviij.b

For thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: It wyll come therto, ꝑ when I haue brought Juda out of captiuite, these wordes shalbe heard in the lande and in hys cityes. The Lorde, which is the fayre * habytacrome of ryghtwolnes, make ꝑ trufull, O thou holy hyll. And there shall dwell Juda, and all her cityes, ꝑ shepherdes, and husbandemen. For * I shall fede the hongrye soule, and refresh all faynte hertes. When I heard thys, I came agayne to my selfe, I musyd, lyke as I had bene waked oute of a swete slepe. G * Esa.xlii.a. * Esa.lvij.b.a. and b.xl.c

Beholde, sayth the Lorde, the dayes come, that I wyll sawe the house of Israel, & the house of Juda, with men and with catell. * Yet, it shall come therto, that lyke as I haue gone about in tymes past to rote the out, to shatre them, to breake them downe, to destroye them, and chasten them. Euen so wyll I also go diligently aboute, to buylde them vp agayne, & to plante them, sayth the Lorde. * Then shall it nomore be sayde: the fathers haue eate a sower grape, and the childrens teeth are set on edge: for euery one shall dye for hys awne myssedede, so ꝑ whoso eateth a sowre grape, hys teeth shalbe set on edge. * Beholde, the dayes come, sayth the Lorde, that I wyll make ☞ a newe couenaunt with the house of Israel, and with the house of Juda: not after the couenaūt that I made with their fathers, when I toke the by ꝑ hande: and led the out of the lande of Egypt: which couenaunt they brake: yee, euen when I was an husbande had rule ouer them, sayeth the Lorde. * But this shalbe the couenaūt that I wyll make with the house of Israel after those dayes, sayth the Lorde. * I will plante my lawe in the inward partes of them, and wryte it in their hertes, & wilbe their God, and they shalbe my people. * Ezech.xxxvi.b. * Esa.li.b. ☞ Jere.xxxi. with xxxij.b

And from thens forth, shall no mā teach his neyghbour or his brother, & saye: knowe the Lorde. But they shall all knowe me frō the lowest vnto the hyest, sayth ꝑ Lorde. For I will forgeue their myssededes, and will neuer remēbre their synnes eny more. Thus sayth the Lorde, which gaue the * sunne to be a lyght for the daye, and the moone and starres to shyne in the night: which moueth the see, so that the floudes therof ware fearce: his name is the Lorde of hoostes. Like as this ordinaunce shall neuer be taken oute of my syght, sayth the Lorde. So shall the sede of Israel neuer ceasse, but all waye be a people before me. * Gen.i.d

Moreouer, thus sayth the Lorde: lyke as the heauen aboue cannot be measured, & as G the foundaciōs of the earth beneth maye not be sought out. * So wyll I also not cast out the whole sede of Israel, for that they haue commytted, sayeth the Lorde. Beholde, the dayes come, sayth the Lord, that the citye of the Lorde shalbe enlarged from the * towre of Hananeel, vnto the gate of ꝑ corner wall: From thens shall the ryght measure be take before her vnto the hyll toppe of * Gareb, & shal come about Gaath, and the whole valley of the dede carkases, and of the ashes, and all the feldes vnto the broke of Cedron: and vnto the corner of the horsgate towarde the east, where as the sanctuary of the Lorde also shalbe set. And when it is nowe buylded, and set vp of thys fashyon, it shall neuer be broken, nor cast downe any more. * Jere.xxxi. * ij.Esd.iij. Zacha.xiij. * Jere.xxxi.

The.xxxij. Chapter.

¶ Jeremy is cast into prison, because he prophecyed that the citye shulde be taken of the kynge of Babylon. By the felde that Jeremy bought at the cōmaundement of the Lorde, is signyfyed, that the people shulde come agayne to their awne possession. The people of God are hys seruauntes, and he is their Lorde. To feare God, is Goddes gyfte, to the entent that synnes maye be eschued.

Their

THese wordes spake the Lorde vnto Jeremy, in the .x. yeare of Zedekiah king of Juda: which was the xviij. yeare of Nabuchodonosor, what tyme as the kyng of Babylons hoost layed seage vnto Jerusalē. But Jeremy the prophet laye bounde in the courte of the prison, which was in the king of Judas house: where zedekiah the kyng of Juda caused hym to be layed, because he had prophecyed of this maner: Thus sayeth the Lorde: *Beholde, I wyll delyuer this citye into the hādes of the kyng of Babilō, which shall take it. As for zedekiah the kynge of Juda: he shall not be able to escape the Chaldees: but surely he shall come into the handes of the kyng of Babylon: which shall speake vō him mouth to mouth: and one of the shall loke another in ꝑ face. And zedekiah shalbe caryed vnto Babylon, and there shall he be, vntyll the tyme that I viset hym, sayth the Lorde. But yᵗ ꝑ take ye in hande to fyght agaynst ꝑ Chaldees, thou shalt not prosper.

And Jeremy sayde: thus hath the Lorde spoken vnto me: Behold, Hananeel the sonne of Seluni thyne vncles sonne, shall come vnto the, and requyre the to redeme the lāde that lyeth in Anathoth vnto thy selfe: *for by reason of kynred it is thy right to redeme it, and to bye it out.

And Hananeel myne vncles sonne came to me in the court of the prison, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, and sayde vnto me: Bye my lande, I praye the, that lieth in Anathoth in the contrey of Beniamin: for by heritage thou haste ryght to loose it oute for thy selfe, therfore redeme it. Then I perceaued that thys was the commaundement of the Lorde, and so I bought the lāde from Hananeel of Anathoth, myne vncles sonne, and weied him there the money: euen seuen sycles and ten syluer pence.

I caused hym also to make me a writing and to seale it: and called recorde therby, and weyed hym there the money vpon the waygbtes. So I toke the euidence with the coppe, when it was orderlye sealed and redde ouer, and I gaue the euidence vnto Baruch the sonne of Neriah the sonne of Maasiah in the syght of Hananeel my cosyne, and in the presence of the witnesses, that be named in the euidence: and before all the Jewes that were therby in the courte of the prison.

I charged Baruch also before them sayinge: The Lord of hoostes the God of Israel commaundeth the, to take thys sealed euydence with the copie: and to laye it in an earthen vessell, that it maye longe continue.

For the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel hath determyned that houses, felds, and vyneyardes shalbe possessed agayne in this lande.

Now when I had deliuered the euidence vnto Baruch ꝑ sonne of Neriah, I besought the Lorde, sayinge: O Lord God, *it is thou that hast made heauen and earth with thy greate power and hie arme, and there is nothyng hyd from the. *Thou shewest mercy vpon thousandes, thou recōpencest the wickednes of the fathers, into the bosome of the childzen that come after them. D

Thou art the greate and mighty God, whose name is the Lorde of hoostes: greate in councell, and excellent in worcke. Thyne eyes loke vpon all the wayes of mens chyldzen, *to reward euery one after his waye: ꝙ accordyng to the frutes of his inuencions.

*Thou haste done greate tokens and wonders in the lande of Egypte, as we se thys daye, vpō the people of Israel and vpō those men: to make thy name greate, as it is come to passe thys daye. Thou hast brought thy people of Israel oute of ꝑ land of Egipt, with tokens, with wonders, with a myghtye hande, with a stretched out arme and wō greate terriblenes: and hast geuen them this lande, lyke as thou haddest promysed vnto their fathers. Namely, that thou woldest geue them a lande, that floweth with mylke and honye.

*Nowe when they came therin, and possessed it, they folowed nott thy voyce, and walcked not in thy lawe, *but all that thou commaundedest them to do, that haue they not done, and therfore come all these plages vpon them.

Beholde, there are bull worckes made now agaynst the citye, to take it: and it shal be wōne of the Chaldees that besege it, with swearde, with honger and death, and looke what thou hast spoke, that same shall come vpon them.

For lo, all thynges are present vnto the. E
Yet (sayst thou vnto me, O Lorde God) and commaundest me, that I shall loose a pece of lande vnto my selfe, and take witnesses therto: and yet in the meane season the citye is delyuered into the power of the Chaldees.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, sayinge: Beholde, I am the Lorde God of all flesche, is there eny thynge then to hard for me? Therfore thus saith the Lorde: *beholde, I shall delyuer thys citye into the power of the Chaldees, and into the power of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, they shall take it in. For the Chaldees shall come, and wynne thys citye, and sett fyer vpon it, and burne it: with the gorgeous houses, in whose parlers they haue made sacrifyce vnto Baal, and powred drynckoffe-rynges vnto straunge Goddes, to prouoke me vnto wrath.

For seyng the chyldzen of Israel, and the chyldzen of Juda haue wrought wickednes before me euer frō theyr youth vp, what haue they els done, but prouoked me w̄ ꝑ workes of their awne handes? sayth the Lorde.

Or, what hath this cytye bene elles but a prouoking of my wrath, euer (☞) sence the daye that they buylded it, vnto thys houre wherin I cast it out of my sight, because of the great blasphemyes of the children of Israel & Juda, which they haue done to prouoke me: yee, they, their kynges, their prynces, their preistes, their prophetes, the men of Juda, and the cytesyns of Jerusalem.

F
* Jerr.9.b
* When I stode vp early, and taught thē and instructed them, they turned their backes to me, and not theyr faces. They wolde
‡ Jerr.bii.d
not heare, to be reformed and correct: ‡ but set their ydols in ꝑ house, that is halowed vnto my name, to defyle it. They haue buylded hye places for Baal in the valley of the chyldren of Hennom, to vowe theyr sonnes and daughters vnto Moloch: which I neuer commaunded them: nether came it euer in my thoughte, to make Juda synne with soch abhominatyon.

And nowe therfore, thus hath the Lorde God of Israel spoken, concernynge this cytie, which (as ye youre selues confesse) shalbe delyuered into the hande of the kynge of
* Deut.xxv.a Babylon, when it is wonne with the swearde, with hōger and with pestilence. * Beholde, I will gather them together from all landes, wherin I haue scatered them in my wrath in my fearfull and great displeasure: and wyll bring them agayne vnto thys place, where they shall dwell safely. And they shalbe my people, and I wilbe their God.

G
* And I wyll geue thē one hert and one
* Psal.cxxx.c
waye, that they maye feare me all the daies of their lyfe, that they and their chyldren af-
* ver.xxxvi.c
ter them maye prospere. * And I wyll sett vp an euerlastyng couenaunt with thē. Namelye, that I wyll neuer cease to do them good, and that I wyll put my feare in their
* Deu.xxxii.b
Jerr.xxxi.c
hertes, so that they shall not runne awaye from me. * Yee, I will haue a lust and pleasure to do thē good, and faythfully plāte them in this lande with my whole hert and with all my soule.

For thus sayth the Lorde: lyke as I haue brought all this great plage vpon this people, euen so wyll I also bring vpon them all ꝑ good, that I haue promised thē. And men shall haue their possessiōs in this lāde, wherof ye saye nowe, that it shall nether be inhabited of people ner of catell: but be deliuered into the handes of the Chaldees. Yee, lande shalbe bought for money, & euidēces made therupon, and sealed before witnesses in the countrey of Beniamin, and rounde aboute Jerusalem, in the cities of Juda, in the cities that are vpon the mountaynes, and in them that lye beneth: yee, and in ꝑ cityes that are in the south. For I wyll bringe their prisoners hither agayne, sayth the Lorde.

¶ The .xxxiij. Chapter.

¶ The prophete is mouyshed of the Lorde, to praye for the deliuerance of the people, which the Lorde prompteth. God forgeueth synnes, and doth gracyously to the people, for his awne renowne. Of the byrth of Christ. The kyngdome of Christ in ꝑ church shall neuer be ended.

MOreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto Jeremy on thys maner, * when he was yet bound in the court of ꝑ prison. Thus sayth the Lorde, which fulfilleth the thing that he speaketh: the Lorde which performeth the thing that he taketh in hand: euen he, whose name is the Lorde: * crye vnto me, & I wyll answere, and shewe the great and hye thinges, which were vnknowen vnto the.

A
* Jerr.xx.a and.xxxvi.a
* Exo.xiii.a 1.Reg.viii.a

Thus (I saye) spake the Lorde God of Israel concerninge the houses of thys cytye, and the houses of the kinges of Juda, ꝑ they are broken thorowe the ordinaunce and the swearde. Because the enhabitours of this cytie haue come to fight against the Chaldees: and they are fylled with the dead karcases of men, whom I haue sleyne in my wrath and displeasure: when I turned my face frō thys cytye, because of all her wickednes. Behold, sayth the Lorde, I wyll repayre & heale their woundes, and make thē whole: I will open them the large treasure of peace and trueth.

And I will returne the captiuytie of Juda and Israel: and wyll set them vp agayne as they were afore. * From all mysdedes, wherin they haue offended agēst me, I will clense thē. And all their blasphemyes which they haue done agaynst me, whē they regarded me not, I will forgeue them.

* Eze.xxxvi.b

B

And thys shall get me a name, a prayse, & honoure among all the people of the earth, which shall heare all the good, that I wyll shewe vnto them: yee, they shall be afrayed and astonyed at all the good dedes and benefytes that I wyll do for them. Moreouer, thus sayth the Lorde: * In this place, wherof ye saye that it shalbe a wyldernes, wherin nether people ner catell shall dwell: in like maner in the cityes of Juda & without Jerusalem (which also shalbe so voyde, that nether people ner catell shall dwell there) shall ꝑ voyce of gladnes be harde agayne, the voyce of the brydegrome & of the bryde, the voyce of them that shall singe: * Prayse the Lorde of hoostes, for he is louynge and hys mercy endureth for euer: and the voyce of them that shall offer vp giftes in the house of the Lorde. For I will restore the captiuitie of this lande, as it was afore, sayth the Lorde. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes: It shall come yet therto, that in thys lande, which is voyde from men and catell, and in all the cityes of the lande, there shalbe set vp shepherdes cotages: in the cityes vpon the mountay-

* Jerr.xl.a
* psa.cxxxvi.a 1.Esd.iii.a

mountayne I: and in the cyties that lye vpon the playne, and in the cyties of the southe.

In the lande of Ben Jamin, in the feldes of Jerusalem, and in the cyties of Juda shall the shepe be nombred agayne, vnder ỹ hande of hym, that telleth them, sayeth the Lorde

C

Jer.xviii.a * Beholde, the tyme cõmeth, sayeth the Lorde, that I will performe that good thynge, which I haue promised vnto the house of Israel and to the house of Juda. In those dayes and at ỹ same tyme, I wyll bring forth vnto Dauid, the braunche of ryghteousnes, & he shall do equytie & righteousnesse in the lande.

Eze.xxxvii.c In those dayes shall Juda be helped * and Jerusalem shall dwell safe, and he that shall call her is euẽ God oure ryghteousnesse. For

Lev.xxvi.c thus the Lorde promyseth: * Dauid shall neuer want one, to syt vpon the throne of the 1.reg.ii.g house of Israel: * nether shall the prestes and Leuites wãt one to offre allwaye before me burntofferinges, to kyndle the meatofferynges, and to prepare the sacrifyces.

D And the worde of the Lord came vnto Jeremy after this maner. Thus sayeth ỹ Lord:

Gen.xlix.b maye the cõuenaũt * which I haue made wt̃ daye and nyght be broken, that there shulde not be daye and nyght in due season: Then maye my couenaũt also be broken, which I made wt̃ Dauid my seruaũte, and so he not to

1.Par.ii.a. haue a sonne to reygne in hys throne. * so shall also ỹ prestes & Leuites neuer fayle, but

Gen.xv.b serue me. * For lyke as ỹ starres of heauen maye not be nõbred, nether the sande of ỹ see measured: so wyll I multiplye ỹ sede of Dauid my seruaũt, & the Leuites my ministers.

Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde came to Jeremy, saying: Cõsyderest thou not what this people speaketh? Two kynredes (saye they) had the Lorde chosen, & those same two hath he cast awaye. For so they haue despised my people & they reputed thẽ as though they were no people. Therfore thus saieth ỹ Lorde: If I haue made no couenaũt with daye & nyght, & geuẽ no statute vnto heauẽ & earth: thẽ will I also cast awaye the sede of Jacob & Dauid my seruaũt: so ỹ I will take no prince out of his sede, to rule ỹ posteritie of Abrahã, Isaac & Jacob. But yet I will turne agayne their captiuitie, & be mercyfull vnto them.

¶ The. xxxiii. Chapter.

¶ He threateneth that the cytie, and the kynge zedekiah also, shalbe geuen into the handes of the kynge of Babylon. He rebuketh them that brought soche of their brethren into captiuitie, as were pardoned to go at their libertye.

A

Jer.xxxiv.a THese are thẽ wordes which ỹ Lord spake vnto Jeremy * what tyme as Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon, & all his hostes (out of all the kingdomes ỹ were vnder his power) & all hys people, fought agaynst Jerusalem and all the cyties therof. Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde God of Israel: Goo, & speake to zedekiah the kynge of Juda, and tell hym. The Lorde sendeth the thys worde: Beholde, * I wyll * iiii. Regũ. xxv.a. delyuer thys cytie into the hande of the kyng of Babylon, he shall burne it, and thou shalt Jer. xxxii. a. and.xxxix.a. not escape hys hãdes, but shalt be led awaye preſoner, ãd deliuered into his power. Thou shalt loke the kynge of Babylon in the face, and he shal speake with the, mouth to mouth and then shalt thou goo to Babilon. Yet heare the worde of the Lorde, O zedekiah thou kynge of Juda: Thus sayeth the Lorde vnto the. Thou shalt not be slayne with ỹ sweard, but shalt dye in peace. * Lyke as thy * i.reg.xxii.c fore fathers the kynges, thy progenitours, were brente: so shalt thou be brẽt also, and in thy mourninge they shall saye: oh Lord. For thus haue I determyned, sayeth the Lorde.

Then spake Jeremy the prophet all these wordes vnto zedekiah kynge of Juda in B Jerusalem: what tyme as the kynge of Babylons hooste besieged Jerusalem, and the rẽnaũt of the cyties. Namely, Lachis and Azecach, which yet remayned of ỹ * stronge de- * ii.par.xi.a. fensed cyties of Juda.

These are the wordes that the Lord spake vnto Jeremy the prophete, when zedekiah was agreed with all the people at Jerusalẽ, that there shulde be proclamed * a libertie: so * Exo.xxi.a. that euery mã shuld let his seruaunt & hand- Leui.xxv.c mayde go free, Hebrue and Hebruesse, and no Deute. xv. b. Jewe to holde hys brother as a bonde man. Nowe as they had consented, all the princes and all the people which had gathered vnto this agreemẽt that euery mã shulde set at lybertie his bõde seruaunte and bonde woman and no longer to holde them bonde euen so they were obedient, & let them go free. But afterwarde they repented, and toke agayne the seruauntes and hande maydens, whom they had lett go free, and so made thẽ bõde againe.

For the which cause the worde of ỹ Lorde C came vnto Jeremye frõ the Lorde hym selfe, sayinge: Thus sayeth ỹ Lord God of Israel: * I made a couenaunt with youre fathers, * Deu.xv.a. Exod. xxi.a whẽ I brought thẽ out of Egypt, (that they shulde no more be bondmen) sayinge. When seuẽ yeares are oute, euery man shall let hys bought seruaũte an Hebrue go free, yf he haue serued hym syx yeares. But youre fathers obeyed me not & herkened not vnto me. As for you, ye were nowe turned, & did right before me, in that ye proclamed, euery mã to let his neighboure go free, and in that ye made a couenaũt before me, in the tẽple that beareth my name. But yet ye haue turned youre selues agayne, and blasphemed my name. In this, ỹ euery man hath requyred his seruaũt & hãdmayde agayne, whõ ye had let go quyte and free, & cõpelled thẽ to serue you agayne, and to be youre bõde men, and bondwemen. And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: ye haue not obeyed me, euery man to proclame fredome dome vnto his brother & neyghbour: wher☞ fore, ☞ I wyll call you vnto a fredome, sayeth the Lord: euen vnto the swearde, to pestilence, & to honger, & will make you to be plaged in all the kyngdomes of the earth.

Yee, those men ꝑ haue broken my couenaũt,
*Gene.xv.d. & not kepte the wordes of the appoyntemẽt, ☞ which they made before me: * ☞ whẽ they hewed the calfe in two, & when there wente
thorowe the two halfes therof: The Princes
of Juda, the Princes of Jerusalem, the gelded men, the Priestes and all the people of the lande, which wente thorowe the two sydes of the calfe. Those men wyll I geue into the power of their enemies, & into the handes of them that folowe vpon their lyues.
*Dra.xxxix.a Jere.lii.d. * And their deed bodies shalbe meate for
the foules of the ayre, & beastes of the felde.
As for Zedekiah the kynge of Juda and hys Princes, I wyll delyuer thẽ into the power of their enemyes, and of them that desyre to slaye them, and into the hande of the kynge
*Je.xxxvii.e of Babylons hoste * ☞ which nowe is de☞ parted from you: But thorow my commaũdement (sayeth the Lorde) they shal come a-gayne before thys cytye, they shall fyght a-gaynst it, wynne it, and burne it: Moreouer,
I wyll laye the cyties of Juda so waste, that no man shall dwell therin.

¶ The xxxv. Chapter.

¶ He propoundeth the obedience of the Rechabites, and therby confoundeth the pryde of the Jewes. The commaundemẽt of Jonadab the father of the Rechaabites. He threatneth punyshment vnto the rebellious Jewes. He promyseth prosperite vnto the Rechabi-tes, for their obedience vnto their father.

A The wordes whyche the Lorde spake
vnto Jeremy, in ꝑ raygne of Jehoa-kim the sonne of Josiah kyng of Ju-*iiii.Re.x.c. da, are these: Go vnto the house of * the Rechabites, & call them out, and bringe them to the house of the Lorde into some commody-
ous place, and geue them wyne to dryncke.
Then toke I Jazaniah the sonne of Jeremy the sonne of Habazinias, and his brethren, &
all his sonnes, and the whole housholde of ꝑ Rechabytes: and brought them to the house of the Lorde into the closet of the chyldren of Hanan the sonne of Jegedaliah the man of God: which was by the closet of the Princes
B that is aboue the closet of Maasiah the sõne of Selum, which is ꝑ treasurer. And before the sonnes of the kynred of the Rechabytes,
I set pottes full of wyne, and cuppes, & sayde
vnto them: Drincke wyne. But they saye de: we wyll dryncke no wyne for Jonadab
the sonne of Rechab oure father commaunded vs, saying: ye and youre sonnes shall ne-*Jer.xxix.b uer dryncke wyne * buylde no houses, sowe no sede, plante no vynes, yee, ye shal haue no vineyardes: but for all youre tyme ye shall dwell in tentes, that ye maye lyue longe in ꝑ
lande wherin ye be straungers.
Thus haue we obeyed the cõmaundemẽt
of Jonadab the sonne of Rechab oure father
in all that he hath charged vs, & so we dryn-
ke no wyne all oure lyfe longe: we, nor oure wyues, our sonnes and oure daughters. Nether builde we any house to dwell therin, we haue also amonge vs nether vineyardes, ner
cornelande to sowe: but we dwell in tentes,
we obeye, and do accordynge vnto all, that Jonadab oure father commaunded vs.
But now that Nabuchodonosor the king
of Babylon came vp into ꝑ lande, we sayde,
come, lett vs go to Jerusalem, that we maye
escape the hooste of the Caldees and the As- C
syrians: and so we dwell now at Jerusalem.
Then came ꝑ worde of ꝑ Lorde vnto Jeremy saying. Thus sayeth the Lord of hoostes
the God of Israel: Go and tell ꝑ mẽ of Juda and ꝑ inhabitours of Jerusalẽ: Will ye not be reformed, to obey my wordes sayeth ꝑ Lorde: The wordes which Jonadab the sonne of Rechab cõmaunded his sonnes, ꝑ they shulde drynke no wyne, are fast and surely kept: for vnto thys daye they dryncke no wyne, but obeye their fathers cõmaundement. But as for me, * I haue stand vp early, I haue spokẽ * Je.xxv.
vnto you, & geuen you earnest warnynge: & and xxxiiii yet haue ye not bene obedient vnto me. Yee,
I haue sent my seruauntes, all the prophetes
vnto you, I rose vp early, & sent you worde, sayinge: O turne you, nowe euery mã frõ his wycked waye: amende youre lyues, and go
not after straũge goddes, to worshyp ye thẽ:
that ye maye continue in the lande, which I
haue geuen vnto you & youre fathers, but ye wolde nether heare me, ner folowe me.
The chyldren of Jonadab Rechabs sonne D
haue stedfastly hepte their fathers commaũdement, ꝑ he gaue thẽ, but this people is not obedient vnto me. And therfore thus sayeth
the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: Be-holde, I will bringe vpon Juda & vpõ euery
one that dwelleth in Jerusalẽ, all the trouble
ꝑ I haue deuysed agaynst thẽ. * For I haue * Prou.i.
spokẽ vnto them, but they wold not folowe. c.Esay.lxv.
I haue called vnto them, neuertheles they Jerem.vii.
wold geue me no answere. Jeremy also spake vnto the housholde of the Rechabites:
Thus sayeth the Lord of hoostes the God of Israell: For so moche as ye haue obeyed the commaundement of Jonadab youre father,
and hepte all hys preceptes, and done accor-
dyng vnto all that he hath bydde you: Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes, ꝑ God
of Israel: * Jonadab the sonne of Rechab * Je.xxxv.
shall not fayle, but haue one out of his stocke
to stande alwaye before me.

¶ The xxxvi. Chapter.

¶ Baruch writeth (as Jeremy endyteth) the boke of the curses agaynst Juda & Israel. He is sent with ꝑ boke vnto the people, and readeth it before them all.
He is called before the rulers, & readeth it before thẽ also. The rulers shewe vnto the kynge the wordes of the boke. Jehudi taketh the boke, and readeth a ꝑtell of it, and after casteth it in the fyre. There is another written, at the commaundement of the Lorde.

In the

A IN the foureth yeare of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda, came the worde of the Lord vnto Jeremy, sayinge. * Take a boke, and wrytte therin all the wordes, that I haue spoken to the, agaynst Israel agaynst Juda, and agaynst all the people, from the tyme ✠ I beganne for to speake vnto the (in the rayne of Josiah) vnto thys daye. That when ✠ house of Juda heareth of the plage, which I haue deuysed for them, they maye peraduenture * turne, euery man frō hys wycked waye, that I maye forgeue theyr offences and synnes.

Then dyd Jeremy call Baruch the sonne of Neriah, * and Baruch wrote in the boke at the mouth of Jeremy, all the wordes of ✠ Lorde, which he had spoken vnto hym. And Jeremy cōmaunded Baruch, sayinge: I am in prison, so that I maye not come into the house of the Lorde: therfore go thou thyther, and reade the boke, that thou hast wrytten at my mouth: Namely, the wordes of the Lord and rede them in the Lordes house vpon the fastynge daye, that the people, whole Juda, and all they that come out of the cities, maye heare. Peraduenture they wyll praye mekely before the face of the Lorde, & turne euery one from hys wycked waye. For greate is the wrath and displeasure, that ✠ Lorde hath taken agaynst this people:

So Baruch the sonne of Neriah dyd, according vnto all that Jeremy the Prophete cōmaunded him, readinge the wordes of the Lorde out of the boke in the Lordes house.

And this was done in ✠ fyft yeare of Jehoakim the sonne of Josiah kynge of Juda, in ✠ ix. moneth * when it was commaūded, that all the people of Jerusalem shulde fast before the Lord, and they also that were come from the cyties of Juda vnto Jerusalem.

C Then redde Baruch the wordes of Jeremy out of the boke with in the house of the Lord out of the treasury of Gamariah the sonne of Saphā the Scribe, which is beside the hyer lofte of the * ne we doze of the Lordes house: that all the people myght heare. Nowe whē Michiah ✠ sonne of Gamariah the sonne of Saphan had heard all the wordes of ✠ Lorde out of the boke, he wēte downe to the kynges palace into the Scrybes chambres, for there all the Prynces were set. Elysama the Scribe, Dalaiah the sonne of Semei, Elnathan the sonne of Achbor, Gamariah the sōne of Saphan, Sedekiah the sonne of Hananiah, with all the Prynces. And Michiah tolde thē all the wordes, that he hearde Baruch reade out of the boke before the people.

D Then all the princes sent Jehudi the sonne of Nathaniah, the sonne of Selamiah, the sonne of Chusi, vnto Baruch, saying. Take in thyne hande the boke, wherout thou hast red before all the people, and come. So Baruch the sonne of Neriah toke the boke in his hande, & came vnto thē. And they sayd vnto him. Syt downe, & rede the boke ✠ we maye heare also. So Baruch redd that they might here. Nowe whē they had heard all ✠ wordes, they were abashed one vpon another, ād sayde vnto Baruch. We wyll certifye ✠ kynge of all these wordes. And they examyned Baruch, sayinge: tell vs, howe dydest ✠ wrote all these wordes out of hys mouth? Then E Baruch answered them: he spake all these wordes vnto me with his mouth, & I wrote them in the boke.

Then sayde ✠ princes vnto Baruch: Go thy waye, & hyde ✠ with Jeremy, so that no mā knowe where ye be. And they went into the kyng to the courte. But they kept ✠ boke in the chambre of Elisama the Scribe, & tolde the kyng all the wordes ✠ he myght heare. So the kyng sent Jehudi to fetch him ✠ boke which he brought out of Elysama the Scribes chambre. And Jehudi red in it, that the kynge and all ✠ prynces, which were aboute him, myght heare. Nowe the kynge sat in the wynter house, for it was in the ix. Moneth & there was a fyre before him. And when Jehudi had redde thre or foure leaues therof, he cut the boke in peces with a penne knyfe, and * cast it into the fyre vpō the harth, vntyll ✠ * 1. Reg. xii. c. boke was all brēte in the fyre vpō the harth.

Yet no man was abashed therof, or rente F his clothes: nether the kynge hym selfe, ner his seruauntes, though they hearde all these wordes. Neuertheles Elnathā, Dalaiah, & Gamariah besought the kynge, ✠ he wolde not burne the boke: not withstandynge the kynge wolde not heare them, but commaunded Jerahmael the sonne of Amalech, Saraiah ✠ sonne of Ezriel & Selamiah ✠ sonne of Abdiel, to laye handes vpon Baruch the Scrybe, and vpō Jeremy the Prophete: but the Lorde hepte thē out of syght. After nowe that the kynge had brent the boke, & the sermons which Baruch wrote at the mouth of Jeremy: The worde of the Lord came vnto Jeremye, sayinge. Take another boke, and ☞ wrytte in it all ✠ former sayde sermons: that were wrytte in the fyrst boke, which Jehoakim the kynge of Juda hath brente.

And tell Jehoakim ✠ kynge of Juda: thus G sayeth the Lorde: thou hast brēte the boke, & thoughtest within thy selfe, Why hast thou wrytten therin, that the kynge of Babylon shall come, and make thys lande waste: so ✠ he shall make both people ād catell to be out of it? Therfore thus the Lorde sayeth of Jehoakim ✠ kyng of Juda. * There shall none * iiii. Reg. xxiiii. f. Jere. xxii. c. of hys generacyon syt vpon the throne of Dauid. Hys dead cōpse shalbe cast oute, that the heate of the daye, and the frost of the nyght maye come vpon hym. And I wyll vyset the wyckednes of hym, of his sede, & of hys seruauntes. Moreouer, all the euell that I haue promysed them (though they herde me not) wyll I bringe vpon them, vpon the inhabitoures of Jerusalē, and vpō all Juda. Then toke Jeremy another boke, and gaue it Baruch the Scribe the sonne of Neriah, whiche wrote therin out of the mouth of Jeremy: all the sermōs that were in the fyrst boke, which Jehoakim the kyng of Juda had burne. And there were added vnto them many mo sermons, then before.

wyckednes

¶ The.xxxvii. Chapter.

Zedekiah succedeth Cononiah. He sendeth vnto Jeremye to praye for hym. Jeremy goinge out the lande of Ben Jamin is taken. He is beaten, and put in prison. He is deliuered by kynge Zedekiah.

* iiii. Regū. xxiiii.b.

ZEdekiah ꝑ sonne of Josiah * which was made kynge thorowe Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon, reigned in the lāde of Juda, in the steade of Cononiah the sonne of Jehoakim. But nether he, ner hys seruauntes, ner the people in the lande wolde obeye the wordes of the Lorde, which he spake by the Prophet Jeremy. * Neuertheles, Zedekiah the kyng sent Jehucal ꝑ sonne of Selemiah & Sophoniah the sonne of Maasiah the Preest to the Prophet Jeremy, saying: O praye thou vnto the Lorde oure God for vs. Nowe Jeremy walked fre amonge the people at that tyme, and was not put in prison as yet. * Pharaos hoste also was come out of Egypte: which whē the Caldees that besiged Jerusalem perceaued, they departed from thence.

* Jere. xxi.a. and.xxii.a

* Exe. xxii.b

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jeremy the Prophet, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel, thys answere shall ye geue to the kynge of Juda, that sent you vnto me for councell: * Beholde, Pharaos hoste which is come forth to helpe you, shall returne to Egypte into his awne lande: but the Caldees shall come agayne, and fyght agaynst thys cytie, wynne it, and sett fyre vpon it. For thus sayeth the Lorde, disceaue not youre awne myndes, thynckinge on this maner: tush, the Caldees go now their waye from vs. No, they shall not go theyr waye. For though ye had slayne the whole hoste of the Caldees, that besiege you, and euery one of the slayne laye in his tente, yet shulde they stande vp, and set fyre vpon thys cyte. Now when the hoste of the Caldees was broken vp from Jerusalem, for feare of the Egyptyans armye, Jeremye went out of Jerusalem towarde the lande of Ben Jamin, to get hym from amonge the people. And when he came vnder Ben Jamyns porte, there was a porter, called Jeriah, the sonne of Selemiah the sonne of * Hananiah, which fell vpon hym, and toke him sayinge: thy mynde is to runne to the Caldees. Then sayde Jeremy: It is not so, I go not to the Caldees. Neuertheles, Jeriah wolde not beleue hym, but brought Jeremy bounde before the Princes. Wherfore the princes were angrye with Jeremy, and smote him, and layed hym in prison in the house of Jonathas the scribe. For he was the rular of the prison. Thus was Jeremy put into the dongeō and prison, and so laye there a longe tyme. * Then Zedekiah the kyng sent for him, and called him, and asked hym quyetly in his awne house, sayinge: thynkest thou this busynes (that now is in hande) commeth of the Lorde? Jeremy answered: yee, that it doth: and thou (sayed he) shalt be delyuered into the kynge of Babylons power.

* Jere. xxxvii. b.

* Jere. xxxvii. b.

Moreouer, Jeremy sayde vnto kynge Zedekiah. What haue I offended agaynst the, against thy seruauntes, or agaynst thys people, that ye haue put me in prison? * Where are youre prophetes which haue prophecyed vnto you, & sayde, that the kynge of Babylon shulde not come agaynst you & this lāde? And therfore heare nowe, O my Lorde the kynge: let my prayer be accepte before the, and sende me nomore into the house of Jonathas the Scribe, that I dye not there. Then Zedekias the kynge commaunded to put Jeremy in ꝑ fore entrye of the prison, and dayly to be geuen hym a cake of bread out of the bakers streate vntyll all the bread in the cytie was eate vp. Thus Jeremy remayned in the fore entry in the prison.

* Jere. xxxvii. b.

¶ The.xxxviii. Chapter.

The wordes of the writer Jeremy is put into a dongeon. At the request of Abdemelech the Ethiopian the kyng commaundeth Jeremy to be brought forth of the dongeon. Jeremye sheweth the kynge how he myght escape death.

SAphatiah the sonne of Mathan, Gedoliah the sonne of Phasphur, Jucal the sonne of Semeliah, and Phashur ꝑ sonne of Melchiah perceaued the wordes, that Jeremy had spoken vnto all the people, namely on thys maner: Thus sayeth the Lorde: * Who so remayneth in thys cytie, shal perish, ether with the sweard, with honger or with the pestylence. But who so falleth vnto the Caldees, shall escape with his soule for a praye, & shall lyue. * For thus sayeth the Lorde: Thys cytie (no doute) must be delyuered into the power of the kynge of Babylon, and he also shall wynne it. Then sayde the princes vnto the kynge: Syr, we beseche you let thys mā be put to death. For thus he discourageth the handes of the soudiers that be in thys cytie, and the handes of all the people, when he speaketh soche wordes vnto them. This mā verely laboureth not for peace of the people, but myschefe. Zedekiah the kynge answered & sayde: lo, he is in youre handes, for the kyng maye denye you nothinge. Then toke they Jeremy, and cast hym into the dongeon of Melchiah

* Jere. xxi. b. and. xxvii.

* Jere. xxxviii.

Melchiah the sonne of Hamelech, that dwelt in the fore entrie of the prison. And they lett downe Jeremy with coardes into a dongeō, where there was no water, but myre. So Jeremy stacke fast in ꝑ myre. Now when Abedmelech the Mozian beynge a chamberlayne in the kynges courte, vnderstode, that they had cast Jeremy into the dongeon: he went out of the kynges house, and spake to ꝑ kynge, (which then sat vnder the porte of Benjamin) these wordes: Myn Lorde ꝑ kynge, C where as these men medle with Jeremye the prophet, they do hym wronge: Namely, in that they haue put him in prison, there to dye of honger, for there is no more bread in the cytie. Then the kynge commaunded Abedmelech the Mozian and sayde: Take from hence .xxx. mē whom thou wylt, & drawe vp Jeremy the prophet out of the dongeon, before he dye. So Abedmelech toke the men wᵗ him, and went to the house of the kynge, and there vnder ꝑ treasurie he gatt olde ragges & worne cloutes, and lett them downe by a coarde, into the dongeon to Jeremy.

And Abedmelech the Mozian sayde vnto the prophet Jeremy: O, put these ragges and D cloutes vnder thyne arme holes, betwyxte them and the coardes: & Jeremy dyd so. So they drewe vp Jeremy with coardes & toke him out of the dongeō, & he remayned in the ✠ Je.xxxvii.c fore entrye of the prison. Then ✠ zedekiah the kynge sent & caused Jeremy the prophete to be called vnto hym, into the thyrde entrye, that is in the house of the Lord. And the kinge sayd vnto Jeremy: I will aske the somewhat but hyde nothynge from me. Then Jeremy answerde zedekiah: Yf I be playne vnto the, thou wilt cause me to suffre death: If I geue the councell, thou wylt not folowe me. So the king swore an ooth secretly vnto Jeremy, sayinge. As truly as the Lorde lyueth that made vs these soules, I wyll not slaye the, yet geue the into the handes of them that seke after thy lyfe.

E Thē sayde Jeremy vnto zedekiah. Thus sayeth the Lord of hooستes the God of Israel ✠ Je.xxxvii.c ✠ If case be, that thou wylt go forth vnto the kynge of Babylons princes, thou shalt saue thy lyfe, and thys cytie shalt not be brēt yee, both thou and thy housholde shall escape with youre lyues. But yf thou wylt not go forth to the kynge of Babylons princes, thē shall thys cytie be deliuered into the handes of the Caldees, which shall set fyre vpon it, and thou shalt not be able to escape thē. And zedekiah sayde vnto Jeremy. I am afrayde for the Jewes, that are fled vnto ꝑ Caldees, lest I come in theyr hādes, and so they to haue me in derisyon.

F But Jeremy answerde: No, they shall not betraye the: O herken vnto the voyce of the Lord (I beseche the) which I speake vnto ꝑ, so shalt thou be well, and saue thy lyfe. But yf thou wilt not go forth, ꝑ Lorde hath tolde me this playnely: Beholde, all the wemen ꝑ are left in the kynge of Judaes house, shalbe led forth out to the kynge of Babilons princes. And they shal saye, ꝑ thou art disceaued: and that they whō thou didest put thy trust, haue gotten the vnder, & sett thy fete fast in the myre, and gone their waye frō the. Therfore all thy wyues with their chyldren shall they leade forth vnto the Caldees, and thou shalt not escape their handes, but shalt be the kyng of Babilons prisoner, & this cytie shalt thou cause to be brent. Then sayde zedekiah vnto Jeremye: loke that no body knowe of G these wordes, and thou shalt not dye. But yf the princes perceaue, ꝑ I haue talked wᵗ ꝑ, and come vnto the, saying: O speake, what sayde the king to the: hyde it not frō vs, & we wyll not put the to death. Tell vs (we praye the) what sayde the kynge to the? Se thou geue them thys answere: I haue humbly besought the kynge, that he wyll lett me lye no more in Jehonathans house, that I dye not there. Then came all the princes vnto Jeremy, and asked hym. And he tolde them, after the maner as the kynge had him. Then they helde theyr peace, and let hym alone for they perceaued nothinge. ✠ So Jeremy abode ✠ Je.xxxix.e styll in the fore entrie of the prison, vntyll the daye that Jerusalem was wonne.

¶ The .xxxix. Chapter.

¶ Nabuchodonosor besegeth Jerusalem. zedekiah fleeth. He hys taken of ꝑ Chaldees. Hys sonnes are slayne. His eyes are thrust oute. Jeremy is prouyded for. Abedmelech is deliuered from captiuitie, because of the confydence that he hath in God.

NOwe ✠ when the cytie of Jerusalem A was taken (for in the .ix. yeare of zedekiah kynge of Juda in the tenth ✠ Je.xxxix.a iiii.reg.xxv.a Moneth, came Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylon & all his hoste, and besieged Jerusalem & foughte agenst it. And in the .xi. yeare of zedekiah in the fourth Moneth ꝑ. ix. daye of the Moneth, he brake into the cytie.) Thē all the princes of the kyng of Babylon, came in, & sat them downe vnder the porte: Nergel, Sarezer, Samgarnebo, Sarsachim, Rabsaris, Nergel, Sarezer, Rabmag, wᵗ all the other princes of the kynge of Babylon. ✠ And when zedekiah the kynge of Ju- ✠ Je.xxxix.a da with hys soudiers sawe them, they fled, and departed out of the cytie by nyght thorowe the kynges garden, & thorowe the porte that is betwene ꝑ two walles, and so they went towarde the wyldernesse.

But the Caldees hoste folowed faste af- B ter them, and toke zedekiah in the felde of Jericho, and brought hym prisoner to Nabuchodonosor ꝑ kynge of Babylon vnto Reblath, that lyeth in the land of Hemath where he gaue iudgement vpon him. So ꝑ kyng of Babylon caused the chyldre of zedekiah and all the

all the nobles of Juda he slayne, before hys face at Reblath. And made zedekias eyes to be put out, and bounde him with two chaynes, and sent him to Babylon.

C * Moreouer, the Caldees brent vp the kynges palace, with the other houses of the people, and brake downe the walles of Jerusalem. As for the remnaunt of the people þ were in the cytie, and such as were come to helpe thē (whatsoeuer was left of þ comē forte) Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne caryed thē to Babylon. But Nabuzaradā the chefe captayne let the rascall people (& those that had nothinge) dwell styll in the lande of Juda, and gaue them vineyardes & corne feldes at the same tyme. Nabuchodonosor also the kynge of Babylon gaue Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne a charge, concernynge Jeremy, sayinge: take and cherish hym, and make moche of him: se thou do hym no harme, but intreate him after his awne desyre.

* fiii. Regū. xxv.b Jerr.xxxix.b.

Do Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne, Nabusazban Rablares, Nergal Sarezer Rabmag and all the kynge of Babylons Lordes sent for Jeremy * and caused hym to be fet out of the fore entrye of the preson, & cōmitted him vnto Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan: that he shulde carye hi home, * and so he dwelt amonge the people.

* Jerr. xxx: viii.b.

D * Jerr. xl. b. Now whyle Jeremy laye yet bounde in the fore entrie of the preson, þ worde of the Lord came vnto him, sayinge: Goo and tell Abedmelech the Mozian: Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: Beholde, the cruell and sharpe plage that I haue deuysed for this cytie, will I bringe vpon them, that thou shalt se it: but I wyll delyuer þ (sayeth the Lorde) and thou shalt not come in þ handes of those men, whom thou feareste. For doutles I wyll saue the, so that thou shalt not perish wt the swearde: but thy lyfe shalbe saued, ād that because thou hast put thy trust in me, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

¶ Jeremye hath leeuce to go whether he wyll. He dwelleth with the people that remayneth at Jerusalem, ouer whom Godoliah ruleth. Johanan prophesyeth death vnto Godoliah.

I Thys is the worde that the Lord spake vnto Jeremy, * when Nabuzaradan the chefe Captayne had let him go fre from ‡ Ramah, whyther he had led him bounde amōge all the presoners, that were caryed from Jerusalem and Juda vnto Babylon. The chefe captayne called for Jeremy, and sayde vnto hym. The Lorde thy God spake myghtely before of the mysery vpon this place: Nowe the Lorde had sent it, and performed it as he had promysed. For ye haue synned agaynst the Lord, and haue not bene obedient vnto his voyce, therfore commeth this plage vpon you. Beholde, I lowse the bondes from thy handes this daye: yf þ wilt nowe go with me vnto Babylon, vp then: for I wyll se to the, & prouyde for the. But yf thou wylt not go with me to Babylō, thē remayne here. * Beholde, all the lande is at thy wyll, loke wher thou thynkest cōuenient and good for the to abyde, there dwell. For as yet he was not gone backe againe to Godoliah therfore he sayde to him: Go backe to Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam, the sonne of Saphan: * whō the kynge of Babylō hath made gouernoure ouer the cyties of Juda, & dwell with hym amonge the people, or remayne where soeuer it pleaseth the. So the chefe Captayne gaue him hys expenses with a rewarde, and let him go. * Thē wente Jeremy vnto Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam to Mizpa, and dwelt there with hym among the people that were left in the lande.

* Jerr. xxxix. a ‡ Jos. xviii. b

B * Gen. xiii. Reb. ix. * iiii. Regū. xxv. c. * Jerr. xxxix.

Nowe when the captaynes of the hoste of Juda (which wt their felowes were scatred abrode on euery syde in the lande) vnderstode that þ kynge of Babylō had made Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam gouernoure in the land, and þ man, wyfe and childe, yee, and þ poore men in the lande (that were not led captyue to Babylon) shulde be vnder his iurisdictiō: They came to Godoliah vnto Mizpa: Namely, Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah, Johanan and Jonathan the sonnes of Careah, Hareah the sonne of Thanhometh, the sonnes of Ophai the Netophathite, Jesaniah þ sonne of Maachati, with theyr companyōs. And Godaliah the sonne of Ahicam, the sonne of Saphan, swore vnto them and theyr felowes in this maner * Be not afrayed to serue the Caldees, dwell in the lande, and do the kyng of Babylon seruice, so shall ye prospere. Beholde, I dwell at Mizpa to be an officer in the Caldees behalfe, and to satisfye soche as come to vs. Therfore gather you wyne, corne and oyle, and kepe them in your ware houses, and dwell in youre cyties that ye haue in keppynge.

C

* iiii. Regū. xxv.

D Yee, all the Jewes also þ dwelt in Moab vnder the Ammonites, in Idumea and in all the countreys, when they herde, that þ kinge of Babylō had made Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam the sonne of Saphan, gouernoure vpon thē þ were left in Juda. All the Jewes (I saye) returned oute of all places where they were fled vnto: and came into the lande of Juda to Godoliah vnto Mizpa, & gathered wyne & other frutes, & that very moche.

Moreouer, Johanan the sonne of Careah and all the captaynes of the hoste, that were scatred on euery syde in the lāde, cam to Godoliah in Mizpa, & sayde vnto him. knowest thou not that Baalis kynge of the Ammonites hath sent Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah, to slaye the? But Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam beleued them not. Then sayde Johanan the sonne of Careah vnto Godoliah in Mizpa en Mizpa these wordes secretly: Let me go, I praye the, and I will slaye Ismael ꝑ sonne of Nathamah, so that no body shall knowe it. Wherfore will he kyll the, that all the Jewes which resorte vnto the, might be scatred and the remnaunt in Juda perysshe. And Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam sayde to Johanan the sonne of Careah. Thou shalt not do it, for they are but lyes, that thou sayest, of Ismael.

¶The.xli.Chapter.

¶ Ismael slayeth Godoliah spitefully, & many other with hym. Johanan followeth after Ismael.

A

But in the seuenth Moneth it happened, ꝑ * Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah the sonne of Elisama (one of the kynges bloude) came with them that were greatest aboute the kynge, & ten men ꝑ were sworne with him: vnto Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam to Mizpa, & they dyd eate together. And Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah with those ten men that were sworne to him, starte vp, and smote Godoliah the sonne of Ahicā the sonne of Saphan with the swearde, and slewe him, whom the kynge of Babylon had made gouernoure of the lande. Ismael also slewe all the Jewes that were with Godoliah at Mizpa, and all the Caldees that he founde there waytynge vpon hym and those that were able to fyght they slewe with hym.

The nexte daye after that he had slayne Godoliah (the matter was yet vnknowne) & there came certayne mē from Sichē, from Silo and Samaria, to the nombre of.lxxx. which had shauen theyr beardes, rent theyr clothes, and were all heuye, bringynge meat offringes, & incense in their hādes ☞ to offre it in the house of the Lorde. And Ismael the sonne of Nathamah went forth of Mizpa * weepinge, to mete thē. Nowe when he met thē, he sayde: Go youre waye to Godoliah ꝑ sonne of Ahicam. And when they came in the myddest of the cytie, Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah (wt thē that were sworne vnto him) slewe them, euen at the myddest of the pyt. Amonge these.lxxx. men there were ten, that sayde vnto Ismael: Oh slaye vs not, for we haue yet a great treasure in ꝑ felde, of wheate barley, oyle and hony. So he spared them, & slewe them not with theyr brethren. Nowe the * pyt wherin Ismael dyd cast ꝑ deed bodies of the men (whom he slewe because of Godoliah) had kynge Asa caused to be made, for feare of Baasa the kyng of Israel, and the same pyt dyd Ismael fyll with slayne mē As for the remnaunt of the people, ꝑ kynges daughters and all the people that were yet left at Mizpa, vpon whom * Nabusaradan the chefe Captayne had made Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam gouernoure: Ismael ꝑ sonne of Nathaniah caryed them awaye prysoners towarde the Ammonites. But when Johanā the sonne of Careah & all they which had bene captaynes ouer the kynges hoste with hym, herde of all the wyckednes that Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah had done: * they toke theyr cōpanions, & went out for to fyght wt Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah, and founde him by the greate waters that are in Gibeon. Nowe when all the people, whō Ismael led captiue, sawe Johanā the sonne of Careah and all the other Captaines of the hoste, they were glad. So all the people that Ismael had caryed awaye from Mizpa, were brought agayne.

* Gen.xliii.c. i.Reg.xvi.b.

And when they returned, they came to Johananthe sonne of Careah. But Ismael the sonne of Nathamah fled from Johanā with eyght of hys sworne companyons, & wente to the Ammonites. Then Johanan the sonne of Careah and all the captaynes of ꝑ hoste that were with him, toke all the remnaūt of the people, whom Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah had led awaye. (When he had slayne Godoliah the sonne of Ahicam) whom they also had rescued from hym: fyghtinge men, wemen & chyldren, & gelded men, whom they brought agayne from Gibeō: and wente frō thēce, & sat thē downe at Geruth Camaam, whiche lyeth besyde Bethlehem * that they myght go into Egypte for feare of the Caldees: of whome they were afrayed, because ꝑ Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah had slayne Godoliah Ahikams sonne * whom ꝑ kynge of Babylō had made gouernoure in the lāde.

B

* Jerre.xlii.c.

* Jerre.xli.a.

¶The.xlii.Chapter.

¶ The Captaynes aske counsell of Jeremye what they ought to do. Jeremye manyfesteth the remnaūt of the people not to go into Egypte.

A

Then all the captaynes, & Johanan ꝑ sonne of Kareah, Jezaniah ꝑ sonne of Osayah came with all the people frō the leest vnto the most, and sayde vnto Jeremy the prophete. * O heare oure petition, that thou mayest praye for vs vnto the Lorde thy God, namely, for all the remnaūt, wher of there be very fewe of vs left of many, as ꝑ seest vs: ꝑ the Lorde, thy God may shewe vs a waye to goin, & tell vs, what we shulde do. Then Jeremy ꝑ prophet sayde vnto them: I haue herde you. Behold I will praye vnto God youre Lorde as ye haue requyred me: and loke what answere the Lord geueth you, I shall certifye you therof, and kepe nothynge back frō you. And they sayde vnto Jeremy. * The Lord of trueth & faithfulnes be oure recorde, that we wyll do all ꝑ the Lorde thy God commaundeth vs, whether it be good or euell. We wyll herke vnto ꝑ voyce of oure Lorde God to whō we sende the, that we maye prospere, when we haue followed the voyce of the Lorde oure God.

* Jerre.xvi.a. and.xxxvii.a.

* Josue.i.a. i.Mach.ii.b. Jerre.xlii.a.

B

And after ten dayes came the worde of the

Lorde vnto Jeremy. Thē called he Johanan the sonne of Kareah, & all the captaynes of ꝑ people that were with hym: yer, and all the people from the leest to the moost, and sayde vnto them. Thus sayeth the Lorde God of Israel vnto whom ye sent me, to laye forth
*Jerery.b. your prayers before him: * If ye wyll dwell in this lande, I shall buylde you vp, and not breake you downe: I shall plāte you, and not rote you out: for ☞ I repent, as concernynge the trouble that I haue done to you. Feare not the kynge of Babylon, of whom ye stād in awe, O, be not afrayed of him, sayeth the Lorde: for I wyll be w you, to helpe you, and delyuer you from his hande. I wyll pardon you, I wyll haue mercy vpon you, and cause him to pytie you, & bringe you agayne vnto youre awne lande.

¶ Neuertheles, yf ye purpose not to dwell in this lande, ner to folowe the voyce of the Lorde youre God: but wyll saye thus, we will not dwell here, but go into Egypt: where we shal nether se warre, heare the noyse of the trompe, ner suffre honger, there wyll we dwell. Wherfore, heare nowe the worde of ꝑ
*Jer.xxxvij.a. Lord, O ye remnaunt of Juda. * Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: If ye be wholy purposed to go into Egypte, & ye
*Jerr.xlii.c. entre ther to dwell as straungers: * the swearde ꝑ ye feared shall ouer take you in Egypte: and ꝑ honger wherof ye be here afrayed shall hange vpō you & folowe you into Egypte, and there ye shall dye. And all they, that of sett purpose vndertake to go into Egipte to sotourne there, shall perysh with the swearde, with honger and pestilence: not one of them shall remayne, there shall none escape the plage, that I wyll bringe vpon them.

For thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: lyke as my wrath and indygnacyon is moued agaynst ꝑ inhabitatours of Jerusalē, so shall my displeasure be kyndled agaynst you also, yf ye go into Egypte: & there ye shalbe reuyled, abhorred, brought to
D shame and confusyon: and as for thys place, ye shall neuer se it more. The Lorde forbydeth you, O ye remnaunt of Juda, that ye shall not go into Egypte.

And forget not that I haue warned you earnestly this daye, for ye haue dissembled w me. *For ye sent me vnto the Lorde youre
*Jer. xlii.a. God, and sayde: O praye thou the Lord oure God for vs: and loke what answere ꝑ Lorde oure God geueth the, that bryng vs agayne, and we shall do therafter. Nowe haue I shewed, and declared vnto you, but you haue not obeyed the voyce of the Lord youre God, for the whych cause he hath sent me to you.
*Deu.xxviij.c Nowe therfore, * If ye wyll not folowe it, beleue, that ye shall perishe with ꝑ swearde, with honger and pestilence: euen in the same place, where youre lust is to go, and dwell.

¶ The.xliii. Chapter.

¶ Johanan carryeth the remnaunt of the people into Egypte, contrary to the worde of Jeremye. Jeremy prophecyeth the destruccyon of Egypte.

NOwe when Jeremy had ended all the wordes of the Lord his God vnto the people which to declare ꝑ Lorde they? God had sent hym to them, (euen all thes wordes I saye) Azariah the sonne of Osaiah, and Johanan the sonne of Kareah with all the stubborne personnes, sayde vnto Jeremy: * Thou lyest, the Lorde oure God hath not sent the to speake vnto vs, that we shulde not go into Egypte, and dwell there: B But Baruch the sonne of Neriah prouoketh the agaynst vs, that he myght bringe vs in to the captiuyte of the Caldees: ꝑ they might slaye vs, and carye vs awaye prysoners vnto Babylon.

So Johanan the s[illegible]ne of Kareah, and all the captaynes of the hoost, and all ꝑ people folowed not the commaundement of the Lorde: Namely, to dwell in the lande of Juda. But Johanan the sonne of Kareah, and all the captaynes of the hoost, caried awaye all the remnaunt in Juda, * that were come together agayne from all the heythē (amōg whom they had bene scatred) to dwell in the lande of Juda: Men, wemen, chyldren, the kynges daughters, all those that Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne had lefte with Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam, the sonne of Saphan. They caryed awaye also the prophete Jeremy, Baruch the sonne of Neriah, and so came into Egypte: for they were not obedyent, vnto the cōmaundement of God. Thus came they to Taphnis.

And in Taphnis the worde of the Lorde happened vnto Jeremy, saying: Take great stones in thyne hande, and hyde them in the bryck wall, vnder ꝑ doze of Pharaos house in Taphnis, that all the men of Juda maye se, and saye vnto the: Thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel. * Beholde, I
* Jer.xxv. wyll sende and call for Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon my seruaunt, and wyll sett his seate vpon these stones that I haue hyd, and he shall spreade his tente ouer them.

And when he commeth, he shall smyte the lande of Egypte, some with slaughter, some D with presonment, and some with ꝑ swearde. He shall set fyre vpō the temples of the Egyptians goddes, and burne them vp, & take the seines prysoners. Moreouer, he shall arraye him selfe with the lande of Egypte, lyke as a shepherde putteth on his cote, and shall departe his waye from thence in peace. The pyllers also of the ☞ temple of the Sunne ꝑ is in Egypte: shall he breake in peces, and burne the tempels of the Egyptians goddes.

¶ The

¶ The.xliij. Chapter.

¶ He reproueth the people for theyr idolatrye. They that fle wyde by the threatenyng of ꝑ Lorde are chastened. The destruccyon of Egipte and the Jewes therin is prophecyed.

THis is the worde that was shewed to Jeremy, concernyng all the Jewes: which dwelt in Egypte: at Migdol, at Taphnis, at Noph, & in the lande of Pathures. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes, the God of Israel: Ye haue sene all the misery, that I haue brought vpō Jerusalem, and vpon the cityes of Juda: so that thys daye they are desolate, and no man dwellynge therin: and that because of the greate blasphemies which they committed, to prouoke me vnto anger. In that they went backe to do sacrifyce and worship vnto straunge goddes: whom nether ye, ner youre fathers haue knowne. Howebeit, I sent vnto them my seruauntes all the prophetes. * I rose vp early, I sent vnto them, and gaue them warnyng. O do no soche abhominable thynges, & thynges that I hate. But they wolde not folowe ner herken, to turne from their wickednes, & to do nomore sacrifyces vnto straunge goddes. * Jere.xxvb.a xxvij.c

Wherfore myne indignacion and wrath was kyndled, and it brente vp the cytyes of Juda, the feldes with the stretes of Jerusalem, so that they were made waste and desolate, as it is come to passe thys daye. Nowe therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes, the God of Israel: Howe happeneth it, that ye do so greate euyll vnto youre awne soules: thus to destroye the men and wemen, chyldren and babes of Juda: so that none of you is lefte, because ye prouoke me vnto wrathe with the worckes of youre awne handes: when ye offer vnto straunge goddes in the lāde of Egipt, where as ye be gone to dwell. That ye myght vtterly perysshe, and that ye myght be reuyled and shamefully intreated of all natyons. Of haue ye nowe forgotten the wickednes of your forefathers, the wickednes of the kinges of Juda and their wyues, the wyckednes that ye youre selues and youre wyues haue done in the lande of Juda, in the cytie and in the lande of Jerusalē.

Yet are ye not sorry vnto this daye, ye feare not, nether walke ye in my lawe and [my] commaundementes, that I haue geuen vnto you and youre forefathers.

Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes, the God of Israel: I am stedfastly aduised and determyned to punysshe you, & to rote out all Juda. As for the remnaunt of Juda, that purposly wente into Egipt, ther to dwell, I wyll take them, * and they shall all be destroyed. In the lande of Egypt shall they perysshe, beynge consumed with the swearde and with honger. For from the leest vnto the moost, they shall perysshe with the swearde and with honger. Moreouer, they shalbe reuyled, abhorred, shamed, and confounded. For I wyll visit them that dwell in Egypte, * as I haue visyted Jerusalem, with the swearde, with honger and with pestilence. So that none of the remnaūt of Juda, which are gone to dwell in Egipte, shall be left to come agayne into the lande of Juda all though they thynke to come thyther agayne, and to dwell there. For none shall come agayne, but soch as are fledd awaye. * Jer.xxxix.a.

Then all the mē which knewe that their wyues had offred vnto straūge goddes, and a greate sorte of wyues that stode there, yee, and all the people that dwelt there in Egipt in the cytie of Pathures, answerde Jeremye, and sayde: As for the wordes that thou hast spoken vnto vs, in the name of the Lorde, we wyll in no wyse heare them: but whatsoeuer goeth out of oure awne mouthe, that we wyll do. We wyll do sacrifyce and offer oblatyons vnto the quene of heauen, * lyke as we and our forefathers, oure kynges and oure heades haue done in the cytie of Juda, and in the stretes and feldes of Jerusalem. For then had we plenteousnes of vitayles, then were we in prosperyte, and no mysfortune came vpon vs. * Jere.vii.b

* But sens we left to burne incense, and to do sacrifyce vnto the quene of heauen, we haue had scarcenesse of all thynges, and perisshe with the swearde and honger. Last of all, when we wemen dyd sacrifyce and offered vnto the quene of heauen, dyd we make her cakes and poure vnto her drinchofferinges, euē to that ymage dyd we sacrifyce and serue, without oure husbandes wylles? * i.Mach.i.b

Then sayde Jeremy vnto all the people, to the men, to the wemen, and to all the folke, which had geuen him that answere: Dyd not the Lorde remember the sacrifyces that ye, youre forefathers, youre kynges and rulers, with all the people, haue offered in the cyties of Juda, in the stretes and lāde of Jerusalem: and hath he not consydered thys in his mynde? In somoch that the Lorde might no longer suffer the wyckednes of youre inuencyons, and the abhomynable thynges, which ye dyd: * Is not youre lande desolate and voyde: yee, abhorred and accursed, so that no man dwelleth therin eny more, as it is come to passe thys daye? * Esa.i.a

* Dyd not all thys happen vnto you, because ye made soch sacrifyces to idols, and synned agaynst the Lorde. * Ye haue not folowed hys voyce, to walke in hys lawe, in his ordynaunces and statutes. * in.Regū. xviij.b Jere.ii.c. iii.c.and.v.f. ¶ Baruc.ij.a

Yet this is the cause, that all misfortune happened vnto you, as it is come to passe this daye. Moreouer, Jeremy spake vnto all the people and to all the wemen. Heare the worde of the Lorde all Juda, ye that be in the lande of Egipt. Thus sayth the Lord of hooſtes the God of Israel. Ye and your wyues haue ſpoken with youre awne mouth, ꝑ thinge that ye haue fulfylled in dede.

*Jer.xliiij.c *Yet, thus haue ye ſayde: We wyll nott ſayle, but perfourme the vowes that we haue vowed, we will do ſacrifyce & powre out drinckofferinges to the quene of heauē. Purpoſly wyll ye let vp your awne meanynges and perfourme your vowes. And therfore, heare the wordes of the Lorde, all Juda, ye that dwell in the lande of Egipte.

G *Gen.xxij.c Beholde, *I haue ſworne by my greate name, ſayeth the Lorde: that my name ſhall not be rehearſed thorowe eny mans mouthe of Juda, in all the lande of Egipte, to ſaye: The Lorde God lyueth, for I wyll watche, to plage them, and not for theyr wealthe.

*Jere.xlvi.c. *And all the men of Juda that be in the lāde of Egypte ſhall peryſhe with the ſwearde, and with honger, vntyll they be vtterly deſtroyed. Neuertheles, thoſe that flydd awaye for the ſwearde, ſhall come agayne into the lande of Juda: but there ſhall be very feawe of them. And all the remnaūt of Juda, that are gone into Egypte, there to dwell, ſhall knowe whoſe wordes ſhall be founde true: theyrs or myne. Take thys for a token that I wyll viſet you in this place, ſayth ꝑ Lord: and that ye maye knowe ꝑ I (without doubte) will perfourme my purpoſe vpon you to punyſhe you. Beholde, ſayth the Lorde, I wyll delyuer Pharao Hophra kynge of Egipte into the handes of his enemyes that ſeke after his lyfe: *euen as I gaue Zedechias the king of Juda, into the handes of Nabuchodonoſor kynge of Babilon hys enemye which ſought after his lyfe.

*1.Mach.vij.b. *Jerem.xxxix.b.

¶ The.xlv. Chapter.

¶ Baruch is reioyced of Jeremy.

A *Jer.xxxvi.a These are the wordes that Jeremye the prophete ſpake vnto Baruch ꝑ ſonne of Neriah. *after that he had wrytten theſe ſermons in a boke at the mouth of Jeremy: In the fourth yeare of Jehoakim the ſonne of Joſias kynge of Juda, ſayinge. Thus ſayth the Lorde God of Israel vnto the, O Baruch: In ſomoche as thou thoughteſt thus, whē thou waſt writyng, Woe is me, the Lorde hath geuē me ſorowe vpon ſorowe. I haue weryed my ſelfe with ſyghing, and haue founde no reſt.

Therfore tell hym, O Jeremye, that the Lorde ſayth thus: Beholde, the thing that I haue buylded, wyll I breake downe agayne and rote out the thinge that I haue planted: yee, this whole lande. And ſeke ſt thou yet promocyō? Loke not for it, and deſyre it not. For I wyll bringe a miſerable plage vpon all fleſhe, ſayeth the Lorde. *But thy lyfe wyll I geue the for a pray in all places, whereſoeuer thou goeſt.

B

*Jere.xlv.b

¶ The.xlvj. Chapter.

¶ The prophecyeth the deſtruction of Egypt. Deliuerance is promyſed to Iſrael.

A Here folowe the wordes of ꝑ Lorde to the prophete Jeremye, which he ſpake agaynſt all the Gentyles.

These wordes folowing preached he to *the Egipcyans concernynge the hooſt of Pharao Necho kynge of Egypte: *when he was in Charcamis, beſyde the water of Euphrates: what tyme as Nabuchodonoſor ꝑ king of Babilō ſlewe him, in the fourth yeare of Jehoakim the ſonne of Joſias king of Juda.

*ij.Par.xxxv. *iij.Par.xxxvj. *Eſa.xix. and.xx. Eze.xxx. xxxi. and.xxxij. *Wake ready buckler and ſhylde, and go forth to fyght: harnes your hoꝛſes, and ſett your ſelues vpon them: ſet your ſalettes faſt on, bring forth ſpeares, ſcoure youre ſwearddes, and put on your breſte plates.

But alas, howe happeneth it, ꝑ I ſe you ſo afrayde? why ſhrynche ye backe? Theyr worthyes are flayne. Yee, they runne ſo faſt awaye, that none of them looketh behynde him. Fearfulnes is fallen vpon euery one of them, ſayeth the Lorde. The lightеſt of foote ſhall not flee awaye, and the worthies ſhal not eſcape.

B Towarde the north by the water of Euphrates, they dyd ſtōble and fall. But what is he this, ꝑ ſwelleth vp, as it were a floude, roaringe and ragynge lyke the ſtreames of water? It is Egipte that ryſeth vp lyke the floude, and caſteth out the waters with ſo greate noyſe.

And he ſayde: I will go, and wyll couer the earth, I will deſtroye the citye with thē that are therin. Gett you vp ye hoꝛſes, rolle forth ye charettes, come forth worthies: ye Mohrians, ye Libeans with youre bucklers, ye Libeans with your bowes. This daye of ꝑ Lorde God of hoſtes, is a daye of vengeaunce, that he maye auenge hym of hys enemyes. The ſwearde ſhall deuoure, it ſhalbe ſatiſfyed, and bathed in theyr bloude. For the Lorde God of hoſtes ſhall haue a ſlayne offering towarde the north, by the water of Euphrates. Go vp, O Gilead, and bringe triacle vnto the daughter of Egypt. But in vayne ſhalt thou go to ſurgery: for thy wounde ſhall not be ſtopped. The heythen haue herde of thy ſhame, and the lande is full of thy confuſion: for one ſtronge man dyd ſtomble vpon another, and they are fallen both together.

C

D *Jere.xlvij.a *These are the wordes ꝑ the Lorde ſpake to the prophete Jeremy concerning the comming of Nabuchodonoſor the kynge of Babilon, which was ſent to deſtroye the lāde of Egipt. Preach out thorowe ꝑ lāde of Egipt: & cauſe it to be proclamed at Migdol, Noph and and Taphnis, and saye: Stande styll, make the ready, for the swearde shall consume the rounde aboute.

Howe happeneth it, ỹ thy mightye worthies are fallen? why stode they not fast? Euen because the Lord thrust them downe. The slaughter was greate, for one fell euer still vpon another. One cryed vpon another. Up, let vs go agayne to oure awne people, and to oure awne naturall contrey from the cruell swearde.

They dyd crye euē there, O Pharao kyng of Egipt thou trobulous king: the tyme wil bring sedityon. As truly as I lyue, sayth the king, * whose name is the Lorde of hostes, it shall come as the mount of Thabor, and as Libanus yt it stode in the see. O ỹ daughter of Egipte make ready thy geer to flyt. For Noph shalbe voyde and desolate, so that no man shall dwell therin. The lande of Egipt is lyke a goodly fayre calfe: but destruccyon shall come out of the north I saye it cōmeth. Her waged soudyers that ben with her, are like fat calues. They also shall fle awaye together, and not abyde: for the daye of their slaughter, and the tyme of their vysytation shall come vpon them.

The crye of them shall make a noyse, as the blast of a trompete. For they shall enter in with their hostes, and come with axes, as it were hewers downe of wodde. And they shall cut downe her wodde, sayth the Lorde. They shalbe innumerable: for they shalbe mo in nomber then the grashoppers, so that no man shalbe able to tell them. The daughter of Egipte is confoūded, and deliuered in to the handes of the people of the north.

Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes the God of Israel. Beholde, I wyll visit that restles people of Alexandria, Pharao and Egypte: yee, bothe their goddes and their kynges: euen Pharao, and all them that putt their trust in hym. Yee, I wyll deliuer them into the handes of those, that seke after their lyues. Namely into the power of Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon, and into the power of hys seruauntes. And after all these thynges it shalbe inhabyted as afore tyme, sayth the Lorde.

But be not thou afrayed (O my seruaūt Jacob) feare not thou, O Israel. For lo, I wyll helpe the from farre, and thy seede from the lande of their captiuite. Jacob also shall come agayne, and be in rest: he shall prospere and no man shall do him harme. Feare thou not (O Jacob my seruaunt) sayth the Lord, for I am with the: and wyll destroye all nacyons, amonge whom I haue scatered the. Neuertheles, I wyll not consume the: but chasten the and correcte the: yee, and that wt discrecyō: neither will I spare the as one that were fautlesse.

The.xlvij. Chapter.

The worde of the Lorde agaynst the Philistines.

These are the wordes, that the Lord spake vnto Jeremye the prophete, agaynst ỹ Philistines, before that Pharao smote the citye of Azah. Thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde, there shall waters aryse out of the north: & shall growe to a greate floude, runnynge ouer and couerynge the lande, the cyties, and them that dwell therin.

And the men shall crye, and all they that dwell in the lande, shall mourne at the noyse and stampinge of their stronge barbed horses, at the shakyng of their charettes and at the romblynge of the wheles. The fathers shall not loke to their chyldren, so feable and wery shall their handes be: at the same tyme when he shall be there, to destroye the whole lande of the Philistines. He shall make waste both Tirus, Sidon, and all other that are sworne vnto them.

For the Lorde wyll destroye the Philistines, the remnaunt of the yle of Caphtor. Baldenesse is come vpon Azah, Ascalō with her other valleys shall kepe her peace.

Howe longe wilt thou saye, O ỹ swearde of the Lorde? When wylt thou ceasse? Turne agayne into thy swete reste, and leaue of. But howe can it ceasse, when the Lorde hym selfe hath geuen him a charge agaynste Ascalon, and rayled it vp agaynst the cityes of the see coast?

The.xlviij. Chapter.

The worde of the Lorde agaynst the Moabites.

Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel agaynst * Moab: woo be to the cytie of Nebo: for it is layed waste, brought to confusion: and Kiriathaim taken, Misgab is brought to shame and afrayed: Moab can boast nomore of Hesebō: for they haue deuysed against it. Come, shall they saye, let vs rote them out, ỹ they maye be nomore amonge the nomber of the Gentiles, and that thou Madmen maye nomore be thought vpon: and the swearde shall persecute the. A voyce shall crye frō Horonaim: With greate wastynge and destruccyon is Moab made desolate.

Chyldren coulde tell of the crye therof. For at the goynge vp vnto Luyth, he arose with lamentation and mournynge, and downe towarde Horonaim, they heard a cruell and a deedly crye. Get you awaye, saue your lyues, and be lyke vnto the heeth in the wilderneste. * For because thou hast trusted in thine owne workes and treasure, thou shalt be take: Chamos with his prestes and princes shall go awaye into captiuyte.

The destroyer shall come vpon all cyties

none shall escape. The valleys shalbe destroyed, and the felde shalbe layed waste, lyke as the Lorde hath spoken.

Geue wynges vnto Moab, that she get her awaye spedely: for her cyties shalbe made so desolate, that no man shall dwell therin. Cursed be he that doth the worcke of the Lorde negligently, and cursed be he that keepeth backe his * swearde from sheddynge of blonde. * Jer.xlviii.b

Moab hath euer bene ryche and carelesse from her youth vp, she hath setten and take her ease with her treasure. She was neuer yet put out of one vessell into another (that is) she neuer wente awaye into captiuyte, therfore her taste remayneth, and her sauour is not yet chaunged.

C But lo, the tyme cōmeth, sayeth the Lord, that I shall sende her trullers to trulle her vp: which shall remoue her from her dwellynge: and tomptye her vessels, and breake her wyne pottes. And Moab shalbe ashamed of Chamos, lyke as Israel was ashamed of * Bethel, wherin she put her trust Wherfore do ye thynke thus: we are myghtye and stronge men of warre? Moab is destroyed, and her cyties brent vp: her chosen yonge men be slayne, sayeth the kyng, whose name is the Lorde of hostes. The destruccyō of Moab commeth on apace, and her fall is at hande: * 4.Regū. xv.a

All her neyghbours shall mourne for her, and all they that know her name shall saye, O howe happeneth it, that the stronge staffe and the goodly rodde is thus broken? And thou daughter Dibon, come downe frō thy glory, & syt in thyrst. For he that destroyeth Moab, shall come vp to the also, and breake downe thy stronge holde.

D And thou that dwellest in Aroer, get the to the strete, and loke aboute the: aske them that are fledd and escaped, and saye: what thinge is happened? Oh, Moab is confounded and ouercome.

Mourne and crye, tell it out at Arnon, þ Moab is destroyed. For iudgment shall come vpon the playne lande: Namely, vpon Holon, and Jahazah, vpon Mephaath and Dibon, vpon Nabo and the house of Bethathaim, vpon Cariathiarim and vpō þ house Gamul, vpon the house Maon and Carioth vpon Bozrah and all the cyties in the lande of Moab, whether they lye farre or neare.

Ob * The horne of Moab is smyten downe and her arme broken, sayeth the Lorde. Make her dronken, for she magnifyed her selfe aboue the Lorde, that she maye clappe theyr hādes at her vomyte, and that she also maye be laughed to scorne. O Israel, shalte thou not laugh him to scorne, when he is taken amonge theues. * Yee, because of thy wordes that thou hast spoken agaynste hym, thou * Jer.xlviii.a.

shalt be dryuen awaye. Ye Moabites shall leaue the cyties, and dwell in rockes of stone, and become lyke doues, that make theyr nestes in holes.

E * As for Moabs pryde, we haue hearde of it: she is verye hye mynded. I knowe her stoutnes, her boastynge, her aroganeye, and the pryde of her stomach, sayeth the Lorde. I knowe (sayeth the Lorde) her indignacyon, she doth not ryght, her wordes are lyes, and they haue not delt truly. Therfore shall there mourning be made for Moab, and euery mā shall crye for Moabs sake: a lamentatyon shalbe made to the men that stande vpō the wall. So will I mourne for the also, O Jazer and for the, O thou vineyarde of Sabamah. Thy vyne braunches shall come ouer the see, and the braunches of Jazer but vnto the see: þ destroyer shall breake into thy haruest and grape gathering: myrth and cheare shalbe taken awaye from the tymbre felde, and from the whole lande of Moab. * Esa.xvi.a. Jer.xlviii.a.

There shalbe no swete wyne in the presse, the tr[illegible]r shall haue no stomacke to crye yee, ther shalbe none to crie vnto him: which afore tyme were heard frō Heselbon to Eleale and Jahaz, which lifted vp their voyce frō Zoar vnto Horonaim, that ☞ bullocke of thre yeare olde shall go mourning. The waters also of Nemrim shalbe dryed vp. Moreouer, I will make Moab cease, sayeth the Lord, from the offeringes and censing that she hath made vnto her goddes in hie places. Wherfore my hert mourneth for Moab, lyke a crowde playenge an heup songe: and for the mennes sake of the brycke wall my herte mourneth also: euen as a pype that pypeth a dolefull songe: for they shalbe very frawe, and destroyed. Db F

* All heades shalbe shauen, and all beardes clipped of: all handes bounde, and loynes girded about with sackecloth. Vpon all the house toppes and stretes of Moab, ther shall be lamētable mourning. For I wyll breake Moab lyke an vnprofytable vessell, sayth þ Lorde. O howe is she destroyed? O howe mourneth she? O howe doeth Moab hange downe her heade, & is ashamed? Thus shall Moab be a laughing stock: & had in derision of all thē þ be rounde aboute her. * For thus sayeth the Lorde. Beholde, the enemye shall come flieng as an aegle: & spreade hys winges vpon Moab. They shall clyme ouer þ walles, & wynne the strōgholdes. Then þ mighty mens hertes in Moab shalbe lyke the hert of a woman trauelyng with chylde. * Esa.xv.b. * Deu.xxviii. Jer.xlix.b. G

And Moab shalbe made so desolate: that she shal nomore be a people, because she hath sett vp her selfe agaynst the Lorde. * Feare, pytte & snare shall come vpon the, O Moab, sayeth the Lorde. Whoso escapeth the feare, shall fall in the pytte: and who so getteth * Esa.xxiiii.a

out

out of the pyt, shalbe taken in the snare. For I will bring a yeare of visitation vpō Moab, sayth the Lorde. They that are able to flye, shall stande vnder the shadowe of Hesebon. For there shall go a fier out of Hesebō, and a flame from Sion, and shall burne vp that proude people of Moab, and the toppe of those seditious chyldren.

Wo be vnto ỹ, O Moab, for thou people of Chamos shalt perysshe. Yee, thy sonnes and daughters shalbe leade awaye captiue. Yet at the laste wyll I bryngе Moab out of captiuite agayne, sayeth the Lorde. Thus farre is of the plage of Moab.

¶ The xlix. Chapter.

¶ The worde of the Lorde agaynst the Ammonites, agaynst Idumea, Damascus, Cedar and Elam.

A * Ammonytes, thus the Lorde sayth: Hath Israel no children, or is he without an heyre? Why hath youre king then take Gad in? Wherfore doth his people dwell in his cityes? Beholde therfore, the tyme commeth, sayth the Lorde, ỹ I wyll bring a noyse of warre into Rabah of the Ammonites: and it shall be layed on a desolate heape: and her cityes brēt vp: & the Israelites shalbe lordes ouer those that had them in possession afore, sayeth the Lorde. Hesebon shall mourne, for Ay shalbe roted out of the grounde, sayth the Lorde.

The cityes of Rabah shall crye out, and gyrde thē selues with sacke cloth: they shall mourne, & runne about the walles: for theyr king shalbe led awaye prysoner: yee, his prestes and princes with hym.

Wherfore trustest thou in the valley? thy valleye hath flowed awaye, O thou fearte daughter, & thynkest ỹ thou art so safe, by reason of thy treasure, that no mā shall come to the? Beholde, I will bryngе a feare vpon the, sayth the Lorde God of hostes, from all those that be about the: so that ye shalbe scattered euery mā from another, and a mā shall gather them together agayne ỹ be fled. But after that, I wyll bring the Ammonites also out of captiuyte agayne.

* Vpon the Edomites hath the Lorde of hoostes spoken on thys maner: Is there no more wysdome in Themā? Is there nomore good counsell amonge his people? Is theyr wysdome then turned clene to naught? Gett you hence, turne youre backes, crepe downe into the deppe, O ye citesyns of Dedan.

For I will bryng destruction vpō Esau: yee, and the daye of hys visytatyon. If the grapegatherers came vpon the, shulde they not leaue some grapes? If the night robbers came vpon the, shulde they not take so moch as they thought were ynough?

But I wyll make Esau bare, and discouer his secretes, so that he shall not be able to hyde them. Hys sede shalbe wasted awaye: yee, hys brethren and hys neyghbours, and he hym selfe shall not be lefte behynde.

Thou shalt leaue thy fatherlesse children behynde the, and I wyll kepe them, and thy widdowes shall take their comforte in me. * Jere.xxb.d
For thus hath the Lorde spoken. * Behold, Eze.xv.b
they that me thought were vnmete to drinke of the cuppe, haue dronken with the tyrst: and thynkest thou then to be free? 1.Pet.iiij.c

No, no, thou shalt nether be quite nor free: but thou must drinke also. For why? I haue sworne by my selfe, sayth the Lorde, ỹ Bozrah shall become a wylderness, an open shame, a laughyng flocke and cursynge: and all her cyties shalbe a continuall deserte.

For I am perfectly informed of ỹ Lorde D that he hath sent a message allredy vnto the heythen. Gather you together, and go forth agaynst them: make you ready to the battayle: for lo, * I wyll make the but small amonge the heythen, and lytell regarded amonge men. * Abd.i.a

* Thy hye stomacke and the pryde of thy * esa.xlviij.b
herte haue discreaued the, because thou wylt Jere.xlviij.b
dwell in the holes of stony rockes, and haue the hye mountaynes in possession. Neuertheles, though thy neste were as hye as the aegles, yet wyll I cast the downe, sayeth the Lorde. Wherefore, Idumea shalbe a wildernes: * whoso goth by it, shalbe abashed, and * Jer.xlviij.h.
wonder at all her myserable plages. ‡ Lyke xlix.b. and.l.b
as Sodome, Gomor, and the cytyes ỹ laye ‡ Gen.xix.c
ther about were turned vp side downe, saith the Lorde, so shall no body dwell in Idumea, and no man shall haue his habitation there. Behold, lyke as the lyon, so shall a destroyer come vp frō the pleasaunt medowes of Jordane vnto the stronge dwelling place: & whē I haue made him quiet, I will make him to flee from her: and all chosen men, will I set in araye agaynst her. Who is lyke vnto me? What is he that will stryue with me? What shepherde maye stande in my handes?

* Therfore, heare the counsell of ỹ Lorde, * Psal.xxxvii.b that he hath taken vpon Idumea: and hys purpose ỹ he hath deuysed vpon the citesyns of Theman. The leest of ỹ flocke shall teare them in peces, & loke what fayre thinge they haue, they shall make it waste, & them selues E also. At the noyse of their fall, the earth shall quake ỹ crye of their voyce shalbe heard vnto the redd see. Beholde, * the enemye shall * Jer.xlviij.f
come and flie vp hit her, like as it were an aegle, & spreade his winges vpō Bozrah. Then shall the hertes of the worthyes in Edom be as the hert of a woman trauelyng of chylde.

* Vpō Damascus, & Hemath and Ar- D phad shall come confusiō: for they shall heare * Esa.xvij.a euell tydinges: they shalbe tossed to and fro Amos.i.a lyke the see that cannot stande styll. Damascus shalbe sore afrayed, and shall flee, trem-

come vpon her. Horowe & payne shall ouertake her as a woman trauilynge of chylde. Wut howe shuld so worshipfull & glorious a cite be forsake? heare therfore: her yonge men shall fall in the stretes, and all her me of warre shalbe taken awaye in ꝑ tyme, sayeth the Lorde of hostes. I wyll kyndle a fyre in the walles of Damascus, which shall consume the palace of Benhadad.

*Esa.xvi.c *As for Cedar and the kingdom of Hazor, whō Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon smote downe, the Lorde hath spoken thus vpon them: Aryse, and get you vp vnto Cedar, and destroye the people towarde ꝑ east. Their tentes and their flockes shall they take awaye: yee, their hangynges and their vessels. Their camels also shal they carye awaye with the. They shall crye to the: Feare is on euery syde.

R Flie, get you fone awaye, creape into caues, that ye maye dwell there, O ye inhabiters of Hazor, saith the Lorde: for Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon hath holden a councell concernynge you: and concluded his deuyce agaynst you. Aryse, and get you vp agaynst yonder ryche and careles people (sayeth the Lorde) which haue nether gates nor doze barres, but dwell alone. Their camels shalbe stollen, and the droues of their catell dryuen awaye.

Moreouer, those wyll I scater towarde all the wyndes: and bringe them to destruccyon: yee, and that throwe their awne familyers, sayth the Lorde. Hazor also shall be a dwellyng for dragons, and an euerlastyng wildernes: so that no body shall dwell there: and no man shall haue there his habitation.

G *Ezec.xxvi.b Dani.viii.a These are the wordes that the Lorde spake to the prophete Jeremy, concernyng *Elā, in the begynnynge of the raygne of Sedechiah kynge of Juda. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hostes: Beholde, I wyll breake the bowe of Elam, and take awaye their strength: and vpon Elam I wyll bring the foure wyndes from the foure quarters of heauen, and will scater them agaynst the same foure windes. And there shalbe no people, but some of Elā shall fle vnto them.

For I wyll cause Elam to be afrayed of their enemyes, and of them that seke their lyues: and wyll bryngo vpon them the indygnation of my wrath, sayth the Lorde. And I wyll persecute them with the swearde, so longe tyll I haue brought them to naught. I wyll sett my throne in Elam, I wyll destroye both the kynge and the princes from thence, sayth the Lorde. But in processe of tyme I wyll bryngo Elam out of captiuyte agayne, sayth the Lorde.

¶ The .l. Chapter.

¶ Declareth the destruccyon of Babylon, and the deliuerance of Israel, which was in captiuyte.

THe wordes that the Lorde spake vnto the prophete Jeremy, concernynge Babylon, and the lande of ꝑ Chaldees: *Preache amonge the Gentyles, let your voyce be heard, make a token, crye out, kepe no slēce, but saye: Babylon is wonne. *Bel is confounded, and Merodach is ouercome. A *Esa.xlvi.a and.xlvii.a Jere.xxxi.a and.li.a *Esa.xlvi.a

*Yee, their goddes be brought to shame: and their ymages burst in peces. For out of the north ☞ there doth come a people agaynst her: which make her lāde so waste, that no body dwell therin, nether man nor beast: for they flye and departe from thence. *In those dayes and at that tyme, sayth ꝑ Lord: the chyldren of Israel shall come, they and the chyldren of Juda, wepynge and making haste, and shall seke the Lorde their God. They shall aske the waye to Sion, thyther shall they turne their faces, sayynge: Come and we wyll cleaue to the Lorde, in a couenaunt that neuer shalbe broken. *Ier.xxxi.a Esa.xxxvi.a ☞ b

Wy people hathe bene a lost *flocke, ☞ my shepherdes haue discerued the, and haue made them go astraye vpon the hylles. They haue gone frome the mountayne to the lyle hyll, and forgotten their folde. All they that came vpon them, haue deuoured them: and their enemyes sayde: We haue made no faute agaynst them: for they haue displeased the Lorde: yee, euen the Lorde, which is the dewtye of their ryghteousnesse & that defended their fathers. Yet shall ye flie from Babylon, and departe out of the lande of the Chaldees, and ☞ be ye as the rammes that goo before the flocke. *For loo, I wyll wake vp an hoost of people from the northren lande, and bringe them vpon Babylon: these shall laye sege to it, and wynne it. Their arowes shall not mysse, lyke as a connynge archer shuteth not wronge. *Ier.xxxi.a ☞ b ☞ b *Jere.l.d

And the Chaldees shalbe spoyled, and all they that spoyle them, shalbe satisfied, sayth the Lorde, *although ye were so chearfull and glad, to treade downe myne heritage, and fulfylled youre pleasures, as the calues in the grasse, and triumphed ouer them lyke the bulles, when ye had gotten the victory. Youre mothers shalbe sore confounded, and they that bare you, shall come to shame. *Esa.xlvii.a

Lo, the shalbe the least sett by amonge the nacions, voyde, wasted and dryed vp. No man shalbe able to dwell there, for the feare of the Lorde, but the shalbe whole desolate. *All they that go by Babylon, shall stande styll, and be abashed, and shall wondre at all her plages. *Jer.xxxvii. xlix.b.xxxiii.

Go forth in youre araye against Babylon rounde about, all ye that can handle bowes: shute at her, spare no arowes: for she hathe synned agaynst the Lorde. Crye out: vpon her, vpon her, agaynst her rounde about: she shall

shall yelde her selfe, her foundatiõs shall fall and her walles shall come downe: for it shalbe the vengeaunce of the Lorde. *Yee, vengeaunce shalbe taken of her, and as she hath done, so deale ye with her. Rote out ꝑ sower from Babilon, and him that handleth the sythle in harueste. For feare of the swearde of the enemye, euery man shall gett him to hys awne people: and euery man shall flee to his awne lande. Israel is a scatered flocke, the lyons haue dispersed them. *Fyrst the king of the Assirians deuoured them, *last of all this Nabuchodonosor king of Babiló hath brosed all their bones.

Therfore, thus saith the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: Beholde, I will visit the kyng of Babylon and his kingdome as *I haue visited the kyng of the Assirians, and wyll bryng Israel agayne to his pleasaunt pasture, that he maye fede vpon Charmel and Basan, and be satisfyed vpon the moũt of Ephraim and Galaad. *In those dayes and at the same tyme, sayth the Lord, ☞yf the offence of Israel be sought for, there shall none be founde. Yf men enquere for the synne of Juda, there shalbe none: for I wyll be mercyfull vnto them, whom I suffre to remayne ouer.

Go downe, O thou auenger, into the enemyes lande, and visit them that dwell therin: downe with thé, and smyte them vpõ the backes, sayth the Lorde: do accordyng to all that I haue commaũded the. There is gone aboute the lande a crye of a slaughter and great murther, namely on this maner. How happeneth it, that the hammer of the whole worlde is thus broken and brosed in sonder? Howe chaunceth it, that Babilon is become a wilderneſſe amonge the Heythen on thys maner? I my selfe haue layed wayte for the, and thou art take vnawares: art thou trapped and snared: for why? thou hast prouoked the Lorde vnto anger. The Lorde hath opened his house of ordinaunce, & brought forth the weapens of hys wrath. For the thynge that is done in the lande of the Chaldees, it is the Lorde of hoostes worcke.

Come agaynste her, for this is her ende: breake vp her chestes: threshe her as ye threshe corne: destroye her, that nothing shalbe left. Slaye all their mygh tye souldyers, and put them to death. Woo be vnto them, for the daye and tyme of their visitatyon is at hande. We thynke I heare allready a crye, of them that be fled and escaped out of the lãde of Babilon, which shewe in Sion the vengeaunce of the Lorde our God, the vengeaunce of his temple: yee, a voyce of them, that crye agaynste Babylon. Call vp all the archers agaynst Babilon, pitche your tentes rounde about her, that none escape. *Recõpence her, as she hath deserued: and accordynge as she hath done, so deale with her agayne, for she hath *set vp her selfe agaynst the Lorde, agaynst the holye one of Israel. Therfore shall her yonge men fall downe in the stretes, and all her men of warre shalbe rooted out in that daye, sayth the Lorde. Beholde, I speake vnto the, O thou proude, sayth the Lorde God of hostes: for thy daye shall come, euen the tyme of thy visitation. And the proude shall stomble and fall and no man shall helpe him vp. I wyll burne vp his citeyes with fyer, and it shall consume all that is rounde about him.

Thus sayth the Lorde of hoostes: The childzen of Israel and Juda suffer violence together. All they that haue them in captiuitie, kept them fast, and wyl not let thé go, but their auenger and redemer is mightye, whose name is the Lorde of hoostes: he shall maintayne their cause, he shall make the lãde shake, and iudge them that dwell therin, one with another. The swearde shall come vpõ the Chaldees, sayth the Lorde, vpon them that dwell in Babilon, vpon their princes, and vpon their wyse men. The swearde vpõ their sothsayers, as for those, they shall become fooles. The swearde vpon their worthies, so that they shall stande in feare. The swearde vpon their horsmen and charettes, and vpon all the comon people that dwell vnder them: so that they shall all become lyke women. The swearde vpon their treasure, so that it shalbe stolẽ awaye. Drought vpon their waters, so that they shalbe dried vp. For the lande worshippeth ymages, and delyteth in straunge wondefull thinges. Therfore shall wylde beastes, Iamia & catte of mountaynes, and estryches dwell therin, for there shall neuer man dwell there, nether shall eny man haue his habitation there for euermore. Like as God destroyed *Sodom and Gomorre, with the cityes that laye ther aboute, sayth the Lorde. So shall no man dwell there also, nether shall eny man haue there his habitatyon. *Beholde, there shall come a people from the north with a greate bonde of men, and many kynges shall stande vp from the endes of the earthe. They beare bowes and buckelers, cruell are they and vnmercyfull.

Their voyce roareth like the raging see, they ryde vpon horsses, and come weapened to fyght agaynst the, O Babylon. Assoone as the king of Babilon heareth tell of them, his handes shall waxe feable. Sorowe and heuynes shall come vpon him, as a woman trauelynge with chylde. Beholde, *lyke as the lyon cõmeth vp from the pleasaunt medowes of Jordane vnto the grene pastures of Ethan, so wyll I dryue them forth, and make them runne agaynst her. But whom shall I chose out: & ordeyne to soch a thynge?

* Jer.xlix.a. For who is lyke me, or who will stryue wt me? for what shepherd maye stande agaynst me? Therfore, heare the counsell that ꝑ Lord hath geuen vpon Babilon, and the deuyce ꝑ he hath take vpon the land of the Chaldees: The least among the people shall teare them in peces, and lose what pleasaut thing they haue: they shall laye it waste. The noyse at the wynnynge of Babylon shall moue the earth, and the crye shalbe heard amonge the Gentiles:

¶ The.li. Chapter.

¶ Howe Babylon shalbe ouerthrowen. Jere: my geueth hys booke to Saraias.

Thus hath ꝑ Lorde sayd: * beholde, I wyll rayse vp a perlous wynde agaynst Babylon and her citezēs, that heare cuyll wyll agaynst me. I wyll sende also into Babilon fanners, to fanne her out, and to destroye her lande: for in the daye of her trouble they shalbe aboute her on euery syde. Moreouer, the Lorde hath sayde vnto the bowe men, and to them that clyme ouer ꝑ walles in brest plates. Ye shall not spare her yonge men: kyll downe all her host. Thus ꝑ slayne shall fall downe in the lande of the Chaldees, and the wounded in the stretes. * As for Israel and Juda, they shall not be forsake of their God, of ꝑ Lorde of hostes for the holy one of Israel sake: no, though they haue fylled all their land full of synne. * Flye awaye from Babilon, euery man saue his lyfe, that ye be not roted out wt her wickednesse: for the tyme of the Lordes vengeaunce is come: yee, he shall reward her agayne. Babylon hathe bene in the Lordes hande, ☞ * a golden cuppe that maketh all landes dronken. Of her wyne haue all people dronken: therfore, are they out of theyr wittes. * But sodenly is Babylon fallen, & destroyed. Mourne for her, bringe plasters for her woundes, yf she maye paraduenture be healed againe. We wold haue made Babylon whole, saye they: but she is nott recouered. Therfore wyll we let her alone, and go euery man into his awne countreye. For her iudgment is come into heauen, & is gone vp to the cloudes. The Lord hathe brought forth our righteousnes. And therfore come on, we wyll shewe Sion the worcke of the Lorde oure God.

Make sharpe the arowes, and multiplye youre shyldes: * for the Lorde shall rayse vp the spirite of the kinge of the Medes, which hath allready a deuyce to destroye Babylon. This shalbe the vengeaūce of the Lord, and the vengeaunce of his temple.

Set vp tokens vpon the walles of Babilon: make youre watchstronge, sett youre watchmen in arraye: yee, holde prouyde watches: and yet for all that shall the Lorde go forth with the deuyce, which he hath taken vpon them that dwell in Babilon.

O thou that dwellest by the greate waters, O thou that hast so great treasure and riches, thyne ende is come, and the rebening of thy wynninges. * The Lorde of hoostes hath swoine by him selfe, that he wyll ouerwhelme the with men, lyke grasshoppers in nūber, which with a corage shall crie, alarū, alarū agaynst the. * Yee, euen the Lorde of hostes, that wt his power made the earth, wt hys wysdome prepared the rounde worlde, and with his discretiō spred out the heauēs. Assone as he letteth his voyce be heard, the waters in ꝑ ayre ware scarce. * He drayweth vp the cloudes from the endes of the earth. He turneth ꝑ lightenynges to rayne, he bringeth the wyndes out of their secrete places. If they be esteemed by their wysdome, all mē are become fooles. * Confounded be all the casters of ymages: for the thing ꝑ they make is but diseate, and hath no breath. Playne is it and an errony ouse worke: and in the time of visitation it shall perishe.

Neuertheles, the portiō of Jacob is none soch: but he ꝑ made all thinges, whose name is the Lorde of hoostes, he is the rodde of his ¶ enheritaūce. Thou hast bene myne hammer and weapens for warre: for with the haue I broken the people in peces: and with the haue I destroied kingdomes. Thorow the I haue beaten to poulder horse and horseman: yee, the charettes & soch as sat vpō the. Thorowe the I haue broke man & womā, olde & yonge, bacheler & mayden. Thorowe the I haue destroyed the shepherde and his flocke, the husbandeman and his catell, the princes and the rulers. Therfore wyll I reward the citye of Babilō & all her citesins, ꝑ Chaldees wt all the cuyll which they haue done vnto Sion: yee, that ye youre selues shall se it, sayth the Lorde: Beholde, I come vpon the, ☞ ꝑ ¶ noysome hill, sayth the Lorde: thou that destroyest all landes: I wyll stretche oute my hande ouer the, and cast the downe from the stony rockes: and will make the a brent hill: so that nether corner stones, ner pinacles, ner foundatyōs of stones shalbe taken emy more out of the, but wast and desolate shalt thou lye for euermore, sayth the Lorde.

Set vp a token in the lande: blowe the trompettes amonge the heythen: prouoke ꝑ nations agaynst her, call the kyngdomes of Ararat, Mynni and Ascanes agaynst her. Set the prince agaynst her: bring as great a sorte of terrible horses against her: as yf they were grasshoppers. Prepare agaynst the the people of the Medes wt their kynges, prynces and all their chefe rulers: yee, & the whole lande that is vnder hym.

The lāde also shall shake and be afrayed wht the deuice of the Lorde shall come forth

agaynst

agaynst Babylon: to make the lande of Babylon so waste, that no man shall dwell eny more therin. The worthyes of Babylō shall leaue ꝑ batayll, and kepe thē selues in stroge holdes, their strēgth hath fayled them, they shalbe lyke wemen. Theyr dwellynge places shalbe brent vp, theyr barres shalbe broken. One purseuaunt shall mete another: yee, one poste shall come by another, to bring the kynge of Babylon tydinges: that his cytie is taken in on euery syde, the foordes occupied, the fennes brent vp, and the soudiers sore afrayed.

D

For thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes the God of Israel: the daughter of Babylō hath bene in her tyme lyke as a threshyng flooze, but shortly shal her haruest come. Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylon hath deuoured & destroyed me, he hath made me an empty vessell. He swalowed me vp lyke a dragon, and fylled his bely with my delycates: he hath cast me oute, he hath taken my substaunce awaye, and the thinge that was left me hath he caried vnto Babylon, sayeth the daughter that dwelleth in Syon: yee, & my blonde also vnto the Caldees, sayeth Jerusalem. Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, I wyll defende thy cause, and auenge the: I wyll drincke vp her see, and drye vp her water sprynges.

E

Esay.xiii.c. * Babylon shall become an hepe of stones a dwellinge place for dragons, a fearfulnes and wondrynge, because no man dwelleth there. They shall roare together lyke lyons, and as the ponge lyons when they be angrye, so shall they bende them selues. In theyr heate I shall gyue them a dyner and Jere.li.b. they shalbe drocken for sore. * Then shall they slepe an euerlastynge slepe, and neuer wake, sayeth the Lorde. I shall carye thē downe to be slayne lyke sheepe, lyke wethers and goates. O, how was ☞ Sesach wonne: O, how was the glory of the whole lāde taken/ how happeneth it, that Babilon is so wondred at among the heathen/ The see is ryssen ouer Babylon, and hath couered her wt his greate waues. Her cyties are layed waste the lande lyeth vnbuylded and voyde: it is a lande where no man dwelleth, and where no Jerem.l.a. man trauayleth thorowe. Moreouer, * I Esa.xlvi.a. wyll viset Bel at Babylon: and the thynge Dani.xiiii.d. that he hath swalowed vp, that same shall I plucke out of hys mouth. The Gentyls also shall runne nomore vnto hym, yee, and the walles of Babylon shall fall.

Esay.xlviii.b. Apoc.xviii.c. O my people, * come out of Babylon, ꝑ euery man maye saue his lyfe, from the fearfull wrath of the Lorde. Be not faynteherted, and ☞ feare not at euery rumoure that shalbe herde in the lāde: for euery yeare bringeth newe tydinges, & in the yere folowynge newe tydinges, & robbynge in the lande and Lorde vpō Lorde. And lo, the tyme cōmeth, that I wyll viset the ymages of Babylon, & the whole lāde shalbe confoūded: yee, and her slayne shall lye in the myddest of her. Heauē & earth with all that is therin, shall reioyce ouer Babilō, whē the destroyers shall come vpon her frō the North, sayeth the Lorde.

F

* Lyke as Babilon hath beaten downe & slayne many out of Israel, so shall there fall * Jere.l.c many, and be slayne in all her kyngdome. Ye that haue escaped ꝑ swearde, haste you, stāde not styll, remembre the Lorde a farre of, and thynche vpon Jerusalem, for we were ashamed to heare the blaspheмyes: our faces were couered with shame, because the straunge aleauntes came into the Sanctuary of the Lorde. Wherfore, beholde (sayeth the Lord) the tyme commeth, that I wyll viset ꝑ ymages of Babylon, and thorowe the whole lād they shall mourne and fall. * Though Ba- * Jere.xlvi.d bylon clymed vp into heauen, and kepte her power an hye: yet shal I sende her destroyers sayeth the Lorde.

A pyteous cry shalbe hearde from Babilon, and a greate mischef from the land of the Caldees, when the Lorde destroyeth them, and when he dryueth out the hye stomack & proude boastynge, wherwith they haue bene as furious as ꝑ waues of greate water floudes, and made greate crakes with their wordes. For the destroyers shall come vpon her (euen vpon Babylon) which shall take their worthyes, and breake their bowes: for God is disposed to auenge hym selfe vpon them, and sufficiently torecompence them. Yee, (sayeth the Lorde.) I wyll make theyr princes, theyr wyse men, theyr chefe rulers, and all their worthyes, dronckē: so that they shall slepe an euerlastynge slepe, and neuer wake. Thus sayeth the kynge, whose name is the Lorde of hoostes.

G

Moreouer, thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. The thycke wall of Babylō shalbe broken, and her hye gates shalbe brent vp. And the thynge that the Gentyles and the people haue wrought with greate trauayle and labour, shall come to naught and be consumed in the fyre.

This is the charge ꝑ Jeremy gaue vnto Saraiah the sonne of Neriah, the sonne of Maasiah, when he went towarde Babylon with Zedekiah the kyng of Juda, in ꝑ fourth yeare of hys raygne. Nowe thys Saraiah was a peaceable prynce. Jeremy wrote in a booke all the misery that shulde come vpon Babylon, yee, and all these sermons that be wrytten agaynst Babylon, and gaue Saraiah thys charge. When thou commest vnto Babilon, se that thou reade all these wordes, and saye. O Lorde, thou art determined to rote out thys place, so that nether people ner catell shall dwell there eny more, but to lye waste for euer: and when thou hast rede out the booke, bynde a stone to it, and cast it in the myddest of Euphrates, and saye, Euen thus shall Babylon syncke, & be thrust downe with the burthen of trouble, that I wyll bringe vpon her: so that she shall neuer come vp agayne. Thus farre are the preachynges of Jeremy.

¶ The .lii. Chapter.

¶ He reporteth the takynge of Zedekiah. Jerusalem is taken of the Chaldees. Zedekiahs sonnes are kylled before hys face, and hys eyen put oute. The cytie is burned. The temple is spoyled and robbed. They that were lefte in Jerusalem are caryed to Babylon. Joyne Jehoachyn is brought forth of prison, & lyft vpon a kyng.

3 ZEdekiah was * one and .xx. yeare olde, when he was made kyng, and he raygned eleuen yeare in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamutall, Jeremyes daughter of Lybna. He lyued wickedly before the Lorde euen as Jehoachin dyd. For ✠ Lorde was angry at Jerusalem and Juda, so longe tyll he had cast them out of hys presence. And Zedekiah fell frō the kynge of Babilō. * But in the nynth yeare of hys raygne, In the tenth moneth, & tenth daye of the moneth it happened, that Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babilon with all hys hoost came before Jerusalem, and besieged it, and made them bulwarckes rounde about it. And thys besiegynge of the cytie endured vnto the eleuenth yeare of kyng Zedekiah.

* iiii. Regū. xxiiii.b. & pa.xxvi.b.

* Jer.xxxix.a. iii.Esd.xvi.a.

8 * And in the fourth moneth, the .ix. daye of the moneth, there was so great honger in the cytie: that there were nomore vytayles for the people of the lande. So all the soudiers brake awaye, and fled oute of the cytie by nyght thorowe the waye of the porte betwene the two walles by the kynges garden. Nowe the Chaldees had compassed the cytie rounde about, yet wet these men their waye towarde the wyldernes.

* iiii. Regū. xxv.a. Jere. xxxviii. b.xxxix.a.

And so the Chaldees folowed vpon them, and toke Zedekiah the kynge in the felde of Jericho, when his hoost was runne frō hym: So they caryed the kyng awaye prysoner to Reblath, vnto the kynge of Babylon in the lande of Hemath, * where he gaue iudgemēt vpon hym.

* Jer.xxxix.b

The kynge of Babylon also caused Zedekiahs sonnes to be slayne before his face, yee C and put all the princes of Juda to death at Reblath. Moreouer, he put out the eyes of Zedekiah, caused hym to be bounde with two chaynes, to be caried vnto Babylon: and let hym lye in prison, tyll he dyed.

Nowe the tenth daye of the fyfth moneth in ✠ nynth yeare of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon, Nabusaradan the chefe captayne and the kynge of Babylons seruauntes came vnto Jerusalem, and brent vp the house of the Lorde. He brent vp also the kynges palace, all ✠ houses and all the gorgeous buyldynges in Jerusalem. And the whole hoost of the Chaldees that were with the chefe captayne, brake downe all the walles of Jerusalem rounde about.

As for the poore people and soch folke as yet was left in the cytie: which also were fallen to the kynge of Babylon, yee, and what people as yet remayned: Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne caried the awaye prysoners. But the poore people of the coūtre, dyd Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne leaue in the lande, to occuppe the vyneardes and feldes. D

The Chaldees also brake the brasen pyllers that were in the house of the Lorde, yee, the seate and the brasen lauer that was in ✠ house of the Lorde: and caryed all the metall of them vnto Babylon. They toke awaye also the Candlesons, thonels, flesthookes, syrynkers, spones, and all the brasen vessell that was occupied in the seruyce: with the basens, colepannes, syrynkers, pottes, candelstyckes, spones, and cuppes: wherof some were of golde, and some of syluer.

The chefe captaine toke also the two pillers, the lauer, the twelue brasen bullockes that stode vnder the seate * which kyng Salomon made in the house of the Lord: and all the vessell conteyned so moch metall, that it myght not be weyed. For euery piller was eyghtene cubytes hye: and ✠ rope that went aboute it, was twelue cubytes. & foure fyngers thycke and rounde. Nowe vpō the rope were brasen knoppes, āō euery knoppe was fyue cubytes hye: and vpon the knoppes were whopes, and pomgranates rounde about of cleane brasse: E * iiii.Reg.

After thys maner were both the pyllers fashyoned wt the pōgranates, wherof there were an hundred and .lxvi. which hanged vpon the whoopes rounde about. The chefe captaine also toke Sariah the hie preste, and Sophoniah that was chefe next hym, and the thre kepers of the treasury. He toke oute of the cytie a chāberlayne which was a captayne of the soudyers, and seuen men that were the kynges seruauntes, which were founde in the cytie: and Sepher a captayne that vsed to muster the men of warre, with threscore men of the countre that were taken in the cytie. These Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne toke, and caried them to the kynge of Babylon vnto Reblath: and the kyng of Babylon caused them to be put to death at Reblath in the lande of Hemath. And thus Juda was ledde awaye captiue, oute of hys awne lande. This is the summe of the people, whō Nabuchodonosor ledde awaye captiue. F G

In the seuenth yeare of hys raygne, he caried awaye of the Jewes, three thousand and three and twenty. In the .xviii. yeare Nabuchodonosor chodonosor caryed awaye from Jerusalem eyght hundzeth thirty and two persones. In the.xxiii. yeare of Nabuchodonosor Nabuzaradan the chefe captayne, toke awaye seuen hundzeth fourty and fyue Jewes prysoners. The whole summe of all the prysoners, is foure thousande and syxe hundzeth.

In the.xxxvii. yeare after that Jehoachin the kynge of Juda was caryed awaye in the xxv. daye of the.xii. moneth, Euilmerodach kynge of Babylon (the same yeare that he reygned) gaue Jehoachin the kyng of Juda hys pardon, and let hym out of prison, and spake louyngly to him. And sett his trone aboue the trones of the other kynges ꝑ were with hym in Babylon. He chaunged also the clothes of his prison, yee, and he dyd eate wt hym all his lyfe longe. And he had a continuall lyuyng geuen him of the kynge of Babylon, euery daye a certayne thynge alowed him all the dayes of hys lyfe, vntyll he dyed.

✠

¶ The ende of the booke of the Prophete Jeremy.

¶ The lamentacyons of Jeremy.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ It happened after Israel was brought into captiuite, and Jerusalem destroyed, that Jeremy the prophete sate weppynge, and sorowfully behaueth Jerusalem and sighynge and howlynge with an heuy and wofull herte, sayde.

ALas, howe sytteth the cytie so desolate, ꝑ somtyme was full of people! howe is she become lyke a wedowe, * which was ꝑ lady of all nacyons! howe is she brought vnder trybute, & that ruled all landes. She weyeth sore in ꝑ nyght so that the teares runne downe her chekes: for amonge all her louers, there is none that geueth her eny comforte: * ye her nexte frendes trāsgresse agenst her, and are become her enemyes. Juda is taken prisoner, because she was deryed: and for seruynge so many straūge goddes, she dwelleth nowe amonge the Heythen. She fyndeth no rest, all they that persecuted her, toke her, in strayte places wher she coulde not escape. The streates of Sion mourne, because no man cōmeth no more to the solēpne feastes. All her gates are desolat, her prestes make lamētacīō, her mayden are carefull: & she her selfe is in great heuynesse. Her enemies haue bene rulers ouer her, and her enemyes haue prospered: because the Lorde hath chastened her for her greate wyckednes: * her chyldren are ledde awaye captiue before theyr enemye. All the bewtie of the daughter of Sion is awaye, her princes are become lyke hertes that fynde no pasture. They are dryuē awaye before theyr enemie, so that they haue no more power. ¶

Nowe doth Jerusalem remembre the tyme of her misery and disobedience, yee, the ioye and pleasure that she hath had in tymes past seynge her people is brought downe thorow the power of theyr enemye, and there is no man for to helpe her: her enemyes stande lokynge at her, and laugh her Sabbath dayes to scorne. Jerusalem hath synned euer, more and more, therfore is she come in decaye. All they that had her in honoure despyse her: for they haue sene her fylthynes. Yee, she syghyth, and is ashamed of her selfe.

& her shyftes are defyled, she remembred not what wolde folowe: therfore is her fall so wonderfull, and there is no man to cōforte her. O Lorde, consydre my trouble, for myne enemye hath the vpperhande. The enemye hath put hys hāde to all the precious thynges that she had, yee, euē before her eyes came the heathen in and out of the Sanctuary: * whom thou (neuertheles) hast forbydden to come within thy congregacyon.

* All her people seke theyr breade with heuynes, and loke what precyous thing euery man hath, that geueth he for meate, to saue hys lyfe. Consydre, O Lorde, and se, how vyle I am become. Haue ye no regarde O all ye that go fore by, be holde and se, yf there be eny sorow lyke vnto myne, wherwith the Lorde hath troubled me, in the daye of his fearfull wrath. ✣ From aboue hath he sent downe a fyre into my bones and it burneth them cruellye: he hath layed a net for my fete and thrown me wyde open: he hath made me desolate, so that I must euer be mournynge. The yocke of my transgressyon is come at the last, with hys hāde hath he taken it vp, and put it aboute my neck. Thy strength is gone: the Lorde hath delyuered me into those handes, wherout I cannot quyte my selfe. The Lorde hath destroyed all the myghtye men, that were in me he hath proclaymed a feaste, to slaughter all my best men. The Lorde hath troden downe the daughter of Juda, lyke as it were in a wyne presse. * Therfore do I wepe, and myne eyes gusshe out of water: for the comforte that shulde quycken me, is farre fro me. ¶

Thy chyldren are dryuen awaye, for why? the enemy hath gotten the ouerhande.

Syon casteth out her handes, and there is no man

* Jere. 16. c.

* Deutero. xxiij. c.

* iiij. xx. bi.. c Treno. 4. c

* Jere. xiii. c. Treno. ii. c

no man to cõforte her The Lorde hath laied the enemyes rounde aboute Jacob, and Jerusalem is become abominacyon in the mydest of them. * The Lorde is ryghtuous, for I have provoked his countenaunce vnto anger. O take hede all ye people, and cõsydre my heuinesse. Myne maydens and my yonge men are led awaye into captiuyte.

* Dani. ix.a.

I called for my louers (but they begyled me) for my prestes and counsellers, but they perysshed euen whyle they sought for meate, to saue theyr lyues. * Consydre (O Lorde) howe I am troubled, my wombe is disquyeted, my hert turneth about in me, and I am full of heuines because I rebelled so burnlie. The swearde hurteth me without, & within I am like vnto death. They heare my mournyng, but there is none that wyll cõforte me. All myne enemies have hearde of my trouble and are glad therof, because thou hast done it and thou hast brought forth ỹ tyme which ỹ calledest, whē they also shalbe like vnto me.

G

* Deut. 9.c

Frō the shall come all their aduersitie thou shalt plucke thē awaye euē as thou hast pluked me, because of all my wikednes. For my sorowe is very greate, & my hert is heuy.

¶ The. ii. Chapter.

A

* Deut.xxviii.b

ALas, * howe hath the Lorde darckened the daughter of Syon so sore in hys wrath? As for ỹ honour of Israel he hath cast it downe frō heauen vnto ỹ erth. Howe happeneth it, that he remembred not his awne * fote stole when he was angre?

*1. Para. xxix.a. Psal. xcviii.a

The Lorde hath cast downe all the habitatyons of Jacob without any fauour: all ỹ stronge places of the daughter Juda hath he broken in hys wrath, and throwen them downe to the grounde: her kyngdome and her princes hath he suspended. In the wrath of hys indignacyon he hath broke all (ℭ the horne of Israel: he hath wt drawen his right hande from the enemye: yee, a flame of fyre is kyndled in Jacob, and hath consumed vp all rounde aboute. He hath bent his bowe lyke an enemye, he hath fastened hys right hād as an aduersary: and euery thynge that was pleasaunt to se, he hath smytten it downe. He hath poured out his wrath lyke a fyre, into the tabernacle of the daughter of Syon.

ℭ

B

The Lorde is become lyke as it were an enemie, he hath deuoured Israel and all hys palaces: yee, all his strong holdes hath he destroyed, and fylled ỹ daughter of Juda with moche sorowe and heuynesse.

* Jere. xli.b.

* Her tabernacle (which was lyke a garden of pleasure) hath he destroyed: her hye solēne feastes hath he put downe. The Lorde hath brought it so to passe, that the hie solēne feastes and Sabbathes in Syon, are cleane forgotten. In his heuy displeasure hath he made the kynge and prestes to be despised.

The Lorde hath forsaken hys awne auster, and hath abhorred his awne Sanctuarye, and hath geuen the walles of theyr towres into the handes of the enemye. Theyr enemies made a noise in the house of ỹ Lord, as it had bene in a solempne feaste daye.

C

The Lorde thought to breake downe the walles of the daughter of Sion, he spred out his lyne, and drewe not in hys hande, tyll he had destroyed them: Therfore mourne the turrettes and the broken walles together.

Her gates are sonke downe to the grounde, her barres are broken and smytten in sonder, * her kynge & princes are caried awaye to the Gentyls. They have neither lawe ner prophetes, ner yet eny vysyon frō the Lorde.

* Jer. xl

The senatours of the daughter Sion sytt vpon the grounde in silēce: they have strawed asshes vpon theyr heades, and gyrded them selues with sack cloth. The maydens of Jerusalē hange downe theyr heades to the grounde. Myne eyes begyne to faple me thorowe wepyng, * my body is disquyeted, my liuer is poured vpō the earth, for ỹ greate hurte of my people, seynge the chyldren and babes dyd swowne in the stretes of the cyte.

D

* Thren.ii.

Euen when they spake to theyr mothers: where is meate and dryncke? for whyle they so sayde, they fell downe in the stretes of the cytie, lyke as they had bene wouñded, and some dyed in theyr mothers bosome.

What shall I saye of the, O thou daughter Jerusalem, to whom shall I lycken the? To whom shall I cõpare the. O ỹ daughter Sion, to comforte the withall? Thy hurte is lyke a mayne see, who maye heale the?

E

* Thy prophetes have loked out vayne and folisshe thinges for the, they have not shewed the of thy wickednes, to kepe the frō captiuite: but have ouerladen the, and throwē falsshed stirred the a brode. All they that go by the, clappe their handes at the: hyllynge and waggynge their heades vpō the daughter Jerusalem, and saye: Is this the cyte that men call so fayre: wherin the whole lande reioyseth? All thyne enemies gape vpon ỹ: whysperinge and bytinge their teth, sayinge: let vs deuoure, for the tyme that we loked for, is come: we have founde and sene it.

* Jere.xxiii.b. Thren.ii.b. Jere.xviii.b.

F

The Lorde hath fulfylled the thinge, that he was purposed to do: and performed that he had deuised longe a go: he hath destroyed, and not spared. He hath caused thyne aduersarye triumphe ouer the, and set vp the horne of thyne enemie. * Let thyne herte crye vnto the Lorde, O thou cytie of the daughter Sion: let thy teares runne downe lyke a ryuer daye and nyght, rest not, and let not the aple of thyne eye leaue of. Stande vp and make thy prayer in the fyrst watch of the nyght, poure oute thyne hert lyke water before the Lorde. lyft vp thyne handes, for the

* Deut. xxviii.c. and xxxi. Jere. xiii.

lyues

Glyues of thy ponge chyldren, that dye of honger in the stretes. Beholde, O Lorde, and consydre, why hast thou gathered me vp so cleane? Shall ꝑ wemen then eate their awne frute, euen chyldꝛē of a spanne longe? Shall the prestes and prophetes be slayne thus in the Sanctuary of the Lorde? Ponge and olde lye behynde the stretes vpon the grounde, my maydens and ponge men are slayne with the swearde: whom thou in the daye of thy wrathfull indignacion hast put to death: yee, euen thou hast put them to death, & not spared them. Thy neyghboures that are rounde about me, hast thou called, as it were to a feast daye: so ꝑ in the daye of the Lordes wrath none escaped, nether was eny left behynde. Those that I haue brought & norysshed, hath myne enemy destroyed.

The .iij. Chapter.

I Am the mā, that (thorowe the rodd of hys wrath) haue experience of misery. He droue me forth, and led me: yee, into darckenesse, but not into lyght. Agaynst me onely he turneth hys hande, and layeth it euer vpon me.

Hy flesshe and my skynne hath he made olde, & my bones hath he bruised. He hath buylded rounde aboute me, and closed me in with gall and trauayle. He hath sett me in darcknes, as they that be deed for euer.

He hath so hedged me in, that I cannot get out, and hath layed heuy lynckes vpon me. Though I crye and call pyteously, yet heareth he not my prayer. He hath stopped vp my wayes with foure squared stones, and made my pathes croked.

He layeth wayte for me lyke a Beare, and as a lyon in a hole. He hath marred my wayes, and broke me in peces, he hath layed me waste altogether. He hath bent hys bowe, & made me as it were a marck to shut at: The arowes of his quyuer hath he shot euen into myne reynes. * I am laughed to scorne of all my people, they make songes vpon me all the daye longe. He hath fylled me with bitternes, and geuen me wormwod to dryncke. He hath smitten my teth in peces with stones, and rolled me in ꝑ dust.

He hath put my soule out of rest, I forget all good thynges. I thought in my selfe: I am vndone, there is no hope for me in the Lorde. Or remembre yet my misery and my trouble, the wormwod and the gall.

Yee, thou shalt remembre them, for my soule melteth awaye in me. Whyle I consydre these thynges in my herte, I get a hope agayne. Namely, it is of the Lordes mercyes that we are not, vtterly consumed. For truelye hys pytefull compassion hath not ceassed. Ne we mercyes shall the Lorde shewe vpon the, erly, yee in the daye spryngē, (O Lorde) greate is thy faythfulnesse.

* The Lorde is my portyon, sayeth my soule, therfore wyll I hope in him. O how good is the Lorde vnto them, that put their trust in hym, and to ꝑ soule that seketh after hym? The good man with stylnes and pacience tarieth, for the health of the Lorde. * psal.xxxi.a

O howe good is it for a man, to take the yock vpon him from his youth vp. He sytteth alone, he holdeth hym still, and dwelleth quyetly by him selfe. He layeth hys face vpon the earth, yf (percase) there happen to be eny hope. He offereth his cheke to the smyter, he wyll be content with reproues. D

For the Lorde wyll not forsake for euer, * but though he punysche hym: yet according to the multitude of his mercyes, he receaueth to grace agayne: For he doth not plage & cast out the children of men from his herte. * i.Reg.xi.b.

To treade all the presoners of the earth vnder his fete. To moue the iudgement of man before the most hyghest.

To condempne a man in hys cause. The Lorde hath not pleasure in soche thynges.

What is he then that sayeth: there shulde somthinge be done without the Lordes commaundement. Out of the mouth of the moost hyghest goeth not euell and good? E

Wherfore then murmureth the lyuynge man: let him murmure at his awne synne.

* Let vs loke, well vpō our awne wayes and remembre oure selues, and turne againe to the Lorde. Let vs lyfte vp oure hertes with oure handes vnto the Lorde that is in heauen. We haue bene dissemblers, and haue offended, wyll thou therfore not be intreated? Thou hast couered vs in thy wrath, and persecuted vs, thou hast slayne vs without any fauoure. * Thou hast hyd thy selfe in a cloude, ꝑ oure prayer shuld not go thorowe. Thou hast made vs out castes, and to be despysed amonge the people. All oure enemyes gape vpon vs. * Iob.xxvi.b psal.xxxix.a. * Ecc.xxvb.b

Feare and pyt is come vpon vs, yee, deceyte and destruccion. * Whole ryuers of water gushe oute of myne eyes, for the greate hurte of my people. * Treno.i.d.

Myne eyes runne, and cannot ceasse, for there is no rest. O Lorde, when wylt thou loke downe from heauen, and consydre?

Myne eye breaketh my herte: because of all the daughters of my cyte. Myne enemies hunted me out sharpely, lyke a byrde, yee, and that without a cause. They haue put downe my life into a pyt, & they haue cast stones vpon me. They poured water vpon my heade, then thought I: nowe am I vndone. I called vpon thy name, O Lord, out of ꝑ depe pyt. Thou hast herde my voyce: and hast not turned awaye thyne eares fro my syghthynge and crienge. Thou hast enclyned thy selfe vnto me, when I called

vpon

vpon the, and haste sayde: feare not. Thou (O Lorde) hast mayntened the cause of my G soule, and hast redemed my lyfe. O Lorde þ hast sene my blasphemers, take thou my cause vpon the. Thou hast well consydred howe they go aboute to do me harme, & that all their coūcels are agaynst me. Thou hast heard their despytefull wordes (O Lorde)
yee, and all theyr ymaginacyōs agaynst me.
The lyppes of myne enemyes, and theyr
devices that they take agaynst me, all þ daye
lōge. Thou seyst also theyr syttinge dowe, and theyr rysinge vp: they make theyr
songes of nothynge but of me. Reward them (O Lorde) accordynge to the worckes of theyr handes, Geue them an obstinate herte: euen thy curse. Persecute them (O Lorde) with thyne indignacyon, and rote the out from vnder the heauen.

¶ The. iiij. Chapter.

A HOwe is the golde become so dymme? howe is the goodly colour of it so sore chaunged? and the stones
of the Sanctuary thus scatred in the corner of euery strete. The chyldren of Syon that were alwaye in ho-noure, and clothed with the most precyous golde: howe are they nowe become lyke the erthen vessels which be made with the potters hande? The dragons geue theyr yong ones suck with bare brestes: but the daughter of my people is cruell, and dwelleth in the wylderne[illegible] lyke the Estriches. The ton-ges of the suckynge chyldren, cleue to the rofe of theyr mouthes for very thyrst. The yonge children aske bread, but there is no mā
that geueth it the. They that were wonte to fare delycately, perysshe in the streates: they that afore were brought vp in purple, make nowe moche of donge. The synne of the B daughter of my people is become greater the
* Gen.xix.a. * the wyckednes of Sodome, that sodenly
was destroyed, and not taken with handes.
Her ablepeners (or Nazarees) were whyter then the snowe or mylke: theyr colour
was freshe, reade as Cozall, theyr bewtye lyke the Saphyre. But nowe theyr faces very blacke. In so moche, that thou shuldest
* Psal. cij.a. not knowe them in the streates. * Theyr
skynne cleueth to theyr bones, It is withered and become lyke a drye stocke. They that be slayne with the swcard are happyer then
soche as dye of honger, and perysshe awaye,
lampyshynge for the frutes of the felde.
* Deutro. xxviij.c. xxviij. Regū. vi.f. * The wemen (which of nature are pytifull) haue sodden theyr awne childre with theyr handes, that they might be their meate
in the miserable destruccyon of the daughter
* Trenn.iij.a of my people. * The Lorde hath perfourmed hys heuy wrath: he hath poured oute the furiousnes of hys displeasure. He hath kyn-led a fyre in Syon, which hath consumed the foundacyons therof.

Nether the kynges of the earth, ner all þ
inhabitours of the worlde, wolde haue beleued that the enemy and aduersary shuld haue come in at the gates of the cytie of Jerusalem. Which neuertheles is come to passe for the synne of her prophetes, and for the wickednes of her prestes: that haue shed * in nocentes bloude within her. So that the blynde men wente stomblynge in the stree-
tes, and stayned them selues with bloude.
They wolde in no wyse touche there garmentes. But they cried vnto euery man flee the stayuynge, awaye, gett you hence, touche it not. Yee, they fleade and remoued from them yee, they haue sayde amonge the hethen they shall nomore dwell in this cytie.
The countenaunce of the Lorde hath ba-nysshed them, and shall neuer loke more vpō them. For they them selues nether regarded the prestes, nor pytied theyr elders.
Wherfore yet oure eyes fayle vs, whyle
we loke for vayne helpe: seynge we be euer
waytyng vpon a people, that can do vs no good. They laye so sharpe wayte for vs that we cannot go safe vpon the stretes: for oure ende is come, oure dayes are fulfyl-led, oure ende is here. * Oure perscu-
ters are swyfter then the Aegles of the ayre,
they folowed vpon vs ouer the mountaynes
and layed wayte for vs in the wylderne sse.
The very * breth of oure mouth: euen
the anoynted Lorde hym selfe was taken in ther nett of whom we saye: Vnder hys shadowe we shalbe preserued amonge the hey-then. And thou (O daughter Edom) that dwellest in the lande of Huz, be glad and re-ioyce: for the cuppe shall come vnto the also,
whych whan thou suppest of, thou shalt be dronken. Thy synnes is well punyshed, (O thou daughter Syon) he shall not suffre
the to be caryed awaye eny more. But thy wyckednes (O daughter Edō) shall he vp-set, and for thy synnes sake, he shall lede the into captyuite.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ The prayer of Jeremy.

G All to remembraunce (O Lorde)
what we haue suffred, consydre, and se oure confusion. Oure enhe-ritaunce is turned to the straūgers
and oure houses to the aleauntes.
We are become carefull and fatherles, and oure mothers are as the wyddowes. We are fayne to bryncke oure awne water for money, and oure awne wod must we bye with money. Oure neckes are vnder persecucion,
we are weery, and haue no rest.
Afore tyme we yelded oure selues to the Egyptians, and nowe to the Assyrians, only that we myght haue bred ynough. * Oure fathers (which now are gone) haue synned, &
we must

we muſt beare theyr wyckednes. Seruauntes haue the rule of vs, and no man delyue-reth vs out of their hãdes. We muſt get oure lyuynge with ꝑ parell of oure lyues, becauſe
of the drouth of the wyldernes.

Oure ſkynne is as it had bene brent in an ouen, for very ſore honger. The wyues are rauiſhed in Syon, and the maydens in the cyties of Juda. The princes are hanged vp with the hande of the enemies, they haue not ſpared ꝑ olde fage men, they haue take ponge
mennes lyues from thẽ, & the boyes are hanged vp vpon trees. The elders ſytt nomore vnder the gates, and the ponge men vſe no-more playenge of muſycke. The lope of oure D herte is gone, oure mery queet is turned into mournynge. The garlande of oure heade is fallen: alas, that euer we ſynned ſo ſore.

Therfore, oure herte is full of heuynes, &
oure eyes dymme: becauſe of the hyll of Sion, that is deſtroyed. In ſo moch, that the foxes runne vpon it. But thou, O Lorde, that remaynell for euermore, and thy ſeate worlde without ende: wherfore wylt thou ſtyll for-Lam.v.c get vs, and forſake vs ſo longe? * O Lorde turne thou vs vnto the, and ſo ſhall we be turned. Renue oure dayes as in olde tymes, for thou haſt bany-
ſhed vs nowe longe ynough,
and haſt bene ſore diſ-
pleaſed at vs.

¶ The ende of the lamentacyons of Jeremy.

¶ The booke of the Prophete Ezechiel.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ The tyme wherin Ezechiel prophecyed, and in what place. Hys offsprynge and office. The viſyon of the foure beaſtes. The viſyon of the wheles. The viſyon of the throne, and of the ymage aboue the throne.

A IT chaunced in ꝑ .xxx. yeare, the fyfthe daye of the fourth moneth, that I was among the preſoners by the ryuer of Cobar: ☞ where the hea-uens opened, and I ſawe a viſyon of God. Nowe the fyfth daye of the moneth made out the fyfth yeare of Kynge Joachins captyuite. At the ſame tyme came the worde of the Lorde vnto Ezechiel the ſonne of Buzi the preſte, in the lande of the Chaldees by the water of Co
E.i.a. bar, * where ↠ the hande of the Lorde came ↠ vpon hym.

And I loked, and beholde a ſtormy wynde came out of the North with a greate cloude B
full of fyre, which with hys glyſtre lyghtened all rounde aboute. And in the middeſt of the fyre it was all cleare lyke the face of an angell, and as it were the lykenes of foure beaſtes, and thys was there lykeneſſe. They were faſhyoned lyke a man: ſaupnge, that euery one had foure faces and foure wynges.

Theyr legges were ſtreight, but theyr fete were lyke bullockes fete, and they gly-ſtered, as it had bene fayre ſcoured metall. Vnder theyr wynges, vpon all the foure cozners they had mens handes. Theyr faces and theyr wynges were towarde the foure cozners: yet were the wynges ſo, that one euer touched another. When they went, they turned them not aboute: but eche one went ſtreight forwarde.

Furthermore thys was the ſymilitude C of theyr faces. * Vpõ the ryght ſyde of theſe * Ezech. 1.b.
foure, theyr faces were lyke the face of a mã, and the face of a lyon: But vpon the lefte ſyde, they had the face of an oxe, and the face of an Aegle. Theyr faces alſo and theyr wynges were ſpred out aboue: ſo that two wynges of one touched euer two wynges of another, & with the other they couered their body. Euery one when it went, it went ſtreyght forwarde. Where as the ſpyrete led them, thyther they went, * and turned not * Ezec. 1.c aboute in theyr goynge.

The faſhyon and countenaunce of the D
beaſtes was lyke hoate coales of fyre, euen as though burning creſſettes had bene amõg the beaſtes: ↠ (thys was the vyſyon) and the fyre gaue a glyſtre, and out of the fyre there went lyghtenynge. When the beaſtes wente forwarde & backward, one wold haue thought it hadlyghtened. Now when I had well cõ-ſydered the beaſtes, I ſawe a worche of wheles vpon the earth with foure faces alſo nye vnto the beaſtes.

The faſhyon and worche of the wheles was lyke ꝑ ſee. The foure wheles were toy-ned and made (to loke vpon) as it had bene one whele in another. When one wente forwarde, they wente all foure, and turned thẽ not about in theyr goinges. They were large greate and horrible to loke vpõ. Theyr backes were full of eyes rounde about them all foure. When the beaſtes wente, the wheles E wente alſo with them. And when the beaſtes lyfte them ſelues vp from the earth, the wheles were lyft vp alſo. Whyther ſoeuer ꝑ ſpyrete wente, thyther went they alſo, and the wheles were lyfte vp, and folowed them: for the ſpyrete of lyfe was in the wheles. When the beaſtes wente forth, ſtode ſtyll, or lyft them ſelues from the earth, then the wheles alſo wente, ſtode ſtyll, and were lyfte vp, for the ſpyreth of lyfe was in the wheles.

Aboue

Above, ouer the heades of the beastes there was a fyrmament, which was fashyoned as it had bene of the most pure Christall, and that was spred oute above vpon theyr heades: vnder the same fyrmament were theyr wynges layed abrode, one towarde another and two wynges couered ꝑ body of euery beaste. And when they wente forth, I herde the noyse of theyr wynges, lyke ꝑ noyse of greate waters, as it had bene the voyce of the greate God, and a rushynge together as it were of an hoost of men. And when they stode styll, they let downe theyr wynges.

Nowe when they stode styll, and had letten downe theyr wynges, it thondred in the fyrmamẽt that was above theyr heades. Above the fyrmament that was ouer theyr heades, there was the lykenes of a seate, as it had bene made of Saphyr. Upon the seate there satt one lyke a mã. * I beheld hym, and he was lyke an angell, as it had bene all of fyre within from his loynes vpwarde.

And beneth, when I loked vpon him vnder ꝑ loynes, me thought he was lyke a shynynge fyre, that geueth lyght on euery syde. Yet, the shyne and glystre that lyghtened rounde about, was lyke a raynbowe, which in a raynye daye appeareth in the cloudes. Euẽ so was the similytude, wherin the glorye of the Lorde appeared. When I sawe it, I fell vpon my face, and herkened vnto the voyce of hym that spake:

¶ The.ii. Chapter

¶ The prophete is sente to call the people from theyr synnes.

AND then sayde he vnto me: Stãde vp vpõ thy fete (O ꝑ sonne of mã) and I wyll talke with the. * And as he was comminge vnto me, the spyrete came into me, and sett me vp vpon my fete: so that I marched the whyle, ꝑ he sayde vnto me. And he sayde Behold, thou sonne of man: I wyll sende the to the chyldren of Israel, to those runnagates and obstinate people: for they haue taken parte agaynst me, and are runne awaye fro me: * both they and theyr fore fathers vnto thys daye.

Yet, I wyll sende the vnto a people that haue rough vysages and stiffe stomakes: vnto whõ thou shalt saye on thys maner: Thus the Lorde God hym selfe hath spoken, that whether they be obedient or no (for it is a frowarde housholde) they maye knowe yet that there hath bene a prophete amonge them.

* Therfore (thou sonne of man) feare thẽ not, neither be afrayed of theyr wordes: for prouokers and thornes are with the. Yet, thou dwellest amonge scorpions. but feare not theyr wordes, be not abashed at theyr lookes, for it is a frowarde housholde.

Be that thou speake my wordes vnto them, whether they be obedient or not, for they are obstynate. Therfore, thou sonne of man, obey thou all thynges that I saye vnto the, & be not thou stynecked, lyke as they are a stynecked housholde. Open thy mouth, and eate that I geue the.

So as I was lokynge vp, beholde, there was sent vnto me an hãde, wherin was closed * a booke: and the hande opened it before me, and it was wrytten within and without full of carefull mournynges: alas, and woo

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ The prophete beynge sente with the worde of God and with the constant boldenes of the spyrete, is sent vnto the people that were in captyuyte. The punyshment of a cruell that heareth not the people theyr synnes.

AFter thys, sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of man, eate that, whatsoeuer it be: yee * eate that booke, and go thy waye, and speake vnto the chyldren of Israel: So I opened my mouth, and he gaue me the booke for to eate, and sayde vnto me. Thou sonne of man, thy belly shall eate, and thy bowels shalbe fylled with ꝑ booke, that I geue the. Then dyd I eate the boke, * and it was in my mouth sweter then hony. And he sayde vnto me: thou sonne of man, * get ꝑ soone vnto the house of Israel, and shewe them the wordes, that I cõmaunde the for I sende the not to the people that hath a straũge, vnknowne, or hard speache, but vnto the house of Israel. Not to many nacyons, which haue dyuerse speaches and harde languages, whose wordes thou vnderstãdest not * Neuertheles, yf I sent the to those people, they wolde folowe the. But the house of Israel wyll not folowe ꝑ, for they wyll not folowe me: yee, all the house of Israel haue stiffe forheades & harde hertes. * Beholde therfore, I will make thy face preuayle agaynst their faces, and harde thy forehead agaynst their foreheades: so that thy forehead shalbe harder then an * Adamant or flynt stone: that thou mayest feare them the lesse, and be lesse afrayed of thẽ, for they are a frowarde housholde.

He sayde moreouer vnto me: thou sonne of man, take diligent hede with thyne eares, to the wordes that I speake vnto the, fasten them in thyne herte: and go to the prisoners of thy people, speake vnto them, and saye on thys maner: Thus the Lorde God hath spoken: whether ye heare, or heare not. With that the spyrete tolde me vp. And I herde the noyse of a greate rushynge and remouynge of the most blessed glory of the Lorde out of hys place.

I herde also the noyse of the wynges of the beastes, that russhed one agaynst another, ther, yet, and the rattlyng of the wheles, that were by them, whych rushynge and noyse was very greate.

* Nowe when the spyrete toke me vp, and caryed me awaye, I wente wyth an heuy & sorowfull mynde, but the hãde of the Lorde comforted me ryght soone.

And so in the begynnynge of the moneth Abib, I came to the presoners, * that dwelt by the water of Cobar, & remayned in ỳ place, where they were: And so contynued I amonge them seuen dayes, beynge very sory.

And when the seuen dayes were expired, the Lorde sayde vnto me: * Thou sonne of man, I haue made the a watchmã vnto the house of Israell: therfore take good hede to the wordes of my mouthe, & geue the warnynge at my commaundement.

If I saye vnto the, concernynge the vngodly man, that (wythout doute) he must dye, and thou geuest hym not warnynge, nor speakest vnto hym, that he may turne from hys euell waye, and so to lyue: Then shall ỳ same vngodly mã dye in his awne vnrighteousnes: but hys bloude wyll I requyre of thyne hand. Neuertheles, yf thou geue warnynge vnto the wycked, and he yet forsake not his vngodlynesse: then shall he dye in his awne wyckednesse, but thou hast discharged thy soule.

Nowe yf a righteous man go from * his righteousnesse, and do the thynge ỳ is euell: I will laye a stomblynge blocke before hym, and he shall dye because thou hast not geuen hym warnyng: yee, dye shall he in hys awne synne, so that the vertue, whych he dyd before, shall not be thought vpon: but his bloude wyll I requyre of thyne hande.

Neuertheless, yf thou exhortest the righteous, that he synne not, & so the righteous do not synne: then shall he lyue, because he hath receaued thy warnynge, and thou hast discharged thy soule. And there came ỳ hãde of the Lorde vpon me, and he sayd vnto me: Stãde vp, and go into the felde, that I may there talke wyth the.

So when I had rysen vp, and gone forth into the felde: Beholde, the glory of the Lord stode there, * lyke as I sawe it afore, by the water of Cobar.

* Then fell I downe vpon my face, & the spyrete came into me, whych set me vp vpon my fete, & sayd thus vnto me: Go thy waye, and sparre thy self in thyne house. Beholde, (O thou sonne of man) there shall chaynes be brought for the, to bynde the wythall, so that thou shalt not escape out of them. And I will make thy tunge cleue so to the rofe of thy mouth, that thou shalt be domme, & not be as a chyder wyth them: for it is an obstinate housholde.

But when I speake vnto the, then open thy mouth, and saye: Thus sayeth ỳ Lorde God: who so heareth, let hym heare: who so will not let him leaue, for it is an obstynate housholde.

¶ The .iiij. Chapter.

¶ The beleger of the cytie of Jerusalem is figured. The tonge contynuinge of the captiuitye of Israel. An honger is prophesyed to come in the captiuitye.

THou sonne of man: take a tyle stone, & laye it before the, and describe vpon it the cytie of Jerusalẽ, howe it is beseged, howe bulwarkes and stronge holdes are grauen on euery syde of it: destroye also tentes, and an hoost of men rounde about it, wyth engynes of warre.

Moreouer, take an yron panne, and set it betwixte the and the cyte, in stede of an yron wall. Then set thy face towardst, besege it, and laye ordinaunce agaynst it, to wynne it. Thys shalbe a token vnto the house of Israel. But thou shalt slepe vpõ thy left syde, and laye the synne of the house of Israel vpõ the. Certayne dayes appoynted, thou shalt slepe vpon that syde, and beare their synnes.

* Neuertheless, I will appoynte the a tyme (to put of theyr synnes) & the nombre of the dayes: Thre hundreth and .xc. dayes must thou beare the wyckednesse of the house of Israell. Whẽ thou hast fulfylled these dayes lye downe agayne, and slepe vpõ thy ryght syde .xl. dayes, and beare the synnes of the house of Juda.

* I daye for a yeare, a daye (I saye) for a yeare, wyll I euer laye vpon the. Therfore set nowe thy face agaynst that beseged Jerusalem, and discouer thyne arme, that thou mayest prophesye agaynst it.

Beholde, I wyll laye chaynes vpon the, that thou shalt not turne the from one syde to another, tyll thou hast ended the dayes of thy siege.

Moreouer, take vnto the wheate, barly beanes, growell sede, Milium and fytches: & put these together in a vessel, and make the loaues of bread therof, accordynge to the nombre of the dayes that thou must lye vpõ thy syde: that thou mayest haue bread to eate, for thre hundreth and .xc. dayes.

And the meate that thou eatest, shall haue a certayne wayght appoynted: namely twentye sycles euery daye. Thys apoynted meate shalt thou eate dayly, frõ the begynnynge to the ende.

Thou shalt drynche also a certayne measure of water: Namely, the .vj. parte of an hyn shalt thou drynche dayly frõ the begynnyng vnto the ende. Barly cakes shalt thou eate, yet shalt thou fyrst roll them at a fyre made with mans dõge, that they maye se it. And with that sayde the Lorde: Euen thus shall the chyldren of Israel eate their defyled bread in the myddest of the Gentiles, amõge whom I wyll scatter them.

Then

D Then sayde I: Oh Lorde God. Beholde my soule was yet neuer stayned: for from my youth vp vnto this houre, I dyd neuer eate of a deed carcase, or of that which was slayne of wylde beastes, nether came there euer any vncleane flesshe in my mouth.

Wher vnto he answered me, and sayde: well than, I wyll graunte ꝑ to take cowes donge for the donge of a mā, and to bake the bread wyth all before them.

Furthe he sayde vnto me: Beholde thou sonne of man, * I wyll myrrhe all the prouisiō of bread in Jerusalē, so that they shall weye their bred and eate it with scarcenesse. But as for water, they shall haue a very lytle measure therof, to drincke. And when they haue nomore bread nor water, one shall be destroyed with another, & sampyth awaye for their wyckednesse.

* Eze. v.b. and. xxiiii.b. and. xxxv.xxvi.d

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ The vtmost of the house, for which he sygnifyeth the destruccion of the people. The causes of the anger of God towarde the people.

A AND Thou sonne of man, take the then a sharpe knyfe, namely, a rasoure. Take that, and shaue the heare of thy head and beerd: Then take the scales and the wayght, & deuyde the hearre a sunder. And after thou hast accomplished ꝑ dayes of the syege: burne the thyrde parte therof in the fyre in the myddest of the cytie, & cut the other thyrde parte in peces wyth a knyfe. * As for ꝑ thirde parte ꝑ remayneth, cast it in the wynde and I wyll drawe out ꝑ swerde after them.

* Jere. lvi.d.

Yet afterwarde, take a lytle of the same, and bynde it in thy cote lappe. Then take a curtely of it, and cast it in the myddest of the fyre: & burne it in the fyre. Out of the same fyre shall there goo a flame, vpon the whole B house of Jsrael. Moreouer, thus sayde the Lorde God: Thys same is Jerusalem. I sett her in the myddest of the heathen & nacions that are rounde about her, but she hath despysed my iudgementes more then the Gētiles them selues, and broke my commaundementes more then ꝑ nacyons, that lye rounde about her. For they haue cast out myne ordinaunces, and not walcked in my lawes.

*Leu. xviii.b Therfore, thus sayeth the Lord God: * For so moch as ye haue bene more augmented in nombre of people then the heathen, ꝑ dwell rounde about you: and ye haue not walcked in my lawes, nether haue ye hepte myne ordinaunces, and ye haue not lyued so ryghtwysly as the hethen that are rounde about you: Therfore thus sayeth the Lord God:

C I wyll also come vpon the, I my selfe I saye, for in the myddest of the wyll I syt in iudgmēt, in the syght of the heathen, & wyll handle the of soch a fashyon, as I neuer dyd before, and as I neuer wyll do from that tyme forth, and that because of all thyne abhominacions. For in the, fathers * shall be sayne to eate their awne sonnes, and the sonnes their awne fathers. Soch a courte will I kepe in the, and the whole remnaūt of the wyll I scatre in to all the wyndes.

* Eze. v.b. Deu. xxviii.d. xxix.d.

Wherfore, as truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lord God) seyng thou hast defyled my Sanctuary, with all maner of abhominacyons & all thy shamefull offences: For thys cause wyll I also destroye the. Myne eye shall not owerse the, nether wyll I spare the.

* One thyrde parte wythin the, shall dye of the pestilence & of honger: Another thirde parte shall be slayne downe rounde about the with ꝑ swerde: The other thyrde parte ꝑ remayneth, wyll I scatre abroade towarde all the wyndes, and drawe out the swearde after them. Thus I wyll perfourme my indignacīō & set my wrath agaynst them, and D cast my selfe. So that whē I haue fulfylled myne anger agaynst them, they shall knowe that I am the Lorde, which wyth a fruent gelousy haue spoken it. Moreouer, I wyll make the waste and abhorred, before all the heathē that dwell about the, & in the sight of all them, that go by the: so that whē I punish the in my wrath, in myne anger, & with ꝑ plage of my whole displeasure: thou shalt be a very abhominacion, shame, a gasynge & wondrynge stocke, amonge the heathē that lye about the. Euē I the Lorde haue spokē it, and it shall come to passe, when I shute amonge them the perlous darte of honger, which shal be but death: Yee, therfore shall I shute them, because I will destroye you: * I wyll encrease hūger, and mynish all the prouision of bread amonge you.

* Eze. xiiii.d

Plages & misery wyll I sende you, yee, & wylde beastes also to destroye you. Pestilence and bloudshedinge shall come vpon you, & the swearde wyll I bringe ouer you. Euen I the Lorde, haue sayde it.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ Of the wrath that the people shalbe plagued for the synne of Idolatrye. He prophecieth the repentaunce of the remnaunt of the people, and their deliuerance. The destruccion of the frowarde is prophesyed.

AND the worde of the Lorde came vnto A me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, turne thy face to the * mountaynes of Jsrael, that thou mayest prophecie vnto them, and saye: Heare the worde of the Lord God, O ye mountaynes of Jsrael: Thus hath the Lorde God spoken to the mountaynes, hylles, valleys and dales.

* Eze. xxxvi.a

Beholde I, I my selfe I saye, wyll bringe a swearde ouer you, and destroye youre hye places: I wyll cast downe youre aulters, and breake downe youre ymages. Youre slayne men wyll I laye before youre goddes, and the deed carcases of the chyldren of Jsrael wyll I cast before their Idoles, youre bones wyll I destroye rounde

aboute

aboute youre aulters, and dwellyng places.

The cyties shalbe desolate, & hyllchapels layed waste: youre aulters destroyed, & broken: youre goddes cast downe, and taken awaye, your ſtatues layde euē wyth the grounde, your awne worckes cleane roted oute.

Youre slayne men shall lye amonge you, that ye maye learne to knowe, howe that I am the Lorde. Those þ be amōge you & haue escaped the swearde, wyll I leaue amōge the Gentiles, for I wyll scatre you amonge the nacyons. And they that escape of you, shall thinche vpon me amōge the heathen, where they shalbe in captiuitye.

As for that whorysh and vnfaythfull herte of theirs, wherewyth they runne awaye from me, I wyll breake it: yee, & put oute those eyes of theirs, that commytte fornicacyon with theyr Idols.

Then shall they be ashamed, and displeased wyth their selues, for the wyckednesses and abhominacyons, which they haue done: and shall learne to knowe, þ I am the Lorde howe that it is not in vayne, that I þ Lorde spake, to brynge soch misery vpon them.

The Lorde sayde moreouer vnto me: Smyte thyne handes together, and stampe wyth thy fete, and saye: Wo worth all the abhominacions and wyckednesses of the house of Israel, for because of them, they shall perysh wt the swearde, wyth honger and with pestilēce. Who so is farre of, shall dye of the pestilēce: he that is nye at hande, shall perysh wyth the swearde: and the other that remayne & þ are beseged, shall dye of honger.

Thus wyll I satisfye my wrothfull displeasure vpon them. And so shall ye learne to knowe, that I am the Lorde, when youre slayne men lye amonge youre Idols, and aboute youre aulters: vpon all hye hylles and toppes of mountaynes, amonge all grene trees, amonge all thycke okes: euē in the places, where they dyd sacrifyce to all theyr Idols. I wyll stretch myne hande oute vpon them, and wyll make the lande waste: So þ it shall lye desolate and voyde, frō the wyldernesse of Deblathah forth, thorowe all their habitacions: to learne thē for to knowe, that I am the Lorde.

The. vij. Chapter.

The ende of all the lande of Israel shall sodenly come. The cause of the destruccyō therof. The prophete is cōmaunded to shewe the summe of the euelles that are at hande.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me on thys maner: The I call, O þ sonne of man. Thus sayeth the Lorde God vnto the lāde of Israel: The ende commeth, vpon the lande of Israel yee, verely the ende cōmeth vpon all the foure corners of þ lāde. But nowe shall þ ende come vpon the for I wyll sende my wrath vpon the, & will punyshe þ: accordynge to thy wayes, & rewarde the after all thyne abhominacions. * Myne eye shall not ouerse the, nether will I spare the: but rewarde þ, accordyng to thy wayes, and declare thyne abhominacyons. Then shall ye knowe, that I am the Lorde. * Eze. viij. & xj.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, one misery and plage shall come after another. þ ende is here. The ende (I saye) is come, it watched for þ, beholde it is come all ready, thy destruction is erlye come agaynst the, þ dwellest in the lande.

The tyme is at hande, the daye of sedicion is harde by, & the crye shall not be as the soundinge agayne of the mountaynes. Therfore, I wyll shortly pour out my sore displeasure ouer the, and fulfyll my wrath vpō the. I wyll iudge the after thy wayes, and rechpence the all thy abhominacyons.

* Myne eye shall not ouerse the, nether wyll I spare the: but rewarde the after thy wayes, & thyne abhominations shall be punished in the middes of the, to learne you for to knowe, howe that I am the Lord þ smyteth. Beholde, the daye is here the daye is come, þ houre is ryne out, the rodde flourisheth, pryde wareth grene, malicyous violence is growne vp, and the vngodly wayte to a stat. None of the shal remayne ouer, none of their riches, not one of ther seede, and no lamētacion shall be made for them. * Eze. vij. b. and xj. c.

The tyme cōmeth, the daye draweth nye: * who so byeth, lett him not reioyce: he that selleth, let hym not be sory: for why. * Trouble shall come in the myddest of them all: so þ the seller shall not come agayne to the thinge he solde, all though they lyte be yet with þ lyuinge. For wh the prophecye was preached vnto all the people, none returned from ther synne, and noman toke strengthe to him agēst his wyckednesse, to saue his awne lyfe. The trompettes shall ye blowe, & make you all ready, but no mā shall goo to þ battell, for I am wroth with all þ whole multitude. * 1. Cor. vij. b. ‡ Ezec. xij. b. 1. Thes. v. d.

The swearde shalbe without, pestilence and honger wythin: so that whoso is in the felde, shalbe slayne with the swearde: and he that is in the cytie * shall perysh with honger and pestilence. * Deu. xxxij. b.

And soch as escape and flie from amonge them, shall be vpō the hylles, lyke as the doues in þ felde: euery one shalbe afrayed, because of his awne wyckednesse.

All handes shalbe let downe, & all knees shalbe weake as the water: they shall gyrde them selues wyth sackcloth, feare shall fall vpon them. Theyr faces shalbe confoūded, * and theyr heades balde: theyr syluer shall they cast forthe in the stretes, & their golde shalbe despysed. * Yee, theyr syluer & golde maye not delyuer thē, in the daye of þ fearfull wrath of the Lorde. * Esa. xv. b. * Sophon. i. d. Ezec. v. b. Prouer. xi. a.

¶ ij They

They shall not satisfye their hongry soules, neither fyll their emptye bellyes therw: For it is become their awne decaye thorow
*Ofee.viij.a their wickednes: And ther bewtyfull costlye ornamente that God had ordeyned to be their great glorye, in it they haue sett vpabhominacyõs vnto ther Idols. For this cause wyll I make them and it to be abhorred. Moreouer, I wyll geue it into the handes of the straungers to be spoyled: and to the wycked, for to be robbed, ād they shall destroye it. Myne face wyll I turne frō them, my treasury shalbe defiled: for the theues shall go in to it, and suspende it. Make a cheyne, for the lande is whole defyled wyth vnrygh̄teous iudgement of innocent bloude, and the cytie is full of violent oppressyon. Wherfore, I G wyll bringe the most cruell tyrauntes from amonge the heathen, to take theyr houses in possessyon. I wyll make the pompe of the proude to cease, and ther sanctuary shall be defyled. When thys trouble commeth, they shall seke peace, but they shall haue none.
One myschefe and sorowe shall folowe another, and one rumoure shall come after ano-
*Jerr.xxv. biij.c. ther: * Then shall they seke visyons in vayne at their Prophetes. The lawe shall be gone from the prestes, and wysdome from the elders. The kynge shall mourne, the Prynces shalbe clothed with heuynesse, and the hāndes of the people in the lānde shall tremble for feare. I wyll do vnto them after theyr awne wayes, accordynge to their awne iudgemētes wyll I iudge them: to learne them for to knowe, that I am the Lorde.

¶ The.viij. Chapter.

¶ An appearaunce of the symilitude of God. Ezechiel is brought vnto Jerusalē in the spyrite. The Lord declareth the Prophete the Idolatries of the house of Israel, and chefely of the Prestes.

I IT happened, that in the syxte yeare ꝓ fyfth daye of the syxte moneth. I sat in my house, and the Lordes of the councell of Juda with me: and the hande of the Lorde God fell euen there vpon me. And as
*Ezec.i.c. I loked vp, * I sawe as it were a lickenesse of fyre from hys loynes downe warde, and frō hys loynes vpwarde it shyned maruelous
*Eze.xl.b. and.xl.d. cleare & lyke an angell to loke vpon. * This symilitude stretched out an hande, and toke
B me by the heayre lockes of my head, and the spyrite lyft me vp betwyxte heauē and earth: and brought me in a visyon to Jerusalem, into the entrie of ꝓ inner porte that lyeth towarde the north: there stode an ymage, with whō he that hath all thynges in hys power, was very wroth.
And beholde, the glory of the God of Is-
*Ezec.i.a. rael was in the same place: euen * as I had sene it afore in the feilde. And he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of mā, Olyft vp thyne eyes, and loke towarde the north. Then lyft I
C vp myne eyes towarde the north, & beholde: beside the porte northwarde, there was an aulter made vnto the ymage of prouocacyō in the very entryng in. And he sayde furthermore vnto me: Thou sonne of mā, seest thou what these do? Seest thou the greate abhominacyons that the house of Israel cōmytte in thys place, to dryue me frō my sanctuary? But turne the aboute, and thou shalt se yet greater abhominacyons. And wyth that brought he me to the courte gate: & when I loked, beholde, there was an hole in ꝓ wall. Then sayde he vnto me: Thou sonne of mā, dygge thorow the wall. And whē I dygged D thorow the wall, beholde, there was a doze. And he sayde vnto me: Go thy waye in, and loke what wycked abhominacyons they do here. So I wente in, and sawe: and beholde, there were all maner ymages of wormes & beastes, all Idoles and abhominacyons of the house of Israel paynted euery one rounde about the wall. Ther stode also before the *Exo.xxxij. Num.xiij. ymages. *lxx. Lordes of the councell of the house of Israel: and in the myddest of them stode Jaazanith the sonne of Saphan: And euery one of thē had a censoure in hys hāde, and out of the incense, there went a smoke, as it had bene a cloude. Then sayde he vnto me. Thou sonne of mā, hast thou sene what the Senatoures of the house of Israel do secretly, euery one in hys chambre? * For they E * Job.xxij. Esa.xxix. Jerr.xxiij. Ezec.xj.c. saye: Tushy, the Lorde seeth vs not, the Lorde regardeth not the worlde. And he sayd vnto me: Turne the yet agayne, and thou shalt se yet greater abhominacyōs ꝓ they do. And wyth that he brought me to the doze of the porte of the Lordes house, towarde ꝓ north. And beholde, there sat women mournynge for Thamus. Then sayde he vnto me: hast F thou sene thys, thou sonne of man? Turne ꝓ aboute, and thou shalt se yet greater abhominacyōs then thes are. And so he brought me into the inwarde court of the Lordes house: and beholde at ꝓ porte of the Lordes house, betwyxte the laze entrye ād the aulter, there were fyue and twēty men, that turned their backes vpon the temple of the Lorde, and theyr faces towarde ꝓ easte, and these worshyppe the sonne.
And he sayde vnto me: hast thou sene this, G thou sonne of man? Thynketh the house of Juda, that it is but a trifle, to do these abhominacyons here? Shulde they fyll the lande full of wyckednesse, and vndertake to prouoke me vnto anger? Yee, and purposely to cast vp theyr noses vpon me? Therfore will I also do some thynge in my wrathfull displeasure, so ꝓ myne eye shall not ouerse the, nether wyll I spare them. * Yee, and though * Prou.i. Jerr.xi.b. and.xiiij.b. Ezech.viij.c. they crye in myne eares wyth loude voyce, yet wyll I not heare them.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

The

¶ The destruccyon of Idolatres, and the conuersacion of the ryghtwers. They that shalbe saued are marcked. They that are vnmarcked are slayne. A complaynte of the Prophet for the destruccyon of the people.

HE cryed also with a loude voyce in myne eares, sayinge: Come, here ye rulers of the cyte, euery man wyth his weapened hande to the slaughter. Then came there syx mē out of the strete of the vpper porte towarde the north, and euery man a weapē in hys hāde to slaughter. There was one amōgest them, that had on hym a lynen rayment, & a wrytars pynckhorne by hys syde.

These wente in, & stode besyde the brasen aulter: for the glory of the Lorde was gone awaye from the *Cherub whych was vpon him, & was come downe to the threshold of the house, and he called the man that had the lynen rayment vpon hym, and the wrytars pynckhorne by his syde, and the Lorde sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye thorowe the cyte of Jerusalem, and set a marcke vpon the foreheades of them, that mourne and are sory for all the abhominacions, that be done therin. And to the other, he sayde that I myght heare: * Go ye after hym thorowe the cytie, slaye, ouerse none, spare none: kyll and destroye both olde men and ponge, maydens, chyldren, and wyues.

But as for those, that haue the marcke vpon them: se that ye touch thē not, * and begynne at my Sanctuary. Then they begāne at the elders, whych were in the temple, for he had sayde vnto thē: When ye haue defyled the temple, and kylled the courte wyth the slayne, thē go your waye forth. So they wente out, & slewe downe thorowe the cytie. Nowe when they had done the slaughter, & I yet escaped: I fell downe vpon my face, & cryed, sayinge: O Lorde, wylt thou then destroye all ỹ residue of Israel, in thy sore displeasure, that thou hast poured vpon Jerusalem? Then sayde he vnto me: The wyckednesse of the house of Israel and Juda is very greate: so ỹ the lande is full of bloude, and the cytie full of vnfaythfulnesse: For they saye: * The Lorde regardeth not the earth, he seeth vs not. Therfore wyll I vpō them, & myne eye shall not ouerse thē, nether wyll I spare thē, but wyll recompense theyr wyckednesse vpon theyr heades. And beholde, the man that had the lynen rayment vpon hym, and the wrytars pynckhorne by hys syde: tolde all the matter howe it happened, and sayde: Lorde as thou hast cōmaunded me, so haue I done.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ Of the man that tooke whote burninge coles oute of the myddes of the wheles & of the Cherubyns, in token of the burninge of Jerusalem. A rehersall of the vysyon of the wheles, of the beastes, and of the Cherubyns.

AND as I loked, beholde, in the firmament that was aboue the Cherubins there appeared the symilitude of a stole of Saphyr vpon them: * Then sayde he that sat therin, to him that had the lynē rayment vpon hym: Crepe in betwene the wheles that are vnder the Cherubyns, and take thyne hāde full of hoote coales out from betwene the Cherubyns, and cast them ouer ỹ cytie. And he crepte in, that I myght se.

Now the Cherubyns stode vpō the ryght syde of the house, when the man wente in, & the cloude fylled the inner courte. * But the glory of the Lorde remoued from the Cherubyns, and came vpon the threshold of the house: so that the temple was full of cloudes, and the courte was full of the shyne of the Lordes glory. Yee, and the sounde of the Cherubyns wynges was hearde into the fore courte, lyke as it had bene the voyce of the almyghtye God, when he speaketh. Nowe when he had byden the man that was clothed in lynen, to go and take the hoote coales from the myddest of the wheles, whych were vnder the Cherubyns: he wēte & stode besyde the wheles. Then ỹ one Cherub reached forth hys hande from vnder the Cherubyns, vnto the fyre that was betwene the Cherubyns, and toke therof, and gaue it vnto hym that had on the lynen rayment in his hande: which toke it, & went out. And vnder the wynges of the Cherubyns, there appeared the lyckenesse of a mans hāde: I sawe also foure wheles besyde the Cherubyns, so ỹ by euery cherub there stode a whele. And the wheles were (to loke vpon) after the fashion of the precyous stone of Tharsys: yet (vnto the syght) they were all .iiij. of one fashyon, as yf one whele had bene in another.

When they wente forth, they wente all foure together, not turnynge aboute in their goinge: But where the fyrst wente, thyther wente they after also, so that they turned not aboute in their goyng. Their whole bodyes, their backes, theyr handes & wynges, yee, and the wheles also, were all full of eyes rounde aboute them all foure. And I hearde hym call the wheles. * Euery one of thē had foure faces: so that the one face was the face of a Cherub, the seconde of a man, the thyrde of a lyon, the fourth of an Aegle, & they were lyfted vp aboue. This is the beast, that I sawe at the water of Cobar. Nowe whē the Cherubyns wente, the wheles wente wyth them, and when the Cherubyns shoke theyr wynges to lyft thē selues vpwarde, ỹ wheles remayned not behynde, but were wyth them also. Shortly, when they stode, these stode also. And when they were lyft vp, the wheles were lyft vp also with them, for the spyrete of lyfe was in the wheles.

* Then the glory of the Lorde was lyft

vp from the thresholde of the temple, and remayned vpon the Cherubyns: And the Cherubyns flackered wyth theyr wynges, and lyfte them selues vp from the earth: so that I sawe when they went, and the wheles vnder them. And they stode at the east syde of the porte that is in the house of the Lorde. So the glory of the Lorde was vpon the. Thys is the beast ꝑ I sawe vnder the God of Israel, by the water of Cobar. And I perceaued, that it was the Cherubyns. Euery one had foure faces, & euery one foure wynges, and vnder theyr wynges, as it were mens handes. Nowe the figure of theyr faces was, euen as I had sene them, by the water of Cobar, and so was the countenaunce of the: Euery one in pys goinge wēte strayght forwarde.

¶ The.xj. Chapter.

¶ Who they were that seduced the people of Israel. Against these he prophecyeth, shewynge them howe they shalbe vtterlyes abroade. The remynaunt of ꝑ herd ymaketh of God, otherwyse can we not wacke in hys commaundementes. He threatenyth them that leane vnto theyr owne councelles.

Moreouer, the spyrete of the Lorde lyft me vp, and brought me vnto the East porte of the Lordes house. And beholde, there were xxv. men vnder the doze amōge whō I sawe Jaazaniah the sonne of Azur, and Pheltiah the sonne of Bananiah, the rulers of the people. Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: Thou sonne of man: these men ymagyn myschefe, and a wycked councell take they in thys cyte, sayinge: tush, there is no destruccyon at hande, let vs buylde houses: this Jerusalē is the cauldzon, and we be the flesshe. Therfore shalt thou prophecye vnto them, yee, prophecye shalt thou vnto them, O sonne of mā. And wyth that fell the spyrete of the Lorde vpon me, and sayde vnto me: Speake, thus sayeth the Lorde: On this maner haue ye spoken (O ye house of Israel) ꝑ I knowe the ymaginacyons of youre hertes. Many one haue ye murthured in this cyte, and fylled the stretes full of the slayne.

Therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde God: The slayne men that ye haue layed on the grounde in this cyte, are the flesh, and thys cyte is the cauldzon: * But I wyll bzynge you out of it. *ye haue feared the swerde, ꝑ I wyll bzynge a swearde ouer you, sayeth the Lorde God. I wyll bzyue you out of thys cyte and delyuer you into youre enemyes hande, and will condemne you. Ye shalbe slayne in all the coastes of Israel, I wyll be auenged of you: to lerne you for to knowe, that I am the Lorde. Thys cyte shall not be youre cauldzon, neyther shall ye be ꝑ flesh therin: but in the coastes of Israel wyll I punysh you, that ye maye knowe, that I am the Lorde: in whose commaundementes ye haue not walcked, ner kepte my lawes: * but haue done after ꝑ customes of the heathen, that lye rounde about you.

*ezec.xxxiii.a. ‡mal.xxvi.c.

*Leu.xviii.a. Deute.xii.b.

Nowe when I preached, Pheltiah the sonne of Bananiah dyed. Then fell I downe vpon my face, and cryed wyth a loude voyce: O Lorde God, wylt thou then vtterlye destroye all the remnaunt in Israel? And so the worde of the Lorde came to me on thys maner: thou sonne of man: thy brethren, thy kynsfolke, & the whole house of Juda, which dwell at Jerusalem, saye. Wythdrawe ye farre from the Lorde, for the lāde is geuē vs in possessyon. Therfore tell the, thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll sende you farre amonge the Gentiles, and skatre you amōge the nacyons, & I wyll halowe you but a lytle, in the landes where ye shall come. Tell the also, thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll gather you agayne out of the nacyons, and bzynge you from the countrees where ye be skatred, and wyll geue you the lande of Israel agayne. And they shall comme thyther, And they shall take awaye all ther Idols & all ther abhominacyons from thence.

*And I wyll geue you one hert, and I wyll plāte a newe spyrete wythin youre bowels. That stony herte will I take out of your body, and geue you a fleshly herte (that ye maye walke in my commaundementes, and kepe myne ordinaunces, and do them: & ye maye be my people, & I youre God But soke whose hertes are dysposed to folowe theyr abhominacyōs and wycked lyuinges: those mens dedes wyll I bzynge vpon theyr owne heades, sayeth the Lorde God. After thys dyd the Cherubyns lyft vp theyr wynges, and the wheles wente wyth them, and the glory of the Lorde was vpon them. * So the glory of the Lorde wente vp frō the myddest of the cyte, and stode vpon the mount of the cyte towarde the east: * But the wynde toke me vp, and in a vysyon (whych came by the spyrete of God) it brought me agayne into Caldea amonge the presoners. Then the vysyon that I had sene vanyshed awaye fro me. So I spake vnto the presoners, all the wordes of the Lorde, whych he had shewed me.

*Jere.xxxi. ‡Ezech.xxxvi.

*Ezech.xi. and.xliii.a.

*Ezech.xliii. and.xlvi.a.

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

¶ The parable of the vessels of the captiuitye. The exposycyon of the parable, by whych the takynge of Jerusalē by Nebuchadnezzar is signified. Another parable wherby the dyuersite of honger and thyrst is signified.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, thou dwellest in the myddest of a frowarde housholde: * whych haue eyes to se, and se not: eares haue they to heare, and yet heare they not, for they are an obstinate housholde. Therfore (O thou sonne of man) make thy gere redy to flyt, and go forth by fayre daye lyght, that they maye se. Yee, euen

*Ezech.vi.b. Esay.vi.b. Mat.xiii.b. Mar.viii.b. Luke.viii.a. Iohn.xii.b. Rom.xi.b.

in

in theyr syght shalt thou go from thy place to another place: yf paraduenture they wyll consyder, that they be an vnobedient housholde: Thy gere that thou hast made redy to flyt wythall, shalt thou beare out by dayze daye syght that they maye se: and thou thy selfe shalt go forth also at euē in their syght, as a mā doth when he flytteth. Dygge thorow the wall, that they maye se & beare thorow it the same thyng, that thou toheest vp in their syght. In
B their syght shalt thou beare vpō thy shulders, & cary it forthe in the darke. Hyde thy face that thou se not the earth, for I haue made the a shewoken vnto the house of Israel. Nowe as the Lorde commaunded me, so I dyd: the geare that I had made readie brought I out by daye. At euē I brake downe an hole thorow the wall wyth my hande: and when it was darcke, I toke the gere vpon my shoulders, and bare them out in theyr syght.

C And in the morninge, came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of mā, yf Israel that frowarde housholde aske the, and saye: what doest thou there? Then tell thē: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Thys punyshment toucheth the chefe rulers at Ierusalem, and all the house of Israel, that dwell amonge them: Tell them: I am youre shewe token: lyke as I haue done, so shall it happen vnto you: Flyt shall ye also, and go into captiuitie. * The chefest that is amōge you, shall lade hys shulders in the darcke, & get hym awaye. He shall breake downe the
D wall, to carye stuffe therthorow: he shall couer his face, that he se not the grounde, with his eyes. * Wy lyne wyll I sprede out vpon hym, and catch him in my net, and cary hym to Babylon, in the lāde of the Caldees: which he shall not se, and yet shalt he dye there. As for all hys helpers, & all hys hostes, that be about hym. I wyll scatre them towarde all the wyndes, and drawe out a swearde after them. * So when I haue scatred them amōge the heathen, and strowed them in the landes, they shall knowe, that I am the Lorde. But, I wyll leaue a lytle nōbre of them frō the swearde, hunger and pestilence: to tell all their abhominacyons amonge the heathen, where they come: that they maye knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

E Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me sayinge: Thou sonne of man: wyth a frarfull tremblynge shalt thou eate thy bread, wyth carefulnesse & sorowe shalt thou drynche thy water. And vnto the people of the lāde, speake thou on this maner: Thus sayeth the Lord God, to them that dwell in Ierusalem, and to the lande of Israel: Ye shall eate youre bread wyth sorowe, and drynche youre water wyth heuynesse: Yee, the lande wyth the fulnesse therof shalbe layde waste, for the wyckednesse of them that dwell therin. And the cyties that now be well occupyed, shall be voyde, and the lāde desolate: that ye may knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

Yet came the worde of the Lorde vnto me A agayne, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, what maner of by worde is that, which ye vse in the lāde of Israel, sayinge: Tush, * seynge that the dayes are so slacke in commynge, all the visyons are of none effecte: Tell them therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll make that by worde to ceasse, so that it shall nomore be commenly vsed in Israel. *ii. Pet. iii. b

But saye thys vnto them: The dayes are at hāde, that euery thynge which hath bene prophecyed, shalbe fulfylled. There shall no
G visyō be in vayne, nether eny prophetie fayle amonge the chyldren of Israel: For it is I the Lorde, that speake it: and whatsoeuer I the Lorde speake, it shall be perfourmed, and not be slacke in commynge.

Yee, euen in youre dayes (O ye frowarde housholde) will I deuyse some thynge, and bringe it to passe, sayeth the Lord God. And the worde of the Lorde came vnto me saying: Beholde, thou sonne of man: The house of Israel sayeth on thys maner: Tush, as for the visyon that he hath sene, it wyll be many a daye or it come to passe: It is farre of yet, the thynge that he prophecyeth. Therfore saye vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: All my wordes shall nomore be slacke: Loke what I speake, that same shall come to passe, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The.xiij. Chapter.

¶ The worde of the Lorde against false prophetes, wherby they teach the people the counceiles of theyr awne hertes.

The worde of the Lorde came vn- A to me, sayinge: Thou sonne of mā. Speake, prophecye agaynst those pphetes, that preach in Israel: & saye thou vnto them that prophecye out of theyr awne hertes: Heare the worde of the Lord, thus sayeth the Lord God: * Wo be vnto those folysh prophetes, that folowe theyr awne spyrete and speake where they se nothyng. O Israel, thy prophetes are lyke the foxes vpon the drye felde: For they stande not in the gappes, nether make they an hedge for the house of Israel, that men myght abyde the battell in the daye of the Lorde. Vayne thynges they se, and tell lyes, to * mayntaine their preachynges wythall. The Lorde (saye they) hath spoken it, whan in very dede the Lorde hath not sent them. Vayne visyons haue ye sene, and spoke false prophecyes, whē ye saye: the Lorde hath spoken it, where as I neuer sayde it. * Ezech. xxxiiij a. * Iere. xxiij. a

Therfore, thus sayeth the Lord God: Be- B cause youre wordes be vayne, and ye se out lyes: Beholde, I wyll vpon you, sayeth the Lorde. Wyne hādes shall come vpon the prophetes that loke out wayne thinges, and preach lyes: they shall not be in the councell of my people, nether wrytten in the boke of the house of Israel, nether shall they come in the lande of Israel: ye maye knowe, howe I am the Lorde God. And that for by cause: they haue deceaued my people, * and tolde the of peace, where no peace was. One setteth vp a wall, and they dawbe it with lowse claye. Therfore tell them whych dawbe it with vntempered morter, that it shall fall * For there shall come a great shower of rayne greate hayle stones shall fall vpon it, & a sore storme of wynde shall breake it, so shall the wall come downe. Shall it not then be (I say vnto you: where is nowe the morter, that ye dawbed it wyth all) Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: I will breake out in my wrothfull displeasure wyth a stormy wynde, so that in myne anger there shall come a mighty shower of rayne, & hayle stones in my wrath, to destroye withall.

As for the wall, that ye haue dawbed w vntempered morter, I will breake it downe, make it euen wyth the grounde: so ye the foundacyon therof shall remoue, and it shall fall, yee, and ye youre selues shall perysh in the myddest therof: to learne you for to knowe, that I am the Lorde. Thus will I performe my wrath vpon thys wall, and vpō them that haue dawbed it wyth vntempered morter, and then will I saye vnto you: The wall is gone, and the dawbers are awaye. These are the prophetes of Israel, which prophecye vnto the cytie of Jerusalē, and loke out visiōs of peace for them, where as no peace is, sayeth the Lorde God. Wherfore (O thou sonne of mā) sett thy face agaynst the daughters of thy people, which prophecye out of their awne hertes: and speake thou prophecye agaynst the, and saye: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Wo be vnto you, that sowe pylowes vnder all arme holes, ād bolsters vnder the heades both of yōge and olde, to catch soules wyth all. * For whan ye haue gotten the soules of my people in youre captiuite, ye prompte them lyte, and dishonoure me to my people, for an hādfull of barly, and for a pece of bread: whan ye kyll the soules of the, that dye not, and promes lyfe to them, that lyue not: Thus ye dissemble w my people, that beleueth youre lyes.

Wherfore, thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will also vpon the pylowes, wher wyth ye catch the soules in flyenge: the will I take from youre armes, and let the soules go, that ye catch in flyēge. Youre bolsters also will I teare in peces, and delyuer my people out of youre hād: so that they shall come nomore in youre handes to be spoyled, and ye shall knowe, that I am the Lorde. Seing that wyth youre lyes ye discomforte the herte of the ryghteous, whom I haue not discomforted: Agayne: For so moch * as ye cōfyrme the hande of the wycked, so that he maye not turne from his wicked waye, and lyue: therfore shall ye spye out nomore vanitie, nor prophecye youre awne gesynges: for I will delyuer my people out of youre hande, that ye maye knowe, howe that I am the Lorde.

¶ The .xiiij. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde denyeth hys worde to the people for their synnes sake. The diligence of the wilde beth the Lorde sometyme deceaued by false prophetes. A comforte of the that lyued vnder Babylon.

There resorted * vnto me certayne of the elders of Israel, & sat downe by me. Then came the worde of ỹ Lorde vnto me, sayēg: Thou sonne of mā, these men beare their vnclennes in their hertes, and go purposly vpon the stomblynge blocke of their awne wyckednesse: shulde I then answer at their request? Therfore speake vnto them, & saye: thus sayeth the Lorde God: Euery man of the house of Israel that beareth hys vnclene Idols in hys herte, purposynge to stomble in hys awne wyckednesse, and commeth to a prophet, to enquere eny thinge at me by him: vnto that mā will I the Lorde myselfe geue answerr, accordynge to the multitude of hys Idols: that the house of Israel maye be snared in their awne hertes, because they be clene gone fro me, for their abhominaciōs sakes.

Wherfore, tell the house of Israel: thus sayeth the Lorde God: * Be conuerted, forsake youre Idols, and turne youre wyues from youre fylthynesse, and turne youre faces frō all youre abhominations. For euery man, (whether he be of the house of Israel or a straunger, ỹ sogeourneth in Israel) whych departeth fro me, and carryeth Idols in hys herte, purposynge to go styll stōblyng in his awne wyckednesse, and commeth to a Prophet, for to aske councell at me thorow hym: vnto that man will I the Lord geue answere, by myne awne selfe. I will set my face agaynst that man, and will make hym to be an example for other, yee, and a comen byworde: and will rote him out of my people, that he may know, how that I am the Lorde. * And yf that Prophete be disceaued, whē he telleth hym a worde: then I the Lorde my selfe haue disceaued that Prophet, and will stretch forth myne hande vpon hym, to rote hym out of my people of Israel: and they both shalbe punyshed for their wyckednes. Accordynge to the synne of hym that asketh, shall the synne of the Prophete be: that the house of Israel be led nomore fro me thorowe errours, and be no more defyled in their wyckednesse: but that they maye be my people, & I their God, sayeth the Lorde God. And the worde of the Lord came vnto me, me, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, when the lande synneth agaynst me, & goeth forth in wyckednesse: I will stretch out myne hande vpon it, & destroye all the prouisyõ of their bred, and sende derth vpon them, to destroye man & beest in the lande. * And though Noe, Daniel & Job, these thre men were amonge them, yet shall they in their ryghtuousnesse delyuer but their awne soules, sayeth ỹ Lorde God. If I bringe noysome beastes into the lande, to waste it vp, & it be so desolate, that no man may go therin for beastes: yt these thre men also were in the lande, as truly as I lyue (sayeth ỹ Lorde God) they shall saue neither sonnes ner daughters, but be only delyuered them selues: and as for the lãde, it shall be waste.

* Exe.xiiij.d. and.xv.b.
* Ier.xv.a.

Or yf I bringe a swearde into the lãde, & charge it to go thorowe the lãde: so that I slaye downe man & beast in it, & yf these thre men were therin: As truly as I lyue (sayeth ỹ Lorde God) they shall delyuer neither sonnes ner daughters, but only be saued them selues. If I sende a pestilence into the lande, & poure out my sore indignacyon vpon it in bloude, so that I rote out of it both man and beast. And yf Noe, Daniel & Job were therin: as truly as I lyue (sayeth ỹ Lorde God) they shall delyuer neither sonnes ner daughters, but saue their awne soules in their righ tuousnes. Wherefore, thus sayeth the Lorde God: Howe more when I sende my * foure troublous plages vpon Jerusalem: the swarde honger, perilous beastes & pestylence, to destroye mã and beast out of it. Beholde ther shall be a remnaũt saued therin, which shall bringe forth their sonnes and daughters. Beholde, they shall come forth vnto you, and ye shall se their waye, and what they take in hande, and ye shall be cõforted, as touchinge all the plages that I haue brought vpon Jerusalem. They shall comforte you, when ye se their waye and workes: and ye shall knowe, howe that it is not without a cause, that I haue done so agaynst Jerusalẽ, as I dyd, sayeth the Lorde God.

* Jer.xv.a. Ezec.xiiij.d.

¶ The.xv. Chapter:

¶ As the vnprofytable wood of ỹ vyne tree is cast in to the fyre, so sayeth he that Jerusalem shalbe brent.

AND the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man: What cõmeth of the vyne amonge all other trees, & of the wylde vyne stock amonge all other tymbre of the groune? Do men take wood of it, to make any worcke with all? Or maye there a nayle be made of it, to hange any thynge vpon? Beholde, it is cast in ỹ fyre to be brent, the fyre consumeth both the endes of it, the myddest is brent to asshes. Is it mete then for any worcke? No, Sayenge then, that it was mete for no worcke, beinge whole: much lesse maye there any thinge be made of it, when the fyre hath cõsumed & brent it. And therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God: Lyke as I cast ỹ vyne into ỹ fyre for to be brẽt, as other trees of ỹ wodd: Euen so will I do with them that dwell in Jerusalem, & set my face agaynst them: they shall go out from the fyre, & yet the fyre shall cõsume them. * Thẽ shall ye knowe, that I am the Lorde, when I set my face agaynst thẽ, & make ỹ lande waste: because they haue so sore offended, sayeth the Lorde God.

* Exe.xiiij.d. and.xvij.b.

¶ The.xvj. Chapter:

¶ The prophete entendynge to speake of the abhominacyons of Jerusalem: doth first shewe the benefytes of God towarde it. Jerusalem is reproued of vnkyndenes, for her fornicacyon with Idoles. He sheweth the wickednes of other people in euery parcell of the synnes of Jerusalem. The cause of the abhominacyons into wdych the Sodomytes fell. Mercy is promysed to the repentaunt.

AND * sayne, the worde of ỹ Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of mã, shewe the cytie of Jerusalem their abhominaciõs, & saye: thus sayeth ỹ Lord God vnto Jerusalem: Thy progeny and kynred came out of the lãde of Canaan * thy father was an Amorite, thy mother a Cethyte, thus was the maner of thy byrth. In ỹ daye of thy byrth when thou wast borne, ỹ stringe of thy nauell was not cut of: ỹ wast not bathed in water to make the clene: Thou wast nether rubbed wt salt, ner swadled in clouters: No mã regarded ỹ so moch, as to do any of these thinges for the, or to shewe the soch fauoure, but ỹ wast vtterly cast out vpõ ỹ felde, yee, despised wast ỹ in ỹ daye of thy byrth

* Exe.xvi.a.
* Exe.xvi.a.

Then came I by the, and sawe ỹ troden downe in thyne awne bloude, & sayde vnto the: Lyue, although thou be defyled in thyne awne bloude, ye euen I (I tell the) sayde vnto ỹ lyue, although thou be defyled in thyne awne bloude. * So I plãted ỹ, as ỹ blossome of the felde: ỹ art growẽ vp, & wart greate: ỹ hast gotten a maruelous pleasaũt beutie, thy breastes are come vp, thy heare is goodly growẽ, where as ỹ wast naked & bare afore.

* Esa. b.a. Jere.xl.c.

Nowe whan I wente by the, & loked vpõ the: beholde, thy tyme was come, yee, euẽ the tyme to wowe the. Then spred I my clothes ouer ỹ, to couer thy dishonestye: yee, I made an othe vnto the, * & maried my selfe with the (sayeth the Lord God) and so thou becamest myne awne. Then washed I the with water, and pourged thy bloude from the. I anoynted the with oyle, I gaue the chaunge of raymentes, I made the shues of Taxus leather: I gyrded ỹ about with white sylke I clothed the with kerchefes, I decked the wt costly apparell, I put rynges vpon thy fyngers: a chayne about thy necke, spanges vpon thy fore heade, eare rynges vpõ thyne eares, and set a be wtfull crowne vpõ thyne head. Thus wast thou decked with syluer & golde, & thy raymẽt was of fyne white sylke

* Jere.iij.a. Ose.ij.c.

of nedle wozke & of diuerse colours.

Thou dyddest eate nothinge but symnels, honny & oyle: marueilous goodly wast thou & beutyfull, yee euen a very Quene wast þ In so moch, that thy beuty was spoken of amõge the heythen, for thou wast excellent in my beuty, which I put vpõ the sayeth the Lorde God. But thou hast put confidence in thyne awne beuty, & played the harlot, whẽ thou haddest gotten the a name. Thou hast cõmitted whordome, with all that wente by the, & hast fulfylled their desyres: yee, thou hast taken thy garmẽtes of diuerse colours, & dechte thyne aulters therwith, where vpõ þ myghtest fulfyll thyne whordome, * & of soch a fashyõ, as neuer was done, ner shalbe.

* The goodly ornamentes & Jewels which I gaue the of myne awne golde and syluer, hast thou taken, and made the mẽs ymages therof, & commytted whordome wythall.

¶ Thy garmentes of diuerse colours hast thou taken, and dechte them ther with: myne oyle & incense hast thou set before them. My meate which I gaue the, as symnels, oyle & hony: (to fede the withall) that hast thou sett before them, for a swete sauoure. And thys came also to passe, sayeth the Lorde God: * Thou hast take thine awne sõnes & daughters, whõ thou haddest begotten vnto me: and these hast thou offred vp vnto thẽ, to be their meate. Is this but a small whordome of thine (thinckest thou) that thou slayest my chyldren, and genest them ouer, to be brent vnto thẽ? And yet in all thy abhominacyons and whordome, thou hast not remẽbred the dayes of thy youth, howe naked & bare thou wast at þ tyme, and troden downe in thyne awne bloude. After all these thy wyckednesses (wo wo vnto the, sayeth the Lorde) (thou hast buylded the stewes and brothel houses in euery place) Thou hast buylte hye places, yee at þ head of euery strete hast þ buylded þ an aulter. Thou hast made thy beuty to be abhorred, þ hast layed out thy legges to euery one that came by, & multiplied thyne whordome. * Thou hast commyptted fornicacyon wõ the Egyptyans thy neyghbours, which had moch flesshe: and thus hast þ encreased thine whordome, to anger me.

Beholde, I dyd stretch out myne hande ouer the, & dyd * minisshe thy stoare of fode, and delyuer the ouer in to the wylles of the Philistines thine enemyes, which are ashamed of thy abhominable waye. * Thou hast played the whore also with the Assyrians, because thou wast insatiable: Yee, thou hast (I saye with thẽ) played the harlot, & yett haddest thou not ynough. Thus hast þ forthermore cõmytted thy fornicacyon frõ the lande of Canaã vnto the Caldees, & yet thy lust not satisfyed. Howe obstinate is thine herte (sayeth the Lorde God) seynge thou doest all these workes of an errant whore: buyldinge thy stewes at þ head of euery strete, & thy brothell houses in all places. Thou hast not bene as an other whore, þ holdeth scorne of a small rewarde, but a wife þ breaketh wedlocke, & taketh other in stede of her husbõde. Gyftes are geuen to all other whores, but þ geuest rewardes vnto all thy louers: & offrest them gyftes, to come vnto þ out of all places, & to cõmytte fornicacyõ wõ the. It is come to passe wõ the in thy whordomes contrary to the vse of other women: yee, there hath no soch fornicacyon bene cõmitted after þ, seynge that thou profrest gyftes vnto other, and no rewarde is geuen the: this is a cõtrary thinge.

Therfore, heare the worde of the Lorde, O thou harlot: thus sayeth the Lorde God: For so moch as þ hast sett forth thy youthe to whordome, & discouered thy shame, thorowe thy whordome wõ all thy louers, and with all þ Idols of thy abhominacyons in þ bloude of thy chyldren, * whõ thou hast geue them: Beholde therfore, I will gather together all thy louers, vnto whõ thou hast made thy selfe cõme: yee, and all them whõ thou fauourest, & euery one þ thou hatest: I wyll (I saye) gather thẽ together rounde aboute the, and * will discouer thy shame before thẽ, that they maye se all thy fylthynes.

* Moreouer, I will iudge þ as a breaker of wedlocke and a murtherer, and recõpence þ thyne awne bloude in wrath and gelousy. I will geue þ ouer in to their power, þ shall breake downe thy stues, & destroye thy brothell houses: they shall stryppe þ out of thy clothes, all thy fayre & beutyfull Jewels shall they take frõ þ, & so let the syt naked & bare: * yee: they shall bringe þ comẽ people vpõ þ, which shall stone the, & slaye þ downe wõ their swerdes. * They shall burne vp thy houses, & punysh the in þ sight of many wemen. Thus will I make thy whordome to ceasse, so þ thou shalt geue out no more rewardes.

Shulde I make my wrath to be still, take my gelousy from the, be cõtent, & no more to be displeased? seynge thou remẽbrest not the dayes of thy youth, but hast prouoked me to wrath in all these thinges? Beholde therfore I wyll bringe thyne awne wayes vpõ thyne heade, sayeth the Lorde God: howe be it, I neuer dyd vnto the, accordynge to thy wickednesse & all thy abhominacyons. Beholde, all they that vse comen prouerbes, shall vse thys prouerbe also agaynst the: soche a mother, soch a daughter.

Thou art euẽ thy mothers awne daughter, þ hath cast of her husbande & her chyldren: Yee, thou art the syster of thy systers, which forsoke their husbandes & their chyldre. * Youre mother is a Cethyte, and youre father an Amorite. Thyne eldest syster is Samaria, she and her daughters that dwell

vpon

vpon thy left hande.

F But thy yongest syster that dwelleth on thy ryght hande, is Sodoma & her daughters. Yet hast thou not walked after their wayes, nor done after their abhominacyõs: but ꝓ stodest a lytell & very small tyme, and in all thy wayes ꝓ hast bene moze corrupte then they. As truly as I lyue, sayeth ꝓ Lozde God: Sodoma thy syster wt her daughters, hath not done so euell, as ꝓ and thy daughters. Beholde, * the synnes of thy syster Sodoma were these: Pryde, fulnesse of meate, aboundaunce & idlenesse: these thynges had she & his daughters. Besydes ꝓ, they reached not their hande to the poore and nedy, but were proude, and dyd abhominable thynges before me: therfore I toke them awaye, as pleased me. Nether hath Samaria done halfe of thy synnes, * yee, thou hast exceaded them in wickednesse: In so moch that in comparyson of all ꝓ abhominaciõs which ꝓ hast done, ꝓ hast made thy systers good wemen. Therfore thou (which dydest condẽpne thy syster) beare thyne awne shame, for thyne awne offences, that ꝓ hast committed, moze abhominable then they dyd, which in dead ar moze ryghteous, then ꝓ art, be thou (I seye) ashamed, and beare thy shamfull rebuke, seynge ꝓ thou hast proued thy systers in cõparyson of the ryght wyse.

G As for their captiuyte, namely ꝓ captiuyte of Sodoma, & her daughters: ꝓ captiuyte of Samaria & her daughters: I will bringe thẽ agayne, so will I also bringe agayne thy captiuyte amõge them: ꝓ ꝓ mayest take thyne awne cõfusion vpon ꝓ, & be ashamed of all ꝓ thou hast done, & to cõforte them. Thus thy systers (namely) Sodoma & her daughters: Samaria and her daughters, wt thy selfe, & thy daughters, shalbe brought agayne to youre olde estate. When ꝓ walt in thy pryde, & before thy wickednesse came to lyght: thou woldest not heare speake of thy syster Sodoma, vntyll the tyme ꝓ the Syrians with all their townes, & the Philistines with all that lye rounde about thẽ, brought the to shame & confusyon: ꝓ ꝓ mygtest beare thyne awne lythynes & abhominacyõ, sayeth ꝓ Lozde.

For thus sayeth the Lozde God: I shulde (by right) deale with the, as thou hast done. Thou hast despysed the oth, and broken the couenaunte. Neuertheles, I will remẽbre ꝓ couenaũt that I made with the in thy youth in so moch that it shalbe an euerlastinge couenaunt: so that ꝓ also remẽbre thy wayes, & be ashamed of them: then shalt thou receaue of me thyelder & yonger systers, whõ I wyll make thy daughters, and that besyde thy couenaũt. * And so will I reme my couenaũt with ꝓ, that thou mayest knowe that I am the Lozde: that thou mayest chuncke vpon it, be ashamed, and excuse thyne awne confusyõ nomoze: when I haue forgeuen the, all that thou hast done, sayeth the Lozde God.

¶ The .xvij. Chapter.

¶ The parable of the two Aegles.

THe wozde of ꝓ Lozde came vnto me, A sayinge: Thou sonne of mã: put forth * a darcke speakynge and a parable, vnto ꝓ house of Israel, & saye: Thus sayeth ꝓ Lozde God: There came a great * Aegle wt greate wynges, yee, with a myghtye longe bodye, & full of fethers of dyuerse colours, vpõ the mount of Libanus, & toke the hyest braunch frõ a Cedre tree, & brake of ꝓ toppe of his twygge, & caryed it into ꝓ lãde of Canaan, & set it in a cyte of marchaũtes. He toke also of the seade of the lande, & planted it in a frutefull grounde, he brought it vnto greate waters, and set it as a wyllowe tree therby. Then dyd it growe, and was a greate vynestocke, but lowe by the grounde whose braunches turned in to it selfe, and ꝓ rotes of it, were fastened vnder it, thus there came of it a vyne, and it brought forth blossomes, & spred out braũches. But there was another B Aegle, a great one, which had greate winges & many fethers: and beholde, ꝓ rotes of thys vyne had an hũger after him, & spred out his braunches towarde him, ꝓ he mygt water her with the ozchyerd ꝓ he had planted. Nevertheles, it was planted vpõ a good groũd besyde greate waters, so ꝓ (by reason) it shulde haue brought out braũches & frute, & haue bene a goodly vyne. Speake ꝓ therfore, thus sayeth ꝓ Lozde God: Shall this vyne C prospere? shall not his rotes be pluckte oute, his frute be broken of, his grene braunches, wither & fade awaye? ye, without ether stroge arme or many people, shall it be plucked vp by ꝓ rotes. Beholde, it was plãted: shall it spere therfore? Shal it not be dryed vp & withered, yee, euen in ꝓ shutinge out of his blossomes, as soone as ꝓ east wide bloweth?

Moreouer, ꝓ wozde of ꝓ Lozd came vnto me sayinge: Speake to ꝓ frowarde housholde: knowe ye not, what these thynges do signifye? Tell thẽ: Beholde, * ꝓ kynge of Babylon came to Jerusalẽ, & toke ꝓ kynge and his prynces, and ledde them to Babylon. D
*4.reg. xxiiij.c.

He toke of the kynges sede, and made a couenaunt wyth hym, and toke an othe of him: The prynces of the lande toke he with hym also, that the lande myght be holden in subiectyon, and not to rebelle, but kepe the couenaunt, and fulfyll it. But he fell from him, & sent his Emballytours into Egypt ꝓ he myght haue horses and moche people. Shulde that prospere? Shulde he be kepte safe, that doth soch thynges? Or shulde he E escape, that breaketh hys couenaunt? As truly as I lyue sayeth the Lozde God: he shall dye at Babylon, in the place where the kynge dwelleth, ꝓ made hym kynge: whose othe he

othe he hath despysed, and whose couenaunt he hath broken. Nether shall Pharao with his greate hoost & multitude of people, mayntayne him in the warre: when they cast vp dykes, and set vp bulwarkes to destroye moch people. For seynge he hath despysed þ othe, and broken the couenaũt (where as he yet gaue his hande ther vpon) and done all these thynges, he shall not escape.

A Therfore thus sayeth the Lorde God. As truly as I lyue, I wyll bringe myne othe þ he hath despysed, and my couenaunt that he hath broken, vpon his awne head. * I wyll cast my net aboute him, and catch him in my yarne. To Babylon will I carie him, there will I punishe him, because of the greate offence that he made me. As for those that fle from him out of the hoost, they shalbe slayne with the swearde. The residue shalbe scatred towarde all the wyndes: and ye shall knowe, that I the Lorde haue spoken it. * Eze.xvij.b. xxxviij.a.

G Thus sayeth the Lorde God: I wyll also take a braunche from an hye Cedre tree, and will set it, & take þ vppermost twygge, þ yet is but tendre, and plante it vpõ an hye hyll: Namely, vpon the hye hyll of Syon will I plante it: þ it maye bringe forth twygges, & geue frute, and be a greate Cedre tree: so þ all maner of foules maye bylde in it, & make their nestes vnder þ shadow of his braũches.

And all the trees of the felde shall knowe that I the Lorde haue brought downe þ hye tree, and set the lowe tree vp: þ I haue dryed vp the grene tree, and made the drye tree to florysshe: Euen I the Lorde that spake it, haue also brought it to passe.

¶ The.xviij. Chapter.

¶ The Lorde techeth þ euery man shall beare his awne synne. To him that amendeth, is Gods grace promysed. Death is prophecied to the ryghteous, which turneth backe from the ryghte waye.

A THe worde of þ Lorde came vnto me, on this maner: what meane ye by thys comen prouerbe, þ ye vse in the lãde of Israel, sayinge: * The fathers haue eaten soure grapes, & þ childrẽs tethe are set on edge: As truly as I lyue, sayeth þ Lorde God, ye shall vse this byworde nomore in Israell. * Jere.xxxi.c

B Beholde * all soules are myne. Lyke as þ father is myne, so is þ sonne myne also. The soule þ synneth, shall dye. * If a man be godly, & do the thinge þ is equall and ryght, he eateth not vpõ the hylles: he lyfteth not hys eyes vp to þ foule Idols of Israel: he defyleth not his neyghbours wyfe: he medleth nõ menstruous woman: he greueth no body: he greueth his detter his pledge agayne, he taketh none other mans good by violence: * he parteth his mete vñ the hongrye: he clotheth the naked. * he lendeth nothynge vpõ vsury he taketh nothynge ouer: he withdraweth his hande from doynge wronge: he dealeth faythfully betwene man & man: & walketh in my cõmaundementes, and kepeth my lawes, & pertourmeth the faythfully: * This is a ryghtuous man, he shall surely lyue sayeth the Lorde God. * Ezech.xx.a. * Leui.xviij.a. * Deut.xxiij.

If he nowe gett a sonne, that is a murtherer, a sheder of bloude: yf he do one of these thynges * (though he do not all) he eateth vpon the hylles: he defyleth his neyghbours wyfe: he greueth the poore & nedy: he robbeth & spoyleth: he geueth not þ better his pledge againe, he lyfteth vp his eyes vnto Idols, & medleth with abhominable thinges: he lendeth vpon vsury, & taketh more ouer. Shall this man lyue? he shall not lyue. Seynge he hath done all these abhominacyons, he shall dye, his bloude shalbe vpon him.

C Nowe yf this man get a sonne also, that seeth all hys fathers synnes, which he hath done: and feareth, nether doth soch lyke: Namely, he eateth not vpon the mountaynes: he lyfteth not his eyes vp to þ Idols of Israel: he defyleth not his neyghbours wyfe: he vexeth no mã: he kepeth no mans pledge: he nether spoyleth, nor robbeth eny mã: he dealeth his meate w the hõgrye: he clotheth þ naked: he oppresseth not the poore: he receaueth no vsury, nor any thynge ouer: he kepeth my lawes, & walcheth in my commaundementes. This mã shall not dye in his fathers synne, but shall lyue without fayle. As for his father: because he oppressed & spoyled hys brother, and dyd wyckedly amonge his people: lo, he is dead in his awne synne. And yet saye ye: Wherfore then shulde not thys sõne beare his fathers synne? Therfore: because þ sonne hath done equytie & ryght, hath kepte all my cõmaundemẽtes, & done them: therfore shall he lyue in dede. The same soule that synneth, shall dye. * The sonne shall not beare the fathers offence, nether shall the father beare þ sonnes offence. The ryghteousnes of þ ryghtuous shall be vpõ him, & the wickednes of þ wicked shall be vpõ him self also. * But yf þ vngodly wyll turne awaye frõ all his synnes þ he hath done, and kepe all my cõmaundementes, and do the thinge þ is equall and ryght: doutles he shall lyue, and not dye. As for all his synnes þ he dyd before, they shall not be thought vpõ: but in his righteousnes þ he hath done, he shall lyue. * For haue I eny pleasure in þ death of a synner, sayeth þ Lord God, but rather þ he cõuerte, and lyue? D * Deut.xxiij. xxiij. Psal.xxxij. * Jere.xxxi. b. Eze.xxxiij.d. * xxxiij.d.

Agayne: yf þ ryghtuous turne awaye frõ his ryghtuousnes, and do iniquyte, accordynge to all þ abhominacyons, þ the wicked mã doth: shall he lyue? All the ryghteousnes þ he hath done, shall not be thought vpõ: but in þ faute that he hath offended withall, and in the synne that he hath done, he shall dye.

And yet ye saye: Tush * þ waye of þ Lord is not indifferent. Heare therfore ye house of Israel: Is not my waye ryght? Or, are not * Eze.xxxiij. a.

poure wayes rather wicked: * whē a ryghteous man turneth awaye from hys ryghteousnesse, and medleth wyth vngodlynes: he muste dye therin: yee, for the vnrighteousnes that he hath done, muste he dye. Agayne, * when the wycked mā turneth awaye frō his wickednesse, that he hath done, and doth the thinge which is equall and ryght: he shall saue his soule alyue. For in so moch as he remembreth him selfe, & turneth him from all the vngodlynes that he hath vsed, he shall lyue and not dye.

And yet sayeth the house of Israel: Tush, the waye of the Lorde is not equall. Are my wayes vnryght (O ye house of Israel): Are not poure wayes rather vnequall? As for me, I wyll iudge euery man, accordynge to his wayes, O ye house of Israel, sayeth the Lorde God. * Wherfore, be conuerted, and turne you cleane from all your wyckednesse, so shall there no synne do you harme. Cast awaye frō you all poure vngodlynesse, that ye haue done: * make you newe hertes and a newe spirite. Wherfore wyll ye dye, O ye house of Israell? seynge I haue no pleasure in the death of him yͭ dyeth, sayeth the Lord God. Turne you then, and ye shall lyue.

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

¶ The captyuitye of Iehoahaz & of Iehoachin is signified by the lyons whelpes, & by the iron. He setteth out yͤ prosperitye of the cytie of Ierusalem that is past, & the myserye therof that is present.

Bvt thou sonne of man mourne for the princes of Israel, & saye. Wherfore laye thy mother yͤ lyonesse amonge the lyōs, & nourished her yonge ones amonge the lyons whelpes? One of her whelpes she brought vp, and it became a lyō: it learned to spoyle, and to deuoure folke. The heathen herde of him, and toke him in their nettes, and brought him in chaynes vnto the lande of Egypte.

Nowe when the damme sawe, that all her hope and cōforte was awaye, she toke another of her whelpes, and made a lyon of him: which wente amonge the lyons, & became a fearce lyon: learned to spoyle and to deuoure folcke: he destroyed their palaces, and made their cyties waste. In so moch that yͤ whole lande & euery thinge therin, were vtterly desolate, thorow yͤ very voyce of his roaringe.

Then came the heathen together on euery syde out of all countres agaynst hym, layed their nettes for hym, and toke hym in their pyte. * So they bounde him with chaynes, and brought him to the kyng of Babylon: which put him in prison, that his voyce shulde nomore be herde vpon the mountaynes of Israel. As for thy mother, she is lyke a vyne in thy blonde, planted by the water syde: her frutes and braūches are growē out of many waters, her stalkes were so stroge, that mē myght haue made staues therof for officers: she grewe so hye in her stalkes.

So whan men sawe that she exceaded the heygth & multitude of her braūches, she was roted out in displeasure, and cast downe to yͤ grounde. The East winde dryed vp her frute, her stronge stalkes were broke of, withered and brent in the fyre. But now she is plāted in the wyldernesse, in a drye & thurstye grounde. And there is a fyre gone out of her stalckes, which hath brent vp her braūches and her frute: so that she hath no mo stroge stalckes, to be staues for officers. This is a pyteous and miserable thinge.

¶ The.xx.Chapter.

¶ The Lorde denyeth that he wyll answere them when they praye, for the offence of vnkyndenes wherof he here obiecteth. He promiseth that his people shall returne from captiuitie. By the wood that shulde be brent is signified the burninge of Ierusalem.

Anno. vij. yeare the.x. daye of the v. moneth, * it happened, yͭ certayne of yͤ elders of Israel came vnto me, for to aske councell at the Lorde, & sat them downe by me. Then came yͤ worde of yͤ Lorde vnto me on thys maner: Thou sonne of mā: speake vnto the elders of Israel, & saye vnto them: Thus sayeth the Lord God: Are ye come hyther to aske eny thynge at me? As truly as I lyue (sayeth yͤ Lorde) I will geue you no answere. Wilt yͤ not reproue the (thou sonne of mā) wilt thou not reproue them? Shewe them yͤ abhominacyons of their fore fathers, & tell them. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: * In the daye when I chose Israel, and lyft vp myne hande vpon the sede of the house of Jacob, & shewed my selfe vnto them in the lande of Egypte: Yee, when I lyfte vp myne hande ouer them, and sayde: I am the Lorde youre God, euen in the daye yͭ I lyfte vp myne hāde ouer the, to bringe them out of the lande of Egypte, into a lande yͭ I had prouyded for the, which floweth with mylcke & hony, & is a pleasaunt lande amonge all other. Then sayde I vnto them: * Cast awaye euery mā the abhominacions that he hath before him, and defyle not youre selues with the Idoles of Egypte, for I am the Lorde youre God.

But they rebelled agaynst me, and wolde not folowe me: to cast awaye euery man the abhominacyons of hys eyes, and to forsake the Idoles of Egypte. Then I made me to poure myne indignacyon ouer them, & to satisfye my wrath vpon them: yee, euen in the myddest of yͤ lande of Egypte. But I wolde not doit, for my names sake: that it shulde not be vnhalowed before yͤ heathen, amōge whom they dwelt, & amonge whō I shewed my selfe vnto them, yͤ I wolde bringe them out of the lande of Egypte. Now whē I had carryed them out of the lande of Egypte, and brought them into the wyldernesse: I gaue them them my commaundemētes, & shewed them my lawes, * which whoso kepeth shall lyue in them: I gaue them also my holy dayes, to be a token betwixte me & them, & therby to knowe, that I am the Lorde, which halowe them. And yet the house of Israel rebelled agaynst me in ꝑ wylderneſſe, they wolde not walcke in my commaundemētes, they haue cast awaye my lawes (which whoso kepeth shulde lyue in them) and my Sabboth dayes haue they greatly vnhalowed.

* Then I made me to poure out myne indignacyon vpon thē, & to cōsume them in the wylderneſſe. Yet I wolde not do it, for my names sake: lest it shulde be dishonoured before the heathen, from the whych I had caryed them awaye. But I swore vnto them in the wylderneſſe, that I wolde not bryngе them in to the lande, which I gaue them: a lande that floweth with mylcke and hony, & is a pleasure of all landes: and that because they refused my lawes, and walcked not in my cōmaundementes, but had vnhalowed my Sabbathes, for their herte was gone after their ydoles. Neuertheleſſe, myne eye spared them, so ꝑ I wolde not vtterly slaye thē, and cōsume them in the wylderneſs. Wherfore, I sayde vnto their sonnes in the wylderneſſe: * walcke not in the statutes of youre fore fathers, kepe not their ordinaunces, and defyle not your selues with their ydoles, for I am the Lorde youre God. But walcke in my statutes, kepe my lawes & do them, halowe my Sabbathes: * for they are a token betwixte me & you, ꝑ ye maye knowe howe ꝑ I am the Lorde your God. Notwythstandyngе, their sonnes * rebelled agaynst me also: they walked not in my statutes they kepte not my lawes to fulfyll thē (which he ꝑ doth shall lyue in them) neither halowed they my Sabboth dayes. Then I made me agayne to poure out my indignacion ouer them, & to satisfye my wrath vpō thē in the wylderneſſe. Neuertheleſſe, I wythdrewe my hāde for my names sake, lest it shulde be vnhalowed amonge the heathen, before whō I had brought thē forth. I lyft vp myne hāde ouer thē also in the wylderneſſe, ꝑ I wolde scatre them amonge the heathen, & strowe them amonge the nacyons, because they had not kepte my lawes, but cast asyde my cōmaundementes, vnhalowed my Sabbathes, and lyft vp their eyes to their fathers Idoles. Wherfore I gaue thē also cōmaundementes not good, & lawes thorowe the whych they shulde not lyue, & I vnhalowed thē in their awne giftes * (whē I appointed for my selfe all their fyrſt borne) to make thē desolate: ꝑ they myght knowe, howe ꝑ I am the Lorde.

Therfore (O thou sonne of man, tell the house of Israel, thus sayeth the Lorde God) Beſyde all thys, youre fore fathers haue yet blasphemed me more, and greatly offended agaynst me. For after I had brought them in to the lande, that I promysed to gyue thē, when they sawe euery hye hyll & all ꝑ thicke trees: they made there their offrynges, & prouoked me wyth their oblacyons, makynge swete sauoures there, and powred out their drinckoffrynges. Then I asked thē what is ꝑ hyll altare ꝑ ye go to it? And therfore is it called ꝑ hye place vnto this daye. Wherfore, speake vnto ꝑ house of Israel: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: ye are euen as vncleane as youre fore fathers & commytte whordome also with their abhominacyōs. In all youre ydoles, where vnto ye bryngе your oblacyons, * and to whose honoure ye burne your chyldren: ye defyle youre selues, euen vnto thys daye: howe darre ye thē come, and aske any questyon at me? As truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lorde God) ye get no answere of me: and as for the thynge that ye go about, it shall not come to passe, where as ye sayē: we wyll be as the heathen, & do as other people in the lande, wod and stone wyll we worshyppe.

As truly as I lyue, sayeth the Lorde God, I my selfe wyll rule you wᵗ a mighty hande, with a stretched out arme, & with indignacyon powred out ouer you: and will bryngе you out of the nacyons and landes, wherin ye are scatred, and gather you together with a myghty hande, with a stretched out arme & wᵗ indignacyon poured out vpon you: and wyll bringe you in to the wylderneſſe of the people, & there I will reason with you face to face. Lyke as I punyshed youre fore fathers in the wylderneſſe, so will I punyshe you also, sayeth the Lorde God. I will bringe you vnder my iurisdiccyon, and vnder ꝑ bonde of the couenaunt. The forsakers also and the transgressours will I take from amonge you, & bringe them out of the lande of youre habitacyon: as for the lande of Israel, they shall not come in it: ꝑ you maye knowe howe that I am the Lorde.

Go to nowe then (sayeth the Lorde God) ye house of Israel * Euery one of you folowe your ydols, and serue them seynge ye refuse to obeye me. And my holy name shall ye nomore vnhalowe with your offringes and Idoles. For vpon my holy hyll, even vpō the hye hill of Israel sayth ꝑ Lord God, shall all the house of Israel and all that is in the lāde, worshyppe me: * and in the same place will I fauoure thē, and there will I requyre your beaue offringes and the fyrſtlynges of your oblacyons, with all youre holy thynges.

I will accepte youre swete sauoure, whē I bringe you from the nacyons, and gather you together out of the landes, wherin ye be scatred: that I maye be halowed in you before the heathen, and that ye maye knowe, that that I am the Lorde, whych haue brought you into the lãde of Israel: yee, into the same lande, that I swore to geue vnto youre forefathers. There shall ye call to remembraũce youre awne wayes & all youre ymaginacyõs, wherin ye haue bene defyled: * and ye shall iudge youre selues worthy to be destroyed, for all youre wickednes, yͭ ye haue done. And ye shall knowe, yͭ I am yͭ Lord: whẽ I entreate you after my name, not after youre wycked wayes, ner accordinge to youre corrupte workes: O ye house of Israel, sayeth yͭ lord.

Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of mã, set thy face towarde the south, & speake to the southwynde, & saye to the wod towarde the south: Heare the worde of the Lorde, thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde, I wyll kyndle a fyre in the, that shall consume the grene trees with the drye. ‡ Noman shalbe able to quẽch hys flame, but all that loketh from the south to the noreth, shalbe brent therin: & all flesshe shall se, that I the Lorde haue kyndled it, so that no man maye quenche it. Then sayde I: O Lord, they wyll saye of me: * Tuth, they are but fables, that he telleth.

¶ The .xxi. Chapter.

¶ She sheweth the swerde, yͭ is to saye, destruccyon to the cytie of Jerusalem. She sheweth the fall of kynge Zedekiah. She is commaũded to prophecy the destruccyon of the chyldren of Ammon. After yͭ slaughter of other, at the last the Lord threatneth wrath vnto Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babylon.

And the worde of yͭ Lord came to me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, set thy face towarde Jerusalẽ, speake agaynst the Sanctuary, and prophecye agaynst the lande of Israel, saye to yͭ lãde of Israel. Thus sayeth the Lorde: Beholde, I wyll vpon the, & will drawe my swearde out of the sheath, & rote out of the both the ryghtuous & the wycked Seynge then yͭ I will rote out of yͭ both the ryghtuous and wycked, therfore shall my swearde go out of his sheath against all flesh frõ yͭ north to yͭ south: yͭ all flesh maye knowe howe yͭ I the Lord haue drawẽ my swearde out of yͭ sheath, & it shall not be put in againe

Mourne therfore (O thou sonne of man) yͭ thy lopnes crack withall, ye mourne bitterly for thẽ their presence. And yͭ they saye, wherfore mourneth thou? Then tell thẽ: for the tidynges that commeth, at the whych all hertes shall melt, all handes shalbe letten downe, all stomaches shall faynte, & all knees shall ware febie. Beholde, it cõmeth & shalbe fulfylled, sayeth the Lorde God.

Agayne, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, prophecye, and speake. Thus sayeth the Lord God: speake. The swearde, the swearde is sharpened & well scoured. Sharpened is it for the slaughter, & scoured that it maye be bryghe. Shall we then make myrthe? Agẽst yͭ * tribe of my sonne it is gone for the destropinge all trees. He hath putt his swearde to the dyghtinge, good holde maye be taken of it. This swearde is sharpened & dyght, that it maye be geuen in to the handes of the manslayer.

Crye (O thou sonne of man, & howle, for this swearde shall smyte my people, & all the rulers in Israel) my people shalbe fearede thorowe this swearde. Smite therfore thou vpõ thy thygbe, for it is gone for the to make a tryall. And what a tryall shall this be, whẽ euẽ my sceptre shall be reproued? Yt shall not be sayeth the Lorde God. Prophecy yͭ sonne of man, & smyte thyne hãdes together: make the swearde two cogged, ye make it thre edged, that manslayers swearde, yͭ swearde of the greate slaughter, whych shall smyte thẽ euen in their preuy chambres: to make them abashed & faynt at the hertes, & in all gates to make some of them fall. I haue geue that fearfull swerde. O howe bryght and sharpe is it, howe well dight & mete for the slaughter. Gett the some place alone, ether vpõ the ryght hande or on the lefte, whyther so euer thy face turneth. I wyll smyte my hãdes together also & satysfye my wrothfull indignacyon vpon: Euen I the Lorde haue sayde it.

The worde of the Lorde came yet vnto me agayne sayinge. Thou sonne of mã, make yͭ two streetes, yͭ the swearde of the kynge of Babylon maye come. Both these streetes shall go out of one kynges lãde. And chose yͭ a place, at the heade of the strete chose out a corner. Make yͭ a strete, yͭ the swearde maye come to warde Rabath of the Ammonites, & to the stronge cytie of Jerusalẽ. For the kynge of Babylon shall stande in the turnynge of the waye, at the head of the two streetes: * to aske councell at the sothe sayers, castinge the lottes wͭ his arowes, to aske councell at the Idole, and to loke in the lyuer. But yͭ sothe sayinge shall poynte to yͭ ryght syde vpõ Jerusalem, yͭ he maye set men of warre, to smyte it wͭ a greate noyse, to crye out Alarm, to sett batell rammes agaynst the gates, to graue vp dyches, & to make bulwarkes.

Neuertheles, as for the sothe sayinge, they shall holde it but for vanite. And esteame thẽ as those to whome they haue often sworne. Notwithstandynge he shall remembre their wyckednesse, so that by ryght they must be taken & wonne. Therfore sayeth the Lorde God. For so moch as ye youre selues shewe youre offence, and haue opened youre wickednesse, so that in all youre workes men maye se youre synnes: therfore ar ye come to remẽbraunce, and ye shalbe taken by violence.

O thou shamefull wicked guyde of Israel whose daye is come: euen the tyme that wickednesse shall haue en ende. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: take awaye the garlond, & put of the crowne, and so it is it awaye: the humble is die is exalted, and the proude brought lowe.

Punyshe, punyshe, yee, punyshe the will I, & destroye them: and that shall not be fulfylled vntyll he come, to whom the iudgement belongeth, & to whō I haue geuen it. And thou (O sonne of man) prophecy, & speake: Thus sayeth the Lorde God to ꝑ chyldꝛē of * Ammon, & to their blasphemy, speake thou: The swearde, ꝑ swearde, is drawen forth all redy to the slaughter, & scoured to consume that it glysereth (because thou hast loked ꝑ out vanytees, and prophecyed lyes) ꝑ it maye come vpon thy necke, lyke as vpon the other vngodly, whych be slayne: whose daye came, when their wyckednesse was full.

Shulde I put it vp agayne? Naye I wyll punyshe the, in ꝑ lāde where thou wast norisched & borne, and poure my indignacyō vpō the and wyll blowe vpon the in the fyre of my wrath, and delyuer ꝑ vnto cruell people, which are lerned to destroye. Thou shalt fede the fyre and thy bloude shall be shed in ꝑ lande, that thou mayest be put out of remembraunce. Euen I the Lorde haue spoken it.

¶ The.xxij. Chapter.

¶ The worde of the Lorde against Jerusalem for mans slaughter, & bringinge her abouse vnto their fathers & mothers, & other wyckednesse. Of the wycked doctryne of the false prophetes & preestes, & of their vnsaciable couetousnes. The tyrannye of rulers. The wyckednes of the people.

MOreouer, the worde of ꝑ Lorde came vnto me, & sayde: thou sonne of man, wylt thou not reproue thys bloudthurstye cyte? Shew them their abhominacyons, and tell them: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: O thou cyte, that sheddest bloude in ꝑ myddest of ꝑ, that thy tyme maye come also: & makest the Idoles to defyle the wythall. Thou hast made thy selfe gylty, in ꝑ bloude ꝑ thou hast shed: and defyled the in the Idoles, which thou hast made. Thou hast caused thy dayes to drawe nye, & made the tyme of thy yeares to come. Therfore wyll I make the to be confounded amonge the heathen, & to be despysed in all the lādes, whether they be nye or farre from the: they shall laugh the to scorne, thou that hast gotten the so foule a name, & art full of mysches. Beholde, the rulers of Israel haue brought euery man hys power, to shed bloude in the. * In the haue they despysed father & mother, in ꝑ haue they oppressed the straunger, in the haue they vexed the wydowe and the fatherlesse. Thou hast despysed my Sanctuary, and vnhalowed my Sabbath. Murtherers are there in the, that shede bloude, & eate vpō the hylles, and in the they vse abhominacyon.

* In ꝑ haue they discouered their fathers shame, in the haue they vexed wemē in their sicknesse. Euery man hath dealte shamefully with his neyghbours wyfe, & abhominably defyled hys daughter in lawe. In the hath euery man forced his awne syster, euen his fathers daughter: yee, * gyftes haue they receaued in the, to shede bloude. ‡ Thou hast taken vsury and encrease, thou hast oppressed thy neyghbours by extorcyon, and forgotten me, sayeth the Lorde God. Beholde, I haue smyten my handes vpon thy couetousnesse, that thou hast vsed, and vpon the bloude which hath bene shed in the. Is thy herte able to endure it, or may thy handes defende the? I the Lorde that speake it, wyll bringe it also to passe. * I wyll scatre the amōge the heathen, & strowe the abroute in the landes, & wyll cause thy fylthynesse to crasse out of the: yee, and thou shalt be thyne awne enheritaunce & not myne in the syght of the heathen, that thou mayest knowe, that I am the Lorde.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man, * the house of Israel is turned to drosse. All they ꝑ shulde be brasse, tynne, yron, & lead & stre in ꝑ fyre become drosse. Therfore, thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God. For so moche as ye all are turned in to drosse, beholde: I wyll bringe you together vnto Jerusalem, lyke as syluer, brasse, yron, tynne and leade are put together in the fornace, and the fyre blowē there vnder to melte them. Euen so will I gather you, put you in together, and melte you in my wrath & indignacyon. I wyll bringe you together, and kyndle the fyre of my cruell displeasure vnder you, that ye maye be melted therin.

Lyke as the syluer is melted in the fyre, so shall ye also be melted therin: that ye maye knowe, howe that I the Lorde haue powred my wrath vpon you.

And the worde of ꝑ Lorde came vnto me, sayinge. Thou sonne of man, tell her. Thou art an vncleane lande, which is not rayned vpō in the daye of ꝑ cruell wrath: * thy Prophetes that are in the, are swornē together to deuoure soules, lyke as a roarynge Lyon, ꝑ lyueth by his praye. They receaue ryches and good, & make many wyddowes in the. Thy preestes breake my lawe, and defyle my Sanctuary. * They put no differēce betwene the holye & vnholye, nether discerne betwene ꝑ cleane & vncleane: they turne their eyes fro my sabbathes, & I am vnhalowed amonge them. Thy rulers in the are lyke raueshynge wolues, to shed bloude, and to destroye soules, for their awne couetous lucre. * As for thy Prophetes, they dawbe with vntempered clayē, they se vanityes, and prophecye lyes vnto the, sayinge: ꝑ Lorde God sayeth so, where as the Lorde hath not spoken. The people in the lande vseth wycked extorcyon & robbery. They vexe the poore & nedye and * oppresse the straunger agaynst ryght. And I sought in the lande for a man, that wolde make vp the hedge, and sett him selfe in the gappe

gappe before me in the landes behalfe, ꝑ yt
thulde not be corrupted: but I could fynde
none. Therfore, I will poure out my cruell displeasure vpō thē, & burne thē in the fyre
of my wrath: they awne wayes will I re-
cōpēce vpō they heades saieth ꝑ lord God.

¶ The. xxiii. Chapter.

Of the forsaken, that is to say, of the Idolatrye
of Samaria and Jerusalem, vnder the names of Oholah & Oholibah. In comparysō of Samaria he sheweth ꝑ fornicacion of Jerusalem is ꝑ filthyer. The de-structyon of Jerusalem is prophecied. The abundaūce of euell that is founde oute. They destruccyon.

THe worde of the Lord came vnto
me saynge: Thou sone of mā, there were two wemē, ꝑ had one mother. These (whē they were yōge) begāne to playe ꝑ harlottes * in Egypt. There were they breastes brosed, &
ꝑ pappes of they maydenhead vnd ꝑ Egy-ptiās destrope. The eldest of them was called Oholah & her yōgest sister Oholibah.
These two were my wyues, & bare sonnes & daughters. They names were Samaria, & ꝑ was Oholah: & Jerusalē, ꝑ was Oholi-bah. As for Oholah she begāne to go a who ring, whē I had take her to me. * She was sett on fyre vpon her louers ꝑ Assirians as her neybours which had to do wt her: euen
ꝑ prices & Lordes ꝑ were dekkte i costly arayc
fayre yonge men, lusty ryders of horses.

Thus thorow her whordome, she cleued vnto all the yonge men of Assiria. Yee, she was madd vpō thē, & defyled her selfe wt all they Idols. Neither ceassed she frō ꝑ fornīcacyon, ꝑ she vsed wt the Egyptians: for in her youth they laye wt her, they brosed the brestes of her maydenhead, & poured they whordome vpō her. Wherfore, * I delyue-red her ito the handes of her louers, euē the Assirians, whom she so loued. These discouered her shame, toke her sonnes & daughters, & slewe her wt ꝑ sweard: An euel name
gat she of all people, and they punished her.

* Her sister Oholibah sawe this, and destroyed her selfe wt inordynate lone, more
then she, & exceded her sister in whordome
* she loued ꝑ Assirians (which also laye wt
her) namely, ꝑ prices & greate lordes, ꝑ were clothed wt all maner of gorgious apparell
all lusty horsmē & fayre yonge personnes.

Then I sawe, that they both were defy-led a lyke. But she ferreated styll i whordo-me, for when she sawe mē paynted vpō the wall, ꝑ ymages of the Caldees sett forth wt
freshe coulours, wt fayre gyrdles about thē & goodly bonettes vpō they heades, lokyn ge all lyke princes (after the maner of the Babylonyās and Chaldees in they awne lande (where they be borne) immediatly, as soone as she sawe thē, she brent in lone vpō them, and sente messaungers for them into
the lande of the Chaldees.

Now when the Babylonyans came to her, they laye with her and defyled her with
they whordome, and so was she polluted with them. And when her lust was abated from thē, * her whordome and shame was discouered and sene: then my herte forsoke
her, lyke as my herte was gone from her sister also. Neuertheles, she vsed her whor-dome euer the longer the more, and remem-bred the dayes of her youth, wherin she had played the harlot i the lande of Egypte: * she brent in lust vpon them, whose flesshe was lyke the flesh of Asses, and they sede lyke
the sede of horses. Thus thou hast renned ꝑ filthynesse of the youth, when thy louers
brosed thy pappes, and marred thy brestes
in Egypte.

Therfore (O Oholibah) thus sayeth the Lord God: I will rayse vp thy louers (wt whom thou hast fatysfyed thy lust) against the, and gather them together rouñde about the: namely the Babylonians, and all the Chaldees, rulers, mightye mē & tyrañtes,
wt all the Assiriās: all yonge & fayre louers:
princes and Lordes, knyghtes and gentelmen, which be all good horsmē. These shall come vpon the with horses, charrettes, and a greate multitude of people: which shalbe
harnessed aboute the on euery syde, wt brest-plates, shyldes & helmettes. I will punish the before them, yee, they them selues shall punysh the, accordynge to they awne iudg-mēt. I will put my gelousy vpon the, so that they shal deale cruelly with the. They shall cut of thy nose and thyne eares, and
the remnaunt shall fall thorow the sweard.
They shall cary awaye thy sonnes and daughters, and the residue shalbe brent in the fyre. They shall stryppe the out of thy clothes, and cary thy costly Jewels awaye
with them.

Thus will I make an ende of thy fil-
thynesse and whordome, which thou hast brought oute of the lāde of Egypte: so that thou shalt turne thyne eyes nomore after them, and call thy mynde nomore vpon
Egypte. For thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde beholde
I will delyuer the into the handes of them,
whom thou hatest, yee, euen into the han-
des of them, with whom thou hast fulfyl-
led thy lust, whych shall deale cruelly wyth
the. All thy labour shall they take with them, and leaue the naked and bare, and thus the shame of thy filthye whordome shall come to lyght. All these thynges shall happē vnto the, because of thy whordome
which thou hast vsed amonge the Gentyls wyth whose Idols thou hast defyled thy selfe. Thou hast walked in the waye of thy sister, therfore will I geue ꝑ her cup-pe in thy hande.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: Thou shalt

dyncke of thy systers cuppe, how depe and farre so euer it be to ꝑ botome. Thou shalt be laughed to scorne, and had at greatly in derision, as is possible. Thou shalt be full of dronkennes and sorowe, for the cuppe of thy syster Samaria is a cuppe of destruc-cion and wastynge: the same shalt thou dyncke, and suppe it out euen to the dreg-
ges, yee, thou shalt eat vp the broken peces
of it, & so teare thyne awne brestes: for cui
I haue spoken it sayeth the Lorde God.

F Therfore, thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God: For so moch as thou hast forgotten me, & cast
me alide behinde the, so beare now thyne awne sylthynes and whordome. The Lorde sayde moreouer vnto me: Thou sone of mā
wilt ꝑ not reprone Oholah ād Oholibah?
Shewe them theyr abhominacions: namely that they haue broken theyr wedlocke, &
stayned theyr handes wt bloude: yee, euen wt
theyr ydoles haue they cōmytted aduoutry
* and offred them by the fyre theyr awne
children (to be deuoured) whō they had borne vnto me. Yee, & thys haue they done vnto me also: they haue defyled my Sāctua-ry ī same daye, & haue vnhalowed my Sabboth. For when they had slayne theyr children for theyr Idols, they came the same daye into my Sanctuary to defyle it.
Lo, thys haue they done in my house: Besy
de all thys, thou hast sent they messāgers
for men out of farre countrees: & when they came, thou hast bathed & paynted thyne eyes
wt colours, trymmed & set forth thy self of ꝑ best fassion: thou sattest vpō a goodly bed
and a table spred before the: wherupō thou hast set myne * incense and myne oyle.

* Ezech. xxiii. b

Then was there great chere with her to
optayne peace, and though with thole men
G many mē came, yet were ther also brought,
men of Sabba from the wildernesse: which gaue thē bracelettes vpon theyr handes, &
fayre glorious crownes vpon theyr heades:
and I sayde vnto her: that seynge she was stryken in age in her whordomes: now shall her fornycatiōs come to an end wt her. And they wente into her as vnto a comē harlot Eue so wet they, (I say) to Oholah & Oholibah those sylthy wemen. O all ye ꝑ loue vertue & ryghteousnes, iudge thē, punishe thē: * as aduoutrers & murtherers ought to be iudged & punished. For they are breāchers of wedlocke, & the bloude is i theyr hā-
des. Wherfore thus sayeth the Lorde God
I wil brīge a greate multitude of people vppō thē, & make thē be scatred & spoyled: these shall stone thē, & gore thē wt theyr swear-
des. They shal slaye theyr sonnes & daughters, and burne vp theyr houses with fyre.

Thus will I destroye all soch sylthy-
nes out of the land: that all wemen maye
learne, not to do after your vnclennes.

* Leui. xx. b
Ezech. xvi. b

And so they shall laye your sylthynes
vpon your awne selues, and ye shalbe punyshed for the synnes that ye haue cōmyt-ted with your Idols: and ye shall knowe ꝑ
I am the Lorde God.

¶ The. xxiiii. Chapter.

¶ Declareth the tryenge of Ierusalem by a prate:
like vnto a fleshpotte. The parable of Ezechiels wyfe beynge dead, which he after expoundeth.

In the nynth yeare, i ꝑ tenth mo- A neth, the tenth daye of the mo-neth, came the worde of the Lord
vnto me, sayenge. O thou sonne
of mā, wryte vp the name of thys daye, yee, euen the houre of this present daye: when the kyng of Babylon sett hym selfe against Ierusalem. Shewe vnto that obstinate housholde * a parable, and speake vnto thē: Thus * Ezech. xi. c.
sayeth the Lorde God: Sett the a * potte, xxiiii. d.
sett it on, and powre water into it: put all ꝑ peces together in it, all the good peces: the loyne & the shulder, and fyl it with the best bones. Take one of the best shepe, & an hea-pe of bones with all: let it boyle well, & lett
the bones lye well therin. With that say- B de the Lorde God on thys maner. * Wo be * Amos. vi. a vnto the bloudy cytie of the pot, wherupon Abac. ii.
the rustynes hāgeth, & is not yet scoured awaye. Take out the peces that are in it, one after another: there neade not lottes be cast therfore, for the bloude is yet in it. Vpon a playne dyre stone hath she powred it, & not vpon the grounde, ꝑ it myght be couered wt dust. And therfore haue I letten her powre
her bloude vpon a playne dyre stony roche,
because it shulde not be hyd, and ꝑ I myght
bringe my wrothfull indignacyon & vengeaunce vpon her.

Wherfore, thus sayeth the Lorde God: O, C wo be vnto ꝑ bloudy thurstye cytie, for who euen I my selfe will make a grett fyre and sett moche woode, and kyndell the fyre and seath the fleashe, and spice the pott, so that the very bones shall be brent. Moreouer I will sett the pott empty vpon the coles, so ꝑ his metall shall be brent & molten also for heate, & ꝑ sylthynes of yt shall be molten in yt, & ꝑ drosse of yt shal be cōsumed. Thou to kest great payne thys to defyle thy selfe.
And yt will not be purged frō ꝑ exceadinge
drosse in yt: but thorow fyre shall ꝑ drosse of yt be purged. In thy sylthynes euen in thy mysheuous dedes, ꝑ dost cōtynue & be- D cause thy sylthynesse is abhominable, for
I haue clensed the, but thou art not clensed.
Thou shalt not be pourged frō thyne vnclē
nesse, tyll I haue powred my wrothful dis-gnacio vpō ꝑ. Eue I ꝑ Lorde haue so denyd.
Yee, it is come therto all redy, ꝑ I wyll
do it. I will not go bache, I will not spare, I will not be intreated: but accordinge to thy
wayes & ymaginacions, ꝑ shalt be punyshed, sayeth the Lorde God. And the worde of E
the Lorde

the Lord came vnto me, saieg: Thou sonne of man, beholde, I will take awaye ꝑ pleasure of thyne eyes w a plage: yet shalt thou nether mourne, ner wepe, ner water thy cheks therfore: ꝑ mayest mourne by thy selfe alone, but vse no deadly lamentacio. Holde on thy bonet, and put on thy shoes vpō thy fete, couer not thy face, & eat no mourners bread. So I spake vnto ꝑ people by times in ꝑ morning, & at euē my wyfe dyed: then vpō ꝑ next morowe, I dyd as I was cōmanded. And ꝑ people sayd vnto me, wilt ꝑ not tell vs what thys signifyeth towarde vs, for this ꝑ doest for our sake. I answered them, ꝑ worde of ꝑ Lorde came vnto me sayeg: Tell ꝑ house of Israell, thus sayeth the Lorde God: beholde, I will suspēde my sanctuary: euen the glory of your power, ꝑ pleasure of your eyes, and the thing that ye loue: your sonnes and daughters whom ye haue left, shal fall thorow the swearde.

Lyke as I haue done, so shall ye do also: ye shall not hyde your faces, ye shall eate no mourners bread: your bonnettes shall ye haue vpō your heades, & shoes vpō your fete. Ye shall nether mourne ner wepe, but, i your synnes ye shalbe sorowfull, & one repēte with another. Thus Ezechiel is your shew token. For loke as he hath done, so (whē this cōmeth) ye shall do also: that ye maye lerne to knowe, ꝑ I am ꝑ Lorde God. But beholde, O thou sonne of man: In the daye when I take from them theyr power, theyr ioye & honour, the lust of theyr eyes, the burthen of theyr lyfes: namely, theyr sonnes and daughters, shall not this be knowen: Then shall there one escape, and come vnto ꝑ, for to shew the. In ꝑ daye shall thy mouth be opened to him, which is escaped, ꝑ thou mayest speake, and be nomore dōme. Yee, and thou shalt be theyr shewtokē that they maye knowe, howe that I am ꝑ Lorde.

¶ The. xxv. Chapter.

¶ The worde of the Lord vpon the sonnes of Ammon, which reioyced at the fall of Jerusalem. Against Moab and Seyr. Against Idumea. Against the Philistynes.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayenge: Thou sonne of man, set thy face agaynst the * Ammonytes, prophecye vpon them, and saye vnto the Ammonytes: heare the worde of ꝑ Lorde God. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God: For so moch as thou speakest ouer my sanctuary. A, ha, I trowe it be nowe suspended: & ouer the land of Israel, I trowe it be now desolat, yee, & ouer ꝑ house of Juda, I trowe they be nowled awaye prysonners: Behold, I will delyuer the to the people of ꝑ east, ꝑ they maye haue ꝑ in possession: theyr shall set theyr castels and houses in the. They shall eate thy frute, & drynke vp thy milcke. And for Rabath, I will make of it a stal for camels, & of Ammon a shepefolde: and ye shall knowe that I am the Lorde.

For thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God: In so moch as thou hast clapped with thyne handes, & stamped with thy fete, yee, reioysed i thyne herte ouer the lande of Israel with despite: beholde, I will stretch out myne hāde ouer the also, & delyuer the, to be spoyled of the heathen, and rote the out from amōge the people, and cause the to be destroyed oute of all landes: yee, I will make the to be layed waste, that thou mayest knowe, that I am the Lorde. 25

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: For so moch as * Moab & Seir do saye: As for ꝑ house of Juda, it is but lyke as all other Gētyles be: Therfore beholde, I will open ꝑ syde of Moab, & take awaye theyr strength, their cyties & chefe coastes of theyr lāde, which are ꝑ pleasures of ꝑ cōtre. As namely. Bethiesimoth, Baalmeon & Cariathaim: the se will I ope vnto the of the east, ꝑ they maye fall vpō ꝑ Ammonites: & will geue it the in possessiō: so ꝑ the Ammonites shall nomore be had in remēbraunce amonge ꝑ heathen. Euē thus will I punysh Moab also, that they maye know, how ꝑ I am the Lorde. C

Moreouer, thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God: Because that * Edom hath auenged and eased hym selfe vpon the house of Juda, & haue done great offece & auēged hi selfe vpō the therfore, thus sayeth the Lord: I will reach out myne hāde vpon Edom, & take awaye man & beast out of it. From Themā vnto Dedā will I make it desolate, they shall be slayne w the swerde. * Thorow my people of Israel will I auēge me agayne vpō Edō they shall hādle him, accordig to my wrath and indygnacyon, so that they shall knowe my vengeaunce, sayeth the Lorde God.

Thus sayeth the Lorde God: For so moch as the * Philistines haue done this: namely taken vengeaunce with despytefull stomackes, and of an olde euell will set them selues to destroye. Therfore, thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde God: Behold, I will stretch out myne hād ouer ꝑ Philistynes, & destroye ꝑ destroyer, and cause all the remnaūt of the see coast, to perysh. A great vēgeaūce wyll I take vpō the, and punysh them cruelly: ꝑ they maye knowe, how that I am the Lorde, which haue auenged me of them. D

¶ The. xxvi. Chapter.

¶ The prophecyeth that Tyrus shalbe ouer thorowen because it reioyced at the destruccyon of Jerusalem. The wondering and astonyshement of the marchaunts, for the desolacyon of Tyrus.

IT happened, that in the eleuenth yeare, the fyrst daye of ꝑ moneth the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayenge: Thou sonne of mā, A

*Esa.xviii.a Jere.xlvii.b
Eze.xxvi.b
xxvii.xxviii.

*because that Tyre hath spoke vpō Jerusalem: A, ha, now I trowe the portes of the people be broken, and she turned vnto me, for now þ she is destroyed I shall be fylled. Yee, therfore, sayeth þ Lord God: Beholde O Tyre, I will vpō þ, I will bringe a great multitude of people agaynst þ, lyke as whē the see aryseth with his waues: These shall breake the walles of Tyre, and cast downe her towres: I will scrape the groūde from her, and make her a bare stone: yee, as the dryenge place, where the fyshers hāge vp theyr nettes by þ see syde. Suē I haue spoken it, sayeth the Lorde God. The Gētyls shall spoyle her: her daughters vpō þ felde shall perysh wt the swearde, that they maye knowe how that I am the Lorde.

For thus sayeth the Lord God: Beholde, I will bryng hither Nabuchodonosor (which is the kynge of Babylon, and a kynge of kynges) frō þ North vpon Tyre: wt horses, charettes, horsmen, and with a greate multitude of people. Thy daughters that are i the lād shall he slaye with the sweard: but agaynst the, he shall make bullworkes and graue vp dyches aboute þ, and lyft vp hys shylde agaynst the. Hys slynges and batelrāmes shal he prepare for thy walles, and wt his weapens breake downe thy towres. The dust of hys horses shall couer the, they shalbe so many: thy walles shall shake at þ noyse of the horsmen, charettes and wheles when he commeth to thy portes, as men do into an opē cytie. With þ hoffes of his horse fete, shall he treade downe all thy stretes.

He shal slaye the people with the sweard, and breake downe þ pylers of thy strēgth. They shall waste awaye thy ryches, and spoyle thy marchaūdyse. Thy walles shall they breake downe, and destroye thy houses of pleasure. Thy stones, thy tymbre ād foundacyons shall they cast in the water.

*Jere.lvi.b.

*Thus will I bring þ melody of thy songes, and the voyce of thy mynstrelsy to an ende, so that they shall nomore be herde. I will make a bare stone of the, yee, a dryge place for nettes, & þ shalt neuer be buylded agayne: For euen I the Lord haue spokē it, sayeth the Lorde God: thus hath the Lorde God spoken concernynge Tyre. The Iles shall be moued at the noyse of thy fall, & at the crye of the slayne, þ shall be murthered i the. All kynges of the see shall come downe from theyr seates regall: they shall laye awaye theyr roabes, and put of theyr costly clothynge. Yee, with tremblinge shall they D be clothed, they shall syt vpon the ground: they shalbe afrayed at thy sodeyn fall, ād be abasshed at the.

They shall mourne for the, and saye vnto the. *O thou noble cytie, that hast bene so greatly occupyed of olde, thou that hast

*Prime.i.a.
2.o.xviii.c

bene the strongest vpon the see with thyne inhabytours, of whom al men stode i feare. Howarte thou nowe so vtterly destroyed? Now at þ tyme of thy fall þ inhabytours of the Iles, yee, and the Iles them selues, shall stande i feare at thy ende. For thus sayeth the Lorde God: whē I make the a desolate cytie (as other cyties be, that no mā dwell in) and whē I bringe the depe vpon þ that greate waters maye couer the. Then wil I cast the downe vnto thē, that descende into the pitte: vnto a people that hath bene lōge deed, and set the i a lande that is beneth, lyke the olde wildernes, with them which go downe to theyr graues, so that no mā shall dwell more in the. And I will make the to be nomore in honoure, in the lande of the lyuinge. I will make an ende of the, and thou shalt be gone. Though thou be sought for, yet shalt thou not be founde for euermore, sayeth the Lorde God.

¶ The.xxvii. Chapter.

¶ The prophete is moued to bewayle the desolacyon of Tyrus. He setteth out the prayse of Tyrus for the hauntynge of marchaūtes therto.

The worde of the Lord came vnto me A sayenge: O thou sonne of man, make a lamentable cōplaynte vpō *Tyre, *Ezec.xxvi.a xxviii. and saye vpon Tyre, þ which art a porte of the see, þ occupieth with moche people, & many Iles: thus speaketh þ Lord God: O Tyre, thou hast sayd: what, I am a noble cytie thy borders are in the middest of the see, ād thy buylders haue made þ maruelously goodly. All thy tables haue they made of cypres trees of þ moūt Sanyr, frō Libanus haue they take Cedre trees, to make þ maste: B and þ Okes of Basan to make þ rowers.

Thy bourdes haue they made of yuery, & of costely wood out of the Ile of Cethim. Thy sayle was of dyuers colours, small nedle worke out of þ lāde of Egypt, to hange vpō thy mast: & thy hāgiges of yelow sylke purple, out of þ Iles of Elisah. They of Sydon & Arnad were thy maryners, and þ wysest i Tyre were thy shypmasters. The C eldest and wysest at ☞ Gebal were they, þ mēded & stopped thy shyppes. All shyppes of the see wt theyr shypmen occupyed theyr marchaundies i þ. The Perses, Lydians ād phutes were in thyne host, & helped the to fyght: these hanged vp theyr shyldes & helmettes with the, these sett forth they bewty. They of Arnad were with thyne hoost rounde aboute thy walles, & þ Pigmeniās were thy watchmen vpō thy towres, these C hāged vp theyr quyvers rounde aboute thy walles, and made the maruelous goodly. Tharsis occupyed with the in all maner of wares, in syluer, yron, tynne and lead, and made thy marcket greate. Jauan, Tubal,

and

and Meſech were thy marchauntes, which brought the mē, and ornamentes of metall for thy occupiēge. They of ꝓ houſe of Thogarma brought vnto the at the tyme of thy marte, horſe, horſmen and mules. They of *Dedan were thy marchauntes: and many other Iles that occupyed with the, brought the weathers, Elephāt bones & Peacockes
for a preſent. The Siriās occupied with ꝓ, becauſe of thy diuerſe workes, and increa-
ſed thy marchaundies, with Smaragdes,
with ſcarlet, with nedle worcke, with whyte
lynen cloth, with ſpiche, and with cryſtall.

Juda and the lande of Iſrael occupied wꝺ
the & brought vnto thy marketes, wheat,
of Minnith and pānag, balme, hony, oyle, &
trycacle. Damaſcus alſo vſed marchaūdyes
wꝺ the, in the beſt wyne of Helbon & wꝺ woll:
becauſe thy occupiēg was ſo greate, āꝺ thy wares ſo many, Dan, Janan & Meuſall ha
ue brought vnto thy marckettes, yron redy made, with Caſſia & Calam⁹, accordige to thine occuppenge. Dedan occupied with the in ſayre tapeſtrye worcke and cuſhyns.
Arabia & al the princes of Cedar haue occupied wꝺ the, in thepe, wethers and goates.

The marchauntes of Seba and Rema
haue occupied alſo with the, ī all coſtly ſpyces, in all precyous ſtones and golde, which they brought vnto thy marckettes. Harā, Chene and Eden, the marchauntes of Saba, Aſſiria, and Chelmad, were all doers wꝺ
the, and occupyed with the. In coſtly ray-ment, of yelow ſylcke & nedle worcke (very precyous, & therfore packte and bounde together with roapes.) Yee, and in Cedre woodde, at ꝓ tyme of thy marckettes. The ſhyppes of Tharſis were the chefe of thy oc-cuppenge.

Thus thou art full, and in greate worſhip, euen ī the myddeſt of the ſee. Thy robbers ſhall brynge the into grett waters, ꝓ
eaſte winde ſhall ouerbeare the into ꝓ myd-deſt of the ſee: ſo that thy wares, thy marchaundies, thy ryches, thy maryners, thy ſhypmaſters, thy buylders of thy broken places, thy occupiers (that brought ꝓ thyn-ges neceſſary) the men of warre that are in the: yee, and all thy comens ſhall peryſh in the myddeſt of the ſee: in ꝓ daye of thy fall.
The ſuburbes ſhall ſhake at the loude crye
of thy ſhypmen. All whyrry men, & all maryners vpon the ſee, ſhall leape out of theyr boates, & ſet thē ſelues vpon ꝓ lande. They ſhall lyft vp theyr voyce becauſe of the and make a lamētable cry. They ſhall caſt duſt vpō theyr heades, and lye downe in the aſſhes. They ſhall ſhaue them ſelues, and put ſacke cloth vpon them for thy ſake.

They ſhall mourne for the with hertfull
ſorow, and heuy lamentacion, yee, they alſo ſhall wepe for the. Alas, what cytie hath ſo bene deſtroyed in ꝓ ſee, as Tyre is? Whē thy wares and marchaundies came frō the ſees, ꝓ ganeſt al people ynough. The kīges of the earth haſt thou made ryche, thorow
the multitude of thy wares & occupieng.
But thou art now caſt downe ī to the depe
of ꝓ ſee, all thy reſorte of people is periſhed with the. All they that dwell ī the Iles are abaſhed at the, & all theyr kynges are afrayed, yee, theyr facys haue chaūged coulou-
re. The marchauntes of the nacyons wondre at ꝓ. In that thou art ſo cleane brought to naught, and commeſt nomore vp.

¶ The. xxviii. Chapter.

¶ The worde of God againſt the kyng of Tyrus for hys pryde. Daniel the prophet is moued to be wayle
the kyng of Tyrus. The worde of the Lorde againſt Sydon. The Lord promyſeth that he will gather together the children of Iſrael.

The worde of ꝓ Lorde came vnto A me ſayēge: thou ſonne of mā, tell
the prince of *Tyre: Thꝰ ſayeth *Eze.xxvi.
the Lorde God, becauſe thou haſt xxviii.
a proude hert and haſt ſayde: *I *Eſa.xliii.c am a God, I haue my ſeate in the myddeſt of the ſee lyke a God: where as thou art but
a man and not God, and yet ſtandeſt ī thyne awne conceate, that thou arte God: Be-holde, ꝓ thynckeſt thy ſelfe wyſer then D
*Daniel, that there is no ſecretes hyd from *Dan.ii.d.
the. Wyth thy wyſdome and thy vnder-ſtandyng, thou haſt gotten the great welthynes, and gathered treaſure of ſyluer āꝺ golde. With thy greate wyſdome āꝺ occuppenge, haſt thou increaſed thy power, and becauſe of thy greate rychelle, thy herte is proude.

Therfore, thus ſayeth the Lorde God: B
For ſo moch as thou haſt lyft vp thyne hert
as though thou were God: Beholde, I will brynge enemyes vpō the, euen the tyrauntes of ꝓ heathē: theſe ſhall drawe out their ſwerdes vpon thy bewty and wyſdome, & ſhal defyle thy glory. They ſhall caſt the do wne to ꝓ pitte, ſo that thou ſhalt dye in the myddeſt of the ſee, as they that be ſlayne.
Lett ſe, yf thou wilt ſaye then (before them that ſlaye ꝓ) I am God: where as thou art
but a man and not God, in the hādes of thē that ſlaye the. Dye ſhalt thou, euen as the vncircumciſed in the handes of the enemyes
for I my ſelfe haue ſpoken it, ſayeth the C Lorde God.

Moreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, ſayeng: Thou ſonne of mā, make a lamentable complaynte ouer ꝓ kynge of Tyre, āꝺ tell hym: Thus ſayeth the Lorde God: thou art a ſeale of a lykeneſſe, full of wyſdome & excellēt bewty. Thou haſt bene in the pleaſaunt garden of God: thou art de cke with al maner of precious ſtones: with Ruby, Topas, Cryſtall, Jacynte, Onix,

Jaspis, Saphyr, Smaragde, Carbouncle, and golde. Thy bewty and the holes ꝓ be in ꝓ, were sett forth in ꝓ daye of thy creacyon.

Thou art a layre Cherub exalted by the anoyntyng, stretched vpde out for to couer.

I haue set the ꝓ in this dignyte vpon ꝓ holy mout of God, there hast ꝓ bene, & walcked amõge ꝓ layre glysterige stones. From the tyme of thy creacyõ ꝓ hast bene ryght excellet, tyll wickednes was founde in ꝓ. * Because of thy great marchaũdise, thy hert is full of wyckednesse, & thou hast offended. Therfore, wyll I cast ꝓ frõ ꝓ mõut of God (O thou couering Cherub) and destroye ꝓ amonge the glysterynge stones. Thy hert was proude in thy layre beuty, and thorow thy bewty ꝓ hast destroyed thy wysdome. I will cast the downe to ꝓ grounde, & ꝓ in the sight of kynges. Thou hast defyled thy Sanctuary, wt the greate wyckednes of thy vnryghteous occupyȝge. I wyll bringe a fyre frõ the myddest of the, to cõsume the: & wyll make the to asshes, in the sight of all them that loke vpon the. All they that haue bene acquaynted with the amonge the heathen shalbe abasshed at the, seyng ꝓ art so clene brought to naught, and comest nomore vp.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayeng: Thou sonne of man, set thy face agaynst Sydon. * Prophecye vpon it, and speake: Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde, O Sydon, I will vpon the, and gett me honoure i the: that it maye be knowne, how that I am the Lorde: when I punyshe her, and gett me honoure in her. For I will sende pestilence and bloudsheddyng into her streates, so that those which be slayne with the swearde, shall lye roũde aboute in the myddest of her: and they shall knowe, that I am ꝓ Lorde. She shall nomore be a pryckyng thorne, and an hurtyng breer vnto ꝓ house of Israell, nor vnto them ꝓ lye roũde aboute her, and hate her, & they shal knowe that I am the Lorde.

Thus sayeth ꝓ Lord God: whẽ I gather ꝓ housholde of Israel together agayne frõ the nacions amõge whom they be scattred then shall I be sanctifyed in the, i the syghe of the Gẽtyles, & they shall dwell in ꝓ lãd, ꝓ I gaue to my seruaunt Jacob. They shall dwell safely therin, buylde houses, & plante vynyardes: yee, safely * shall they dwell therin: whẽ I haue punyshed all those, that despyse the roũde aboute: & then shall they knowe, that I am the Lorde theyr God.

¶ The.xxix. Chapter.

¶ The prophecyeth agaynst Pharao. He prophecyeth the desolacyon of Egypte, & the sparkyng abroade of the Egyptyans. The Lord promesseth ꝓ he will restore Egypte agayne after.xl. yeares. Egypte is the reward of kyng Nabuchodonosor for the labour wherwith he toke agaynst Tyrus.

In the tenth yeare, vpõ the twelueth daye of the tenth moneth, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayenge: * O thou sonne of man (set now thy face agaynst Pharao the kynge of Egypte) prophecye agaynst him, and agaynst the whole lande of Egypte. Speake, and tell him, thus sayeth the Lorde God: behold, O pharao ꝓ kynge of Egypte, I will vpõ the ☞ thou great dragõ, that lyest in the waters: thou ꝓ sayest: the water is myne. I haue made it my selfe. I will put an hoke in thy chawes and hange all the fysh in thy waters vpon thy skales: after that I will drawe the out of thy waters, yee, and all the fysh of thy waters ꝓ hãge vpon thy skales. ☞ I will cast the out vpon the drye lande wt the fysh of thy waters, so ꝓ ꝓ shalt lye vpõ the feld. Thou shalt not be gathered ner taken vp: but shalt be meate for the beastes of ꝓ felde, & for ꝓ foules of ꝓ ayre: that all they which dwell i Egypte, maye knowe, that I am ꝓ Lorde: because ☞ thou hast bene a * staf of rede to the house of Israel. Whẽ they toke holde of the with theyr hande thou brakest & pyrcedst them on euery syde: and yͤ they leaned vpon ꝓ, thou brakest and hurtedst ꝓ reynes of theyr backes. Therfore, thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde God: beholde, I wyll bringe a swearde vpõ the, & rote out of ꝓ bothe man & beast. Yee, the lãde of Egypte shalbe desolate & waste. Ad they shall knowe, ꝓ I am ꝓ Lorde. Because he sayde: the water is myne, I my selfe haue made it. Beholde therfore, I wyll vpon the, and vpon thy waters: I will make the lãde of Egypt waste & desolate & in abathment, frõ ꝓ tower of Syenes vnto the borders of the Mozians lãde: so that in fourty yeares there shall no fote of man walke there, nether fote of catell go there, nether shall it be habited. I will make the land of Egypte to be desolat, amõge other waste countrees, and her cyties to lye voyde fourty yeares, amonge other voyde cyties. And I will scatre the Egyptians among the heathen and nacyons.

Agayne, thus sayeth the Lorde God: * When the .xl. yeares are expyred, I wyll gather the Egyptiãs together agayne, out of the nacions amõg whom they were scatred, and wyll bryng ꝓ presoners of Egypte agayne into ꝓ land of Pathures theyr awne natyue countre, that they maye be there a lowly small kyngdome: yee, they shalbe the smallest amõge other kyngdomes, lest they exalte them selues aboue the heathen: for I will so mynysh thẽ that they shall nomore rule the heathen. They shall nomore be an hope vnto ꝓ house of Israel, nether prouoke them any more to wyckednes, to cause thẽ turne backe, and to folowe them: and they shall knowe that I am ꝓ Lorde God.

In the

D In the .xxvii. yeare, the fyrst daye of the fyrst moneth, came the worde of ꝓ Lord vnto me sayeng: Thou sonne of mā, Nabuchodonosor the king of Babylō hath made his hoost, with great trauayle & labour to come before Tyre: that euery head maye be halde & euery shoulder bare. Yet hath Tyre geuen nether hym nor hys hoost any rewarde, for the great trauayl that he hath taken there. Therfore, thus sayeth the Lord God: beholde, I will geue the lāde of Egypt vnto Nabuchodonosor the kynge of Babylō, that he maye take awaye all her substaunce, robbe her roberyes, & spoyle her spoyles, to paye his hoost theyr wagyes withall. I will geue hym the lande of Egypte for hys labour, that he toke for me before Tyre. At the same tyme will I cause the horne of the house of Israell to growe forth, and open thy mouth agayne among them: that they maye knowe, how that I am the Lorde.

¶ The .xxx. Chapter.

¶ The destruccyon of Egypt and of his cytyes is bewayled.

A The worde of ꝓ Lorde came more ouer vnto me, sayeng: thou sonne of man, prophecye and speake: thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde God: Mourne, wo worth this daye, for the daye is here, the daye of the Lord is come: ¶ the darke daye of the heathen, ꝓ houre is at hande, the swearde commeth vpon Egypte. When the wounded men fall downe in Egypte, whē her people are taken awaye, and when her foundacyons are destroyed, the Moryās lande shall be afrayed, yee, the Moryans lande, Libia and Lidia, all theyr comen people, and Chub, and all ꝓ be confederat vnto them, shall fall with the thorow the swearde.

B Thus sayeth the Lorde: The mayntenners of the lande of Egypte shall fall, the pryde of her power shall come downe euen vnto ꝓ tower of Syenes shall they be slayne downe with the swearde, sayeth ꝓ Lorde God: amonge other desolate countrees they shalbe made desolate, & amonge other waste cyties they shalbe wasted. And they shall knowe, that I am the Lorde, when I kyndle a fyre in Egypte, and when all her helpers are destroied. At ꝓ tyme, shall theyr messaungers go forth from me in shyppes, to make the careles Moryās afrayed, and sorow shall come vpon them accordinge to the C daye of Egypte, for doubtles it shall come.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: I wil make an ende of the people of Egypt thorow the hand of Nabuchodonosor the kinge of Babylon. he and his people with him: yee, and the cruell tyrauntes of the heathen shalbe brought to destroye the lande. They shall drawe out theyr swordes vpon Egypte, & fyll the lande full of slayne mē. I will drye vp theyr floudes of water, and sell the lāde into the hādes of wicked people. The lande & all ꝓ is therin, will I destroye thorow the enemyes. Euen I the Lord haue sayde it.

And thus sayeth the Lord God: * I will destroye the Idols, and bringe the ymages of ¶ Noph to an ende. There shall nomore be a prince of Egypte, & a fearfulnes will I sende into the Egyptiās lād. As for Pathures, I wyll make it desolate, & kyndle a fyre in Zoan the cyty. No, I punysh, and poure my wrathfull indignacyon vpon Sin, which is the strēgth of Egypt. All the substaunce of Alexandria will I destroye, and kyndle a fyre in Egypte. E

Sin shalbe in greate heuynesse, Alexandria shalbe roted out, and Noph shall haue daylye sorow. The best men of Helyopolys and Bubasto shalbe slayne with ꝓ swearde, and caryed awaye captyue. At Caphnis the daye shalbe darcke, when I breake there the scepter of the lande of Egypt, & when the pompe of her power shall haue an ende, ¶ A cloud shall couer her, and her daughters shalbe led awaye into captiuite. Thus will I punysh Egypt, ꝓ they maye knowe how that I am the Lorde.

It happened in the eleuenth yeare, vpon the seuenth daye of the fyrst moneth, that ꝓ Lordes worde came vnto me, sayenge: Beholde, thou sonne of man, I will breake the arme of Pharao kyng of Egypte: and lo it shall not be bounde vp to be healed, nother shall eny playstre be laied vpō it, for to ease it, or to make it so stronge, as to holde a swearde. Therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde God: Beholde, I will vpon Pharao ꝓ king of Egypte, and bruse his stronge arme (yet is it but a broken one) & will smyte ꝓ swearde out of his handes. F

Asfor the Egyptians. I will scatre thē among the heathen, and strowe them i the landes aboute. Agayne I will strengthe the arme of the kyng of Babylon, & geue him a swearde in his hand: but I will breake Pharaos arme so that he shall holde it before hi pytteously, lyke a wounded man. G

Yee, I wyll stablysh the kynge of Babilons arme, & the armes of Pharao shall fall downe: that it maye be knowne, ꝓ I am the Lord, which geue the kynge of Babylō my swearde in his hand, that he maye drawe it out vpon the lande of Egypte, & that when I scatre the Egyptians amōge the Gētils and strowe them in the landes aboute, they maye knowe, that I am the Lorde.

¶ The .xxxi. Chapter.

¶ A comparyson of the prosperyte of Pharao with the prosperyte of the Assirians. He prophecyeth a lyke destruccyon vnto them bothe.

Moreouer, it happened ī the eleuēth yeare, the fyrst daye of the thyrd moneth, ꝓ the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayeng: thou sonne of man, speake vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte, and to al hys people. Whom art ꝓ lyke in thy greatnesse? Beholde, Assur was lyke a Cedre tre vpon the mount of Lybanus with fayre braūches: so thycke, that he gaue shadowes and shot out very hye. hys toppe reached vnto ꝓ cloudes. The waters made hym great, and the depe set him vp an hye. Rounde aboute the rotes of hym rāne there floudes of water, he sent out his lytle ryuers vnto all the trees of the felde. Therfore was he hyer then all the trees of the felde, and thorow the multytude of waters ꝓ he sent from him, he optayned many longe braūches. All foules of the ayre made theyr nestes in his braūches, vnder his bowes gradzed all the beastes of the felde, and vnder his shadow dwelt all people. Fayre & bewtifull was he in his gretnes & in the length of hys braunches, for hys rote stode beside great waters, & no Cedre tre myght hyde hym. In the pleasaunt gardē of God, there was no fyrre tre lyke hys braūches, ꝓ playne trees were not lyke the bowes of hym. All the trees in ꝓ garden of God myght not be compared vnto him in his bewty, so fayre and goodly had I made hym wt the multytude of hys braunches. In so moch that ⁂ all the trees in ꝓ pleasaunt gardē of God had enuye at hym. Therfore, thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde God: for so moch as he hath lyft vp him selfe so hye, and stretched hys toppe in to ꝓ cloudes, and seinge his hert is proude in his hyghnesse. I wyll delyuer hym into ꝓ handes of the myghtyest among the heathen, which shall rote him out. Accordynge to his wyckednesse wyll I cast hī awaye, ꝓ enemye shall destrope hym, and the myghty men of the heathen shall so scatre him that his braunches shall lye vpon all mountaynes and in all valleyes: his bowes shalbe broken downe to the grounde thorow out the lande. Then all the people of the lande shall go from his shadowe, and forsake him. When he is fallen, all the foules of the ayre shall syt vpon hym, and all wylde beastes of the felde shall go aboute & amonge his braunches: so that from hence forth, no tre in the water shall attayne to his highnesse, nor reach his toppe vnto ꝓ cloudes, nether shall eny tre of the water stande so hye, as he hath done. For vnto death shall they all be delyuered vnder the earth, and go downe to the graue lyke other men.

Moreouer, thus sayeth the Lorde God: In the daye when he goeth downe to the graue I will cause a lamentacyon to be made, I will couer the depe vpon him, I will stauch his floudes, and the great waters shalbe restrayned. I shall cause Lybanus to be sorowfull for his sake, and all the trees of the felde shall be smytte. I will make the heathen shake at the sounde of his fall, when I cast him downe to* hell with them that descende into the pytte. All the trees of Eden, with all the chosen and best trees of Lybanus, yee, and all they that are planted vpō the waters, shall mourne with hym also in the lower habitacyōs: for they shal go downe to hell with him, vnto them that be slayne with the swearde, which dwelt a fore vnder the shadowe of his arme amōg the heathen. To whō shalt thou be lykened, that art so gloryous and greate, amōg the trees of Eden? Yet art thou cast downe vnder the earth (amonge ꝓ trees of Edē) where thou must lye amōge vncircūcysed, wt them ꝓ be slayne wt ꝓ swearde. Euen thus is it wt Pharao & all his people, sayeth the Lorde God.

* Eze.xxxi. Esa.xiiii.

The.xxxii. Chapter.

The prophete is commaunded to bewayle Pharao the kyng of Egypt. He propheceth that destruccyon shall come vnto Egypt thorow the kyng of Babylon.

And ī the eleuenth yeare, ꝓ fyrst daye of the twelueth moneth, ꝓ worde of ꝓ Lorde came vnto me sayenge: thou sonne of mā, take vp a lamētacyō vpō* Pharao ꝓ king of Egypt, & saye vnto him: thou art reputed as a lyon of the heathē, & as a whalfysh i ꝓ see: Thou castest thy waters about the, thou troublest ꝓ waters with thy fete and stāpest in theyr floudes. Thus sayeth the Lord God: * I wyll spreade my net ouer the, namely, a greate multytude of people: these shall bryue ꝓ ito my yarne, for I wyll cast the vpon the lande, and let the lye vpō the felde, that all ꝓ foules of the ayre maye syt vpon the. I will geue all the beastes of the felde ynough of ꝓ. Thy flesh will I cast vpon the hylles, and fyll the valleyes with thy hyghnesse. I wyll water the lāde with the aboundaunce of thy bloude euen to the moūtaynes, and ꝓ ryuers shal be full of thy bloude. When ꝓ art put out, I will couer ꝓ heauen, and make his starres dymme. * I will spreade a cloude ouer the Sunne, and the Mone shal not gene her light. All ꝓ lightes of heauē will I put out ouer ꝓ, & brīg darknes vpon thy lāde, sayeth the Lord God. I will trouble the hertes of many people, when I bryng thy destrucciō amōg ꝓ heathen & coūtrees, whom ꝓ knowest not. Yee, I will make many people wt theyr kinges so afrayed thorow the, ꝓ theyr heare shall stāde vp, when I shake my sweard at theyr faces. Sodenly shall they be astonyed, euery man in hym selfe, at the daye of thy fall.

* Eze.xxxii. and.xxxi.

* Eze.xii. xvii.

* Esa.xiii

For

C For thus sayeth the Lord God, the king of Babylons swearde shal come vpon the, with the swardes of the worthyes wyll I smyte downe thy people. All they that be myghtye amonge the Gentyles shal waste ꝓ proude pompe of Egypte, & bryng downe all her people. All the catell also of Egipte will I destroye, ꝓ they shall come nomore vpon ꝓ waters: so that nether mãs fote ner beastes clawe, shall stere thẽ eny more. Thẽ will I make their waters depe, & cause their floudes to runne lyke oyle, sayeth the Lord God. When I make ꝓ lande of Egypte desolate, and when the countre with all that is therin, shalbe layde waste, & when I smyte all them which dwell in it, that they may knowe, that I am ꝓ Lord. This is ꝓ mournyng, that ꝓ daughters of the heathen shal
D make: Yee, a sorow & lamentacion shal they take vp, vpon Egypte, and all her people, sayeth the Lord God.

In the .xii. yeare, the .xv. daye of the moneth, came the worde of the Lorde vnto me, sayinge: Thou sonne of man. Take vp a lamentacion vpon ꝓ people of Egypte, & cast thẽ downe, yee, them I saye, & the myghtye people of ꝓ heathẽ also, euen with thẽ * that dwell beneth: and with them that go downe into the graue. Downe (how fayre so euer ꝓ be) & laye the with ꝓ vncircumcised. Amõge those ꝓ be slayne with ꝓ swearde, shall they lye. To the swerde is she all redy delyuered: therfore pluck downe to ꝓ grounde, her & all her multitude. The myghtie worthies shal speake to him out of ꝓ hell & to his helpers, ꝓ be gone downe & lye vncircumcised and w them that be slayne with the swearde.

* Esa. xiiii. c Ezech. xxxi. c

E Assur is there also wyth hys company, & their graues roũde aboute, which were slayne and fell all with the swearde, whose graues lye besyde him in ꝓ lowe pytte. hys comens are buried rounde aboute hys graue, all together wounded and slayne with the swearde, which mẽ afore tyme brought feare into the lande of the lyuynge.

* Jerr. xxv. f Dani. viii. a.

* There is Elam also wyth all hys people, and their graues rounde aboute: which all beynge wounded & slayne with ꝓ swearde, are gone downe vncircumcysed vnder ꝓ earth, which neuertheles somtime brought feare into the lande of the lyuynge: for the which they beare their shame, with ꝓ other that be gone downe to the graue.

Their burial is geuen them and all their people, amonge them that be slayne. Their graues are roũde aboute al them, whych be vncircũcised, & with thẽ that be slayne thorow ꝓ swearde: for seyng that in times past they made the lande of the lyuynge afrayed they must now beare their awne shame, w them that go downe to the pytte, and lye amonge them that be slayne.

There is Mesech also and Tubal, and their people, & their graues rounde aboute. These all are amõg the vncircumcised, and them that be slayne wyth the swearde, because afore tyme they made the lande of the lyuynge afrayed.

Shulde not they then lye also amonge ꝓ worthyes, & vncircũcised Spaunters, which with their weapens are gone downe to hell whose swardes are layed vnder their heades, whose wyckednesse is vpon their bones: because that as worthyes, they haue brought feare into the lande of the lyuinge Yee, amonge the vncircũcised shalt thou be destroyed, & slepe wyth them, that perished thorowe the swearde.

There is the lande of * Edom wyth her kynges and princes also, which with theyr strẽgth are layed by them that were slayne with the swearde, yee, amonge the vncircũcised, and them which are gone downe into the pytte. Moreouer, there be all ꝓ prynces of the north, with all the Sidonyãs, which are gone downe to the slayne. G * Jerr. xlix. b Ezech. xxv. b. and. xxxb. a.

With their feare and strength they are come to confusion, and lye there vncircuncised, among those that be slayne with ꝓ swearde: and beare their awne shame, with thẽ that be gone downe to ꝓ pytte. Now whan Pharao seyth this, he shalbe comforted ouer all hys people, that is slayne with the swearde: both Pharao and all his hoost, sayeth the Lord God. For I haue geuen my feare in the lande of the lyuige. But Pharao and all his people shall lye among the vncircuncised, and amonge them that be slayne with the swearde sayeth the Lorde God.

The .xxxiii. Chapter.

The setteth out the office of a curate that preacheth the Gospell. He strengtheneth them that dispayre, and boldeneth them with the promes of mercy. The worde of ꝓ Lord agaynst ꝓ remnaunt of ꝓ people. Agaynst the mockers of the wordes of the prophete.

AGayne, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me: sayenge. Thou sonne of man, Speke to ꝓ children of thy people, and tell thẽ: Whan I sende a swearde vpon a lande, yf the people of the lande take a mã of their countre, & set hym to be their * watchman, the same man (whan he seyth ꝓ swearde come vpon the lande) shall blowe the trompet, and warne the people. A * iii. me. ir.

If a man now heare the noyse of the trõpet & wyll not be warned, and the swearde come: and take him awaye: his bloude shall be vpon his awne head: for he herde ꝓ sound of the trompet, & wolde not take hede, therfore his bloude be vpon him. But yf he will receaue warninge, he shall saue his lyfe.

B Agayne, yf the watchman se ꝑ swearde come, and blowe not with the trõpet, so that the people is not warned: yf the swearde come then, & take eny man from among thẽ:
the same shall be taken awaye in his awne synne, but his blode wyll I requyre of the watchmans hande.

* Ezec.xiii.c * And now (O thou sonne of man) I haue made the a watchman vnto the house of Israel: that where as thou hearest eny thin-
ge out of my mouth, thou mayest warne thẽ
on my behalfe. If I saye vnto the wycked thou wycked, thou shalt surely dye, & thou geuest him not warnynge, that he maye bewarre of his vngodly waye: then shall the wycked dye in his awne synne, but his blode wyll I require of thy hãde. Neuertheles, yf thou warne the wycked of hys waye, to turne from it, where as he yet wyll not be turned from it, thẽ shal he dye because of his synne, but thou hast deliuered thy soule.

C Therfore (O thou sonne of man) speake vnto ꝑ house of Israel. Ye, saye thus: Oure offences and synnes lye vpon vs, and we be corrupte in them how shulde we then be restored vnto lyfe? Tell them: * As truly as
* Ezec.xviii.c I lyue saieth the Lord God, I haue no pleasure in ꝑ death of the wycked, but moch rather ꝑ the wycked turne frõ his waye, & ly-
ue. Turne you, turne you frõ your vngod-ly wayes, O ye of the house of Israell. Oh wherfore wyll ye dye?

Thou sonne of man, tell the chyldren of
* Ezec.xviii.b thy people: * The righteousnes of the rygh
teous shal not saue him, whansoeuer he tur neth awaye vnfaithfully. Agayne, the wyckednesse of the wycked shall not hurt hym,
whan soeuer he conuerteth from hys vngodlynesse.

And the ryghteousnesse of the ryghteous
shall not saue his lyfe, whansoeuer he synneth. If I saye vnto the ryghteous, that he shal surely lyue, and so he trust to his awne
ryghteousnesse, and do synne, then shall hys righteousnesse be nomore thought vpõ, but in the wyckednesse that he hath done he shal
D dye. * Agayne, yf I saye vnto the wycked:
* Esa.lv.b. Ierem.xviii.a. thou shalt surely dye: and so he turne from his synnes, and do ꝑ thinge that is lawfull
and right: In so moch that the same wicked man geueth ꝑ pledge agayne, restoreth that he had taken awaye by robbery, walcketh
in the commaundementes of lyfe, and doth no wronge. Then shall he surely lyue, and not dye. Yee, the synnes that he hath done, shall neuer be thought vpõ. For in so moch
as he doth now the thinge that is lawfull & ryght, he shall lyue. And yet the chyldren of thy people saye: Euen: the waye of ꝑ Lorde is not ryght, but they lye, where as their awne waye is rather vnright.

When ꝑ ryghteous turneth frõ his ryghteousnes and doth the thing that is wicked
he shall dye therfore. But yf the wicked tur ne from his wickednesse, doing the thinge ꝑ
is lawfull and right, he shall lyue therfore.
Yet ye saye: * the waye of the Lorde is not * Ezec.xviii.
equall. O ye house of Israell * I will iudge Ezech.xx.a.
euery one of you after his wayes.

In the .xii. yeare, the .v. daye of ꝑ tenth mo E
neth of oure captiuite, it happened, that one which was fled out of Ierusalẽ, came vnto
me, and sayd: the citye is destroyed. Now ꝑ
hande of ꝑ Lord had bene vpon me the euen-
ning afore this mã (which was escaped) came vnto me, & had opened my mouth, vn F
tyll ꝑ morowning ꝑ he came to me: yee, he opened my mouth, so ꝑ I was nomore domme.
Then came the worde of ꝑ Lord vnto me, & sayd. Thou sonne of man, these ꝑ dwell in ꝑ wasted lãde of Israel, saye: Abraham was but one man, and he had the lande in possession: now are we many & the lande is geuen
vs to possesse also. And therfore tell them. G
Thus sayeth the Lord: * In the blood haue * Leu.xix.c
ye eaten, youre eyes haue ye lyft vp to Idoles, ‡ and haue shed blood: shall ye then haue ‡ Deut.xii.c
the lande in possession?

Ye leane vpon your swerdes, ye worcke
abhominacions, euery one defileth his neygh
bours wife: and shall ye thẽ possesse the lan-de? Saye ꝑ these wordes vnto them. Thus saieth the Lord God. As truly as I lyue all ye ꝑ dwell in thys wyldernesse, shalbe slayne
with ꝑ swearde: whatsoeuer is vpon the felde, will I geue vnto the beastes to be deuo-
ured: those that be in strong holdes & den nes, shall dye of the pestilence. For I wyll make the lande so desolate and waste, & the pompe of her strength shal come to an ende.
The mountaynes in Israel shalbe so waste that noman shall trauayle therby. G

* Then shall they lerne to knowe, that I * Ezec.vii.a.
am the Lord, when I make the lande waste & desolate, because of all their abhominacions, that they haue wrought. And thou sonne of man, the chyldre of thy people that talcke of the, by the walles and in the dores
of their houses, sayinge one to another: Come, let vs heare, what worde is gone forth from the Lord. These come vnto the, after ꝑ maner of a greate people: yee, as who sayth
they were my people, they syt downe before the, and heare thy wordes, but they do not therafter * for in their mouthes they make a * Esa.lviii.
Iest of them, and theyr herte goeth after Matth.vi.a.
theyr awne couetous lucre. And as a balet that hath a swete tune, and is pleasaunt to synge, so shalt ꝑ be vnto them: thy wordes
shal they heare, but they will not do theraf-
ter. Whã this cõmeth to passe (for lo, it com meth in dede) then shall they knowe, ꝑ there hath bene a prophet amonge them.

The

The.xxxiiii.Chapter.

¶ Agaynst wycked shepperdes and Lurkers that destroye the flock of Christ, & leade them awrie. The Lord saieth that he wyll wyn his dispersed flocke, and gather them together. He reproueth the malice of certen of the flocke. He promyseth the true Shepherd Christ, and with him peace.

AND the worde of ꝓ Lorde came vnto me, sayinge. Thou sonne of man, prophecye agaynst the shepherdes of Israel, prophecy and speake vnto them. Thus sayeth the Lord God. *Wo be vnto the shepherdes of Israell, that fede them selues. Shulde not the shepherdes fede ꝓ flockes? Ye haue eate vp the fatt, ye haue clothed you with the woll: ꝓ best fedde haue ye slayne, but the flocke haue ye not norished. The weake haue ye not holden vp *the sicke haue ye not healed: ꝓ broken haue ye not bounde together, ꝓ out castes haue ye not brought agayne: ꝓ lost haue ye not sought, but *churlishly & cruelly haue ye ruled the. Thus are they scatred here & there without a shepherde: yee, all ꝓ beastes of the feld deuoure the, and they go astraye.

My shepe go wandring vpon all mountaynes and vpō euery hye hyll. Yee, they be scatred abrode in all feldes, and there is no man, that careth for the, or seketh after the. Therfore, O ye shepherdes, heare the worde of the Lorde. Thus sayeth ꝓ Lord God: As truly as I lyue, for so moch as my shepe are robbed, and deuoured of all the wylde beastes of the felde, bauynge no shepherde: and seinge that my shepherdes take no regarde of my shepe, but fede them selues onely, and not my shepe. Therfore, heare the worde of the Lord (O ye shepherdes) Thus sayeth ꝓ Lord God: Beholde, I my selfe wyll vpon the shepherdes: and require my shepe from their handes, and make them ceasse from fedynge of my shepe: yee, the shepherdes shall fede the selues nomore. For I wyll deliuer my shepe out of their mouthes, so that they shall not deuoure them after this. For thus sayeth the Lorde God: * Beholde, I wyll loke to my shepe my selfe, and seke them. Like as a shepherde among ꝓ flocke seketh after the shepe that are scatered abroade, euen so wil I seke after my shepe, & gather them together out of all places, where they haue bene scatred in the cloudy and darcke daye. I will bringe them out from all people, and gather the togethe out of all lādes. I will bringe them into their awne lande, and fede them vpon the mountaines of Israel, by the ryuers, and in all the places of the countre. I will fede them in ryght good pastures and vpon the hie moūtaynes of Israel shall there foldes be. There shal they lye in a good folde, and in a fat pasture shal they fede: euē vpon the mountaynes of Israell.

I will fede my shepe my selfe, and bringe them to their rest, sayeth the Lorde God. * Soch as be lost, will I seke: soch as go astraye: will I bring agayne: soch as be wouñded, will I bynde vp: soch as be weake, will I make strong: soch as be fat & stronge, those will I rote oute, and fede them with the thing that is lawfull. And as for you (O my shepe) sayeth the Lorde God. * I wyll put a difference amonge the shepe, among the wethers & the goates. Was it not ynough for you, to eate vp ꝓ good pasture, but ye muste treade downe ꝓ residue of youre pasture wt your fete also? Was it not ynough for you to drincke cleare water, but ye must trouble the residue also with youre fete? Thus my shepe must be fayne to eate the thinge, that ye haue troden downe wt youre fete, and to drincke it, that ye with your fete haue defiled. Therfore, thus sayeth ꝓ Lord God vnto them: Beholde, I wyll seuer the fatt shepe from the leane: for so moch as ye haue shot the weake shepe vpon the sydes & shoulders, and runne vpon them with your hornes, so lōge tyll ye haue vtterly scatred them abrode. I will helpe my shepe, so that they shal nomore be spoyled: yee, I will discerne one shepe from another. I wyll rayse vp vnto them one onely shepherde, euen my seruaunt * David, he shall fede the and he shall be their shepherde. I the Lorde will be their God, and my seruaunt David shall be their prince: Euen I the Lorde haue spoken it.

Moreouer, I wyll make a couenaunt of peace with them and dryue al euell beastes out of the lande: so that they maye dwell safely in the wildernesse, and slepe in the woddes. Good fortune and prosperite will I geue them, and vnto all that be roūde about my hyll. * A prosperous shower and rayne will I sende the in due season, that the trees in the wodde maye bring forth their frutes and the grounde her increase. They shalbe safe in their lande, and shall knowe, that I am the Lord, which haue broken their yocke and deliuered the oute of the handes of those, that helde them in subiection.

They shal nomore be spoyled of the heathen, ner deuoured wyth the beastes of the lande: but safely shal they dwell, and no mā shall fraye them, I will set vp an excellent plante for them, so that they shall suffre no more hunger in the lande, nether beare the reproche of the heathē eny more. Thus shall they vnderstande, that I the Lorde theyr God am with them, and that they (euen the house of Israel) are my people saieth ꝓ Lorde God. Ye men are my flocke * ye are the shepe of my pasture: and I am youre God, sayeth the Lorde God.

The

¶ The.xxxv.Chapter.

¶ The destruccyon that shall chaūce on the hyll Seyr, that is, on ꝑ Idumeans, because they troubled the people of the Lorde.

I MOreouer, the worde of the Lorde came vnto me, saying. Thou sonne of man, turne thy face towarde the mount * Seyr, prophecye vpon it, & saye vnto it. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lord God: Beholde (O ꝑ mount Seyr) I wyll vpon the, I wyll reach out myne hāde ouer the, yee, waste and desolate wil I make the. Thy cities will I breake downe, ād ꝑ shalt lye voyde: that thou mayst knowe, how ꝑ I am the Lorde. * For so moch as thou bearest an olde enemyte agaynst the chyldren of Israel, and hast drawne the chylderne of Israell vpō the swerde, what tyme as they were troubled and punished for their synne: Therfore, as truly as I lyue, sayeth ꝑ Lord God, I will prepare the vnto bloude, yee, ☞ bloude shall folow vpon the: * seinge ꝑ sayest wayte for bloude, therfore shall bloude persecute ꝑ. Thus will I make ꝑ mount Seir desolate and waste, and bringe to passe, that there shall no man goo thyther, nor come from thence. His mountaynes will I fyll with his slayne men: thy hilles, valleys and ryuers, shall lye full of them, that are slayne with ꝑ swearde. I will make ꝑ a perpetuall wildernesse, so that thy cityes shall not returne to their former estate ꝑ ye maye knowe, how that I am the Lorde.

☞ And because ꝑ hast sayde: what, ☞ both C these nacions and both these landes must be * myne, & I will haue them in possessiō * where as the Lorde was there. Therfore, thus sayeth the Lord God: As truly as I lyue, I will hādle the accordinge to thy wrath and gelousy, lyke as thou hast dealt cruelly wt them, that I maye be knowen amōg them, how I haue punished ꝑ. Yee, and that thou also mayest be sure, that I the Lorde haue herde al thy despyte ful wordes, which thou D hast spoken agaynst the mountaynes of Israell, sayinge: Lo, they are made waste, and geuē vs to deuoure. Thus with your mouthes ye haue made youre boast agaynst me, yee, and multiplied your proude wordes agaynst me, which I haue herde altogether. Where vnto, thus sayeth the Lord God: to the ioye of all the worlde will I make ꝑ waste. * And lyke as ꝑ (O mount Seyr) wast glad, because the heritage of the house of Israel was destroyed: euen so wyll I do vnto the also, ꝑ thou and whole Edom shal be destroyed, & knowe, that I am the Lorde.

¶ The.xxxvi.Chapter.

¶ He promiseth deliuerance from the Gentyles vnto Israell. The benefytes done vnto the Iewes are to be ascribed to the mercy of God, not vnto their deseruinges. God enricheth our hertes ꝑ we may walke in his commaundementes.

THou sonne of man, prophecye vpon ꝑ I mountaynes of Israell, and speake: * heare ꝑ worde of the Lorde, O ye * Ezec.vi.a mountaynes of Israel. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lord God. Because your enemye hath sayde vpō you: ☞ A, ha, the hye euerlastynge places ☞ are now become ours, prophecy therfore, & speake: thus sayeth the Lord God. Seynge ye be wasted and trode downe on euery syde, and become a possession vnto the residue of ꝑ Gentiles, which haue brought you into mens mouthes and vnto an euell name amonge the people. Therfore, heare ꝑ worde of the Lord God, O ye mountaynes of Israell. Thus sayeth the Lord God vnto the mountaynes and hilles, valleys and dales, to ꝑ voyde wyldernesse and desolate cityes, which are spoyled, & had in derision on euery syde, amonge the residue of the heathē. Yee, euē thus sayeth the Lord God. In the B fyre of my gelousy haue I taken a deuyce, agaynst ꝑ residue of the Gētiles, & agaynst all * Edom: which haue taken in my lande * Ezec.xxv.d vnto them selues for a possessiō: which also reioyced frō their whole hert with a despitefull stomacke, to waste it, and to spoyle it.

Prophecy therfore vpon the lande of Israell, speake vnto the mountaynes & hilles, to valleys and dales, thus sayeth the Lord God. Behold, this haue I deuised in my gelousy & terrible wrath. For so moche as ye haue suffred reproffe of the heathē, therfore thus sayeth the Lord God. ☞ I haue sworne, ☞ that the Gentiles which lye aboute you, shal beare their cōfusion thē selues. And as for you (O mountaynes of Israel) ye shall shute out your braunches, and bringe forth C your frute to my people of Israell, for it is hard by, that it will come. Beholde, I come vnto you, and vnto you wyll I turne me, ꝑ ye maye be tylled and sowne.

☞ I wyll sende you moch people, which ☞ shalbe all of the house of Israell, the cityes shalbe inhabited, & the decayed places shalbe repaired agayne, I wil prouide you with moch people and catell, which shal increase and bringe frute, I wyll restore you also to your olde estate & shewe you more kyndnes thē euer ye had before: wherby ye shal knowe, that I am the Lord. Yee, people wyll I send vnto you (O my folke of Israel) which shall haue the in possession, ād thou shalt be their inheritaunce, so ꝑ thou shalt nomore be without them. Agayne, thus sayeth the Lorde God. For so moch as they saye vnto you, thou art an eater vp of men, and a waster of thy people: therfore thou shalt eate no mo men, nether destroye thy people eny more, sayeth the Lord God. And I will not D suffre the, for to heare thine awne confusion amonge the Gentiles from hēceforth. Thou shalt not beare ꝑ reproffe of the nacions, nor cast out

caſt out thyne awne people eny moze, ſaieth the Lozd God.

Moreouer, the wozde of the Lozde came vnto me, ſaying. O thou ſonne of mā, when the houſe of Iſraell dwelt vpon their awne groūde, they defiled thē ſelues wt their awne wayes & ymaginacions: ſo ꝓ in my ſight their waye was lyke the vncleānneſſe of a meſtruous womā. Wherfoze, I poured my wzothfull diſpleaſure vpō them, F becauſe of the bloude ꝓ they had ſhed in ꝓ lande, & becauſe of their Idols, wherwith they had defiled thē ſelues. I ſcatred thē alſo amōge the heathen, ſo ꝓ they were ſtrawed aboute in the landes. Accozdinge to their wayes & after theyr awne inuencyons, ſo dyd I puniſhe them.

E * Now, when they were gone vnto the Gen.iii.b. heathen, & come in amonge thē, they diſhoneured my holy name: ſo that it was ſayde of them. Are theſe the people of God, & muſt go out of their awne lād? Thē ſpared I my holy name, which ꝓ houſe of Iſrael had diſhonoured amonge the Gentiles, to whom they came. Therfoze tell ꝓ houſe of Iſrael: Thus ſayeth ꝓ Lozd God: I do not this foz youre ſakes (O houſe of Iſraell) but foz my holy names ſake, wherch ye diſhenoured amonge the heathen, when ye came to them. Therfoze, I wyll halowe my greate name agayne, which amonge the Gētiles is euell ſpoken of: foz ye your ſelues haue diſhonoured it amonge them. And the Gentiles ſhal knowe that I am the Lozd, whan I am honoured in you befoze their eyes, ſayeth the Lozde God.

As foz you, I will take you from amōge the heathē, and gather you together out of all countres, and bzynge you agayne into your awne lande. * Then will I poure cleare water vpon you, and ye ſhalbe clene: yee, from all youre vncleānneſſe and from all your Idols ſhall I cleanſe you. A new herte alſo will I geue you, and a new ſpzete will I put into you. As foz that ſtony herte, I will take it out of youre body, & geue you a fleſhly herte. I will geue my ſpzete amōge you * & cauſe you to walcke in my cōmaundemētes to kepe my lawes, and to fulfill them.

And ſo ye ſhall dwell in the land, that I gaue to your fozefathers, and ye ſhalbe my people, and I wilbe your God. I will helpe you out of all your vncleānes. I will call foz the cozne, and will increaſe it, & let you haue no honger. I will multeplie the frutes of the trees and the increaſe of ꝓ felde foz you, ſo ꝓ ye ſhall beare no moze repzoke of hōger, amonge the Heathen. Then ſhal ye remembze your awne wicked wayes, & your ymaginacions, which were not good: ſo that ye ſhal thinke ꝓ ye were wozthy to be deſtroyed: foz your ſynnes and abhominacyons.

But I wyll not do thys foz youre ſakes G (ſaieth the Lozd God) be ye ſure of it. Therfoze, O ye houſe of Iſraell, be aſhamed of your ſinnes. Moreouer, thus ſaieth ꝓ Lozd God: what tyme as I ſhall cleanſe you from all youre offences, then will I make the cyties to be occupied agayne, and will repaire ꝓ places that be decayed. The deſolate lande ſhal be builded agayne, which afoze time laye waſte in the ſight of all them that wēte by. Then ſhal it be ſayde: this waſte lande is become lyke a garden of pleaſure, and the voyde, deſolate & bzoken downe cityes are now ſtrong, & defenſed agayne. Then ꝓ reſidue of ꝓ heathen that lye rounde about you, ſhal knowe that I am ꝓ Lozde, which repaire that was bzoken downe, and plante agayne, ꝓ was made waſte. Euen I ꝓ Lozd haue ſpoken it, and will do it in dede.

Thus ſayeth the Lozde God: I wyll yet once be founde agayne of ꝓ houſe of Iſrael, and do this foz them: * I ſhal increaſe them * Ieremy.l.b as a flocke of mē. Lyke as the holy flocke & the flocke of Ieruſalem are in ꝓ hye ſolempne feaſtes: ſo ſhall alſo the wilde waſted cyties be filled with flockes of men: and they ſhall knowe that I am the Lozde.

¶ The.xxxvii. Chapter.

¶ He prophecieth the bringynge agayne of the people beynge in captiuite. He writeth the vnyon of the ten tzybes with the two.

THe hande of the Lozde came vpon me A and caried me out in the ſpzete of the Lozde, and let me downe in a playne felde, that laye ful of bones, and he led me rounde about by them: and beholde, the bones that laye vpon the felde, were very many, and marueloꝰ dzye alſo. Then ſayd he vnto me. Thou ſonne of man: thinkeſt thou theſe bones maye lyue agayne? I anſwered O Lozde God, thou knoweſt. And he ſayde vnto me. Prophecy thou vpon theſe bones, and ſpeake vnto them. Ye dzye bones, heare the wozde of ꝓ Lozd. Thus ſayeth the Lozde God vnto theſe bones: Beholde, I wyll put bzeth into you, that ye may lyue: I will geue yow ſynowes, and make fleſhe growe vpon you, and couer you ouer with ſkinne: and ſo geue you * bzeth, that ye may lyue, & * Gene.ii.b knowe, that I am the Lozde.

So I prophecied, as he had commaūded me. And as I was prophecyinge, there came a noyſe & a great mocyon, ſo ꝓ the bones rāne euery one to another. Now whē I had loked, beholde, they had ſynowes, ād fleſhe grewe vpon them: and aboue they were couered with ſkynne, but there was no bzeth in them. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou ſonne of man, prophecye thou towarde ꝓ wynde: prophecy: and ſpeake to ꝓ wynde. Thus sayeth the Lord God. Come (O thou ayre) from the foure wyndes, & ☞ blowe vpon these slayne that they may be restored to lyfe. So I prophecied, as he had commaũded me: then came the brethe into them, and they receaued lyfe, and stode vp vpon their fete, a marueilous greate sorte.

Moreouer, he sayde vnto me: Thou sonne of man, these bones are the whole house of Israell. Beholde, they saye: Oure bones dried vp, oure hope is gone, we are clene cut of. Therfore prophecie thou, and speake vnto them: thus saieth the Lord God. Beholde, I will open your graues (O my people) and take you out of your sepulcres, & bringe you into the lande of Israel agayne. So shall ye knowe that I am the Lorde, when I open your graues, and bringe you out of them. My spirite also will I put in you, and ye shall lyue: I will set you agayne in your awne lande, and ye shall knowe, that I am the Lord, which haue sayde it, and fulfilled it in dede.

The worde of the Lorde came vnto me, sayinge: thou sonne of man, take a stycke & wrote vpon it. Vnto Juda and to the chyldren of Israell his companions. Then take another sticke, and write vpon it: Vnto Joseph the stock of Ephraim, & to all the housholde of Israell his compamõs. And than, take both these together in thyne hande, so shall there be one stycke therof. Now yf the chyldren of thy people saye vnto the: wilt thou not shewe vs, what thou meanest by these: Then geue them this answere: thus sayeth the Lord God: beholde, * I will take the stock of Joseph, which is in the hande of Ephraim and of the tribes of Israell his fellowes, and will put them to the stock of Juda, and make them one stock, and they shall be one in my hande. And ỳ two sticches where vpõ thou writest, shalt thou haue in thyne hand, that they may se, and shalt saye vnto them.

* Ose.i.b.

Thus sayeth the Lord God: beholde, I will take awaye the childre of Israel from amonge the heathen, vnto whom they be gone, and will gather them together on euery syde, and bringe them agayne into theyr awne lande: yee, I will make one people of them in the lande, vpon the mountaynes of Israel, and they all shal haue but one kyng. They shall no more be two peoples frõ hence forth, neither be deuided into two kingdomes: they shal also defile thẽ selues nomore with their abhominacions, Idoles, & all their wycked doinges. I will helpe thẽ out of all their dwellinge places, wherin they haue synned: and will so clense them, that they shalbe my people, and I their God.

David my seruaunt shalbe their kyng, & they all shal haue one shepherde onely. They shall walcke in my lawes, & my commaundementes shall they both kepe and fulfyll. They shall dwell in the lande, that I gaue vnto Jacob my seruaunt, where as your fathers also haue dwelt. Yee, euen in the same lande shal they, their chyldren, & their childers chyldren dwell for euermore, & my seruaunt David shalbe their euerlastinge prince. Moreouer, I wil make ☞ a bõde of peace wt them, which shalbe vnto them an euerlastinge couenaunt. I will sette them also, & multiply them, my Sanctuary wil I set among them for euermore. * My dwellynge shalbe with them: yee, I will be their God, & they shal be my people. Thus the heathen also shal knowe, that I the Lord am the holy maker of Israell: when my Sanctuary shalbe amonge them for euermore. * Ezec.xliij.

The.xxxviii. Chapter.

The prophecieth that Gog and Magog shall come with an appointed hoste into the lande of promes. Their entent. He rehearseth ỳ the comming of Gog was before spoken of the prophetes. The destruccion of hym.

And the worde of the Lord came vnto me, sayinge. Thou sonne of man, turne thy face ☞ towarde Gog the lande of Magog which is ỳ chefe prince at Mesech and Tubal: prophecy agaynst hym, & saye. Thus sayeth the Lord God. * O Gog ỳ chefe prince of Mesech and Tubal: beholde, I will vpon the, & will turne the aboute and put a bytt in thy chawes: I will bringe the forth and all thine hoost, both horse and horsmen, which be all weapened of the best fassion: a great people, ỳ handle altogether speares, shildes, & swerdes: the Perses, Morians and with them the Libiãs, which all beare shildes and helmettes: Gomer and all his hoostes: the house of Thogorma out of the north quarters, and all his hoostes, yee, and moch people with the. * ezec.xxxix. apo.xx.

Therfore prepare ỳ, set thy selfe in araye with all thy people, that are come vnto the by heapes, and be thou their defence. After many dayes thou shalt be visited, and in ỳ latter yeares thou shalt come into the lande that hath bene destroyed with the swearde, & now is replenished agayne with diuerse people vpon ỳ mountaines of Israel, which haue longe lyen waste. Yee, they be brought out of the nacions, and dwell all safe. Thou shalt come vp like a stormy wether, to couer the lande, & as it were a darck cloude, thou with all thine hostes, and a greate multitude of people with the.

Moreouer, thus sayeth the Lord God: At the same tyme shal many thinges come into thy mynde, so that thou shalt ymagyn mischefe, and saye: I wyll vp to ponder playne lande, seinge they syt at ease, & dwell so safely (for

sely (for they dwell all without any walles D they haue neither barres nor dores) to spoyle the, to robbe the, to laye hãde vpon their so well habited wylderneles: against that people, ꝓ is gathered together from amõge
the heathen, which haue gotten catell and
good, and dwell in the middest of the lande.
Then shall Saba, and Dedan, and the mar
chãtes of Tharsis with all their worthies
saye vnto the: Art thou come to robbe? hast thou gathered thy people together, because thou wilt spoyle? to take syluer and golde?
to carry away catell and good, and to haue
a greate praye?

E Therfore, O thou sonne of man, ꝓ shalt prophecie, and saye vnto Gog. Thus saieth
the Lorde God. In ꝓ daye thou shalt knowe that my people of Israel dwelleth safe: and shalt come from thy place out of the northe
partes, thou & moch people with the which ryde vpon horses, wherof there is a greate multitude and an innumerable sorte. Yee, thou shalt come vpon my people of Israell,
as a cloude to couer the lande. Thys shall come to passe in ꝓ latter dayes: I will bringe
the vp into my lande, ꝓ the heathẽ maye knowe me, whẽ I get me honoure vpon the (O Gog) before their eyes.

F Thus saieth the Lorde God: Thou art
he, of whom I haue spoken afore tyme by my seruantes ꝓ prophetes of Israel, which prophecied in those dayes and yeares, that I shuld bringe the vpon them. At the same tyme, when Gog commeth vp into the land of Israel (saieth the Lord God) shal my in-dignacion go forth in my wrath. For in my gelousy and hote displeasure I haue decyded* that there shalbe a greate trouble i the lande of Israell at ꝓ tyme. The very fishes
in the see, the foules of the ayre, the beastes
of the felde, and all the men that are vpon
the earth, shall tremble for feare of me.

G The hilles also shalbe turned vp side dow
ne, the stayres of stone shal fall, and all wal les shal synche to the grounde. I will cal for a swearde vpon them in all my mountaines
saieth the Lorde God: so that euery mans swearde shall be vpon another. With pesty lence and bloude will I punishe him: for my rayne and hayle stones, fyre and brimstone will I cause to rayne vpon him and all his heape, yee, and vpon all that greate people that is with hym. Thus will I be magni-fyed, honoured, & knowne amonge the heathen: that they maye be sure, howe that I am the Lorde.

¶ The. xxxix. Chapter.

The.xxxix.

The sheweth the destruccyon of Gog and Magog. The graue of Gog and of his hoste. The prophecieth that Gog & his company shalbe deuoured of byrdes and beastes, wherfore ꝓ house of Israell is wasted. Their bringinge ageyne frõ captiuitie is promysed.

THerfore, O thou sonne of mã, prophe- I cie agaynst Gog, and speake. Thus saieth the Lorde God: Beholde* O *Ezech. xxxviii. c.
Gog: thou chefe prince at Mesech and Tu-bal, I wyll vpon the, and ☞ punyshe the ☞
with fire plages, & leade the from the north partes, and bring the vp to the mountaines of Israell. As for thy bowe, I will smyte it out of thy left hãde, and cast thyne arowes
out of thy ryght hãde. Thou with all thine heape, and all the people that is with the, must fall vpon the mountaynes of Israell. Then will I geue the vnto foules and wilde beastes of the felde, to be deuoured: there must thou lye vpon the felde: for euen I the Lord
haue spoken it, saieth the Lord God.

Into Magog, and among those that syt 26
so careles in the Iles: will I send a fyre, &
they shal knowe, that I am the Lord. I wil make also ꝓ name of my holines to be kno wne amõg my people of Israel: and I will not let my holy name be euel spoken of eny-
more: but the very heathen also shall knowe, that I am the Lord, the holy one of Israel. Beholde, it commeth, and shalbe fulfil led i dede, saieth the Lord God. This is the daye wherof I haue spokẽ. They that dwel in the cities of Israell, shall go forth and set fyre vpon the weapẽs, and burne them: shyl
des and speres, bowes and arowes, bylles &
clubbes: seuẽ yeares shal they be burnynge
therof, so that they shal eis bringe no sticke
frõ ꝓ felde, nether haue nede to hewe downe eny out of ꝓ wodde. For they shal haue wea pẽs ynowe to burne. They shal robbe those C that robbed them, & spoyle those that spoy-led them saieth the Lord God. At the same tyme wil I geue vnto God a place to be buried in Israel, euẽ the valley, where tho-
row men go from the east to the see warde.
Those ꝓ trauayle therby, shall stoppe ther noses for stenche. There shall Gog & all hys people be buried: and it shalbe called the val ley of the people of Gog. Seuen monethes longe shall the house of Israell be burynge
of thẽ that they maye clense the lande. Yee,
all the people of the lande shall burie them.
O, it shall be a glorious daye, when I gete me that honoure, saieth ꝓ Lord God. They shal ordeyne mẽ also to be deed buriers, euer
goynge thorow the lande, & appoynte them
certayne places to bury those in, which re-mayne vpon the felde, ꝓ the lande maye be clensed. From ende to ende shall they seke, & D that seuẽ monethes longe. Now those ꝓ go thorow ꝓ lande, where they se a mans bone,
they shalt set vp a tokẽ by it, tyll ꝓ deed buryers haue buried it also, in ꝓ valley of the people of Gog. And ꝓ name of the citie shal be called, hamonah (ꝓ is a multitude.) Thus shall they make the lande clene.

And thou sonne of man: thus saieth the Lorde

Lord God. Speake vnto all the foules and euery byrde, yee, and to all the wilde beastes
of the felde, heape you together and come,
gather you rounde aboute vpon my slaughter, that I haue slayne for you: eate a greate
* Apo.xix.d. slaughter vpon the mountaynes of Israell:
eate flesh and drincke bloude. Ye shall * eate
the flesh of the worthies, & drinke the blood of the princes of the lande: of the wethers,
of the lambes, of the goates, and of the oxen
all be all slayne at Basan. Eate the fat your belly full, and drincke bloude, till ye be dronken of the slaughter, which I haue slayne
vnto you. Fill you at my table with horses and stronge horsemen: with captaynes and men of warre, sayeth the Lord God.

K I will bringe my glory also amonge the Gentyles, that all the heathen maye se my iudgement, that I haue kepte, and my hand
which I haue layed vpō them: that the house of Israell maye knowe, how that I am the Lord their God from that daye forth. And the heathen shall knowe, that where as the house of Israell were led into captiuyte: it was for their wyckednes sake, because they offended me.

For the which cause I hyd my face from them, and delyuered them into the hādes of their enemies, that they might all be slaine
with the swearde. Accordige to their vncle-nesse & vnfaithfull dealinges, so haue I entreated them, and hyd my face from them.

G Therfore, thus sayeth the Lord God: Now will I bringe agayne the captiues of Jacob & haue mercy vpon the whole house of Israel, and be gelous for my holy names sake
All their confusion and offence that they haue done agaynst me shall be taken awaye: &
so safely shal they dwell in their lande, that no man shall make them afrayed. And whē
I haue brought them agayne from amōge
the people, when I haue gathered thē together out of their enemies landes, & am pray-
sed in them before many heathen: then shal
they knowe, that I am the Lord their God
which suffred thē to be led into captiuite amonge the heathen, but now haue I brought them agayne into their awne lāde, and not left one of them ponder.

After that, will I hyde my face nomore
* Ezec.xxxix.d from thē * but will poure out my spirete vpō
the house of Israell, sayeth the Lorde God.

¶ The.xl. Chapter.

¶ The tollowynge of the tytles and of the temple that was to come is shewed vnto the Prophete.

I N the xxv. yeare of oure captiuite, in
the begynnynge of the yeare, the .x.
daye of the moneth: that is the .xiiii.
yeare, after that the cyte was smyten dowe:
the same daye came the hand of the Lorde vpon me, and caried me forth: euen into the lande of Israel brought he me in the vi-
syons of God: & set me downe vpon a mar-uelous hye mountayne, wher vpō there was a buylding (as it had bene of a cyte) toward the north.

Thyther he caried me, and beholde, there was a mā, whose similitude was like brasse,
which had a threde of flax in his hande, & a meterodde also. He stode in the doze, and sayd vnto me: marcke well with thine eyes, herken vnto with thine eares, and fasten it in thine hert, whatsoeuer I shal shewe the, for
to that intent that they myght be shewed therfore art thou brought hyther. And whatsoeuer thou seyst, thou shalt certifye the house of Israell therof.

Beholde, there was a wall on the out syde 25
rounde aboute the house: the meterodde that he had in his hande, was sixe cubytes long & a spanne. So he measured the bredth of the buyldinge, which was a meterodde, and the heygth also a meterode. Thē came he vnto
the east doze, & wente vp the steares, & measured the postes of the doze, wherof euery one was a meterodde thicke. Euery chābre was a meterodde lōge & brode: betwene the chā-bers were fyue cubytes. The poste of the doze within the porche, was one meterodde. He measured also the porche of the vttermer doze, which conteyned a meterodde. Then measured he the entrye of the doze, that con
teyned eyght cubytes, & his pylers two cu-
bytes: and this entrye stode inwarde.

The chābers of the doze eastwarde, were
thre on euery syde: a lyke brode and longe.
The pylers also that stode of both the sydes C
were of one measure. After this, he measured the wydenesse of the doze, which was .x.
cubytes, & the heygth of the doze .xiii. cuby-
tes. The edge before the chambers was one cubyte brode vpon both the sydes, and the chambres six cubytes wyde of eyther syde.
He measured the doze from the rydge of one chambre to another, whose wydenesse was xx.v. cubytes, & one doze stode agaynst another. He made pilers also .lx. cubites hye, rounde about the courte doze. Before the inwarde parte vnto the fore entre of the vttermer doze, were L. cubytes. The chambers and their pylers within, rounde about vnto the doze, had syde wyndowes. So had the fore entries also, whose wyndowes wēre roun-de about within. And vpon the pylers there stode date trees.

Then brought he me into the fore courte
where as were chambers & paued worckes,
made in the fore courte rounde aboute. xxx.
chambres vpō one paued worcke. Now the paued worke was a longe beside the dozes & that was the lower paued worke. After this he measured the bredth frō the lower doze,
vnto the vttermer courte of the outside,
which had an. C. cubytes vpō the east & the D north

nozth parte. And the doze in the vttermoste court towarde the nozth, measured he after the lēgth and bzedth: hys thze chambzes also on ether syde with his pillers and fozetreyes: which had euen the measure of the first doze. His heygth was .l. cubytes, the bzedth .xxv. cubites, hys wyndowes & pozches with hys date trees, had euen lyke measure as the doze towarde the east: there were .viij. steppes to go vp vpon, and their pozche before them. Nowe the doze of the ynnermer court stode streyght ouer agaynst the doze, þ was towarde the nozthest. Frō one doze to another he measured .C. cubytes.

D After that, he bzought me to þ southsyde, where there stode a doze towarde the south: whose pillers and pozches he measured, these had the fyrst measure, and with their pozches they had windowes rounde about, like the fyrst wyndowes. The heygth was .l. cubites, the bzedth .xxv. with steppes to go vp vpon: hys pozche stode before with hys pyllers and date trees on ether side. And the doze of the ynnermer courte stode towarde the south, and he measured from one doze to another an .C. cubites. So he bzought me into the ynnermer court, thozowe the doze of the southsyde, which he measured: and it had the measure afozsayde. In lyke maner, hys chābzes, pyllers and fozentreys, had eue the foresayde measure also. And he had with hys pozches roūde about windowes of fifty cubites heygth, and .xxv. cubytes bzoade. The pozches roūd about were .xxv. cubites lōge, and .v. cubites bzoad: and his pozche reached vnto the vttermost court, vpon his pyllers, there were date trees, and eyght steppes to go vp vpon.

E He bzought me also into the ynnost court vpō the east syde, and measured the doze, accozding to the measure afozsayd. His chambers, pyllers and pozches had euen the same measure, as the fyrst had: and with hys pozches, he had wyndowes rounde about. The heygth was .l. cubytes, the bzedth .xxv. cubites: hys pozche reached vnto the vttermost court: his pillers also had date trees on ether syde, & .viij. steppes to go vp vpon. And he bzought me to the nozth doze & measured it: which also had þ fozsayde measure. His chābzes, pillers & pozches had windowes roūde about: whose heygth was .l. cubites, and the bzedth .xxv. Hys pyllers stode towarde the vtmost court, and vpō them both were date trees, and .viij. steppes to go vp vpon. Ther stode a chambze also, whose intraunce was at the doze pyllers, and there the burntofferynges were washed.

F In the doze pozche, there stode on eyther syde two tables foz the slaughtinge: to slepe the bzentofferinges, synofferynges and trespaceofferinges therupō. And on the outside as men go fozth to the nozth doze, ther stode two tables. Foure tables stode on ether side of the doze, that is .viij. tables: wherupon they slaughted. Foure tables were of hewē stone foz the burntofferinges, of a cubite and a halfe longe and bzode, and one cubite hye: wherupon were layed the vessels and ornamentes, which were vsed to the burnt and slayne offeringes: whā they were slaughted. And within, there were hokes foure fingers bzode, fastened rounde about, to hange flesh vpon, and vpon the tables was layed þ offryng flesh. On the out syde of the innermer doze were the syngers chambers in the inwarde court besyde the nozth doze oueragaynst the south. There stode one also, besyde the east doze nozthwarde.

And he sayde vnto me: This chambze on G the south syde belongeth to the prestes, that kepe the habytatyon: and this towarde the nozth, * is the prestes that wayte vpon the aulter: which be the sonnes of † Sadoch, that do seruice before the Lozde in stede of the chyldren of Leui. So he measured the foze court, which had in lēgth an .C. cubites, and asmoch in bzedth by the foure cozners. Now the aulter stode before the house. And he bzought me to the foze entrye of the house, and measured the walles by the entry doze: which were .v. cubites longe on eyther syde. The thyckues also of the doze on eyther syde was thze cubites. The length of the pozche was xx. cubites, the bzedth .xi. cubites, and vpon steppes went men vp to it: by the walles also were pyllers on eyther syde one.

* i. Pa. xxv. g
† iii. Reg. 6. f

¶ The .xlj. Chapter.

¶ The disposytion and deuyce of buyldyng against the temple, & of the other thinges therto belōgyng.

A Fter this, he bzought me to the A tēple, and measured the postes, which were of both sydes syxe cubites thicke, accozdyng to the widenes of the tabernacle. The bzedth of þ doze was .x. cubites, & the walles of the dore on eyther syde .v. cubites. He measured the length therof, which cōteyned xl. cubites, & the bzedth .xx. Then went he in & measured the doze postes: which were two cubites thicke: but the doze it selfe was syxe cubites, and the bzedth of the doze was .vij. cubites. He measured the length and bzedth therof, which were euery one .xx. cubites, before the temple.

And he sayde vnto me: this is the holiest of all. He measured also the wall of the house, which was .vi. cubites. The chābzes that stode roūde about the house, were euery one iiij. cubites wyde: and one stode harde vpon another, wherof ther were xxxiij. ther stode postes beneth by the walles roūde about the house, to beare thē vp: but in the wall of the house, they were not fastened. The syde chambres were, & hyer & wyder, & had steppes thorowe them rounde about the house.

Thus was it wyder about. & frō the lowest
B men myght go to the hyest by & mydd chābres. I sawe also & the house was very hye rounde aboute. The foundatyon of the syde chābres was a meterodde, & is. vi. cubites broade. The thicknes of the syde wall without, contrined .v. cubites, and so dyd the out wall of the chambres in the house.

Betwene the chambres was the wydenes .xx. cubites rounde about the house. The chambre dores stode ouer agaynst the out wall, the one dore was toward & nozth, the other towarde the south: and the thyckenesse of the out wall was .v. cubites rounde about Nowe the buylding that was separated towarde the west, was .lxx. cubites wyde: the wall of the buylding was .v. cubytes thicke rounde about, and the length foure score cubites & ten. So he measured the house which was an .C. cubytes longe, and the separated buylding with the wall were an .C. cubytes longe also. The wydenes before the house, and of it that was separated towarde the east, was an .C. cubytes.

C And he measured the length of the buylding before and behynde with the chambres vpon both the sydes: and it contryned an .C. cubytes. The ynnermer temple, the porch of the fore court, the syde postes, these thre had syde wyndowes and pyllers rounde about ouer agaynst the postes, frō the grounde vp to the wyndowes. The wyndowes thē selues were syled ouer with bordes: and thus was it aboue & dore vnto the ynmost house: and without also. Yee, the whole wall on euery syde both within and without was sy-
D led ouer with great bordes. There were cherubins and date trees made also, so that one date tree stode euer betwixte to cherubyns. One cherub had two faces, the face of a mā lokyng a syde toward the date tree, & a lions face on the other syde. Thus was it made rounde about in all the house. Yee, the cherubyns and date trees were made from the grounde vp abone the dore, and so stode they also vpon the wall of the temple.

The bypostes of the temple were fouresquared, and the fashyon of the sanctuarye was * eue as it appeared vnto me afore in & visiō. + The table was of wodde .iij. cubites hye and .ij. cubytes longe: hys corners, the length & the walles were of wodde. And he sayde vnto me: Thys is the table, that shall stande before the Lorde. The temple and the holyest of all had eyther of them two dores: and euery dore had .ij. lytle wyckettes which were folde in one vpō another, on euery syde two. And vpon the dores of the temple, ther were made cherubins and date trees, like as vpon the walles: and a greate thycke balke of wodde was before on the out syde of the porche. Vpō both the sydes of the walles of the porch, there were made depe wyndowes and date trees, hauyng beames and balkes, lyke as the house had.

* Exe.i.i.
+ Exo.xxv. c.

The .xlij. Chapter.

Of the chambres of the temple for the prestes, and the holy thynges.

Then caryed he me out into & fore court towarde the nozth, & bro- A ught me into the chambre & stode ouer agaynst the backbuyldinge nozth ward, which had the legth of an .C. cubytes: whose dore turned toward the nozth. The wydenes conteyned .l. cubytes: ouer agaynst the .xx. cubytes of the ynnermer court, and agaynst the paued wozke that was in the court, besyde all these thre, ther stode pillers, one ouer agaynst another: And before thys chambre there was a walkyng place of .x. cubites wyde, and within was a waye of one cubite wyde ād their dores towarde the nozth. Thus the hyest chābres were alwaye narower then the lowest and myddelmost of the buyldynge: for they bare chambre vpon chambre, and stode thre together one vpon another, not hauyng pillers lyke the fore court: therfore were they smaller then those beneth and in the middest to reken from the grounde vpwarde.

The wall without that stode by the chā- B
bres towarde the vtmost court vpō the fore syde of the chambres, was .l. cubytes longe: for the length of the vtmost chambres in the fore court was .l. cubytes also: but the legth therof before the temple was an .C. cubytes. These chambres had vnder them an intraūce of the east syde, wherby a man myght go in to them out of the fore court, thorowe the thicke wall of the fore court towarde & east, ryght ouer agaynst the separated buylding. Before the same buyldyng vpon thys syde, there were chambres also which had a waye vnto them, lyke as the chambre on the nozth syde of the same length and wydenesse.

Their intraunce, fashyō and dores were C
also of the same maner. Yee, euen lyke as the other chambre dores were: so were those also of the south syde. And before the waye towarde the syngers steppes on the east syde, there stode a dore to go in at. Then sayde he vnto me: The chābers towarde the nozth & the south which stāde before the backe buyldynge: those be holy habytatyons, wherein the prestes that do seruyce before the Lorde, must eate & most holy offeringes: and there must they laye & most holy offeringes, meat offerynges, synne offerynges, and trespace offerynges: for it is an holy place. When the prestes come therin, they shall not go out into the fore courte: but (seynge they be holy) they shall leaue the clothes of their ministration,

cyon, and put on other garmētes, when they haue any thyng to do with the people.

D Nowe whē he had measured all the vnnermer house, he brought me forth thorowe the east porte, and measured the same rounde about. He measured the east syde with ỹ metrode, which rounde about conteyned .v.C. meterodes: And the north syde measured he which conteyned rounde about euē so moch. The other two sydes also towarde the south and the west, which he measured, conteyned ether of them .v.C. meterodes. So he measured all the foure sydes, where there went a wall rounde aboute .v.C. meterodes lōge, and as broade also which separated the holy from the vnholy.

¶ The.xliij.Chapter.

¶ He seeth the glory of God goyng into the temple, from whence it had before departed. He mencioneth the ydolatry of the children of Israel, for which they were consumed and brought to naught. He is commanded to call them agayne to repentaunce.

A SO he brought me to the dore ỹ turneth toward the east. Behold, then came the glory of the God of Israel frō out of ỹ east, whose voyce was lyke a great noyse of waters, and the earth was lyghtened with his glory. his syght to loke vpon was * lyke the fyrst, that I sawe when I went in, what tyme as ỹ cytie should haue bene destroyed: * and like the vysyon ỹ I sawe by the water of Cobar. Then fell I vpō my face: but the glory of the Lord came into the house, thorowe the east dore. So a wynde toke me vp, and brought me into the vnnermer court: and beholde, the house was full of the glory of the Lorde.

* Eze.i.a.
* Eze.i.a and.xliij.b

B I hearde one speaking vnto me out of the house: and there stode one by me, that sayde vnto me: O thou sonne of man, * this rowme is my seate, & the place of my fotsteppes, where as I wyll dwell amonge the children of Israel for euermore: so that the house of Israel shall nomore defyle my holy name: nether they, ner their kynges thorowe theyr whordome, thorowe their hye places, & thorowe the dede bodyes of their kinges: which haue builded their thresholdes i maner hard vpō my thresholdes, & their postes almost at my postes: & a wall betwyxte me and them. Thus haue they defyled my holy name wt their abhominations, ỹ they haue cōmytted. Wherfore, I haue destroyed them in my wrath. But now they shal put awaye their whordome & the dede bodies of their kinges out of my syght, ỹ I maye dwell among thē for euermore. * Therfore, O ỹ sonne of mā, shewe thou the housholde of Israel a tēple, that they maye be ashamed of their wickednes, & measure thē selues an exāple therat.

* Eze.vi.a. and.xvi.a. Ose.iii.a

* Ezech.ii.a.

And when they be ashamed of all theyr worckes, then shewe them the fourme & fashyon of the temple, the comming in, the gonge out, all the maner and descripcyō therof: yee, all the vses & ordinaunces of it, that they maye kepe and fulfyll all the fashyons and customes therof.

D This is the descripciō of ỹ house. Above, vpon the mount roūde about all the corners, it shalbe ỹ holyest of all. Beholde, that is the descripcyon and fashyon of the house. Thys is the measure of the aultar, after the true cubite: which is a spāne longer then another cubyte, his botome in the middest was a cubite longe and wyde, and the ledge that wēt rounde about it, was a spanne broade. This is the heyght of the aulter. From the ground to the lower steppes, the length is two cubites: and the bredth one cubite: and from the lower steppes to the hygher, are foure cubytes, and the bredth but one cubite.

* The aultar was .iiij. cubytes hye, and from the aultar vpwarde stode .iiij. hornes, and it was .vij. cubytes lōge and .vij. cubites broade, vpon the foure corners: the couering of the aultar was .viij. cubites lōge & broad vpon the foure corners, and the ledge that went rounde about had halfe a cubite, and ỹ botome therof rounde about one cubite: hys steppes stode towarde the east. And he sayd vnto me: Thou sonne of man, thus sayth the Lorde God: these are the ordynaunces and lawes of the aultar: in the daye, whan it is made to offer burntofferinges, and to sprenckle bloude therupon. To the prestes, to the leuites that be of the sede of * Sadoch, and trade before me to do me seruyce, sayeth the Lorde God. Unto these geue thou a yonge bullocke for a synoffering: & take the bloude of hym, and sprenckle his foure hornes with all: and the foure corners of the aultar couering, with the ledge that goeth roūde about, herwith shalt thou clense it, and reconcyle it. * Thou shalte take the bullocke also of the synoffering, and burne him in a seuerall place without the sanctuary.

* ¶xo.xxix.a
* Eze.xliij.c and.xlvij.b
* Leui.xvi.c

The next daye, take a goatbucke, wout blemyth for a synofferynge, to reconcyle the aultar withall, lyke as it was reconcyled wt the bullocke. Nowe when thou hast made it cleane, then offre a yonge bullocke * without blemyth, and a rāme out of the flocke without blemyth also. Offer thē before the Lord: and let ỹ preste cast * salt therupō, and geue them so vnto the Lord for a burntoffryng. Seuen dayes shalt thou bringe euery daye a goatbucke. A yonge bullocke and a ramme of the flocke, both without blemyth, shall they offre. Seuen dayes shall they reconcyle and clense the aultar, and offre vpon it. Whē these dayes are expyred, then vpon the eight daye and so forth, the prestes shall offre their burntofferinges and healthofferinges vpon the aultar: so will I be mercyfull vnto you, sayth the Lorde God.

* Leui.ii.b.

¶ The.xliij. Chapter.

¶ He sheweth what dore of the temple is shut. He is commaunded to byd̄are the people with their offences. The vncircumcised in hert and in the flesshe. Who are to be admitted to the seruice of the temple: & who to be refused. He sheweth what persons he wold haue admitted into the holy place, and also their offyce.

AFter this, he brought me againe to the outwarde dore of the sanctuary on the east syde, and that was shut. Thē sayd ỹ Lord vnto me: This dore shalbe styll shut: & not opened for eny mā to go thorowe it: but only for ỹ Lorde God of Israel: yee, he shall go thorowe it, & is shall it be shut styll. The prince hym selfe shall come thorowe it, that he maye eate bread before the Lorde. At the porche shall he come in, and there shall he go out againe. Then brought he me to the dore vpon the northside of the house. And as I loked aboute me, beholde, * the glory of the Lord fylled the house: and I fell downe vpō my face. So the Lorde spake vnto me: O ỹ sonne of man, fasten thys to thyne herte: beholde, and take diligent hede to all ỹ I wyll saye vnto the, concernyng all the ordynaunces of the Lord, & all his lawes: pondre well with thyne hert the cōmynge in of the house and the goyng forth of the sanctuary: & tell that obstynate housholde of Israell. Thus sayth the Lorde God: O house of Israel, ye haue nowe don ynough withall your abhominacyons, seyng that ye haue brought into my sanctuary straungers, hauyng vncircumcysed hertes and flesshe, where thorowe my sanctuary is defyled, when ye offre me bread, fatt, and blonde.

Thus with all youre abhominations ye haue broken my couenaūt, and not kepte the holy ordynaunces of my sanctuary: but sett kepers of my sanctuary, euen after youre awne mynde. Therfore thus sayth the Lorde God: Of all the straūgers that dwell amōg the chyldren of Israel, no straunger (whose hert and flesshe is not circumcised) shall come within my sanctuary. No, nor the leuites that ben gone backe fro me: and haue discaued the people of Israel with all errours, goyng after their ydoles: therfore shall they beare their awne wyckednes. Shulde they be set and ordeined to ministre vnder the dores of the house of my sanctuary? And to do seruyce in the house: to slaye burntofferynges and sacrifyces for the people: to stande before thē, and to serue them, seynge the seruyce that they do them, is before their ydoles, and cause the house of Israel to stomble thorowe their wickednes? For the which cause I haue pluckte oute myne hande ouer them, sayth the Lorde, so ỹ nowe they must beare their awne iniquitie, and not to come nye me, to serue me with their priesthode, in my sanctuary, and moost holyest of all: that they maye beare their awne shame and abhominatiōs, which they haue done. Shulde I vse them to be porters of the house, and to all the seruyce that is done therin? But the preistes, the leuites, the sonne of * Sadoch, that kepte the holy ordynaunces of my sanctuary, whē the chyldre of Israel were gone fro me, shall come to me, to do me seruyce, to stande before me, and to offre me the fat and the blonde, sayth the Lorde God.

They shall go into my sanctuary, and tread before my table: to do me seruyce, and to wayte vpon myne ordynaunces. Nowe when they go in at ỹ dores of the vtmermer court: they shall put on lynen clothes, so that no wollyne come vpon them whyle they do seruice vnder the dores of ỹ innermer court, and within. They shall haue fayre linen bonettes vpon their heades, and lynen breches vpō their loynes, which in their labour they shall not put about them. And whē they go forth to the people into the outwarde court, they shall put of the clothes wherin they haue ministred, and laye them in the habitatiō of the sanctuary, and put on other apparell, lest they vnhalowe the people with their clothes.

* They shall not shaue their heades, nor nourysh the bushe of their heare, but rounde their heades onely. * All the preistes that go into the inmost court, shall drynche no wyne. † They shall mary no wedowe, nether one that is put frō her husbāde: but a mayde of the seede of the house of Israel, or a wedowe that hath had a preste before.

* They shall shewe my people the differēce betwene the holy and vnholy, betwixt the cleane and vncleane. If any discord arise, they shall discerne it: & geue sentence after my iudgementes. ¶ My solempne feastes, my lawes and ordinaunces shall they kepe, and halowe my sabbathes. ☞ * They shall come at no dead persone to defyle them selues, except it be father or mother, sōne or daughter, brother or syster, that hath had yet no husbande, in soch maye they be defyled.

And when he is clensed, ther shalbe rekened vnto him. vij. dayes: and yf he go into ỹ sanctuary agayn to do seruice, he shall bring a synofferyng, sayth the Lorde God. * They shall haue an heritage: yee, I my selfe wyll be their heritage: & is shall ye geue thē no possessiō in Israel, for I am their possessyon. The meatofferynges, synofferyng and trespaceofferinge shall they eate, & ☞ euery dedicate thynge in Israel, shalbe theyrs. The fyrstlinges of all the fyrst frutes, and all freewyllofferinges shalbe the prestes.

Ye shall geue vnto the preste also all the fyrst frute of your first bozne, all I say, & all that is separated vnto God, all youre heue offeringes (I saye) shalbe the prestes, & also ỹ fyrstlinges of your dough, ỹ God maye prospere

* Ezo.xli.b. Leui.xxiii.a. ſpere the reſidue. * But no beed caryon ſhall the prieſt eate, ner ſoch as is deuoured of wilde beaſtes, foules or catell.

¶ The.xlv Chapter.

¶ Out of all the lāde of promes ar ther ſeparate.iiii. portions, of which the fyrſt is geue to the prieſtes and to the temple, the ſeconde to the leuites: the thyrde to the citye: the foureth to the prynce. An exhortatyon to the heades of Iſrael. Of iuſt weyghtes and meaſures. Of fyrſt fruites. &c.

A * Exe.xlviii.b When ye deuyde the lāde by the lot, ye ſhall put alyde one * parte for the Lorde, to be holy from other landes: namely.xxv.M. meteroddes lōge, and.x.M. broade. This ſhalbe holy, as wyde as it is rounde about. Of thys parte there ſhall belonge vnto the ſanctuary v.C. meteroddes in all the foure cozners, that is cubites wyde rounde about to the ſuburbes And from this meaſure, namely of.xxv.M. meteroddes lōge, and.x.M. broade, thou ſhalt meaſure, wherin the ſanctuary and the holyeſt of all maye ſtande.

The reſydue of that holy grounde ſhalbe the prieſtes, which do ſeruyce in the ſanctuary of the Lorde, and goo in before the Lorde to ſerue hym, that they maye haue rowme to dwell in.

B As for the ſanctuary, it ſhall ſtande for it ſelfe: and to the leuites that ſerue in the houſe, there ſhalbe geuen.xx. habitatyons, of the xxv.M. legth and.x.M. breedth: ye ſhall geue alſo vnto the citye a poſſeſſion of.v.M. meteroddes brode, and.xxv.M. lōge, beſide the parte of the ſanctuary: that ſhalbe for the whole houſe of Iſrael. * Vpon both the ſydes of the ſanctuaryes parte, and by the cytie, there ſhalbe geuen vnto the prince, what ſoeuer lyeth ouer agaynſt the citye, as farre as reacheth weſtwarde and eaſtwarde: which ſhalbe as longe as one parte, from the weſt vnto the eaſt.

* Exe.xlviii.b

C This ſhalbe hys awne lande in Iſrael, that my princes be nomore chargeable vnto my people. And ſoch as remaynneth yet ouer in the lande, ſhalbe geuen to the houſe of Iſrael accozding to theyr tribes. Thus ſayth the Lord God: O ye princes, ye haue nowe oppreſſed and deſtroyed ynough: nowe leaue of, handle nowe accozding to the thinge that is equall and lawfull: and thruſt out my people nomore ſayth the Lorde God. * Ye ſhall haue a true weyght, a true ephah, and a true bath. The ephah and the bath ſhalbe a lyke. One bath ſhall conteyne the tenth parte of an homer, and ſo ſhall one ephah do: their meaſure ſhall be after the homer. * One ſycle maketh.xx. geras. Sothwentye ſycles, and.xxv and.xv. ſycles make a pounde. Thys is the heaue offerynge, that ye ſhall geue to be heaued: namely, the.xvj. parte of an ephah, out of an homer of wheate, and the.xvj. parte of an ephah, out of an homer of barly. The oyle ſhalbe meaſured with the bath: euen the tenth parte of one bath out of a coz.

* Leui.xxi.g Deu.xvi.c Exe.xl.b

D * Exo.xxx.b. Leui.xxvii.b. Numm.iii.g

Ten bathes make one homer: for one homer fylleth ten bathes. And one lambe from two hundred ſheepe out of the paſture of Iſrael: for a meatofferyng, burntofferyng, and healthofferyng, to reconcyle them, ſayth the Lorde God. All the people of the lande ſhall geue thys heaue offerynge with a fre wyll. Agayne, it ſhalbe the princes parte to offre burntofferynges, meateofferinges and drinckofferinges vnto the Lord, in the holy dayes, newe moones, ſabbathes, and in all the hye feaſtes of the houſe of Iſrael. The ſynoffering, meateofferyng, burntoffring and healthofferyng ſhall he geue to reconcyle the houſe of Iſrael. Thus ſayth the Lorde God: The fyrſt daye of the firſt moneth thou ſhalt take a yonge bullocke without blemyſh, and cleanſe the ſanctuarye. So the prieſte ſhall take of the bloude of the ſynofferyng, and ſprynckle it vnto the poſtes of the houſe, and vpon the foure cozners of the aulter, with the dozeposſtes of the vtmermer courte. And thus ſhalt thou do alſo the ſeuenth daye of the moneth * (for ſoch as haue ſynned of ignoraunce, or beynge diſceaued) to reconcyle the houſe wall. * Vpon the.xiiij. daye of the fyrſt moneth, ye ſhall kepe eaſter. Seuen dayes ſhall the feaſte contynue, wherin there ſhall no ſowre ner leuened breed be eaten.

E

F

* Numm.xv.c

* Exo.xii.a Leui.xxiii.a. Deu.xvi.a

G Vpon the ſame daye ſhall the prince geue for him ſelfe and all the people of the lande, a bullocke for a ſynofferyng. And in the feaſt of the ſeuen dayes he ſhall offre euery daye a bullocke and a ram, that are without blemyſh, for a burntoffering vnto the Lorde: and an hegoate daylye for a ſynoffering. For the meatofferynges he ſhall geue euer an ephah to a bullocke, an ephah to a ram, and an hyn of oyle to an ephah. Vpon the fyftenth daye of the ſeuenth moneth, he ſhall kepe the ſeuen dayes holy, one after another, euen as the other ſeuen dayes: with the ſynoffering, burntoffering, meatoffering, and with the oyle.

¶ The.xlvi. Chapter.

¶ The ſacrifices of the Sabboth and of the newe moones. Thorowe which dores they muſt go in, or come out of the temple. &c.

A THus ſaith the Lorde God: The doze of the innermer court towarde the eaſt ſhalbe ſhut the.vj. wozcking dayes: but in the ſabboth and in the daye of the newe moone, it ſhalbe opened. Then ſhall the prince come vnder the doze pozche, and ſtande ſtill without by the doze cheek. So the prieſtes ſhall offre vp his burnt and healthofferinges. And he ſhall wozſhyp at the dozepoſte, and go hys wayes forth agayne: but the doze ſhall nomore be ſhut tyll the euenynge.

On the ſame maner ſhall the people of the lande alſo do their wozſhyp before the Lorde without thys doze vpon the ſabbathes and newe moones. This is nowe the burntoffe-ryng, ꝑ the prince shall bryng vnto ꝑ Lorde

vpon the sabboth: syxe lambes without ble-mysh, & a ram without blemish, & an ephah for a meatoffering, with the ram. As for the lābes, he maye geue as many meatofferin-ges to them as he will: and an hyn of oyle to an ephah. In the daye of the newe moneth,
it shalbe a yonge bullocke without blemish,
syxe lābes and a ram also without blemish.
With the bullocke he shall geue an ephah, &
with the ram an ephah also for a meateoffering: but to the lambes, what he maye come
by. And euer an hyn of oyle to an ephah.

C When the prynce cōmeth, he shall go vn-
der the doze porche, and euen there departe forth agayne. But when the people of the lande come before the Lord in the hye solēpne feaste, as many as come in by the north doze to do worshyp, shall go out agayne at the south doze. And they that come in at the south doze, shall go forth agayne at ꝑ north doze. There shall none goo out at the doze,
where he came in, but shall go ryght forth
ouer on the other syde, and the prynce shall go in and out amonge them.

D Upon the solempne and hye feaste dayes
this shalbe the meatofferyng. An epha to a bullocke and an ephah to a ram, and to the lambes, as many as he will: but euer an hyn
of oyle to an ephah. Nowe when the prynce bryngeth a burntofferyng or an healthoffe-ringe with a free wyll vnto the Lorde, ꝑ east
doze shalbe opened vnto hym, that he maye
do with his burnt and healthofferinges, as he doth vpon the sabboth: and when he goth
forth, the doze shalbe shut after him agayne.
He shall dayly bryng vnto the Lorde a lābe
of a yeare olde without blemysh for a burnt offering: this shall he do euery morning.

E And for a meatoffering, he shall geue the syxte parte of an epha, and the thyrd part of an hyn of oyle, to myngle with the cakes, euery morning. Yee, this shalbe a dayly me-atofferinge vnto the Lorde: for an euerla-
sting ordinaunce: and thus shall the lambe
meatoffering and oyle be geuen euery morning, for a daylye burntofferinge.

Moreouer, thus sayeth the Lorde God:
If the prynce gyue a gyfte vnto any of hys
sonnes, then shall it be hys sonnes heritage perpetuall, that he maye possesse it. But ꝑ
he wyll geue one of hys seruauntes, some of hys heritage, it shalbe hys ☞ to the * fre yeare, and then to returne agayne vnto the F prince: for hys heritage shalbe hys sonnes
* iii.re.xvi.a ii.Mcgō.ii.b onely. * The prince also shall take none of the peoples enheritaunce, ner put them from their possession: but to his awne sonnes shall he geue his possession, that my people be not scatered abroade, but that euery man maye
haue hys awne.

And he brought me thorowe the intraūce
at the syde of the doze to the habitatyō of the sanctuary, that belongeth to the prestes and stode towarde the north, and beholde, there was a place vpon the west syde, then sayde G
he vnto me. This is the place where the prestes shall dyght the trespace and synofferyn-
ges, and bake meateofferinges, ꝑ they nede
not beare them into the outwarde court: and so to vnhalowe the people. So he brought me into the vtmost courte, rounde about all the foure corners. Beholde, in euery corner of the court, there was yet a lytle courte. Yee in all the foure corners of ꝑ court, there was made a lytle court of .xl. cubites lōge, & .xxx.
cubites broade: these foure lytle courtes were of one like measure: and there went a ridge wall rounde about them all foure, vnder
the which there were harthes made rounde about. Then sayde he vnto me: Thys is the kechin where the ministers of the house shall dyght the slayne offeringes of the people.

¶ The .xlvij. Chapter.

¶ The diuision of the waters that came out of the temple. The coastes of the lande of promes, and ꝑ diuision therof by tribes.

After this, he brought me agayne A
before the doze of the house:
and beholde, there gushed oute
waters from vnder the postes
of the house eastwarde, for the house stode towarde the east, that ran dow-ne vpon the ryght syde of the house, which lyeth to ꝑ aulter southwarde. Then caryed
he me out to the north doze, and brought me
forth there rounde about by the vtmost doze
that turneth eastwarde. * Beholde, there ca- * para.xlii.
me forth the water vpō the right syde. Now and.xliii.
whā the man that had the meteodde in hys
hande went vnto the east doze, he measured
a .M. cubites, and then he brought me tho-
rowe the water, euē to the ancles: so he measured yet a thousande, and brought me tho-
rowe the water agayne vnto the knees: yet measured he a thousande, and brought me thorowe the water vnto the loynes. After this he measured a thousande agayne, then B
was it soch a ryuer, that I myght not wade thorowe it. The water was so depe, that it was nedeful to haue swimmed, for it might not be waded ouer. And he sayde vnto me:
hast thou sene thys, O thou sonne of man?
and with that, he brought me to the ryuer
banck agayne.

Nowe when I came there, there stode many trees vpon either syde of the ryuer banck.
Then sayde he vnto me: Thys water that floweth oute towarde the east, and runneth downe into the playne felde, commeth into the see: and from the see runneth out: & ma-keth the waters whole. Yee, all that lyue & moue, whervnto thys ryuer commeth, shall recouer,

recouer. * And where thys water commeth, ther shalbe moch fysh. For all that † cōmeth to this water, shalbe lusty and whole. By this ryuer shall the fyshers stāde from Engaddy vnto En Eglaim, & there spread out their nettes: for there shalbe great heapes of fysh, lyke as in the mayne see. As for his claye and pyttes, they shall not be whole, for why? it shalbe occupyed for salt.

¶ By this ryuer vpon both the sides of the shore, there shall growe all maner of frutefull trees, whose leaues shall not fall of, neither shall their frute perysh: but euer be rype at theyr monethes: for theyr water runneth oute of theyr sanctuarye. Hys frute is good to eate, and his leafe profytable for medicyne. Thus sayeth the Lorde God: Let thys be the border, wherin ye shall deuyde the lande vnto the .xii. tribes of Israel, with the lyne. Parte it indyfferētly vnto one as vnto another: * of the which lande I swore vnto yō fathers, that it shulde fall to youre enherytaunce.

This is the border of the lande vpon the northsyde, from the mayne see, as men go to zabada: namely Hemath, Berotha, Sabarim: from the borders of Damascus and Hemath vnto Hazar Tichon, and † lieth vpon the coastes of Haueran. Thus the borders frō the see forth, shalbe Hazar Enan the border of Damascus, the north and the borders of Hemath, that is the north parte.

The east syde shall ye measure from Haueran and Damascus, from Galead and the lande of Israel by Jordane and so forth, frō the see coast, that lyeth eastewarde: and this is the east parte.

The southsyde is, from Thamar forth to the * waters of stryfe vnto Cades the ryuer to the mayne see: and that is the south parte.

The west parte: namely the greate see frō the borders therof, tyll a mā come vnto Hemath: thys is the west parte.

* Thys lande shall ye parte among you, accordyng to the trybes of Israel, and deuyde it to be an heritage for you, * and for the straungers that dwell amonge you, and beget children. For ye shall take them amonge the chyldren of Israel, lyke as though they were of youre awne housholde and contrey, and they shall haue heritage wt you amonge the chyldren of Israel.

Loke in what trybe the straunger dwelleth, in the same trybe shall ye geue hym hys heritage, sayth the Lorde God.

¶ The .xlviij. Chapter.

¶ The lottes of the .xij. trybes. The partes of the possession of the prestes and of the temple, of the leuites, of the citye, of the prince are rehearsed. The lottes of the other trybes. The gates of the citye.

THese are the names of the trybes that lye vpon the northsyde, by the waye of Hetlon, tyll thou comest vnto Hemath and Hazar Enam, the borders of Damascus towarde the north besyde Hemath: Dan shall haue hys porcyon from the easte quarter vnto the west. Upon the borders of Dan from the east syde vnto the west, shall Aser haue his porcion. Upon the borders of Aser from the east parte vnto the west shall Nephtaly haue his porcion.

Upon the borders of Nephtaly from the east quarter vnto the west, shall Manasses haue his porcyon. Upon the borders of Manasses from the east side vnto the west, shall Ephraim haue hys porcyon. Upon the borders of Ephraim from the east parte vnto ꝑ west, shall Ruben haue hys porcyon. Upon the borders of Ruben from the east quarter vnto the west, shall Juda haue his porcyon. Upon the borders of Juda frō the east part vnto the west, ye shall set asyde one porcion of .xxv. M. meteroddes longe and brode, like as an another porcyon frō the east syde vnto the west, wherin the sanctuary shall stande.

* As for the porcyō that ye shall separate, out for the Lorde, it shalbe .xxv. M. longe & .x. M. brode. Which separated holy porcion shall belonge vnto these: namely to the prestes, towarde the north .xxv. M. and towarde the west .x. M. brode, towarde the east .x. M. brode also, & towarde the south .xxv. M. longe, wherin ꝑ sanctuary of the Lord shall stāde. Yee, this same place shalbe the prestes, that are of the childzen of * Sadoch and haue kept my holy ordinaūce: which went not astraye in the erroure of the childzen of Israel, lyke as the leuites ar gone astraye: and thys separated pece that they haue of lande, shalbe the most holy, harde vpō the borders of the leuites. And next vnto ꝑ prestes shall the leuites haue .xxv. M. longe, and .x. M. broade. Thys shalbe on euery syde .xxv. M. longe, and .x. M. brode. Of this porcyō they shall sell nothing, ner make any permutatiō therof, lest the chefe of the lande fall vnto other, for it is halowed vnto the Lorde.

The other .v. M. after the bredth ꝑ lyeth by the .xxv. M. shalbe comē: it shall belonge to the citye and to the suburbes for habitations, and the citie shall stāde in the middest therof. Let this be the measure: towarde the north parte .v. C. & .iiij. M. towarde ꝑ south parte .v. C. & .iiij. M. towarde the east part, v. C. & .iiij. M. towarde the west parte .v. C. and .iiij. M.

The suburbes harde vpon the citye, shall haue towarde the north .l. and .ij. C. towarde the south .l. and .ij. C. towarde the east .l. and .ij. C. towarde the west also .l. and .ij. C. As for the residue of the length, that lyeth harde vpon the separated holy grounde: namely .x. M. towarde the east, and .x. M. towarde the west, nexte vnto the holy porcion: it and the increase therof shall serue for their meat:

that labourt in the cittye. They that labourt for the wealth of the cittye, shall mayntayne thys also, out of what tribe soeuer they be in Israel.

All that is separated of the .xxv. M. lõge and .xxv. M. brode on the foure partes, that shall ye put aside for the separated porcyon
C of the sanctuary, and for the possession of the cittye. The residue vpon both the sides of the sanctuary and possessyon of the cittye, shall belonge to the prynce, before the place of the .xxv. M. vnto the eastende, & before the place of the .xxv. M. westwarde vnto the borders of the cittye: this shalbe the prynces porcyon. Thys shalbe the holy place, and the house of the sanctuary shall stande in the myddest. Moreouer, from the leuytes and the cittyes possession, that lye in the middest of the princes parte: loke what remayneth betwixt the border of Juda and the border of Beniamin, it shalbe the prynces.

Nowe of the other tribes.

From the east parte vnto the west, shall Beniamin haue his porcyon. Vpon the borders of Beniamin from the eastside vnto the west, shall Simeon haue his porcion. Vpon the borders of Symeon from the east parte vnto the west, shall Issakar haue his porciõ.
D Vpon the borders of Issakar from the east syde vnto the west, shall zabulon haue hys porcion. Vpon the borders of zabulon from the east parte vnto the west, shall Gad haue his porcyon. Vpõ the borders of Gad southward, the coastes shall reach from Thamar forth vnto the waters of stryfe to Cades, & to the floude, euen vnto the mayne see.

34 Num. xxvii., Jos. xxii. xiiij

Thys is the lande with hys * porcyons, which ye shall dystribute vnto the tribes of Israel, sayeth the Lorde God. Thus wyde shall the cittye reach vpon the north parte. v. C. and .iiij. M. measures. The portes of the cittye, shall haue the names of the tribes of Israel. Thre portes of the northside: one Ruben, another Juda, the thyrde Leui.

Vpon the eastside. v. C. and .iiij. M. measures, with thre portes: the one Joseph, another Beniamin, the thyrde Dan. Vpon the southside. v. C. and .iiij. M. measures, with the thre portes: the one Symeon, another Issachar, the thyrde zabulon. And vpon the westside. v. C. and .iiij. measures, with thre portes also: the one Gad, another Aser, the thyrde Nephtali. Thus shall it haue .xviij. M. measures rounde about. And from that tyme forth, the name of the cittye shalbe, the Lorde is there.

C The ende of the Prophecye of Ezechiel.

C The booke of the prophete Daniel.

C The fyrst Chapter.

C The prophete sheweth the captyuite of Jehoakim kynge of Juda. Of the yonges that were in captyuite, the kynge commaundeth to chose which of them shulde be taught the learnynge and language of the Chaldees. They are alowed the kynges prouynge. Daniel abstayneth from the meate of the kynge of Babylon.

IN the thyrde yeare of the rayne of Jehoakim kinge of Juda, came Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon vnto Jerusalem, & besieged it: * and the Lorde delyuered Jehoakim the kynge of Juda into hys hande, with certayne ornamentes of the house of God, which he caryed awaye vnto the lande of Sinar, to the house of his God, and there he brought them into hys goddes treasury. And the kynge spake vnto Aspha-
A naz the chefe chamberlayne, that he shulde brynge hym certayne of the chyldren of Israel, that were come of the kynges sede and of prynces, yonge swynga[l]des without eny blemysh, but fayre and weltauored, instruct in all wysedome, connynge and vnderstandynge: which were able to stande in the kinges palace, to reade and to learne for to speake Chaldeyth.

* 4. kyn. xxiiij. 2. par. xxxvi.

Vnto these the kynge appoynted a cer-
B tayne porcion of his awne meate, and of the wyne, which he dranke hym selfe, so to norysh them thre yeare: that afterwarde they myght stande before the kynge. Amonge these nowe were certayne of the chyldren of Juda: namely Daniel, Ananias, Misael ād Azarias. Vnto these, the chefe chãberlayne gaue other names, and called Daniel, Baltasar: Ananias, Sidrach, Misael, Misach: and Asarias, Abednago. But Daniel was at a poynt with hym selfe, * that he wolde not be defyled thorowe the kynges meate, ner the wyne which he dronke. And this he
C desyred of the chefe chãberlayn, lest he shuld defyle hym selfe. Now God gaue Daniel fauoure and grace before the chefe chãberlayn that he sayde vnto him: I am afrayde of my Lorde the kyng, which hath appoynted you your meate and drincke: lest he spye your faces to be worse lykyng then the other swynga[l]des of your age, and so ye shall make me lose my head vnto the kynge.

* Gen. xlix. Tobiæ i. Judic. xiii.

Then Daniel answered Melassar, whom the chefe chamberlayne had set ouer Daniel, Ananias, Misael and Asarias, and sayd: O proue but ten dayes with thy seruãtes, and let vs haue potage to eate, & water to drincke: then loke vpon oure faces, & theyrs that eate of the kinges meate. And as thou seyst, so deale

so deale with thy seruauntes. So he consented to them in thys matter, & proued them .x. dayes. And after the ten dayes, they faces were better lykinge and fatter, then all the yonge sprygaldes, which dyd eate of ꝑ kynges meate.

D Thus Melassar toke awaye their meate and wyne, and gaue them potage therfore. God gaue nowe these foure sprygaldes cõnynge and lernyng in all scripture and wysdome: but vnto Daniel specially, he gaue vnderstandynge of all vysyons and dreames. Nowe when the tyme was expyred, that the kynge had appoynted to bryng in these yong sprygaldes vnto hym: the chefe chãberlayne brought thẽ before Nabuchodonosor, and the kinge communed with them. But amõg them all were founde none soche as Daniel, Ananias, Misael, and Asarias. Therfore stode they before the kinge which in all wysdome and matters of vnderstandinge, that he enquered of them, founde them ten tymes better, then all the sothsayers and charmers, ꝑ were in all his realme. And Daniel abode styll, vnto the fyrst yeare of kynge Cyrus.

¶The.ii.Chapter.

¶The dreame of Nabuchedonosor. He calleth vnto hym sothsayers, and requyreth of thẽ both the dreame and the interpretacyõ therof. They answere that they cannot shewe it, The kynge commaundeth all the wyse men of Babylon to be slayne. Daniel requyreth tyme to solute the questyon. The Lorde openeth the mystery vnto Daniel. Daniel is brought vnto the kynge, & sheweth hym hys dreame and the interpretacion therof. Of the euerlastynge kyngdome of Christ.

A IN the secõde yeare of the raygne of Nabuchodonosor, had Nabuchodonosor a dreame, * where thorow his spryte was vexed, and his slepe brake from hym. Then the kynge commaũded to call to gether all the sothsayers, charmers, witches and caldees, for to shewe the kynge hys dreame. So they came, and stode before the kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto thẽ: I haue dreamed a dreame, and my spryte was so troubled therwith, that I haue clene forgotten, what I dreamed. Upon this the Caldees answered the kynge ☞ in the Syrians speache: O kynge, God saue thy lyfe for euer. Shewe thy seruauntes the dreame, and we shal shewe the, what it meaneth. The kynge gaue the Caldees theyr answere and sayde: It is gone fro me. Yf ye wyll not make me vnderstande the dreame with the interpretacyon therof, ye shall dye, and youre houses shalbe pylled. But yf yee tell me the dreame and the meanynge therof, ye shall haue of me gyftes, rewardes and B greate honoure: onely, shewe me the dreame and the sygnifycacyon of it. They answered agayne, and sayde: the kynge must shewe his seruauntes the dreame, and so shall we declare what it meaneth. Then the kynge answered, saying: I perceaue of a trueth, that ye do but prolonge the tyme: for so moche as ye se, that the thynge is gone fro me. Therfore ye wyll not tell me the dreame, ye shall all haue one iudgement. But ye layne & dissemble wt layne wordes, which ye speake before me, to put of the tyme. Therfore tell me the dreame, & so shall I knowe, yf ye can shewe me what it meaneth. Upõ this, ꝑ Caldees gaue answere before the kynge, and sayde: there is no mã vpõ earth, that can tell the thinge, which the kynge speaketh of: yee, there is nether kynge, prince ner Lorde, that euer asked soche thynges at a sothsayer, charmer or Caldeer: for it is a very harde matter, ꝑ the kynge requyreth. Nether is there any, that cã certifye the kynge therof, excepte the goddes: whose dwellynge is not amonge the creatures.

For the which cause the kynge was wroth C with greate indignation, and commaũded to destroye all the wyse men at Babylon: & the proclamacyon went forth, and the wyse mẽ were slayne. They sought also to slaye Daniel with his companyons. Then Daniel enquered of Arioch the kinges steward, of the iudgement and sentẽce, that was gone forth alredy to kyll soch as were wyse at Babylõ. He answered and sayde vnto Arioch beynge then ꝑ kynges debyte. Why hath the kynge proclamed so cruell a sentence? So Arioch tolde Daniel the matter. Upon this, wente Daniel vp, and desyred the kynge, that he myght haue leysoure, to shewe the kynge the interpretacyon, & then came he home agayne & shewed the thynge vnto Ananias, Misael & Asarias his cõpanions: ꝑ they shulde beseche the God of heauẽ for grace in thys secret, that Daniel & hys felowes with other soche as were wyse in Babylõ, perished not. Thẽ was ꝑ mystery shewed vnto Daniel in a vysyon by nyght. And Daniel prayed the God of heauẽ. Daniel also cried loude, & sayde: O that the name of God myght be prayed for euer and euer, for wysdome and strength are hys awne: * he chaungeth the tymes and ages + he putteth downe kynges, he setteth vp kynges: * he geueth wysdome vnto ꝑ wyse, & vnderstandinge to those that vnderstande, he openeth the depe secretes: he knoweth the thinge that lyeth in darcknesse + for the lyght dwelleth with hym. I thãcke the, & prayse ꝑ (O thou God of my fathers) ꝑ thou hast lent me wysdome & strength, & hast shewed me ꝑ thynge, that we desyred of the, for thou hast opened the kynges matter vnto me.

Upon this went Daniel in vnto Arioch, whom the kynge had ordened to destroye the wyse at Babylõ: he went vnto him, & sayde: destroye not soche as are wyse in Babylon, but bryng me in vnto the kyng, and I shall shewe the kynge the interpretacyon. Then Arioch brought Daniel into the kynge in all the haste, and sayde vnto hym: I haue foũde

a man

* Iob. vii.b. Dani. iiii. a. viii.b.a.

D * Dani. vii.b + Luke. i.c Iob. xxviii.c Ierr. xxvii.a. Dani. iiii.c. * Iob.xxxii.b i. Timo. vi.c. ‡ i. Iohn.i.b.

a man amonge the prysoners of Juda, that shall shewe the kynge the interpretacyon.
The answered the kynge, & sayde vnto Daniel, whose name was Balthazar. Art thou he that cast shewe me the dreame, whiche I haue sene, & the interpretacyon therof? Daniel answered the kynge to his face, & sayde: As for thys secrete, for the which the kynge maketh inquisicyon: it is neyther the wyse, the sorcerer, the charmer nor the deuell conuicter,
* Matth.xi.c. that can certifye the kynge of it. * Only God in heauen can open secretes, and he it is, that sheweth the kynge Nabuchodonosor, what is for to come in the latter dayes.

C Thy dreame, & that which thou hast sene in thyne head vpon thy bed, is this: O kynge thou dydest cast in thy mynde, what shulde come hereafter. So he that is ꝑ opener of mysteries, telleth the, what is for to come. As for me, this secrete is not shewed me, for eny wysdome that I haue, more then eny other lyuinge: but onely ꝑ I myght shewe ꝑ kynge the interpretacyō, and that he myght knowe ꝑ thoughtes of his awne herte. Thou kynge sawest, and beholde: there stode before the a greate Image, whose fygure was marueylous greate, and hys vysage grymme. The Image heade was of fyne golde, hys brest & armes of syluer, his body and loynes were of copper, his legges were of yrō, hys fete were parte of yron, and parte of earth.

* Matth.xxi.c Luke.xx.b. * This thou sawest tyll, the tyme ꝑ, without eny handes, there was hewen of, a stone which smote the Image vpon the fete, that were both of yron and earth, and brake them to poulder: then was the yron, the earth, the copper, the syluer and golde broken altogether in peces: and became lyke the chaffe of corne, that the wynde bloweth awaye from the somer floores, that they can no more be founde. But the stone that smote the ymage, became a greate mountayne, which fulfylleth the whole earth: This is the dreame. And now we wyll we shewe before the kyng, what ℵ it meaneth.
* Dani.b.b. * O kynge, thou art a kynge of kynges: For the God of heauē hath geuē the a kyngdome, ryches, strength and maiesty: & hath delyuered the all thynges, that are amonge the childzen of men, the beastes of the felde, & the foules vnder the heauen, and geuen the dominion ouer thē all. Thou art that golden head. After ꝑ there shall aryse another kingdome, which shall be lesse then thyne. The thyrde kyngdome shalbe lyke copper, & haue dominacyon in all lādes. The fourth kyngdome shall be as stroge as yron. For lyke as yron breaketh and breaketh all thynges: Yee, euen as yron beateth euery thynge downe, so shall it beate downe and destroye.

Where as thou sawest the fete and toes, parte of earth and parte of yron: that is a deuyded kyngdome, whyche neuertheles shall haue some of the yron grounde mixte with it for so moche as thou hast sene the yron mixte with the claye.

The toes of the fete that were parte of yron and parte of claye, sygnifyeth: that it shalbe a kyngdome partely stronge and partely weake. And where as thou sawest yron mixte wyth claye: they shall myngle them selues wyth the sede of symple people, & yet not cōtynue one wyth another, lyke as yron wyll not be souldered wyth a potherde.

In the dayes of these kynges, shall ꝑ God G
* Dan.ii.c of heauen set vp an * euerlasting kyngdome whych shall not perish, & his kyngdome shal not be geuen ouer to another people: yee, the same shall breake & destroye all these kyngdomes, but it shall endure for euer.

And where as thou sawest, that wythout eny handes there was cut out of ꝑ * mounte * Dan.viii.
* a stone, which brake the yron, the copper, ꝑ earth, the syluer and golde in peces: by that hath the greate God shewed the kyng, what wyll come after this. This is a true dreame, and the interpretacyon of it is sure.

Then the kynge Nabuchodonosor * fell * Act.x.viii.
downe vpon his face, & bowed him selfe vnto Daniel, and commaunded that they shuld offre meat offrynges and swete odoures vnto hym. The kynge answered Daniel, and sayde: yee, of a trueth youre God is a God aboue all goddes, a Lorde aboue all kynges, and an opener of secretes: seynge thou canst discouer this mysterie. So the kynge made Daniel a greate man, and gaue hym many & greate gyftes.

* He made him ruler of all the countrees * Gen.xli.
of Babylon, and Lord of all the nobles, that were at Babylon. Nowe Daniel intreated ꝑ kynge for Sidrach, Misach and Abednago, so that he made them rulers ouer all the officers in the lande of Babylon: But Daniel hym selfe remayned styll in the courte by the kynge.

C The.iii. Chapter.

C The kynge setteth vp a golden Image, which he commaundeth to be worshypped. Sydrach, Misach, and Abednago are accused, because they disputed the kynges commaundment. They are brought vnto the kynge and commaunded to worshippe the Image. They refuse to do it and are put into a burnynge ouen. Vp beleue in God they are delyuered from the fyre. Nabuchodonosor confesseth the power of God after the syght of the myracle.

A Buchodonosor the kynge caused a A golden Image to be made, whych was.lx. cubytes hye, and syxe cubytes thyche. This he made to be set vp in the felde of Dura in the land of Babylon & sent oute to gather together the dukes, Lordes and nobles, the iudges and officers, the bayliffes and shrieues: with all the rulers of the lande: that they myght come to ꝑ dedicacyō of the Image which Nabuchodonosor noſor the kynge had ſet vp. So the dukes, Lordes and nobles, the iudges and offycers, debytes and threues with all ꝑ rulers of the lande gathered them together, and came vnto the dedycatynge of the Image, that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had ſet vp.

Nowe whē they ſtode before the Image, which Nabuchodonoſor ſet vp, ꝑ bedel cried out with all his might: O ye people, kynredes and tunges, to you be it ſayde: that whē ye heare the noyſe of the trompettes, which ſhalbe blowen, with the harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteries, Symphonies and all maner of Muſick: ye fall downe and worſhippe ꝑ golde Image, that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge hath ſet vp. Whoſo then falleth not downe & boweth him ſelfe, ſhall euen the ſame houre be caſt into an hote burnynge ouen. Therfore, when all the folcke herde the noyſe of ꝑ trompettes that were blowen, with the harpes, ſhawmes, Pſalteries, Symphonies ād all kynde of Melody, then all ꝑ people, kynredes and nacyons fell downe, and bowed them ſelues vnto the golde Image, that Nabuchodonoſor the kynge had ſet vp.

Now were there certayne men of the Caldees, that wente euen then and accuſed the Jewes, and ſayde vnto the kynge Nabuchodonoſor: O kyng, God ſaue thy lyfe for euer, Thou beynge kynge haſt geuen a commaūdement, that all men whē they heare ꝑ noyſe of the trompettes, harpes, ſhawmes, pſalteries, ſymphonies and all the other melodies: ſhall fall downe and bowe them ſelues towarde the golden Image: whoſo then fell not downe & worſhypped not that, he ſhulde be caſt into an hote burnynge ouen. Nowe are there certayne Jewes, * whom thou haſt ſet ouer the offyces of the lande of Babylon: namely, Sydrach: Miſach and Abednago. Theſe men (O kyng) regarde not thy commaūdment, yee, they wyll not ſerue thy goddes, ner bowe them ſelues to ꝑ golden Image, that thou haſt ſet vp.

Then Nabuchodonoſor in a cruell wrath and diſpleaſure, commaunded, that Sidrach Miſach and Abednago ſhulde be brought vnto hym. So theſe men were brought before ꝑ kynge. Then Nabuchodonoſor ſpake vnto them, & ſayde: what? O Sidrach Miſach and Abednago, wyll not ye ſerue my goddes: nor bowe youre ſelues to the golden Image, that I haue ſet vp. Well, be redy hereafter, whē ye heare the noyſe of the trompettes blowe with the harpes, ſhawmes, pſalteries, ſymphonyes and all the other melodyes: that ye fall downe, and worſhyppe the Image which I haue made. But yf ye worſhyppe it not, ye ſhall be caſt immediatly into an hote burnynge ouen. Let ſe, what God is there, that maye delyuer you oute of my handes? Sydrach, Miſach and Abednago anſwered the kynge, & ſayde: O Nabuchodonoſor, we ought not to cōſente vnto the in this matter, for why (oure God whō we ſerue, * is able to kepe vs frō the hote burnyng ouen (O kynge) and can ryght well delyuer vs out of thy handes. And though he wyll not, yet ſhalt thou knowe (O kyng) that we will not ſerue thy goddes, ner do reuerēce to ꝑ Image, which thou haſt ſet vp. Then was Nabuchodonoſor full of indignacyō, ſo that the countenaunce of his face chaunged vpon Sidrach, Miſach, and Abednago. Therfore he charged and commaunded, that the ouen ſhuld be made ſeuē tymes hotter, then it was wonte to be: & ſpake vnto the ſtrongeſt worthies that were in his hoſte, for to bynde Sidrach, Miſach and Abednago, and to caſt them into the hote burnynge ouen.

* Dani.ii.g.

* Exa.xxxvi.g.

So theſe men were bounde in their cotes hoſen, ſhues wyth their other garmentes, & caſt into the hote burnynge ouen: for the kynges commaundemēt was ſo ſtrayte, and the ouē was exceedynge hote. As for the mē that put in Sidrach, Miſach & Abednago, ꝑ flāme of the fyre deſtroyed them. And theſe thre mē Sidrach, Miſach & Abednago fell downe in the hote burnynge ouen, beynge faſte boūde. Thē Nabuchodonoſor ꝑ kyng marueled, and ſtode vp in all haſt: he ſpake vnto hys councell and ſayde: dyd not ye caſt theſe thre mē bounde into the fyre? They anſwered, and ſayde vnto the king: Yee, O kynge. He anſwered, and ſayde: lo, for all that, yet do I ſe foure mē going lowſe in the myddeſt of the fyer, and nothynge corrupte: and the fourth is lyke ꝑ ſōne of God to loke vpō.

Upon thys went Nabuchodonoſor vnto the mouth of the hote burning ouen: he ſpake alſo, and ſayde: O Sidrach, Miſach and Abednago, ye ſeruaūtes of the hye God, go forth, & come hyther. And ſo Sidrach, Miſach & Abednago went out of the fier. Then the dukes, lordes & nobles, & the kinges coūcell came together to ſe theſe mē, * vpō whō the fyer had no maner of power in their bodies. In ſomoch ꝑ the very here of their heed was not burnt, & their clothes vnchaūged: yee, there was no ſmell of fier felt vpō them.

* Exa.xiii.a

Then ſpake Nabuchodonoſor, and ſayde, Bleſſed be the God of Sidrach, Miſach and Abednago: * which hath ſent his angell, ād defended his ſeruauntes, ꝑ put their truſt in him: that haue altered the kinges cōmaundement: and leoperde their bodies ther vpō: rather then they wolde ſerue or worſhippe eny other God, excepte their awne God onely. Therfore I wyll and commaunde, that all people, kynredes and tunges, which ſpeake any blaſphemy agaynſt ꝑ God of Sydrach, Miſach, and Abednago, ſhall dye, and their houſes ſhalbe prꝑſed: Becauſe, * there is no God that maye ſaue, as thys. So the kynge promoted promoted Sidrach Misach, & Abdenego, in the lande of Babylon.

* Pſalm. xxxiiii.a. Danie. vi.b. Actes. xii.c

* Exa.xiii.b. Dane. xiii.b.

¶ The .iiii. Chapter.

¶ Nabuchodonosor dreameth agayne. Daniel interpreteth it, Nabuchodonosor is out of his realme, and eateth with beastes. He confesseth the power of God, and is restored into his kingdome.

A * Dani. vi. f.

NAbuchodonosor kynge vnto all people, kynredes and tunges that dwell vpon the whole earth: peace be multiplied amõg you. I thought it good to shewe the tokens and maruelous worcke, þ the hye God hath wrought vpon me. O, howe great are his tokens, and howe myghtie are his wonders! * his kyngdome is an euerlasting kyngdome, and his power lasteth for euer and euer.

* Psal. xlv. b Danie. vii. d. Luke. i. c

I Nabuchodonosor beyng at rest in myne house, and florishynge in my palace, sawe a dreame, which made me afrayed: & the thoughtes that I had vpõ my bedd, with the visyons of myne head, troubled me. * Then sent I out a commission, that all they which were of wysdome at Babilõ shulde be brought before me, to tell me the interpretacyõ of the dreame. So there came the sothsayers, charmers, Caldees and coniurers of deuels: to whom I tolde the dreame, but what it betokened, they coulde not shewe me: tyll at þ last, there came one Daniel (other wyse called Walthazar, accordyng to the name of my God) which hath the spirite of þ holy goddes in him, to whom I tolde the dreame, saying:

* Danie. ii. a.

B

O Walthazar, thou prince of Sothesayers: For so moche as I knowe, that thou hast the spirite of the holy Goddes and no secrete is hyd from the, tell me therfore, what the vysyon of my dreame (that I haue sene) maye signifie. I sawe a visyon in my heade vpon my bed: and beholde, there stode a tre vpon the grounde, which was very hye, greate and myghtye: the heygth reached vnto the heauen, and the bredth extended to all the endes of the earth: hys leaues were fayre, he had very moche frute, so that euery man had ynough to eate therin.

The beastes of the felde had shadowes vnder it, and the fowles of the ayre dwelt in the bowes therof. Shortly, all creatures fed of it. I sawe in my head a visyon vpõ my bed: & behold, a watcher & the holy one came downe frõ heauen, & cryed myghtely, saying. Hewe downe þ tree, breake of his braũches, shake of his leaues, and scatre his frute abrode: that all the beastes maye get them awaye frõ vnder him, and the fowles from his braunches. Neuertheles, leaue the grounde of hys rote styll in the earth, & bynde him vpon the playne felde, with cheynes of yron and stele. With the dewe of heauen shall he be wet, & he shall haue hys parte in the herbes of the grounde with other wylde beastes.

C That mans herte of his shall be take from hym, and a beastes herte shall be geuen hym, tyll seuen yeares be come and gone vpõ him.

This erande of the watcher, is a comaũdment grounded and sought out in the counsell of him, that is most holy: to learne mẽ for to vnderstande, that the hyest hath power ouer the kyngdomes of men, & geueth them, to whom it lyketh him, and bringeth the very out caste of men ouer them. Thys is the dreame, that I kyng Nabuchodonosor haue sene. Therfore O Walthazar, tell thou me what it signifyeth: for so moch as all þ wyse men of my kyngdome are not able to shewe me, what it meaneth. But thou canst do it, for the spirite of the holy Goddes is in the.

Then Daniel (whose name was Walthazar) helde hys peace by the space of an houre and hys thoughtes troubled hym. So the kynge spake, & sayde: O Walthazar, lett neither the dreame ner the interpretacyõ therof feare the. Walthazar answered, saing: O my Lorde, this dreame happẽ to thyne enemies, and the interpretacyon to thyne aduersaries. Is for the tree that thou sawest which was so great & myghtye, whose heygth reached vnto the heauen, and hys bredth into all the world: whose leaues were fayre, and þ frute moch: vnder the which the beastes of þ felde had theyr habitacyon and vpõ whose braũches the fowles of the ayre dyd syt.

D

Euen thou (O kynge) art the tre, greate and stronge. Thy greatnes increaceth, & reacheth vnto the heauẽ, so doth thy power to þ endes of the earth. But where as the kynge sawe a watcher euen an holy angell, þ came downe from heauẽ, and sayde: hewe downe the tree, and destroye it: yet leaue the grounde of the rote in the earth: and bynde hym vpon the playne felde with cheynes of yron & stele: he shall be wet with the dewe of heauẽ, and hys parte shall be with þ beastes of the felde, tyll seuẽ yeares be come and gone vpõ hym: Thys (O kynge) is the interpretacyon, yee, it is the very deuyce of hym, that is hyest of all, and it toucheth my Lorde the kynge.

E

Thou shalt be cast out frõ men, and thy dwellinge shalbe with the beastes of þ felde: with grasse shalt thou be fed lyke an oxe. Thou must be wet with þ dewe of the heauen: yee, seuen yeares shall come, & go vpon the, tyll thou knowe, * þ the hyest hath power vpon the kyngdomes of men, & geueth the to whom he lyst. Furthermore, where as it was sayde, that the rote of the tree shulde be left styll in the grounde: it betokeneth, þ thy kyngdome shal remayne whole vnto the, after thou hast lerned to knowe, that þ power commeth from heauen. Wherfore, O kynge, be cõtent with my cõsell, that thou mayest redeme thy synnes with almoyse * and thyne offences with mercy to pooze people: for thys shall be an helpynge of thyne errour.

* Dani. iv. Iere. xxvii.

* Eccli. xxix.

All these

All these thynges touche the, kynge Nabuchodonosor.

A So after .xii. monethes, the kyng walked vp and downe in the palace of the kingdome of Babylon, and sayde. Thys is the greate cyte of Babylon, which I my selfe (with my power and strength) haue made a kynges courte, for the honour of my magestye. While these wordes were yet in ỹ kynges mouth there fell a voyce from heauen, sayinge: O kynge Nabuchodonosor, to the be it spoke: Thy kyngdome shall departe from the, thou shalt be cast out of mẽs company: thy dwellynge shalbe with the beastes of ỹ felde, so ỹ thou shalt eate grasse lyke as an oxe, tyll seuẽ yeares become and gone ouer the. euen vntyll thou knowest, that the hyest hath power vpon the kyngdomes of men, & that he may geue them, vnto whom it pleaseth him. The very same houre was thys matter fulfylled vpon Nabuchodonosor: so ỹ he was cast out of mens company, and dyd eate grasse lyke an oxe. hys body was wet with the dewe of heauen, tyll hys heares were as great as Aegles fethers, and hys nayles lyke byrdes clawes.

B When thys tyme was past, I Nabuchodonosor lyfte vp myne eyes vnto heauẽ, and myne vnderstandinge was restored vnto me agayne. Then gaue I thãckes vnto the hyghest. I magnifyed and praysed him that lyueth for euermore, * whose power endureth alwaye, and hys kyngdome from one generacyon to another: in comparyson of whom all they that dwell vpon the earth, are to be reputed as nothynge.

* Dani. iii. f.

* Pla. cxxxv. i.

* He handleth accordyng to his will, amõg the powers of heauen & amonge the inhabitours of the earth: and there is none ỹ maye resyste his hande, or saye: what doest thou?

* Iob. xxiii. d.

* At ỹ same tyme was myne vnderstãdinge geuen me agayne, and I was restored to the honoure of my kingdome, to my dignite, and to myne awne shape agayne. My great estates and Princes sought vnto me, and I was set in my kyngdome agayne, so that I had yet greater worshyppe.

Then dyd I Nabuchodonosor, loue, magnifye and prayse the kynge of heauẽ: for all his workes are true, and hys wayes ryght. As for those that go on proudly, he is able to bringe them downe.

The. v. Chapter.

Balthazar kynge of Babylon, abusynge the vessels of the temple, seeth an hande wrytynge in the wall. The sothesayers called of the kynge, cannot expõde the wrytynge. Daniel is called, which readeth it, and interpreteth it also. Balthazar the kynge slayne, Darius succedeth in hys rowme.

A KYnge Balthazar made a great bãket to his thousand Lordes: with all these thousande he made great chere, and when he was dronken with wyne commaunded to bring hym the golden and syluer vessels * which hys father Nabuchodonosor had taken oute of the temple at Ierusalem: that the kynge & his Lordes with his quene and concubynes myght drincke therout.

* i. Pa. xxxvi. c

So they brought the golden vessell, that was taken oute of the temple of the Lordes house at Ierusalem. Then the kynge and his Lordes with his quene and concubines dronke out of them. They dronke wyne, and praysed theyr Idoles of golde, syluer, copper yron, wodde and stone.

In the very same houre there appeared B fyngers, as it had bene of a mans hande wrytynge, ryght ouer agaynst the candelstycke vpon the playne wall in the kynges palace: & the kynge sawe the palme of the hande that wrote. * Then chaunged the kynge his coũtenaũce, and his thoughtes troubled hym, so that the ioyntes of his body shoke, and hys knees smote one agaynst ỹ other. * wherfore the kinge cried myghtely, that they shulde bringe hym the charmers. Caldees and coniurers of deuels. The kynge spake also to the wyse men of Babylon, and sayde: Who so can rede this writing, & shewe me the playne meaning therof: shalbe clothed with purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute his necke, and rule the thyrde part of my kyngdome.

* Ierem. l. a.

* Dani. ii. a.

Upon this, came all the kinges wyse mẽ: but they coulde nether reade ỹ writynge, nor shewe the kinge what it signifyed. Thẽ was the kynge sore afrayed, in so moch, ỹ hys coloure chaũged, and his Lordes were sore vexed. So by reason of this matter, that had C happened to the kynge & his Lordes, ỹ quene went vp her selfe into the bancket house, and spake vnto the kinge, sayinge: O kyng, God saue thy lyfe for euer. Let not the thoughtes trouble the, and let not thy countenaunce be chaunged. For why? there is a man in thy kyngdome, that hath the spyrite of the holy goddes within him, * as it was sene in thy fathers dayes. He hath vnderstandynge and wysdome lyke ỹ goddes. Ye the kynge Nabuchodonosor thy father made this man chefe of the sothsayers, charmers, Caldees ãd readers of destines: because that soche an aboundaunt spyrite, knowledge & wysdome (to expounde dreames, to open secretes, and to declare harde dowtes) was founde in him: yee. euen in Daniel, whom the kyng named Balthasar. Let this same Daniel be sente for, and he shall tell, what it meaneth.

* Dani. ii. a.

Then was Daniel brought before the kynge. So the kinge spake vnto Daniel, and sayde. Art thou that Daniel, one of the presoners of Juda, whom my father the kynge brought out of Jewry? I haue heard speake of the, that thou hast the spyrite of the holy goddes, experience and vnderstandinge, and that there hath bene greate wysdome founde in the.

D in ꝑ. Nowe haue there bene brought me, wise & conninge charmers, to rede thys wrytyng and to shewe me the meanynge therof. But they coulde not tell me, what thys matter signifyed Then hearde I saye, that thou canst expounde darcke thynges, and declare harde doutes. Well than, yf thou canst rede thys wrytynge, & shewe me the meanynge therof thou shalt be clothed w purple, haue a cheyne of golde aboute thy necke, and rule the thyrd parte of my kyngdome.

E Daniel answered, & sayde before the kyng: * iiii. Regū. v.d. Math.5.a * As for thy rewardes, kepe the to thy selfe, or geue thy ryche gyftes to another: yet not the lesse, I will rede ꝑ wrytyng vnto ꝑ kyng, * Dani.ii.c. & shewe him the interpretacyon therof. * O kynge heare. God ꝑ hyest gaue vnto Nabuchodonosor thy father, the dignitie of a kyng with worshyppe & honour, so that all people, kinreddes & tunges stode in awe and feare of hym, by reason of the hye estate, that he had lent hym. For why, he slewe whō he wolde: he smote, whōit pleased hym. Agayne: whom he wolde, he set vp: and whom he lyst, he put * Dani.iiii.d downe. * But because his hert was so proude, and his stomach set so fast vnto wylfulnesse: he was depoled frō his kyngly trone, & hys magesty was taken from hym. He was shut out frō amonge men, hys herte was lyke a beastes herte, and hys dwellynge was F with the wylde asses: he was fayne to eate grasse lyke an ore, & hys body was wet with the dewe of the heauē, tyll he knewe, that the hyest had power vpon ꝑ kyngdomes of men and setteth ouer them, whom he lyst.

And thou his sonne (O Balthazar) for all this, hast not submytted thyne herte, though thou knewest all these thinges: but hast magnifyed thy selfe aboue the Lorde of heauen, so that the vessels of hys house were brought before the: that thou, and thy Lordes: with thy quene and concubynes, myght dryncke wyne therout. And hast prayed the Idoles of syluer and gold, copper and yron, of wodd * Act.xvii.b. and stone. As for the God * in whose hande consysteth thy breth and all thy wayes: thou hast not loued hym.

G Therfore is the palme of thys hande sent hyther from hym, to token vp this wrytyng. And this is the scripture, that is written vp: Mane, Thetel, Phares. Nowe the interpretacion of the thynge is this: Mane, God hath nombred the kyngdome, and brought it to an ende: Thetel, thou art wryed in the balaunce, and art founde to lyght: Phares, thy kyngdome is delt in partes, and geuen to the Medes and Perses.

Then commaunded Balthazar, to cloth Daniel wyth purple, to hange a cheyne of golde aboute hys necke, and to make a proclamacyon concernynge hym: that he shulde be the ruler of the thyrde parte of hys kyngdome. * The very same nyght was Balthazar ꝑ kynge of the Caldees slayne, and * Darius out of Media toke in the kyngdome, beynge .lxii. yeare of age. * eta.vii. ‡ Dani.v.a.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

¶ Daniel is made ruler ouer the Lordes. The Imaginacyon of an acte agaynst Daniel. The proclamacyon of the acte, wherof Daniel is accused vnto the kynge as transgressour. He is put into a denne of Lyons by the commaundement of the kynge. He is delyuered by fayth in God. Daniels accusars are put vnto the Lyons to be torne in sonder. Darius by the proclamacyon of a decree, magnifyeth the God of Daniel.

IT pleased Darius to set ouer his kingdome an .C. and.xx. Lordes, whyche shulde be in all hys kyngdome about. Aboue these he set thre Prynces (of whom Daniel was one) that the Lordes myght gene accomptes vnto them, and the kynge to be vndiseased. A

But Daniel exceaded all these Prynces and Lordes, for the spryte of God was plenteous in him: so that the kynge was mynded to set hym ouer the whole realme. Wherfore the Princes and Lordes sought, to pycke out in Daniel some quarell agaynst the kyngdome: yet coulde they fynde none occasyon ner fawte vpon hym. For why: he was so faythfull, that there was no blame ner dishonesty founde in hym.

Then sayde these men: we wyll get no quarell agaynst thys Daniel, excepte it be in the lawe of hys God. Upon this, wente the prynces & Lordes together vnto the kinge, & sayde thus vnto hym: kynge Darius, God saue thy lyfe for euer. All the greate estates of the realme: as the Prynces, Dukes, Senatours and Judges, are determed to put oute a commaundement of the kynge, & to make a sure statute: namely, ꝑ whoso despyzeth any peticyon, ether of any God or man (within this .xxx. dayes) excepte it be onely of the, O kynge: the same person may be cast into the Lyons denne. Wherfore, O kyng, confyrme thou this statute, and make a wrytinge: that the thing which the Medes and Perses haue ordeyned be not altered ner broken. B

So Darius made the wrytinge, and confyrmed it. Nowe when Daniel vnderstode ꝑ the wrytinge was made, he wente into hys house: and ꝑ windowes of his wall towarde Jerusalē stode opē. There kneled he downe vpon hys knees, thre tymes a daye: there he made hys peticyon, and prayed hys God, lyke as hys maner was to do afore tyme. C

Then these men made searche, and founde Daniel makynge hys peticyon & prayinge vnto hys God. So they came to the kynge, & spake before him concernynge his commaundement, sayinge: O kyng, hast thou not subscribed the statute, ꝑ within xxx. dayes who so requyreth his peticion of any God or man but onely of thy selfe, O kynge: he shalbe cast into the denne of the Lyons? The kynge answered swered, and sayde: yee, it is true. It must be as a lawe of the Medes & Perses, that maye not be broken.

D Then answered they, and sayde vnto the kynge: Daniel one of the preioners of Juda O kyng, regardeth nether the, ner thy statute, that thou hast made, but maketh his peticyon thre tymes a daye. When the kynge herde these wordes, he was sore greued, and wolde haue excused Daniel, to delyuer hym, and put of the matter, vnto ỹ Sunne went downe, to ỹ intent that he myght saue hym:

These men perceauyng the kynges mynde, sayde vnto him: knowe this (O kynge) ỹ the lawe of the Medes and Perses is, that ỹ commaundement & statute which the kynge maketh, maye not be altered. * Then ỹ king bad them bringe Daniel, and they cast hym into the Lyons denne.

The kynge also spake vnto Daniel, and sayde: thy God, whom thou alwaye seruest, he shall defende the. And there was brought a stone, and layed vpon the hole of ỹ denne: this the kyng sealed with his awne ryng, and with the sygnet of hys princes: that the kynges cõmaundement concernynge Daniel, shulde not be broken.

E So the kynge wente into hys palace, and eate no meate ỹ nyght nether was there any instrumentes brought in before hym, nether coulde he take any slepe. But by tymes in the morninge at the breake of the daye, ỹ kynge arose, and wente in all haste vnto the denne of the Lyons.

B Nowe as he came nye vnto the denne, he cried with a piteous voyce vnto Daniel: yee, the kynge spake, and sayde vnto Daniel: O Daniel, thou seruaunt of the lyuinge God, is not thy God (whom thou alwaye seruest) able to delyuer the from the lyons? Daniel sayde vnto the kinge. O kyng, God saue thy lyfe for euer. * Hy God hath sent his angell
F * which hath shut the lyons mouthes, so that they might not hurte me. For why: mine vngyltynesse is founde out before hym. And as for the, O kynge, I neuer offended the.

Then was the kynge exceadinge glad, & commaũded to take Daniel out of the denne. So Daniel was brought out of the denne, and no maner of hurte was foũde vpon him. For he put hys trust in hys God. And as for those men which had accused Daniel, ỹ kyng commaunded to bringe them, and to cast the in the Lyons denne: them, theyr chyldren
* and theyr wyues. * So the Lyons had the mastry of them, and brake all theyr bones a sonder, or euer they came at the grounde.

G * After thys, wrote kynge Darius vnto all people, kynredes, and tũges, that dwelt in all landes: peace be multiplyed with you. Hy commaundement is, in all my dominyon and kyngdome, that men feare and

* Dan.vi.f. * Dani.iii.f. * Esa.xliii. * Dani.vi.a. * Esa.xliii. ‡ Dani.vi.a. * Dani.iii.f. * Esa.xlv. ‡ Jud.xiiii.c. Reg.xvii.c. Dan.vi.f. * Dan.vii.g. * Dani.iii.f.

stande in awe of Daniels God.

* For he is the lyuynge God, which abydeth euer: hys kyngdome shall not fayle, and his powers euerlastinge. * It is he that delyuereth, and saueth: he doth wonders and maruelous workes, in heauen and in earth: he hath preserued Daniel from the power of the Lyõs. This Daniel prospered in the reygne of Darius and Cyrus of Persia.

* Dan.vii.f * Esa.xliii.b Osee viii.a. Dani.iii.f

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ A vision of iiij. beastes is shewed vnto Daniel. The vision is interpreted of iiij. kyngdomes of the worlde. Of the power & increase of Antichrist. Of the euerlastynge kyngdome of Christ.

IN ỹ fyrst yeare of Balthazar kyng of Babylon, sawe Daniel a dreame, and a vision was in hys heade vpon hys bedde. Which dreame he wrote, and the summe of the matter is thys: Daniel spake and sayde: I sawe in my vision by nyght, and beholde: the foure wyndes of the heauen stroue vpon the see, and foure greate beastes came vp from the see, one vnlyke another. A

The fyrst was as * a lyon, and yet had he * Jer.iiij.a.b. Ezech.i.b. and.x.b. ‡ Esa.xvii.a.
† Aegles wynges. I sawe, that his wynges were plucke from hym, and he taken awaye from the earth: that he stode vpon hys fete as a mã, and that there was geuen him a mans herte.

Beholde, ỹ secõde beast was lyke a * beare, & stode vpon the one syde. Amõg his teeth in his mouth he had iii. greate longe teeth, & it was sayde vnto him. Aryse, eate vp, moch flesh. Then I loked, and beholde, there was another lyke vnto a leoparde, this had wynges as a foule, * euen foure vpon the backe. Thys beast had foure heades, and there was power geuen hym. After this I sawe in a vision by nyght, and beholde, the fourth beast was grymme and horrible, and maruelous stronge. It had great yron teeth, it deuoured and destroyed, and stamped the residue vnder hys fete. It was farre vnlyke the other beastes that were before it: for it had * ten hornes, wherof I toke good hede. B * Apo.xiij.c

And beholde, there came vp amonge the, another lytell horne, before whõ there were thre of the fyrst hornes pluckte awaye. Beholde, this horne had eyes lyke a man, and a mouth speakynge prelumptuous thynges. C
* I loked tyll the seates were prepared, and tyll ỹ olde aged sat him downe. His clothinge was as whyte as snowe, and the heares of hys head lyke the pure woll. Hys trone was lyke the fyrye flame, and hys wheles as the burning fyre. There drew forth a fyrie streame, and went out from hym. * A thousande tymes a thousande serued him. & M. tymes ten thousande stode before hym. The iudgement was set, and the bokes opened. Then toke I hede there vnto, because of the voyce of the proude wordes, which the horne spake

* Apoca.i.c. iiii.a.xx.b. Danie.v.a. * Apoca.b.b.

I beheld,

I beholde, tyll the beaste was slayne, and his body destroyed, * geuen ouer to be brent in the fyre.

* Mat.xxv.d Apoc.xix.d xx.c.

As for the power of the other beastes also it was taken awaye, but theyr lyues were prolonged for a tyme and season. I sawe in a vision by nyght, and beholde, * there came one in the cloudes of heauen lyke the sonne of a man, which wente vnto the olde aged, *before whom they brought him. Then gaue he him * power & dignite regall, that all people, tribes and tunges shulde serue him. * His power is an euerlastinge power, which shall neuer be put downe: & his kyngdome endureth vncorrupte. Thy herte was vexed, * & I Daniel had a troubled spirite within me, & the visyõs of my head made me afrayed: tyll I gat me vnto * one of them that stode by, to knowe þ trueth, cõcernynge all these thinges. So he tolde me, and made me vnderstãde the interpretacyon of the thynges.

* Mat.viii.c. Actor.i.b Apoc.i.a.

* Phil. 6.a. 2 Mathew. xxviii.c. Iohn.vii.d.

* dani.viiii.c

* Deu.xx.d.

These foure great beastes, are foure kynges which shall aryse out of the earth These shall take in the kyngdome of the sayntes of the most hyest, and possesse it styll moze & moze for a longe season. After thys I requyred diligently to knowe the trueth, cõcerning the fourth beast, which was so farre vnlyke þ other beastes, and so horrible: whose teeth were of yron, and his nayles of brasse: which deuoured and destroyed, and stamped the residue vnder his fete. I desyred, also to knowe the trueth, as touchynge the * ten hornes that he had vpon his heade, and thys other which came vp afterwarde, before whose face there fell downe thre, which horne had eyes and a mouth that spake presumptuous thinges, and loked with a grymmer visage then hys felowes. I behelde, and the same horne made battayll agaynst the sayntes, yee and gat the victory of them, vntyll the tyme that the olde aged came, that the iudgement was geuen to the chefest sayntes: and tyll the tyme that the sayntes had the kyngdome in possesyon. He gaue me thys answere. That fourth beaste shalbe þ fourth kyngdome vpõ earth: it shalbe moze then all other kyngdomes, it shall deuoure, treade downe, & destroye all other landes.

* Apoc. xiij.a and.xvii.c

* The ten hornes, are ten kynges, þ shall aryse out of þ kyngdome, after whom there shall stãde vp another, which shalbe greater then the fyrst. He shall subdue thre kynges, & shall speake wordes agaynst þ hyest of all: he shall destroye the sayntes of the most hyest, * and thynche, þ he maye chaunge tymes and lawes. They shalbe geuē vnder hys power, * vntyll a tyme, two tymes, & halfe a tyme.

* zacha. i.c.

* Danie.vii.c. † Apoca.xiii.b

But the iudgement shalbe kepte, so that hys power shalbe taken from him, for he shall be destroyed, and perysh at the last. As for þ kyngdome, power and all might that is vnder the heauen: it shalbe geuē to the holy people of the moost hyest, * whose kyngdome is euerlastynge: yee, all powers shall serue and obeye hym. Thus farre extende the wordes. Neuertheles, I Daniel was so vexed in my thoughtes, that my countenaunce chaunged * but the wordes I kepte styll in my herte.

* Luke.i. Danie.viii. * Luke.ii.

The. viii. Chapter.

¶ A visyõ of a stryfe betwene a ramme & an hegoate. The vnderstandyng of the vysyon is of the battell betwene the kynge of Persia and the kynge of the Grecyens. Of the chamefelle kynge Antiochus.

IN the thyrde yeare of the raygne of kynge Balthazar, there appeared a vysyon vnto me Daniel, after that I had sene the * fyrst. I sawe in a vysyon (and whē I sawe it, I was at Susis in the chefe cyte, which lyeth in the lande of * Elam) and in the visiõ, me thought I was by the ryuer of Ulai.

* dani.vii. * Ier.xxv. Ezec.xxxix.

Then I loked vp, & sawe: & beholde there stode before þ ryuer, a rãme, which had two hornes: and these two hornes were hye, but one was hyer then another, & the hyest came vp behinde. I sawe þ this rãme pushed with his hornes, agaynst þ west, agaynst þ north, & agaynst the south: so that no beastes might stande before him, ner defende them from his power: but he dyd as hym lysted, and waxed greatly. I toke hede vnto thys, & then came there an he goate from the west ouer þ whole earth, and touched not the grounde.

Thys goate had a maruelous wrethen horne betwixte his eyes, & came vnto the rãme, that had the two hornes (whō I had sene afore by the ryuer syde) and ranne fearcely vpõ him with his might. I sawe him drawe nye vnto the ramme, beinge very fearce vpõ hym: yee, he gaue hym soche a stroke, that he brake his two hornes. Nether had þ ramme so moch strength as to stande before him: but he cast hym downe, troade hym vnder hys fete: & no man was able to deliuer the rãme out of hys power.

The goate waxed exceadinge greate, and whē he was at the strõgest, his great, horne was broken also. * Then grewe there other foure soch lyke in the steade, toward the. iiii. wyndes of the heauen. Yee, out of one of the leest of these hornes, there came vp yet another horne, which waxed maruelous greate: towarde the south, towarde the east, and towarde the fayre pleasaunt lande. It grewe vp to the hoost of heauen, wherof it dyd cast some downe to the grounde, and of the starres also, and trode them vnder fete.

* dani.viii. and.vi.c. i.macch.i

Yee, it grewe vp vnto the prynce of the hoost, from whom the dayly offeringe was take, and the place of hys Sanctuary casten downe. And a certayne season was geuen vnto it, agaynst þ dayly offeringe (because of wyckednelle) that it myght cast downe þ verite to the grounde, and so to prosper in all thinges

all thynges, that it wente aboute.

D Upō this I hearde one of the saīctes speakynge, which sayntē sayde vnto one that asked this question. Howe longe shall this vysyon of the daylye sacrifyce and of the wastinge abhominacyon endure: that the Sanctuary and the power shall so be troden vnder foter? And he answered him: Vnto ꝑ euenynge & the mornynge, euen two thousande and thre hundreth dayes: then shall the Sāctuary be clensed agayne.

E Nowe when I Daniel had sene this visiō: and sought for the vnderstandynge of it: beholde, there stode before me a thinge like vnto a man. And I herde a mans voyce in the riuer of Vlay, which cryed, and sayd: O Gabriel, make this man vnderstande the visyō. So he came, and stode by me. But I was afrayed at hys commynge, and fell downe vpon my face.

Then sayde he vnto me, O thou sonne of man, marcke well, for in the last tyme shall this visiō be fulfylled. Now as he was speakynge vnto me, I waxed faynte, so ꝑ I sunche downe to the grounde. But he toke holde vpon me, and sett me vp agayne, sayinge: Beholde, I will shewe the, what shall happen in ꝑ last wrath: for in the tyme appoynted it shalbe fulfylled.

The ramme which thou sawest with the two hornes, is the kynge of the Medes and Perles: but the goate is the kynge of Grekelande: the greate horne that stode betwyxte hys eyes, that is the principall kynge. But where as it brake, and foure other rose vp in the steade: it signifyeth, that out of this people shall stande vp * foure kyngdomes, but not so myghtye as it.

F After these kyngdomes (whyle vngodlynesse is a growinge) there shall aryse a kyng of an vnshamefast face, whych shalbe wyse in darcke speakynges.

He shalbe myghtye and stronge, but not in his awne strength. He shall destroye aboue measure, and all that he goeth aboute shall prosper: he shall slaye the stronge and holy people. And thorowe hys craftynes, falshed shall prospere in hys hande, hys herte shalbe proude, and many one shall he put to death in his welthynesse. He shall stāde vp agaynst the Prynce of Prynces, * but he shalbe destroyed wythout hande. And thys vysyon that is shewed vnto the, is as sure as ꝑ euenynge and the mornynge. * Therfore wrytte thou vp thys syght, for it wylbe longe or it come to passe.

Upon this was I Daniel very faynte, so that I laye sycke certayne dayes: but when I rose vp, I wente aboute the kynges busynesse, and marueled at the vysyon, neuertheles no man knewe of it.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ Daniel beyngh to haue that pertayned of God whych he had prompted concernynge the returne of the people from their bannyshement in Babylon. I true confessyon. Daniels prayer is hearde. Gabriel the Aungel expounded vnto hym the vysyon of the lxx. weekes. The anoyntynge of Christ. The buyldynge agayne of Jerusalem vnder Nehemiah. The death of Christ.

A In the fyrst yeare of Darius the sonne of Ahasuerus, * whych was of the sede of the Medes, & was made kynge ouer the realme of the Caldees: yee, euen in ꝑ fyrst yeare of his raygne, I Daniel despyred to knowe the yearly nōbre out of the bokes, whereof the Lorde spake vnto * Jeremy the Prophete: that Jerusalem shulde lye waste lxx. yeares: and I turned me vnto God the Lorde, for to praye and make myne intercessiō, with fastynge, sacke clothe & ashes, I prayed before the Lord my God, and knowledged, sayinge.

* O Lorde, thou greate and fearfull God, thou that kepest couenaunt and mercy wyth them, which loue the, and do thy commaundemētes. * We haue synned, we haue offended, we haue bene dysobedient and gone backe: yee, we haue departed from all thy preceptes and iudgementes.

B We wolde neuer folowe thy seruauntes the Prophetes, that spake in thy name to oure kynges and princes, to oure forefathers, and to all the people of the lāde. * O Lord, righteousnesse belongeth vnto the, vnto vs pertayneth nothynge but open shame: as it is come to passe thys daye vnto euery man of Juda, and to them that dwell at Jerusalem. Yee, vnto all Israel, whether they be farre or nye: thorowe out all lādes: wherin thou hast strowed them, because of the offences, that they had done agaynst the.

Yee, O Lorde, vnto vs, to oure kynges & princes, to oure forefathers: euen to vs all, * that haue offended the belongeth opē shame. But vnto the, O Lorde oure God, pertayneth mercy and forgeuenesse. As for vs, we are gone backe from hym, and haue not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde oure God, to walke in hys lawes, * whych he layed before vs by hys seruauntes the Prophetes: yee all Israel haue transgressed, and gone backe from thy lawe, so that they haue not hercken̄ed vnto thy voyce.

C Wherfore, the curse & othe * that is written in the lawe of Moses the seruaūt of God (agaynst whō we haue offended) is poured vpō vs. * And he hath performed his wordes, whych he spake agaynst vs, & agaynst oure iudges that iudged vs: to bryngе vpon vs soch a greate plage, as neuer was vnder heauen, lyke as it is nowe come to passe in Jerusalem. Yee, all this plage, as it is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, is come vpon vs. Yet made we not oure prayer before ꝑ Lorde pp oure God,

* Dani.v.d.
* Jere.xxv.b and.xxix.b.
* ii. Esd.i.a. and.ix.d.
* Baruch.i.b
* Ezra.i.b.
* Psal.cvi.a
* Ezech.xx.b. ꝑ ich.be.b.
* Deu.xxviii. xxviii. Leui.xxvi.
* Dani.ii.a

oure God, that we mygbt turne agayne frō oure wickednesse, & to be learned in thy verite. Therfore hath the Lorde made haste, to bringe this plage vpō vs, for the Lorde our God is rygbteous, in all his workes whych he doth: for why? we wolde not herken vnto hys voyce.

D

* Baruc.ij.b. Nehe.ix.viii. and.viiii.b.

*And nowe, O Lorde oure God * thou that with a mygbtie hande hast brought thy people out of Egypte, to get thy selfe a name which remayneth this daye: we have synned O Lorde, & done wyckedly agaynst all thy rygbteousnes: yet let thy wrothfull displeasure be turned awaye (I beseche the) frō thy cyte Jerusalem thy holy hyll. And why? for oure synnes sake, and for the wyckednesse of oure forefathers is Jerusalē & thy people abhorred, of all the that are aboute vs: Now therfore, O our God, heare the prayer of thy seruaunt, and hys intercessyon. O let thy face shyne ouer thy Sanctuary, that lyeth waste: for the Lordes sake.

E

O my God, enclyne thyne eare, and herken) at the leest for thyne awne sake) open thyne eyes: beholde howe we be desolated, yee, and the cytie also, whych is called after thy name: for we do not cast oure prayers before ꝑ in oure awne rygbteousnes, no: but onely in thy great mercyes: O Lorde, heare: O forgeue Lorde, O Lorde consydre, tarye not ouer longe: but for thyne awne sake do it. O my God: for thy cyte and thy people is called after thy name.

Is I was yet speakynge at my prayers, knowledgynge myne awne synnes, and the synnes of my people, makynge so myne intercessyō before the Lorde my God, for ꝑ holy hylles sake of my God: yee, whyle I was yet speakynge in my prayer, beholde, the mā Gabriel. (* whō I had sene afore in the vi-
* Dani.viii.c and.viii.a. syon) came flyinge to me, and touched me aboute the offering tyme in the euenynge. He informed me, & spake vnto me: O Daniel sayde he, I am nowe come to make the vnderstande it. For as soone as thou begānest
F to make thy prayer, it was so diuised, & there-
* Dan.x.c.b. fore am I come to shewe the. And why? * For thou art a man greatly beloued.

Wherfore, pondre the matter well, that thou mayest learne, to understāde the visyō. Lxx. weekes are determed ouer thy people, and ouer the holy cytie: that the wyckednes maye be consumed, that the synne may haue an ende, that the offence maye be reconciled, and to bringe in euerlastinge rygbteousnesse, to fulfyll the visyons and the prophetes,
G and to anoynte the moost holy one. Understande this then, and marcke it well: that frō
* 1.Par.xxv: vi.b. 1.Esdr.i.a. the tyme it shalbe concluded * to go and repayre Jerusalem agayne, vnto Christ (or ꝑ anoynted) prince: there shalbe seuen weekes: Then shall the stretes and walles be buyl-

ded agayne. lxij. weekes, but with harde troublous tyme. After these. lxij. weekes, shall Christ be slayne, and they shall haue no pleasure in hym. Then shall there come a people with the Prince, and destroye the cyte & the Sanctuary: and hys ende shall come as the water floude. But the desolacyon shall contynue tyll the ende of the battell.

He shall make a stronge bonde with many, for the space of a weke: & when the weke is halfe gone, he shall put downe the slayne and meat offringe. * And in the temple there * Dani.xii. b. Mat.xxiiij. shalbe an abhominable desolacyon, tyll it have destroyed all. And it is cōcluded, that this wastynge shall contynue vnto the ende.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ There appeareth vnto Daniel a man clothed in lyenen, which sheweth hym wherfore he is sent.

A

In the thyrde yeare of kynge Cirus of Persia, there was shewed vnto Daniel (other wyse called Balthasar) a matter, yee, a true matter, but it is yet a longe tyme vntoit. He vnderstode the matter well, and perceaued what the visyon was. At the same tyme, I Daniel mourned for ꝑ space of thre weekes, so that I had no lust to eate bread: as for flesshe and wyne there came none wythin my mouth: No, I dyd not once anoynte my self, tyl the wole thre weekes were out.

Upon the. xxiiij. daye of the first moneth, I was by the greate floude, called Tygris
* I lyft vp myne eyes, and loked: and beholde, a mā clothed in lyne, whose loynes were
* Dani.viii. Apoc.i.d. gyrded vp with fyne golde of Araby: his body was lyke the Chrysolite stone, hys face (to loke vpon) was lyke lyghtenynge, hys eyes as the flame of fyre, hys armes and fete were lyke fayre glysterynge metall, but the voyce of his wordes was lyke the voyce of a multitude.

B

* I Daniel alone sawe thys visyon * the
* Dani.iii. Actu.ix. men that were wyth me, sawe it not: but a greate fearfulnesse fell vpon them, so ꝑ they fled awaye, and hyd them selues. I was lefte there my selfe alone, and sawe this great visyon, so longe tyll there remayned nomore strength wythin me: yee, I lost my colour clene, I walked awaye, and my strength was gone. Yet hearde I the voyce of hys wordes: and as soone as I hearde it, fayntnesse came vpon me, and I fell downe flat to the grounde vpon my face. And behold, an hande touched me, whych set me vp vpon my knees & vpon the palmes of my handes, sayinge vnto me. * O Daniel, thou well beloued man: * Dani.ix take good hede of the wordes, that I shall saye vnto the, and stande ryght vp, for vnto the am I nowe sent. *

And when he had sayde these wordes, I
C stode vp tremblynge. Then sayde he vnto me: feare not Daniel: for why, sence ꝑ fyrst daye that thou that thou set thyne herte to vnderstãde, and vpdest chasten thy selfe before thy God: thy wordes haue bene herde. And I had come vn to the, when thou begannest to speake had not the prynce ouer the kyngdom of the Per-ses wythstãde me.xxj. dayes. But lo, * Michael one of the chefe prynces, came to helpe

and I was left to cõtynue ther with the kinges of Persia, & am come to shewe the, what shall happen vnto thy people in the latter dayes. For it wylbe longe yet or the vysyon be fulfylled.

Nowe when he had spoken these wordes
vnto me, I cast downe my head to the grou-
de and helde my tunge. Beholde, there touched my lyppes one very lyke vnto a man.
Then opened I my mouth, and sayde vnto him, that stode before me, O my Lorde, my ioyntes are so wesed in the visyõ, and there is nomore strength within me. howe may my Lordes seruaunt then talke with my Lord/
seynge there is no strẽgth in me, so that I cã-
not take my breth/ Upon this there touched me agayne, one moch lyke a man * and conforted me, sayinge. O thou man so well be-loued, feare not: be cõtent, take a good hert vnto the, and be stronge. So when he had spoken vnto me, I recouered, and sayde.
Speake on my Lord, for thou hast refreshed
me. Then sayd he: knowest thou wherfore I am come vnto the/nowe wyll I go agayne to fyght with the prince of the Perses. As soone as I go forth, lo, the prince of Grece-lãde shall come. Neuertheles, I wyll shewe
the that thynge, that is fast noted in the scrypture of trueth. And as for all yonder matters, there is none that helpeth me in thẽ, but Michael youre prynce.

The.xj. Chapter.

The prophecy of the kynges of Persia. Of the kyngdome of Grece. Of the kyngdome of Egypte, and of the bonde therof, and of the battell with the kyngdome of Syria. Of the Iewes that fire vnto the kynge of Egypte, whom Antiochus the kynge of Syria per-secuteth, which figureth vnto vs Antechrist. The pryde of Antiochus.

AND in the fyrst yeare of Darius
of Media, I stode by hym, to cõ
forte him, and to strengthe hym, & nowe wyll I shewe the trueth.
Beholde, there shall stande vp yet thre kynges in Persia, but the fourth shalbe farre rycher then they all. And when he is in the chefest power of hys ryches, he shall prouoke euery man agaynst the real-
me of Grecelande. * Then shall there aryse yet a myghtye kynge, that shall rule with greate dominion, and do what hym lyst. *
And as soone as hys kyngdome cometh vp,
it shalbe destroyed, and deuyded towarde
the foure wyndes of the heauen. They that come after hym, shall not haue soche power & dominyon as he: but hys kyngdome shalbe
scatred, yee, euen amonge other then those.
And the kyng of the south shalbe myghtyer,
then his other princes. And one shall be stroger then he, & shall rule hys dominyon with greate power.

And in the ende of yeares they shalbe loyned together, and the kynges daughter of the south shall come to the kynge of the North,
for to make frendshyppe, but she shall not op-tayne the power of that arme, nether shall she be able to edure thorowe his myght: but she, and soch as brought her (yee and he that begat her, and confforted her for hys tyme) shalbe delyuered vp. Out of the braunches
of her rote, there shall one stande vp in hys
stede: which with power of armes shall go thorowe the kynges lande of the north, and handle hym accordynge to hys strength. As for their Idols and princes, with their costly Jewels of golde and syluer, he shall cary the awaye captyues into Egypte, and he shall reygne more yeares then the kynge of the north. And when he is come into the kynges realme of the south, he shalbe fayne to turne agayne into hys awne lande. Wherfore hys sonnes shalbe displeased, & shall gather together a myghtye greate hoost of people: and one of them shall come, and go thorowe lyke
a water flowde: then shall he returne, and go forthwith defyinge and boastynge vnto his awne lande.

Then the kynge of the south shalbe angry and shall come forth to fight against the kynge of the north: yee, he shall brynge a greate multitude of people together, and a greate heape shalbe geuen into his hãde: the-
le shall he cary awaye with greate pryde,
for so moche as he hath cast downe so many thousãdes, neuertheles, he shall not preuay-le. For the kyng of the north shall gather (of the new) a greater heape of people then afore, and come forth (after a certayne tyme & yeares) with a myghtye hoost and excea-dynge greate good.

At the same tyme there shall many stande
vp agaynst the kynge of the south, so that wycked chyldren of thy people also shall exalte them selues (to fulfyll the vision) & then fall. So the kinge of the north shall come to laye sege, and to take the strõg fenced cyties:
And the power of the of the south shall not be able to abyde him, and the best men of the people shall not be so strõg, as to resyst hym.
Shortely, when he commeth, he shall hãdle
hym as he lyst, & no man shalbe so hardy as to stande agaynst hym. He shall stande in the pleasaunt coũtre, which thorowe him shal-be destroyed. He shall set hys face with all hys power to optayne hys kyngdom, and to be lyke it. Yee, that shall he do, and geue him vnto the daughters amonge wemen, to de-stroye hym. But he shall fayle, nether shall he optayne hys purpose. After thys shall he set hys face vnto the. Nes and take many of them. A prince shall stoppe hym, to do him a shame, beside the confusyon that eis shall co-D me vnto him. Thus shall he tourne agayne to hys awne lande, stomble and fall, and be nomore founde: so he that came vpon hym &

dyd hym violence, shall stande in hys place,
haue a pleasaunt kyngdome: and after fewe dayes he shalbe destroyed, & that nether in wrath, ner i battell. In hys stede there shall aryse a vyle person, not holden worthy of a kynges dignytie: this shall come in peaceably,
and opteayne the kyngdome wyth fayre wordes: he shall fyght agaynst the armes of the myghtye (and destroye them) yee, and a-gaynst the prince of the couenaunt.

And after that he hath taken truce wyth
him, he shall dissemblie deceatfully: that he maye
get vp, and ouercome hym with a small flocke:
and so with craftynesse to get him to the fattest place of the lande, and to deale other E wyse, the ether his fathers or graundfathers
dyd. For he shall destroye the thynge, that they had robbed & spoyled, yee, and all theyr
substaunce: ymaginynge thoughtes agaynst
the stronge holdes, and that for a tyme. hys power and herte shalbe sterred vp wyth a greate armye agaynst the kinge of the south
where thorowe the kynge of the south shal-
be moued then vnto battell, with a greate & myghtye hoost also. Neuertheless, he shall not be able to stande, for they shall conspyre
against him. Yee, they that eate of his meate shall hurte hym: so that his hoost shall fall, &
many be slayne downe.

These two kynges shalbe mynded to do
myschefe, and talke of deceate at one table:
but they shall not prosper, for why, the ende
shall not come yet, vnto the tyme apoynted
*1.Mac.b.a * Then shall he go home agayne into hys awne lande with great good, and set his hert
agaynst the holy couenaunt, he shalbe busye agaynst it, and then returne home. At the time apoynted he shall come agayne, and go towarde the south. So shall it happen other wyse then at the fyrst, yet ones agayne. And why? * Mar.xxiiii.b * the shyppes with Italyans shall come
vpon him, that he may be smytte and turne agayne: that he may take indignacio against the couenaũt of holynesse, to medle agaynst
it. Yee, he shall turne him, and drawe soch vn
to him, as leaue the holy couenaunt.

F He shall set myghtye men to vnhalowe the Sanctuary of strength, to put downe the dayly offeringe, and to set vp the abhomina ble desolacyon. And soch as breake the cove-naunt shall he flatter wyth fayre wordes.
But the people that wyll knowe their God,
shall haue the ouerhande and prosper. Those also that haue vnderstandinge among the people shall enfourme the multitude: and for a longe season, they shalbe persecuted wyth
swearde, with fyre, wyth captiuite & wyth
the takynge away of theyr goodes. Nowe
when they fall, they shalbe sett vp wyth a lytle helpe: but many shall cleue vnto them
faynedly.

Yee some of those which haue vnderstandyng shall be persecuted also, that they may be tryed, purifyed and cleansed, tyll the tyme
be out: for there is yet another time appoyn-
ted. The kynge shall do what hym lyst * he *d.Thes.ii.
shall exalte and magnifye him selfe agaynst
all that is God. Yee, he shall speake maruelous thinges agaynst the God of all goddes wherin he shall prosperе, so longe tyll the * wrath be fulfylled, for the conclusyõ is de- * Apoc.xi.
uised alredy. He shall not regarde the God of hys fathers, but his lust shall be vpõ wemẽ, Yee, he shall not care for eny God, for he shall magnifye him selfe aboue all. In hys place shall he worshype the myghtie stoute God:
and the God whom his fathers knewe not,
shall he honoure with golde and syluer, with precious stones and pleasaunt Jewels.

This shall he do, thorowe hys stroge fen-
sed places, settinge vpe hys straunge God G
whom he confesseth and encreasinge his glo-
rye. Soche as will receaue hym, & take hym for God, he shall geue thẽ greate worshyppe and power: yee, and make thẽ Lordes of the multitude, and geue them the lande with rewardes. In the latter tyme shall the kynge of the south stryue wyth him: and the kynge
of the north in lyke maner shall come against him with charettes, horsmen and wt a greate nauy of shyppes. He shall come into the landes, destroye and go thorowe: he shall entre
also into the fayre pleasaunt lãde: Many cy-ties and coũtres shall decaye * excepte Edõ, * Apo.xi.
Moab and the best of the chyldren of Ammon, wheych shall escape from hys hande. He shall stretch forth his handes vpon the coun-trees, & the lande of Egypte shall not escape hym. For thorowe his goynge in, he shall haue dominion ouer the treasures of syluer
and golde, and ouer all the precious Jewels
of Egypt, Libia and Ethiopia. * Neuerthe- * Apo.xi.
lesse, the tydynges out of the East and the north shall trouble him, for the wheych cause
he shall goo forth to destroye and rote owte
a greate multitude. The tentes of hys palace shall be pytched betwyxte the two seas,
vpon the hyll of the noble Sanctuary, for he * Apo.xii.
shall come to his dethe, * and then shall no and.xvi.
man helpe hym.

¶ The.xij. Chapter.

¶ The prophecieth the resurrection of the dead. The darcknesse of the prophecye of Daniel.

THe tyme wyll come also, that the J great prince * Michael, which stan- * Apo.xii.
deth on thy peoples side, shal aryse
vp, for * there shall come a tyme of * mat.xxiiii.
trouble, soch as neuer was, sens there began to

to be my people, vnto that same tyme.
Then shall thy people be delyuered, yee, all those ꝑ be founde wrytten in the boke. ✱ Many of them that slepe in the dust of the earth,
shall awake: some to the euerlastynge lyfe,
some to perpetuall shame & reproke. ✱ The wyse (soch as haue taught other) shall glyt-
ter, as the shynynge of heauen: and those ꝑ
haue instructe the multitude vnto godlynes,
shalbe as ꝑ starres, worlde without ende.
And thou O Daniel, shut vp these wor-des, and seale the boke tyll the last tyme. Many shall go aboute here and there, and then shall knowledge increase. So I Daniel loked, & beholde, there stode ✱ (as it were) other two: one vpon thys shore of the water, the other vpon yonder syde. And one of the sayd vnto hym, which was clothed in lynen and stode aboue vpon the waters of the floude.
How lõge shall it be to the ende of these wõ-derous workes?
✱ Then herde I the man wyth the lynen
clothes, which stode aboue vpon the waters of the floude: whe he helde vp hys ryght and left hande vnto heauen, and sware by hym whych lyueth for euer ✱ that it shall tary for a tyme, two tymes and halfe a tyme: & whe
the power of the holy people is clene scatred
abrode, then shall all these thynges be ful-fylled.
I herde it well, but I vnderstode it not.
Then sayde I: O my Lord, what shall happen after that? He answered: Go thy waye Daniel, for these wordes shall be closed vp & sealed, tyll the last tyme: and many shalbe pu-rifyed, clensed & tryed, ✱ (as it were in fyre) But the vngodly shall lyue wyckedly ✱ and those wicked (as many of them as they be) shall haue no vnderstãdynge. As for soch as haue vnderstãding, they shall regarde it. And frõ
the tyme forth ꝑ the dayly offerynge shalbe
put downe & the abhominable desolatiõ sett vp, there shalbe a C). CCC. dayes ✱ O well is hym, that wayteth, & cometh to the thousande. iij. C. and .xxxv. dayes.
Go thou thy waye nowe tyll it be ended: take thy rest, and byde thy lot, tyll the dayes haue an ende.

The ende of the Prophecye
of Daniel.

The booke of the Prophete Oseas.

The fyrst Chapter.

The tyme wherin Oseas prophecyed. Oseas by commynge an harlott to hys wyfe, signifyeth the Ido-latrye of the people. The destruccion of the offsprynge of Jehu, & of the Israelytes, is prophecyed.

This is the worde of the Lorde, that came vnto Oseas the sonne of Beery ✱ in the dayes of Oseas, Joathan, Achas and Jezekias kynges of Juda: and in the tyme of Jeroboã sonne of Joas kynge of Israel. ✱ 4. Reg. xiiij. 2. Par. xxvj. & xxviij.

Fyrst, when the Lorde spake vnto Oseas & he sayde vnto hym. ✱ Go thy waye, take an harlott to thy wyfe, and get chyldren by her: for the lande hath commytted greate whordome agaynst the Lorde. So he went, & toke Gomer the daughter of Deblaim: whych conceaued, and brought forth a sonne. And the Lorde sayde vnto hym: call hys name Jesrael, for ✱ & yet I wyll shortly auẽge the bloude of Jesrael vpon the house of Jehu, & wyll brynge the kyngdome of the house of Israel to an ende. Then wyll I breake the bowe of Israel, in the valley of Jesrael. ✱ Leui. xxi. b. Ezec. xxiiij. a. ✱ iiij. Reg. ix. & x. and. xxij. and xxviij. b. ✱ iij. Reg. xxj. b.

She conceaued yet agayne, and bare a daughter. And he sayde vnto hym. Call her name. Loruhamah (that is, not optayninge mercy) ✱ for I wyll haue no pytie vpon the house of Israel, but forget them and put the cleane out of remembraunce. ✱ Neuertheles, I wyll haue mercy vpon the house of Juda, and wyll saue the, euen thorowe the Lorde they God. But I wyll not delyuer them thorowe my bowe, swearde, battell, horses or horsmen. ✱ iiij. Reg. xvij. c. ✱ Gen. xlix. b iiij. Reg. xix. g

Nowe, whe she had weaned Loruhamah, she conceaued agayne, and bare a sonne. Then sayde he: call hys name, Loamy. For why? ye are not my people, therfore will not I be your God. And though the nombre of the chyldren of Israel be as the sande of the see, whych can neyther be measured ner tolde: yet in the place where it is sayde vnto the ✱ ye be not my people: euen there shall it be sayde vnto them ✱ they be the chyldren of the lyuynge God. ✱ Then shall the chyldren of Juda and the chyldren of Israel be gathered together agayne and chose them selues one head, and then departe out of the lande: for greate shalbe the daye of Israel. ✱ Rom. ix. c. ✱ Joha. i. a. ✱ Rom. xj. b.

The. ij. Chapter.

The prophete is called vnto repentaunce.

Tell your brethren, that they are my people: and your systerne, that they haue optayned mercy. As for your mother, ye shall chyde her, and reproue her * for she is not my wyfe, nether am I her husbande, onles she put awaye her whoredome out of my syght, & her aduoutry frō her breistes. If no I shall stryppe her naked, & sett her * euen as she came in to the worlde: yee, I shall laye her waste, & make her lyke a wyldernesse, & slaye her for thyrste. I shall haue no pite also vpō her children * for they be the chyldren of fornicacyon.

Their mother hath broke her wedlocke, and she that bare the * is come to confusion. For she sayd: ☞ I will go after my louers, that geue me my watter and my bread, my woll & flaxe, my oyle and my drynche. But I will hedge her waye with thornes, and stoppe it, that she shall not fynde her fotesteppes: and though she runne after her louers, yet shall she not get them: she shall seke them, but not fynde them. * Then shall she saye: well, I will go turne againe to my fyrst housbande, for at that tyme was I better at ease, then nowe. But this wolde she not knowe, where as I yet gaue her corne, wyne, oyle, syluer & gold * wherwith she hath hanged vpon Baal.

Wherfore, ☞ nowe will I go take my corne and wyne agayne in their season, and fet a gayne my woll & my flax, wherwith I gaue her, to couer her shame. * And nowe will I discouer her foolyshnesse, euen in the syght of her louers, & no man shall delyuer her out of my hādes. ¶ Moreouer, I will take awaye all her myrth * her holy dayes, her newmoones, her Sabbathes and all her solēne feastes: I will destroye her vyneyardes & frute trees, though she sayeth: lo, heare are my rewardes, that my louers haue geuen me. I will make it a wodde, and wylde beestes shall eate it vp. I will punysh her also for the dayes of Baal * wherin she censed hym, deckynge hym wyth her earynges & cheynes: whē she folowed her louers, and forgat me, sayeth the Lorde.

Wherfore beholde, I will call her agayne bringe her into a wyldernes, & speake frendly vnto her: there will I geue her her vyneardes agayne, yee & the * valley of Achor also to shewe her hope and comforte. Then shall she synge there * as in the tyme of her youth, and lyke as in the daye when she came out of the lāde of Egypte. Then (sayeth the Lorde she shall saye vnto me) O my housbande, & shall call me nomore Baal: for I will take awaye those names of Baal frō her mouth, yee, she shall neuer remēbre their names eny more. * Thē will I make a couenaunt with them, with the wylde beastes, with the foules of the ayre, and wyth euery thynge that creepeth vpon the earth.

* As for bowe, swerde and battel, I will destroye soch out of the lande, & will make thē to slepe safely. * Thus will I marry the vnto myne awne selfe for euermore: yee, euē to my selfe will I marry the, in ryghteousnesse, in equite, in louynge kyndnesse and mercy. In fayth also will I marry the vnto my selfe, and thou shalt knowe the Lorde. At the same tyme will I shewe my selfe frendly & gracyous vnto the heuens, sayeth the Lorde: and the heauēs shall helpe the earth and the earth shall helpe the corne, wyne and oyle, & they shall helpe Jesrael. * I will sowe them vpon earth, for a sede to myne awne selfe, & will haue mercy vpon her, that was wythout mercy. And to them whych were not my people, I will saye: thou art my people and he shall saye: thou art my God.

¶ The.iij. Chapter.

¶ Of the loue of God towarde the people.

Then sayde the Lorde to me: * Go yet thy waye & wowe an aduouterous woman, whō thy neyghboure loueth, as the Lorde doth the chyldre of Israel: how be it they haue respecte to straunge goddes, * & loue the wyne kannes. ☞ So I gat her for.xv. syluerlynges, and for an homer & an halfe of barlye, & sayde vnto her: Thou shalt byde with me a lōge season, but se that thou playest not the harlot, & loke that medle wt none other mā, & then will I kepe my selfe for the.

* Thus the chyldren of Israel shall syt a great while without kynge and prynce, without offrynge and aulter, without priestes & renelacyon. But afterwarde shall the chyldre of Israel conuerte, and seke the Lorde their God, and * Dauid their kynge: & in the latter dayes they shall worshippe the Lorde, & hys louynge kyndnesse.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

¶ A complaynte agaynst the people and the prestes of Israel.

Heare the worde of the Lorde, O ye chyldren of Israel. For the Lorde must punysh, them that dwell in the lande. And why? There is no trewthe, there is no mercie, there is no knowledge of God in the lande: but swearyng, lyenge, manslaughter: theft & aduoutry haue gotte the ouerhande, and one bloudy stryfe folowyth another. Therfore shall the land be in a miserable case, and all they that dwell therin, shall be rotted out. The beastes in the felde, the foules in the ayre, & the fyshes in the see shall dye. Yet is there none, that wyll chaste nor reproue another. * For thy people are like the the prestes, whych shulde reforme other men.

Therfore stombleste thou in the daye tyme & the prophet wt the in the nyght. I will bring thy mother to shame, and why? * my people perish, because they haue no knowledge. Seinge then that thou hast refused vnderstāding, therfore will I refuse the also: so that thou shalt nomore be my prest. And for so moche as thou hast forgotte the lawe of thy God, I will wyll also forget thy children. The more they increased in the multitude, ¶ more they synned agaynst me, therfore wyll I chãge their honours into shame. * They eate vp the synnes of my people, and corage them in their wickednesse. * Thus the preest is become lyke the people. Wherfore I wyll punish them for their wicked wayes, and rewarde the according vnto their awne ymaginacyons. * They shall eate, ¶ not haue ynough. They haue vsed whoredome, therfore shall they not prospere: and why? they haue forsaken the Lorde and not regarded hym.

Whoredome, wyne ¶ dronckennesse taketh the herte awaye. * My people aske councell at their stockes, their staffe must tell the. For an whoorishe mynde hath deceyued them so that they cõmitte fornication agaynst their God. * They make sacrifyces vpon the hye mountaynes, ¶ burne their incense vpon the hilles, yee, amõg the okes, groues ¶ bushes, for there are good shadowes. Therfore, youre daughters are become harlottes, and youre spouses haue broke their wedlocke. I wyll not punish youre daughters for beinge defyled, ¶ youre brydes ¶ became whores: * seynge the fathers the selues haue medled w harlottes, ¶ offered w vnthryftes: but the people ¶ wyll not vnderstãde must be punyshed.

Though thou Israel art disposed to playe the harlot, yet shuldest not thou haue offended, O Iuda: thou shuldest not haue runne ¶ to Gilgal * ner haue gone vp to Bethauen, * ner haue swoorne, the Lord lyueth. For Israel is gone backe lyke a wanton cowe. The Lorde therfore shall make her fede, as the lambe that goeth astraye. And where as Ephraim is become partaker of Idols, wel, let him go. Their dronckennes hath put the backe, ¶ brought them to whoredome. Their rulers loue rewardes, bringe, (saye they) to their awne shame. A wynde shall take holde of their fethers, and they shalbe confounded in their offrynges.

The.v. Chapter.

¶ Against the preestes and rulers of Israel.

HEare preestes: heare this, take hede, O housholde of Israel: gene eare, O thou kynglye house, for it wer youre parte to se Iudgemente done, but you are become a snare vnto Mysphah, and a spred net vnto the mount of Thabor. They kyll sacrifycers by heapes, And turne farre fro the Lord, ¶ I haue bene a rebuker of the all. * I know Ephraim well ynough, ¶ Israel is not hyd fro me: for Ephraim is become an harlot: ¶ Israel is defyled. They are not mynded to turne vnto their God, for they haue an whorysh spert, so that they cannot knowe ¶ Lorde. * But the pryde of Israel will be rewarded him in his face, yee, both Israel ¶ Ephraim shall fall for their wickednesse, and Iuda with them also. * They shall come with their shepe and bullockes ¶ to seke the Lorde, but they shall not fynde him, for he is gone from the. As for the Lorde, they haue refused him, and brought vp bastarde childre: a moneth therfore shall deuoure them with their porcyõs. Blowe with the shawmes at Gibea, and w the trompet in Ramah, crye out at Bethaue vpon the põpe of Ben Iamin. In the tyme of the plage shall Ephraim be layed waste, therfore dyd I faythfully warne the trybes of Israel. Yet are the princes of Iuda become lyke them * that remoue the landemarches, therfore wyll I poure out my wrath vpon the lyke water. Ephraim is oppressed, ¶ can haue no right of the lawe: for why? they folowe the doctrynes of vngodly men. Therfore will I be vnto Ephraim as a moth, and to the house of Iuda as a caterpyller.

When Ephraim sawe his sycknesse, and Iuda his vylaye, * Ephraim wente vnto Assur, and sent vnto kyng Iareb: yet coulde not he helpe you, ner ease you of youre payne. I am vnto Ephraim as a lyon, and as a lyons whelpe to ¶ house of Iuda. Euen, I will spoyle them, ¶ go my waye. I wyll take the wyth me, and no man shall rescue the. I will go, and returne to my place, tyll they knowledge that they haue synned and seke me.

The.vj. Chapter.

¶ Affliccyon causeth a man to returne to God. The wyckednes of the Prestes.

IN their aduersite they shall cryye se me ¶ saye: come, let vs turne agayne to the Lorde: * for he hath smytten vs, and he shall heale vs: he hath wounded vs, and he shall bynde vs vp agayne: after two dayes shall he quycken vs, in the thyrde daye he shall rayse vs vp, so that we shall lyue in his syght. Then shall we haue vnderstãdynge, ¶ endeuoure oure selues to knowe the Lorde. he shall go forth as the spryng of the daye, ¶ come vnto vs * as the euenynge and mornynge rayne vpon the earth.

O Ephraim, what shall I do vnto the? O Iuda, howe shall I intreate the? seyng youre lone is lyke a mornyng cloude, ¶ lyke a dewe ¶ goeth early awaye. Therfore haue I cut downe the prophetes, and let the be slayne for my wordes sake: so that thy punishment shall come to lyght. * For I haue pleasure in louyng kyndnesse ¶ and not in offringe: yee, in the knowledge of God, more the in burnt sacrifyce. But euen lyke as * Adã dyd, so haue they broken my couenaunt, and set me at naught. ¶ Gilead is a cite of wicked doers of malycyous people ¶ bloudthyrsters. And as theues armed wayte for him that passeth by the waye: euen so is the counsell of the prestes whych with one agreed counsell murther cruelye suche as kepe the waye: yee they here do all vnspeakable mischefe. * Horyble thynges haue I sene in the house of Israel, there playeth Ephraim the harlot, & Israel is defyled: yee and thou Juda hepest an harueste for thy selfe, when I returne the captyuitie of my people.

¶ The. vij. Chapter.

¶ Of the heresy and wantonnes of the people.

I Whē I vndertake to make Israel whole, then ꝑ vngraciousnesse of Ephraim and the wyckednes of Samaria commeth to lyght: then go they about to lyes: therfore ꝑ theafe robbeth within: & wout the spoyler destroyeth. They cōsidre not in their hertes that I remembre all their wickednes. Nowe ther awne inuentyōs haue beset thē whych, I se well ynough. * They make the kynge and the pynces, to haue pleasure in theyr wyckednes and lyes. All these burne in aduoutry, as it were an ouen that the baker heateth, when he hath left knedynge, tyll the dowe be leuended. Euen so goeth it this daye with oure kynges and pynces, for they begynne to be wodde dronckē thorowe wyne: they vse familiarite with soch as dissease them. They with the ymaginacyon of their herte are lyke an ouen, their slepe is all ꝑ nyght lyke the slepe of a baker, in the morynge is he as hote as the flame of fyre: they are all together as hote as an ouen.

¶ They haue deuoured their awne iudges, all theyr kynges are fallen: yet is there none of thē ꝑ calleth vpon me. ☞ Therfore must Ephraim be myxte amonge the heathen: Ephraim is become lyke a cake, ꝑ no mā turneth, straūgers haue deuoured his strength, yet he regardeth it not: he waxeth full of gray heares, yet wyll he not knowe it * and ꝑ pryde of Israel is cast downe before theyr face, yet wyll they not turne to ꝑ Lord theyr God, ner seke hym for all thys.

Ephraim is lyke a doue, that is begyled, and hath no herte. * Now call they vpō the Egypcyans, nowe go they to the Assyrias: but whyle they be goynge here and there, I shall spreade my net ouer them, & drawe the downe as the foules of the ayre: & accordyng as they haue bene warned, so will I punishe thē. * Wo be vnto them, for they haue forsaken me. They must be destroyed, for they haue set me at naught, * I am he that haue redemed thē, and yet they dissemble wyth me. * They call not vpon me with theyr hertes, but lye houlynge vpon theyr beddes. Where as they come together, it is but for meate & drynche, and me will they not obeye. I haue taught them, and defended theyr arme, yet do they ymagin myschefe against me. They turne thē selues, but not to the most hyest, & are become as a broken bowe. Their pynces shalbe slayne with the sweorde, for the mayer of theyr tunges, soche scornnes shall they haue in the lande of Egypt.

¶ The. viij. Chapter.

¶ The destruccyon of Juda and Israel, because of theyr ydolatrye.

A Set the horne to thy mouth, and blowe: swyftly (as an Aegle) shall the enemye come against the house of the Lorde: for they haue broke my * couenaūt, & trāsgressed my lawe. Israel shulde haue sayde vnto me: ꝑ art my God, we knowe ꝑ: but he hath refused the thyng ꝑ is good, therfore shall the enemy folowe vpō hym. * They haue ordened kynges, but not thorow me: they haue made pynces, & I must not knowe of it. * Of their syluer & golde haue they made them Images, to bringe them selues to destruccyon. * Thy calf, O Samaria, shalbe taken awaye, for my wrothfull indignacyō is gone forth agaynst the. Howe longe will it be, or they can be clēsed. For the calfe came frō Israel, the worke man made it, therfore cā it be no God, but euē ī peaces shall ꝑ calfe of Samaria be broke. ☞ They haue sowne wynde, therfore shall they reape a storme.

Their sede shall beare no corne, there shall no meale be made of theyr increase: though they reape, yet shall straūgers deuoure it vp. Israel shall perish, the Gētiles shall intreate him as a foule vessell. Hence they wēt vp to the Assyrias, they are become lyke a wylde asse in the deserte.

* Ephraim geueth rewardes to get louers and though they hyre them amonge the heathen, yet nowe wyll I gather thē vp. They shall begynne to be weeryed wyth the burthen of kynges and pynces. Ephraim hath made many aulters to do wyckednes, hys aulters (I saye) be had to his sinne. Though I shewe thē my lawe neuer so moch, they counte it but straūge doctryne. Where as they do sacrifyce, offeryng the flesshe and eatinge it: the Lorde wyll haue no pleasure therin: but wyll remembre theyr wickednes, & punishe their synnes. * Israel turneth agayne into Egipt, they haue forgotten him ꝑ made them, they buylde fayre palaces, and Juda maketh many stronge cyties: * therfore will I sende a fyre into theyr cyties, and it shall consume their places.

¶ The. ix. Chapter.

¶ Of the hunger and captiuitye of Israel.

D Oo ☞ not thou triumphe, O Israel, make no boastynge ouer ioyouse thynges as do the heathen, for thou hast commyted adulltry agaynst thy God: whosoeuer rewardes hast thou loued, more then all the cornefloores. * Therfore shall they nomore enioye the cornefloores and wyne presses, and theyr swete wyne shall fayle them. They will not dwell in the Lordes lande * but Ephraim turneth agayne into Egypte, and eateth vncleane thynges amonge the Assyrias: They poure out no wyne for a drinckoffring vnto the Lorde

the Lorde, nether geue they hym their slayne offrynges: but they be vnto them as mourners meates, wherin all they that eate thē, are defyled. For ꝑ bread that they haue soch lust vnto, shall not come into the house of the Lorde. ☞ What wyll ye do then in the solempne dayes, and in the feast of the Lorde? Lo, they shall get thē awaye for the destruccyon: Egypt shall receaue them, and Noph shall bury them.

The nettles shall ouergrowe theyr pleasaunt goodes, and burres shalbe in their tabernacles. Be ye sure (O Israel) the tyme of visitacyon is come, the dayes of recompensynge are at hande. And then shall Israell knowe that they were deceyued by a prophete folysshe mad, and in a transley: for the multitude of thyne iniquitye God shall multiplye enemyes agaynst the. Ephraim hath made him self a watchmā of my God, a prophete ꝑ is become a snare to do hurte in euery strete, and abhominacyon in the house of his God. They be gone to farre, & haue destroyed them selues, lyke as they dyd afore tyme at Gabaa: therfore theyr wyckednes shalbe remembred, and their synnes punyshed.

I founde Israell lyke grapes in the wyldernes, and sawe their fathers as the fyrst fygges in the toppe of the fygge tre. But they are gone to Baal Peor, & runne awaye fro me to ꝑ shamefull Idolls are become as abhominable as their louers. ☞ Ephraim flyeth lyke a byrde, so shall their glory also: In so moch, that they shall nether begette, cōceaue ner beare chyldren. And though they brynge vp eny, yet will I make them childeles amōge men. Yee, wo shall come to thē, when I depart from them. Ephraim (as me thynckt) is plāted in welthynes, lyke as Tyrus, but nowe must she brynge her awne chyldren forth to the manslayer.

O Lorde thou shalt geue thē: what shalt thou geue them? geue them an vnfrutefull wombe & drye brestes. All their wyckednes is done at Gilgall, there do I abhorre thē. For the vngracyousnes of their awne inuencyons, I will dryue them out of my house. I will loue them nomore, for all their prynces are vnfaythfull. Ephraim is bewen downe, their rote is dryed vp, so ꝑ they shall brynge no more frute, yee, and though they brynge forth eny, yet will I slaye euen the best beloued frute of their body. My God shall cast them awaye, for they haue not bene obedient vnto him, therfore shall they go astraye amonge the Heathen.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ Against Israell and ꝑ Lorde.

Israel was a goodly * vyne, but he hath brought forth vnprofytable frute: yee, ꝑ more frute he had, the mo aulters he made: the more good I dyd to their lande, the more frendshype shewed they to their ymages. Their herte is deuyded, therfore wyll they be destroyed. The Lord shall breake downe their ymages, he shall destroye theyr aulters. Then shall they saye: we haue no kynge, for why? we haue not feared ꝑ Lord. And what shall then the kynge do to vs? They comen together, and sweare vayne othes: they be confederat together, therfore groweth their punishment, as the wedes in the forowes of the lande. * Esa.v.b.c.

They that dwell in Samaria haue worshypped the calfe of Bethaue: therfore shall the people mourne ouer them, yee, & the prestes also, that in theyr welthynesse reioyced wyth them: and why? it shall passe awaye frō them. It shall be brought to the Assirian, for a present vnto kynge Jareb. Ephraim shall receaue full punyshment. Israell shalbe confounded for hys awne ymaginacyons, Samaria wt his kynge shall vanysshe awaye as the scomme in the water. ☞ The hye places of Auen where Israell do synne, shall be cast downe: thystles and thornes shall growe vpō their aulters. * Then shall they saye to the mountaynes: couer vs, and to the hylles: fall vpon vs. * Lu.xxiij.c. Apo.vi.c.

O Israell, thou hast synned as * Gabaa dyd afore tyme, where they remayned: shuld not the batayll then come vpon the wycked chyldren, as well as vpon the Gabaonites? I wyll chasten them, euen after myne awne desyre, the people shalbe gathered together ouer them, when I punysshe them for their great wyckednesse. Ephraim was vnto me, as a cowe ꝑ is vsed to go to plowe, therfore I loued hym, and fell vpon his fayre necke. I dyd oue Ephraim, Juda plowed, and Jacob played ꝑ husbādeman: Sowe vnto righteousnes, and reape the frutes of weldoinge: plowe vp your freshe lande, for it is tyme to seake the Lorde tyll he come and rayne righteousnesse vpon you. But you haue plowed vngodlynes: ye haue reped iniquytie, you haue eaten the frute of lyes. Seynge thou puttest thy cōfydence in thyne awne wayes, and leanest to the multitude of thy worthyes: there shall growe a sedicyon amonge thy people. All thy stronge cyties shalbe layed waste, euen as Salmana was destroyed with his kamplyers, thorowe him that was auenged of Arbell, in the daye of batayll, where the mother perysshed with her chyldren. Euen so shall it go with you (O Bethell) because of youre malicyous wickednesse. Lyke as the morynynge goeth awaye, so shall the kynge of Israel passe. * Jud.xx.a.

¶ The xj. Chapter.

¶ Against the vnkyndnesse of Israell.

¶ When Israell was younge, I loued him: & * I called my sonne oute of the lande of Egypte. But ye more they were called, ye more they wet backe, * offringe vnto Idols of Baal, & censynge Images. & I lerned Ephraim to go, & bare them in myne armes, but they regarded not me, ye wolde haue helped them. I led the with cordes of frendshippe and with bandes of loue. I was euen he, ye layed the yoke vpō their neckes. * I gaue their fode my self that they shulde not go agayne into Egypte. And nowe is Assur theyr kynge. For they wolde not turne vnto me. Therfore shall the swearde begynne in their cyties, the floare ye they haue layed vp, shalbe destroyed and eaten: and ye because of their awne ymaginacyons. And my people shall stonde in a doubte whether to tourne them, for when the prophetes called them to the most hieest, not one yet wolde gyue him his glory.

What greate thynges haue I geuen the, O Ephraim? howe faythfully haue I defended the, O Israel? haue I dealt with the as with * Adama? or haue I intreated ye lyke Seboim? No, my hert is other wise mynded. Yee, my mercy is to feruent: therfore haue I not turned me to destroye Ephraim in my wrothfull displeasure. For I am God and no man. I am euen that holy one in the middest of the, though I came not within the cyte.

¶ The Lorde roareth lyke a lyon, that they maye folowe hym: yee, * as a lyon roareth he, ye they maye be afrayed lyke the chyldren of the see: ye they maye be scatred awaye from Egypte, as me fearre byrdes: & fraped awaye (as doues vse to be) frō the Assyrians lande: and that because I wolde haue them tary at home, sayeth ye Lorde. But Ephraim goeth aboute me with lyes, and ye house of Israell dissembleth. Only Juda holdeth hym with God, and with the true holy thynges.

¶ The xij. Chapter.

¶ Against the wycked vsage of the people.

Ephraim is fed with ayre, and folowe the after ye east winde: he is euer increasynge lyes and destruccyon. They be cōfederate with the Assyrians, * their oyle is caryed into Egypte. The Lorde hath a courte to holde vō Juda, and wyll punyshe Jacob. After their awne wayes and accordynge to theyr awne inuencyons, shall he recōpence the. * He toke his brother by the hele, whē he was yet in his mothers woombe: and in his strength he wrestled with God. He * strouve with the angell, and gatt the victorye: so ye he prayde & desyred hym. * He founde him at Bethell, and there he talketh with vs.

Yee, the Lorde God of hoostes, euen the Lorde him selfe remembred him. Then turne to thy God, kepe mercy and equite, & hope styll in thy God. But ye art lyke ye marchaūt ye hath a false weyght in his hande, he hath a pleasure to occupie ertorcyō. Ephraim thinketh thus: * Tushe, I am rich, I haue good ynough: In all my workes shall not one fawte be founde ye I haue offended. Yet am I the Lorde thy God, euē as when I brought the out of the lande of Egypte, and sett ye in thy tentes, and as in the hye feaste dayes.

I haue spoken thorowe the prophetes, & shewed diuerse dispōs and declared my selfe by the ministracion of the prophetes. But at Gilaad is ye abhominacyō, they are fallen to vanyte. At Gilgal they haue slayne oxen: as many heapes of stones as they had in theyr lāde forowes, so many aulters haue they made. * Jacob fled into ye lāde of Syria, & Israell serued for a wife, & for a wife he kepte sheepe.

By a prophete ye Lorde brought them out of Egypte, and by a prophet he preserued the. But Ephraim hath puoked him to displeasure thorowe his abhominacyons, therfore shall his bloude be poured vpō him selfe, and the Lorde hys God shall rewarde hym hys blasphemyes.

¶ The xiij. Chapter.

¶ Of the abhominacyon of Israell.

When Ephraim spake, the hethen trembled: and he was exalted amōge the Israelytes, but he is gone backe to Baal, therfore must he dye. And nowe they synne more and more: * of their syluer, they make the molten ymages, after the ymaginacyons of ther awne brayne ye is, very ydols, and yet all is nothinge but the worke of the craftesman: Not withstondynge they preache of ye same to such as there sacrifi ceth: who so will kysse ye calues, offreth perfectlye. Therfore, they shalbe as ye morninge cloude, and as the dewe that early passeth awaye and lyke as dust that ye whorle wynde taketh awaye, frō the floore, and as smoke that goeth out of the chymney.

I am the Lorde God, which brought the out of the lande of Egypte: that thou shuldest knowe no God but me onely, and that thou shuldest haue * no Sauioure but only me. I toke diligent hede of the in the wyldernesse ye dyre lande. But when they were well fedde and had ynough, they waxed proude, & forgat me * therfore will I be vnto the as a lyō and as a leopārde in ye waye to ye Assyrians. I will come vpon the as she beare, ye is robbed of her whelpes, & I will breake ye stubborne herte of thein. There will I deuoure the as a lyon: yee: ye wylde beastes shall teare the.

* O Israel, thine iniquite hath destroyed the but in me only is thy helpe. Where are thy kynges nowe, that shulde helpe the in all thy cyties? Yee, and thy iudges, of whom thou saydest:

sayde: * geue me a kyng and princes/ well, I gaue the a kynge in my wrath, and in my displeasure will I take hym fro the agayne. The wyckednesse of Ephraim is bounde to-gether, and hys synne lyeth hyd. Therfore, shall sorowes come vpon hym, as vpon a woman that trauayleth. An vndiscrete sonne is he, for he consydreth not, that he shulde not haue bene able to haue endured in the tyme of hys byrth, had not I defended hym from the graue, and delyuered hym from death.

D * O death, I will be thy death: O hell, I wyll be thy stynge. Yet can I se no comforte, for when he is nowe the goodlyest amonge the brethre, the east wynde (euen the wynde of the Lorde) shall come downe fro the wyldernes, and dryue vp his cõduytes, & dryncke vp his welles: he shall spoyle the treasure of all pleasaunt vessels.

As for Samaria, they shalbe made waste, and why? they are dysobedient vnto theyr God. They shall perysshe with the swearde, theyr chyldren shalbe slayne, and their wemẽ great with chylde shalbe rypte vp.

¶ The.xiiij. Chapter.

¶ The destruccyon of Samaria.

A Israell, * turne the nowe, vnto ꝑ Lorde thy God, * for ꝑ hast taken a greate fall thorowe thy wickednes. ☞ Take these wordes with you, when ye turne to the Lorde, and saye vnto hym: O, forgeue vs all oure synnes, receaue vs graciously, * & then wyll we offre the bullockes of oure lyppes vnto the: Assur shalbe nomore oure helper, neither will we ryde vpon horses eny more. As for the workes of oure handes, we wyll nomore call vpon them: For it is thou that are oure God, thou shewest euer mercye vnto ꝑ fatherlesse.

O (yf they wolde do this) I shulde heale theyr sores: yee, with all my herte wolde I loue them: so that my wrath shulde cleane be turned awaye from them. Yee, I wolde be vnto Israel as the dewe, and he shulde growe as the lylie, and hys rote shulde breake out as Libanus. hys braunches shulde spreade out abrode and be as fayre as the olyue tre and smell as Libanus. They that dwell vnder hys shadowe, shulde come agayne, and growe vp as the corne, & flourysshe as the vyne he shulde haue as good a name, as the wyne of Libanus.

D O Ephraim, what haue I to do wyth Idols eny more? I wyll graciously heare hym, and lede hym forth. I wyll be vnto the as a grene fyrre tre, vpõme shalt thou fynde thy frute. * Who so is wise, shall vnderstand thys: and he that is ryght enstructe, wyll regarde it. * For the wayes of the Lorde are ryghteous, soch as he Godly wyll walke in them. As for the wycked, they wyll stomble therin.

¶ The ende of the prophecye of Oseas.

¶ The booke of Joel the prophete.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ A prophecy agaynst the Jewes. He exhorteth the prestes to prayer and fastynge for the myserye that was commynge at hande.

THys is the worde of ꝑ Lorde, that came vnto Joell the sonne of Phatuel. Heare, O ye elders: ponder this well, all ye that dwell in the lande: yf euer there happened soch a thynge in youre dayes, or in the dayes of youre fathers. Tell youre chyldren of it, and lett them shewe it vnto their chyldren, and so they to certifye theyr posterye therof. Loke what the caterpyller hath lefte, that hath the grashopper eate vp: what the grashoper lefte, that hath the locuste eaten vp: and what the locuste hath left, that hath the blastynge cõsumed. Wake vp ye dronckardes, and wepe: mourne all ye wynesuppers, because of youre swete wyne, for it shall be taken awaye fro youre mouth. Yee, a myghtye and an innumerable people shall come vp into my lande: these haue teeth lyke the teeth of lyons, and chaftbones lyke the lyonelles. * They shall make my vyneyarde waste, they shall pyll of the barcches of my fyggetrees, strype them bare, cast the awaye, and make the braunches whyte.

Make thy moone as a vyrgin doth that gyrdeth her selfe with sacke, because of her byrde grome. For the meate and drynckofferinge shalbe taken awaye from the house of the Lorde, and the prestes the Lordes mynysters shall mourne. The felde shalbe wasted, the lande shalbe in a myserable case: for the corne shalbe destroyed, the swete wyne shall come to cõfusyon, and the oyle vtterly desolate. The housbandmen and the wyne gardeners shall loke pyteously and make lamẽtacyon, for the wheate, wyne and barly, and because the harueste vpon the felde is so clene destroyed. The grapegatherers shall make greate mone, when the vyneyarde and fyggetrees be so vtterly wasted. Yet, all the põgarnettes, palmetrees, apletrees, & the other trees trees of the felde shall wyther awaye. Thus the merye cheare of the chyldren of men, shall come to confusyon.

Gyrde you, and make youre mone, O ye prestes, mourne ye mynistres of the aulter: goo your waye in, and slepe in sack cloth, O ye officiers of my God: for the meat & drinke offeringe shall be taken awaye frō the house of youre God. Proclayme a fastinge, call the congregacyon, gather the elders * and all the inhabitours of the lande together into the house of the Lorde your God, and crye vnto ℣ Lorde: alas, alas for thys daye. And why? the daye of the Lorde is at hāde, and cometh as a destroyer from the almyghtye. Shall not the meates be taken awaye before oure eyes, ☞ the myrth also and ioye from the house of our God? The sede shall perysshe in the grounde, the garners shall lye waste, the floores shalbe broken downe, for ℣ corne shall be destroyed. O what a lyghynge make the kyne? the bullockes are very euell lykynge, because they haue no pasture: and the shepe are famyshed awaye.

O Lorde, to the wyll I crye: for the fyre hath consumed the goodly pastures of the wylderness, and the flame hath brent vp all the trees of the felde. Yee, the wylde beastes crye also vnto the: for the water riuers are dryed vp, and the fyre hath consumed the pastures of the wylderneſſe.

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

¶ The prophecyeth the commynge and cruelties of their enemyes. An exhortacyon to moue them to conuert.

BLowe out the trōpette in Syon, and crye vpon my holy hyll, that all soche as dwell in ℣ lande, maye tremble at it: * for the daye of the Lorde commeth, and is harde at hande: a darcke daye, a gloomynge daye, a cloudy daye, yee, and a mysty daye, lyke as ℣ morynge spreadeth out vpon ℣ hylles. Namely, a greate and myghtye people: soch as haue not bene sence the beginninge, nether shall be after them for euermore. Before him shall be a consumynge fyre, and behynde him a burnynge flame. The lande shalbe as a garden of pleasure before him, but behinde him shall it be a very waste wylderneſſe, and there is no man, that shall escape hym: They are to loke vpon lyke barbed horses, & runne lyke horsmen. They skippe vp vpō the hylles, as it were the sounde of charettes: as the flame of fyre that consumeth the strawe, and as a myghtye people redy to the batayll.

The folke shalbe afrayed of hym, all faces shalbe as blacke as a pot: These shall runne lyke gyaunts, and leape ouer the walles lyke men of warre. Euery man in his goinge shall kepe hys araye, and not goo out of hys path. There shall not one hynder another, but eche shall kepe his awne waye. They shall breake in at the wyndowes, & not be hurte: They shall come into the cytie, & runne vpō the walles. They shall clyme vp vpon the houses, and skyppe in at the wyndowes lyke a thefe. The earth shall quake before hym, yee, ℣ heauens shalbe moued. * The sunne & the moone shall be darckened, and the starres shall withdraw their shyne. The Lord shall shewe hys voyce before hys hoost, for his hoost is greate, stronge, and myghtye to fulfyll hys commaundement. Thys is that greate and marueilous fearfull daye of the Lorde. * And who is able to abyde it?

Nowe therfore sayeth ℣ Lorde. * Turne you vnto me with all your hertes, with fastinge, weepynge and mournynge, rēte youre hertes, and not youre clothes. Turne you vnto ℣ Lord your God. * for he is gracious and merciefull, longe sufferynge and of great cōpassyon: and redy to pardone wyckednes. Then (no doute) he also shall turne, and forgeue, and after his chastenynge, be shall lett your increase remayne, for meat and drinke offrynges vnto ℣ Lord your God? * Blowe out with the trōpette in Syon, proclayme a fastynge, call the congregacyon, and gather the people together: warne the congregacyō, gather the elders, brynge the chyldren & sucklynges together. Lett the bridegrome go forth of his chāber, and the bryde out of her closet. Lett the prestes serue the Lorde betwyxte ℣ porch and the aulter, wepinge and sayinge: be fauourable, O Lorde, be fauourable vnto thy people: let not thyne heritage be brought to soch confusyon, lest ℣ heathen be lordes therof. * Wherfore shulde they saye amonge the heathen: where is nowe their God.

Then shall the Lorde be gelous ouer his lande, and spare hys people: yee, the Lorde shall answere, and saye vnto his people: Beholde, I wyll sende you corne, wyne & oyle, so that ye shall haue plenty of them: and I will nomore geue you ouer to be a reproche amonge the heathen. Agayne, as for him of the north, I shall dryue him farre from you: and thrust him out into a drye & waste lande, his face towarde the east see, and his hynder partes towarde the vtmost see. The stynche of him shall go vp, and his fylthy corrupcyō shall fall vpō him selfe, because he hath dealt so proudly. Feare not (O lande) but be glad and reioyce, for the Lorde will do great thinges. Be not ye afrayed nether (O ye beastes of the felde) for the pastures shalbe grene, and the trees shall beare their fruite: the fygge trees and vyneyardes shall geue their increase.

Be glad then (O ye chyldren of Syon) and reioyce in the Lorde youre God, for he hath hath geuen you a teacher of ryghteousnesse: * & he it is that shall sende you downe showers of rayne, early and late in the fyrst moneth: so that the garners shalbe full of corne, and the presses plenteous in wyne and oyle. And as for the yeares that the grashopper, locuste, blastynge, and caterpyller (my greate hoost, which I sent amonge you) haue eaten vp, I shall restore them to you agayne. so ỳ ye shall haue ynough to eate, & be satisfyed: and prayse the name of the Lorde your God, that so marueilously hath dealte with you.

And my people shall neuer be confounded any more. Ye shall well knowe, that I am in ỳ myddest of Israell, and that I am youre God: yee, and that there is none other, and my people shall no more be brought to confusion.

G * After this, will I poure out my spyrete ☞ vpon all flesh: and your sonnes and your daughters shall yphecy: your olde men shall dreame ☞ dreames, and youre yonge men ☞ shall se visyõs, yee, in those dayes I will poure out my spyrete vpon seruautes and maydens. I will shewe wonders in heauē aboue and tokens in the earth beneth: bloude and fyre, and the vapoure of smoke. The sunne shalbe turned into darckenes, and the mone into bloude: before the greate & notable daye of the Lorde come. And the tyme shall come, that * whosoeuer calleth on the name of the Lorde, shalbe saued. For vpon the mounte Syon and at Jerusalem, there shalbe a saluacyon, lyke as ỳ Lorde hath promysed: yee, and amonge the other remnaunt, whom the Lorde shall call.

¶ The.iij. Chapter:

¶ Of the iudgement of God agaynst the enemyes of hys people.

I For take hede: in those dayes and at the same tyme, when I turne agayne the captiuyte of Juda and Jerusalem: I shall gather all people together, and bringe them in ỳ valley of Josaphat: and there will I reason with the: because of my people and heritage of Israel: whō they haue scatred about in the nacyons: and parted my lāde: yee, they haue cast lottes for my people, the yonge mē haue they set in the bordel house, & solde ỳ damsels for wyne, that they myght haue to drincke.

B * Thou Tirus and Sidon and all ye borders of the Philistines: what haue ye to do wt me? Will ye defye me? well, yf ye will nedes defye me, I shall recompence you, euen vpon your heade, & ỳ ryght worthely: for ye haue taken awaye my syluer and golde, my fayre and goodly Jewels, and brought the into your goddes houses. The chyldren also of Juda and Jerusalem haue ye solde vnto ỳ Grekes, ỳ ye myght bringe them farre from the borders of their awne countrees.

Beholde therfore, I wyll rayse them out of the place, where ye haue solde them, * and will rewarde you euen vpō your head. Your sonnes and youre daughters wyll I sell thorowe the handes of the chyldrē of Juda, and so they shall geue them forth to sell, vnto the of Saba, a people of a farre countre: for the Lorde him selfe hath sayde it. Crye oute these thynges amonge the Gentyles, proclayme warre, wake vp the grauntes, let the drawe nye, let them come vp all ỳ lusty warryours of the. * Make you sweardes of your plowshares, and speares of youre sycles & sythes. Let the weake man saye: I am stroge. Mustre you, & come, all ye heathen rounde about: gather you together, there shall ỳ Lorde laye all thy grauntes to the grounde. Lett ỳ people aryse, & get the to the valley of Josaphat for there will I syt, & iudge all heathē rounde about. * Laye to your sythes, for ☞ ỳ harueste is rype: come, get you downe: the wyne presse is full, yee, ỳ wynepresses runne ouer, for their wickednes is waxen greate.

C * Esa.6.a.

D In the valley appoynted, there shalbe many, many people: for the daye of the Lorde is nye in the valley appoynted. * The sunne & moone shalbe darckened, & the starres shall withdraw their lyght. * The Lorde shall roare out of Syon, and crye out of Jerusalē, that the heauens and the earth shall quake withall. But the Lorde shalbe a defence vnto hys awne people, and a refuge for the chyldren of Israel. Thus shall ye knowe, that I the Lorde youre God dwell vpon my holy mounte of Syon. Then shall Jerusalem be holy, & there shall no straungers go thorowe her any more.

* Joel.2.b. Esa.13.b. D * Jere.25.b.

* ☞ Then shall the mountaynes drope swete wyne, and the hylles shall flowe with mylche. All the ryuers of Juda shall haue water ynough, and out of the Lordes house there shall flowe a spring, to water the broke of * Sitim: but Egypte shalbe layed waste, * and Edom shalbe desolate: because they haue dealte so cruelly with ỳ chyldren of Juda, and shed innocent bloude in their lande. Agayne, Juda shalbe inhabited for euermore, & Jerusalē frō generacyō to generacyō: for I will not leaue their bloude vnauenged. And the Lorde shall dwell in Syon.

* Amos.ix.c. ☞ * Jere.xlvi.a † Jere.xlix.b.

¶ The ende of the prophecye of Joel.

¶ The boobe

¶ The booke of the prophete Amos,

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The tyme of the prophecy of Amos. The worde of the Lorde against Moab, against Tyre, against Edom, and against the sonnes of Ammon.

1 These are the sermons that were shewed vnto Amos, (which was one of the shepherdes at Thecua) vpō Israell, in the tyme of * Oſiah kinge of Juda, and in the tyme of * Jeroboam ꝑ sonne of Joas kynge of Israel, two yeare ☞ before the earth quake. And he sayde: * The Lorde shall roare oute of Sion, and shewe his voyce from Jerusalem: so that the pastures of the shepherdes shalbe in a myserable case, & the toppe of Charmel dryed vp. Thus sayeth the Lorde: for thre and foure wyckednesses of * Damascus, I will not spare her: because they haue throshed Galaad with yron flayles. But I will sende a fyre into the house of Hazaell, the same shall consume the palaces of Benadab. Thus will I breake ꝑ barres of Damascus, and rote out the inhabyter from the felde of Auen, And him that holdeth the scepter, out of the pleasaūt house: so that the people shalbe dryuen out of Syria, sayeth ꝑ Lorde. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lorde: For thre and foure wickednesses of * Gaza, I will not spare her: because they make the prysoners yet more captyue, and haue dryuē them into the lande of Edom. Therfore will I sende a fyre into ꝑ walles of Gaza, whych shall deuoure her houses. I will rote out the that dwell at Asdod and him that holdeth ꝑ scepter of Ascalō, and stretche out myne hāde ouer Accaron, that the remnaunt of the Philistines shall perysshe, sayeth the Lorde.

C Thus sayeth the Lorde: For thre & foure wickednesses of the cytie of * Tyre, I wyll not spare her: because they haue increased the captiuyte of the Edomites, and haue not remembred the * brotherly couenaunt. Therfore, wyll I sende a fyre into the walles of Tyre, that shall consume her palaces. Thus sayeth the Lord: For thre and foure wickednelles of * Edom I wyll not spare hym, because * he persecuted hys brother with the swerde, destroyed his mothers wombe, bare hatred very longe, and so kepte indignacion all waye by hym. Therfore wyll I sende a fyre into Theman, which shall deuoure the palaces of Bosra.

D Thus sayeth the Lorde: for thre & foure wickednesses of the chyldren of * Ammon, I wyll not spare them: because they rypt vp the wemen greate wyth chylde in Galaad, to make the bozders of their landes the wyder. Therfore, I will kyndle a fyre in ꝑ walles of Rabbath, that shall consume her palaces: with a greate crye, in the daye of batayll, in tempest and in the daye of stozme: so that their kynge shall go into captiuyte he & hys princes together, sayeth the Lozde.

¶ The.ij. Chapter.

¶ Against Moab, Juda, and Israel.

Thus sayeth the Lorde: For thre and foure wyckednesses of * Moab, I wyll not spare hym: ☞ because he brent the bones of the kynge of Edom to asshes. Therfore, wyll I sende a fyre into Moab, which shall consume the palaces of Cariath: so that Moab shall perysshe with noyse and the sounde of a shawme. I wyll rote out the iudge from amonge them, & slaye all hys princes with him, sayeth the Lozde. Thus sayeth the Lozde: for thre and foure wyckednesses of * Juda, I wyll not spare him: because he hath cast a syde ꝑ lawe of the Lozde, and not kepte hys commaundementes: for why? * they wolde nedes be disceaued with the lyes that theyr forefathers followed. Therfore, will I sende a fyre into Juda, which shall consume the palaces of Jerusalem.

Thus sayeth ꝑ Lozde: For thre and foure wickednesses of Israel, I will not spare him because he hath solde the ryghteous for money, & the poore for shoes. They treade vpon poore mens heades, in the dust of the earth, & croke the wayes of the meke. The sonne and the father go to the harlot, to dishonoure my holy name, they lye beside euery alter vpon clothes taken to pledge, and in the house of theyr goddes they dryncke the wyne of the oppressed. Yet destroyed I the * Amorite before them, that was as hye as the Cedre trees, and as stronge as the okes: notwithstandynge I destroyed his frute from aboue and his rote from vnder:

* Agayne, I brought you out of ꝑ lande of Egypte, & led you fourty yeares thorowe the wildernes, that ye might haue the Amorites landes in possessiō. I rayled vp prophetes amonge youre chyldren, and abstepners amonge youre yonge men. Is it not so, O ye chyldren of Israel, sayeth the Lorde? * But ye gaue ꝑ abstepners wyne to dryncke, & yee, ye commaūded the prophetes sayinge. Prophecy not. Beholde, I will crasshe you in sonder, lyke as a wayne crasshyth, that is full of sheaues: so that the swifte shall not escape nether the stronge be able to do eny thynge: no, the gyaunte shall not saue his awne lyfe. The archer shall not abyde, and the swyfte of fote of sote shall not escape. The hoysman shall not saue his syse, and he that is as manly of stomach as a gyaunte, shall in that daye be sayne to runne his waye naked, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The.iij. Chapter,

¶ He reproueth the house of Israel of wickednes.

HEare, what the Lord speaketh vnto you (O ye children of Israel) namely, vnto all the tribes, whō I brought out of Egypt, and sayde: * you only haue I accepted frō all the generacyons of the earth: therfore, will I visit you in all your wickednesses. Shall twayne walke together excepte they be agreed amonge them selues? * Doth a lyon roare in the wodde, excepte he haue a praye? Or crieth a lyons whelpe out of his denne, excepte he haue gotten somthinge? Doth a byrde fall in a snare vpon the earth where no fouler is? Taketh a mā his snare vp from the groūde, afore he catche som what? Cry they out Alarum with the trōpet in the cytie, and ỹ people not afrayed? Commeth there eny plage in a cytie without it be the Lordes doynge? Nowe doth ỹ Lorde God no maner of thinge, but he telleth his secrete before vnto hys seruauntes the prophetes. When a lyon roareth, who wyll not be afrayed? Seinge then ỹ the Lorde God him selfe speaketh, * who will not prophecy?

¶ Preach in the palaces at Asdod, and in ỹ palaces of the lande of Egypt, and saye: gather you together vpon the mountaynes of Samaria, so shall ye se greate murther and violent oppressyon amōge thē, for why? they regarde not ỹ thinge that is rycht, sayeth ỹ Lorde: they gather together euell gottē goodes, and laye vp robbery in their houses:

Therfore, thus sayeth the Lorde God. This lande shalbe troubled and beleged rounde about, thy strength shalbe plucte frō ỹ, and thy palaces robbed. Thus sayeth ỹ Lorde. Lyke as an heardman taketh two legges or a pece of an eare out of the lyons mouth: Euen so the chyldrē of Israel (ỹ dwell in Samaria, haunge their couches in the corner, their beddes at Damascus, shalbe plucte awaye. * Heare, & beare recorde in ỹ house of Jacob (sayeth ỹ Lorde God of hoostes) ỹ when I begynne to vysit the wickednesse of Israel, I will vysit ỹ aulters at Bethell also: so that the hornes of the aulter shalbe broken of, and fall to the groūde.

As for the wynterhouse & sommerhouse I will smyte them downe: and the houses of yuery: yee, and many other houses shall perysh, and be destroyed, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The.iiij. Chapter.

¶ Against the gouernors of Samaria.

HEare thys worde ỹ ye fat kyne, that be vpon the hyll of Samaria: ye that do poore men wronge, and oppresse the nedy: ye that saye to your lordes: bringe hyther, let vs drinke. Therfore, the Lorde hath swore by hys holynes: The dayes shall come vpon you, ỹ the enemyes shall carry you away in shyppes, & your posterite shalbe caryed awaye vpō fythers hokes. Ye shall get you out at the gappes one after another, euē the kynges palace shall you ouer throwe, to make awaye to escape, sayeth the Lorde.

Ye came to * Bethell for to worche vngracioulnes, and haue increased your sinnes at * Galgal: ye brought your sacrifyces in ỹ morynge, and youre tythes vnto the thirde daye. Ye made a thankofferynge of leuen, ye promysed free will offeringes, and proclamed them. Soch lust had ye, O ye children of Israel, sayeth the Lord God. Therfore haue I geuen you vele teeth in all youre cyties, and skarsnesse of bred in all your palaces: yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lorde. Whē there were but thre monethes vnto the harueste, * I withelde the rayne from you: ye I rayned vpon one cytie: and not vpō another, one pece of groūde was moysture wt rayne, and the groūde that I rayned not vpon, was drye. Therfore two, yee, thre cyties came vnto one, to drynche water: but they were not satisfyed, yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lorde.

I haue smytten you with drouth & blastinge: and loke howe many orchardes, vyneyardes, fyggetrees & olyuetrees ye had: the caterpyller hath eaten them vp. But yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lorde. Pestylence haue I sent amonge you, * as I dyd in Egypt: your yonge me haue I slayne with the swerde, and caused your horses to be taken captyue: I made the stynkynge sauour of youre tentes to come vp into youre nostrels. Yet will ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lorde. Some of you haue I ouerthrowen, * as I ouerthrewe Sodome and Gomorre: so that ye were as a bronde plucte out of the fyre. Yet wyll ye not turne vnto me, sayeth the Lorde. Therfore, thus will I handle the agayne, O Israel, ye euen thus will I handle the. Make the ready then to mete thy God, O Israel. For lo, he maketh the mountaynes, he ordeyneth the wynde, he sheweth man what he is aboute to do: he maketh the morynge and the darcknes, he treadeth vpon the hye places of the earth: the Lorde God of hoostes is his name.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ A complaynte of the captyuite of Israel.

HEare thys worde, O ye house of Israel, a why? I must make thys mone for you. The vyrgyn Israel shall fall, & neuer ryse vp agayne: she shalbe cast downe vpon her awne

* Ioshu.xxi.a 10. Reg.xii.c.
Oseer.iiii.c.
& Oseer.ix.c.
and.xii.b.

* Deu.xi.b.
and.xxviii.b.
Jerr.xiiii.a.
& xi.iii.c.

* Exo.ix.b.

* Gene.xix.c.
& Deu.xii.b.

awne groūde, and no mā shall helpe her vp.
For thus sayeth the Lorde God: Where as there dwelt a. C. in one cytie, there shalbe left scarce an hundred therin: & where there dwelt an C. there, shall scarce ten be left in the house of Israel. Neuertheles, thus sayeth
B the Lorde vnto the house of Israell: Seke after me, and ye shall lyue, but seke not after Bethel. Come not at Gilgal, and go not to Berlaba: for Gilgal shalbe caryed awaye captyue, and Bethel shall come to naught. Seke the Lorde, that ye maye lyue: lest the house of Joseph be brent with fyre and consumed, & lest there be none to quēche Bethell.
Ye turne the lawe to wormwod, & cast
*Job.ix.a. downe rygh̄teousnes vnto ꝑ grounde. * Ye
C for sake the Lord ꝑ maketh the. vij. starres & ꝑ Orion, ꝑ turneth the nyght into daye, and
*Amos.v.b. of ꝑ daye he maketh darknesse. * He calleth the waters of the see, and poureth them out vpon the playne groūde: the Lorde is hys name. He rayseth destruccyon vpon ꝑ myghtye people, & bringeth downe the stroge holde. But they owe him euell will, ꝑ reproueth them openly: and who so telleth thē the playne trueth, they abhorre hym. For so moche then as ye oppresse the poore, and robbe him
*Deu.xxviij.c Soph.i.c. of his best substenaunce: * therfore, where as ye haue buylded houses of square stone, ye shall not dwell in thē. Marueloꝰ pleasaunt
D vyneyardes shall ye plante, but the wyne of them shall ye not drincke: & why? as for the multitude of youre wyckednesses and youre
*Ero.xxiij.a mich.iij.c. stoute synnes, I knowe them ryght well. Enemyes are ye of the rygh̄teous, * ye take rewardes, ye oppresse ꝑ poore in iudgemēt. Therfore, the wyse must nowe be fayne to holde his tunge, so wycked a tyme is it.
Se be after the thinge that is good, & not euell, so shall ye lyue: yee, the Lorde God of hoostes shalbe with you, accordinge to your
*Ps.xcvi.b. Roma.xii.b. 2Deu.xxx.b. awne desyre. * hate the euell, and loue the good: & set vp rygh̄te agayne in the porte: and (no doute) the Lorde God of hoostes shalbe mercyfull vnto the remnaunt of Joseph. If E no (sayeth the Lorde God, ꝑ God of hostes) there shall be mournynge in all stretes, yee, they shall saye I euery strete: alas, alas. They shall call the housbandman to lamentacyon, and soch as can mourne to mournynge. In all vyneyardes there shall be heuynesse, for I will come amonge you, sayeth the Lorde. Wo be vnto them that desyre the daye of the Lorde. Wherfore wolde ye haue it? As for ꝑ daye of the Lorde, it shalbe darcke and not cleare. Yee, lyke as when a man runneth frō a lyon, and a Beer meteth with him: or whē he cōmeth into the house, & leaneth hys hāde F vpon the wall, a serpent byteth him. Shall
*Joel.ii.b. Sopho.i.c. not the daye of the Lorde be darcke, * & not cleare? shall it not be cloudy, & no shyne in it?
*Esa.i.b. and.lviij.a. * I hate and abhorre your holy dayes, & where as ye cense me when ye come together, I wyll not accepte it. And though ye offre me brent offrynges and meat offrynges, yet haue I no pleasure therin. As for your fat thanckoffrynges, I wyll not loke vpon them: I waye with that noyse of thy songes, I will not heare thy playes of musyck: but let that equytie flowe as the water, and rygh̄teousnesse as a myghtye stream.
G Oye house of Israel, * gaue ye me offrynges and sacrifyces those fourty yeares longe in the wyldernes? yet haue ye set vp tabernacles to your * Moloch, and ymages of your Idols, yee, and the starre of your God Rempha, fygures which ye made to worshyppe them. Therfore wyll I cause you to be caryed awaye beyonde Damascus, sayeth the Lord, whose name is the God of hostes.

*Mich.vi.a. *Amos.v.b.

¶ The. vj. Chapter.

¶ Against the prynces of Israell spynge in pleasures.

Wo be to ꝑ proude welthy in Syō to soch as thinke them so sure vpon the mount of Samaria? whych holde them selues for the best of the worlde, and rule the house of Israel, euen as they lyst. Go vnto Calne, and se: and from thence get you to Hemath the great cytie, & so go downe to Gath of the Philistines: be they better at ease then these kyngdomes, or the border of their lande wyder then yours? Ye are taken out for the euell daye, euen ye that sytt in the stole of wyckednesse. Ye that lye vpō beddes of Yuery, and vse youre wā-
B tonnesse vpon your couches: ye that eate the best lambes of the flocke, & the fattest calues of the droue: ye that synge to the lute, and in playenge of instrumentes compare youre selues vnto * David: ye that dryncke wyne
*1ā.vij. c.vi.b. out of goblettes, and anoynte youre selues with the best oyle, but no mā is sory for Josephs hurte. Therfore, nowe shall ye be the fyrst of them, that shall be led awaye captyue, and the lusty chere of the wylfull shall come to an ende.
* The Lorde God hath sworne euen by C him selfe (sayeth the Lorde God of hostes) I hate the pryde of Jacob, and I abhorre his palaces: and I will geue ouer the cytie, with all that is therin: so that though there remayne ten men in one house, they shall dye. And their nexte kynsfolckes and the deed buriers shall take them, and cary awaye the ꝑ bones, and saye vnto him, that is in the vnnermer house: is there yet eny mo by ꝑ? And he shall answere: they are all gone, holde thy tunge (shall he saye) * for they wolde not remembre the name of the Lorde.
*Am.v.b. *Dut.xii.a.
Beholde, the Lorde is mynded to smyte the greate houses, so that they shall decaye: and the lytie houses, ꝑ they shall cleue a sunder. Who can ranne vp hylles, or plowe with oxen

orcn vpō ꝑ harde rockes of stone? For why pe haue turned true iudgement into bytternesse & ꝑ frute of ryghteousnesse ito worm-wod: Yee, euē ye, that reioyse in vayne thin
ges: ye ꝑ saye: haue not we optayned hor-nes in oure awne strength? Wel, take hede,
O ye house of Israel, sayeth the Lorde
God of hoostes: I will bringe a people vpō
you, whych shall trouble you, from ꝑ waye
that goeth towarde Hemath, vnto the bro-
he in the medowe.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ Of the captiuyte of Israel and Juda.

THe Lorde God shewed me soch a vp-syon: beholde, there stode one that ma de greshoppers, euen when the corne
was shotynge forth, after ꝑ king had clypt his shepe. Now when they vndertoke to eate vp all the grene thinges in the lande, I sayde: O Lord God, be mercyfull, I beseche
the: who shulde els helpe vp Jacob that is brought so lowe? So the Lorde was gracious therin, and the Lord sayde: well, it shall not be. Agayne, ꝑ Lord shewed me thys vi syon: beholde, the Lorde God called the fy-re to punysh wythall, ād it deuoured ꝑ great depe: yee, it cōsumed a parte all redy.
Then sayde I: O Lorde God, holde thyne
hande: for who shulde els helpe vp Jacob ꝑ is brought so lowe? So the Lord was mercyfull therin, and the Lorde God sayd: wel,
it shall not be.

Moreouer, he shewed me thys vysyō: be-holde, the Lord stode vpon a plastered wall and a masons trowel in his hande. And the Lord sayd vnto me: Amos, what seest thou
I answered: a masons trowell. Then sayde
the Lorde: beholde, I wyll laye the trowell
amōge my people of Israel, & wyll nomore
ouer se them, but ꝑ hye hylchapels of Isaac must be layed waste, and the churches of Is rael made desolate, * ād as for the house of Jeroboā, I wyll stande vp agaynst it with the swerde. Vpon thys sent Amasyah the prest to Bethel vnto Jeroboam the kynge
of Israel, sayēge. * Amos maketh the house of Israel to rebel agaynst the, ꝑ lāde can not awaye wyth hys wordes. For Amos sayeth, Jeroboā shall dye wyth the swerde,
and Israell shall be led awaye captiue out of theyr awne lande. And Amasiah sayde vnto Amos, Gett the hēce * (ꝑ ꝑ canst se so well) and fle into the lande of Juda: get the
there thy lyuinge, and prophecy there: and prophecy nomore at Bethell, for it is the kynges chapell, and the kynges courte.

Amos answered, and sayde to Amasiah:
* As for me I am nether prophet, ner prophetes sonne: but a keper of catell. Now as I was breakynge downe molberies, & goig
after the catell, the Lorde toke me, ād sayd vnto me: Go thy waye, and prophecy vnto
my people of Israell. And therfore, heare ꝑ nowe the worde of the Lorde: Thou sayest:
prophecy not agaynst Israel, ād speake no-thynge agaynst the house of Isaac. wherfo
re, thus sayeth ꝑ Lord: Thy wyfe shalbe defyled in the cytie, thy sonnes and daughters
shall be slayne with the swearde, & thy lāde shalbe measured out wyth ꝑ line. Thou thy selfe shalt dye in an vnclene lāde, * & Israel
shalbe dryuen out of his awne contre.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Agaynst the rulers of Israell. The Lorde sweareth that he wyll faithfull the thynges whych he hath determyned agaynst Israell.

THe Lorde God: shewed me thys vy-syon: and beholde, there was a maunde vō sommer frute. And he sayde:
Amos, what seyst thou? I answered: a maunde vō sōmer frute. Then sayde the Lorde vnto me: the ende cōmeth vpon my people of Israel, I wyll nomore ouerse them. In ꝑ daye shall the songes of the tēple be turned into sorowe, saieth ꝑ Lord God, many deed
bodyes shall lye in euery place, and be cast forth secretly. * Heare thys, O ye that op-presse the poore, and destroye the nedy i the lande, saying: Whē will the new moneth be gone, that we maye sell vytayle, & the Sab
both, that we maye haue scarcenesse of cor-
ne: to make the bushel lesse, and the Sycle greater? We shall set vp false wayghtes, ꝑ
we maye get the poze vnder vs wyth theyr money, and the nedy also for shoes: yee, let vs sell the chaffe for corne.

* The Lord hath sworne agaynst ꝑ pryde
of Jacob: these workes of theyrs wyll I neuer forget. Shall not the lande tremble, ād
all they that dwell therin, mourne for this?
Shall not theyr destruccyon come vpō thē
lyke a water streame, and flowe ouer thē as ꝑ floude of Egypte? * At ꝑ same tyme (sayeth the Lord God) ☞ I shall cause the Sū ne to go downe at none, and the lande to be darcke in the cleare daye. * Your hye feastes wyll I turne to sorowe, & youre songes to mournynge: I will bringe sack cloth vpon
all backes, and baldnes vpon euery head:
yee, soch a mournynge wyll I sende them.
* as is made vpon an only begotten sonne,
and they shall haue a myserable ende.

Beholde, the tyme commeth (sayeth the Lorde God) that I shall sende an hunger in to the earth: ☞ not the hunger of bred, ner
the thyrst of water: but an hūger to heare ꝑ
worde of the Lorde: so ꝑ they shall gofrō ꝑ
one see to ꝑ other, yee, frō ꝑ north vnto the east, rūnynge aboute to seke ꝑ worde of the Lorde, & shall not fynde it ☞ In ꝑ tyme,
shall the fayre virgins & the ponge men pe-
rysh for thyrst, yee, euen they that sweare
in the execrable calfe of Samarya, & saye:
as truly as thy God lyueth at Dan, and as truly as thy God lyueth at Berſaba. Theſe ſhall fall, and neuer ryſe vp agayne.

QQ truly

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ Threatenynges agaynſt Iſrael. No man can eſcape the hande of God.

I Sawe the Lorde ſtandynge vpō the aulter, & he ſayde: ſmyte the doze the ꝛc, ꝓ the poſtes maye ſhake wythall. For theyr couetouſneſſe ſhall fall vpon all theyr heades, & theyr poſterite ſhalbe ſlayne with the ſwerde. * They ſhall not flie awaye, there ſhall not one of them eſcape, ner be delyuered. * Though they were buryed in the hell, my hande ſhall fetch thē from thence: though they clyme vp to heauen, yet ſhall I caſt them downe: though they hyde them ſelues vpon ꝓ toppe of Carmel, yet ſhall I ſeke them out, and bꝛynge them from thece: though they crepe downe from my ſyght into the depe of the ſee, I ſhall commaūde the ſerpente, euen there to byte them. If they goo awaye before theyr enemyes into captiuite, then ſhall I commaūde the ſwerde, there to ſlaye them.

Thus wyll I ſett myne eyes vpon thē for theyr harme and not for theyr wealth. For whē ꝓ Lorde God of hooſtes toucheth a lāde, it cōſumeth awaye, and all they ꝓ dwell therin, muſt nedes mourne: And why? theyr deſtruccyon ſhall aryſe as euery ſtreame & runne ouer them, as the floude in Egypte. * He that hath hys dwellynge in heauen, & groundeth hys tabernacle in the earth: * he that calleth the waters as the ſee, & pourcth them out vpon the playne grounde: his name is ꝓ Lorde. O ye chyldren of Iſrael, are ye not vnto me, euen as ꝓ Hozpans, ſayeth the Lorde: haue not I bꝛought Iſrael out of the lande of Egypte, * The Philiſtynes frō Capthoꝛ, and the Syꝛians from Cyꝛ? Beholde, the eyes of the Lorde are vpon the realme that ſynneth, to rote it clene out of the earth: Neuertheleſs, * I will not vtterly deſtroye the houſe of Jacob, ſayeth the Lorde.

For lo this I promyſe: though I ſyfte ꝓ houſe of Iſrael amōge all nacyons (lyke as they vſe to ſyfte in a ſyue) yet ſhall not the ſmalleſt grauell ſtone fall vpon the earth: But all ꝓ wicked doers of my people, that ſaye: Tuſh, the plage is not ſo nye, to come ſo haſtely vpon vs: thoſe ſhall peryſh wyth the ſwerde. * At that tyme will I buylde agayne the ☩ tabernacle of Dauid, that is fallen downe, and hedge vp his gappes: and loke what ys bꝛoken, I ſhal repayꝛe it: yee, I ſhall buylde it agayne, as it was afoze tyme that they maye poſſeſſe the remnaūt of Edom, yee, and all ſoch people as call vpon my name wyth thē, ſayeth ꝓ Lorde, whych doth theſe thynges.

Beholde, the tyme commeth (ſayeth the Lorde) that the plowman ſhall ouer take ꝓ mower, & treader of grapes, hym that ſoweth ſede. * The mountaynes ſhall dꝛoppe ſwete wyne, ād the hylles ſhall be frutefull & I wyll turne the captiuyte of my people of Iſraell: they ſhal repayꝛe ꝓ waſte cyties, and haue them in poſſeſſion: they ſhall plāte vyneyardes, ād dꝛynche the wyne therof they ſhall make gardēs, & eniope the frutes of them. And I wyll plante thē vpon theyr awne grounde, ſo that I will neuer rote them out agayne from theyr lande which I haue geuen them ſayeth the Lorde thy God.

¶ The ende of the Prophecye of Amos.

¶ The booke of the Prophete Abdy.

¶ Agaynſt Edom, & the truſt that they had in ryches.

THyꝛs is the viſyon ꝓ was ſhewed vnto Abdy. Thus hath the Lord God ſpoken vpō * Edom: We haue hearde of ꝓ Lorde that there is an embaſſage ſent amōge the heathen: Vp let vs aryſe, and fyght agaynſt them. Beholde, * I wyll make the ſmall amonge the heathen, ſo that thou ſhalt be vterly deſpyſed. The pꝛyde of thyne herte hath lyft ꝓ vp thou that dwelleſt in ꝓ ſtronge holdes of ſtone, & haſt made the an hye ſeate: Thou ſayeſt i thyne hert: who ſhall caſt me downe to the grounde? * But though thou weꝛeſt vp as hye as the Aegle, and madeſt thy ſ nett aboue amonge the ſtarres: yet wolde I plucke the downe frō thence. If the theues and robbers came to the by nyght, thou takige thy reſt: ſhulde they not ſteale, tyl they had ynough? If the grape gatherers came vpō the, wolde they not leaue the ſome grapes? But how ſhall they ryppe Eſau, and ſeke out hys treaſures?

Yee, the men that were ſwoꝛne vnto the, ſhal dꝛyue ꝓ out of ꝓ boꝛders of thyne awne lande. They that be now at one w̄ the, ſhall diſceaue the, and ouercome the: Euen they ꝓ eate thy bꝛed, ſhal betraye the, oꝛ euer thou perceaue it. * Shall not I at ꝓ ſame tyme deſtroye the wyſe men of Edom, ād thoſe ꝓ haue vnderſtandyng frō ꝓ mount of Eſau? Thy gꝛaūters (O Themā) ſhalbe afrayed, foꝛ thoꝛow ꝓ ſlaughter they ſhalbe all ouerthꝛowne vpon the mount of Eſau. Shame ſhall come vpon ꝓ, foꝛ the malyce that thou ſhewedeſt to thy * bꝛother Jacob: yee, foꝛ euermoꝛe ſhalt thou periſh, ād that becauſe of

of the tyme, when thou dydest let thy selfe agaynst hym, euen when ꝑ enemyes caryed awaye hys hoost, & when ꝑ aleauntes came in at his portes, & cast lottes vpon Jerusalem, and thou thy selfe wast as one of them.

D Thou shalt nomore se the daye of thy brother, thou shalt nomore beholde the tyme of hys captiuite: ꝑ shalt nomore reioyse ouer the childrē of Juda, in the daye of theyr destruccyon, thou shalt tryūphe nomore in ꝑ tyme of theyr trouble. Thou shalt nomore come in at the gates of my people, in the tyme of theyr decaye: thou shalt not se theyr misery in the daye of theyr fall.

Thou shalt sende out no mā agaynst theyr E hoost, in the daye of theyr aduersyte: nether shalt thou stande waytynge any more at ꝑ corners of ꝑ stretes, to murthur soch as are fled, or to take thē presoners, that remayne in the daye of theyr trouble. For ꝑ daye of ꝑ Lorde is harde by vpon all the heathen.

*Jere.l.c Iosu.xv.b * Lyke as thou hast done, so shalt thou be dealte wythall, yee, thou shalt be rewarded euen vpon thyne head. For lyke wyse as ye haue dronchen vpō myne holy hyll, so shall all heathen drynche cōtynually: yee, drinke shall they, and swalowe vp, so that ye shalbe, as though ye had neuer bene.

☞ But ☞ vpon the mount Syon shall ꝑ F saluacyō be, and holynes, these shalbe holy, & the house of Jacob shall possesse euen those, *that had them selues afore in possessiō. *psalm.lxi.b Moreouer ☞ the house of Jacob shalbe a ☞ fyre, the house of Joseph a flame, and the, * Jere.b.s house of Esau shalbe ꝑ strawe: whych they G shall kyndle and consume, so that nothyng shalbe left of the house of Esau, the Lorde hym selfe hath sayde it. They of the South shall haue the mount of Esau in possession: and loke what lyeth vpon the grounde, that shall the Philystynes haue: the playne feldes shall Ephraim and Samaria possesse: and the mountaynes of Galaad shall Benjamin haue: And thys hoost shalbe ꝑ chyldren of Israels presoners: Now what so lyeth from Canaan vnto Zareptah, and in Sepharad, that shalbe vnder the subiectyō of Jerusalem: and the cyties of the south shall enherett it. Thus they that escape vpon the hyll of Syon, shall go vp to punysh the mount of Esau, * and the kyngdome shalbe the Lordes, *psalm.xliiii.b

¶ The ende of the boke of the prophecye of Abdy.

¶ The boke of the Prophete Jonas.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Of the flyght of Jonas when he was sente to preache. A tempeste ariseth, and casteth hym in the see for hys disobedyence.

THe worde of the Lorde came vnto * Jonas ꝑ sonne of Amythay, saying: * Aryse, & get ꝑ to Ninyue that * greate cyte: and preache vnto thē, how that * theyr wyckednes is come vp before me. And Jonas made hī ready to flē ☞ vnto Tharsis from the presence of the Lorde, and gat hym downe to Joppa: where he founde a shyp ready for to go vnto Tharsis. So he payde hys fare, & went afore, that he myght go with them vnto Tharsis, from the presence of ꝑ Lorde. But the Lorde hurled a greate wynde into the see, and there was a myghtye tempest in the see: so that the shyppe was in ieoperdy of goynge in peces. Then the maryners were afrayde, and cryed euery man vnto his God: and the goodes that were in the shyppe, they cast into ꝑ see, to lyghten it of them. But Jonas gatt hym vnder the hatches, where he layed him downe & slōbred. A *1.Esdr.xiiii.c. ☞ *Jonas.iii.b *Gene.x.c *Gen.xlvii.c

So the master of the shyppe came to him B and sayde vnto him: why slomberest thou? Vp, call vpon thy God: yf God (happely) wyll thynke vpon vs, that we perysh not. And they sayde one to another: come, let vs cast lottes: that we maye knowe, for whose cause we are thus troubled. * And so they cast lottes, and the lot fell vpon Jonas. *Josu.vii.c.

Then sayd they vnto him: tel vs, for whose cause are we thus troubled? what is thyne occupacyō? whence cōmest thou? (and whether goest thou)? what coūtre man art thou, & of what nacyō? He answered them: I am an Ebrue, and I feare the Lorde God of heauen, whych made both the see, & drye lande. C Then were the men exceadyngly afrayed, & sayde vnto hym: why dydest ꝑ so? (for they knewe, that he was fledde from the presence of the Lorde, because he had tolde thē) & sayd moreouer vnto hī: What shall we do vnto the, that the see maye ceasse frō troublynge vs? (for the see wrought and was troublous) he answered them: Take me, & cast me into the see, so shall it lett you be in rest: D for I wote, it is for my sake, that this great tempeste is come vpon you.

Neuertheles, the men assayed wyth rowynge, to bryngе the shyppe to lande: but it wolde not be, because the see wrought so: & was so troublous agaynst them. Wherfore they cryed vnto ꝑ Lord, & sayde: * O Lord let vs not perysh for thys mans death, *Deu.xxi.b.

nether laye thou innocent blonde vnto our charge: for thou, O Lord, hast done, euē as thy pleasure was.

So they toke Jonas, and cast hym into the see, and the see lefte ragynge. And ¶ mē feared the Lorde exceadyngly, doyng sacrifyces and makinge vowes vnto the Lorde.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Jonas is swalowed of a whale. The prayer of Jonas

A
* Mat.xii.b

But the Lorde prepared a greate fyshe, to swalow vp Jonas * So was Jonas in ¶ bely of ¶ fysh, thre dayes & thre nyghtes. And Jonas prayed vnto the Lorde hys God, out of the fyshes bely, and sayd. ¶ In my trouble I called vnto the Lorde, and he herde me: out of ¶ bely of hell I cryed, & thou herdest my voyce. Thou haddest cast me downe depe in the myddest of the see, & the floude cōpased me ¶ Psal.cxx.c.

B
* Psal.xlii.b

aboute: yee, * all thy waues and roules of water went ouer me. I thought that I had bene cast awaye out of thy syght: but I will yet agayne loke towarde thy holy temple.

The waters compased me, euen to ¶ peryll of soule: the depe laye aboute me, & the wedes were wrapte aboute myne head. I wēt downe to the botome of the hylles, and was barred in with earth for euer. But thou, O

C Lorde my God, hast brought vp my lyfe agayne out of corrupcio. When my soule fainted wythin me, I thought vpon the Lorde: & my prayer came in vnto the, euen into thy holy temple.  They that hold of vayne vanyties, wyll forsake his mercy. But I will do the sacrifyce with the voyce of thākesge vynge, & wyll paye that I haue vowed: for why? saluacyon commeth of the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto the fysh, and it cast out Jonas agayne vpon the drye lande.

**
D

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Jonas is sent agayne to Ninive. The repentaunce of the kyng of Ninive.

A
* Jona.i.a.

Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Jonas agayne, sayenge * vp, and get the to Ninive ☞ that great cytie & preach vnto them ¶ preachynge which I bade the. So Jonas arose, & wente to Ninive at the Lordes commaundement. Ninive was a greate cyte vnto God, namely, of thre dayes iourney.

B
* Ec.xxvii.a

And Jonas wente to, & entred into the cytie: euen a dayes iourney, & cryed, sayēge: There are yet .xl. dayes ād then shall Ninive be ouerthrowen. ☞ * And the people of Ninive beleued God, and proclaymed fastynge, and arayed thē selues in sack cloth, as well the greate as the small of thē. And the tydinges came vnto the kyng of Ninive which arose out of hys seate, and layd hys apparell of and put on sack cloth, and sate hym downe in asshes.

C
* Mat.xii.a. Luke.xi.c

And it was cryed & commaunded in Ninive, by the auctorite of the kynge and hys Lordes, sayenge: * se that nether man or beest, ore or thepe taste ought at all: ād ¶ they nether fede ner drynke water: but put on sack cloth both man & beast: and crye myghtely vnto God: * yee, se that euery mā turne fro his euell waye, and from the wyckednesse, that he hath in hande.

* Jer.xviii.c

Who can tell? God maye turne, & repente, and cease from his fearee wrath, that we perysh not. And whē God sawe they? workes how they turned from their wicked wayes * he repented on the euell, which he sayd he wolde do vnto them, and dyd it not.

D
* Gen.xviii.b.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ Jonas is rebuked of God.

A

Therfore Jonas was sore dyscontent and angrie. And he prayed vnto the Lorde, and sayde: O Lorde, was not thys my sayinge (I praye the) when I was yet in my countre? therfore I hasted rather to fle vnto Tharsis, * for I knowe wel ynough that thou art a mercyfull God, full of compassyon, longe sufferyng, and of greate kyndnes and repentest when thou shuldest take punyshment, * And now O Lord, take my lyfe fro me (I beseche ¶) for I had rather dye then lyue. Then sayde the Lord: art thou so āgrie? And Jonas gat hym out of the cytie, and satt downe on the east syde therof: and there made hym a booth, ād sat vnder it in the shadowe, tyll he myght se,

* Psa.lxxxvi. Joel.ii.c.

* iii.Reg.xix.a

B
what shulde chaunce vnto the cytie.

And the Lord God prepared a wylde vyne, whych sprange vp ouer Jonas, that he myght haue shadowe aboue his head, to delyuer hym out of his payne. And Jonas was exceadynge glad of the wylde vyne.

C
But vpon the nexte morowe agaynst ¶ spryng of ¶ daye. The Lord ordened a worme, whych smote the wylde vyne, so that it wythered awaye. And when ¶ Sunne was vp, God prepared a feruent east wynde: & ¶ Sunne bett ouer ¶ head of Jonas, that he faynted agayne, & wyshed vnto his soule, that he myght dye, ād sayd: It is better for me to dye, then to lyue. And God sayd vnto Jonas: Art thou so angrie for ¶ wylde vyne? And he sayd: yee, very angrie am I, euē vnto the deeth. And ¶ Lord sayd: thou hast compassion vpon a wylde vyne, wheron ¶ best owdest no labour: ner madest it growe whych sprange vp in one nyght & perysshed in another: And shulde not I then haue cōpassyō vpō Ninive that greate cytie, wherin there are aboue an .C. .x. .xx. thousand persones, that knowe not their ryght hand from the lefte, beslydes moch catell?

D

¶ The ende of the Prophecye of Jonas.

¶ The boke of the Prophete Micheas.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Of the destruccyon of Samaria because of their Idolatrye.

A Thys is the worde of the Lorde, þ came vnto Micheas þ Morasthite, i the dayes of * Jothan, Ahas and * Jehezekiah kynges of Juda: whych was shewed hym vpon Samaria & Jerusalē. * Heare al ye people, marcke this well O earth and all that therin is. Yee, þ Lorde God hym selfe be wytnesse amonge you euen the Lord frō his holy temple. For why? * beholde, þ Lorde shall go out of his place, & come downe, & treade vpon the hye thynges of the earth. The mountaynes shall cōsume vnder him, & the valleyes shal cleue asunder: lyke as waxe cōsumeth at the fyre, & as the waters runne downwarde. And all thys shalbe for the wyckednesse of Jacob. and the synnes of the house of Israel.

But what is the wyckednesse of Jacob? Is not * Samaria? Whych are the hye places of Juda? Is not * Jerusalem? Therfore I shall make Samaria an heape of stones i the felde, to laye aboute the vyneyarde: her stones shall I cast into the valley, and discouer her foundacyons. All her Images shall be broken downe & all her garmentes shall be brent in the fyre: yee, all her Idols will I destroye: for why? * they are gathered out of þ hyre of an whore, & into an whores hyre shall they be turned agayne. Wherfore I will mourne & make lamentacīō, bare & naked will I go: I must mourne lyke the dragons, and take sorowe as the Estriches: for þr wounde is past remedy: And why? it is come into Juda, & hath touched the porte of my people at Jerusalem alredy. * Wepe not, lest they at Geth perceaue it.

Thou at Bataphra, welter thy selfe in þ dust & asshes. Thou þ dwellest at Sephyr, get the hence with shame. The proude shall boost nomore for verye sorowe: and why? her neyghboure shal take frō her what she hath The rebellyous cytie hopeth, þ it shall not be so euell: but for all þ, the plage shall come from the Lorde, euen into the porte of Jerusalē, The greate noyse of þ charettes shall feare the, that dwell at * Lachys, which is an occasyon of the synne of the daughter of Syon, for in the came vp the wyckednesses of Israel. Yee, she sent her courlers into the landes of Geth.

The houses of lyes will dysceaue þ kynges of Israel. And as for þ (O thou þ dwellest at Mozalla) I shal bring a possessioner vpon þ, & the plage of Israel shal reach vnto Odolla. Make the balde, & shaue the, because of thy tender chyldren: Make the clene balde as an Aegle, for they shalbe carped awaye captiue from the.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Of reasonynges agaynst the frawfull people.

O Wo vnto them, that Imagyn to do herme, & deuyse vngracyousnesse vpō their beddes, to perfourme it i þ cleare daye: for ther power is agaynst God. When they couet to haue landes, * they take it by vyolence, they robbe men of their houses.

Thus they oppresse a man for his house & euery man for his herytage. Therfore thꝰ sayeth the Lorde: Beholde * agaynst thys housshold haue I deuysed a plage, wherout ye shall not plucke your neckes: Ye shall nomore go so proudly, for it wyll be a perlous tyme. In that daye shal thys terme be vsed and a mournynge shalbe made ouer you on thys maner: We be vtterly desolate, þ porcyon of my people is translated. Wha will he parte vnto vs the landes, that he hath taken from vs?

Neuertheles * there shalbe noman to deuyde the thy porcyon in the cōgregacyon of þ Lorde. Tush, holde your tūge (saye they) It shall not fall vpon thys people, we shall not come so to confusyon, sayeth the house of Jacob. Is þ spirite of the Lorde so cleane awaye? or is he so milde? Treuth it is, my wordes are frendly vnto the þ lyue ryght: but my people doth the contrary, therfore must I take parte agaynst them: for they take awaye both cote and cloke from the symple.

Ye haue turned youre selues to fyght, the wemen of my people haue ye shut out from their good houses, & taken awaye my excellent gyftes from their childrē. Up, get you hence, for here shall ye haue no rest.

Because of their Idolatrye they are corrupte, & shal myserably perysh. If I were a fleshly felowe, & a preacher of lyes, & tolde them that they myght syt bybbynge & bollyng, & be droncken. O þ were a Prophete for thys people, But I will gather the i dede, O Jacob, & dryue þ remnaunt of Israell all together. I shal carye them one with another, as a flocke in the folde, and as þ catell in their stalles, that they maye be dysquyeted of other mē. Who so breaketh þ gappe, he shall go before. They shall breake vp þ porte, & go in & out at it. The kynge shall go before them, and the Lorde shalbe vpon the head of them.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Agaynst the tyrannye of Princes, and false Prophetes.

A

*Deu.xviii.d
Jerem.v.a Psa.lxxvii.a
Esaye.b.c

And I sayde: heare, O ye heades of the house of Jacob, & ye leders of þ house of Israell: * Shulde not ye knowe, what were lawfull and ryght? * But ye hate the good, and loue the euel: ye pincke of mennes skynnes, and the flesh from theyr bones: ye eate the flesh of my people, and flay of theyr skynne: ye breake theyr bones, ye choppe them in peces as it were in to a cauldron, & as flesh into a pot.

*Esa.i.b
Eze.viii.c
Zach.vii.b.

Now the tyme shall come, * that whē they call vnto the Lorde, he shall not heare the, but hyde hys face from them, because that thorow theyr awne Imagynacyons they haue dealte so wyckedly.

And as concernynge the prophetes that dysceaue my people, thus the Lorde sayeth

* Ezec.xiii.b

against them. * When they haue eny thynge to byte vpon, then they preach that all shalbe well: but yf a man put not some thig in to theyr mouthes, they preach of warre against hym.

*Deu.xviii.c

* Therfore youre vysyon shalbe turned to nyght, & youre prophecienge to darcknesse. The Sunne shall go downe ouer those prophetes, & the daye shalbe darcke vnto the. Then shall the vysyon seers be ashamed, and the sothsayers confounded: yee, they shalbe fayne, all the packe of them, to stoppe theyr mouthes, for they haue not Gods worde. * As for me, I am full of strēgth, & of þ spyrite of the Lorde, full of iudgement & boldnesse: to shewe the house of Jacob theyr wyckednes, and the house of Israel theyr synne.

*Jere.i.c
Ezech.iii.a

D

O heare this ye rulers of the house of Jacob, & ye iudges of þ house of Israel, ye that abhorre the thynge that is lawfull, & wrest asyde þ thyng þ is streyght. * Ye that buylde vp Syon with bloude, and Jerusalem wt

* Habac.ii.b
‡ Ezech.xvii.b

doynge wronge. ‡ O ye iudges, ye geue sentēce for gyftes: O ye preastes, ye teach for lucre. * O ye prophetes, ye prophecy for mony. Yet will they be taken as those þ holde vpō God, and saye: Is not the Lorde amōge vs? Tush, there can no mysfortune happen vs. ‡ Therfore shall Sīō (for youre sakes) be plowed lyke a felde * Jerusalem shall become an heape of stones, and the hyll of the temple shall be turned to an hye wodde.

*Jere.xxvi.b

‡ Jere.xxvi.b
* Jere.ix.b.
iii.xx.ix.b
and.xxi.a Luke.xxi.d.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ Of the callynge of the Gentyles, and conuersyon of the Jewes.

A

‡ Esai.xxvi.g
Ez.ii.a.

But ‡ in the latter dayes it will come to passe, that the hyll of the Lordes house shalbe sett vp hyer then eny mountaynes or hylles: Yee, the people shall preasse vnto it, and the multitude of the Gētiles shall hasten them thyther, sayeng: Come, ‡ let vs go vp to the hyll of the Lorde, and to the house of the God of Jacob: that he maye teach vs hys waye, and that we maye walcke in his pathes. ‡ For the lawe

‡ Esa.ii.a Psal.xxxii.a.
‡ Psal.xliv.c
Esa.ii.a
Luke.xxiiii.b

shall come out of Sion, & the worde of God from Jerusalem, and shall geue sentence amonge the multitude of the heathen ād refourme the people of farre coūtreys: so that of theyr sweardes they shall make plowshares, & sythes of theyr speares.

B

*Esa.xi.b
and.lxv.b

* One people shall not lyft vp a sweard agaynst another, yee, they shal nomore learne to fyght: but euery man shall sytt vnder his vinepard & vnder his fygge tre, & no mā to fraye him awaye: for þ mouth of þ Lord of hostes hath spokē it. Therfore, where as all the people haue walcked euery man in þ name of hys awne God, we will walcke in the name of oure God for euer ādeuer. * At the same tyme, sayeth the Lorde, will I gather vp the lame ād the out castes, & soch as I haue chastened: & will geue yssue vnto þ lame, ād make of the out castes a great people: * and the Lorde hym selfe shalbe theyr kynge vpō the mount Syon, from thys tyme forth for euermore. And vnto the, (O þ tower of * Eder, thou stronge holde of the daughter Syon) vnto the shall it come: euē the lordshipe ād kyngdome of the daughter Jerusalē. Why then art thou now so heuy? is there no kynge in the? are thy counceilers awaye that thou art so payned, as a womā in her trayuayle? And now (O thou daughter Syon) be sory, let it greue the as a wyfe labouryng wyth chylde: for now must thou get the out of the cytie, and dwell vpon the playne felde: Yee, vnto Babylon shalt thou go, there shalt thou be delyuered, * and there the Lorde shall lowse the from the hande of thyne enemyes.

*Sophe.iii.c

C

*Esa.xxxiii.d

*Micah.iii.

D

Now also are there many people gathered together agaynst the, sayig: what, Sīō is curled, we shall se oure lust vpō her. But they knowe not * the thoughtes of þ Lorde, they vnderstande not his coūcell, that shall gather them together as the sheues in the barne. Therfore get the vp, O thou daughter Syon, and threshe out the corne: for I will make thy horne yron, & thy clawes brasse, that thou mayest grynde many people: theyr goodes shalt thou appropriate vnto the Lorde, and theyr substaunce vnto the ruler of the whole worlde.

*Esa.xliii.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Of the destruccyon of Jerusalem.

A

After þ shalt thou be robbed thy selfe, O þ robbers daughter: they shall laye sege against vs, & smyte þ iudge of Israel wt a rodde vpon the cheke. * And þ Bethlē Ephrata, art lytle amonge þ thousandes of Juda. Out of þ shal come vnto me, which shal be þ gouernoure in Israel: whose out goynge hath bene frō the begynning, & frō euerlastynge. In the meane whyle he plageth

*Mat.ii.a John.vii.b

plageth them for a season, vntyll the tyme that she (which shall beare) haue borne: then shall the remnaunt of his brethren be cõuerted vnto ỹ children of Israel. He shall stãde fast, ‡ and geue fode in the * strength of the Lord, and in the victory of the name of the Lord his God: and when they be conuerted, he shall be magnified vnto the farthest parts of the worlde.

B Then shall there be peace, so that the Assyrian nape come into youre lãde, & treade in youre houses. We shall bringe vp seuen shepherdes and .viii. princes vpon thẽ: these shall subdue the land of Assur w̃ the swerde, and ỹ lande of * Nymrod with their naked weapes. ‡ Thus shal he deliuer vs from the Assirian, when he cõmeth within oure land, and setteth his fote within oure borders.

C And ỹ remnaũt of Jacob shall be amõge the multitude of people, as the dewe of the Lorde, and as the droppes vpon the grasse, that tarieth for no man, and wayteth of no body. * Yee, ỹ residue of Jacob shalbe amõge the Gentiles and the multitude of people, as the lyon amõge the beastes of the wodd, and as ỹ Lyons whelpe amonge a flocke of shepe: which (when he goeth thorowe) treadeth downe, teareth in peces, and there is no man that can helpe. Thyne hand shalbe lift vp vpon thyne enemyes, and all thyne aduersaries shall perish.

D The tyme shall come also, sayeth ỹ Lord, that I will take thine horses from the, and destroye thy charettes. I wil breake downe the cityes of thy lande, and ouerthrowe all thy stroge holdes. * All witchcraftes wyll I rote oute of thyne hãde, there shall no mo sothsayinges be within the. * Thine Idols and thyne Images will I destroye out of ỹ so ỹ thou shalt nomore bowe thy selfe vnto the worckes of thyne awne handes. Thy groues will I plucke vp by ỹ rotes, & breake downe ỹ cities. Thus will I be auenged also, vpõ all ỹ heathen that will not heare.

¶ The .vi. Chapter.

¶ An exhortacyon to heare ỹ iudgement agaynst Israell beynge vnkynde. what maner of sacrifyces do please God.

A HErke nowe what the Lord sayeth: * Up, repproue the mountaynes, & lett the hylles heare thy voyce. O heare the punishemẽt of the Lord, ye mountaynes, & ye mightie foundaciõs of the earth: for the Lord will reproue his people, & reason w̃ Israel. O my people, what haue I done vnto ỹ? or wherin haue I hurte the? geue me answere. * Because I brought the from the lande of Egipte, and deliuered the out of ỹ house of bondage? * Because I made Moses, Aarõ and Miriam to lede ỹ? Remembre (O my people) what Balach ỹ kyng of Moab had imagyned agaynst the and what answere that Balaam the sonne of Beor gaue him, from Sethim vnto Galgal, that ye maye knowe the louyng kyndnesses of the Lorde.

What acceptable thinge shall I offre vnto the Lord? shal I bowe my knee to the hie God? Shall I come before hym with brent offrynges, and wyth calues of a yeare olde? Hath the Lord a pleasure in many thousand rammes, or innumerable streames of oyle? C Or shall I geue my fyrst borne for myne offences, & the frute of my body for the synne of my soule? I will shewe the, O mã, what is good, & what the Lorde requyreth of the. Namely, to do right, to haue pleasure in louinge kyndnesse, to be lowly, & to walcke w̃ thy God. * The Lordes voyce crieth vnto ỹ * Esa.l.d. citye, & the man ỹ shall be saued cõsidereth thy name (O Lorde) herken what is your rodde, & here him ỹ warnith you? * Should * Leui.xix.g. I not be displeased, for ỹ vnrightuous good Deute.xxv.c in ỹ houses of ỹ wycked, & because ỹ measure is mynished? Or shulde I iustifie ỹ false balaũces and ỹ bagge of disceatfull weyghtes, amonge those that be full of riches vnryghtuously gotte: where the cytesins deale with falshede, speake lyes, & haue disceatfull tunges in their mouthes?

D Therfore, I will take in hãde to punish ỹ, & to make ỹ desolate, because of thy sinnes. * Leu.xxvi. * Thou shalt eate, & not haue ynough: yee, Mice.iiii.b ỹ shalt bringe thy selfe downe. Thou shalt lie, but not escape: & those that thou woldest saue, will I delyuer to the * swerde. Thou shalt sowe, but not reape: ỹ shalt presse out olyues, but oyle shalt thou not haue to anoynte thy selfe withall: thou shalt treade out swete must, but shalt dryncke no wyne. Ye kepe the ordinaunces of * Amri, and all the customes of the house of Ahab: ye folowe their pleasures, therfore wyll I make the waste, and cause thy inhabyters to be abhorred, O my people: & thus shalt thou beare thyne awne shame.

¶ The .vii. Chapter.

¶ A complaynt of the lytell nembre of the vnrighteous Agaynst the truth ought we not to holde wyth ours greatest frendes.

A WO is me: I am become as one, that goeth a gleanynge in the haruest, There are no mo grapes to eate, yet wold I fayne (wyth all my herte) haue of the best frute. * There is not a godly man * Prou.xii.b. vpõ earth, there is not one righteous amõge men. They labour all to shed bloud, and euery man hunteth his brother to death: yet they saye they do well whẽ they do euel. As the prince will, so sayeth the iudge: that he maye do him a pleasure agayne. The greate man speaketh what his herte desireth: & the hearers alowe hi. The best of thẽ is but as a thistle, & the most righteous of thẽ is but as a bzeer in the hedge. But when the daye of thy preachers cōmeth, that thou shalt be vi-

* Jere. xj. a. syted: thē shall they be wasted awaye. * Let
B no man beleue his frende, ner put hys confy-
* Matth. x. c Deute. xiii. b and. xxviii. b. Psa. xxvii b and. liii. b. dēce in a brother. Kepe ꝑ porte of thy mouth from her that lyeth in thy bosome: * for the sonne shal put his father to dyshonoure, the daughter shall rise agaynst her mother, the daughter in lawe agaynst her mother in lawe: and a mans foes shalbe euen they of hys awne housholde.

Neuertheiesse, I will loke vp vnto ꝑ Lord I wyll pacyently abyde God my sauyour:
* Psa. xxvii. a my God shal heare me. * O thou enemye of myne, reioyce not at my fall, for I shall get vp agayne: & though I sytte i darcknesse, yet the Lorde is my lyght. I wyll beare the punishemēt of ꝑ Lord (for why, I haue offended hī) tyll he syt i iudgemēt vpō my cause, & se ꝑ I haue right. he wyll bryng me forth to the lyght, & I shall se his righteousnesse.

C She that is myne enemy shal loke vpon
* iiii re. xix. a it, & be cōfounded, which now saieth. * Where is thy Lord God? Myne eyes shall beholde her, when she shalbe trodē downe, as ꝑ claye
* Amos. ij. c. in ꝑ stretes. * The tyme will come, that thy gappes shal be made vp, & the lawe shal go abrode: & at ꝑ tyme shal they come vnto the frō Assur vnto the stroge cityes, & from the stroge cityes vnto the ryuer: frō the one see to ꝑ other, frō the one moūtayne to ꝑ other.

Notwythstandynge, ꝑ land must be wasted, because of them that dwell therin, and for the frutes of their awne Imaginacions. Therfore fede thy people with thy rodde, ꝑ flocke of thine heritage which dwel desolate in the wodde: that they maye be fedde vpon the moūt of Charmell, Basan & Galaad as afore time. Maruelous thiges wil I shewe
D thē, * lyke as whē they came oute of Egipte
* Exo. xiiii. a Thys shall the heathen se, and be ashamed
* Iob. xxxix. b for all their power, * so that they shall laye their hande vpon their mouth, and stoppe
* Gene. iii. c their eares. * They shal lycke the dust lyke a serpent, & as the wormes of the earth, that tremble in their holes. They shalbe afrayed of the Lord oure God, & they shall feare the.

Where is there soch a God as thou: that pardonest wyckednes, and forgeuest the offences of the remnaunt of thyne heritage? he kepeth not his wrath for euer: and why?
* Jerem. xj. b his delite is to haue cōpassiō: * he shal turne agayne, and be mercyfull to vs: he shal put downe oure wyckednesses, and cast all oure synnes into the botome of ꝑ see. Thou shalt kepe thy truth with Jacob, & thy mercy for Abraham, lyke as thou hast swore vnto oure fathers longe agoo.

C The ende of the prophecy of Micheas.

C The booke of the Prophet Nahum.

C The.i. Chapter.

C Of the destruccyon of Ninive and of the deliuerāce of Israel.

THys is the heuy burthen of Ninive, whych Nahum of Elchos dyd write as he sawe it. * The Lorde is a ge-
* Deut. i. lous God, & a taker of vengeaunce is the Lorde, and wrothfull. * The Lorde ta-
* Num. x. keth vengeaunce of his enemyes, and reserueth displeasure for his aduersaries. * The
* Num. xiv. Deu. xxxii. * Jere. xxx. Lord suffreth longe, he is of great power, & so innocēt that he leaueth no man vnpunished before him. The Lord goeth forth in tempest & stormy wether, the cloudes are the dust of his fete. Whē he reproueth the see, he dryeth it vp, & turneth all the floudes to drie lande
B Basan is desolate, Charmel & the pleasure of Lybanus wasteth awaye. The moūtaynes tremble for him, the hylles consume. At the sight of him, the earth quaketh: yee, the whole world, and all ꝑ dwell therin. * Who
* Jonas i. Deu. xxxii. Psa. xxxiii. Ioel. ii. maye endure before hys wrath? Or who is able to abide his gryme displeasure? His anger taketh on lyke fyre, and the harde rockes are clouen in sunder before him.

Full gracious is the Lord, and a stronge holde in the time of trouble, he knoweth thē that put their trust in hym: when the floude renneth ouer, and destroyeth the place, and whē the darcknesse foloweth styll vpon his
C enemyes. What do ye Imagin thē agaynst ꝑ Lord on this maner? (Tush, whē he hath once made an ende, there shall come nomore trouble.) For like as the thornes that stike together, and as the drie strawe, so shall the drōckardes be consumed together, euē when they be full. There come oute of the soch as Imagin myschefe, & geue vngracious counsell agaynst the Lorde.

Therfore thus sayeth the Lord: Let thē
D be as well prepared: yee, & as many as they can, yet shall they be hewē downe, and passe awaye. And as for ꝑ, I will vexe ꝑ, but not vtterly destroye the. And now wil I breake his rodde from thy backe, & burst thy bōdes in sonder. But the Lorde hath geuen a commaundement concernynge the, ꝑ there shall come nomore sede of thy name. * The car-
* Micha. v. ued & casten Images will I rote out of the house of thy God. Thy graue shal I prepare for the, and thou shalt be confounded.

C The.ii. Chapter.

C He destroyeth the victorye of the Caldees agaynst the Ninuites.

Beholde

BEholde, * vpon the mountaynes come ꝑ fete of him, that bringeth good tydinges: & preacheth peace. O Juda, kepe thy holy dayes, perfourme thy promyses: for Belial shall come nomore in the, he is vtterly roted out.

The scaterer shall come vp agaynst the, & laye sege to the castell. Loke thou well to ꝑ streetes, make thy loynes stronge, arme thy self with all thy myght: for the Lord shal restore againe the glory of Jacob, lyke as the glory of Israel. The destroyers haue broke them downe, & marred ꝑ wyne braunches. The shilde of his gyauntes glysstereth, hys men of warre are clothed in purple. His charettes are as fyre, when he maketh him forward, & his spere shaftes are soked in venim. The charettes rolle vpō ꝑ stretes, & welter in ꝑ hye wayes. They are to loke vpon lyke crellettes of fyre, & go swyftly, as ꝑ lyghtninge. Whē he doth but warne his gyauntes, they fall in their araye, & hastely they clymme vp the walles: yee, the engins of ꝑ warre are prepared all ready. The water portes shall be opened, and the kynges palace shall fall. The quene her selfe shall be led awaye captiue, and her gentyl wemen shal mourne as the doues, & grone within their hertes. * Niniue is like a pole full of water, but thē shal they be fayne to flee. Stand, stāde, (shal they crie) & there shall not one turne backe. Awaye wt the syluer, awaye with the golde for here is no ende of treasure. There shalbe a multitude of all maner of costly ornamētes. Thus must she be spoyled, emptied & clene striped out: that their hertes may be melted awaye, their knees tremble, all their loynes be weake, & their faces blacke as a pot.

¶ Where is now the dwellyng of the lyōs, & the pasture of ꝑ lyons whelpes, where the lyon & the lyonesse wēt wt the whelpes, & no man frayed thē awaye? But ꝑ lyon spoyled ynough for hys yonge ones, & deuoured for his lyonesse: he filled his dēnes wt his praye, & his dwellig place wt that he had rauished. Beholde, I will vpō the, sayeth the Lord of hostes, and will set fyre vpō thy charettes ꝑ they shall smoke with all, & the swerde shal deuoure ꝑ yonge lyōs. I will make an ende of thy spoyling frō out of ꝑ earth, & ꝑ voyce of thy messaungers shall nomore be herde.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

¶ The fall of Niniue.

WO * to ꝑ bloudthursty citie, which is all full of lyes & robbery, & wyll not leaue of frō raueshing. There a man maye heare scourging, russhynge, the noyse of the wheles, ꝑ crysenge of the horses, and ꝑ rollinge of the charettes. There ꝑ horse mē get vp wt naked swerdes, & glysteringe speares: there lyeth a multitude slayne, & a greate heape of deed bodyes: there is no ende of deed coarses: yee, mē fall vpō their bodyes, And that for ꝑ greate and manyfolde whordome, of ꝑ fayre & beutyfull harlot: which is a mastrelle of witchcraft: yee, and selleth ꝑ people thorow her whordome, & the nacyōs thorow her witchcraft.

* Beholde, I will vpon ꝑ (sayeth ꝑ Lord of hostes) and will pull thy clothes ouer thy head: ꝑ I maye shewe thy nakednes amōge the heathen, and thy shame amōge ꝑ kyngdomes. I will cast dyrte vpon the, to make the be abhorred, & a gasynge stocke: Yee, all they that loke vpon the, shall starte backe, and saye: Niniue is destroyed.

Who will haue pitie vpon ꝑ? where shal I seke one to cōforte the? Art ꝑ better then the greate cite of * Alexandria? that laye in the waters, and had ꝑ waters roūde aboute it: which was stroglye fenced & walled with ꝑ see? Ethiopia & Egipte were her strength & ꝑ exceadig great, aboue measure. Aphrica & Lybia were her helpers, yet was she dryuen awaye, & brought into captiuite, her pōge chyldren were smittē downe at the head of euery strete, ꝑ lottes were cast for ꝑ most auncyent men in her, & all her myghtye men were bounde in chaines. Euen so shalt thou also be droncken, & hyde thy selfe, and seke some helpe agaynst thyne enemy. All thy stronge cities shalbe lyke fygetrees with ripe figges: whych when a man shaketh, they shall fall into the mouth of the eater.

Beholde, thy people within the, are but wemē: the portes of thy lāde shalbe opened vnto thyne enemyes, and the fyre shall deuoure thy barres. Drawe water now agaynst ꝑ be beseged, make vp thy strōg holdes go into ꝑ clay, tēpre ꝑ morter, make strong brick: * yet ꝑ fyre shal cōsume the, ꝑ swerde shal destroye the: yee, as the locuste doth, so shal it eate ꝑ vp. Jt shal fal heuely vpō ꝑ as ꝑ locustes: yee, ryght heuely shall it fall vpō the, cuē as ꝑ grethoppers. Thy marchaūtes haue bene nōbred wt the starres of heauē: but now shal they spreade abrode as the locustes & flee their waye: Thy lordes are as the grethoppers, & thy captaynes as the multitude of grethoppers: whych when they be colde, remayne in the hedges: but whē the Sunne is vp, they flee awaye, & no mā can tel where they are become. Thy shepherdes are a slepe (O kyng of Assur) thy worthyes are layed downe, thy people is scatred abrode vpō the mountaynes, & no man gathereth them together agayne. Thy woūde cannot be hyd, thy plage is so sore. All they that heare this of the, shal clappe their hādes ouer the. For what is he, to whom thou hast not alwaye bene doyng hurte?

¶ The ende of the prophecy of Nahum.

¶ The

¶ The booke of the Prophet Habacuck.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ A complaynte agaynst Israel.

A
* Psa.xxii.a
* Job.xix.a
THis is þ heuy burthē, which the Prophet Habacuk dyd se. O Lorde, * how longe shall I crye, & thou wylt not heare? * How lōge shall I complayne vnto the, suffrynge wronge, & þ wylt not helpe? Why lettest þ me se weryneſſe and laboure?
* Exod.xiii.a
* Tyrānye & violence are before me, power ouergoeth right: for þ lawe is toarne in peces, & there can not right iudgemēt go forth
B
And why? the vngodly is more set by then the ryghtuous: this is þ cause, that wronge
* Actes.xiii.d
iudgemēt proceedeth. * Beholde, amōge the Heathen, and loke well, wonder at it, and be abashed: for I wyll do a thynge in your tyme, whych though it be tolde you, ye shall not beleue.
* Deu.xxviii.c
* For lo, I wil rayse vp the Caldees, that bitter and swyfte people: which shall go as wyde as þ land is, to take possessiō of dwelling places, þ be not their awne. A grymme and boysterous people is it, these shall sit in iudgemēt & punishe. Their horses are swyfter then the cattes of the mountayne, & byte
C
* Soph.iii.a
sorer then * þ wolues in the euening. Their horsemen come by greate heapes frō farre, they fle haſtely to deuour as þ Aegle. They come all to spoyle: out of them commeth an east wynde, whych bloweth and gathereth their captiues, lyke as the sande. They shal mocke þ kynges, and laughe the princes to scorne. They shall not set by eny stroge holde, for they shall laye ordinaūce agaynst it, and take it. Then shall they take a freth corage vnto the, to go forth & to do more euel,
* Esa.xlvi.a xl.aa. xlviii.d xlvii.e xlvi.a.
and so ascribe the power vnto * their God.
But thou O Lorde my God & my holy one, thou art from the begynninge, therfore shal we not dye. O Lord, thou hast ordened the for a punishemēt, and sett the to reproue
D
the myghtye. Thyne eyes are clene, thou mayest not se euel, thou canst not beholde, þ ‡ Jere.xii.a. Psa.xxxvii.a thinge that is wycked. ‡ Wherfore the dost thou loke vpon þ vngodly, and holdest thy tunge, when the wycked deuoureth the man þ is better the him selfe? Thou makest men as the fishe in the see, and lyke as þ creppyng beastes, that haue no gyde, they take vp all with their angle, they catch it in their net, & gather it in their yarne: wherof they reioice and are glad. Therfore offre they vnto their net, & do sacrifice vnto their yarne: because that thorowe it their porcyon is become so fat, & their meate so plenteous. Wherfore, they cast out their net agayne, & neuer cease to slaye the people.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Of the vysion of the prophete. Agaynst pollyng, couetousnes, and Idolatrye.

I Stode vpō my watch, & set me vpon my bulwarke, to loke and se what he wolde saye vnto me, and what answere I shulde geue him that reproued me. But the Lord answered me, & sayde: Wryte the vision playnely vpon thy tables, that who so commeth by, maye rede it ‡ for the vision is yet farre of for a tyme, but at the last it shal come to passe, & not fayle. ‡ And though he tary, yet wayte thou for him, for in verye dede he will come, & not be slacke. Beholde, the vnrightcouse thinketh him selfe in sauegarde as in a stroge holde: ‡ but þ iuste shal lyue by his fayth. Lyke as þ wyne disceaueth the dronckarde, euen so þ proude shall fayle and not endure. He openeth his desire wyde vp as the hel, * & is as vnsaciable as death. All heathen gathereth he to hym, and heapeth vnto him all people.
A
‡ Dani.xi.
‡ Hebr.x.
‡ Roman.i. Galath.iii. Hebr.x.
B
* Psa.xvi.

But shall not all these take vp a prouerbe agaynst him, & mocke him with a bywarde, & saye: Wo vnto him that heapeth vp other mens goodes? How longe will he lade hym selfe with thicke claye? O how lodely wyll they stāde vp, that shal byte, & awake, that shal teare þ in peces? yee, thou shalt be their praye! * Seinge þ hast spoyled many Heathen, therfore shal the remnaunt of the people spoyle the: because of mens bloude, & for the wroge done in the lande, in the citye and vnto all them that dwell therin.
* Apoc.xi.
* Wo vnto him, that couetously gathereth euell gotte goodes into his house: that he maye set hys nest an hye, to escape from þ power of misfortune. Thou hast beuysed the shame of thine awne house, for thou hast slayne to moch people, and hast wilfully offended: so that the very * stones of the wall
* Esa.xiii.b Apoc.xiii.a
C
* Luk.xix.a
shal crie out of it, and the tymbre that lyeth betwyxte the toyntes of the buylding shall answere. ‡ Wo vnto him, that buyldeth the towne with bloude, & mayntaineth the citye with vnrightuousnes. Shall not the Lord of hostes bringe this to passe, that the labourers of the people shal be dryet with a greate fyre, & that the thinge wher vpō the people haue weeried the selues, shal be lost? * For þ earth shal be full of knowledge of þ Lordes honoure, lyke as the waters þ couer the see.
‡ Esay.xxxi. Abac.ii.
* Esay.xi.b
Wo vnto him that geueth his neyghboure drynke, puttynge in gall and makynge him droncken, * that he maye se hys priuytees. Therfore with shame shalt thou be filled, in steade of honoure. Drynke thou also, tyll thou slombre with all: for the cuppe of the Lordes right hāde shall compasse the aboute, and shamefull spewing in steade of thy
D
* Gen.ix.d

thy worshype. * For the wrõge that þ hast done in Libanus, shall ouerwhelme the, and the wilde beastes shal make the afrayed: because of mens bloud, & for the wronge done in the lande, in the citie, and vnto all soch as dwell therin.

What helpe then will þ ymage do, whom the workman hath fashioned? Or þ vayne cast ymage, wherin because the crafte sman putteth his trust, therfore maketh he dõme Idols? Wo vnto hym, that sayeth to a pece of wod: aryse, & to a domme stone: stãde vp. For what instruccyon maye soch one geue? Beholde it is layed ouer with gold & syluer and there is no brethin it. * But the Lorde in his holy temple is he: whõ all the worlde shulde feare.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ A prayer of the prophet Abacuc for the ignorannt.

O Lorde, when I herde speake of þ, I was afrayed. The worcke that thou hast takẽ in hande, shalt thou perfourme in his tyme, O Lorde: & whẽ thy tyme cõmeth, thou shalt declare it. In thy very wrath þ thinckest vpon mercy. God cõmeth from Theman, & the holy one from the mount of Pharan. Selah.

His glory coureth þ heauens, & the earth is full of his prayse. His shine is as þ sunne, and beames of lyght go out of hys handes, there is his power hyd. Destruccyon goeth before hym, & a pestilent syckenesse go from his fete. * He standeth, & measureth þ earth he loketh, & the people consume away, the moũtaynes of þ worlde fal downe to pouldder, & þ hilles are layne to bowe thẽ selues, for his goinges are euerlastynge and sure.

I sawe, that the pauilyons of the Moorians & the tẽtes of þ land of Madian were vexed for werynesse. Wast thou not angrie O Lorde, in the waters? was not thy wrath in the floudes, & thy displeasure in þ see? yes when thou sattest vpon thine horse, & when thy charetes had þ victory. Thou shewedst thy bowe openly, lyke as thou haddest promysed wh an othe * vnto the trybes. Selah.

Thou dydest deuyde þ waters of þ earth. When the mountaines sawe the, they were afrayed, the water streame wente awaye: the depe made a noyse at the lyftinge vp of thyne hand. The * Sunne & Moone remayned styll in their habitacyõ. Thyne arowes wente out glisterynge, and thy speares as þ shyne of the lyghtenyng. * Thou trodest downe the land in thyne anger, and dydest thresshe þ heathẽ in thy displeasure. Thou camest forth to helpe thy people, to helpe thine anoynted. Thou smotest downe þ head the house of þ vngodly, & discouveredest hys foũdaciõs, euẽ vnto þ necke of him. Selah.

Thou dydest stryke thorow wh his sceptre the heades of his playne people: which come as a stormy wynd to scatre me abrode, & are glad whẽ they maye eat vp þ poore secretly Thou makest awaye for thine horses in the see, euẽ in þ mudde of great waters. Whẽ I heare this, my body is vexed, my lyppes trẽble at þ voyce therof, my bones corrupte, I am afraied where I stãde. O þ I myght rest in the daye of trouble, þ I myght go vp vnto our people, which are alredy prepared.

For the tygg trees shal not be grene: & the vynes shal beare no frute. The laboure of þ olyue shalbe but lost, & the lande shall bring no corne: þ shepe shalbe taken out of þ folde, and there shalbe no catel in the stalles. But as for me, I wyll be glad in the Lorde, and will reioyce in God my Sauyoure. * The Lord God is my strength, he shal make my fete as the fete of hertes: & he which geueth the victory, shal bring me to my hye places synginge vpon my plalmes.

¶ The ende of the prophecy of Abacuc.

¶ The booke of the Prophet Sophony.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Thretninynges agaynst Juda & Jerusalem because of their Idolatrye.

THis is the worde of þ Lorde, which cam vnto Sophony the sõne of Chusi, the sonne of Gedoliah, þ sõne of Amariah, the sonne of Hezekiah in the tyme of * Josiah the sonne of * Amõ kyng of Juda. I wyll gather vp all thynges in þ lande (sayeth the Lorde) I wyll gather vp man & beast: I wyll gather vp the foules in þ ayre and the fysh in the see (to þ greate decaye of the wycked) and wyll vtterly destroye the men out of the lande, sayeth þ Lorde. I will stretch oute myne hãde vpon Juda, & vpon all soch as dwell at Jerusalẽ. Thus will I rote oute þ remnaũt of Baal from this place, & the names of the * Kemurins and prestes: yee, & † soch as vpon their house toppes worshype and bowe thẽ selues vnto the hoste of heauen: which sweare by þ Lorde, & by their Malchom also: which starte a backe from the Lorde, and nether seke after þ Lorde ner regarde hym.

* Be still at the presence of the Lorde God, for the daye of the Lorde is at hande: yee, the Lord hath prepared a slayne offeryng, and called hys gestes therto. And thus shall it happen in the daye of the Lordes slaynofferyng. I will viset the princes, * þ kynges chyldren, and all soch as were straunge clothinge. In the same daye also wyll I vyset all those, that treade ouer the threshelde so proudly,

* Psal. xviii.b

* iiii. Reg. xxiii. and. xxiiii.
* iiii. Reg. xii.

* iiii. Regũ. xxiii.b
† Deu. xvii.b Jere. v.b.

* Zacha. ii.a.

* Hiere. xxxix. Jere. xxxviii.b

C proudly, which fyll their Lordes house with robbery & falshede. At ỳ same tyme (sayeth the Lorde) there shalbe herde a greate crye
*iii.esd.iii.a from the *fyth porte and an howlinge from the other porte, and a greate murthur from ỳ hylles. Howle ye that dwell in ỳ myll, for all the marchaut people are gone, & all they that were laden with syluer, are roted out.

At the same tyme will I seke thorow Jerusalem with lanternes, & vyset them that
*Jerem.v.f Deute.xxii.c Jere.viii.c. *Amos.v.f. continue in their dregges, and saye in their hertes: * Euil, ỳ Lord will do neither good ner euell. Their goodes shalbe spoyled, and their houses layed waste: * they shal buylde houses, & not dwell in them, they shall plãte vynyardes, but not drincke ỳ wyne therof.

D
*Joel.ii.a For ỳ greate * daye of ỳ Lord is at hande, it is herde by & commeth on a pace. Horrible is the tydinges of the Lordes daye, thẽ shal the giaunte crye out: for that daye is a daye of wrath, a daye of trouble and heupnesse, a daye of vtter destruccion & misery, a darcke & glompynge daye, a cloudy & stormy daye, a daye of the noyse of tröpettes & shawmes, agaynst the stronge cyties & hie towres. I will bringe the people into soch veracion, ỳ they shal go aboute lyke blinde mẽ, because they haue synned agaynst the Lord. Their bloude shalbe shed as the dust, & their bodies
*Exr.vii.b as the myre. * Nether their syluer ner their
*Soph.iii.b golde shalbe able to deliuer them in that wrothful daye of the Lorde, but the * whole lande shalbe consumed thorow ỳ fyre of his gelousy: for he shall soone make clene rydde aunce of al them that dwell in the lande.

C The.ii. Chapter.

C Det mourth to returne to God, prophecyinge vnto the one destruccion, & to the other deliueraunce.

I Lampyne youre selues & serche O ỳ Nacyon ỳ hast no desire to ỳ lawe or ỳ thing go forth ỳ God hath concluded, & or the tyme come wherin man shall passe awaye as the dust: or ỳ fearfull wrath of ỳ Lord come vpõ you: yee, or ỳ daye of ỳ Lordes sore displeasure come vpon you. Seke ỳ Lord all yee meke harted vpõ earth, ye ỳ worcke after his iudgemẽt: seke
*iiii.er.xx.a Jona.iii.a. ryghteousnesse, seke *lowlynesse: ỳ ye maye be defended in ỳ wrothful daye of the Lord:
‡Esa.xiiii.c Jere.xlvi.a. Ezech.xxv.c ‡ For Gaza shal be destroyed, and Ascalon shall be layed waste. They shall cast out Asdod at the noone daye, and Accaron shalbe pluckte vp by the rotes

25 Wo vnto you ỳ dwell vpon the see coost ye murtherous people: the worde of ỳ Lord shal come vpon you. O Canaan thou lande of the Philistines, I will destroye ỳ, so that there shall no man dwell in the eny more, & as for ỳ see coast, it shall be heardemens cotages & shepe foldes: yee, it shalbe a porcion for soch as remayne of the house of Juda, to fede ther vpon. In ỳ houses of Ascalon shall they rest towarde nyght: for the Lord their God shal vyset thẽ, & turne awaye their captiuite. * I haue herde ỳ despite of Moab, & the blasphemyes of ỳ childzen of Ammon how they haue shamefully intreated my people, & magnified them selues within the borders of their lande. Therfore, as truly as I lyue (sayeth the Lord of hostes the God of Israel) Moab shalbe as Sodome & Ammõ as Gomorra: euẽ drie thorne hedges, salt pittes & a perpetuall wylderues. The residue of my folcke shal spoyle thẽ, the rẽnaunt of my people shal haue thẽ in possessiõ. * This shall happen vnto them for their pryde, because they haue dealte so shamefully with ỳ Lorde of hostes people, & magnified thẽ selues aboue thẽ. The Lord shall be grymme vpon them, * & destroye all the goddes in ỳ lande. And all the Iles of the heathen shall worshippe him, euery man in his place.

Ye Morys also shall perish wt my swerde: yee, he shall stretch out his hãde ouer the north, and destroye Assur. * As for Ninive, he shall make it desolate, drye & waste. The flockes & all the beastes of ỳ people shall lye in ỳ middest of it, pellicanes & storckes shal abyde in the vpper postes of it, foules shall synge in the wyndowes, & rauens shall sytt vpon ỳ balckes, for ỳ boordes of Cedre shal be ryuen downe. This is the proude and carelesse citye, that sayde in her herte. * I am, and there is els none. O how is she made so waste, that the beastes lye therin! Who so goeth by, mocketh her, and poynteth at her with his fynger.

C The.iii. Chapter.

C Agaynst ỳ gouerners of Jerusalem, of ỳ callynge of all the Gentyles. & ẽcorte to the residue of Israel.

WO to ỳ abhominable, fylthie, & cruell cytie: which will not heare, ner be reformed. Her trust is not in ỳ Lorde, nether will she holde her to her God. Her rulers within her are as roarynge * lyõs: her iudges are as ‡ wolues in ỳ euenyng, whych leaue nothyng behide them tyll ỳ morowe. Her prophetes are lyght persones & vnfaithfull mẽ: her prestes vnhalowe ỳ sanctuary & do wronge vnder the pretence of the lawe. But ỳ iuste lord ỳ doth no vnright, was amõge thẽ, euery morning shewing thẽ his lawe clearly, & ceassed not. But ỳ vngodly will not lerne to be ashamed. Therfore wil I rote oute this people, & destroye their towres: yee, ãd make their stretes so voyde, that no mã shal goo therin. Their cityes shalbe broken downe, so that no body shall be left, ner dwell there eny more.

I sayd vnto thẽ: O feare me, and be content to be reformed. That their dwellinge shulde not be destroyed, & that there shulde happen vnto them none of these thynges, wherwith

wher with I shall vyset the. But neuertheles, they stande vp early, to folowe the fylthynes of their awne ymaginacions. Therfore, ye shall wayte vpõme (sayth ꝓ Lorde) vntyll the tyme that I stande vp: for I am determined, to gather the people & to bring the kingdomes together, that I may poure out myne anger, ye all my wrothfull * displeasure vpon the. * For al the worlde shall be consumed with the fyre of my gelousy. And then wyll I clẽse the lyppes of the people, that they maye euerychone call vpon ꝓ name of the Lorde, and serue him with one shulder. Yoche as I haue subdued, and my children also whom I haue scatred abrode, shall bringe me presentes beyonde the waters of Ethiopia.

In that tyme shalt thou nomore be confounded, because of all thy ymagynacions, wher thorow thou haddest offended me: for * I will take awaye the proude boasters of thyne honour frõ the, so that thou shalt no more triumphe because of my holy hyl. In ꝓ also wyll I leaue a small poore simple people, which shall trust in the name of ꝓ Lord. The remnaunt of Israell shall do no wyckednes, ner speake lyes: nether shall there eny disceatfull tunge be folde in their mouthes. For they shalbe fed, ãd take their rest, and no man shal make them afrayed. Geue thãkes, O daughter Syõ, be ioyfull, O Israel: reioyce & be glad from thy whole hert, O daughter Jerusalem, for the Lorde hath takẽ awaye thy punyshement, and turned backe thyne enemyes. The kyng of Israel, euẽ the Lord hym selfe is with the: so ꝓ thou nedest nomore to feare eny mysfortune.

In that tyme it shalbe sayde to Jerusalem: feare not, & to Syon: let not thyne hãdes be slacke, for the Lorde thy God is with the, it is he that hath power to saue: he hath a speciall pleasure in the, & a maruelous loue towarde the: yee, he reioyseth ouer the vñ gladnesse. Yoche as haue bene in heuynesse, wyll I gather together, and take out of thy congregacion: as for the shame and reproue that hath bene layed vpon the, it shalbe farre from the. And lo, in that tyme wyll I destroye al those that vexe ỹ: * I wil helpe the lame, and gather vp the cast awaye: yee, I will get them prayse and honour in all landes, where they haue bene put to shame. At ỹ same tyme wyll I bringe you in, & at the same tyme will I gather you. I wil get you a name and a good reporte amonge all people of the erth, when I turne backe your captyuite before your eyes, sayeth the Lorde.

¶ The ende of the prophecy of Sophony.

¶ The boke of the Prophete Aggeus.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The tyme of the Prophecye of Aggeus. An exhortacyon to buylde the temple agayne.

IN the secõde yeare of kyng * Darius, in the .vi. moneth the fyrst daye of ỹ moneth, came the worde of the Lord (by the Prophete Aggeus) vnto * zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel ỹ prynce of Juda, & to Josua the sonne of Josedech the hye preest, sayinge. Thus speaketh the Lorde of hostes, and sayeth. This people doth saye. The tyme is not yet come to buylde vp the Lordes house. Then spake ỹ Lord by ỹ prophete Aggeus, and sayde. * Ye your selues can finde tyme to dwell in sseled houses, and shall thys house lye waste? Consyder nowe youre awne wayes in youre hertes (sayeth the Lorde of hostes) * ye sowe moch, but ye bryng lytle in: ye eate, but ye haue not ynough, ye drynck, but ye are not fylled: ye decke youre selues, but ye are not warme: and he that earneth eny wages, putteth it in a broken purse.

Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. Consydre youre awne wayes in youre hertes, get you vp to ỹ mountayne, fetch wood, ãd buylde vp the house * that it maye be acceptable vnto me, & that I may shewe myne honoure, sayeth ỹ Lorde. Ye loked for moch and lo it is come to lytle, & though ye bringe it home, yet do I blowe it awaye. And why so sayeth the Lorde of hostes? * Euen because that my house lyeth so waste, and ye ronne euery man vnto hys awne house. Wherfore, the heauẽ is forbydden to geue you eny dew, and the earth is forbydden to geue you encrease. * I haue called for a drouth, both vpon the lande and vpon the mountaynes, vpon corne, vpon wyne, and vpon oyle, vpon euery thynge that ỹ grounde bryngeth forth, vpon men & vpon catell, yee, and vpon all handy laboure.

Now when zorobabel ỹ sonne of Salathiel, & Jesua the sonne of Josedech the hye preest wt the remnaunt of the people, herde the voyce of the Lorde theyr God, and the wordes of ỹ Prophete Aggeus (lyke as the Lorde theyr God had sent him) the people dyd feare the Lorde. Then Aggeus the Lordes angell sayde in ỹ Lordes message vnto the people, * I am with you, sayeth ỹ Lorde. & So the Lorde waked vp the spyrete of zorobabel the Prynce of Juda, and the spyrete of Jesua ỹ sonne of Josedech ỹ hye preest, and the spyrete of the remnaunt of all the people: that they came and laboured, in the houſe of the Lorde of hooſtes theyr God.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ She sheweth that the goodlynes of the ſecond temple ſhall exceede the fyrſt, because of the comming of Chriſt.

2 Upon the.xxiiii. daye of the.vi. moneth, in the ſecõde yeare of kynge Darius, the.xxi. daye of ỹ ſeuẽth moneth, came ỹ worde of ỹ Lord by the prophete Aggeus, ſayẽge: ſpeake to zorobabel the ſonne of Salathiel prince of Juda, & to Jeſua the ſonne of Joſedech the hye prieſte, & to the reſydue of ỹ people, and ſaye, * Who is left amõg you, ỹ ſawe thys houſe in her fyrſt bewtye? But what thynke ye now by it? Is it not in youre eyes, euẽ as though it were nothinge? Neuertheleſſe, be of good chere, O zorobabel (ſayeth the Lord) * be of good chere, O Jeſua ỹ ſonne of Joſedech hye prieſte: take good hertes vnto you alſo all ye people of the lãde, ſayeth the Lorde of hooſtes, & do accordynge to the worde (* for I am with you, ſayth ỹ Lord of hoſtes) lyke as I agreed with you, when ye came out of ỹ lande of Egypt: & my ſpyrite ſhalbe amonge you, feare ye not.

3 For thus ſayeth the Lord of hoſtes: * yet
once more wil I ſhake heauẽ and earth, the ſee, and ỹ drye land, yee, * I wyll moue all heathen, & the conforte of all heathen ſhall
come, & ſo wyll I fyll thys houſe wyth ho-noure, ſayeth ỹ Lorde of hoſtes. * The ſyluer is myne, & the golde is myne, ſayeth the Lord of hooſtes. Thus the glory of the laſt houſe ſhalbe greater then ỹ fyrſt, ſayth the Lord of hoſtes: & in thys place wyll I geue
peace, ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes.

4 The.xxiiii. daye of the nynth moneth in the ſecõde yeare of kynge Darius, came the worde of ỹ Lorde vnto ỹ prophete Aggeus, ſayenge. Thus ſayeth ỹ Lorde God of hoo-ſtes. Aſke the prieſtes cõcernynge the lawe, and ſaye: * yf one beare holy fleſh in hys cote lappe, & with his lappe do touch the bred potage, wyne, oyle, or eny other meate: ſhal
he be holy alſo? The prieſtes anſwered and ſayde: No. Then ſayd Aggeus: Nowyf one beyng defyled wt a deed carcaſe, touch eny
of theſe: ſhall it alſo be vncleane? The prie-ſtes gaue anſwere, & ſayde: * yee, it ſhalbe vncleane. Then Aggeus anſwered & ſayde:
euen ſo is thys people & thys nacyon before me, ſayeth ỹ Lord: & ſo are all the worckes
of theyr handes, yee, and all that they offre,
is vncleane.

And now (I praye you) conſydre from
this daye forth, & how it hath gone wt you afore or euer there was layed one ſtone vpõ
another in ỹ temple of ỹ Lord: ỹ when ye cãme to a corne heape of.xx. buſhels, there were ſcarce ten: * & that when ye came to the wyne preſſe for to powre out.l. pottes of wyne, there were ſcarce.xx. For I ſmote you wt heate, blaſtyng & haple ſtones in all the labours of youre handes: yet was there
none of you, ỹ wolde turne vnto me, ſayeth
ỹ Lord. Cõſydre then from thys daye forth & afore: namely, from the.xxiiii. daye of the nynth moneth, vnto the daye that the foudacyon of the Lordes temple was layed:
marck it well, * is not ỹ ſede yet in the barne? haue not the vynes, the fyggetrees, the pomgranates, and olyue trees bene yet vn-frutefull? but from thys daye forth, I ſhal
make them to proſpere.

Moreouer, the.xxiiii. daye of the moneth
came the worde of the Lorde vnto Aggeus agayne, ſayẽge: Speake to zorobabell the prynce of Juda, & ſaye: I wyll ſhake both heauen & earth, and ouerthrowe ỹ ſeate of the kyngdomes, yee, & deſtroye the myght-ty kyngdome of the heathen. I wyll ouerthrowe the charyettes, & thoſe that ſyt vpõ
them, ſo that both horſe and man ſhall fall
downe, euery man thorow his neyghbours ſwerde. And as for the, O zorobabel (ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes) thou ſonne of Salathiel my ſeruaunt: I wyll take the (ſayeth
the Lorde) at the ſame tyme, and make the
as a ſeale, for I haue choſen the, ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes.

¶ The ende of the prophecy
of Aggeus.

¶ The booke of the Prophete zachary.

¶ The fyrſt Chapter.

¶ She moueth the people to returne to the Lorde, and to eſchue the wyckednes of theyr fathers. He preſygnifieth Chriſt and the Apoſtles.

1 In the eyght moneth of the ſeconde yeare of kynge Darius, came the worde of the Lord vnto * zacharie ỹ ſonne of Barachias, the ſonne of Iddo, the prophete, ſayẽge: The Lorde hath bene ſore diſpleaſed at youre forefathers. And ſaye thou vnto them: thus ſayth ỹ Lorde of hoo-ſtes: * Turne you vnto me (ſayeth the Lorde of hoſtes) and I wyll turne me vnto you,
ſayth the Lorde of hooſtes. * Be ye not ly-
ke youre forefathers, vnto whõ the prophetes cryed afore tyme, ſayeng. Thus ſayeth the Lord God of hoſtes. * Turne you from youre euell wayes, and from youre wycked
ymaginacyõs. * But they wolde not hearner regarde me, ſayeth the Lorde. What is now become of youre forefathers and the prophetes

prophetes/ are they yet styll alyue/ But dyd not my wordes and statutes (which I commaunded by my seruauntes the prophetes) touche youre forefathers/ Upon this, they gaue answere and sayde: like as the Lorde of hoostes deuised to do vnto vs, according to oure owne wayes and ymagynacyons, euen so hath he delt with vs.

B Upon the .xxiiii. daye of the .xi. moneth whych is the moneth Sebah, in the seconde yeare of Darius, came the worde of the Lorde vnto zachary the sonne of Barachias, the sonne of Addo the prophete, saying, I sawe by nyght and lo, there sat one vpon *a redd horse and stode styll amonge the myrre trees, that were beneth vpon the grounde, and behynde hym were there redd, speckled, and whyte horses. Then sayde I, O my Lorde, what are these? And the aungel that talked wyth me, sayde vnto me. I wyll shewe the what these be. And the man that stode amonge the myrre trees answered & sayde: These are they whom the Lorde hathe sente to go thorowe the worlde. And they answered the C aungel of the Lorde, ꝓ stode among the myrre trees and sayde. We haue gone thorowe the worlde: and beholde all the worlde dwell at ease and are carelesse.

Then the Lordes aungel gaue answer and sayde: O Lorde of hoostes, howe longe wylt thou be vnmercyful to Jerusalem and to the cyties of Juda? *with whō thou hast bene displeased nowe these thre score & ten yeares. So the Lorde gaue a louynge and a comfortable answere vnto the aungel ꝓ talked wyth me. And the aungel that comened with me, sayd vnto me: Crye thou, & speake. Thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. I am exceadynge gelous ouer Jerusalem and Sion, and sore displeased at the carelesse heathen: for where as I was but a lytle angry, they dyd they? beste that I mygte destroye them. Therfore thus sayeth the Lord: *I wyl turne me agayne in mercye toward Jerusalem, so that my house shalbe buylded in it, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes, yee, and the plommet shalbe layed abroade in Jerusalem, sayeth ꝓ Lorde of hoostes.

D Crye also, and speake thus sayeth ꝓ Lorde of hoostes. My cyties shalbe in good prosperyte agayne, the Lorde shall yet comforte Sion: & chose Jerusalem: Then lyfte I vp myne eyes, & sawe, & beholde foure hornes. And I sayde vnto the aungel, that talked wᵗ me what be these? he answered me. * These are the hornes which haue scatered Juda, Israel & Jerusalem abroade. And the Lord shewed me foure carpenters. Then sayde I: what wyll these do? He answered and sayde These are the hornes which haue so strowed Juda abroad, that no man durste lyft vp hys hede: But these are come to fray them awaye: & to caste out the hornes of the Gentiles: whyche lyfte vp theyr horne ouer the lande of Juda, to scatre it abroade.

C The. ii. Chapter.

C The mesurynge of Jerusalem and Juda.

A Lift vp myne eyes agayne, and loked: & beholde *a man with a mesure lyne in hys hand. Then sayde I: whether goeste thou? & he sayde vnto me: To mesure Jerusalem, ꝓ I maye se howe longe & howe brode it is. And beholde the aungell that talked wyth me, went hys waye forth. Then went there oute another angel to mete him, & sayde vnto hym: Rune speake to thys ponge man, and saye: Jerusalem shalbe enhabyted wythout eny wall, for the very multitude of people and catell that shalbe therin: *Yee, I my selfe (sayeth ꝓ Lorde) wyll be vnto her a wall of fyer roude aboute, and wylbe honoured in her.

D Get you forth, O fle from the lande of the north, sayth the Lorde, yee * whome I haue scatred into ꝓ foure wyndes vnder heauen, sayth the Lorde. Saue thy selfe, O Sion: thou that dwellest with the daughter of Babylon, for thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. After that glorious power hath he sent me out to the heathen, whych spoyled you, *for who so toucheth you, shall touch ꝓ aple of hys owne eye. Beholde, I wyll lyft vp myne hande ouer them ‡: so that they shalbe spoyled of those: whyche afore serued them, and ye shall knowe, that the Lord of hoostes hath sente me.

C Be glad, & reioyce, O daughter of Sion: for lo, * I am come to dwell in the myddest of the, sayth the Lorde. At the same time there shal many heathen cleue to the Lord and shalbe my people. Thus wyll I dwel in the myddest of the, and thou shalte knowe ꝓ the Lorde of hoostes hath sente me vnto the. The Lorde shal haue Juda in possessyon for hys parte in the holy ground, and shal chose Jerusalem yet agayne. * Let all flesh be styl before the Lorde, for he is ryssen oute of hys holy place.

C The. iii. Chapter.

C Of the lawe and hye estate of Christ, vnder the figure of Jesue the preest. A prophecy of Christe.

A Nd he shewed me Jesua the hye preest standyng before the angel of the lord *and Satan stode at his ryght hand to resyst hym. And the Lord sayde vnto Satan. The Lorde rebuke the (thou Satan,) yee, the Lorde that hath chosen Jerusalem, rebuke the. Is not thys a brand taken out of the fyre? Nowe Jesua was clothed wᵗ vncleane raiment, and stode before the aungel whych answered and sayde vnto those that stode before hym, take awaye the foule clothes from hym. And vnto him he sayde. Beholde, I haue taken awaye thy synne from ꝓ and wyl decke the wyth chaung of raymet.

he sayde moreouer, sett a fayre myter vpon
hys heade. So they set a fayre myter vpon hys heade, & put on clothes vpon hym, and ℣ C angel of the Lord stode there. Then ℣ angel of the Lord testifyed vnto Jesua, and spake
thus sayeth the Lord of hoostes. If thou wilt walke in my wayes, & kepe my watch: thou shalte rule my house, & kepe my courtes, & I wyll geue the place amonge these that stãde
here. Heare (O Jesua) thou hye preste, thou and thy frends that dwell before the, for they D are wõderous people. Behold, I wyl bring *Sap.iiii.a Jere.xxxvi.a and xxxiii.c zach.vi.b 2 esa.xvbiii.c 1. Pet.ii.a forth *the braunches of my seruaunt: for lo, ℣ stone ℣ I haue layed before Jesua: vpon
one stone shalbe vii. eyes. Behold I wyl he-we hym out (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) &
take awaye the synne of the lãde in one day.
Then shal euery man cal for his neyghboure
vnder the vyne and vnder the fyggtre, sayth the Lorde of hoostes:

C The. iiii. Chapter.

C The vision of the golden candelsticke and the exposition therof.

A AND ℣ angel that talked with me cam
agayne, and waked me vp, as a man
that is rayled out of hys slepe & sayd vnto me: what seyst ℣? And I sayde I haue loked, and beholde: a cãdelstycke al of golde
with a boule vpõ it, & his seuen lampes ther
in, and vpon euery lãpe seuen stalkes.
*Apoca.xi.a And *two olyue trees therby, one vpon the ryght syde of the boule, and ℣ other vpõ the lyfte syde. So I answered, and spake to the angel that talked wt me saying, O my Lord
what are these? the angell that talked wyth
B me answered and sayde vnto me: knowest
thou not what these be? and I sayde: No my Lorde. He answered & sayde vnto me: This is the worde of ℣ Lorde vnto zorobabel, say *Esay.xl.a inge: *Nether thorow an hooste of men nor thorowe strength, but thorowe my spirite, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. What art thou thou great mountayne, before zorobabel? ℣
C must be made euen. And he shal bryng vp ℣
*Ps.xxbiii.c fyrste *stone, so that men shal crye vnto him good lucke good lucke.
Moreouer, the worde of the Lord came
*philipen.ii.a vnto me sayinge. * The hãdes of zorobabel
haue layed the foundacyon of the house: hys
*De.xbiii.b handes, shall also fynyshe it, * that ye maye
knowe howe that the Lorde of hoostes hath sent me vnto you. For he that hath bene dispysed a lytle season, shall reioyce, when he se
eth the tynne weyght in zorobabels hande.
The. vii. eyes are the Lordes whych go tho-D rowe ℣ whole worlde. Then answered I, and sayd vnto him, what are these two olyue tre es vpon the ryght and lefte syde of ℣ candel stick? I spake moreouer, and sayd vnto him what be these two olyue braunches (whych thorow the two golden pypes) emptie them
selues into the golde? he answered me & sayd knowest thou not, what these be? And I say de, no, my Lorde. Then sayd he * These are *Apo.xi.a the two olyue braunches, that stande before
the ruler of the whole earth.

C The. v. Chapter.

C The vyson of the flyinge booke, sygnyfyinge the curse of theues and such as abuse the name of God, by the vyson of the measure, is sygnyfyed the bryngyng of Juda to Babylon.

A SO I turned me, lyftyng vp myne eyes, & loked, & beholde, a flyinge booke. And he sayd vnto me: what seest ℣ I answered: I se a flyinge
booke of. xx. cubytes longe, and. x. cubytes brode. Then sayed he vnto me: Thys is the curse ℣ goeth forth ouer the whole earth: for all theues shalbe Judged after this booke &
B all swearers shalbe iudged accordynge to ℣ same, & I wyl bryng it forth (sayeth ℣ Lorde of hoostes) so ℣ it shall come to ℣ house of ℣ theefe, & to the house of him, ℣ falsly sweareth
by my name: & shall remayne in hys house, &
consume it, wt the tymbre and stones therof.
Then the angel ℣ talked wt me, wente forth
and sayd vnto me: lyft vp thyne eyes and se,
what is this that goeth forth. And I sayde:
C what is it? he answered: thys is a measure goinge out. He sayde moreouer: Euen thus are they (℣ dwel vpon the whole earth) to lo
ke vpõ. And beholde, there was lyft vp a ta lent of leade: & lo, a woman sat in ℣ myddest
of ℣ measure. And he sayde: thys is vngodlynes. So he cast her into the myddest of the measure, and threwe the lompe of leade into D the mouth of the measure.
Then lyfte I vp myne eyes, & loked: and behold, there came out. ii. women, and ℣ wind
was in their wynges (for they had wynges lyke the wynges of a storke) & they lyft vp ℣ measure bet wixt the earth and ℣ heauẽ. The spake I to ℣ aungel that talked wt me: wypther wyl these beare ℣ measure? And he sayd
*Zach.vi. vnto me: into the lande of *Synear to buyld
them an house, whiche when it is prepared,
the measure shalbe set there in his place.

C The. vi. Chapter.

C By the foure charretes he descryb eth the prosperyte of foure kyngdomes.

A MOreouer, I turned me, lyftyng
vp myne eyes, and loked, & be-holde, there came foure charetes
out from betwyxte two hylles,
whiche hylles were of bzalle.
*zacha.vi. Apo.vi.a In the fyrst charret were *red horses, in the second charet were blacke horses, in the third charet were whyte horses, in the fourth cha-
ret were horses of dyuers colours and stroge.
Then spake I, and sayde vnto the aungell
B that talked with me: O lord what are these.
The aungell answered, and sayde vnto me:
*Jere.xlix.a * These are the. iiii. wyndes of the heauen,
which be come forth to stande before the ruler of all the earth. That with ℣ blacke horse went

wente into the lande of ꝑ nozth, & the white folowed them, and the spekled hozses wēte forth towarde ꝑ south. These hozses were very stronge, and wente out: & sought to go & take theyr iourney ouer the whole earth. And he sayde: get you hence, & go thozow the worlde. So they wente thozow out the worlde. Then cryed he vpon me, and spake vnto me, sayeng: behold, these that go towarde ꝑ nozth, shall stylle my wrath in the nozth countre.

C And the wozde of ꝑ Lozd came vnto me, sayeng. Take of ꝑ presoners that are come from Babylon: namely, Heldai, Tobiah, & Idaia: & come thou ꝑ same daye, & go into the house of Iosiah, the sonne of Sophony. Then take golde & syluer, & make crownes therof, and let them vpon ꝑ head of Iesua, the sonne of Iosedech, the hye preste, & speake vnto hym. Thus sayth the Lozde of hoostes. Behold, the man whose name is * the braūche: & he ꝑ shall springe vp after him, ‡ shall buylde vp ꝑ temple of the Lozde, yee, euen he shal buylde vp ꝑ temple of the Lozde. * he shall beare ꝑ prayse, he shal syt vpon the Lozdes trone, & haue the dominacyon.

* A preste shal he be also vpon his trone, & a peaceable counsel shalbe betwirte them both. And the crownes shalbe in the temple of the Lozde, for a remembraunce vnto Helem, Tobiah, Idaiah, and hen the sonne of Sophony. And soch as be farre of, shal come & buylde the temple of the Lozde, that ye maye knowe, how that ꝑ Lozde of hoostes hath sent me vnto you. And thys shall come to passe, yf ye wyll herken dilygently vnto the voyce of the Lozde youre God.

¶The.vii.Chapter.

¶ The estimacion of fastynge without mercye. The despysynge of charyte, & the obstynacye of the people.

IT happened also in ꝑ fourth yeare of kynge Darius, ꝑ the wozde of ꝑ Lozde came vnto zachary in the fourth daye of ꝑ nynth moneth, which is called Casleu: what tyme as Sarasar & Rogomelech & the men ꝑ were wt them sent vnto Bethell for to praye before the Lozde: and that they shulde saye vnto the prestes, which were in the house of the Lozd of hoostes, and to the prophetes. Should I wepe in the * fyfth moneth, & abstayne as I haue done nowe certayne yeares? Then came ꝑ wozde of ꝑ Lozde of hoostes vnto me sayeng. Speake vnto all the people of the land, and to the prestes, and saye: when ye fasted and mourned in ꝑ fyfth * & seuenth moneth (now this .lxx. yeares) dyd ye fast vnto me? When ye dyd eate also and dronche, dyd ye not eate & drynche for youre awne selues? Are not these the wozdes, which the Lozde spake by his prophetes afore tyme, whē Ierusalem was yet inhabited and welthy, she and the cytyes rounde about her: whē there dwelt men, both towarde the south and in the playne countrees?

And the wozde of the Lozde came vnto zachary, sayēge. Thus sayeth the Lozde of hoostes. * Execute true iudgement: shewe mercy & louynge kyndnesse, euery man to hys brother. Do the wyddowe, the fatherles, the straunger, & poore no wrong: & let no man ymagen euel agaynst hys brother in hys herte. * Neuertheiesse, they wolde not take hede, but turned theyr backes, and stopped theyr eares, ꝑ they shulde not heare: yee, they made theyr hertes as an Adamant stone lest they shulde heare the lawe & wozdes, * which ꝑ Lozd of hoostes sent in hys holy spryte by ꝑ prophetes afore tyme.

Wherfore the Lozd of hoostes was very wroth at thē. And thus is it come to passe: * that lyke as he spake and they wolde not heare: euen so they cryed, and I wolde not heare (sayth the Lozd of hoostes) but scatered them amonge all Gentyles, whom they knewe not. Thus the lāde was made so desolate, ꝑ there trauayled no man in it nether to, ner fro, for ꝑ pleasaunt lande was vtterly layed waste.

¶The.viii.Chapter.

¶ Of the returne of the people vnto Ierusalem, and of the mercy of God towarde them. Of good wozkes, The tallynge of the Gentyles.

SO the wozde of ꝑ Lozd came vnto me, sayēge. Thus sayth the Lozd of hoostes. I was in a great gelousy ouer Sion, yee, I haue bene very gelous ouer her in a great displeasure thus sayeth ꝑ Lozd of hoostes. I will turne me agayne vnto Syon, & wyll dwell in the myddest of Ierusalem: * so that Ierusalem shalbe called a faythfull & true cytye, ꝑ hyl of the Lozde of hoostes, yee, an holy hyll.

Thus sayth the Lozde of hoostes. There shall yet olde men & wemen dwel agayne in ꝑ stretes of Ierusalem: yee, & soch as go wt staues in their hādes for very age. The stretes of ꝑ cytye also shalbe full of yōge boyes and damselles, playinge vpon the stretes.

Thus sayeth the Lozd of hostes: yf ꝑ residue of this people thynke it to be vnpossible in these dayes, * shuld it therfore be vnpossyble in my syght, sayth ꝑ Lozd of hoostes? Thus sayth the Lozde of hoostes: Behold, I will delyuer my people from ꝑ lande of the east & west, and wyll bryng them agayne: that they maye dwell at Ierusalē. * They shalbe my people, & I wyll be theyr God, in treuth and ryghteousnesse.

Thus sayth the Lozde of hostes: let youre handes be stronge, ye that now heare these wozdes by ꝑ mouth of ꝑ prophetes, whyche be in these dayes ꝑ the foundacyon is layed

vpon the Lord of hoostes house that the tẽple maye be builded. For why? * before these dayes, neither men ner catel coulde wynne eny thinge, nether mygde eny man come in and out in rest for trouble: but I lett euery man go agaynst his neyghboure.

Neuertheles, I wyll now increase ꝑ residue of thys people nowre as afore tyme, * sayth the Lord of hoostes, * but they shalbe a sede of peace. The vyneyarde shal geue her frute, ꝑ grounde shall geue her increase, ℭ and the heauens shall geue theyr dewe: and I shall cause the remnaunt of thys people, to haue all these in possession. And it shall come to passe, that lyke as ye were a curse amonge the heathen (O ye house of Juda, and ye house of Israel) Euen so wil I delyuer you, that ye shalbe a blessing: feare not, but let your handes be stronge.

For thus sayth the Lord of hoostes: lyke as I decysed to punysh you, what tyme as your fathers prouoked me vnto wrath, sayeth ꝑ Lord of hoostes, & spared not. Euen so am I determined now in these dayes, for to do well vnto the house of Juda & Jerusalem, therfore feare ye not. Nowe ꝑ thynges * ephe. iiii. c. zacha. viii. b. Malac. ii. b. that ye shall do, are these: * Speake euery man the treuth vnto hys neyghboure, execute iudgement truly, and peaceably wythyn your portes, none of you ymagin euel in his herte agaynst hys neyghboure, and loue no false othes: for all these are ꝑ thynges that I hate, sayeth the Lorde. And the worde of the Lord of hoostes, came vnto me, sayeng: thus sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. The fast of the fourth moneth, ꝑ fast of the fifth, the fast of the seuenth, and the fast of the tenth, shall be ioye and gladnesse, and prosperous hye feastes vnto the house of Juda: Onely, loue the treuth and peace.

D Thus sayeth the Lord of hoostes. There shall yet come people, and the inhabiters of many cytyes, & they that dwell in one cyte shal go to another, sayeng. * Up, let vs go, * esa. xi. a. Zach. viii. a. Jere. xxvi. a. & praye before ꝑ Lorde, let vs seke ꝑ Lorde of hoostes, I wyll go wt you: yee, moch people & myghtye heathen shal come & seke ꝑ Lord of hoostes at Jerusalem, and to praye before ꝑ Lord. Thus sayeth ꝑ Lord of hoostes. In ꝑ tyme shall ten men (out of all maner of languages of the Gētyles) take one Jewe by the hemme of hys garmēt, & saye: We wyll go wt you, for we haue herde, that God is amonge you.

ℭ The. ix. Chapter.

ℭ The conuersion of the Gentyls. The comynge of Christ sytteynge on an Asse.

THe worde of the Lorde shalbe reuealed at Adrach, & Damascus shalbe hys offeryng: for the eyes of all men & of ꝑ trybes of Israel shall loke vp vnto ꝑ Lord. The borders of Hemath shall be herde therby, Tirus also & Sidon, for they are very wyse, * Tirus shall make her self stroge, heape vp syluer as ꝑ sande, & golde as ꝑ claye of ꝑ stretes. Behold, ꝑ Lord shal take her in, & haue her in possessyon: * he shal smyte downe her power into ꝑ see, and she shalbe cōsumed wt fyre. This shall Ascalon se, & be afrayed. * Gaza shalbe very sory, so shall Accaron also, because her hope is come to confusion. For ꝑ kynge of Gaza shal perysh, & at Ascalon shall no man dwell. * Jos. xi. * Esa. xiv. * Jer. xlvii. Amos. i. Zach. ix.

Straungers shall dwell at Asdod, & as for ꝑ pryde of the Philystynes, I shall rote it out. * They bloude wyll I take awaye from theyr mouth, & theyr abhomynacyon from among theyr teeth. Thus they shalbe left for our God, yee, they shalbe as a prince in Juda, & Accaron lyke as a Jebusy. And so wyll I cōpase my house rounde about wt my men of warre goynge to & fro: that no oppressoure come vpon the eny more. For now haue I seene now with myne eyes. * Esa. xix. i. Cor. xv. and. j. c.

* Reioyce ꝑ greatly, O daughter Syon, be glad, O daughter Jerusalē. For lo, thy kynge cōmeth vnto the, euen the ryghteous and Sauioure, Lowly & symple is he, he rydeth vpon an asse, & vpon ꝑ foale of an asse. I will rote out ꝑ charrettes frō Ephraim, & the horse from Jerusalem, ꝑ batel bowes shalbe destroyed. he shall geue the doctrine of peace vnto ꝑ heathen, * & his dominyon shalbe from ꝑ one see to ꝑ other, & from the floudes to the endes of the worlde. * Esa. lxii. Mat. xxi. a. Joh. xii. a. ℭ * psal. lxxi. b.

Thou also thorow the bloude of thy couenaūt: shalt let * thy presoners out of the * pitte wherin is no water. Turne you now to ꝑ stroge holde, ye ꝑ be in presons, * & longe sore to be deliuered. And this daye I bryng ꝑ worde, ꝑ I wyll rewarde ꝑ double agayne. For Juda haue I bent out as a bowe for me & Ephraim haue I fylled. Thy sonnes, O Sion, will I rayse vp agaynst ꝑ Grekes, & make ꝑ as a gyauntes swearde: ꝑ Lorde God shalbe sene aboue them, & hys dartes shall go forth as ꝑ lyghtenynge. The Lord God shall blowe the trompet, and shal come forth as a storme out of the south. * Esa. xlii. a. Apo. xx. a. * Zac. ix. a.

The Lord of hoostes shall defende them, they shal cōsume & deuoure, & subdue them with * slynge stones. They shall dryncke & rage, as it were thorow wyne. They shalbe fylled lyke ꝑ basens, & as ꝑ hornes of ꝑ aulter. The Lord their God shal delyuer them in the daye, as ꝑ flock of his people: for as precyous stones of a dyademe they shall be sett vpouer his lande. O how prosperous and goodly a thynge shal that be! The corne shall make ꝑ yonge men chearefull, and the new wyne the maydens. D * Zach. ix. b. i. Mac. vi.

ℭ The. x. Chapter.

ℭ The people is moued to require the doctryne of truth of the Lorde. The Lorde promyseth to vysyt and couforte the house of Israel.

Praye

PRaye the Lorde then by tymes to geue you ꝑ latter rayne, * so shal the Lorde make bright cloudes, ād geue
you rayne ynough for all the increase of the felde. For rayne is the answere of Idols.
The sothsayers se lyes, and tell but vayne
dreames: the comforte that they geue, is nothyng worth. Therfore, go they astraye lyke a flocke of shepe, and are troubled, because they haue no * shepherde. Myy wroth full displeasure is moued at the shepherdes, & I will vyset the goates. For the Lorde of hostes will graciously vyset his flock, the house of Juda, and holde them as a goodly fayre horse in the batel. Out of * Juda shal come the helmet & the nayle the batelbowe, ād all the princes together. They shalbe as ꝑ gyauntes, which in the batell treade downe the myre vpon the stretes. They shal fyght for the Lorde shalbe wyth them, so that the horsmen shalbe confounded.

I wyll comforte the house of Juda, and preserue the house of Joseph. I wyll turne them also, for I pitie them: and they shal be lyke as they were, when I had not cast the
of. For I the Lorde am their God, ād wyll heare the. Ephraim shalbe as a gyaunt, ād
their hert shalbe chereful as thorow wyne:
yee, their children shall se it, and be glad, ād
their hert shall reioyce in the Lorde. I wyll blowe for them and gather them together,
for I wyll redeme them. They shall increase, as they increased afore. I wyll sowe thē amonge the people, that they may thynche
vpon me in farre countrees: they shall lyue
with their children, & turne agayne. I wyll bryng them agayne also from the lande of Egypt, and gather them out of Assyria. I wyll carye them into the lande of Galaad &
to Libanus and they shal wante nothinge.
He shall go vpon the see of trouble, & smyte
the see waues: so that all the depe floudes shalbe dryed vp. The proude boastynge of Assur shalbe cast downe, and the sceptre of
* Egypte shall be taken awaye. I wyll cō-forte thē in the Lorde, that they maye walke in his name, sayeth the Lorde.

¶The.xi.Chapter.

¶The destruccion of the temple. The care of the faythfull is committed to Christ by the father. A greuous byrthen agaynst Jerusalem and Juda.

OPen thy dores, O Libanus, that ꝑ
fyre maye cōsume thy Cedre trees.
Howle ye fyrre trees for the Cedre is fallen, yee, all the proude are wasted awaye. Howle (O ye oke trees of Baasan) for the myghtye stronge wood is cut downe. Men may heare the shepherdes mourne, for their glorye is destroyed. Men may heare the lyons whelpes roare, for the pryde of Jordane is wasted awaye.

Thus sayeth the Lorde my God: Fede the shepe of the slaughter, whiche shalbe slayne
of those ꝑ possesse them: yet they take it for no sinne, but they that sell them, saye: The Lord be thāked, I am rich: yee, their awne shepherdes spare thē not. Therfore wyll I nomore spare those that dwell in the lande, (sayeth the Lorde) but lo, I wil deliuer the people, euery mā into his neyghbours hāde
and into the hande of his kynge: that they maye smyte the lande, and out of their han-des I wyll not delyuer them.

I my selfe fedde ꝑ slaughter shepe (a poore flocke verely) and toke vnto me two staues: the one is called louyng mekenesse, the other is called destroyer, ād so kepte the she-
pe. Thre shepherdes I putt out of office in one moneth, for I myght not awaye wyth thē, nether had they eny delyte in me. Then sayde I: I wyll tede you no more * ꝑ thynge
that dyeth, let it dye: and that wyll perysh, let it perish, and let the remnaunt eate, euery one the flesshe of his neyghboure. I toke
also my louynge mekē staff, and brake it, ꝑ
I myght disanull the * couenaunt, which I made wyth all people. And so it was broke in that daye.

Then the poore symple shepe that had a respect vnto me, knewe therby, that it was the worde of the Lorde. And I sayde vnto them: yf ye thynck it good, bring hyther my prycē: yf no, then leaue. ‡ So they wayed downe. xxx. syluer pens, the value ꝑ I was pryced at. And the Lorde said vnto me: cast it vnto the potter (a goodly pryce for me to be valued at of them) and I toke the. xxx.
syluer pens, and cast them to the potter in ꝑ house of the Lorde. Then brake I my other staf also (namely destroyer) ꝑ I might lowse ꝑ brotherhead betwirt Juda and Israel.
And the Lorde sayde vnto me. Take ꝑ also the staff of a foolysh shepherde: for lo, I wyll
rayse vp a shepherde in the lāde, which shal not seke after ꝑ thinges that be lost, ner care for such as go astraye: he shal not heale ꝑ wouded, he shall not norysh the thinge that is whole: but he shal eate the flesh of soch as
be fat, and teare theyr clawes in peces.

O Idols shepherde, that leaueth the flo-
che. The swerde shall come vpon hys arme and vpon hys ryght eye. Hys arme shalbe cleane dryed vp, and hys ryght eye shalbe sore blynded.

¶The.xii.Chapter.

¶Of the destruccion and buyldynge agayne of Jerusalem.

THe heuy burthen which ꝑ Lorde hath deuysed for Israell. Thus sayeth the Lorde * which spred the heaues abro-de, layde the foundacion of the earth ‡ and geueth man the breath of lyfe. Beholde, I wyll make Jerusalem a cuppe of surfet, vn-
to all the people that are rounde about her.

*zach.xiiii.c *Yee, Juda hym selfe also shalbe in the sege agaynst Jerusalem. At the same tyme wyll I make Jerusalem an heuy stone for al people, so that al soch as lyft it vp, shalbe toarne and rente, and all the people of the earth shalbe gathered together agaynst it.

23 ‡Abdi.i.c Amos.i.a ‡In that daye, sayeth the Lorde, I wyll make all horses abashed, and those that ryde vpon them, to be out of their wittes. I wyl opē myne eyes vpon the house of Juda, and smyte all ꝑ horses of the people with blindnesse. And the princes of Juda shall saye in their hertes. The inhabyters of Jerusalem shall geue me consolacio in the Lorde of hostes their God. In that tyme will I make ꝑ princes of Juda lyke an hote burnynge ouē with wood, and lyke a cressel of fyre among the strawe: so that they shall consume all ꝑ people rounde aboute them, both vpon the ryght hande & the left. Jerusalem also shalbe inhabyted agayne: namely, in the same place where Jerusalem standeth.

C The Lorde shall preserue the tētes of Juda lyke as a fore tyme: so ꝑ the glory of the house of Dauid: & the glory of the cytesyns of Jerusalem, shalbe but lytle regarded, in cōparison of ꝑ glory of Juda. In that daye shall the Lorde defende ꝑ cytesyns of Jerusalem: so that the weakest then amonge thē

*i.Ma.xvii.f shalbe as *Dauid: and the house of Dauid shalbe lyke as Gods house, ād as the Aungell of the Lorde before them.

At the same tyme will I go about to destroye all soch people as come against Jerusalem. Moreouer, vpon the house of Dauid

*Eze.xxxvi.d Joel.ii.f Actu.ii.b ‡John.xix.d and vpon the cytesyns of Jerusalem *will I poure out the spyrete of grace & cōpassion, so ꝑ ‡they shall loke vpō me, whō they haue pearsed: & they shal bewepe hi as mēmourne for their only begottē sōne: yee, & be sory for him, as mē are sory for their firste chyld.

D *Luc.xxiii.c Apo.xviii.a *Then shall there be a great mournyng at Jerusalem, ‡lyke as the lamentacion at Adremmon in the felde of Maggadon. And the lande shall bewayle euery kinred by thē selues. The kinred of ꝑ house of Dauid thē selues alone, and their wiues by thē selues:

*ii.Ma.xxi.a The kynred of the house of *Nathan them selues alone, and their wyues by thē selues. The kynred of the house of Leui them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues. The kynred of the house of Semei them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues. In lyke maner, all ꝑ other generacios euerychone by them selues alone, and their wyues by them selues.

¶ The.xiii.chapter.

¶ Of the well of grace and truth. Of the cleane vnderstanding of Idolatry, and of false prophetes.

A *Eze.xxxvi.b Zacha.xiii.b Iohn.xix.b IN that tyme shall the house of Dauid and the cytesyns of Jerusalem haue an open *well, to wash of synne and vnclennesse. And then (sayeth the Lorde of hostes) ‡I wyll destroye the names of Idoles out of the lāde: so that they shall nomore be put in remembraunce. ‡Esay.ii.c Ezech.xxx.

*As for the false prophetes also, and the vnclene spyrete, I shall take thē out of ꝑ lande. So that yf any of them prophecye any more, ‡his awne father ād mother that begat him, shall saye vnto hi. Thou shalt dye for thou speakest lyes vnder the name of ꝑ Lorde: yee, his awne father ād mother that begat him, shall woūde him, whē he prophecieth. And then shall those prophetes be cōfoūded, euery one of his visiō when he prophecieth: neither shal they were sack clothes any more, to disceaue men with all. But he shall be sayne to saye: * I am no Prophet: I am an husbandeman, for so am I taught ‡by Adam fro my youth vp. And yf it be sayde vnto hym: how came these woundes then in thine hādes? he shal answere. Thus am I wounded in the house of myne awne frendes. *Jere.xxiii. ‡Amos.iii.b

C Aryse, O thou swearde, vpō my shepherde, and vpon the Prince of my people, saieth the Lorde of hostes. * Smyte the shepherd, and the shepe shalbe scatred abrode, and so wyll I turne myne hande to the lytle ones. And it shall come to passe (sayeth ꝑ Lorde) that in all the land two partes shalbe roted out, * but the thyrde parte shall remayne therin. ‡ And the same thyrde parte wyll I bringe thorow ꝑ fire, & wil clense thē, as the syluer is clensed: yee, & trye thē lyke as golde is tryed. Then shall they call vpō my name and I will heare them: I wyll saye: it is my people. And they shal saye: Lorde my God. *Mat.xxvi. Mar.xiiii.b *Amos.ix.b ‡Job.xxiii.a Esa.xlviii.a Psal.xvii.c lxvi.c.xlvi.b i.Petri.i.b Pro.xvii.a Hapim.ii.a Ezechi.ii.a

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

¶ The watchynge of the church vnder the figure of Jerusalem. Of the kyngdome of the Lorde.

BEholde, ꝑ daye of the Lorde cōmeth, that ꝑ shalt be spoyled ād robbed, for I will gather together all ꝑ heathen to fight agaynst Jerusalē: so ꝑ the citie shal be wonne, the houses spoyled, and the wemē defiled. The halfe of the citie shal go awaye into captiuite, and the residue of the people shal not be caried out of the citie. After that shall ꝑ Lorde go forth to fight agaynst those heathen, as men vse to fyght in ꝑ daye of battel. Thē shall his fete stand vpō ꝑ mount olyuete, that lyeth vpon ꝑ east syde of Jerusalē. And ꝑ mount olyuete shall cleue in two, eastwarde and westwarde, so ꝑ there shalbe a great valley, and the halfe mount shall remoue towarde ꝑ north, & the other towarde the south. And ye shall flē vnto ꝑ valley of my hylles, for the valley of the hylles shall reach vnto Asal. Yee, flē shall ye ‡lyke as ye fled for the earthquake in ꝑ dayes of Oziah kynge of Juda. And the Lord my God shal come, & al saintes wt him. In that daye shal it not A B C D ‡Amos.i.a

it not be lyghte, other cleare or dymme.
* This shalbe that speciall daye whiche is knowne vnto ꝓ Lord: nether day ner nyght but about the euenyng tyme it shalbe light.
* In that tyme shall there waters of lyfe runne out frō Jerusalem: the halfe potte of them towarde the eest see, and ꝓ other halfe towarde the vttermost see, &̄ shall cōtinue both somer and wynter. * And the Lorde hym selfe shalbe kynge ouer all the earth.

¶ At ꝓ tyme shall there be one Lord onely, & his name shalbe but one. ¶ It shall go about the whole erth, as vpō a felde: frō Gibea to Rēnō, & frō the south to Jerusalē. The shal be set vp, & inhabited i her place: frō Ben Jamyns porte, vnto ꝓ place of the fyrst porte, & vnto the corner porte: & from the tower of * Hananeell, vnto the kinges wyne presses. There shal men dwel, & there shalbe no more cursinge, but Jerusalē shalbe safely inhabited. This shalbe the plage, wherwith the Lorde will smyte all people, ꝓ haue fought agaynst Jerusalē. Namely, their flesh shall cōsume awaye, though they stāde vpō their fete, their eyes shalbe corrupt in their holes and their tunge shal cōsume in their mouth.

In that daye shall ꝓ Lorde make a great sedicion amōge thē, so ꝓ one man shall take another by the hande, & laye his hādes vpō the handes of his neyghboure. * Juda shall fyght also against Jerusalē, & the goodes of all ꝓ heathē shalbe gathered together roūd aboute: golde & syluer & a very great multitude of clothes. And so shall this plage goo ouer horses, mules, camels, asses, & all the beastes ꝓ shalbe in ꝓ host, lyke as pōder plage was. Euery one ꝓ remayneth then of all the people, which cam agaynst Jerusalem, shall go vp yerly, to worshyppe the kynge (euen the Lorde of hostes) * and to kepe the feast of tabernacles. And loke what generacion vpon the earth goeth vp to Jerusalem for to worshypp the kynge (euē the Lorde of hostes) vpon the same shall come no rayne. Yf the kynred of Egypte go not vp, & come not, it shall not rayne vpon them nether.

¶ This shalbe ꝓ plage wherwith the Lorde wil smyte all ꝓ heathen, ꝓ come not vp to kepe ꝓ feast of tabernacles: yee, this shalbe ꝓ synne plage of Egipt & ꝓ sine plage of al people ꝓ go not vp to kepe ꝓ feast of tabernacles.

At that tyme shall the rydyng gere of the horses be holy vnto the Lorde, & the kettels in the Lordes house shall be lyke the basens before the aulter: yee, al the kettels in Jerusalē and Juda, shalbe holy vnto the Lorde of hostes: and all they that slaye offeringes, shall come & take of them, & dyght thē there in. And at that tyme there shall be no mo Cananytes in the house of the Lorde.

¶ The ende of the Prophecye of zachary.

¶ The booke of the Prophete Malachy.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ A complaynte agaynst Jsrael and her prestes.

THe heuy burthē, which ꝓ Lorde sheweth agaynste Jsraell, by Malachy. I haue loued you, sayeth the Lorde: & yet ye saye: wherin haste thou loued vs? ℣
* Was not Esau Jacobs brother, sayeth ꝓ Lorde? ‡ yet haue I loued Jacob, and hated Esau: * yee, I haue māde hys hylles wast and his heritage a wildernesse for dragons. And though Edom sayde: well, we are destroyed, we wyll go buylde vp agayne the places that be wasted, yet (sayeth the Lorde of hostes) * what they buylded, that brake I downe: so that it was called a cursed lande, and a people, whome the Lorde hath euer bene angrye withall. * Gen.xxv. ‡ Roma. ix. d * Jos.xxiii a * Abd.i.a

Youre eyes haue sene it, and ye youre selues must cōfesse, ꝓ the Lorde hath brought ꝓ lāde of Jsrael to great honoure. * Shulde not a sonne honoure his father, & a seruaūt his master? ‡ Yf I be now a father, where is myne honoure? Yf I be the Lord, where am I feared? sayeth the Lorde of hostes. ℣ * Exo.xx.a ‡ Deu.xxxii.a

Now to you prestes, ꝓ despyse my name. And yf ye saye: wherin haue we despised thy name? In this, ꝓ ye offre vnclene bred vpon myne aulter. And yf ye wil saye: wherin haue we offered any vnclene thinge vnto the? In this yye saye: the aulter of the Lorde is not to be regarded. Yf ye offre the blynde, is not that euel? And yf ye offre the lame and sycke, is not that euell? * Yee, offre it vnto thy prince, shal he be content with the, or accepte thy persone, sayeth ꝓ Lorde of hostes? ¶ * Leu.xxii.c * Ezec.xliii.e.

And now make youre prayer before God, that he maye haue mercy vpon vs: for sothe thinges haue ye done. Shal he regard your persones, thinke ye, sayeth the Lorde of hostes? Yee, what is he amonge you, that wyl do so moch as to shut the dores, or to kindle the fyre vpon myne aulter for naught? * I haue no pleasure in you, sayeth the Lord of hostes: ‡ and as for the meatoffringe, I wyl not accepte it at youre hande. * For frō the rysyng vp of the sonne vnto the going downe of the same, my name is greate amonge the Gētiles: yee, in euery place shal there sacrifice be done, and clene meatoffring offred vp vnto my name: for my name is great amonge the heathen, sayeth ꝓ Lorde of hostes. But ye haue vnhalowed it, in that ye saye, the aulter of the Lorde is not to be regarded, and the thyng that is set therupon not worthy to be eaten. ¶ * Gene.xiii.a ‡ Esai.i.b * Psa.xviii.a

Now saye ye: It is but labour and trauayle,

naple, ād thus haue ye thought scorne at it (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) offrynge robbery, yee, the lame and the sycke. Ye haue brought me in a meatofferyng, shulde I accepte it of your hāde, sayeth ꝓ Lorde: Cursed be the disseibler, which hath in his flocke one that is a male, ād when he maketh a vowe, offereth a spotted one vnto ꝓ Lord. For I am a greate kynge (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) and my name is fearfull among the heathen.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Thyrateninges agaynst the prestes beynge fewterers of the people.

1 AND now (O ye prestes) this cōmaundement touseth you: yf ye wyll not heare it, ner regard it, to geue ꝓ glory vnto my name, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes, *I will sende a curse vpon you, ꝑ I will curse youre blessynges: yee curse them wyll I yt ye do not take hede. Beholde, I shall corrupte your sede, and cast dongt in youre faces, euen the dounge of youre solempne feastes and it shall cleue fast vpon you. And ye shall knowe, that I haue sent thys commaundemēt vnto you: that my * couenaūt which I made with Leui, might stande sayeth the Lorde of hoostes.

*De.xxviii.d

*Mal.xxv.c

15 I made a couenaunt of lyfe ꝑ peace wyth him: this I gaue him, that he myght stande in awe of me: and so he dyd feare me, ād had my name in reuerence. The lawe of truthe was in his mouth, ād there was no wickednesse founde in his lyppes. He walked with me in peace and equyte, and dyd turne many one awaye frō their synnes. * For in the prestes lyppes shulde be sure knowledge, ꝓ men may seke the lawe at his mouth, for he is a messaunger of the Lorde of hoostes. But as for you, ye are gone clene out of ꝓ waye, ād haue caused the multitude to be offended at the lawe: * ye haue broken the couenaūt of Leui, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. Therfore wyll I also make you to be despysed, and to be of no reputacyon amonge all the people: because ye haue not kepte my wayes, but haue bene partiall in the lawe.

*Osee.iiii.b

*Deu.xxxiii.b

* Haue we not all one father? hath not one God made vs? * why doth euery one of vs then despise his awne brother, ꝑ so breake the couenaūt of oure fathers? Now hath Juda offended: yee, the abhominacion is done in Israel and in Jerusalē * for Juda hath defyled the Sanctuary of the Lorde, which he loued, and hath kepte the daughter of a straunge God. But the Lorde shal destroye the mā that doth this: (yee, both the master ād the scoler) out of the tabernacle of Jacob with hym that offreth vp meatoffryng vnto ꝓ Lorde of hoostes. Now haue ye brought it to this poynte agayne, ꝓ the aulter of the Lorde is couered with teares, weppynge and mournynge: so that I wyll nomore regard the meatofferynge, nether wyl I receaue or accepte eny thyng at your handes. And yet ye saye: wherfore? Euē because that where as the Lorde made a couenaunt betwixte ꝓ and the wyfe of thy youth, thou hast despysed. * Yet is she thyne awne companyō and maryed wyfe.

*Epha.iiii.g

¶

*Iacha. bii.b and. viii. c

*1. Esdr. ix. a Leui. xxi. d

*Gen.ii.g

D

So dyd not the one, and yet had he an excellent spyrete. What dyd then the one? he sought the sede promised of God. Therfore loke well to your spyrete, and let no man despyse the wyfe of his youth. Yf ꝓ hatest her * put her awaye sayeth ꝓ Lorde God of Israell and geue her clothynge for the scorne, sayeth the Lorde of Hoostes. Loke well then to youre spyrete, ād despyse her not. Ye greue the Lorde with your wordes, ꝑ yet ye saye: wherwith al haue we greued him? In this, that ye saye. All that do euel are good in the syght of God, and soch please hym. Or els where is the God that punisheth?

*Deu.xxiiii. Jerr.iii.b

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Of the messengre of the Lorde Johan Baptist: Of the dare of the Lorde, and of Elias.

BEholde, * I will sende my messaūger, whiche shall prepare the waye before me: ād the Lorde * whom ye wolde haue, shal soone come to his temple, yee, euē the messaunger of the couenaunt whom ye longe for.

1 *Mach.ii. Mat.xi. Luc.vii. 1 Esdr.viii. and.b.3 Esay.xxxix.

Beholde, he commeth, saieth the Lorde of hoostes. But who may abyde the dare of his cōmyng? Who shalbe able to endure, when he appeareth? For he is like a goldsmythes fyre, ād lyke washers sope. He shal syt him downe to trye and to clense the syluer, he shall pourge the chyldren of Leui, and purifye them lyke as golde and syluer: that they maye bringe meatofferinges vnto the Lorde in righteousnes. Then shall the offeryng of Juda and Jerusalem be acceptable vnto the Lorde, lyke as from the begynnynge ād in the yeares, a fore tyme. I wyll come and punyshe you, ād I my selfe wyl be a swyfte wytnes agaynst the witches, agaynste the aduouterers, agaynst false swearers: yee, ꝑ agaynst those that wrongeously kepe backe the hyrelynges hewty: which were the wyddowes and the fatherlesse, and oppresse the straunger, and feare not me, saieth the Lorde of hoostes. For I am the Lorde that chaunge not, ꝑ ye (O chyldren of Jacob) wyll not leaue of * ye are gone awaye fro myne ordinaunces, and seng the tyme of your fathers haue ye not kepte them.

15

*Deu.xxxii. iii.Mal.

* Turne you now vnto me, and I wyll turne me vnto you, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes: ye saye, wherin shal we turne? Shulde a man vse falsshed and disceat with God as ye vse ye vse falshed and disceate with me/yet ye saye wherin vse we disceate wt the/ * In Tithes & heaue offeringes. * Therfore are ye cursed wyth penury, because ye dissemble with me, all the sorte of you.

*Zacha.i.b

¶

* Wringe euery Tithe into my barne, that there maye be meat in myne house: and proue me withall (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) yf I wyll not open the wyndowes of heauē vnto you, ād poure you out a blessyng with plenteousnesse. Yee, I shall reproue the consumer for your sakes, so ỳ he shall not eate vp the frute of youre grounde, nether shall the vynyarde be bare in the felde, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes: In so moch that all people shall saye, that ye be blessed, for ye shall be a pleasaūt lande, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes.

Ye speake harde wordes agaynst me, sayeth the Lorde. And yet ye saye: What haue we spoken agaynst the? Ye haue sayde: It is but lost labour, to serue God/ † what profyt haue we for keppynge his cōmaundementes, and for walkynge humbly before the Lorde of hoostes? * Therfore maye we saye, that ỳ proude are happie, & that they which deale with vngodlynesse, are sett vp: for they tempte God, and yet escape.

But they that feare God, saye thus one to another: the Lorde considereth and heareth it. Yee, it is before him a memoryal boke, wrytten for soch as feare the Lorde, and remembre his name. And in the daye that I wyll make (sayth the Lorde of hoostes) they shalbe myne awne possession: and I will fauoure them, lyke as a man fauoureth hys awne sonne, that doth hym seruyce. Turne you therfore, and consydre what dyfference is betwyxte ỳ righteous and vngodly, betwirte him that serueth God, and him that serueth hym not.

* For marck, the daye commeth that shal burne as an ouen: and all the proude, yee, ād all soch as do wyckednesse, shalbe strawe, & the daye that is for to come, shall burne thē vp (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) so that it shal leaue them nether rote ner braunche. *pla. xviii a

But vnto you that feare my name, shall that Sonne of ryghteousnesse aryse, and health shalbe vnder his wynges: ye shal go forth, ād multiplie as the fat calues, ye shal treade downe the vngodly: * for they shalbe lyke the asshes vnder the soles of youre fete in the daye that I shall make, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. *Psal.c.b

Remembre the lawe of Moses my seruaunt, * whych I commytted vnto hym in Oreb for all Israell, with the statutes and ordinaunces. Beholde, I wyll sende you * Elias the prophet: before the cōmynge of the daye of the greate and fearefull Lorde. † He shal turne the hertes of the fathers to theyr children, and the hertes of the chyldren to their fathers, that I come not ād smyte the earth with curlynge. *deu.xiii b.a *Mat.xvii b xviii.b * *Luc.i.a

¶ The ende of the prophecy of Malachy: and cōsequētly of all the prophetes.

nayle, ād thus haue ye thought scorne at it (sayeth the Lorde of hooستes) offeryng robbery, yee, the lame and the sycke. Ye haue brought me in a meatoffering, shulde I accepte it of your hāde, sayeth ꝓ Lorde? Cursed be the dissebler, which hath in his flocke one that is a male, ād when he maketh a vowe, offereth a spotted one vnto ꝓ Lord. For I am a greate kynge (sayeth the Lorde of hoستes) and my name is fearfull among the heathen.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Threatenynges against the prestes beynge fautours of the people.

I

AND now (O ye prestes) this cōmaundement toucheth you: yf ye wyll not heare it, ner regard it, to geue ꝓ glory vnto my name, sayeth the Lorde of hoستes, *I will sende a curse vpon you, & will curse your blessynges: yee curse them wyll I yf ye do not take hede. Beholde, I shall corrupte your sede, and cast donge in your faces, euen the donge of your solempne feastes and it shall cleue fast vpon you. And ye shall knowe, that I haue sent thys commaundemēt vnto you: that my *couenaūt which I made with Leui, might stande sayeth the Lorde of hoستes.

*De.xxviiii

*Nu.xxv.c

15

I made a couenaunt of lyfe & peace wyth him: this I gaue him, that he myght stande in awe of me: and so he dyd feare me, ād had my name in reuerence. The lawe of truthe was in his mouth, ād there was no wickednesse founde in his lyppes. He walked with me in peace and equyte, and dyd turne many one awaye frō their synnes. * For in the prestes lyppes shulde be sure knowledge, ꝓ men may seke the lawe at his mouth, for he is a messaunger of the Lorde of hoستes. But as for you, ye are gone clene out of ꝓ waye, ād haue caused the multitude to be offended at the lawe: * ye haue broken the couenaūt of Leui, sayeth the Lorde of hoستes. Therfore wyll I also make you to be despysed, and to be of no reputacyon amonge all the people: because ye haue not kepte my wayes, but haue bene partiall in the lawe.

*Osee.iiii.b

*deu.xxviiii.b

*Ephe.iiii.a

¶

*Zacha. viii.b and.viii.c

*Haue we not all one father? Hath not one God made vs? * why doth euery one of vs then despise his awne brother, & so breake the couenaūt of oure fathers? Now hath Juda offended: yee, the abhominacion is done in Israel and in Jerusalē * for Juda hath defyled the Sanctuary of the Lorde, which he loued, and hath kepte the daughter of a straunge God. But the Lorde shal destroye the mā that doth this: (yee, both the master ād the scoler) out of the tabernacle of Jacob with hym that offreth vp meatoffryng vnto ꝓ Lorde of hoستes. Now haue ye brought it to this poynte agayne, ꝓ the aulter of the Lorde is couered with teares, weppynge and mournynge: so that I wyll nomore regard the meatoffeynge, nether wyl I receaue or accepte eny thyng at your handes. And yet ye saye: wherfore? Euē because that where as the Lorde made a couenaunt betwixte ꝓ and the wyfe of thy youth, thou hast despysed. * Yet is she thyne awne companyō and maryed wyfe.

*i. Esdr. ix.a Leui.xxi.c

*Gen.ii.

D

So dyd not the one, and yet had he an excellent spyrite. What dyd then the one? he sought the sede promised of God. Therfore loke well to your spyrite, and let no man despyse the wyfe of his youth. Yf ꝓ hatest her ‡put her awaye sayeth ꝓ Lorde God of Israell and geue her clothynge for the scorne, sayeth the Lorde of Hoستes. Loke well then to youre spyrite, ād despyse her not. Ye greue the Lorde with your wordes, & yet ye saye: wherwith al haue we greued him? In this, that ye saye. Al that do euel are good in the syght of God, and soch please hym. Or els where is the God that punisheth?

‡Deu.xxiiii. Jere.iii.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Of the messenger of the Lorde John Baptist. Of the daye of the Lorde, and of Elias.

BEholde, * I will sende my messaūger, whiche shall prepare the waye before me: ād the Lorde ‡whom ye wolde haue, shal soone come to his temple, yee, euē the messaunger of the couenaunt whom ye longe for.

I

*Matth.xi. Marc.i.a Luc.vii. ‡Gen.xii. and.xii. Esay.xl.

Beholde, he commeth, saieth the Lorde of hoستes. But who may abyde the daye of his cōmyng? Who shalbe able to endure, when he appeareth? For he is like a goldsmythes fyre, ād lyke washers sope. He shal syt him downe to trye and to clense the syluer, he shall pourge the chyldren of Leui, and purifye them lyke as golde and syluer: that they maye bringe meatofferinges vnto the Lorde in righteousnes. Then shall the offeryng of Juda and Jerusalem be acceptable vnto the Lorde, lyke as from the begynnynge ād in the yeares, a fore tyme. I wyll come and punyshe you, ād I my selfe wyl be a swyfte wytnes agaynst the witches, agaynste the aduouterers, agaynst false swearers: yee, & agaynst those that wrongeously kepe back the hyrelynges dewty: which vexe the wyddowes and the fatherlesse, and oppresse the straunger, and feare not me, saieth the Lorde of hoستes. For I am the Lorde that chaūge not, & ye (O chyldren of Jacob) wyll not leaue of * ye are gone awaye fro myne ordinaunces, and sens the tyme of your fore fathers haue ye not kepte them.

15

*Deu.xxvi. iii.xxx.

* Turne you now vnto me, and I wyll turne me vnto you, sayeth the Lorde of hoستes: ye saye, wherin shal we turne? Shulde a man vse falshed and disceat with God as ye vse ye vse falsheed and disceate with me/ yet ye saye wherin vse we disceate wt the/ * In Tithes & heaue offeringes. * Therfore are ye cursed wyth penury, because ye dissemble with me, all the sorte of you.

*Zacha.i.b

¶

* Bringe euery Tithe into my barne, that there maye be meat in myne house: and proue me withall (sayeth the Lorde of hoostes) yf I wyll not open the wyndowes of heaue vnto you, and poure you out a blessyng with plenteousnesse. Yee, I shall reproue the consumer for your sakes, so ỳ he shall not eate vp the frute of youre grounde, nether shall the vynyarde be bare in the felde, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes: In so moch that all people shall saye, that ye be blessed, for ye shall be a pleasaut lande, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes.

Ye speake harde wordes agaynst me, sayeth the Lorde. And yet ye saye: What haue we spoken agaynst the? Ye haue sayde:

It is but lost labour, to serue God: * what profyt haue we for keppynge his cõmaundementes, and for walkynge humbly before the Lorde of hoostes? * Therfore maye we saye, that ỳ proude are happie, & that they which deale with vngodlynesse, are sett vp: for they tempte God, and yet escape.

But they that feare God, saye thus one to another: the Lorde consydereth and heareth it. Yee, it is before him a memoryal boke, wrytten for soch as feare the Lorde, and remembre his name. And in the daye that I wyll make (sayth the Lorde of hoostes) they shalbe myne awne possession: and I will fauoure them, lyke as a man fauoureth hys awne sonne, that doth hym seruyce. Turne you therfore, and consydre what dyfference is betwyxte ỳ righteous and vngodly, betwixte him that serueth God, and him that serueth hym not.

* For marck, the daye commeth that shal burne as an ouen: and all the proude, yee, & all soch as do wyckednesse, shalbe strawe, & the daye that is for to come, shall burne them vp (saieth the Lorde of hoostes) so that it shal leaue them nether rote ner braunche. *psa. xviii a

But vnto you that feare my name, shall that Sonne of ryghteousnesse aryse, and healthe shalbe vnder his wynges: ye shal go forth, & multiplie as the fat calues, ye shal treade downe the vngodly: * for they shalbe lyke the asshes vnder the soles of youre fete in the daye that I shall make, sayeth the Lorde of hoostes. *Psal.c.b

Remembre the lawe of Moses my seruaunt, * whych I commytted vnto hym in Oreb for all Israell, with the statutes and ordinaunces. Beholde, I wyll sende you * Elias the prophet: before the cõmynge of the daye of the greate and fearefull Lorde. * He shal turne the hertes of the fathers to theyr children, and the hertes of the chyldren to their fathers, that I come not & smyte the earth with curlynge. *deu.xiii b.c *Mat.xvii xviii.b *Luc.i.a

¶ The ende of the prophecy of Malachy: and cõsequẽtly of all the prophetes.

¶ The volume of the bokes called Hagiographa.

The thyrde boke of Esdras.
The fourth boke of Esdras.
The boke of Tobiah.
The boke of Judith.
The resst of the boke of Hester.
The boke of wysdome.
Ecclesiasticus.
Baruch the prophete.
The songe of the .iii. Chyldren in the ouen.
The storye of Susanna.
The storye of Bel & of ꝑ Dragon.
The prayer of Manalleh.
The fyrst boke of the Machabees.
The seconde boke of ꝑ Machabees.

To the Reader,

IN conſyderacyon that the bokes before are founde in the Hebrue tonge, receaued of all men: & that the other folowyng, whych are called Hagiographa (becauſe they were wont to be reade, not openly and in comen, but as it were in ſecret and aparte) are nether founde in the Hebrue nor in the Calde: in whych tonges they haue not of longe bene wrytten (in leſſe then it were happly the boke of Sapience) wher vpon it were now very harde to repayre & amende them: And that alſo they are not receaued nor taken as legyttymate & leafull, as well of the Hebrues as of ꝑ whole Churche, as S. Hierome ſheweth: we haue ſeparat them, & ſett them aſyde, that they may the better be knowen: to thyntent that men maye knowe of whych bokes wytnes ought to be receaued, and of whych not. For the ſayde S. Hierome ſpeakynge of the boke of Judith (which is Hagiogrypha) ſayth, ꝑ the auctorytie therof is not eſteemed worthy and ſufficient to confyrme and ſtablyſh the thynges that lyght in diſputacyō. And generally of all ꝑ bokes called Hagiogrypha, he ſayth, that men maye reade them to the edifyinge of the people: but not to confyrme & ſtrengthen the doctrine of the Churche. I leaue oute here the lawe (as they call it) of Canon. c. Sancta Romana. xv. diſtinc. where he ſheweth his iudgement. Lykewyſe the Gloſe of. c. Canones. xvi. diſtin. which ſayth, that men reade the, but not in generall: as though he ſhulde ſaye, that generally and thorouly they are not alowed. And not wythout a cauſe: For that they haue bene corrupted and falſyfyed in many places, it appeareth ſufficyently by Euſebius in his boke called Hyſtoria Eccleſiaſtica: Wbych thynge is calye to be knowen euen now a dayes in certen poyntes, namely in the bokes of the Machabees: whoſe ſecond boke S. Hiero. confeſſeth that he founde not in the Hebrue, by the meanes wherof it is become vnto vs the more ſuſpect and the leſſe receaued. In lyke maner is it of the thyrde and fourthe boke of Eſdras, whych S. Hierome proteſteth that he wolde not haue tranſlated, eſteamyng them for dreames: where as Joſephus yet in his booke of hys Antiquities declareth ꝑ ſumme of ꝑ matter after the maner of a ſtorye, as well of the boke of Machabees as of the. iii. of Eſdras: all though he eſteame the bokes compyled from the raygne of kynge Artaxerxes vnto hys tyme, to be Hagiogrypha.

In the Prologe to the Pſalter.

In the Prologe before Judith.

In the Prologe to the Pſalter.

In the iiii. boke che. xviii cap.

In the Prologe of Eſdras.

In the. xi. xii & xiii. of the Antiquities.

In the Prologe vpon the bokes of the kynges.

In ſ. iii. boke of Agaynſt Appion.

Wherfore then, whē thou wylt mayntayne any thynge for certen, rendryng a reaſon of thy fayth, take heade to proceade therin by ꝑ lyuynge and pythye Scriptures folowynge S. Peter, whych ſayeth: he ꝑ ſpeaketh, let hym ſpeake as though he ſpake the worde of God. He ſayeth the worde of God, as a thynge moſt true and certen, opened by the Prophetes and Apoſtles, inſpyred wyth the holy gooſt: of whom we haue wytneſſe moare cleare then the daye. Lawers haue vpnge greate delyre to confyrme and ſtablyſh theyr opynyons by the lawe of man, ſaye, that they ſhame to ſpeake wythout lawe: how moch more feare and dreade then ought he to haue, that ſayth he is a Chriſtian, the whych holdeth not hym ſelfe, or reaſteth not in ꝑ lawes of the lyuynge God: but in mennes inuencions, iudgynge of all thynges accordinge to them, and leanyng to an vncerten ymagynacyon and phantaſye? Let vs therfore that are buylded on the foundacyon of the holy Prophetes and Apoſtles, and on the head corner ſtone (on whych they them ſelues were founded, and whych they preached, that is Jeſus Chriſt, the ſure ſtone) leaue the thynges that are vncerten to folowe the certē: holdynge vs and reaſtynge vs in them, and faſtenyng oure ancre there, as in a ſure place. For oure Chriſten fayth conſyſteth not in doutefull thynges, but in playne and moſt certen aſſurauncē, and in moſt true perſuaſyon, taken & confyrmed by infallible verite. In whych God graunte vs to waicke perpetuallye, to thyntent that accordynge to it (fulfyllynge his holy wyll in vs, and ſettynge aſyde all inuencyous contrary vnto hym) we maye lyue to hys honour, and to the edifyinge of hys Churche.

Ebrue. c. Ephe. ii. b.

Erubeſcimꝰ ſine lege in qui.

1. Pet. iii. c. 1. Pet. i. b. ii. Pet. i. b.

So be it.

48
10. 12.
68.

The thyrde boke of Eldras.

The fyrst Chapter.

Josias holdeth passouer. After his death he Jechonias his sonne made kynge in his stede: whom the kyng of Egypt putteth out, and setteth in his brother Joachim. Jerusalem is destroyed, & Babylon taken.

IOsias * holde the feaste of Easter in Jerusalem vnto the Lorde, & slewe the Passeouer the xiiii. daye of the fyrst moneth. He set the Priestes also in order (accordynge to theyr dayly courses) beyng arayed in longe garmentes in the temple of the Lord. And he spake vnto the Leuites the holy mynysters of Israel, that they shulde halowe them selues vnto the Lord, to set the holy arcke of the Lord, in the house that kyng Salomon the sonne of Dauid had buylded, and sayde. Ye shall no more beare the Arcke vpon youre shulders. Now serue youre Lorde, & take the charge of hys people of Israel, after youre vyllages and youre trybes: accordynge as kynge Dauid the kynge of Israel, hath ordened, & accordynge as Salomon hys sonne hath honorably prepared: ye, loke that yee all do seruyce in the temple, accordynge to the ordrynge & distribucyon of the principall men which are appoynted out of the trybes, to do seruice for the chyldren of Israel. * Kyll the Passeouer, & prepare offrynges for youre brethren, & do accordynge to the commaundement of the Lord, which was geuen vnto Moses. And vnto the people that was founde Josias gaue. xxx. thousande of shepe, lambes, kyddes, & goates, & thre thousande oxen. These the kynge (of his kyngly liberalite) gaue vnto the people, accordynge as he had promised: & to the Priestes for the Passeouer, he gaue two M. shepe, & an hundreth oxen. Moreouer, Jechonias, & Semeias, & Nathanael brethren, & Hasabias, Jehiel, & Josabad gaue them to the Passeouer, fyue thousande shepe & fyue hundred bullockes.

And when these thynges were brought to passe, the Priestes & the Leuites stode goodly in theyr order, & had the vnleuened bred thorow out the trybes. And after the ordrynge of the principall men in the trybes, they offered vnto the Lorde in the syght of the people accordyng * as it is wrytten in the boke of Moses, & so they rosted the Easter lambe as accordyng was. As for the thacke offrynges & the other, they dyght them in kettels and pottes, & set them before the people with good wyll, & afterwarde before them selues, and the Priestes. For the Preastes offred the fatt, vntyll the tyme was expyred, but the Leuites prepared for the selues & for theyr brethren the chyldren of Aaron. The holy syngers also the chyldren of Asaph stode in theyr order, accordyng as Dauid deuysed. Moreouer Asaph zachary & Jduthun, whych were appoynted by the kynge. Moreouer the porters & dore kepers stode by the dores & the diligently, so that none went out of his stadynge & seruice: for theyr brethren (the Leuites) prepared for them. Thus were all thynges performed, that belonged to the offerynge of the Lorde. In that daye they helde the Passeouer, and offred thankofferynges beside the sacrifyce of the Lorde, accordyng to the comaundement of kyng Josias.

So the chyldren of Israel whych were then present helde an honorable Passeouer & the feast of swete bread. vii. dayes longe. Yee such a Passeouer was not kepte in Israel, from the tyme of the Prophet Samuel. And all the kynges of Israel helde not such an Easter, as this which kyng Josias helde, & the priestes, & Leuites, & Jewes & all Israel, of all them that were at Jerusalem. And in the xviii. yere of the raygne of Josias was this Passeouer kept. And with a parfecte herte dyd kynge Josias ordre all his workes, before the Lord, & the thynges that were wrytte of hym in tymes past, concernyng those that synned & were vngodly agaynst the Lord before all people, & that sought not the worde of the Lord vpon Israel. * After al these actes of kyng Josias, Pharao the kyng of Egypte wet vp and came towarde Carmis by Euphrates, & Josias went to mete hym. Then sent the kyng of Egypte vnto Josias saying: what haue I to do with the, O kyng of Juda? I am not sent of the Lord to fyght agaynst the, for my warre is vpon Euphrates, go thou thy waye home agayne in all the haste. And Josias wolde not turne agayne vpon hys charet, but vndertoke to fyght agaynst hym, & herkened not vnto the worde of the prophet, which he tolde him out of the mouth of God, but pytched a battayll agaynst hym in the felde of Wagreddo. And the rulers preassed to kyng Josias. Then sayde the kyng vnto his seruauntes. Cary me awaye out of the battayll, for I am sore wounded. And immediatly his seruauntes toke him awaye out of the front of the battayll. Then sat he vp vpon the seconde charett, came to Jerusalem, dyed, & was buryed in his fathers sepulcre. And in al Jewry they mourned for Josias, yee the rulers also with theyr wyues made lamentacion for hym vnto this daye. And this was done euer styll in Israel.

These thynges are wrytten in the boke of the storyes of the kynges of Juda, namely, all the actes and workes of kynge Josias, his kyngly power & maiesty, his vnderstandyng in the lawe of God, & what he dyd, yee thynges which are not wrytten in the boke

of ꝑ kynges of Israel & Juda. * And ꝑ people toke Jechonias the sonne of Josias and made hym kynge in steade of Josias his father, when he was .xxxiii. yeare olde. And he raygned ouer Israel thre monethes. And the kyng of Egypte put him downe, that he shuld not raygne in Jerusalem, & rayled vp a taxe of ꝑ people: namely, an. C. talētes of syluer & one talent of golde. The kynge of Egypt also made Joachim his brother kyng of Juda & Jerusalem. As for them of ꝑ kynges coūcell wt the kyng him selfe & Zaracches his brother, he toke them, & caryed them awaye presoners into Egypt. Xxue & twētie yeare olde was Joachim, when he was made kyng in ꝑ lāde of Juda & Jerusalem, and he dyd euell before the Lord. After this, * Nabuchodonosor ꝑ kyng of Babylō came vp, & bounde him with bādes of yron, & caryed hym vnto Babylon. Nabuchodonosor also toke all ꝑ vessels ꝑ were halowed in ꝑ tēple of ꝑ Lord, & all the Jewels, & caryed them vnto Babylon, & brought them in to his awne temple at Babylon. Of his vnclēnes & vngodlynes, it is wrytten i the boke of ꝑ actes of ꝑ kynges. And Joachim his sonne raygned in his steade. He was made kyng beynge .xviii. yeare olde, and raygned but thre monethes & .x. dayes in Jerusalem, & dyd euell before ꝑ Lord. So after a yeare, Nabuchodonosor sent & caused him to be brought vnto Babylon with ꝑ holy vessels of the Lord, & made Sedechias hys brother kyng of Juda & Jerusalem, whē he was .xxi. yeare olde: & he raygned .xi. yeare.

And he dyd euell also in the syght of the Lorde, & cared not for ꝑ wordes ꝑ were spoken vnto him * by the prophet Jeremy at the mouth of ꝑ Lord. And where he had made an othe vnto kyng Nabuchodonosor, he forswore him selfe, & fel from hym hauyng a stynech & a hert, & transgressed all ꝑ statutes and ordynaunces of ꝑ Lorde God of Israel. The rulers also & heades of the people of ꝑ Lord dyd moch euell, & became vngodly more then the heathen, beynge defyled in all maner of abhominaciōs. Yee & defiled ꝑ holy tēple of ꝑ Lorde at Jerusalem. And the God of theyr fathers sent his messaūgers vnto thē, to turne them backe & to call them agayne from theyr synnes: for he wolde fayne haue spared them for his holy tabernacles sake. Neuertheles, they had his messaungers in derysyon: & loke what God spake vnto thē by hys prophetes, they made but a sporte of it. This drew on so lōge, tyll ꝑ Lord was wroth wt his people for theyr vngodlynes, & tyll he caused the kynges of the Caldees to come vp, which slew theyr yōge men wt the swerde, yee euen i the copasse of their holy tēple, & spared no body, nether ponge ner olde, nether mayden ner ponge man: but they were all delyuered in to the power of the kynges of the Caldees, & all the holy vessels of the Lorde & the kynges treasures toke they, & caryed them vnto Babylon. * As for the houle of the Lorde, they went vp in to it, & brent it, & brake downe ꝑ walles of Jerusalem, set fyre vpon her towres, destroyed all her noble buyldinges & brought them to naught, and the people that were not slayne with ꝑ swerde they caryed vnto Babylon.

Thus became they presoners and bonde men of ꝑ kynge of Babylon, tyll they were delyuered & raygned for them selues, * whē ꝑ wordes of ꝑ Lorde were fulfylled, whych he promysed them by the mouth of the prophet Jeremy, and tyll the lāde had her rest: namely, all the tyme that it laye wayst, had it rest and quyetnes. lxx. yeares.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ Cyrus graueth lycence to the Jewes to returne to Jerusalem, and restoreth them the vesselles of the tēple. After that are there letters sende to Artaxerses, which accuse the Jewes for buyldynge of the cyte: and so is the buyldyng dyrum of vntyll the .ii. yeare of Darius.

* Now when kyng Cyrus raigned ouer the Persians, & when ꝑ Lord wolde perfourme ꝑ worde that he had promised by the mouth of the prophet Jeremy: the Lord rayled vp ꝑ spyrite of Cyrus, the kynge of Persians, so that he caused thys writynge to be proclaymed thorow oute hys whole realme, sayinge: Thus sayeth the kynge of Persians: The Lorde of Israel that hye Lorde hath made me kynge of the lande, and cōmaunded me to buylde hym an house at Jerusalem in Jewry. If there be eny now of youre people, the Lord be with hym, and go vp with him to Jerusalem. And all they that dwell roūde aboute that place shall helpe them, whether it be with golde, wt syluer, wt gyftes, wt horses, and necessary catell, & all other thynges that are brought with a fre wyll to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem.

Then the pryncipall men out of the trybes and vyllages of Juda and Beniamin stode vp: so dyd the prestes also and the Leuites (whom ꝑ Lorde had moued) to go vp, and to buylde the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem. And they that were aboute them, helped them with al maner of golde, and syluer, and catell also, and with many liberall gyftes, and thys dyd many one, whose mynde was stered vp ther to. * Kynge Cyrus also brought forth the vessels and ornamentes that were halowed vnto the Lorde, (whych Nabuchodonosor the kyng of Babylon had caryed awaye from Jerusalem, and consecrated them to hys Idoll & ymage) and delyuered them to Mythrydatus hys treasurer, and by hym they were delyuered lyuered to Salmanasar ꝓ debite in Jewry. And this was ꝓ nõbre of them: Two thousand & .iiii. C. syluer boules. xxx. syluer basens. xxx. basens of golde. ii. M. and. iiii. C. vessels of syluer, & a thousande besyde. All ꝓ vessels of golde & syluer were. v. M. viii. C. & lx. These were nõbred vnto Salmanasar, & to them ꝓ were come agayne wt hym to Jerusalem out of ꝓ captyuyte of Babylon. * Now in ꝓ tyme of kyng Artaxerses ꝓ kyng of Persia, these men. Valemus and Mitridatus, Sabellius, Rathimus, Balthemus, Semelius the Scribe, and other ꝓ dwelt in Samaria & in other places vnder ꝓ dompynõ therof, wrote a letter vnto kynge Artaxerses, wherin they cõplayned vnto ꝓ kynge of them in Jewry & Jerusalem. The letter was made after thys maner.

C Syr, thy seruaũtes Rathimus the storye wryter, Sabellius the Scribe, & other iudges of the courte in Celosyria & Phenyces. Be it knowne & manyfest to oure Lorde ꝓ kyng, ꝓ the Jewes which are come vp from you vnto vs into ꝓ rebellious & wycked cytye, begynne to buylde it agayne, & the walles aboute it, & to sett vp the temple a new. Now yf thys cytye & ꝓ walles therof be set vp agayne, they shall not onely refuse to geue trybutes & taxes, but also rebell vtterly agaynst the kynge. And for so moch as they take thys in hãde now aboute ꝓ tẽple, we thought it reason, to thynke no scorne of it, but to shewe it vnto oure Lorde the kyng, & to certyfye hym therof: to thintẽt ꝓ yf it please the kyng, he may cause it to be sought in ꝓ bokes of olde: and ꝓ shalt fynde soche warnynge wrytten, & shalt vnderstãde, ꝓ thys cytye hath all waye bene rebelyous & dysobediẽt, ꝓ it hath subdued kynges & cytyes, & that ꝓ Jewes whych dwell ther in, haue euer bene a rebellyous, obstynate, vnsaythfull, and fyghtynge people, for the which cause this cytie is walted. Wherfore now we certyfye oure Lorde the kynge, ꝓ yf thys cytye be buylded & occupyed agayne, & the walles therof set vp a new, ꝓ canst haue no passage into Celosyria & Phenices.

D Then wrote the kynge to Rathimus the storye wryter, to Balthemus, to Sabellius the Scribe, & to ꝓ other officiers & dwellers in Syria and Phenices, after thys maner: I haue red the epistle whych ꝓ sentest vnto me, and haue commaunded to make diligẽt search, & haue founde, ꝓ the cytye hath euer resysted kynges, ꝓ the same people are dysobedient, & haue caused moch warre, & that myghty kynges haue raygned in Jerusalẽ, which also haue rayled vp taxes of Syria and Phenices. Wherfore, I haue cõmaunded those people, ꝓ they shall not buylde the cytye, ꝓ they make no more in it, and ꝓ they procrade no forther wt the buyldynge: for so moch as it myght be the cause of warre, and displeasure vnto kynges.

Now when Rathymus and Sabellius the Scribe, & the rulers in the lãde had red ꝓ wrytynge of kyng Artaxerses, they gatt them together, & came in all ꝓ haste to Jerusalem wt an hoost of horsme, and wt moch people of fote, & forbad thẽ to buylde. And so they left of from buyldynge of the tẽple, vnto the secõd peare of kynge Darius.

¶ The. iii. Chapter.

¶ Darius maketh a feast. The thre sentences of the thre yonge men, of whych the fyrst is declared.

KYnge Darius made a great feast vnto his seruauntes, vnto all hys courte, & to all the officers of Medea and Persia, yee to all ꝓ debytes and rulers that were vnder hym, from India vnto Ethiopia, an hũdreth & .xxvii. coũtres. So when they had eaten & dronken beyng satysfyed, and were gone home agayne, Darius the kyng wente into his chambre, layed hym downe to slepe, and so awaked. A

Then the thre yonge men, that kepte the kynges personne, & watched hys body, commened amonge them selues, & spake one to another: let euery one of vs saye some thyng, & loke whose sentẽce is wyser & more excellẽt then the other, vnto hym shall kynge Darius geue greate gyftes, & clothe hym with purple. He shall geue hym vessels of golde to drynche in, clothes of golde & couerynges: he shall make hym a costely charet & a brydle of golde, he shall geue hym a bonet of whyte sylke, & a cheyne of golde about hys neck: yee he shalbe the secõde & pryncipall next vnto kyng Darius, & that because of his wysdome, and shalbe called the kynges kynsman. B

So, euery one wrote his meanyng, sealed it, & layed it vnder ꝓ kynges pelowe, & sayde: when ꝓ kyng aryseth, we wyll geue him oure wrytynges, & loke whose word ꝓ kynge & hys chefe Lordes iudge to be ꝓ moost wysely spoken, ꝓ same shall haue ꝓ victory. One wrote: Wyne is a stroge thynge. The second wrote: The kyng is stronger. The thyrd wrote: Wemen haue yet more strenghte, but aboue all thynges the trueth beareth awaye ꝓ victory. Now when the kyng was rysen vp, they toke theyr wrytynges & delyuered them vnto hym, & so he red thẽ. Thẽ sent he forth to call al his chefe lordes, all ꝓ debytes & rulers of the cõtrees of Medea & Persia. And when they were set downe in ꝓ coũcell, ꝓ wrytynges were red before them. And he cõmaũded to call for ꝓ yonge men, ꝓ they myght declare theyr meanynges thẽ selues by mouth. So when they were sent for, & came in, ꝓ kyng sayde vnto them: shewe vs & make vs to vnderstande what ꝓ thynges are ꝓ ye haue wrytten. C

D Then beganne ꝑ fyrſt (which had ſpoken
of the ſtrength of wyne) & ſayde: O ye men,
*Pſal.77.a. * wyne is maruelous ſtrōge, & ouercōmeth
them ꝑ dryncke it: it dyſceaueth the mynde, & bryngeth both the poore man & the kyng to dotage & vanyte. Thus doth it alſo with the bondman & with the free, with the poore & ryche: it taketh awaye theyr vnderſtan-dyng, and maketh them careleſſe and merry,
ſo ꝑ none of them remembreth any heupnes
dett or dewtye: It cauſeth a man to thyncke alſo that ꝑ thynge which he doth, is ho-
neſt & good: & remēbreth not ꝑ he is a kyng,
nor ꝑ he is mānctoryte, & that he ought not do ſoch thynges. Moreouer, when men are drynckyng, they forgett all frendſhyp, all brotherly fayethfulnes & loue: but as ſoone
as they are dronken, they drawe out ꝑ ſwer-
de & wyll fyght: & when they are layed dow-ne from ꝑ wyne, & ſo ryſen vp agayne, they cannot tell what they dyd: iudge ye now, is not wyne the ſtrongeſt: For who wolde els take in hand to do ſoch thynges? And when he had ſpoken this, he helde his tonge.

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ The declaracyon of the.ii. laſt ſentences of the young man, ꝑpoſed in the Chapter before: of which the laſt,
that is, that verytie bearyth the victorye in all thynges,
is moſt commended & alowed. Darius wryteth letters to all ꝑ rulers vnder hym, that they ſhulde ayde Zorobbel to the buyldynge of Jeruſalem.

A Then ꝑ ſeconde (which had ſayde, that the kynge was ſtrōger) beganne to ſpeake, ſaying: O ye men, are not they ꝑ ſtrongeſt & moſt excellēt, ꝑ conquere
the lande, & the ſee, & all that is in ꝑ ſee, and in the earth? Now is the kynge lorde of all theſe thynges, & hath dompnyon of thē all:
and loke what he commaundeth, it is done.
If he ſende his mē forth a warfare, they go,
& breake downe hylles, walles & towres.
They are ſlayne, & ſlaye (other men) them
ſelues, & ouerpaſſe not the kynges worde.
If they get ꝑ victory, they brynge ꝑ kyng
all ꝑ ſpoyle. Lyke wyſe, the other ꝑ medle not with warres & fyghtynge, but tyll the grounde: when they reape, they brynge try bute vnto the kynge. And yf the kynge alone do but cōmaunde to kyll, they kyll: yf he cōmaunde to forgeue, they forgeue: yf he cō
maunde to ſmyte, they ſmyte: yf he byd dry
ue awaye, they dryue awaye: yf he cōmaun-
de to buylde, they buylde: yf he commaunde
to breake downe, they breake downe: yf he cōmaunde to plante, they plante. The commen people & the rulers are obedient vnto
hym. And the kynge in the meane ſeaſon
ſytteth hym downe, eateth, and drynketh,
and taketh his reſt: then kepe they watch 23 rounde aboute the kynge, & not one of them
darre get hym out of ꝑ waye, to do his awne buſynes, but muſt be obedient vnto ꝑ kyn
ge at a worde. Judge ye now, O ye men, how ſhulde not he go farre aboue vnto who men are thus obedient? And when he had ſpoken this, he helde his tonge. The thyrd, whoſe name was Zorobabel, which had ſpo
ken of wemen & of trueth, began to ſaye after this maner: O ye men, it is not ꝑ greate
kynge, it is not ꝑ multytude of men, nether is it wyne ꝑ excelleth: Who is it then ꝑ hath the lordſhyp ouer them? Haue not wemen borne the kynge, and all ꝑ people that rule
thoſe thynges? Haue not wemen borne thē,
and brought them vp, ꝑ plante the vynes,
wherout the wyne cōmeth? They make gar mentes for all men, they gene honour vnto
all men, & without wemen can not men lyue.
If they gather golde, & ſyluer, & all precious thynges, and ſe a fayre well fauoured
woman, they leaue all to gether, and turne
theyr eyes onely vnto the woman, & gape vpon her, & haue more deſyre vnto her, then vnto ꝑ ſyluer & golde, or any maner of precious thyng. * A man leaueth his father ꝑ C *Gen.ii.
brought hym vp, leaueth his awne natural Mat.19.a.
countre, & cleaueth vnto the woman: yet he I.Cor.in.b.
ieopardeth his lyfe with ꝑ woman, & remē- Ephe.v.g.
breth nether father, ner mother, ner cōtre.
By thys thē ye muſt nedes knowe, that we-
men haue the dompnyon ouer you.

Doth it not greue you? A man taketh his ſwerde, & goeth hys waye to ſteale, to kyll,
to murther, to ſayle vpon the ſee, and ſeeth
a lyon, and goeth in the darcknes: & when he hath ſtollen, diſceaued and robbed, he bryn-geth it vnto his loue. Agayne, a man loueth hys wyfe better then father and mother: yee
many one there be, ꝑ rēne out of theyr wyttes, & become bondmen for theyr wyues ſa-
kes: many one alſo haue periſhed, haue bene
ſlayne, & haue ſynned because of wemen.

And now beleue me, I knowe a kynge
which is greate in hys power, and all lādes
ſtande in awe of hym, & no man darre laye
hande vpon hym: yet dyd Ioſe, that Apame
(the daughter of ꝑ great kyng Bartacus)
the kynges concubyne, ſat beſyde the kynge
vpon the ryght hande, & toke of hys crowne
from hys head, & ſet it vpon her awne head,
and ſmote the kyng wyth her left hande, D
Moreouer, the kynge loked vpon her wyth
open mouth: yf ſhe laughed vpon hym, he laughed alſo: but yf ſhe toke any diſpleaſu-
re wyth hym, ꝑ kynge was fayne to flatter her, & to gene her good wordes, tyll he had gotten her fauour agayne.

O ye men, are not wemen then ſtronger?
Greate is ꝑ earth, & hye is ꝑ heauen. Who doth theſe thinges? Then ꝑ kyng & ꝑ Pziers loked one vpon another. So he beganne to ſpeake of ꝑ trueth: O ye men, are not wemē ſtrōger? Greate is the earth, hye is the heauen, Iwyft is ꝑ courſe of the ſunne, * he com *Eccleſ.i paſeth the heauen rounde aboute, & fetcheth
hys courſe

hys course agayne to hys awne place in one daye. Is he not excellēt that doth thys? Yee greate is the trueth, & stroger then all thynges. All the earth calleth vpon ꝑ trueth, the heauen prayseth it, all workes thake & trēble at it, & wt it is no vnrygh teous thynge. Wyne is vnrygh teous, ꝑ kyng is vnrygh teous: wemen are vnrygh teous: all the chyldren of men are vnrygh teous, yee all theyr workes are vnrygh teous, and there is no trueth in them, in theyr vnrygh teousnes also shall they be destroyed & perysh. As for the trueth, * it endureth, & is all waye strōge: it lyueth and conquereth for euermore worlde without ende.

The trueth accepteth no personnes, it putteth no differēce betwixte riche or poore, betwyxte the myghtye or symple, but doth ryght vnto euery man, whether they be euell or good, and all men are louingly dealt wt all in ꝑ workes of it. In ꝑ iudgemēt of it there is no vnrygh teous thynge, but strength kyngdom & power & maiesty for euermore. Blessed be the God of trueth.

And with that he helde his tōge, and all the people cryed, & sayde: Great is ꝑ trueth, & above all. Then sayde ꝑ kyng vnto hym: Aske what thou wylt, more then is appoynted in ꝑ wrytynge, and I shall geue it the, for thou art founde wyser then thy compaynons: ꝑ shalt syt next me, and be my kynsman. Then sayde he vnto the kynge: Remēbre thy promyse & vowe, which thou hast vowed & promysed (in the daye when thou camest to the kyngdome) to buylde vp Jerusalem, & to sende agayne all ꝑ vessels and Jewels, ꝑ were taken awaye out of Jerusalem: which Cyrus separated, whē he offred in Babylon, & wolde sende them agayne. And thy mynde was to buylde vp the tēple which ꝑ Edomytes brent, when Jerusalem was destroyed by ꝑ Chaldees. This onely (O kyng) is ꝑ thynge that I requyre, thys is ꝑ maiesty, which I desyre and aske of the: that thou performe the vowe, which thou wyth thyne awne mouth hast made vnto ꝑ kynge of heauen.

Then Darius the kynge stode vp, and kyssed him, * & wrote a letter vnto all ꝑ debytes and thieues, to all the Lordes and nobles, that they shulde cōueye him forth, and all them ꝑ wolde go vp with him. He wrote a letter also vnto all ꝑ Shrieues that were in Celosyria and Phenices, and vnto Lybanus, ꝑ they shuld drawe Cedre trees from Lybanus vnto Jerusalem, to buylde the cytie withall. Moreouer he wrote vnto all ꝑ Jewes ꝑ were gone out of hys realme into Jewry because of the fredome, ꝑ no officier no ruler, nor Shrieue, shuld come to theyr dores, and ꝑ all theyr lande which they had cōquered, shulde be free & not tributary. And that ꝑ Edomytes shulde geue ouer ꝑ cytyes and villages of the Jewes, which they had taken in: yee & that they shulde yearly geue xx. talētes to ꝑ buylduynge of ꝑ tēple, vntyll the tyme that it were fynyshed, and to the dayly halowyng of the brent offrynges (as it is commaunded) ten talētes yearly also. And ꝑ all they which come from Babylon to buylde the cytie, shuld haue free lybertye, they & theyr chyldren, & all the Preastes.

He wrote ꝑ greatnesse also, & cōmaunded that ꝑ holy garment shulde be geuen them, wherin they mynystred: & wrote ꝑ cōmaundementes shulde be geuen to ꝑ Leuites, vntyll the daye, that the house were fynyshed, and Jerusalem buylded vp: & commaunded that all they that watched the cytye, shulde haue theyr porcyons & wages.

He gaue ouer also all the vessels ꝑ Cyrus had separated from Babylon: and all that Cyrus had geuen in cōmaundemēt, ꝑ same charged he also, that it shulde be done & sent vnto Jerusalē. Now when thys ponge man was gone forth, he turned his face towarde Jerusalem, and prayed ꝑ kyng of heauen, and sayde: * Of the commeth the victory, of the cōmeth wysdome and clearnesse, and I am thy seruaūt. Blessed art thou, which hast geuen me wysdome: that wyll I prayse, O Lord, thou God of oure fathers.

And so he toke the letters, & wente vnto Babylon. And when he came there, he tolde thys vnto all his brethren ꝑ were at Babylon, & they prayed ꝑ God of theyr fathers, that he had geuen them refreshyng & lybertē to go vp, and to buylde Jerusalem & the temple (wherin the name of the Lord is called vpon) and they reioyced with instrumēts and gladnesse seuen dayes longe.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ They that returne to Jerusalem are nūbred. They begynne to laye the foundacyon of the temple, but are lett by the meanes of enemyes: and so is the buylduyng brought of by the space of two yeares.

After thys were the pryncipall men of all the villages chosen in the trybes and kynredes, that they shuld go with theyr wyues and chyldren, with theyr seruaūtes & maydens, with all theyr catell and substaūce. And Darius the kyng sent with them a thousande horsmen, to cōueye them safely vnto Jerusalem, and they brethren were glad, playeng vpon instrumentes, and syngynge. And these are ꝑ names of the men, wich wente vp out of the villagies, accordyng to the trybes. Of the Preestes, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Aaron: Jesus the sonne of Josedec, Joachim the sonne of * Zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel (of ꝑ kynred of Dauid, out of the kynred of Phares of the tryde of Juda) which spake wonderfull thynges vnder Darius

the kyng of Perſia, in ꝑ ſecõde yeare of his raygne in the fyrſt moneth of Niſan.

These alſo are they of Jewry, whych came vp, and turned agayne vnto Jrrulalem,
out of ꝑ captyuyte that Nabuchodonoſor
the kynge of Babylon had brought vnto Babylon. And euery man sought hys po-syon agayne in Jewry hys cyte, they that came with zoro. abel, and with Jeſus. Nehemias. Haralas, Raelias, Elimeus. Em-manius, Mardocheus, Beelſerus, Mechpla, Rochor, Oliozus, Emonias, one of theyr prynces.

And the nõbre of them accordyng to their kynredes and rulers were. The chyldren of Phares, two thouſande, an hundreth and lxxii. The chyldre of Jres. iii. M). an. C. and lvii. The chyldren of Remo. an. C. and. xlii.
The ſonnes of Jeſus ꝛ Joabes. a. M). iii. C. ꝛ two. The ſonnes of Benu. ii. M). iiii. C. ꝛ lxx. The ſonnes of Choroba. ii. C. ꝛ. v. The ſonnes of Banica. an. C. and. lxviii. The ſonnes of Rebech. iiii. C. and thre. The ſon nes of Archad. iiii. C. ꝛ. xxvii. The ſonnes of Cham. xxxvii. The ſonnes of zozoar. ii.
M). and. lxvii. The ſonnes of Adinu. iiii. C.
and. lxi. The ſonnes of Adarecus an. C. and viii. The ſonnes of Cialo ꝛ zelas an. C. and ſeuē. The ſonnes of Azorec. iiii. C. ꝛ. xxxix.
The ſonnes of Jedarbone. an. C. and. xxxii.
The ſonnes of Hananias an. C. ꝛ. xxx. The ſonnes of Aſom. xc. The ſonnes of Marlar iiii. C. ꝛ. xxii. The ſonnes of zabarus. xcv.
The ſonnes of Nephoiemon an. C. ꝛ. xxiii.
The ſonnes of Nepopas. lv. The ſonnes of Hecanatus an. C. and. lviii. The ſonnes of zebethanus an. C. and. xxxii. The ſonnes of Crearpatros (whych is called alſo Enohadies ꝛ Mobias.) iiii. C. and. xxiii. Of them of Gramos and Sabea an. C. and. xxi. Of them of Beſſelon and Ceage. lxv. Of them of Baſtarus, an. C. ꝛ. xxii. Of them of Bechenobes. lv. Of ꝑ ſonnes of Lyptis, there were an. C. and. lv. Of the ſonnes of Labõnus. iii. C. and. lvii. Of the ſonnes of Si-chem. iii. C. and. lxx. Of the ſonnes of Suadon and Elimon. iii. C. and. lxxviii. Of the ſonnes of Ericus. ii. M). an. C. ꝛ. xlv. The ſonnes of Anaas. iii. C. and. lxx.

The prieſtes. The ſonnes of Jeddus. The ſonnes of Suther. The ſonnes of El Jaſib
iii. C. ꝛ. lxxii. The ſonnes of Emerus. ii. C.
and. lii. The ſonnes of Kaſurius. iii. C. and lvii. The ſonnes of Carca. ii. C. and. xxvii.
The Leuytes. The ſonnes of Jeſus in Caduhel and Banus, and Serebias, ꝛ Edeas, ſeuentye and foure.

The whole nõbre of theſe from. xii. yea-res was. iii. M). iiii. C. and. lxii. Of the ſon-nes, daughters ꝛ wyues, the whole ſumme was. iiii. M). ii. C. ꝛ. xlii. The ſonnes of the Prieſtes that prayſed Godin the tẽple. The ſonnes of Aſaph, of whome there were an.
C. ꝛ. xxviii. But the doze kepers were. The chyldren of Selmenus. the chyldren of Aſer.
the chyldren of Amon. the chyldren of Acu-ba, Topa. the chyldren of Tobi. an hundred
and. xxxix. in all.

The Prieſtes that ſerued in the temple.
The ſonnes of Sel, the ſonnes of Galpha,
the ſonnes of Tobloch, the ſonnes of Caria,
the ſonnes of Sub, the ſonnes of Helin,
the ſonnes of Sabana, ꝑ ſõnes of Armache,
the ſonnes of Acub, the ſonnes of Utha,
the ſonnes of Cetha, the ſonnes of Aggab,
the ſonnes of Obay, the ſonnes of Anani,
the ſonnes of Canna, the ſonnes of Geddu,
the ſonnes of An, the ſonnes of Rabin,
the ſonnes of Delanon, ꝑ ſõnes of Nechoba,
the ſonnes of Caleba, the ſonnes of Goza,
the ſonnes of Ozul, the ſonnes of Sinoma,
the ſonnes of Atra, the ſonnes of Haſten,
the ſonnes of Aliana, the ſonnes of Manet,
the ſonnes of Naſiſm, the ſonnes of Accua,
the ſonnes of Agiſta, the ſonnes of Azur,
the ſonnes of Kaaon, ꝑ ſõnes of Phalalon,
the ſonnes of Hoeda, the ſonnes of Sula,
the ſonnes of Cered, the ſonnes of Barcus,
the ſonnes of Sarea, the ſonnes of Tholi,
the ſonnes of Naſit, the ſonnes of Agiſta,
the ſonnes of Pedon, Salomon his ſonnes,
the ſonnes of Aſophot, ꝑ ſõnes of Phazida,
the ſonnes of Celi, the ſonnes of Dedon,
the ſonnes of Saddabel, ꝑ ſõnes of zapheus,
the ſonnes of Aggia, ꝑ ſõnes of Sacharet,
the ſõnes of Sabarhe, ꝑ ſõnes of Saroneth,
the ſonnes of Naſſit, the ſonnes of Ania,
the ſonnes of Salus, the ſonnes of Addus,
the ſonnes of Suba, the ſonnes of Emra,
the ſõnes of Rabotis, ꝑ ſõnes of Phalphat,
the ſonnes of Halmon. All theſe miniſtred
in the ſanctuary, ꝛ were ſeruauntes of Salomon: euen. iiii. C. ꝛ. lxxxii.

Theſe folowynge are they, that went vp from Thelmeliat Thelarſa (whoſe Pryn-ces were Carmelam and Careth) ꝛ myght
not ſhewe forth theyr cytyes and kynred-des, how they were of Jſrael: The ſonnes
of Dalarus, the ſonnes of Tuben, the ſon-nes of Nechodaicus. Of the Prieſtes that executed ꝑ offyce of the Prieſthode, and were not founde. The ſonnes of Obia, the ſonnes of Achilos, the ſonnes of Addin, whych ma-
ryed one of the daughters of Phargelen, and were named after hym. The wryting
of the ſame kynred was ſought in the regi-
ſter of theyr generacyon, but it was not founde: and therfore were they forbydden to exercute the office of the prieſthode. Unto them ſayde Nehemias and Attharas, that they ſhulde haue no porcyon in the Sanctuary, tyll there roſe vp an hye Prieſt, that were well inſtruct in the playne clearnes and trueth. (Of all Jſrael) beſyde ſeruauntes and

wauntes and maydens) there were .xlii. M. iii. C. and .xl. Now were there of seruaūtes and maydēs .vii. M. iii. C. & .xxxvi. Of syngynge men ād syngynge women there were two hūdred, & .lxv. Foure hūdred and .xxxv Camels. Seuen thousand, & .xxxvi. hozses. Two hundzed thousande and .xl. v. mules. Fyue. M. and .xv. Asses.

Their heades also & the rulers in the tribes, when they came to Jerusalem, & wolde buylde and set vp the tēple of God agayne in his place, they gaue (after their abylitye, vnto the temple, to the treasure & to the seruice of the Sanctuary .xii. M. poundes of golde, fyue thousande of syluer, and an hundzed priestes garmentes. And so dwelt the Priestes and the Leuytes, & the people that went out to Jerusalem, and in the countre there about, the syngers also & the porters, euery one of Israell in his awne lande.

Esd.iii.a * So when the seuenth moneth came, and when the chyldzen of Israel were euery mā at his busynes, they came all wyth one consent into the courte, whyche was before the East doze. And there stode Jesua the sonne of Josedec and his bzethzen the Priestes, ād zozobabel the sonne of Salathiel and hys bzethzen, settyng vp an aulter, to offre bzēt sacrifyces vpon it, as it is wzytten in the lawe of Moses.

There came people also of other coūtrees, and the heathen out of all lādes to set vp ꝓ aulter in his place, and offred sacrifyces ād bzent offrynges vnto the Lozde in the mozynge. And so they helde the feast of tabernacles, * as it is commaunded in the lawe, Exo.xxiii.b Leui.xxiii.b Nu.xxix.b Esd.iii.b And daply offred they as accozdynge was, and made ꝓ sacrifyces appoynted, ꝓ offrynges also of the Sabbathes & of the newmones, and all holy feastes. * And al they that vowed offrynges vnto the Lozde, beganne at the newe mone of the .vii. moneth to offre vnto God, foz the temple of the Lozde was not yet buylded. And they gaue vnto ꝓ Masons and Carpenters, money, meate, & drinke with chearfulnesse. Unto them of Sidon also and Tyze they gaue carres, that they shulde cary Cedze trees frō Libanus to be toppes & beames, ād that they shulde make shyppes in the hauen of Joppe, accozdynge as it was appoynted & ozdeyned by Cyzus kynge of the Persians.

And in the seconde yeare they came into ꝓ temple of God at Jerusalem. * In the secōd Esd.iii.c moneth begāne zozobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josedec and their bzethzen the Priestes and Leuites, and al they that were come vnto Jerusalē out of the captiuite of Babylō, & layed the foūdacion of the temple, in the newe mone of the second moneth in ꝓ secōd yeare ꝓ they were come into Jewry & Jerusalē. And they appoynted ꝓ Leuytes (ꝓ were aboue .xx. yeare old) vnto ꝓ seruice of ꝓ Lozd: so Jesua & his sonnes and his bzethzē, al the Leuites stode together, & perfourmed the lawe and ordynaunce in the house of the Lozde.

And the Priestes stode, & had their garmētes & trompettes, and the Leuytes the sonnes of Asaph had Cymbals, geuynge thankes and prayses vnto the Lozde, accozding *as Dauid the kynge of Israell had ozdeyned. And the song ꝓ they dyd singe vnto the Lozde, was after this maner. * O syng vnto the Lozde, foz he is gracious, & his goodnes vpō Israel endureth foreuer. And all ꝓ people blewe out with trompettes, and song with loude voyce, prayseng the Lozde together in ꝓ rearing vp of the house of ꝓ Lozde. *1.par.xvi.b 2.par.xxxv.a Esa.xii.b G

* There came also from among the Priestes and Leuytes the rulers & elders, accozdyng to the tribes and kinredes (soch as had sene the house afore) to the buyldyng of thys tēple with great crye and great mournyng, many also with trompettes ād great ioye: In so moch, that the trompettes might not well be heard foz the weppynge and mournyng. Foz the commē people blewe goodly vpon the trompettes. *1.Esd.iii.b

* Then came the enemyes of the tribes of Juda and Beniamin, to knowe what that trompettyng and noyse of shawmes might be. And they perceaued ꝓ it was they which were come agayne out of captiuyte, & wold buylde the temple vp a new vnto the Lozd God of Israel. So they went to zozobabel and Jesua, ād to the rulers of the vyllages, and layd vnto thē. Shall we buylde wyth you also? Foz we lyke wise haue heard your Lozde, and we walke after the same maner, from the dayes of Asbazareth the kynge of Assiria, which brought vs hyther. Then zozobabell and Jesua and ꝓ rulers of the vyllages of Israell sayde vnto them. It is not mete, that ye shuld buyld the temple of our God wō vs: we our selues alone wyll buylde vnto the Lozde, lyke * as Cyzus the kynge of the Persians hath commaunded vs. *1.Esd.iii.a *1.Esd.i.a

But the heathen in the lande layed them selues agaynst those ꝓ were in Jewry, helde vp ꝓ buylding from thē, layed wayte vpon them preuely, stopped such as brought any thynge to them, fozbad them to buylde, and hyndered those that made thē passage, that the buyldyng shuld not be fynished: ād this continued so longe as kynge Cyzus lyued: and so they put of the buyldyng foz the space of two yeares, vntyl the raygne of kyng Darius.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ Aggeus and zachary prophecye. They buylde the temple without let oz hynderaunce, by the commaundement of Darius.

NOtwithstandynge in ꝑ secõde yeare of ꝑ raygne of Darius, * Aggeus & zachary the sonne of Addo prophecyed vpon them in Jewry and Jerusalẽ, in the name of the God of Israell. * Then zorobabel the sonne of Salathiel, and Jesua the sonne of Josedec stode vp, and begaune to buylde the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem, whẽ the Prophetes of the Lord helped them. At the same tyme came Sysennes the vnder Shreue in Syria and Phenices, wyth the landlordes ãd hys companyons, and sayd vnto thẽ: Who hath bydden and commaunded you to buylde the house, to make the rofe and al other thinges agayne? And who are the woorcke mẽ, that buyld them? Neuertheleſſe the elders of the Jewes had soch grace of ꝑ Lorde, that they wolde not be let (though they were prouoked therto) but buylded on styl, vnto the tyme that kynge Darius were certifyed therof, and an answere receaued from hym. The letter that these men sent vnto kynge Darius, was after this maner.

Sysennes the vnder Shreue in Syria & Phenyces, and the landlordes wyth theyr companyons, which are headrulers in Syria and Phenyces, sende their salutacio vnto Darius the kynge. We certifye the lorde the kyng, ꝑ we came into ꝑ lande of Jewry, and went to Jerusalẽ: where we founde thẽ buylding the great house of God & the temple, with great costely fre stone and wt goodly tymbre for ꝑ walles: yee they make great haste with the worcke, & helpe one another, and it goeth forth prosperously in their hãdes, and with great dilygence and worshyp is it made. Then asked we the elders, who had cõmaunded them to make vp the house and the buyldinge, ãd this we dyd, to the intent that we myght certifye the perfectly, & wryte vnto the, the names of those that were the rulers of the worke. So they gaue vs this answere: we are the seruauntes of the Lorde, which made heauen and earth: ãd as for this house * it hath bene buylded and set vp afore tyme by the great & myghtie kyng of Israel. But when our fathers prouoked God vnto wrath, and synned agaynste the God of Israell, * he gaue them ouer into the power of Nabuchodonosor kynge of Babilon, the kynge of the Caldees, whych brake downe the house & brent it, & caryed awaye the people prisoners vnto Babylon. * Neuertheles in the fyrst peare that kynge Cyrus raygned at Babilõ, Cyrus ꝑ kyng wrote and commaunded to buylde vp thys house agayne: and al the ornamentes that Nabuchodonosor caryed awaye from Jerusalem vnto Babylon, and appropriated vnto his awne temple: these brought Cyrus forth agayne, & delyuered them to zorobabel and to Salmanasar the vnder Shreue, cõmaũdyng them ꝑ they shulde bryng those same ornamẽtes agayne to Jerusalẽ into ꝑ temple and to begynne frõ ꝑ tyme forth, to buylde the temple agayne in his awne place. Then Salmanasar layed ꝑ foũdacio of ꝑ Lordes house at Jerusalem, ãd euer sence haue they buylded, & yet is it not ended. And therfore O kynge, yf thou thynkest it good, let it be sought in the Lybrarye & rolles of kynge Cyrus: yf it be foũde then, that it is done wt the councell & consent of kynge Cyrus, and yf oure lorde ꝑ kynge be so mynded, let hym wryte vnto vs therof.

* Thẽ commaunded kyng Darius, to seke in the Lybrarye: ãd so at Egbathanis in a lytle cytie in Medea there was foũde sothe a wrytynge: In the fyrst peare of the raygne of Cyrus, the same kynge Cyrus commaũded that the house of the Lorde at Jerusalẽ shuld be buylded agayne (and odoures to be made there continually vnto ꝑ Lord) whose heygth shalbe .x. cubites, and the bredeth, thre score cubites, ãd foure square with thre hewen stones, with a lofte of tymbre of the same countre, yee with a newe lofte, and the expenses therof to be geuen of the house of kynge Cyrus. And the ornamẽtes of golde and syluer, that Nabuchodonosor toke out of the house of the Lorde at Jerusalẽ, shalbe set agayne in the temple at Jerusalẽ, where they were afore. Sysennes also the vnder shreue in Syria and Phenices, the Princes and their companyons, & the other that be heade rulers in Syria & Phenices, shall not medle nor haue any thig to do with ꝑ place.

I Cyrus haue commaunded also, ꝑ they shal buylde the house of ꝑ Lorde whole vp ãd haue ordeyned them, to helpe those that become out of captiuyte: tyl the house of the Lorde be finished: ãd out of the trybute and taxing that is yearly raysed vp in Syria & Phenices, diligently to geue them a certayne summe to the offeringe of the Lord: & the same to be delyuered vnto zorobabel the officer, that he therwithal maye ordeyne oxẽ, rammes, lambes, and corne, salt, wyne and oyle, and that cõtinually euery peare: after the expences * which the Prestes that be at Jerusalẽ, shew to be made dayly: thys shall be geuen vnto them without delaye, ꝑ they maye offer sacrifyces dayly to ꝑ hyest God, for the kynge and for his seruauntes, and to praye for theyr lyues. Let it be proclaymed also on euery syde, that whosoeuer breaketh or despyseth this cõmaundemẽt of the king, shalbe hanged vpon a galowes (made of his awne good) ãd all his goodes shalbe seasoned vnto ꝑ king. The Lord therfore (whose name is there called vpon) rote out and destroye all the kynges ãd people, that vndertake by violẽce to hynder ꝑ same, or to deale vncurvncurtrously with the house of the Lord at Jerusalem. I Darius the kinge haue ordeyned, that these thynges shalbe done with al dilygence.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ The temple is fynished and dedycated: and the feast of vnleuended breade is holden.

A Then Sysennes the vndershreuer in Celosyria, and Phenices, and the other Landlordes with their companyons, obeyed the thinges þ kynge Darius had ordeyned, and were dilygent in þ holy workes, and were felowe helpers with the olde rulers of the Jewes. And so the worcke of the Sanctuary wente forth and prospered, when Aggeus ād zachary prophecyed. And they perfourmed all thinges thorow þ cōmaundement of the Lorde God of Israel, and after the deuyce of Cyrus, Darius and Artaxerses kynges of Persia.

B And thus was ower house fynished vnto þ xxiii. daye of the moneth Adder, in the. vi. yeare of kynge Darius. And the chyldrē of Israel the prestes and the Leuites, and the other that were come out of captyuyte, and soche as were ioyned vnto them, dyd accordynge as it is writtē in the boke of Moses And in the dedicacion of the temple: they offred an hūdred oxen, two hundred rammes, foure hundred lambes, & twelue goates, for the synnes of all þ people of Israell, after þ C nombre of the trybes of Israel. The prestes also & the Leuites stode arayed in their prestly garmētes, after the trybes, ouer all the worckes of the Lorde God of Israell accordinge to the boke of Moses, and the porters by all the dores.

And the chyldren of Israel (with those þ were come out of captiuyte) helde the passeouer the fourtene daye of the fyrst moneth, when the prestes and the Leuites were sanctifyed. They þ came out of captyuite, were not all sanctifyed together: but the Leuites were all sanctifyed together, and so al they that came out of captiuyte, killed the easter lambe, for their brethren, for the prestes ād for them selues. And the chyldren of Israel D that came out of captyuyte, & escaped from al the abhominacions of þ heathen, sought the Lorde, and kepte the feast of vnleuened bread seuen dayes longe, eatynge and drynkynge and were merry before the Lord: that the Lorde had turned the deuyce of þ kynge of Assyria, and cōforted their handes to the worckes of the Lorde God of Israell.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Esdras exhorteth the people to assemble and come together, and them readeth them the lawe. They kepe the feast of Tabernacles.

A And after hym *when Artaxerses the kyng of the Persians raygned, there wente vnto hym Esdras the sonne of *1. esd. vii. a. Sarayas, the sōne of Azarias, the sonne of Helchiah, the sonne of Sallum, the sonne of Sadoeh, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Amarias, the sonne of Azarias, the sōne of Boccus, the sōne of Abysu, the sonne of Phineas, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron the fyrst preste. This Esdras wente vp from Babylon (for he had good vnderstandynge in the lawe of Moses, that was geuē of the Lorde God of Israel, to be taught ād done in dede.) And the kynge fauoured him and dyd him great worshyppe and honoure after all hys desyres. There went vp wyth hym also certayne of the chyldrē of Israel, of the prestes, of the Leuites, of the singers, porters and mynystres of the temple at Jerusalem.

In the seuēth yeare of the raygne of kinge Artaxerses, i the fyueth moneth, that is in the seuenth yeare of the raygne, they wēt from Babylon in the new moone of the. v. moneth, & came the hye waye to Jerusalem after his commaūdement, lyke as the Lord had prospered their iourney. For in these Esdras gat great instruccion, that he shulde leaue none of the thynges behinde, which are in the lawe and commaundementes of God. And he taught whole Israel all righteousnes and iudgement.

Then came the Secretaries of kyng Artaxerses, ād deliuered the writynges (that were come frō Artaxerses the kynge) to Esdras þ preste & reder of the lawe of þ Lorde: And thys is the copye of the letter: Kynge Artaxerses sendeth his gretynge vnto Esdras the preste and reder of the lawe of the Lorde. Of frendshyppe and good wyl I haue ordeyned and charged, yf there be eny of the Jewes, of the prestes & Leuytes in my realme, which delyreth and is contēt to go with the vnto Jerusalem, þ he maye do it. Therfore, yf eny be mynded to beare the cōpany, let them come together, and go with þ (lyke as I am content and my seuen frendes, my councelers) to se what they do at Jerusalē and in Jewry, & kepe the thynges accordyng as thou hast in the lawe of the Lorde: ād to bringe the gyftes vnto God the Lorde of Israel, that I & my frendes haue promysed to Jerusalem, & all the syluer ād golde that is in the countre of Babylon, vnto the Lord to Jerusalem, with the thyng that is geuen for the people in the Lordes temple at Jerusalem. Yee, that the same syluer and golde maye be gathered, and oxen, rammes, shepe and goates and other that belonge to these thynges: and that they maye offer sacrifyces vnto the Lorde, vpon the aulter of their Lorde, which is at Jerusalem.

And whatsoeuer thou and thy brethren wyll do with the syluer ād golde, that do after thy mynde, accordynge to þ cōmaunde-

ment

ment of the Lord thy God, & lykewise, with the holy vessels that are geuen the, for ꝓ seruyce of the house of ꝓ Lord thy God: & other thinges whatsoeuer is necessary for ꝓ to the worche of the temple, that shalbe geuen the of ꝓ kiges treasure & loke what thou wt thy brethren wyll do with the golde ād syluer, that do after the wyll of the Lorde. And I kynge Artarerses haue commaūded the kepers of the treasures in Syria and Phenyces, that whatsoeuer Esdras the preste and reader of the lawe of the Lorde doth wryte, it shalbe geuē hym: tyll an hundred talētes of syluer, ād of golde in lyke maner. Of corne also an hundred measures, ād tyll an hūdred vessels of wyne, & other plēteous thynges without nombre. Let all thinges be done after the lawe of the hyest God, that the wrath of God aryse not in the realme of the kynge, and of his sonnes. I commaūde you also, ꝓ ye requyre no taxe ner trybute of the prestes, Leuytes, syngers, and mynysters of the temple, ner of the wryters: & that no mā haue auctorite to medle eny thyng agaynst the. As for the (O Esdras) set thou iudges ād arbytrers in the whole lande of Syria & Phenices, after the wysdome of God: and learne all soch as are ignorauūt in the lawe of God thy Lorde, and let all them that offende agaynst the lawe, be punysshed: whether it be with death, with payne, to be condemned in money, or to be banisshed.

*i.Esd.viii.a Then sayde Esdras the wryter. * Blessed be ꝓ God of our fathers, that hath geuē so good a mynde and wyll into the hert of ꝓ kynge, to magnifye his house that is at Ierusalem, ād hath made me to be accepted in the syght of the kyng, of his councell, of hys frendes & of his nobles. And so I was stedfast in my mynde, accordyng as ꝓ Lord my God helped me, & I chose out men of Israel
*i.Esd.viii.b to go vp with me. * And these are ꝓ heades, (after their kynredes & houses of theyr fathers) that went vp with me from Babylon, out of the kingdome of Artarerses: Of the sonnes of Phares, Gerſonius. Of ꝓ sonnes of Siemarith, Amenus. Of the sonnes of Dauid Accus, the sonne of Cecilia.

Of the sonnes of Phares, zachary: & with him there turned agayne an hūdred & fyftie men. Of the sonnes of the captaine of Moabylon, zaraei, & with him. ii. C. ād. l. mē. Of the sonnes of zachnes, Iechonias zecholy, & with hym two hūdred and fyftie men. Of the sonnes of Halamaallias, Gotholye, ād lxx. with him. Of the sonnes of zaphatia, zarias Michely, ād wyth hym foure score. Of the sonnes of Iob, Abdias Jeheli, and with hym two hundred and twelue men. Of the sonnes of Bania, Salimoth ꝓ sōnes of Iosaphia, and wyth hym an hundred and three score mē. Of ꝓ sonnes of Beer, zachari Bebei, ād wyth hym two hundred & viii. men. Of the sōnes of Esead, Johannes Ezechā, & with him an hundred and tenne men. Of ꝓ sonnes of Adonicam those that were ꝓ last, and these are theyr names, Eliphalam the sonne of Gebel ād Semeias, and with hym lxx. men. All these called I together by the water Thia, where we pitched oure tentes thre dayes, and there I mustered them.

D *i.Esd.ix.a * As for the sonnes of the prestes & Leuites, I founde none there. Then sent I vnto Eleazer, and Ecelom, and Maasmā, & Mathobam, and Enaathan, ād Samea, & Iozibimathan, Eunagan, zachari, Mosollamū (these were the leaders and men of experiēce) and I sent them worde, that they shulde come vnto Loddeus, which was by the place of the treasury, & commaūded them that they shulde speake vnto Loddeus ād to hys brethren and to those that were in the treasury, to sende vs soch men, as myght execute the prestes office in the house of the Lorde our God. And with the myghtie hāde of our Lorde God, they brought vnto vs men of good experience, from amonge the sōnes of Moolius the sonne of Leui, the sonne of Israel, Sebebeiam and the sonnes and hys brethrē Asbin & Anin, of whome there were. xviii. From amonge the chyldren of the sonnes of Cananeus, and their sonnes were xx. men. And of them that serued in the temple, whom Dauid had ordeyned, & the principal men that mynistred for the worche vnto the Leuytes in the temple two hundred and twentye men, whose names are all tokened vp in wryptynge.

*i.Esd.ix.d * Then commaūded I a fastynge vnto the ponge men before the Lorde, that I myght delyre of hym a prosperous iourney and a good waye for vs, per for vs, for oure chyldren and for the catell, because of the layenges awayte, and I durst not requyre of the kyng men of horse and of fote, to cōueye vs safely agaynst our enemies, for we had sayd vnto the kynge, that the power of the Lord our God shulde be with them, that seke him with theyr whole hert. And therfore we besought God our Lorde earnestly because of these thynges, & he was mercyfull vnto vs, and hearde our prayer. And I separated frō amonge the rulers of the people, and frō the prestes of the temple. xii. mē and Sebeia & Asania, and ten men of theyr brethrē wyth them. And I weyed them the golde and the syluer and all the prestly ornamentes of the house of our God, whyche the kyng, and hys councell, and his Princes, and whole Israel had geuē. And when I had weyed it, I gaue them an hundred and fyfty talētes in syluer, and an hūdred talētes of syluer vessell, an hundred talētes of golde, and of golden vessell seuen tymes twentye, and vessels of other other metal (yee, of good metal) twelue glitterynge as the golde, and saide vnto them: ye are holy vnto the Lorde, and the vessels are holy, and the gold and the syluer is promysed vnto the Lorde God of oure fathers. Be dyligent now and kepe it, vntyll the tyme that ye deliuer it to the rulers of the people, to the prestes, to the Leuites, and to the principall men of the cities of Israel in Jerusalem, and in the chambre of the house of oure God.

*So, the prestes and the Leuites which receaued of me the golde, the syluer and the vessell, brought it into Jerusalē into ỳ temple of ỳ Lorde. And from the ryuer of Thia we bracke vp the twelueth daye of the first moneth, tyll we came to Jerusalē. And whē the thyrde daye was past, they weyed gold, and siluer was delyuered in the house of the Lorde the fourth daye, vnto Marmoth the sonne of Jor the preste, and wyth hym was Eleazar the sonne of Phineas, & with them were Josabdus ỳ sonnes of Jesnet, Medias and the sonne of Banus, and certayne of the Leuites to the nombre and to the wayght: & the wayght of them was written vp the same tyme. As for those that were come out of captiuyte, they offred sacrifice vnto ỳ Lorde the God of Israel: euen twelue oxen for all Israel. lxxxvi. rammes lxxii. shepe. xii. goates for sinne, twelue hyne for a thāksoffring, all to the sacrifyce of the Lorde. And ỳ kynges commissiō delyuered they vnto the stewardes and debytes of the kyng, and to the vndershreues in Celosyria and Phenices.

*Nowe, when these thynges were done, the rulers came vnto me, and sayd: The generacyō of Israel, the Princes, the Prestes, and Leuytes, the straunge people & indwellers of the lande, haue not put awaye theyr vnclennesse, from the Cananites, Hethytes Pheresytes, from the Moabites, Egipciās, and Edomytes. For both they & theyr sonnes haue myngled thē selues with ỳ daughters of them, and the holy sede is mixte with the outlandysh heathen, & sens the begynnynge of their raygne haue the rulers & heades bene partetakers of theyr wyckednesse.

*As soone as I had heard these thinges, immediatly I rente my holy garmentes, & pulled out the heare of my head & my beerd, and sat me downe sorowfull and heuy. So all they that were moued thorow the word of the God of Israell, came vnto me: & I sat still, full of heuynesse vntyl the euenyng sacrifyce. Then stode I vp from fastynge, hauyng rente clothes & the holy garment, kneled downe vpon my knees, helde out my hādes vnto ỳ Lorde, and sayd: O Lorde, I am confoūded and ashamed before thy face, for our synnes are become many vpon our heades, and our wyckednesses are exalted vnto the heauen: for syns the tyme of our fathers we are in great synne vnto thys daye. And for the synnes of vs and oure fathers, we wt our brethren and with our prestes haue bene delyuered vnto the kinges of the earth, into the swerd, and into captiuyte, and became a spoyle with confusion and shame vnto this daye. And now, O Lorde God, how greate is the mercy that we haue gotten of the, in ỳ thou hast left vs a rote and a name in ỳ place of thy Sanctuary, to discouer oure lyght in the house of ỳ Lord our God, & hast geuē vs meat at all tymes of our mynistracyon. And when we were in captiuyte, we were not forsaké of the Lord our God: but he made the kynges of Persia graceyous & fauourable vnto vs, so that they gaue vs vytayles and meate, yee and leaue to buylde vp ỳ temple of our Lorde God agayne, to repayre the wasted places of Syō, and to dwell in Jewry and Jerusalem. And now, O Lord, what shall we saye hauynge all these thynges in possessyon? For we haue broken thy commaundementes, which thou gauest vnto vs by the hādes of thy seruauntes ỳ prophetes, sayinge: The lande that ye go vnto and that is geuen you for an heritage to haue in possessyō, is defyled with the vnclēnes and fylthynes of the heathen, & with their abhominacyō haue they polluted it all together. Therfore, shall ye not ioyne your daughters vnto theyr sonnes, ner mary youre sones vnto their daughters. Moreouer, ye shall neuer seke to make peace with them, ỳ ye maye increase & eate the best in the land, and that ye maye deuyde the inheritaūce of the lande vnto youre chyldrē for euermore. As for the thyng that now happeneth vnto vs it commeth all for our wycked workes and great sinnes, yet hast thou geuē vs soch a rote, ỳ we are come agayne into our awne lande, & we are so wycked that we haue broken thy statutes & commaundemētes agayne, and myngled oure selues with the vnclēnes of the outlandish heathen. O Lord, art thou angrie with vs? wylt thou rote vs cleane out? that our rote ād name remayne nomore? O Lord God of Israel thou art true for our rote endureth yet vnto thys presēte daye. And beholde, now are we before the in our sinnes, now can we not stāde before the in them.

*And whē Esdras with this prayer had knowledged the synne, weppyng, and lyenge flatt vpon the grounde before the tēple, there gathered vnto hym frō Jerusalē a great multytude of men and wemen, of yonge men and maydens, for there was a very greate weppynge & mournige in the congregacyon. So whē Jechonias the sonne of Jehell one of the chyldrē of Israell cryed, he sayd vnto Esdras: we haue synned against the Lorde, because becaufe we haue maried outlandifh wemen of the heathen. Now art ꝓ ouer all Iſrael. Wherfore we will ſweare an othe vnto the Lorde, ꝓ we ſhall put awaye all our wyues which we haue taken of the heathen, wyth theyr children: lyke as it is appoynted ꝓ by oure fore elders. Stande vp then, opē thou it, & declare it playnely vnto vs, accordyng to the lawe of the Lorde: for ꝓ matter belōgeth vnto the, and we will helpe the, quyte thy ſelfe manly. So Eſdras arose, and toke an othe of the rulers of the prieſtes, ād of the Leuytes, and of Iſraell, to do after theſe thynges: and they ſwarre.

¶ The.ix. Chapter.

¶ After Eſdras had made the lawe, the people put awaye their ſtraunge wyues: and then returneth euery man myrely vnto his owne dwellyngy.

THen Eſdras ſtode vp from the court of the temple without, and wente in to the chamber of Jonathas the ſonne of Naſabus, and remayned there, ād dyd eate no meate, nor dronke dryncke, for the multitude of the wyckednes of the people. And there was made a proclamacion in all Jewry and at Jeruſalē, for all ſoch as were gathered at Jeruſalē out of captiuite, that whoſoeuer came not to Jeruſalem within two or thre dayes (accordynge to the iudgemēt of the olde lordes of ꝓ councel) his goodes ſhulde be taken from hym, and he excluded from the congregacion of the captiuite. And in thre dayes were all they of the tribe of Juda & Beniamin gathered together at Jeruſalem, the twentyeth daye of the nynth moneth. And the whole multitude ſat trembling in the courte of the temple, for it was winter. So Eſdras arose vp, and ſaid vnto thē: ye haue done vnrighteouſly, in that ye haue taken outlandiſhe wyues to mariage and ſo to increaſe the ſynnes of Iſrael. And nowe knowledge theſame, and geue prayſe vnto the Lorde God of our fathers, ād perfourme his will, departynge from the heathen of the lande, and from the outlandyſhe wyues. Then cryed the whole multitude wt loude voyce, and ſayd: lyke as thou haſt ſpoken, ſo will we do: but for ſo moch as ꝓ people are many, and the wynter here, we may not ſtande without the houſe: agayne, thys worcke is not a thynge, that can be finiſhed in a daye or two, for we be many that haue ſynned in theſe thynges. Ordeyne therfore that the rulers of the multytude and they ꝓ dwell with vs, and as many as haue outlādyſhe wyues, the prieſtes alſo and iudges of euery place maye ſtāde in the tyme appoynted, tyll they ſwage the wrath of the Lorde in thys buſyneſs.

Then Jonathas the ſonne of Ezely, and Ozias and Thecā receaued ꝓ charge of this matter, ād Mozolamus, and Leuis, & Sabbatheus helpe them therto. After this, all they ſtode vp that were come out of captyuite. And Eſdras the prieſte chooſe vnto him the principall men from amōge the fathers accordyng to their names, & in the new mone of the tenth moneth they ſat together, to examē this matter. And ſo the matter was a determyng (concernyng the men that had outlandyſh wyues) vntyl the new mone of the fyrſt moneth. And of ꝓ prieſtes that had myxte thē ſelues with outlandyſhe wyues, there were founde. * Of the ſonnes of Jeſu the ſonne of Joſedec and his brethren, Maaſeas, Eleazar, Joribus & Joadeus, whyche offred thē ſelues to put awaye their wyues, and to offre a ramme for theyr ignorāunce. And of the ſonnes of Semmeri, Walleas, & Elles, and Jerlech Azarias. Of the ſonnes of Koſera, Limoſias, Hiſmaen, Nathanea, Juſſio, Jeddus, and Taliſas. And of the Leuytes Joſabdus, Semeis, and Colius, Caletas, Facteas, Colnas, and Elionas. Of ꝓ ſyngers of the Sanctuary, Eliaſib, zacharus. Of the porters, Sallumus ād Tolbanes. And of Iſrael, of the children of Foro, Oſi, and Remias, and Geddias, and Melchias, Michelus, Eleazarus, Jemmebias & Bannas. And the childrē of Jolamā, Thanias, zacharī, Jetzrelus, Joddius, Erimoth and Elias. And of ꝓ ſonnes of Jathoim, Eliadas, Liaſamus, and zochias, Larimoth, Sabbis, and Tebedias. And of the ſonnes of zebes, Johannes, Amanias, zabdias, and Emmeus. And of ꝓ ſones of Bannus, Olāmus, Maluchus, Jeddus, Jaſub, Alabus, & Jerimoth. And of ꝓ ſonnes of Addin, Naatus, and Phooſias, and Taleus, ād Raanas Maaſuas, Mathathias, Beſel, Bannus, & Manaſſes.

And of the ſonnes of Naue, Nones, Aſeas, Melchias, Dameas, Simō, Beniamin Malchus ād Marras. And of the ſonnes of Aſom, Cartaneus, Mathathias, Bannus, Eliphalach, Manaſſes, Semei. Of the ſonnes of Bannus, Jeremy, Moodias, Abzamas, Jobel, Baneas, Peliaas, Jona, Marimoth, Eliaſib, Mathaneus, Eliaſis, Ozias, Dicius, Demedius, zambzis, & Joſeph. Of the ſonnes of Nobeus, Idelus, Mathathias, Sabadus, zecheda, Sedmi, Jeſſeus, and Baneas. All theſe had taken outlādiſh wemen to mariage, & they put them awaye with theyr children. The prieſtes and Leuites, and all they that were of Iſraell, dwelt at Jeruſalē and thorowout all the lande, in the new moone of the ſeuenth moneth, and the children of Iſraell were in their dwellynges. And the whole multitude came together vpon the flooze at the Eaſt ſyde of ꝓ holy port of the tēple. And they ſpake vnto Eſdras the hye prieſte ād reader, ꝓ he wolde bringe the lawe of Moſes, which was geuē of the

of the Lorde God of Israel. So Eldras ꝑ
hye Prest brought ꝑ lawe vnto the whole multitude, to mā & womā, & to all Prestes,
that they might heare the lawe, * in ꝑ new mone of the .vij. moneth. And he red in the fore that is before ꝑ holy porte of the temple, from the mornyng early vnto the euenyng, before men and wemē. And they ap-plyed their mynde all vnto the lawe.

And Eldras ꝑ Prest & reader of the lawe stode vp vpō a pulpit of wood, which was made therfore: & vpō his ryght hāde there stode by hi Mathathias, Samus, Ananias, Azarias, Uzias, Ozechias: and Balsamus: Upon hys lefte hand stode Faldeus, Misael, Malachias, Abulcas, Sabus, Na-
badias & zachary. Thē toke Eldras ꝑ boke before the whole multitude, for he was the pryncipall, ād had in moste honour of them
all. And when he had red out the lawe, they stode all strayght vpon their fete. So El-dras prayed ꝑ Lord ꝑ moost hye God, the Almyghty God of hostes. And all ꝑ people answerd: Amē: & helde vp their hādes, fell downe flat vpon ꝑ earth, & prayed the Lord. And Jesus, Bencas, Sarebias, Jad
dimus, Acubus, Sabbatheus, Calithes, Azarias, Jozadus, Ananias, & Philias the Leuites lyft their hādes vpwarde, & bowed
their faces to ꝑ grounde, & prayed ꝑ Lord:
Those were they whych taught ꝑ lawe of the Lord, & red the lawe of the Lord in the cōgregacyon: & euery man set them before that vnderstode the lawe. Thē spake Atha-rates vnto Eldras the hye Prest & reder, &
to the Leuites that taught the multytude,
saying: This daye is holy vnto the Lorde:
& all they that had hearde the lawe, wepte
So Eldras sayde: * Departe youre waye
then, & eate the best, & drinke the swetest, &
sende gyftes vnto them that haue nothig:
for thys daye is holy vnto ꝑ Lord, & be not ye sory, for the Lorde wyll bring you to ho noure. Then wente they their waye euerychone, and dyd eate and drinke, & were me-ry, and sent rewardes vnto them that had nothing, that they also myght eate wyth
gladnesse: for they were excedingly reioy-
sed, thorow the wordes that were red vnto
them in the lawe: And so they were all gathered together at Jerusalem to holde the feast, accordyng to the couenaunt of the Lorde God of Israel.

The ende of the thirde booke of Eldras.

¶ The .iiij. boke of Eldras.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The people is reproued for their vnthanckfulnes. God wyll stirre another people yͤ shall not be reformed.

THe seconde boke of the Pro-phete * Eldras (the sone of Saraias, the sonne of Iza-rias, the sonne of Helchia, ꝑ
sonne of Sallum, the sone
of Sadoc, ꝑ sonne of Achi-tob, the sonne of Achia, the sone of Phinees, ꝑ sonne of Hely Amerias,
the sone of Azarias, ꝑ sonne of Maraioth,
the sonne of Sarabias, the sonne of Uzi, ꝑ
sonne of Boccus, ꝑ sonne of Abiku, ꝑ sonne
of Phineas, the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron, of the tryde of Leui) whych was prisoner in the lande of Medes, in the raygne of Artaxerses kynge of Persia. A
*1.Esd.viii.a
iii.Esd.viii.a

* And the worde of the Lord came vnto
me, saying: go thy waye, & shew my people their synfull dedes, and their chyldren their wyckednesses, whych they haue done aga-
ynst me, that they may tell their chylders
chyldre the same: for the synnes of their fathers are increased in them. And why? they haue forgotten me, & haue offred vnto straunge goddes. Am not I euen he, ꝑ brought the out of the lāde of Egypte, frō the house of bōdage? But they haue prouoked me vn to wrath, and despysed my councels. Pull thou out then the hearre of thy heade, & cast
all euell ouer them, for they haue not bene obedient vnto my lawe. *Esa.lxiii.a

It is a people without lernynge & nour-toure. How longe shall I forbeare them, vnto whom I haue done so moche good?
* Many kynges haue I destroyed for their sakes: * Pharao wyth hys seruauntes & all his power haue I smytten downe & slayne:
All ꝑ nacyōs haue I destroyed & roted out before the, and in the East haue I brought two landes & people to naught, euen Tyre
and Sydon, and haue slayne all their ene-myes. Speake thou therfore vnto them, sayinge: Thus sayeth the Lord: * I led you
thorow the see, & haue grue you sure stretes sence the beginyng. ‡ I gaue you Moses to be youre captayne, & Aaron to be the prest:
* I gaue you lyght i a pyller of fyre, & greate wonders haue I done amonge you: yet
haue ye forgotten me, sayeth the Lorde. * Nu.xxi.b. Iosu. viii.f. and.xii. ‡ Ero.xiiii.g *Ero.xiiii.c ‡ Ero. iii.b. * Nu.xbiii.g Ero.xii.b.

Thus sayth the almyghty Lorde: I gaue
you quayles to eate, & tentes for your suc-
coure:

coure: Neuertheles ye murmured, and aſcri
bed not the victory of youre enemyes vnto
my name: yee, this same daye do ye yet mur
moure. Where are the benefytes, that I ha ue done for you? When ye were hongrye in the wyldernes, * dyd ye not crye vnto me:
Why haſt ꝓ brought vs into this wyldernes, to kyll vs? It had bene better for vs, to haue serued ꝓ Egyptiās, thē to dye i this wyldernesse. Then had I pytie vpon youre mournynges, and gaue you māna to eate:
* Ye dyd eate angels foode. * Whē ye were thyrſtye, dyd not I hewe the hardstone, ād caused water to flowe therout? For ꝓ heat
I couered you wyth the leaues of the trees
& good pleasaūt fat lād gaue I you: I caſt out the Cananites, the Pherezytes & Phi-lyſtines before you. * What shall I do mo re for you, sayeth the Lorde?

Thus sayth ꝓ Almyghtye Lorde: * Whē
ye were in the wyldernes, in ꝓ water of the Amorytes, beynge a thyrſt, & blaſphemynge my name, I gaue you not fyre for youre
blaſphemyes, but caſt a tree into ꝓ water, & made ꝓ ryuer swete. What shall I do vnto ꝓ, O Jacob? Thou Juda woldeſt not obeye me. * I wyll turne me to a nother people & vnto those wyl I geue my name, ꝓ they maye kepe my statutes. Seyng ye haue forsaken me, I wyl forsake you also. Whē ye desyre me to be gracious vnto you, I shall haue no mercy vpō you. * Whē ye call vpō me, I wyl not heare you. For ye haue defy-led youre handes with bloude, ād youre fete are swyft to commyt manslaughter. Ye haue not forsakē me (in a maner) but your awne selues, sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayth ꝓ almyghtye Lorde: haue I not prayed you, as a father hys sōnes, as a nother her daughters, & as a norsse her pōg
babes, ꝓ ye wolde be my people, ād I shuld
be youre God: ꝓ ye wolde be my chyldren,
& I shulde be youre a vne fathers? * I gathered you together, as an hēne gathereth
her cyckens vnder her wynges. But now what shall I do vnto you? I shall caſt you out fro my face? * Whē ye offre vnto me, I shall turne my face from you: for your solempne feaſt dayes, youre new moones, ād youre circumcysiōs haue I forsakē. I sent vnto you my seruaūtes ꝓ Prophetes, whō
ye haue taken & slayne, and torne theyr bo
dyes in peces, whose bloude I wyl requyre
of youre handes, sayeth the Lorde.

Thus sayeth the Almyghty Lorde: youre
houſe muſt be desolate. I wyll caſt you out as the wynde doth ꝓ straw: youre chyldre
shall not be frutefull, for they haue defyp-
ſed my cōmaundement, ād done the thynge ꝓ is euell before me. Youre houses wyll I geue vnto a people ꝓ shall come, and * they ꝓ neuer herde me, shall beleue in me: & they vnto whom I neuer shewed token, shall do the thinge that I cōmaunde the. They haue
sene no Prophetes, yet shall they call their synnes to remembraunce, and knowledge
the. I repoſte me vnto the grace, ꝓ I wyll
do for ꝓ people whych is come, whose chil-
dre reioyse in gladnes: & though they haue
not sene me wyth bodely eyen, yet in spyrite
they beleue the thinge ꝓ I saye. And nowe brother, beholde what greate worshyppe, & ſr ꝓ people ꝓ cōmeth from the Eaſt, vn-
to whō I wyll geue the dukedō * of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, of Oſee, Amos, & Michens, of Joel, Abdy, Jonas, Naum, ād
Abacuc, of Sophony, Aggeus, Zachary, ād Malachi, whych is called also an āgell (or messenger) of the Lorde.

The.ii. Chapter.

The Synagoge tyrneth faute wyth her awne chyldren. The Gentyles are called.

Thus sayeth the Lorde: I brought this people out of bondage, I gaue them my commaundemētes by my seruauntes the Prophetes, whych they wolde not heare, but despyted my counseis.
The mother that bare them, sayeth vnto
the. Go youre waye ye chyldren, for I am a wyddowe & forsaken: I brought you vp wyth gladnesse, but with sorow and heuynes haue I lost you: for ye haue sinned before the Lorde youre God, & done ꝓ thinge that is euell before him. But what shall I now do vnto you? I am a wyddow & forsaken: go youre waye, O my chyldren, and aske mercy of the Lorde. As for me, O father, I call vpō the for a wytnesse ouer the mother of these chyldren, which wolde not kepe my couenaunt: that thou bringe the
to confusyon, & their mother to a spoyle, that she beare no moze. Let their names be scatred abroade amonge the heathen, let them be put out of the earth, for they haue
thought scorne of my couenaunt.

Wo be vnto the Assur, thou that bydeſt ꝓ unryghtuous by ꝓ. Thou wycked people, remēbre * what I dyd vnto Sodome and Gomorre, whose lāde is turned to pytch & asshes. Euen so also wyll I do vnto all the, that heare me not, sayeth ꝓ almyghty Lorde. Thus sayeth ꝓ Lord vnto Elzias:
Tell my people, that I wyll geue the the kyngdome of Jerusalem, whych I wolde haue geuen vnto Israel. Their glory also will I take vnto me, & geue the ꝓ euerlastyng tabernacles, which I had prepared for those. The tree ofkyde shalbe vnto the a swete smellinge ornamēt: they shall nether laboure nor be weery. Go ye youre waye, & ye shall receaue it. Praye for youre selues
a fewe dayes, ꝓ they maye dwell therin.

Nowe

is the kyngdome prepared for you, therfore watche. Take heauen ād earth to witnesse for I haue broken the euell in peces, & created the good, for I liue sayth ꝓ Lord. Mother embrace thy children, ād bringe them vp with gladnesse: make theyr fete as fast as ꝓ pyler, for I haue chosen the, sayeth the Lorde.

And those that be deed will I rayse vp agayne from theyr places, and bringe them out of the graues, for I haue knowne my name I Israell. Feare not thou mother of ꝓ children, for I haue chosen the, sayeth the Lorde. And for thy helpe I shall sende the my seruauntes Esay & Jeremy, after whose counsell I haue sanctifyed and prepared for the twelue trees with diuerse frutes, and as many welles flowynge with mylk and hony and seuen mountaynes, wher vpon there growe roses and lylyes, wherin I will fyll my children with ioye. Execute iustyce for the wyddowe, be iudge for the fatherles geue to the poore: defende the comfortelesse: clothe the naked: heale the wounded & sych: laugh not a lame man to scorne: defende the cripel, and let the blynde come into the lyght of my clearnes: * whersoeuer thou fyndest the deed, take them, and burye them, and I shall geue ꝓ, ꝓ fyrst place in my resurrecciō. Holde styll (O my people) and take thy rest for thy quyetnes is come. Feede thy children, O thou good norisse, stablysh their fete: As for the seruauntes whom I haue geuen the, there shall not one of them perish, for I will seke them from thy nombre: vexe not thy selfe.

For when the daye of trouble and heuynes cōmeth, other shall wepe and be sorowfull, but thou shalt be mery and plenteous. The heathen shalbe gelous, but they shalbe able to do nothynge agaynst the, sayth the Lorde. My handes shall couer the, so that thy children shal not se the fyre euerlasting. Be ioyfull, O thou mother with thy children, for I will deliuer the, sayeth the Lord. Remembre thy deed children, for I shall bringe them out of the earth, & shew mercy vnto them, for I am mercyfull, sayth the Lorde almyghty.

Embrace thy children, vntyll I come, & shew mercy vnto them, for my welles runne ouer, and my grace shall not fayle.

I Esdras receaued a charge of the Lorde vpon the mount Oreb, that I should go vnto Israell. But when I came vnto Israell they set me at naught, and despised the commaundemēt of the Lord. And therfore I saye vnto you, O ye heathen that heare and vnderstāde: Loke for youre shepherde, he shall geue you euerlastinge rest, for he is nye at hād, that shall come in the ende of ꝓ worlde. Be readye to the rewarde of the kingdome, for the euerlastynge lyght shall shyne vpon you for euermore. Flie the shadowe of thys worlde, receaue the ioyfulnes of youre glory. I testifye my sauyour openly: O, receaue the gyft that is geuen you, and be glad, geuynge thākes vnto hym, that hath called you to the heauenly kyngdome.

Aryse vp & stande fast: beholde the nombre of those that be sealed in the feast of the Lord, which are departed from the shadow of the worlde, and haue receaued glorious garmentes of the Lorde. Take thy nombre O Syō, and shut vp thy purpyred, which haue fulfylled the lawe of the Lorde. The nombre of thy children whom thou longedest for, is fulfylled: beseche the power of the Lorde, that thy people which haue bene called from the begynnynge, maye be halowed.

* I Esdras sawe vpon the mount Sion a great people, whom I coulde not nombre and they all prayed the Lorde with songes of thankesgeuynge. And in the myddest of them there was a ponge man of an hye stature, more excellent then all they, and vpon euery one of theyr heades he set a crowne, & was euer higher and higher, which I marueled at greatly. So I asked the aūgel and sayd: Syr, what are these? he answered ād saide vnto me: These be they, that haue put of the mortall clothynge and put on the immortall, and haue testyfyed ād knowleged the name of God. Now are they crowned, & receaue the rewarde. * Apo. vii.

Then sayde I vnto the aungell: what pōge personne is it, that crowneth them, and geueth them the palmes in theyr handes? So he answered, and sayde vnto me: It is the sonne of God, whō they haue knowledged in the worlde. Then beganne I greatly to commende them, that stode so stykly for the name of ꝓ Lorde. And so the aūgell sayde vnto me: Go thy waye, & tell my people, what maner of thynges & how greate wonders of the Lorde thy God, thou hast sene.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ The wonderous workes which God dyd for the people are vttered. Esdras marueileth that God suffereth the Babylonyans to haue rule ouer hys people, whych yet are synners also.

N the thyrtye yeare of the fall of the cytie, I was at Babylon, and laye troubled vpon my bed ād my thoughtes came vp ouer my hert: for I sawe the desolacyon of Syon, and the plenteous wealth of thē that dwelt at Babylon: and my spyrete was sore moued, so that I begāne to speake fearfull wordes to the most hyest, and sayde: O Lorde, Lorde, thou spakest at the begynnynge, whē thou

Bbb planted.

plãtedst the earthe (ād that thy selfe alone) and gauest commaundement vnto the people, and a body vnto Adam, which was a creature of thy handes, and hast breathed in hym the breth of lyfe: and so he lyued before the, and thou ledest hym into paradyse, which garden of pleasure thy ryght hande had planted, or euer the earth was made. And vnto him thou gauest commaundemẽt to loue thy waye, which he transgressed, & immedyatly thou appointedest death in hi, and in his generacyons. Of hym came nacyons, trybes, people and kynredes out of nombre. * And euery people walked after their awne will, and dyd wyce thynges before the: & as for thy commaundemẽtes, they despysed them.

* Gen. vi. b.

* But in processe of tyme thou broughtest the water floude, vpõ those that dwelt in the world, and destroyedst them. And lyke as the death was in Adam, so was ỹ water floude also i these. Neuertheles one of them ỹ lefte: namely Noe wyth hys housholde, of whome came all ryghteous men. And it happened that whẽ they that dwelt vpon the earth, beganne to multyplye, and had gotte many chyldren, and were a great people, they beganne to be more vngodly then the fyrst.

* Gen. viii. b

Now when they all lyued so wyckedly before the, * thou dydest chose the a man frõ amonge them, whose name was Abraham. hym thou louedst. Ād vnto hym onely thou shewedst thy wyll, and madest an euerlastynge couenaunt with hym, promysynge hym, that thou woldest neuer forsake his sede. * And vnto hym ỹ gauest Isaac, * vnto Isaac also thou gauest Jacob ād Esau. As for Jacob thou bydest chose hym, and put backe Esau. * And so Jacob became a great multytude.

* Gen. xvi. a
* Gen. xvii. b
* Gen. xxvii. a.

And it happened that when thou leddest hys sede out of Egypte, * thou broughtest them vp to the mounte Syon, bowyng downe the heauẽs, settyng fast the earth, mouynge the grounde, makyng the depthes to shake, and troublynge the worlde: And thy glory went thorow foure portes of fyre, & earthquakes, and wyndes, and colde: that thou myghtest geue the lawe vnto ỹ sede of Jacob, & diligẽce vnto ỹ generacyõ of Israel

* Exod. xiv. a
Deu. iii. b.

And yet tokest thou not away from the that wycked hert, ỹ thy lawe myght brige forth frute in them. For the fyrst Ada bare a wycked hert, transgressed, and was ouercome, & so be all they that are borne of him.

Rom. viii. a

* Thus remayned weakenes with the lawe i the herte of the people, wt the wyckednesse of the rote: so that the good departed away and the euell abode styll. So the tymes passed away, and the yeares were brought to an ende. * Then bydest thou rayse the vp a

¶ ii. Reg. vii. c

seruaunt called Dauid, * whom thou commaundedst to buylde a cyte vnto thy name, and to offre vp incense and sacrifyce vnto ỹ therin. Thys was done now many yeares. Then the inhabyters of the cyte forsoke the and in all thynges dyd euen as Adam and all his generacyons had done: for they also had a wicked herte.

* ii. Reg. v. a

And so thou gauest thy cyte ouer into the hãdes of thyne enemyes. Are they of Babylon then better ād more righteous then thy people, that they shall therfore haue the dominyon of Syon? For when I came there and sawe they? vngodlynes, and so greate wyckednesse, that it couldenot be nombred: yee, whẽ my soule sawe so many euel doers (in the thyrtye yeare) my herte fayled me, for I sawe, how thou suffrest them in soch vngodlynes & sparest the wicked doers: but thyne awne people hast thou roted out and preserued thyne enemyes, & thys hast thou not shewed me.

D

I cannot perceaue how thys happeneth. Do they of Babylon then better, then they of Syon? Or is there any other people, that knoweth the, saue the people of Israel? Or what generacyon hath so beleued thy couenauntes, as Jacob? And yet they? reward appeareth not, ād they? labour hath no frute. For I haue gone here & there thorow the heathen, and I se that they be rich and wealthy, and thynke not vpõ thy commaundementes. Wepe thou therfore oure wyckednesse now in the balaũce, and theirs also that dwell in the worlde, and so shall thy name be no where founde but in Israel. Or where is there a people vpõ earthe, that hath not synned before ỹ? Or what people hath so kepte thy commãdementes? Thou shalt finde, that Israel by name hath kepte thy preceptes, but not the other people and heathen.

¶ The fourth Chapter.

¶ The Angell reproueth Esdras, because he semed to enter into the profounde iudgementes of God.

AND the Angell that was sent vnto me (whose name was Uriell) gaue me an answere, & sayd: Thy hert hath taken to moch vpõ it in thys worlde, & ỹ thynckest to comprehẽde the waye of the hyest. Then sayd I: Yee, my Lorde. And he answered me, and sayde: I am sent to shewe the thre wayes, and to sett forth thre symplytudes, before the: whereof yf thou canst declare me one, I will shewe the also the waye, that thou desyrest to se: and I shall shewe the from whence the wicked herte commeth. And I sayde: Tell on my Lorde. Then sayde he vnto me: Go thy waye, wey me the weyght of the fyre, or measure me the blast of the wynde, or call me

A

agayne

agayne the dayes that is past. Then answered I and sayde: What mā borne is able to do þ? Why requirest thou soch of me? And he sayde vnto me: If I shulde aske the, how many dwellinges are in þ see? Or how great water springes are vpō the firmamēt? Or how great waters springes are in the beginnynge of the depe? Or which are the outgoinges of paradyse? Paraduēture thou woldest saye vnto me: I neuer went downe yet into þ depe nor hell, nether dyd I euer clyme vp into heauen. Neuertheles, now haue I asked the but only of fyre and winde and of the daye, where thorow thou hast trauayled, and from the which thou canst not be separated: and yet canst thou geue me no answere of them.

He sayd moreouer vnto me: Thyne awne thynges, & soch as are growne vpō the, canst thou not knowe: how shuld thy vessel then be able to comprehēde the waye of the Hyest, and now out wardly in the corrupte worlde, to vnderstāde the corrupciō that is cuidēt in my sight? Then sayd I vnto hym: It were better that we were not at all, then that we shulde lyue in wyckednesse, & to suffre, & not to know wherfore. He answered me, & sayd: I wente in a wood, & * the trees toke soch a deuyce ād sayd: Come let vs go, and fyght agaynst the see, that it maye departe awaye before vs, and that we maye make vs yet more woddes. 23 Iudic. ix. c. Esa. xl. b

The floudes of the see also in lyke maner toke thys deuyce, ād sayde: Come, let vs go vp, and fyght agaynst the trees of the wood that we maye make oure lande the wyder. The thought and deuyce of the wodde was but vayne and nothinge worth, for the fyre came and consumed the wodd: The thought of the floudes of the see came lyke wyse to naught also, for the sāde stode vp and stopped them.

If thou were iudge now betwirte these two, whom woldest thou iustifie, or whom woldest thou condemne? I answered & said: Verely it is a folysh thought that they both haue deuysed. For the grounde is geuen vnto the wodd, & the see also hath hys place to beare his floudes. Then answered he me, ād sayde: Thou hast geuen a ryght iudgement, why iudgest thou not thy selfe also? For lyke as the ground is geuen vnto the wodd, and the see to his floudes: euen so * they þ dwell vpon earth, may vnderstāde nothinge, but that which is vpon earth: and he that dwelleth aboue the heauēs, may only vnderstād the thynges, þ are aboue the heauens. Then answered I, and sayd: I beseche þ, O Lord, let me haue vnderstandynge: for it was not my mynde to be curyous of thy hye thinges, but of soch as we dayly medle withall, namely, wherfore that Israel is blasphemed of the heathē, and for what cause the people (whom thou euer hast loued) is geuen ouer, to be punyshed of vngodly nacyons: & why þ lawe of our fathers is brought to naught and the written couenauntes come to none effecte, and we passe awaye out of þ worlde as the grashoppers, ād our lyfe is a very fear, & we are not worthy to optayne mercy. What wil he do then vnto his name, which is called vpon ouer vs? Of these thinges haue I asked question. Esa. xlii. c. Iohn. iii. c. Ezech. xi. b

Then answered he me, & sayd: The more thou searchest, the more thou shalt maruell for the world hasteth fast to passe awaye, & cannot comprehende the thynges, þ are promysed for the righteous i tyme to come, for * thys worlde is full of vnrighteousnes ād weakenes. C * 1. Iohn. b. c

But as concernynge the thinges wherof thou askest me, I will tell the. The euell is sowen, but the destruccion therof is not yet come. Yf the euell now that is sowen, be not turned vpsyde downe, and yf the place where the euell is sowne, passe not awaye, then cānot the thynge come þ is sowen for good. For the corne of euell sede hath bene sowen in the hert of man from the begynnyng, and how moch vngodlynes hath he brought vp vnto thys tyme? and how moch shal he yet bryng forth, vntyll he come into the barne? Ponder now by thy selfe, whē the corne of euell sede is cutt downe, how greate a barne shall it fyll? I answered and sayd, How and whē shal these thinges come to passe? Wherfore are our yeares few & euell? And he answered me, sayinge: Haste not thou to moch vpō the Hyest, for thy hastynes to be aboue him is but vaine, thou makest to moch a do. Did not the soules also of þ righteous aske question of these thynges in theyr holynes sayīg: * How longe shall I hope of thys fashyon? Whē cōmeth the frute of my barne, and my rewarde? And vpō this Jeremiel þ Archāgel gaue thē answere, and sayd: Euē whē the nombre of the sedes is fylled i you, for he hath weyed the worlde i the balaūce: in measure and nombre hath he measured þ tyme, & moueth it not, vntyll the same measure be fulfylled. Then answered I & sayde: O Lord, Lorde, now are we all full of synne, and for our sake paraduēture it is not, the barne of the ryghteous shall not be fylled, because of the synnes of them that dwel vpon the earth. * Apo. vi. b D

So he answered me, & sayd: Go thy waye to a womā wyth chyld, and aske of her whē she hath fulfylled her nyne monethes, yf her childebed maye kepe þ byrth anyōger with in her. Then sayde I: No Lord, that can she not. And he sayde vnto me: In hell þ secret places of soules are lyke the preuy chamber of a woman. For lyke as a woman that trauayleth, maketh haste, when the tyme & necessyte of the byrth is at hande. Euen so doth the haste to delyuer it that is commytted vnto her. Loke what thou desyrest to se, it shalbe shewed the from the begynnynge. Then answered I, and sayde: If I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, and yf it be possyble, and yf I be mete therfore, shewe me then, whether there be more to come then is past, or more past then is for to come. What is past, I knowe: but what is for to come, I knowe not.

And he sayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon the ryght syde, and I shall expounde the symplitude vnto the. So I stode, and behold, an whote burnynge ouen were ouer before me: and it happened that when the flamme was gone by, the smoke had ꝑ vpper hãde. After thys there went ouer before me a watery cloude, & sent downe mochrayne wyth a storme: & whe the stormy rayne was past the droppes remayned styll. Then sayde he vnto me: lyke as the rayne is more then the droppes, and as the fyre exceadeth the smoke, euen so the measure of the thynges that are past, hath the vpperhande. Then wente the droppes and the smoke aboue: ād I prayed ād sayde: O) ay I lyue (thynkest thou) vntyll that tyme? Or what shal happen in those dayes? he answered me, ād sayde: As for the tokens wherof ꝑ askest me, I maye tell the of them in parte: but as touchynge thy lyfe, I may not shewe the, for I am not sent therfore.

¶ The.v. Chapter.

¶ Esdras and the ãngell commen together.

Neuertheles, as concernig the tokens, marke thys: Beholde, the dayes shall come, that they which dwell vpon earthe, shalbe take in a great nõbre, & the waye of the trueth shalbe hyd, and the lande shalbe barren frõ fayth: but * iniquyte shall haue the vpperhande, lyke as thou hast sene now, ād as thou hast hearde longe agoo. And the lãde that thou seist now to haue rule, shalt thou shortly se waste. But yf God graũte the to lyue, thou shalt se after the thyrd trompet, that ꝑ sunne shall sodenly shyne agayne in the nyght, & the moone thre tymes i the daye, and bloud shall droppe out of wodd, and the stone shall geue his voyce, & the people shalbe vnquyete: and euen he shall rule, whõ they hope not that dwell vpon earth, and the fowles shall flyt, & the Sodomyty sh see shal cast out his fish, and make a noyse in the nyght, whych many shal not knowe, but they shal all heare the voyce therof.

* mat. xxiiii a

There shalbe a confusyon also in many places, & the fyre shalbe oft sent agayne, ād the wylde beastes shall go theyr waye, and menstruous wemen shall beare monsters, & salt waters shalbe founde in the swete: one frende shall fyght agaīst another: then shal all witt and vnderstãdyng be hyd and put aside into theyr secrete places, and shalbe sought of many, and yet not be founde: then shall vnryghteousnes and voluptuousnes haue the vpperhande vpon earth. One land also shall aske another, and saye: Is ryghtousnes gone thorow the? And it shal saye No. At the same tyme shall men hope, but nothyng optayne: they shall laboure, but theyr wayes shall not prosper.

To shewe the soche tokens I haue leue, & yf thou wylt praye agayne, & wepe as now and fast seuen dayes, thou shalt heare yet greater thinges. Then I awaked, and a fearfulnes wente thorow all my body, and my mynde was feble and carefull, so that I almost sowned withall. So the aũgel that was come to talke with me, helde me, comforted me, and set me vpon my fete.

And in the seonde nyght it happened, that Salathiel the captayne of the people came vnto me, saying: Where hast thou bene? and why is thy countenannce so heuy? knowest thou not, that Israel is commytted vnto ꝑ, in the lande of theyr captyuite? Up then ād eate, and forsake vs not, as ꝑ shepherde that leaueth hys flocke in the handes of wycked wolues. Then sayde I vnto hym: Go thy waye fro me, and come not nye me: and he hearde it, ād as I sayd: so were he hys waye fro me. And so I fasted seuen dayes, mournynge and weppynge, lyke as Uriel the aũgell commaunded me. And after seuẽ dayes it happened, that ꝑ thoughtes of my herte were very greuous vnto me agayne, ād my soule receaued ꝑ spyrete of vnderstandynge, and I begãne to talke with the moost hiest agayne and sayde: O Lorde, Lorde, of euery wood of the earth ād of all the trees therof, thou hast chosen the one onely vyneyarde: & of all landes of the whole worlde thou hast chosen one pyt: and of all floures of the grounde thou hast chosen the one lylye: and of all the depthes of the see thou hast filled the one ryuer: ād of all buylded cytyes thou hast holowed Sion vnto thy selfe: ād of all ꝑ fowles that are created, thou hast named the ons doue: & of all the catell that are made thou hast prouyded the one shepe, & amõg all the multytudes of folckes thou hast gotten the one people, & vnto thys people whõ thou louedest, thou gauest a lawe, that is proued of all.

And now, O Lorde, why hast thou geuen this one people ouer vnto many? and vpon the one rote thou hast prepared other and why hast thou scatred thy one only people amonge many? which treade them downe, yee whych haue euer withstande thy promyses, and neuer beleued thy couenauntes:

And

And though thou wereſt enempe vnto thy people, yet thuldeſt thou punyſh them with thyne awne hādes. Now whē I had ſpoke, C theſe wozdes ꝑ Angel ꝑ came to me ꝑ nyght ataze, was ſent vnto me, & ſayde vnto me: Heare me, and herken to the thynge that I ſaye, and I ſhal tell the moze. And I ſayde: D Speake on my Lozde. Then ſayde he vnto me. Thou art ſoze vexed & troubled foz Iſraels ſake. Loueſt thou that people better then hym that made the? And I ſayde. No Lozde, but of very greſe & compaſſyon haue I ſpoken. Foz my reynes payne me euery houre, becauſe I wolde haue experiēce of ꝑ waye of the moſt hyeſt, & to ſeke out parte of hys iudgement. And he ſayde vnto me: ꝑ ꝑ mayeſt not. And I ſayde: wherfoze Lozde? wherby vnto was I bozne then? Oz why was not my mothers chyldebed then my graue? So had I not ſene ꝑ myſery & trouble of Jacob, and the tranayle of my people of Iſrael.

And he ſayd vnto me: Nombze the thynges that are not yet come: gather me togethet the droppes, ꝑ are ſcatred abzode: make me the flours greene agayne, ꝑ are withered: open me the thynge that is cloſed: and bzynge me fozth the wyndes, that are ſhut vp: Shewe me the ymage of a voyce, and then ſhall I declare the thynge, that thou laboureſt to knowe. And I ſayde: O Lozde, Lozde, who maye knowe theſe thinges, but he that hath not hys dwellynge with men? As foz me, I am vnwyſe: how may I then ſpeake of theſe thynges wherof thou aſkeſt me? Then ſayde he vnto me: like as ꝑ canſt do none of theſe thynges that I haue ſpoke of, euen ſo canſt thou not fynde out my iudgement, oz in the ende the loue that I haue promyſed vnto my people. And I ſayde: Beholde, O Lozde, yet art thou nye vnto them that haue no ende: and what ſhall they do, ꝑ haue bene befoze me, oz we that be now, oz they that ſhall come after vs? And he ſayde vnto me: I wyll lyken my iudgement vnto a ryngc. Lyke as there is no ſlacknelle of ꝑ laſt, euē ſo is there no ſwyftnelle of ꝑ fyrſt. So I anſwered and ſayd: couldeſt thou not make thoſe (that haue bene made, & be now, and that are foz to come) in one, that thou myghteſt ſhewe thy iudgement the ſooner? Then anſwered he me, and ſayde: The creature maye not haſte aboue ꝑ maker, neither D maye the wozlde holde them at once, that ſhalbe created.

And I ſayde: how haſt thou ſayde then vnto thy ſeruaunte, that thou lyuynge maker, haſt made the creature lyuynge at once & the creature bare it? euē ſo myght it now alſo beare them that be preſent, atōce. And he ſayde vnto me: Aſke the childebed of a woman, & ſaye vnto her: If thou bryngeſt fozth chyldzen, why doeſt thou it not to gether, but one after another? Praye her therfoze, to bzynge fozth ten childzen at once. And I ſayde: ſhe cannot, but muſt do it one after another.

Then ſayde he vnto me: Euen ſo haue I geuē a childebed vnto the earth, foz thoſe ꝑ be ſowen vpō it by proceſſe of tyme. For lyke as a ponge child maye not bzyng fozth ꝑ thynges that belonge to the aged: euē ſo haue I ozdened the wozlde which I made.

And I aſked and ſayde: Seyng thou haſt now geuen me a waye, I will ſpeake befoze the: foz oure mother of whom thou haſt tolde me, is yet ponge, & now ſhe draweth nye vnto age. He anſwered me, and ſayde: Aſke a woman that beareth chyldzen, & ſhe ſhall tell ꝑ. Saye vnto her: wherfoze are not they (whom thou haſt now bzought fozth) lyke thoſe that were befoze ꝑ, but leſſe of ſtature And ſhe ſhal anſwere the: They that be bozne in the youth of ſtrēgth, are of one faſhyō and they that are bozne in the tyme of age, (when the childebed layeth) are other wyſe. Conſydze now thy ſelfe, how that ye are leſſe of ſtature, then thoſe that were befoze you, and ſo are they that come after you, leſſe then ye: as the creatures which now begynne to be old, & haue paſſed ouer ꝑ ſtrēgth of youth. Then ſayde I: Lozde I beſeche ꝑ, ꝑ I haue founde fauoure in thy ſyght, ſhewe thy ſeruaunt, by whom doeſt thou viſet thy creature?

The. vi. Chapter.

The Angell inſtructeth Esdras, and geueth hym anſwere to hys queſtions.

And he ſayde vnto me. In the begin A nynge when ꝑ grounde was made: before the wozlde ſtode, oz euer the wyndes blew, before it thondzed and lyghtened, oz euer ꝑ foundacyōs of Paradyſe were layed, before the fayze floures were ſene, oz euer the moueable powers were ſtablyſhed, before the innumerable multitude of angels were gathered together, oz euer the byghneſſes of the ayze were lyfted vp, afoze ꝑ meaſures of the firmament were named, oz euer ꝑ chymneys in Syon were hote, ād oz the preſente yeares were ſought out, and oz euer the inuēcyons of them that now ſynne, were put aſyde, befoze they were ſealed that now gather fayth foz a treaſure: then dyd I cōſydze and pondze all theſe thynges, and they all were made thozow me, and thozow none other: by me alſo they be ended, and by none other. Then anſwered I & ſayd: which ſhall be ꝑ partyng aſunder of ꝑ tymes? Oz when ſhalbe the ende of the fyrſt, & the begynnynge of it ꝑ foloweth? And he ſayd vnto me: From Abzaham vnto Iſaac, when Jacob and Eſau were bozne of hym, Jacobs hande helde fyrst the hele of Esau: for Esau is the ende of thys worlde and Jacob is the begynnynge of it that folowerh. The hande of man betwirte the hele and the: hande. Other questyon (Esdras) aske thou not.

I answered then, & sayd: O Lord, Lord, yf I haue founde fauoure in thy syght, I beseech the, shewe thy seruaunt the ende of thy tokens, wherof thou shewdest me parte the last nyght. So he answered ād sayde vnto me: Stande vp vpon thy fete, and heare the perfecte voyce and soūde. There shall come a greate mocyon, but the place where thou standest shall not be moued. And therfore when thou hearest þ wordes, be not afraied: for of the ende shall the worde and fouadacyon of the earth be vnderstāde. And why? the world therof trembleth and quaketh, for it knoweth, that it must be chaunged at the 25 ende. And it happened, þ whē I had hearde it, I stode vp vpon my fete, and herkened: & behold, there was a voyce that spake, and þ sounde of it was lyke þ sounde of many waters, and it sayde: Beholde, the dayes come, that I will begynne to drawe nye, & to vyset them that dwell vpon earth, and will begynne to make inquysicion of them, what they be that haue hurt equyte with vnrighteousnes, and when the lowe estate of Syō shalbe fulfylled: and when the worlde, that shal vanyth awaye, shalbe ouersealed, then wyll I do these tokens.

The bookes shalbe opened before the firmamēt, and they shall se all together, & the chyldrē of a yere olde shal speake with their voyces: the wemen with chylde shall bring forth vntymely childrē of thre or foure monethes olde, and they shall lyue, and be raysed vp: & sodenly shall the sowen places appeare as the vnsowen, the full store houses shall sodenly be founde emptye, & the trompet shall geue a soūde, which whē euery mā heareth, they shalbe hastely afrayed. * At þ tyme shall frendes fyght one agaynst another lyke enemyes, and the earth shall stande in feare with them.

The sprynges of the welles shall stande styll, and in thre houres they shall not rēne. Whosoeuer remayneth from all these thynges that I haue told the, shall escape, ād se my saluacyon, and the ende of your worlde And the men that haue receaued, shall sese, they that haue not tasted death from the byrth, and the hert of the indwellers shalbe chaūged, & turned into another meanynge: for euell shalbe put out, and hyssope shalbe quenched. As for fayth, it shall florysh, corrupcyon shalbe ouercome: & þ trueth, which hath bene so longe without feute, shalbe declared. And it happened when he talked wt me, that I loked demurely vpon hym, before whom I stode, and these wordes sayde he vnto me: I am come to shewe the, the tyme of the nyght for to come.

If thou wilt praye yet more, and fast seuen dayes agayne, I shal tell the more thynges, and greater then before: for thy voyce is heard before the hyest: for why? þ myghtye hath sene thy ryghteous dealynge, he hath sene also thy chastite, which thou hast had euer sence thy youth: and therfore hath he sent me to shewe the all these thynges, ād to saye vnto the: Be of good comforte, and feare not, and haste not with þ tymes that are past to thynche vayne thynges, and make not hast of the latter tymes. C

And it happened after this, that I wepte agayne, and fasted seuen dayes in lyke maner, þ I myght fulfyll þ thre wekes: which he told me. In þ cyght nyght was my hert vered with in me agayne, & I begāne to speake before þ hyest. For my spirite was greatly sett on fyre, & my soule was in dystresse, & I sayd: O Lord, thou spakest vnto thy creature frō the begynnyng (euē the fyrst daye) and saydest. * Let heauen & earth be made, * Gen.i. and thy worde was a perfecte worcke. And then was there the spirite, and þ darcknesses were yet on euery syde, and silence: there was no mans voyce as yet from þ. Then commaūdedst þ a fayre lyght to come forth out of thy treasures, that thy worck myght appeare and be sene.

Upon the seconde daye thou madest the spirite of the firmament, and cōmaūdedst it to part a sunder, and to make a deuysiō betwirte the waters, that the one part myght remayne aboue: and the other beneth. Upō the thyrde daye thou broughtest to passe, þ the waters were gathered i the seuēth part of þ earth: Sixe partes hast thou dryed vp, and kepte them, to thyntent þ men myght sowe & occuppye but bādrye therin. As soone as thy worde went forth, the worcke was made. For imedyatly there was greate innumerable frute, and many dyuerse pleasures & delyces of tryacyon, floures of chaungeable couloure and smell, and this was done the thyrde daye. D

* Upon the .iiii. daye þ commaundedst þ * Gen.i. the Sunne shuld geue his shyne, & the moone her lyght: þ starres dydest thou set in order, and gauest them a charge: to do seruyce * Ps.cxlviii. euen vnto man, that was for to be made.

Upon þ fyft daye thou saydest vnto the seuēth part (where the * waters were gathered) that they shulde bringe forth diuerse beastes, fowles and fyshes. And so it came to passe, that the domme water and without soule, brought forth lyuynge beastes, at þ commaundemēt of God, that all people myght prayse thy wonderous worckes. * Gen.i.

Then dydest thou preserue two soules, the one

one thou callest Enoch and the other Leuiathan, ād dydest separate the one frō the other: for the seuēth parte (namely, where ꝑ water was gathered together) myght not holde them bothe. Unto Enoch thou gauest one parte, which was dyped vp the thyrde daye, that he shulde dwell i the same parte, wherin are a thousand hilles. But vnto Leuiathā thou gauest the seuenth part, namely the moyst, and hast kepte hym to deuoure what thou wylt, and whan. Upon the sixte daye thou gauest commaundemēt vnto the earth, that before the it shulde bryngе forth beastes, catell, and all that crepe, and (besydes this) Adā also, whō thou madest Lorde of all thy creatures. Of hym come we all, & the people also, whom thou hast chosen specially vnto thy selfe. All thys haue I sayde now & spoken before ꝑ, that I myght shewe how that the worlde is made for oure sakes As for the other people which also come of Adā thou hast sayd that they are nothyng, but be lyke a spetle, & hast lykened ꝑ aboudaūce of them vnto a droppe (that falleth) from the rofe of the house.

And now, O Lorde, the heathen whych haue euer bene reputed as nothynge, haue begōne to be lordes ouer vs, and to deuoure vs: but we thy people (whom thou hast called the fyrst borne, thy only begotten, & thy feruent louer) are geuen into theyr handes and power. Yf the worlde now be made for our sakes, why haue we not the inheritaunce in possession with the worlde? How longe shall thys endure?

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ The Angel sheweth Eldras many thynges to come.

AND it happened after that I had spoken oute these wordes, there was sent vnto me an Angell, which had bene by me also the nightes afore, and he said vnto me: Up Eldras, and heare the wordes ꝑ I am come to tel the. And I sayd: speake on Lord my God. Then sayd he vnto me. The see is set in a wyde place, that it myght be depe and greate: but the entraūce is narow and small lyke a ryuer. For who wolde go into the see, to loke vpon it, and to rule it? If he wente not thorow ꝑ narow, how myght he come into the brode?

Item another: A cyte is buylded and set vpon a brode felde, and is full of all goodes the entraunce is narow & sodayne, lyke as yf there were a fyre at the ryght hād, and a depe water at the left and as it were onely one strayte path betwixte thē both, so smal that there coulde but one man go there.

Yf thys cyte now were geuē to an heyre, & he neuer wēte thorow the parelous waye, how wolde he receaue his enheritaūce? And I sayde: It is so Lorde, Then sayd he: Euē so is Israel also a porcion. And why? for their sakes haue I made the worlde: & whē Adam transgressed my statutes, then was the thyng iudged ꝑ was done. Then were the entraunces of the worlde made narow, ful of sorow & trauayle. They are but few & euell, full of parels and laboure. For the entraunces of the fore worlde were wyde and sure, and brought immortall frute.

If they now which are entred into thys worlde, maye not cōprehende these strayte and vayne thinges, moch lesse maye they cōprehende and vnderstande the secrete thynges: Why disquietest thou thy self thē, seing thou art but a corruptible man? And what woldest thou knowe, where as thou art but mortall? And why hast thou not receaued into thyne herte the thyng that is for to come, but that is present?

Then sayd I: O Lord Lord, * thou hast ordeyned i thy lawe, ꝑ the ryghteous shuld inheret these thynges, but that ꝑ vnfaythfull and vngodly shulde perysshe. Neuertheles, the righteous shall suffre strayte thinges, and hope for wyde: for they that haue lyued vngodly and suffred strayte thynges shall not se the wyde.

And he sayde vnto me: There is no iudge aboue God, and none that hath vnderstandynge aboue the Hyest. For there be many that perysh, because they despyse the lawe of God ꝑ is sett before them. For God hath geuen strayte commaundement to soch as come, that they knowe what they do, and how they shuld lyue: and yf they kepte this they shuld not be punyshed.

Neuertheles, they were not obedient vnto hym, but spake agaynst hym: ymagyned vayne thynges, and purposed to synne, and sayd moreouer, that there was no God, and that God regarded it not. Hys wayes haue they not knowne, his lawe haue they despysed, and denyed hys promyses: in hys statutes & ordynaūces haue they not bene faythfull and stedfast, and haue not perfourmed hys workes.

And therfore Eldras: vnto the full, plenty: and to the emptye, emptynesse. Beholde the tyme shall come, that these tokēs which I haue tolde the, shall come to passe, ād the bryde shal appeare, and the earth that now palleth awaye, shalbe shewed: and whosoeuer is delyuered frō the forsayde euels, shall se my wonders. For my sonne Jesus shalbe openly declared, with those that be with hi: & they that remayne, shall be mery in foure hundred yeares.

After these same yeares shall my sonne Christ dye, & all men that haue lyfe, and ꝑ worlde shalbe turned into the olde sylēce seuen dayes, lyke as in the fore iudgementes, so ꝑ no man shall remayne. And after seuen dayes, the worlde that yet a wakednot, shal be rapsed vp, and shall dye corrupte. And ꝑ earth shall restore those ꝑ haue slepte in her, and so shall the dust those that dwell in silence, and the secrete place shal delyuer those ꝑ be committed vnto the. And the most hyest shall be openly declared vpon ꝑ seate of iudgement, and all myserye shall vanysh awaye, ꝑ longe sufferyng shalbe gathered together. But the iudgement shall continue, the treuth shall remayne, and fayth shal ware strong, the worcke shall folowe, ꝑ the rewarde shal be shewed: the ryghteousnes shall watch, ꝑ the vnrygh teousnesse shall beare no rule.

* Deu. xxii. 15

Then sayde I: * Abraham prayed fyrst for the Sodomytes, ꝑ Moses for ꝑ fathers that sinned in the wylderne, And he that came after hym for Israel, in ꝑ tyme of Iehas and Samuel: and * Dauid for the destruccyon, and Salomon for them that came into the Sanctuary, * and helyas for those ꝑ receaued rayne, ꝑ for ꝑ deed, that he myght lyue, and Ezechias for the people in the tyme of Sennacherib: and diuerse other lyke maner, which haue prayed for many.

Euen so now, seyng the corrupte is growne vp, ꝑ wyckednes increased, and the ryghteous haue prayed for the vngodly, wherfore shall it not be so now also?

He answered me, and sayd: Thys present worlde is not the ende, there remaineth moch honoure in it, therfore haue they prayed for the weake. But the daye of dome shalbe the ende of thys tyme, and the begynning of the immortalite for to come, wherin all corrupcyon vanysshed, all voluptuousnes is louised all mysbeleue taken awaye, ryghteousnes growne, and the verye treuthe sprouge vp. Then shall no man be able to saue hym that is destroyed, nor to oppresse hym ꝑ hath gotten ꝑ victory. I answered then, and sayd: This is my fyrst and last saying: ꝑ it had bene better, not to haue geuen the earthe vnto Adā: or els when it was geuen hym, to kepe hym ꝑ he shuld not synne. For what profit is it for men now in thys present tyme to lyue in heynes, ꝑ after death to loke for punysshment. O thou Adam, what hast thou done? For though it was thou that synned, ꝑ art not fallen alone, but we all that come of ꝑ. For what profit is it vnto vs, yf there be promysed vs an immortall tyme, where as we medle with deadly worckes? and that there is promised vs an euerlastyng hope, where as our selues are euel ꝑ vayne, and ꝑ there are layed vp for vs dwellynges of health ꝑ fredome, where as we haue lyued euell, ꝑ ꝑ the worshyppe of the hyest is kepte to defende them, which haue led a pacyent lyfe, where as we haue walked in the most wycked wayes of all? And that there shalbe shewed a paradyse, whose frute endureth for euer, wherin is fredome and medycyne, where as we shall not go in: for we haue walcked in vnpleasaunt places: And that the faces of them, which haue abstayned, shall shyne aboue the starres, where as oure faces shalbe black and darcke? For whyle we lyued ꝑ dyd vnrygh teously, we consydered not that we shuld suffre therfore after deeth?

Then answered he me, and sayde: Thys is the consyderacion and thought of the battayle, which man hath vpon earth: that yf he be ouercome, he shall suffre as thou hast sayde. But yf he gett the victory, he shall receaue the thynge that I saye. For thys is ꝑ lyfe, wher of Moses spake vnto the people, whyle he lyued, sayinge: * Chose the lyfe, that ꝑ mayest lyue. Neuertheles, they beleued hym not, nether ꝑ prophetes after hym. No ner me which haue spoken vnto them ꝑ heynes shulde not reach vnto them for their destruccyon, lyke as ioye is for to come ouer those that haue suffred them selues to be enfourmed in saluacyon.

I answered then, and sayde: I knowe Lorde, that the hyest is mercyfull, in that he hath mercy vpon them, whych are not yet in the worlde, and vpon those also that walche in his lawe: and that * he is pacient and lōge suffrynge towarde those that haue synned in their worckes, and that he is liberall to geue where as it requyreth: and that he is of great mercy, for he multyplied hys loulge kyndnesse towarde those that are present and that are past, and to them whych are for to come. For yf he multiplye not hys mercyes, the worlde shall not be made lyuynge, wyth those that dwell therin. He geueth also, for yf he gaue not of hys goodnes, that they whych haue done euell, myght be eased from their wyckednes, the ten thousande parte of men shulde not be made lyuynge. And yf the iudge forgaue not those that he healed wt hys worde, ꝑ yf he wold destroye ꝑ multytude that styrueth, there shulde be very fewe left in an innumerable multytude.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Esdras playeth God vnder the to loke vpon hys abuse mercye, then on the synnes of the people.

AND he answered me, sayinge. The most hyest made thys worlde for many, but the worlde to come for fewe. I will tell the a symylitude, Esdras: As when thou askest the earth, it shall saye vnto ꝑ, that it geueth moch moulde, wherof earthen vessels are made, but litle of it that golde commeth of. Euē so is it with the worcke of thys world. * There be many created, but fewe shall be preserued. Then answered I and sayde: The swalowe vp the wyett (thou soule) and deuoure the vnderstan-

* Gen. xviii. d. 2 Esdr. xxxii.
* Exo. xxxii.
* iii. Reg. xviii. 2 ii. Mach. v. c
* iii. Reg. xviii. a Psalm. v. f.
* Deu. xxx.
* Exod. xxxiii. b

vnderstandyng, for thou art agreed to herken and to geue eare, and wylynge to prophecie: for thou hast no leger space geuen ꝯ, but onely to lyue. O Lord, wilt thou not geue thy seruaũt leaue, that we maye praye before the, and that thou mayest geue seede vnto oure herte, & buylde oure vnderstãdyng, that there maye come frute of it: & that euery one which is corrupte, and beareth ꝯ state and place of a man, maye lyue?

For thou art alone, & we all are one workemanshype of thy hãdes, lyke as thou hast sayd, and lyke as the body is fashioned now in the mothers wõbe, & thou geuest the mẽbres, and thy creature is preserued in fyred water: & it, moueth both thy worke suffre thy creature, which is fashioned in her: but the thing that preserued, and it that is preserued, shal both be kepte together: and whẽ tyme is, the wombe delyuereth the thynge that is kepte and growne in her.

For thou hast commaunded ꝯ byestes to geue myelk vnto the frute, that the thynge which is created and fashioned, maye be norished for a tyme: and then thou dyspossest & ordrest it with thy mercy, bryngest it vp w thy rygheousnes, nurturest it in thy law, & correctest it with thy vnderstanding, mortifiest it as thy creature, & makest it lyuige as thy worke. Seynge then that thou destroyedst hi, which with so great labours is created and fashyoned thorowe thy commaundemẽt, thou couldest lyghtly ordeyne, also, that the thinge which is made, myght be preserued.

B And this I speake now of all men in generall: as ꝯ knowest: but of thy people: for whose sake I am sory: and of thy inheritaũce: for whose cause I mourne: and of Israel, for whom I am wofull: and for Jacob, for whose sake I am greued, therfore begynne I to praye before the, for my selfe & for thẽ, for I se the fall of vs, euen of vs, that dwell vpon earth. But I haue herde the swyftnes of the iudge, which is to come: therfore heare my voyce, and vnderstande my wordes, and I shall speake before the.

This is the begynninge of the wordes of Esdras, before he was receaued: O Lorde, thou that dwellest in euerlastingnesse, whose eyes are lyfte vp i the ayre, whose stoole is exceading hye, whose glory & maiesty maye not be comprehended, before whom the hostes of heauen stande with tremblyng, whose reuinge is turned in wynde & fyre, whose worde is true, whose talckynge is stedfast, whose commaundement is stronge, whose ordinaunce is fearfull, whose loke dryeth vp the depthes, whose wrath maketh the mountaynes to melt awaye, and whose trueth beareth wytnes: O heare the prayer of thy seruaunt, and marck with thyne eares the petition of thy creature.

For whyle I lyue, I wyll speake, and so longe as I haue vnderstandyng, I wyll answere. O loke not vpon the synnes of thy people, whych serue in the trueth. Haue no respecte vnto the wicked studies of the heathen, but to the desire of those that kepe thy testymonyes wyth sorowes. Thyncke not vpõ those that haue walked faynedly before the, but vpon them, which with will haue knowne thy feare.

Let it not be thy wyll to destroye them, which haue had beastly maners, but to loke vpõ thẽ that haue clearly taught thy lawe. Take thou no indignaciõ at thẽ, which are worse then beastes: but loue them, that all waye put theyr trust in thy rygheousnes & glory: for we & oure fathers haue all the same sycknes and dysease, but because of oure synnes thou shalt be called mercyfull.

For yf thou hast mercy vpon vs, ꝯ shalt be called mercyfull, where as we haue no workes of rygheousnes: for ꝯ rygheous whych haue layed vp many good workes together, shal out of theyr bedes receaue reward. For what is mã, that thou shuldest take displeasure at him? Or what is the corruptible mortall generaciõ, that thou shuldest be so rough towarde hym?

C

* For of a truthe there is no man amõge them that be borne, but he hath dealt wyckedly: and amõge the faythfull there is none, which hath not done amysse. For in thys (O Lord) thy rygheousnes and thy goodnes shalbe prayed and declared, yf thou be mercyfull vnto them, which are not rych in good workes. *cf. Par. b/. i. John. i. b.

Then answered he me and sayde: Some thynges hast thou spokẽ a ryght, and accordyng vnto thy wordes it shall be. For I wil not verely consydre the workes of them, which haue synned before death, before the iudgement, before destruccion, but * I wyll reioyse ouer the worke and thought of the rygheous. I will remẽbre also the pylgremage, the holy mahynge and the reward. Lyke as I haue spoken now, so shal it come to passe. For as the husbande man soweth moche sede vpon the groũde, and planteth many trees, and yet alwaye the thinge that is sowne or planted is not all kepte sake, neither doth it all take rote: Euẽ so is it of thẽ that are sowne in the worlde, they shall not all be preserued. *Gene. iiii. a

I answered then and sayde: If I haue founde grace, thẽ let me speake. Like as the husbande mans sede perisheth, yf it receaue not rayne in due season, or yf there come to much rayne vpõ it: Euen so perysheth man also, which is created with thy handes, and is lyke vnto thyne awne ymage and to thy selfe, for whose sake thou hast made all thin-

ges, and lykened hym vnto the husbande mans sede. Be not wroth at vs, O Lorde, but spare thy people, and haue mercy vpon thyne awne inheritaunce: O be mercyfull vnto thy creature.

D Then answered he me & sayde. Thynges present are for the present, and thinges to come for soch as be to come. For thou lackest yet moch, seynge þ mayest loue my creature aboue me: I haue oft tymes drawne nye vnto the, but neuer to the vnrighteous. In this also thou art marueilous before þ hyest in that thou hast humbled thy selfe, as it becommeth the, and hast not regarded thyne awne selfe, that thou art had in soch honoure amõge þ righteous. Therfore shal great wretchednes and misery come vpon thẽ that in the latter tyme shall dwell in the worlde because they haue walked in greate pryde.

But vnderstand thou for thy selfe, and seke out glory for soch as be lyke the: for vnto you is paradyse opened, the tre of lyfe is planted, the tyme to come is prepared, plenteousnes made ready, a cyte is buylded for you, & a rest is prepared, yee perfecte goodnes and wysdome. The rote of euell is marched from you, & weaknes, and moch is hyd frõ you, & into hell flyeth corrupcion in forgetfulnes. Sorowes are vanyshed awaye, and in the ende is shewed the treasure of immortalitie. And therfore aske thou nomore questions concernynge the multitude of thẽ that perishe. For they haue taken libertye: dessysed the hyest, thought scorne of his lawe, and forsaken his wayes.

Moreouer, they haue troden downe hys righteous, and *sayde in theyr herte, that there is no God, yee and that wyttingly. for they dye. For lyke as the thynge that I haue spoken of, is made ready for you: Euen so is thyrst & payne prepared for them. For it was not hys wyll that man shulde come to naught, but they which be created haue defyled the name of hym that made them, and are vnthãckfull vnto hym, which prepared lyfe for them. And therfore is my iudgemẽt now at hand. These thinges haue I not shewed vnto all men, but vnto fewe, namely vnto the, and to soch as be lyke the.

*psal.xiiii.a

Then answered I and sayd: Beholde O Lorde, now hast thou shewed me the multitude of the tokens, which thou wylt begyn to do at the last: but at what tyme & when, thou hast not shewed me.

The.ix.Chapter.

The storye hath diuerse shewed vnto hym.

A Nd answered me then and sayd: Measure thou þ tyme diligẽtly in it selfe, when thou seyst that one parte of the tokens come to passe, which I haue tolde þ before: so shalt thou vnderstande, that it is the very same tyme, wherin the hyest will begynne to vyset the worlde, which he made. And whẽ there shalbe sene earth quake and vprore of the people of the worlde, thẽ shalt thou well vnderstande, that the most hyest spake of those thynges, from the dayes that were before the, euen from the begynnynge.

For lyke as all that is made in the worlde hath a begynnyng and ende, and the ende is manyfest: Euen so the tymes also of þ hyest haue playne begynnynges in wonders and sygnes, and the ende in worckyng and in tokens. And euery one that shalbe saued, and shall be able to escape by hys workes and by faith, wherin ye haue beleued, shall be preserued from the sayde perels, and shal se my sauyoure in my lande, and within my borders, for I haue halowed me frõ the worlde. Thẽ shal they be in carefulnesse, which now haue abused my wayes: and they þ haue cast thẽ oute despitefully, shall dwell in paynes.

For soch as in theyr lyfe haue receaued benefytes, and haue not knowne me, & they that haue abhorred my lawe, whyle they had yet fredome, and whẽ they had yet open leysure of amendement and couersyon, and vnderstode not, but dessysed it: þ same must knowe it after death in paine. And therfore be thou nomore carefull, how the vngodly shalbe punished, & how the righteous shalbe saued, and whose the worlde is, & for whõ the worlde, and when it is. Then answered I and sayde: * I haue talked before & now I speake, and will speake also hereafter, that there be many moo of them whych perysh, thẽ shalbe saued, lyke as the floude is greater then the droppes.

W * iiii.es. viii.b

And he answered me, sayinge: lyke as the felde is, so is also the sede: as the floures be, so are the coulours also: soch as the worckman is, soch is also the worcke: and as the husband mã is hym selfe, so is hys husbandrye also, for it was the tyme of the worlde. And when I prepared for them that are now, or euer the worlde was made, where in they shulde dwell, then was there no man that withstode me. Now when euery one was, and the maker also in the worlde which is now prepared, and the moneth that ceaseth not, and the lawe whych is vnsearcheable, theyr maners were corrupte. So I consydred the worlde, & beholde, there was parell, because of the thoughtes that were come in to it. And I saw, and spared them greatly, and haue kepte me a vyneberry of the grapes, and a plante from amonge many generacyons. Let the multitude perysh then, whych are growne vp in vayne, and lett my grape and vyneberry be kepte: euen my plante: for with greate laboure haue I made it vp.

Neuertheles

Neuertheles, yf thou wylt take vpon the yet seuen dayes mo (but thou shalt not fast in them) goo thy waye then into the felde of floures, where no house is buylded, and eate onely of the floures of ỹ felde, taste not flesh, dryncke no wyne, but eate floures onely. Praye vnto the Hyest contynually, so wyll I come, and talke with the.

C So I went my waye and came into the felde which is called Ardath (lyke as he cõmaunded me) and there I sat amonge the floures, & dyd eate of the herbes of the felde, and the meate of ỹ same satisfied me. After seuen dayes I sat vpon the grasse, and my herte was vexed within me lyke as afore: & I opened my mouth, and beganne to talke before the Hyest, and sayde: O Lorde, thou that shewest thy selfe vnto vs, * thou hast declared and opened thy selfe vnto oure fathers in the wylderne, in a place where no man dwelleth, in a baren place, when they came out of Egypt, and thou spakest, sayinge: heare me O Israel, and marke my wordes thou sede of Jacob: Beholde, I sowe my lawe in you, and it shall bringe frute in you & ye shalbe honoured in it for euer. For oure fathers which receaued ỹ lawe, kept it not and obserued not thy ordinaunces and statutes, and the frute of thy lawe was not declared: for it myght not, for why? it was thyne. * For they that receaued it, perished, because they kepte not the thynge that was sowne in them.

It is a custome when the grounde receaueth sede, or the see a ship, or a vessell meate and dryncke, that whē it perisheth or is broken wherin a thing is sowen, or wherin eny D thynge is put: the thynges also perishe and are broken, which are sowen or put therin. But vnto vs it hath not happened so: for we that haue receaued the lawe, perish in synne & oure herte wherin also receaued the lawe: notwithstãdyng * the lawe perysheth not, but remayneth in his laboure.

And when I consydered these thinges in my herte after thys maner, I loked aboute me with myne eyes, and vpon the right syde * I sawe a woman, which mourned sore, made greate lamẽtacyon, and wepte with loude voyce: her clothes were rent in peces, and she had ashes vpon her heade.

Then let I my thoughtes go, that I was in, and turned me vnto her, and sayd. wherfore wepest thou? why art thou so sory and discomforted? And she sayde vnto me. Syr, lett me be wayle my self and take yet more sorow: for I am sore vexed in my mynde, & brought very lowe. And I sayde vnto her: what aylethe ỹ? Or who hath done eny thing to ỹ? tell me. She sayde: I haue bene vnfrutefull and baren, and haue had an husband thyrtie yeares. And these. xxx. yeares I do nothynge els daye and nyght & all houres, but make my prayer to ỹ Hyest. After thyrtie yeares God herde me thy handmayden, loked vpon my misery, consydred my trouble, and gaue me a sonne, and I was glad of him, so was my husbãd also & all my neyghbours, & we gaue greate honoure vnto the Myghtie. And I norysshed hym with great trauayle. So when he grewe vp, and came to ỹ tyme, that he shuld haue a wyfe, I made a feast.

C The. x. Chapter.

C Esdras and the woman that appeareth vnto hym commen together.

AND it happened that when my sonne wente into hys chamber he fell downe, and dyed: then ouerthrewe all ỹ lyghtes, and all my neyghbours rose vp to comforte me. Then toke I my rest vnto the seconde daye at nyght: and whē they had all rested, that they might comforte me, I rested and also rose vp by nyght, and fled, & am come hyther in to thys felde, as thou seyst: and am purposed not to come in the cytye, but to remayne here, and nether to eate ner dryncke, but contynually to mourne and to fast, vntyll I dye.

Then let I my meditacions & thoughtes fall, that I was in, & spake to her in displeasure: Thou foolysh woman, seyst thou not oure heuynes and mournyng, & what happeneth vnto vs? how Syon oure mother is all wofull and sory, and how she is cleane brought downe and in mysery? seyng we be all now in heuynes, & make oure mone (for we be all sorowfull.) As for ỹ heuynes that thou takest, it is but for one sonne. Demaũde the earth, & she shall tell the, that it is she which ought (by reason) to mourne, for the fall of so many that growe vpon her. For from the begynnynge all mẽ are borne of hir, and other shall come: & beholde, they walke all most all in to destruccion, and many of them shalbe roted out.

Who shulde then (by reason) make more mournynge, then she, that hath lost so great a multitude? & not thou, which art sory, but for one. But yf thou woldest saye vnto me: My mournynge is not lyke the mourninge of the earth, for I haue lost the frute of my body, which I bare wt heuynes: but ỹ earth is accordinge to the maner of the earth, and the present multitude goeth againe into her as it is come to passe. Then saye I vnto the: lyke as thou hast borne with trauayle & sorowe, euē so ỹ earth also frō the begynnyng grueth her frute vnto man, for hym ỹ made her. And therfore withholde thy sorowe and heuynes by thy selfe * & take what happeneth vnto the, beare it strongly. For yf thou iudgest the marcke and ende of God to be ryghteous * Habi. xii.

be ryghteous and good, & tercaueth his rod-rell in tyme, & shalt be cõmended therin. Go thy waye then into the cytie to thy husbãde.
25 And the sayde vnto me: that will I not do, I will not go in to the cytye, but heare
will I dye. So I commened more with hyr and sayde: Do not so, but be counceled, and folowe me: for how many falles hath Syõ?
Be of good comforte because of the sorowe of Jerusalem. For thou seyst that our Sanctuary is layed waste, oure aulter broken, oure temple destroyed, oure playenge of instrumentes and syngynge layed downe, the thãkesgeuynge put to sylence, our myrth is vanyshed awaye, the lyght of oure candel-
stick is quẽched, the arcke of the couenaunt is taken from vs, all oure holy thynges are defyled, and the name that is called vpon ouer vs, is dishonoured: oure childre are put to shame, oure prestes are brent, oure Levites are caried awaye into captiuite, our vir-gins are defyled, and oure wyues rauished,
oure ryghteous mẽ spoyled, and oure chyldren destroyed, oure yonge men are brought in bondage, and oure stronge worthyes are become weake: and Syõ (which seale is the greatest of all) is lowsed vp from her worshyp: for she is delyuered into the handes of them that hate vs.

And therfore shake of thy great heuynes,
and put awaye the multitude of sorowes, þ
the myghtye maye be mercyfull vnto the, &
that the hyest maye geue the rest from thy labour and trauaile. And it happened, that when I was talkyng with her, her face dyd
shyne and glyster, so that I was afrayed of her, and muled what it myght be. And immedyatly she cast oute a greate voyce, very fearfull, so that the earth shoke at the noyse
of the woman: and I loked, and beholde, the woma appeared vnto me nomore: but there was a citie builded, & a place was shewed
from the grounde and foundacyon.

C Then was I afrayed, and cryed with loude voyce, and sayde: where is Vriel the ℭ.iiii.ef.iiii.a angell, * which came to me at the fyrst? for he hath caused me to come in many contem-placyons and hye thoughtes, and myne ende
is turned to corrupcio, and my prayer to rebuke. And as I was speakynge these wor-des, he came vnto me, and loked vpon me, &
I laye as one that had bene dead, and myne
vnderstanding was altered, and he toke me
by the ryght hande, and cõforted me, and set me vpon my fete, and sayde vnto me: what ayleth the? and why is thine vnderstãding
vexed? and the vnderstanding of thy herte, & wherfore art thou sory? And I sayd: Because thou hast forsake me: and I haue done ℭ.iiii.xvi.ii.a * accordinge vnto thy wordes, I wente in to the felde, and there haue I sene thynges
that I am not able to expresse. He sayde vnto me: Stande vp and be manly, and I shal
geue the exhortacion.

Then sayd I: speake vnto me my Lord forsake me not, lest I dye in vayne: for I ha ue sene that I knewe not, and herde that I do not knowe. Or shal my vnderstandinge be discaued, & my mynde? But now I be-seche the, that thou wylt shewe thy seruaũt
of this wõder. He answered me then & sayd:
heare me, and I shall enfourme the, and tell
the wherfore thou art afrayed, for the hyest hath opened many secrete thinges vnto the he hath sene that thy waye is ryght, and that thou takest sorowe cõtinually for thy people, and makest greate lamentacyon for Syon: and therfore vnderstande the vision which thou sawest a lytle whyle agoo after this maner: Thou sawest a woman mourninge, and thou hast comforted her: Neuer-theles now seyst thou the lyknes of þ womã nomore, but thou thoughtest there was a citie buylded: and like as she tolde þ of the fall of her sonne, so is this the answere: The woman whom thou sawest, is Syon, and where as she tolde the, that she hath bene thyrtye yeares vnfrutefull and barr, those are the .xxx. yeares, wherin there was no offrynge made in her.

But after .xxx. yeares Salomõ buylded D
her, & offred, and then bare the barr a sonne.
And where as she tolde þ: that she norysshed
hym with labour, that was the dwellynge of Jerusalem. But where as she tolde the þ her sonne dyed whã she came into her chamber, that is the fall of Jerusalem. And thou sawest her lykenesse, how she mourned for her sonne: and what els happened vnto her,
I haue shewed þ. And now God seyth, that thou art sory in thy mynde, and suffrest frõ
thy herte for her, & so hath he shewed the her clearnesse, and the fayrnes of her beweye.

And therfore I bad the remayne in þ felde where no house is builded. For I knewe that the hyest wolde shew this vnto the, therfore I commaunded the to goo into the felde, where no foundacion ner buyldinge is. For in the place where the hyest wyll shewe hys cietye, there shall be no mans buylding. And therfore feare not, and let not thyne herte be afrayed, but go thy waye in, and se the glorious and fayre buyldinge, and how greate
it is, and how greate thou thynckest it after the measure of thine eyes, and thẽ shalt thou beare as moch as thine eares maye compre-hende. For þ art blessed above many other,
and art called with the hyest, as the fewe.
But tomorowe at nyght thou shalt remayne
here, and so shall the hyest shewe the vi-
syons of hye thynges, which he wyll do vnto
the, that dwell vpõ earth in the last dayes.
So I slepte the same nyght lyke as he com-
maunded me.

The

¶ The.xi.Chapter..

¶ In this Chapter and in the .xii. next enduynge, he entreateth of .xvi. vysyons and of the interpre-tacyons therof.

3 Then sawe I a dreame: and beholde, there came vp from the see an Aegle, which had .xii. wynges and thre heades: And I sawe, and beholde, he spred hys wynges ouer all the earth, and all the wyndes of the ayre blew in the, and so they were put together agayne. And I beheldē, that out of hys fethers there grew other lytle cōtrary fethers: the heades rested, the head in the myddest was greater then the other, yet rested it with the residue.

Moreouer I sawe, that the Aegle stew wt hys wynges, and raygned vpon earth, and ouer all them that dwell vpō the earth: and I sawe that all thinges vnder heauen were subiecte vnto hym, & no man spake against hym, no not one creature vpō earth. I sawe also that the Aegle stode vp vpon hys clawes, & gaue a soude with his fethers, and a voyce saynge after this maner: watch not all together, slepe euery man in hys owne place, and watch for a tyme, but let the heades be preserued at the last. Neuertheles I sawe, that the voyce wente not oute of hys heades, but from the myddest of hys body. And I nombred hys cōtrary fethers, and beholde, there were eyght of them. And I loked, and beholde vpon the ryght syde there arose one fether, & raygned ouer all þ earth. And it happened, that when it raygned the ende of it came, and the place therof appeared nomore. So the nexte folowynge stode vp, and raygned, and had greate tyme: and it happened, that when it raygned, the ende of it came also lyke as the fyrst, so that it appeared nomore.

Then came there a voyce vnto it, & sayd Heare thou that hast kepte in þ earth so longe, thys I saye vnto the, before thou begynnest to appeare nomore: There shall none after the atteyne vnto thy tyme. Then arose the thyrd, and raygned as the other afore, & appeared nomore also. So went it with all the residue one after another, so that euery one raygned, and then appeared nomore.

Then I loked, and beholde, in processe of tyme þ fethers that folowed were set vp vpon the ryght syde, that they myght rule also: & some of thē ruled, but within a whyle they appeared nomore: for some of thē were set vp, but ruled not. After this I loked, and beholde the .xii. fethers appeared nomore, and the two wynges: & there was nomore vpon þ Aegles body, but two heades that rested, and fyre fethers. Thē sawe I also, that the fyre fethers were parted in two, and remained vnder the head, that was vpō the ryght syde, for the foure continued in theyr place.

So I loked, & behold, they that were vnder the wynges, thought to set vp thē selues, & to haue the rule. Then was there one set vp but shortly it appeared nomore, & the seconde was sooner awaye then the fyrst. And I beholde & lo, þ two thought also by thē selues to raygne: & when they so thought, beholde, there waked one of the heades that were at rest, namely, it that was in the myddest, for that was the greater of þ two heades. And thē I sawe, that the two heades were fylled with him, and þ head was turned wyth thē that were by hym, and dyd eate vp the two vnder wynges, that wolde haue raygned.

But this head put þ whole earth in feare, & bare rule in it, ouer all those þ dwelt vpon earth wt moch laboure, and he had þ gouernaūce of the worlde, ouer all the foules that haue bene. After this I loked, & beholde, the head that was in þ myddest sodenly appeare nomore, lyke as þ wynges: then came the two heades, which ruled vpon earth, & ouer those þ dwelt therin. And I beheldē, & lo, the head vpon the ryght syde, deuoured it that was vpon þ left syde. And I herde a voyce, which sayde vnto me: loke before þ, and consyder the thyng that thou seyst. Thē I sawe and beholde, as it were a lyō þ roareth, rennynge hastely out of the wod, & he sent out a mās voyce vnto the Aegle, & sayd: Heare thou, I will talke with the, & the hyest shal saye vnto þ: Is it not thou þ hast þ victory of the foure beastes, whom I made to raygne vpon earth & in my worlde, and þ the ende of theyr tymes myght come thorow thē?

And the fourth came, and ouerwanne all the beastes that were past, and had power ouer the worlde with great fearfulnes, and ouer the whole cōpasse of the earth with the most wicked labour, & so longe time dwelt he vpon the earth with disceate, & the earth hast thou iudged not with trueth. For thou hast troubled the meke, thou hast hurte the peaceable & quyete, thou hast loued lyers, & destroyed þ dwellinges of thē that brought forth frute, and hast cast downe the walles of soch as dyd the no harme. Therfore is thy wrongeous dealyng and blasphemye come vp vnto the hyest, and thy pryde vnto the myghty. The hyest also hath loked vpon þ proude tymes, and beholde, they are ended, and theyr abhominaciōs are fulfylled. And therfore appeare nomore thou Aegle, & thy horrible wynges, and thy wycked fethers, & thy vngracious heades, and thy sinfull clawes, and all thy payne body: that the earth maye be refreshed, and come agayne to her selfe, whā she is delyuered from thy violence, and that she maye hope for the iudgemēt and mercy of hym that made her.

¶ The.xii.Chapter.

And it

AND it happened when the Lȳ
ſpake theſe wordes vnto ꝓ Aegle, I ſawe, & beholde, the head
that afore had the vpperhand,
appeared nomore: nether dyd ꝓ
foure wynges appeare any more, that came to him, and were ſet vp to raygne: and there kyngdome was ſmall and full of vproure.
And I ſaw, and beholde, they appeared no-more, and the whole body of the Aegle was hyet, and the earth was in greate feare. Thē awaked I out of the traūce of my mynde, &
from greate feare, & ſayde vnto my ſpyrite:
Lo, this haſt thou geuen me in that thou ſe-
archeſt out ꝓ wayes of the hyeſt: lo, yet am I weery in my mynde, & very weake in my ſpyrite, and lytle ſtrēgth is there in me, for ꝓ greate feare ꝓ I receaued this nyght. Ther fore wyll I now beſeche the Hyeſt, that he wyll cōforte me vnto the ende: and I ſayde, Lorde Lorde, yf I haue founde grace before thy ſyght, and yf I am iuſtified with the before many other, and yf my prayer be come vp before thy face, comforte me thē, and ſhe-
we me thy ſeruaunt the interpretacion and playne differēce of thys horrible ſyght, that thou mayeſt perfectly cōforte my ſoule: for thou haſt iudged me worthy, to ſhewe me the laſt of tymes.

And he ſayde vnto me: thys is the interpretacyon of thys ſyght. The Aegle whom thou ſaweſt come vp frō the ſee, is the kyng dome* which was ſene in the viſyon of thy brother Daniel, but it was not expounded vnto hym, for now I declare it vnto ꝓ. Be-holde, ꝓ dayes come, that there ſhall ryſe vp
a kyngdome vpon earth, and it ſhalbe feared aboue all the kyngdomes that were before it. In ꝓ ſame kyngdome ſhal. xii. Kynges raygne, one after another. For the ſecōde ſhall begynne to raygne, and ſhall haue
more tyme then the other twelue: and thys
do the twelue wynges ſignifie, which thou ſaweſt. As for ꝓ voyce that ſpake, and that thou ſaweſt go out from the heades, but not from the body, it betokeneth, that after the tyme of ꝓ kyngdome there ſhal aryſe great ſtryuynges, and it ſhall ſtande in parell of fallyng: neuertheles it ſhall not yet fall, but ſhalbe ſet into his begynnyng. And ꝓ eyght vnder wynges whych thou ſaweſt hāge vn-
to the wynges of hym, be token, that in him
there ſhall aryſe eyght kynges, whoſe tyme
ſhalbe but ſmall, and theyr yeares ſwyft, &
two of thē ſhall heare. But when the myd-deſt tyme commeth, there ſhalbe foure kepte
in the tyme, whē his tyme begynneth to come ꝓ it maye be ended, but two ſhalbe kepte
vnto the ende.

And where as thou ſaweſt thre heades re-
ſtynge, this is the interpretacyō: In his laſt
ſhall the Hyeſt vayſe vp thre kyngdomes, &
call many agayne into thē, & they ſhall haue
the dominion of the earth, and of thoſe that dwell therin, wt moch labour aboue all thoſe that were before thē. Therfore are they called ꝓ heades of the Aegle: for it is they that ſhall brynge forth hys wyckednes agayne,
and that ſhal perfourme and fynyſh his laſt.
And where as ꝓ ſaweſt, that ꝓ greate head appeared nomore, it ſignifieth, that one of them ſhall dye vpon his bed, and yet wt payne, for the two that remayne, ſhalbe ſlayne with the ſwerde. For the ſwerde of the one ſhall deuoure the other, but at ꝓ laſt ſhall he fall thorow the ſwerde hym ſelfe.

And where as ꝓ ſaweſt two vnder wyn-
ges vpon the head that is on the ryght ſyde,
it ſignifieth that it is they, whome ꝓ Hyeſt
hath kepte vnto theyr ende: thys is a ſmall kyngdome, and full of trouble. The Lyon
whō thou ſaweſt ryſynge vp out of ꝓ wodd,
and roarynge, and ſpeakynge vnto the Aegle, & rebukynge him for hys vnrygh teouſneſſe, is the wynde, which ꝓ Hyeſt hath kepte for them, & for theyr wyckednelſe vnto
the ende: he ſhall reproue thē, and rēte them aſunder before them. For he ſhall ſet thē lyuynge before the iudgement, and ſhall rebu- D
ke them: for the reſidue of my people ſhall be deliuer with trouble thoſe that be preſerued
ouer myne endes: and he ſhall make thē ioy-
full vntyll the commyng of the daye of iud-gement, wherof I haue ſpoken vnto the frō
the begynnynge. This is the dreame ꝓ thou ſaweſt, & thys is the interpretacyon. Thou onely haſt bene mete to knowe the ſecrete of the Hyeſt.

Therfore wryte all theſe thynges ꝓ thou haſt ſene in a boke, and hyde thē, and teach thē the wyſe i the people, whoſe herte thou knoweſt maye comprehende and kepe theſe ſecretes. But wayte ꝓ here thy ſelfe yet ſeuen dayes moo, that it maye be ſhewed the,
whatſoeuer it pleaſeth the Hyeſt to declare
vnto the, and with that he went his waye.

And when all the people perceaued, that the ſeuen dayes were paſt, and I not come agayne into the cytie, they gathered thē all together from the leaſt vnto ꝓ moſt, and came vnto me, and ſayde: what haue we offended the? & what euell haue we done agaynſt
the, that thou forſaheſt vs, and ſytteſt here in thys place? For of all people thou onely art left vs, as a grape of the vyne, and as a candell in a darcke place, & as an haue & ſhip preſerued from the tēpeſt. Haue we not eis aduerſite ynough, but thou muſt forſake vs
Were it not better for vs, that we had bene brent wyth fyon? For we are not better, then they that dyed there: and they wepte wt
loude voyce. Thē anſwered I them & ſayd:
Be of good comforte O Iſraell, and be not heuy thou houſe of Iacob: for ꝓ Hyeſt hath

you in

you in remembrance, and the mightye hath not forgotte you in temptacion. As for me, I haue not forsake you, nether am I departed from you, but am come into thys place to praye, because of the mysery of Israell: & I myght seke mercy for the lowe estate of youre Sanctuary. And now go youre waye home euery mā, and after these dayes wyll I come vnto you. So the people went their waye in to the cytye, lyke as I commaūded them: but I remained styll in the felde seuen dayes, as the Angell bad me, and dyd eate onely of the floures of the felde, and had my meate of the herbes in those dayes.

¶ The. xiii. Chapter.

1 AND it happened after the seuen daies, that I dreamed a dreame by nyght. And beholde, there arose a wynde from the see, that it moued all the floudes therof. And I loked, & beholde, the mā was strong and increased wyth the cloudes of heauen. and whē he turned his countenaūce to consider, all the thinges trēbled that were sene vnder hym: and whē the voyce went out of hys mouth, all they dyent that herde hym, lyke as the earth when it feleth the fyre.

After these I sawe, & beholde, there was gathered together a multitude of mē out of nombre from the foure wyndes of the heauen, to fyghte agaynst the man, that came oute from the see. And I loked, and beholde he graued hym selfe a greate mountayne, & flew vp vpon it. But I wolde haue sene the boyder or place, wherout the hyll was grauen, and I coulde not.

I sawe after these, that all they which came to fyght agaynst him, were sore afrayed and yet durst they fight. Neuertheles, when he sawe the fearsnesse and violēce of the people, he nether lyft vp his hāde ner helde swerde, ner eny weapē: but onely (As I sawe) he sent out of hys mouth as it had bene a blast of fyre, and out of hys lyppes the wynde of the flamme: and out of his tonge he cast out sparkes and stormes, & they were all myxte together: the blast of fyre, the wynde of the flammes, and the greate storme, & fell wyth a ruffle vpon the people, which was prepared to fyght and dyent them vp euerychone: so that of the innumerable multitude there was nothynge sene, but onely dust & smoke. When I saw this, I was afrayed.

2 After warde sawe I the same man come downe from the mountayne, and callyng vnto hym another peaceable people: and there came moche people vnto hi: some were glad some were sory, some of them were bounde, so that they were caried and brought forth.

Then was I sych thorow greate feare, and I awaked, and sayde: thou hast shewed thy seruaunt all thy wonders from the beginnyng, and hast counted me worthy, that thou mightest receaue my prayer, shewe me now yet the interpretacion of this dreame. For thus I considre in my vnderstandyng: Wo vnto thē that shal be left i those dayes Ad moch more wo vnto thē that are not left behynde: for they that were not left, were in heupnes.

Now vnderstande I the thinges that are layed vp in the latter dayes which shal happē vnto them, and to those that are not left behinde. Therfore are they come into great parelles, and many necessities, lyke as these dreames declare. Yet is it easier, for he which suffreth hurte, come in these, then to passe awaye as a cloude out of the worlde, & now to se the thynges that shall happen in the last.

Then answered he me, & sayde. The interpretacion of the syght shall I shewe the, and I will open vnto the, the thinge thou hast required. For thou hast spoke of them that are left behynde, and thys is the interpretacion. He that taketh awaye the parell in that tyme, hath kept him self. They that be fallen into harme, are soch as haue workes and fayth vnto the Most myghtie. Knowe this therfore, that they which be left behinde are more blessed, thē they that be dead This is the meanynge of the vysyō. Where as thou sawest a man commynge vp from the depe of the see, the same is he whom God the Hyest hath kepte a greate season, which by his awne selfe shal delyuer his creature, and he shal order thē that are left behinde. And where as thou sawest, that oute of hys mouth there came a blast of wynde, fyre & storme, and how that he lyft vp nether swerde nor weapen, but that the ruthynge in of hym destroyed the whole multitude that came to fyght againste him: it signifieth, that the dayes come, whā God will delyuer them that are vpon earth, and in a traunce of mynde shall he come vpon them, that dwell in the earth. ¶ And one shall vndertake to fyght agaynst another, one cyte against another, one place agaynst another * one people agaynst another, and one realme against another. Whē this commeth to passe, thē shall the tokens come, that I shewed the before: and thē shal my sone be declared, whō thou sawest clime vp as a man. And when all the people heare hys voyce, euery man shall in their awne lande leaue the battayll that they haue one agaynst another, & an innumerable multytude shalbe gathered together, as they that be wyllinge to come, & to ouercome him by fyghting. But he shall stāde vpō the toppe of the mount Syon. Neuertheles Syon shall come, and shalbe shewed, beynge prepared and buylded for all men, lyke as thou sawest the hyll graue forth without any hā-

* mat. xxiiij.

des,

des. But my sonne shal rebuke the people þ are come, for their wickednes, with the tempest, and for their euell ymaginacions: and their paines wherwith they shalbe punished, are lyckened vnto the flamme: and with out any labour, shall he destroye thē, euen by the lawe, which is compared vnto the fyre.

And where as thou sawest, that he gathered another peacrable people vnto him: those are þ ten tribes which were caried awaye
* iiii. Regū. xvii.c prisoners out of their awne lande, * in the tyme of Oseas the kyng, whom Salmanasar the kynge of Assyria toke prisoner, and caryed them ouer the water, & so came they into another lande.

But they gaue them thys councell, that they shulde leaue the multitude of the heathen, and to go forth into a farther countre, where neuer mankynde dwelt: that they mygbt there kepe their statutes, which they neuer kepte in their awne lāde. And so they entred in at the narow passages of þ water
D of Euphrates, and God shewed tokens for
* Exo. xiii.c them, * and helde styll the floude tyll they Iosue. iii.b were passed ouer: for thorow þ coūtre there was a greate waye, namely of a yeare and a halfe iourney, for the same regyon is called Asareth. Thē dwelt they there vnto þ latter tyme: and whē they come forth agayne, the hyest shall holde styl the sprynges of the streame agayne, that they may go thorow, therfore sawest thou þ multitude with peace. And they that be left behynde of thy people, are those that be founde within my border. Now whē he destroyeth the multytude that is gathered together, he shal defende his people that remayne, and thē shall he shew them greate wonders.

Then sayde I: O Lord, Lorde, shewe me this, wherfore haue I sene the mā comming vp from the depe of the see? And he sayd vnto me: Like as thou cāst nether seke out nor knowe these thynges that are in the depe of the see, euen so mayest thou not se my sonne, or those that be with hym, but i the tyme of the daye. Thys is the interpretacyon of the dreame whych þ sawest, therfore thou onely art here lyghtened: for thou hast forsake thyne awne lawe, and applyed thy diligence vnto myne, and sought it. * Thy lyfe hast Psal.xxxiii.a. thou ordred in wysdome, & * hast called vn-
* Pro.viii.a. derstandyng thy mother and therfore haue I shewed the, the treasure of the hyest. After thre dayes I wyll shew the more, & talke with þ at more large, yet heuy and wonderous thynges wyll I declare vnto the.

Then wēt I forth into the felde, geuyng prayse & thankes greatly vnto God, because of hys wōders which he dyd in tyme, and because he gouerneth the same, and seche as is in tyme, and there I satt thre dayes.

¶ The.xiiii.Chapter.

¶ God appeareth vnto Esdras in the bush, and sheweth hym what he shall do.

VPō the thyrd daye I satt vnder an oke tree, then came there a voyce vnto me out of the bush, & sayde: Esdras, Esdras: And I sayde: here am I Lorde, and stode vp vpon my fete. Then spake he vnto me: * In the bush dyd I appeare vnto Moses, & talked with hym whē my people serued i Egypte, and I sent hym, and led my people out of Egypte, and brought him vpon the mount Syon, where I helde him by me a longe season, and tolde hym my wonderous workes, and shewed hym the secretes of the tymes and the ende, and commaūded hym, saying: These wordes shalt thou declare, & not hyde them. And now I saye vnto the, that thou laye vp in thine herte the dreames that thou hast sene, and þ interpretacyōs whych I haue shewed the: for þ shalt be receaued of all, thou shalt be turned and remayne with my coūcel, and with soch as be lyke the, vntyll the tymes be ended. For þ worlde hath lost hys youth, and the tymes begine to waxe olde. For the tyme is deuided into twelue partes, and ten partes of it are gone all ready, and half of þ tenth parte: yet remayneth there þ which is after the half of the tenth parte.

Therfore, prepare and ordre thy house, and reforme thy people: comforte soch of them as be i trouble: and tell now of the destrucciō: let go from the mortall thoughtes: cast awaye the burthens of man: put of the weake nature: laye vp in some places the thoughtes that are most heuy vnto the, and haste the to flye from these tymes: for soch euel and wyckednesse as thou hast now sene happē, shall they do yet moch worse. * For
* matt. i.Ioha. the weaker that the worlde ād the tyme is, the more shall synne and wickednesse increase in them that dwell vpon earth. For the trueth is fled farre awaye, & lesynge is hard at hande. For now hasteth the vision to come that thou hast sene.

Then answered I before the, and sayde: Beholde Lord, I wyll go as thou hast commaūded me, and reforme the people which are present. But they that shall be borne after warde, who wyll exhorte or rebuke them? Thus the worlde is set in darkenes: & they that dwell therin, are without lyght: for thy lawe is hyndred, because no mā knoweth the thinges that are done of the, or that shalbe done. If I haue founde grace before the, sende the holy goost into me, and I shall wryte all that hath bene done in the worlde sens the begynnyng, which was written in thy lawe, that mē maye fynde the path, and that they which will lyue in þ latter dayes, maye lyue.

And he

And he answered me, sayinge: Goo thy waye, gather the people together, and saye
vnto them, that they seke ꝓ not foꝛ fourtye
dayes, but loke thou gather ꝓ many boꝛ-trees, & take with the Barra, Dabria, Selemia, Scannis and Asiel, these fyue, whych
are redy to wrytte swyftly, & come hyther,
and I shall lyght a candle of vnderstādyn-
ge in thyne hert, which shall not be put out,
tyll the thynges be performed which thou shalt begynne to wrote. And thē shalt thou declare some thynges openly vnto the per-fecte, and some thynges shalt thou shew secretly vnto the wyse. Tomoꝛow this houre shalt thou begynne to wrote.

C Then went I foꝛth (as he commaunded
me) and gathered all the people together,
and sayde: Heare these woꝛdes O Israel,
Oure fathers at ꝓ begynnynge were strangers in Egypte, from whence they were de-liuered, & receaued the lawe of lyfe * which they kepte not, which ye also haue transgressed after them. Then was thys lande &
the lande of Hyon parted amonge you by lott to possesse. But your fathers & ye your selues also haue done vnrighteousnes, and haue not kepte the wayes which the hyest commaunded you. And foꝛ so moch as he is a ryghteous iudge, he toke from you in tyme ꝓ thynge ꝓ he had geuen you. And now are ye here & youre brethren amonge you.
Therfoꝛe yf so be that ye will subdue your awne vnderstandyng, and refourme youre
herte, ye shall be kepte alyue, & after death shall ye optayne mercy. Foꝛ after death shall the iudgemēt come, when we shall lyue agayne: and then shall the names of the ryghteous be manyfest, and the woꝛkes of the vngodly shall be declared. Let no man therfoꝛe come now vnto me, ner aske eny
question at me these fourtye dayes.

D So I toke the fyue men (as he cōmaūded
me) and we went into the felde, & remayned there. The next daye a voyce called me sayinge: Esdras * open thy mouth, & drync
the ꝓ I geue the. Then opened I my mouth, & beholde, he reached me a full cuppe, which was full as it were with water, but the cou-lour of it was lyke fyre. And I toke it and dranck. And when I had dronken it, my hert had vnderstādyng, & wysdome grewe
in my brest: foꝛ my spirete was kepte in re-membraunce, and my mouth was opened and shut nomoꝛe. The hyest gaue vnderstādyn ge vnto the fyue men, that they woꝛte the hye thynges of ꝓ nyght, which they vnder-stode not. But in the nyght they dyd eate bred: as foꝛ me, I spake in the daye & helde not my tonge by nyght. In xl. dayes, they woꝛte two hundred and foure bokes.

And it happened when the fourtye dayes
were fulfylled, that ꝓ hyest spake, sayinge:
The fyrst that thou hast woꝛtten, speake
openly, ꝓ the woꝛthy & vnwoꝛthy maye rede
it. But kepe the lxx. last, that thou mayest shew it onely to soch as be wyse amōge thy people. Foꝛ in them is ꝓ spryngе of vnderstandynge, the fountayne of wysdome, and the streame of knowledge. And I dyd so.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

¶ The punyshment that cruell people shal haue, which God commaundeth Esdras to shew vnto them.

BEholde, speake thou in the eares of my people the woꝛdes of prophecie, which I will put in thy mouth, sayeth the Loꝛde: and cau se thē to be woꝛtten in a letter, foꝛ it is the trueth. Feare not the ymaginacyons agaynst the, Let not ꝓ vnfaythfulnes of them
trouble the, that speake agaynst the. Foꝛ
all the vnfaythfull shall dye in theyꝛ vn-faythfulnes. Beholde sayeth the Loꝛde, I will bryngе plages vpon the woꝛlde, the swerde, honger, death and destruccion. foꝛ wyckednes hath the vpper hand in all the earth, and theyꝛ shamefull woꝛkes are ful-
fylled.

Therfoꝛe sayeth the Loꝛde: I will holde
my tonge nomoꝛe vnto theyꝛ wyckednesse, whych they do so vngodly: nether will I
suffre them in the thynges, that they deale with all so wyckedly. Beholde * ꝓ innocent * Apoc. i. b. and. xvi. a.
blond of the troubled creyth vnto me, & the soules of the ryghteous complayne contynnually: and therfoꝛe (sayeth ꝓ Loꝛd) I will surely auenge, & receaue vnto me all the innocent blonde from amonge them.

* Beholde, my people, is led as a flock * ꝓ Esa. xiiii. f. Ieroma. viii. c. i. Cor. iiii. b.
of shepe to be slayne, I will not suffre them
now to dwell in Egypte, but will bryngе them out with a myghtye hād & a stretched out arme, & smyte it with plagues as afoꝛe
and will destroye all ꝓ lande of it. Egypte
shall mourne, and the foundacyōs of it shal
be smytten with the plage and punyshmēt,
that God shall bryngе vpon it.

They that tyll the grounde, shall mour- 25
ne: foꝛ theyꝛ sedes shall be destroyed tho-
row the blastynge and hayle, and an hoꝛri-ble starre. Wo woꝛth the woꝛlde and them that dwell therin, foꝛ the swerde and theyꝛ
destruccyon draweth nye, and one people
shall stande vp to fyght agaynst another, and swerdes in theyꝛ hādes. Foꝛ men shall be vnstedfast, & some shall do violence vn-
to other: they shall not regarde theyꝛ kyng
and pryncers, the wayes of theyꝛ doynges and handelynges in theyꝛ power. A man shall desyre to go into the cytye, and shall not be able. Foꝛ because of theyꝛ pryde the cytyes shalbe brought in feare, the houses
shal shake, and men shalbe afrayed. A man

Eee shall

shall haue no pytye vpon hys neyghbour, but one shall pronche another vnto battayll to spoyle theyr goodes because of the honger of bred, and because of the greate trouble.

D Beholde, I gather and call together all the kynges of the earth which are from the vprysing, from the South, from the East and Lybanus to turne vnto them, & restore the thynges þ they haue geuen them. Lyke as they do yet thys daye vnto my chosen, so will I do also, & recompense them in theyr bosome. Thus sayeth the Lord God: my ryght hād shall not spare the synners, & my swerde shall not ceasse ouer them, that sed the innocēt bloud vpon earth. The feare is gone out from hys wrath, & hath consumed the foundacyōs of þ earth, & the synners lyke the straw þ is kyndled. Wo worth them that synne, & kepe not my cōmaundemēts, sayeth the Lorde. I will not spare them, Go youre waye ye chyldren from violence defyle not my Sanctuary: for the Lord knoweth all them that synne agaynst hym, & therfore delyuered he them vnto death and destruccyon: For now are the plages come vpon þ worlde, & ye shall remayne in them. For God shall not delyuer you, because ye haue synned agaynst hym.

E Beholde, an horryble vysyon commeth from the East, where generacyōs of Dragons shall come out, and þ people of þ Arabes with many charettes, and þ multytude of them shalbe as þ wynde vpon earth, that all they which heare them ragynge in theyr wrath, maye feare and be afrayed, and as the wylde bores oute of the wod, so shall they go out, and wyth greate power shall they come, and stāde fyghtynge wyth them and shall waste the porcyon of the lande of the Assyrians.

And then shall the Dragōs haue the vpper hande, not remēbrynge theyr byrth, and shall turne aboute swearynge together in greate power, to persecute them. But these shalbe afrayed, & kepe sylēce at theyr power and shall fle: and one out of the lande of the Assyrians shal besege them, & consume one of them, & in theyr hoost shall be feare and drede, and stryfe amonge theyr kynges.

F Beholde cloudes from þ East, and from the North vnto the South, and they are very horryble to loke vpon, full of wrath & storme. They shall smyte one vpon another, & they shall smyte at the greate starre vpon earth and theyr starre, and the blonde shalbe from the swerde vnto the bely, and the smoke of man vnto the Camels lytter: And there shalbe great fearfulnes, & trembling vpon earth, and they þ se the wrath, shal be afrayed, and a tremblynge shall come vpon them.

And then shall there come greate rayne from the South, & from the North, & parte from the West, and from the stormy wynde from the East, & shall shut them vp agayne and þ cloude whych he rayed vp in wrath, & the starre to cause feare towarde the East & West wynde, shalbe destroyed: & the great cloudes shalbe lyft vp, & the mysshapē cloudes full of wrath, and the starre, that they maye make all the earth afrayed and them that dwell therin, & that they maye poure oute ouer all places an horryble starre, fyre and hayle, and stynge swerdes, & many waters: that all feldes maye be full, and all ryuers, & they shall breake downe the cytyes and walles, mountaynes & hylles, all trees, wood, & the grasse of þ medowes, & all theyr frute. And they shall go stedfast vnto Babylon, and make her afrayed, they shall come to her & besege her: þ starre & all wrath shall they poure out vpon her.

Then shall the dust & smoke go vp vnto G
the heauen, and all they that be aboute her, shall bewayle her: & they that remayne vnder her, shall do scripure vnto them that haue put her in feare. And thou Asia þ comfortest thy selfe also vpon þ hope of Babylon, and art a worshyp of her personne: Wo be vnto the thou wretch, because þ hast made thy selfe lyke vnto her, and hast decked thy daughters in whordome, that they myght triumphe & please thy louers, whych haue allwaye desyred to committe whordome wyth the: thou hast folowed the abhominable cyte in all her worckes and inuencyons.

Therfore sayeth God: I will sende plages vpon þ, wyddowhode, pouerte, honger, warres, and pestylence, to waste thy houses with destruccyon, & death, and the glorye of thy power shalbe dryed vp as a floure, when the heate ryseth that is sent ouer the: Thou shalt be lych as a poore wyfe þ is plaged & beaten of wemen: so that the myghtie and louer shall not be able to receaue the. Wolde I so hate þ sayeth þ Lord? If thou haddest not alwaye slayne my chosen, exaltinge þ stroke of thy hādes, and sayde ouer theyr death, when þ wast dronken: sett forth the bewtye of thy countenaunce.

The rewarde of thy whordome shalbe recompensed the in thy bosome, therfore shalt thou receaue rewarde.

Lyke as thou hast done vntomy chosen H
(sayeth þ Lorde) euen so shall God do vnto the, and shall delyuer þ into the plage. Thy chyldren shall dye of hōger, and thou shalt fall thorow the swerde. Thy cytyes shalbe broken downe, & all thyne shall perish with the swerde in the feld. They that be in the mountaynes shall dye of honger, and eate their awne flesh, & drincke their awne bloud for very hōger of bred and thyrst of water.

Thou

Thou vnhappie shalt come thorow the see, and receaue plages agayne.

In the passage they shall cast downe the slayne cytye, and shall rote out one parte of thy lande, and consume the porcion of glorye. They shall treade the downe lyke stubble, and they shall be thy fyre, and shall consume the: thy cyties and thy lãde, thy wood and thy frutefull trees shall they burne vp with the fyre. Thy chyldren shall they cary awaye captyue, and loke what thou hast, they shall spoyle it, and marre the bewtye of thy face.

¶ The. xvi. Chapter.

¶ The Heathen shall be punyshed.

A WO be vnto the Babylon & Asia, wo be vnto the Egypt and Syria: gyrde your selues with clothes of sack & hearre, and mourne youre chyldren, be sory, for your destruccyon is at hand. A swerde is sent vpon you, and who wyll turne it back? A fyre is kyndled amonge you, & who wyll quench it? Plages are sent vnto you, and what is he that wyll dryue them awaye? Maye eny man dryue awaye an hongrie lyon in the wod? Or maye eny man quench the fyre in stubble, whan it hath begonne to burne? Maye one turne agayne the arowe, that is shot of a strõg archer. The myghtye Lord sendeth ỹ plages, & what is he ỹ wyll dryue thẽ awaye? The fyre is kyndled and gone forth in his wrath, & what is he that wyll quench it? He shall cast lyghteninges, and who shall not feare? He shall thonder, & who shall not be afrayed? The Lord shall threaten, & who shall not vtterly be beaten to poulder at his presence? The earth quaketh, & the foundacions therof: the see arysseth vp with waues from the depe, and the floudes of it are vnquiete & the fyshes therof also before the Lorde, and before the glory of his power. For stronge is his ryght hand that holdeth ỹ bowe, his arowes that he shoteth, are sharpe, and shall not mysse, when they begynne to be shot into the endes of the worlde.

B Beholde, the plages are sent, & shall not turne agayne, tyll they come vpon earth. The fyre is kyndled, & shall not be put oute tyll it consume ỹ foundaciõs of ỹ earth. Lyke as an arowe which is shot of a myghtye archer, returneth not backwarde: euen so the plages ỹ shall be sent vpon earth, shall not turne agayne. Wo is me, wo is me, who will deliuer me in those dayes? The beginninge of sorowes & greate mourninge: the beginninge of darth and greate death, the beginninge of warres, and ỹ powers shall stand in feare: the beginninge of euels, and they shall tremble euery one. What shall I do in these thinges, when ỹ plages come? Beholde, hõger & plage, trouble & angwyth are sent, as scourges for amendement. But for all these thiges they shall not turne frõ their wyckednesse, ner be all waye myndefull of the scourges.

Beholde, vitayles shalbe so good cheape C vpon earth, that they shall thinke them selues to be in good case: and euen then shall myschefe growe vpon earth, warres, darth and great disquietnes. For many of them that dwell vpon earth shall perish of hõger, and ỹ other that escape the honger, shall the swerde destroye: & the deed shalbe cast oute as donge, & there shalbe no man to confort them. For the earth shalbe wasted, and ỹ cyties shalbe cast downe: there shalbe no man left to tyll the earth & to sowe it. The trees shall geue frute, and who shall plucke them of & gather them? The grapes shall be rype, & who shall treade them? For all places shalbe desolate of men, so ỹ one man shall desyre to se another, or to heare his voyce. For of one whole cytie there shalbe ten left, and two in the felde, which shall hyde them selues in the thycke bushes, and in ỹ clyfes of stones: lyke as when there remayne thre or foure olyues vpon ỹ olyue tre, or as whẽ a vineyarde is gathered, there are left some grapes, of them that diligently sought thorow the vineyarde.

Euen so in those dayes there shalbe thre D or foure left, for them ỹ search their houses with the swerde. And the earth shalbe left waste, and ỹ feldes therof shall ware olde: and her wayes and all her pathes shall growe full of thornes, because no man shall trauayle there thorow. The daughters shall mourne, hauing no bridegromes: the wemen make lamẽtacyon, hauing no husbandes, their daughters shall mourne, hauing no helpe of their bridegrome. In the warres shall they be destroyed, and their husbãdes shall perish of hõger. O ye seruaũtes of the Lorde, heare these thynges, and marck them. Beholde, ỹ worde of the Lorde, Or receaue it: beholde the plages drawnye, & are not slack in tariẽge. Lyke as a trauaylinge woman, which after ỹ .ix. moneth bringeth forth a sonne, when ỹ houre of the byrth is come, an houre two or thre a fore that the paynes come vpon her body, and when the chylde commeth to the byrth, they tary not the twynckling of an eye. Euen so shall not the plages be slack to come vpon earth, and the worlde shall mourne, and sorowes shall come vpon it on euery syde.

O my people, heare my worde, make you E redy to the battayll: and in all euell be euen as pylgrems vpon earth. * He that selleth, 1 Cor. vii. b.
lett hym be as he that flyeth his waye: and he that byeth as one that will lese. Whoso occupieth marchaundies, as he that wynneth not: & he that buyldeth, as he that shall not dwell therin: he þ soweth, as one that shall not reape: he þ trysteth the vyneyarde, as he þ shall not gather the grapes: they that mary, as they þ shall get no chyldren: and they that mary not: as the wyddowes: and therfore * they that laboure, labour in vayne. For straungers shal reape theyr frutes, & spoyle their goodes, ouerthrowe their houses, & take their chyldren captyue for in captyuyte & honger shall they get chyldren. And they that occupie theyr marchaundies with robbery, how longe decke they theyr cyties, theyr houses, theyr possessiõs, & persones? þ more wyll I punysh thē for theyr synnes, sayeth the Lord. Lyke as an whore enuyeth an honest woman, so shall ryghteousnes hate inyquyte, when she decketh her selfe, and shall accuse her to her face, when he cõmeth that defendeth, which shall make inquisycyon for all synne vpon earth. And therfore be not ye lyke therunto, ner to the worckes therof: for or euer it be lõge, iniquite shalbe taken awaye out of the earth, and ryghteousnes shall raygne amonge you.

* Ytall erbil.a. Bzou.f.c. Ecclef.xl.b.

¶ Let not the synner saye, that he hath not synned: for coles of fyre shall burne vpõ his head, which sayeth before þ Lord God and his glory: I haue not synned. Beholde, the Lord knoweth all þ worckes of men, theyr ymaginacyons, theyr thoughtes and theyr hertes. * For he spake but þ worde: lett the earth be made, and it was made: lett þ heauen be made, and it was made. In his worde were the starres made, & he knoweth the nõbre of them. He searcheth the grounde of the depe, and the treasures therof: he hath measured the see, and what it conteyneth. He hath shut þ see in þ myddest of þ waters, & with his worde hath he hanged the earth vpon þ waters. He spredeth out the heauen lyke a vawte, vpon þ waters hath he founded it. In þ deserte & drye wylderne hath he made sprynges of water, and poles vpon the toppe of þ mountaynes, that þ floudes myght poure downe from the stony rockes to water the earth. He made man, & put his herte in the myddest of the body, and gaue hym breth, lyfe and vnderstãdyng, yee and the spyrete of þ Almyghtye God, which made all thynges, and hath searched þ ground of all the secretes of the earth.

*Gene.i.a.

He knoweth youre ymaginacyons & in- G
uencyõs, and what ye thynke when ye synne, and wolde hyde youre synnes. Therfore hath the Lorde searched and sought out all your worckes, & he shall bewraye you all. And when your synnes are brought forth, ye shalbe ashamed before mē, & youre awne synnes shalbe youre accusers in that daye. What wyll ye do? Or how wyll yee hyde your synnes before God and his Aungels? Beholde, God him selfe is the iudge, feare him, leaue of from youre synnes, and forget youre vnryghteousnesses, & medle nomore with thē: so shall God leade you forth, and delyuer you from all trouble For beholde, the heate of a great multytude is kyndled ouer you, & they shall take awaye certayne of you, & fede þ ydle with Idols: & they that consent vnto them, shalbe had in dirtye spon laughed to scorne, & troden vnder fote.

For vnto the places there shalbe a place, H and in the next cyties a greate insurrecyon vpon those that feare þ Lorde. They shall be lyke mad men, they shall spare no man: they shall spoyle and waste soch as feare the Lord, theyr goodes shall they take frō thē, and shutte them out of theyr houses. Then shal it be knowne who are my chosē, & they shalbe tryed as the golde in the fyre. Heare O ye my beloued, sayeth þ Lorde: beholde, the dayes of trouble are at hāde, but I wyll deliuer you from þ same. Be not ye afrayed dispayre not, for God is youre captayne.

Whoso kepeth my commaundementes and precyptes (sayeth the Lorde God) let not your synnes weye you downe, and lett not youre vnrighteousnesse be lyft vp. Wo be vnto them that are subdued vnto theyr synnes, and tangled in theyr wyckednesse: lyke as a felde is hedged in with bushes, and the path therof couered with thornes, þ no man maye trauayle thorow: and so is he taken, and cast in the fyre, and brent.

The ende of the .iiii. boke of Esdras.

The boke of Tobias.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ Tobias beynge taken prysoner, forsaketh not the lawe of trueth. The mercy and charyte of Tobias and the maners of hym in hys youthe. He taketh Hannah to wyfe, by whome he hath a sonne named Tobias. He succoureth Gabell with money. Goes his arryne to Rye, but after the deeth of Sennacherib they returne agayne.

TObias was of the trybe and cytie of Nephtali, which lyeth in ỹ hye coutrees of Galile aboue Naason the waye towarde the West, hauynge ỹ cytie of Nephet vpon the left syde.

Though he was taken prysonner in the dayes of Salmanasar kyng of ỹ Assyrias neuertheles beynge in captyuite, he forsoke not the waye of trueth: In so moch ỹ what soeuer he myght get, he parted it daylie wt his felow prysoners & brethren, that were of his kynred. And though he were yonger then all in ỹ trybe of Nephtali, yet dyd not he behaue hym selfe childeshly in hys worches. And when all the other wente to the golden calues, whych Jeroboam the kynge of Israel had made, he hym selfe alone fled all theyr companies, and gat him to Jerusalem vnto the temple of the Lorde, and there worshypped the Lord God of Israel, faythfully offerynge of all his fyrst frutes & tythes, so that in ỹ thyrde peare he mynystred all the thytes vnto the straungers and conuertes. These and soch lyke thynges dyd he obserue accordinge to ỹ lawe of God, when he was yet but ponge.

But when he was a man, he toke oute of his awne trybe a wyfe called Anna, and of her he begat a sonne, whom he called after his awne name, and taught hym from hys youth vp, to feare God, & to refrayne from all synne.

Now when he with hys wyfe, hys sonne and with all his kynred was come in captiuite vnto the cytie of Niniue, what tyme as they all dyd eate of the meates of the heathen, he kepte his soule, and was neuer defyled in theyr meates. And for so moch as he was myndefull of the Lorde in all his hert, God gaue hym fauoure in the syght of Salmanasar ỹ kynge, which gaue hym power to go where he wolde, and so had he lyberte to do what soeuer hym lyst.

¶ So wente Tobias vnto all them ỹ were in prison, and comforted them, & gaue them wholsome exortacyõs. And when he came to Rages a cytie of the Medes, hauyng ten talentes of syluer (of the thynges where wt ỹ kyng had honoured hym) & sawe among a greate company of people of hys kynred, one Gabelus (which was of hys awne trybe) beyng in necessite, he gaue hym the sayd weyght of syluer vnder an hãd wrytynge.

After a longe season when Salmanasar the kynge was deed, and Sennacherib hys sonne reygned in his steade, which hated the chyldren of Israel. Tobias wẽt daylie thorow out all his kynred, and cõforted them, & gaue of hys goodes to euery one of them, as moch as he myght: he fed the hõgrie, clothed the naked, and buried ỹ deed and slayne, and that diligently.

And when Sennacherib the kynge came agayne and fled out of Jewry (what tyme as God punyshed hym for hys blasphemy) and in hys wrath slew many of the chyldren of Israel. Tobias buried their bodies. But when it was tolde the kyng, he cõmaunded to slaye him, & toke awaye all his goodes. Neuertheles, Tobias with his sonne and wt his wyfe fled his waye, and was hyd naked, for there were many that loued hym. But after .xlv. dayes ỹ kynge was slayne of his awne sonnes. Then came Tobias agayne to his house, and all his goodes were restored vnto hym.

¶ The .ii. Chapter.

¶ Tobias byddeth soche of his frendes as feare God, to a banquet or feast. He is reproued of his frendes. He feareth God moare then the kynge. He becommeth bynde by the permyssyon and sufferaunce of God. Hys kynsfolckes mocke hym.

AFter these thynges vpon a solempne daye of ỹ Lorde Tobias made a good feast in his house, and sayde vnto his sonne: Goo thy waye & bryng hyther some of oure tribe, soch as feare god, ỹ they maye make mery with vs. And when he was gone, he came agayne, & tolde his father that one of ỹ chyldren of Israel laye slayne vpõ the streete. And immediatly he leapte from his table, left the feast, came fastynge to the deed coarse, toke hym and bare him preuely in to his house, that when the Sunne was downe, he myght safely burye hym. And when he had hyd the coarse, he dyd eate hys meate with mourninge & feare, remẽbryng the wordes, that the Lorde sayeth by ỹ prophet Amos: youre hye feastes shalbe turned to sorowe and heynes.

But when ỹ Sunne was downe, he wẽt his waye & buried hym. Then all his neygh bours reproued hym, saying: It is not lõge, sens it was cõmaunded to slaye the because of this matter, and hast scarce escaped the daunger of death, and buryest thou the deed agayne? Neuertheles, Tobias feared God moare then ỹ kyng, toke the bodyes of the slayne, and hyd them in his house, & buryed them at mydnyght.

It happened vpon a daye, that he had buryed ỹ deed, and was wery, cam home, and layed hym downe by the wall & slepte. And whyle he was aslepe, there fell downe vpon hys eyes warme donge out of the swalows nest, so that he was blynde. This temptacyon dyd God suffre to happen vnto hym, that they which came after, myght haue an example of his pacience, lyke as of holy Job. For in so moch as he euer feared God from his youth vp, & kepte his cõmaundemẽtes, he grudged not agaynst God, that ꝑ plage of blyndnes chaũced vnto hym, but remayned stedfast in the feare of God, and thãked God all the dayes of his lyfe.

D For lyke as blessed Job was had in derision of kynges, euen so was he laughed to scorne of his elders and kynsfolkes, which sayde vnto hym: where is thy hope, for the which ꝑ hast done almes & buryed ꝑ dede? But Tobias rebuked them, & spake: Saye not so, for we are the chyldren of holy men, and loke for the lyfe, which God shall geue vnto them, ꝑ neuer turne theyr beleue from him. Anna his wyfe wente daylye to the weuinge worcke: & loke what lyuynge she coulde get with the labour of her handes, she brought it. And it happened ꝑ she toke a kyd, and brought it home.

And when her husbande herde it crye, he sayd: loke ꝑ it be not stollen, restore it agayne to the owners: for it is not lawfull for vs to eate or to touch eny thynge of theft. The was hys wyfe angrie, & sayde: Now is thy hope become vayne openly, and thy almes dedes are manifest. With these & soch lyke wordes dyd she cast him in the tethe.

¶The.iii.Chapter.

¶The prayer of Tobias. Sara the daughter of Raguell is slaundred of her fathers seruãtes. The prayer and thankynge of Sara. God also the innocency and chastite of her. The ꝑyers of Tobias and of Sara are hearde.

A Then Tobias tohe it heuely, and with teares beganne to make hys prayer sayinge: O Lorde thou art ryghteous, and all thy iudgementes are true, yee all thy wayes are mercy, faythfulnes and iudgement. And now O Lorde be myndefull of me, and take no vengeaunce of my synnes, nether remembre my mysdedes, nether the mysdedes of my elders. For we haue not bene obedient vnto thy commaundemẽtes, therfore are we spoyled, brought into captyuyte, into death, into derysyon and shame vnto all nacyõs, among whom thou hast scatred vs. And now O Lorde, thy iudgementes are great, for we haue not done accordynge to thy cõmaundemẽtes, nether haue we walcked innocẽtly before the. And now O Lorde, deale with me accordinge to thy wyll, and commaunde my spirite to be receaued in peace, for more expedient were it for me to dye, then to lyue.

At ꝑ same tyme it happened, that Sara 15
the daughter of Raguel at Rages a cytie of the Medes was slaũdred of one of her fathers handmaydes, namely, that she shulde haue had seuen husbandes, which as soone as they were gone in vnto her, were slayne of the deuell called Asmodeus. Therfore, when she reproued ꝑ mayden for her faute, she answerde her, sayẽge: God lett vs neuer se sonne ner daughter of ꝑ more vpon earth thou kyller of thy husbandes. Wylt ꝑ slay me also, as ꝑ hast slayne seuen men? At this woyce wente Sara into an hye chamber of her house, and thre dayes & thre nyghtes she nether ate ner dranke, but cõtinued i prayer and besought God with teares, ꝑ he wolde delyuer her from thys rebuke.

Upon ꝑ thyrd daye it chaunced, ꝑ when C
she had made an ende of prayer, she praysed ꝑ Lord sayẽg: Blessed be thy name O God of oure fathers, which when ꝑ art wroth, shewest mercy, & in tyme of trouble ꝑ forgeuest ꝑ synnes of them, ꝑ call vpon the. Unto the O Lorde turne I my face, vnto the lyft I vp myne eyes. I beseche ꝑ O Lorde, lose me out of the bondes of thys rebuke, or els take me vtterly awaye from of the earth. Thou knowest Lorde, ꝑ I neuer had delyte vnto man, and that I haue kepte my soule cleane frõ all vnclenly lust. I haue not kepte cõpany with those ꝑ passe theyr tyme in sporte, nether haue I made my selfe partaker w̃ them ꝑ walcke in lyghte behauour. Neuertheles an husbãd haue I consented to take, not for my pleasure, but in thy feare.

Now peraduenture ether I haue bene vn- D worthy of them, or els were they vnmete for me, for ꝑ happyly hast kepte me to another husband. For why? thy councell is not in ꝑ power of man. But whosoeuer loueth the and serueth the a ryght, is sure of thys, that yf hys lyfe be tempted & proued, it stãdeth in ꝑ tricng, and yf he endure in pacyẽce he shall haue a rewarde, and be hylye crowned: and yf he be in trouble, that God (no doute) shall delyuer hym: and yf hys lyfe be in chastenynge, ꝑ he shall haue leaue to come vnto thy mercy.

For thou hast no pleasure in oure dãpnacyon: and why? after a storme thou makest the wether fayre & stylle: after weepyng & bewynes thou gruest greate ioye. Thy name O God of Israel, be praysed for euer. At ꝑ same tyme were both theyr prayers hearde in the syght of ꝑ magesty of ꝑ hyest God. And Raphael ꝑ holy Aungell of the Lord was sent to helpe the both, whose prayers came at one tyme toget her before God.

¶The.iiii.Chapter.

¶Tobias thynckyng to dye geueth a godly exhortacyon and monycyon to hys sonne.

SO when Tobias thought his prayer to be herde, that he myght dye, he called vnto hym his sonne Tobias and sayde vnto him: Hy sonne, heare the wordes of my mouth, and laye them in thyne herte as a foundacion. When God taketh awaye my soule, burye ꝓ my body, & holde thy mother in honoure all the dayes of her lyfe. For ꝓ oughtest to remembre, what and how greate parels she suffred for ꝓ in her wombe. And when she also hath fulfylled ꝓ tyme of her lyfe, bury her beside me. Haue God in thy thought all the dayes of thy lyfe, & beware, lest at eny tyme thou consent vnto synne, & lest ꝓ lett slyppe the cõmaundementes of the Lord oure God.

Gene almes of thy goodes, & turne neuer thy face from the poore: and so shall it come to passe, that the face of the Lorde shall not be turned awaye frõ the. Be mercyfull after thy power. If thou hast moch, geue plentyfully: yf thou hast lytle, do thy diligence, gladly to geue of ꝓ lytle. For so gatherest thou thy selfe a good rewarde in the daye of necessite. For mercy delyuereth frõ all synne and from death, and suffreth not the soule to come in darckenes. A greate confort is mercy before the hye God, vnto all them that shewe it.

Hy sonne, kepe the well from all whordome, and (beside thy wyfe) se that no lawte be knowne of the. Let neuer pryde haue rule in thy mynde ner in thy worde, for in pryde begane all destruccyon.

Wherfore euer wo[r]ketheny thynge for the, immediatly geue hym his hyre, & loke that thy hyred seruauntes wages remayne not by the ouer nyght. Loke that thou neuer do vnto another man, the thynge ꝓ thou woldest not another man shulde do vnto ꝓ. Eate thy bred with the hongrie and poore, and couer the naked with thy clothes. Set thy bred and wyne vpon ꝓ buriall of the ryghtous, and do not thou eate & drynche therof with the synners. Aske euer councell at the wyse.

Be allwaye thanckfull vnto God, and beseche hym, that he wyll ordre thy wayes, and that what soeuer thou beuyselt or takest in hãde, it maye remayne in him. I certifye the also my sonne, that (when ꝓ wast yet, but a babe) I delyuered ten talentes of syluer vnto Gabelus at Rages a cytie of ꝓ Medes, & his hand wryttinge haue I by me. And therfore seke some meanes, how thou mayest come by hym, and receaue of hym the sayde weyght of syluer, & geue hym his hand wryttynge agayne.

Hy sonne, be not afrayed: trueth it is, we leade here a poore lyfe: but greate good shall we haue, yf we feare God, and departe from all synne, and do well.

¶ The. v. Chapter.

¶ The obedience of yonge Tobias to his father, which is sent in to Rages. An Aungell accompanieth with hym in his iourney.

THen answered Tobias his father, and sayde: father, all that thou hast commaunded me, wyl I do, and that diligẽtly. But how I shall require this money I can not tell. Nether doth he knowe me, ner I hym. What token shall I geue hym? And as for the waye thyther, I neuer knewe it. Then hys father answered hym, and sayde: I haue hys hãd wryttynge by me which when thou shewest hym, immediatly he shall paye the. But goo thy waye nowe, and get ꝓ some faythfull man to goo with the for an hyre, that thou mayest receaue the money, whyle I am yet lyuynge. Then went Tobias out, & vpon the strete he founde a fayre yõge man standynge, gyrded vp, and as it were one ready to take hys iourney. And he knewe not that it was an angell of God, but saluted hym, and sayde: From whence art thou, ꝓ good yõge man? He answered: Of the chyldrẽ of Israel.

And Tobias sayd vnto hym: knowest ꝓ the waye, that ledeth vnto ꝓ countre of the Medes? He answered: I knowe it well, and all those stretes haue I gone oft tymes, and haue lodged wt oure brother Gabelus, that dwelleth in Rages a cytie of the Medes, which lyeth vpon the mount Egbathanis. Tobias sayd vnto him: I praye ꝓ, tary for me, tyll I haue tolde my father these thynges. Then wente Tobias in, and tolde his father all. At ꝓ which his father marueled, & prayed, that he wolde come in vnto hym.

Now when the aungell came in, he saluted him, and sayd: Ioye be with the for euermore. And olde Tobias sayd: what ioye can I haue that syt here in darckenes, and se not the lyght of heauen? The yonge man sayde vnto him: Be of good cheare, God shall helpe the shortly. And Tobias sayd vnto him: Canst thou bringe my sonne to Gabelus, vnto ꝓ cytie of Rages in Media? And whẽ thou comest agayne, I shall paye ꝓ thy hyre. And the Aungel sayd vnto him: I shall leade thy sonne, and bringe him to ꝓ agayne. Then Tobias answered him: tell me I praye the, of what houle, or of what tribe art thou? The Aũgell Raphaell sayde vnto hym: Askest thou after the kynred of an hyrelynge, or seekest ꝓ a gyde for thy sonne to go with him? But that I make ꝓ not carefull, I am Azarias the sonne of great Hananias. And Tobias answered: thou art come of a greate kynred: but I praye ꝓ, be not displeased, that I desyred to know thy kynred. The Aungell sayd vnto him: thy sonne shall I leade forth safely, and bringe him whole to the agayne.

D Then answered Tobias, and sayde: well, go on youre waye, & God be in youre iourney, and his Angell beare you cõpany. So when they had prepared all thynges, that they wolde take with them in they⁹ iourney: Tobias had his father & his mother fare well, and they went on their waye both together. Now when they were gone: his mother began to wepe, & sayde: The staff of our age hast thou taken awaye and sent hym from vs.

Wolde God that money had neuer bene, for the which thou hast sent hym awaye. If we had bene content with oure pouerte, thys had bene greate ryches vnto vs, that we sawe oure sonne here. Then sayde Tobias vnto her: wepe not, oure sonne shall come to vs agayne safe and sounde, and thyne eyes shall se him. For I trust, that the good Angell of God shall beare hym company, & order well all the thynges that he doth: so that he shall come to vs agayne with ioye. At these wordes his mother left of frõ wepynge, and helde her tonge.

¶ The. vi. Chapter.

¶ Young Tobias is deuoured from the fysshe, by the Aungell. The Aungell exhorteth Tobias to take Sara to his wyfe.

A SO Tobias wente on his waye, and a hogge folowed hym, and þ fyrst nyght they abode by the water of Tygris. Then wet he out to wash his fete, & beholde, there came forth an horrible fysh to deuoure hym. Of whome Tobias was afrayed, and cryed with a loude voyce, sayenge: Lorde, he cõmeth vpon me. And þ Aungell sayde vnto hym: Take hym by þ gyll, and draw him to the. And he dyd so, and drew him vpon the lande. And the fysh began to leape at his fete.

Then sayde the Aungell vnto him: take out the bowcles of thys fysh, and as for the herte, the gall & the leuer, kepe them by the. For these thynges are necessary & good for medycyne. Tobias dyd so, & rosted the fysh, and they toke him with them in they⁹ iourney: & reserued they salted, as moch as was sufficient for them, tyll they came to Rages a cytie of the Medes. Then Tobias asked the Aungell, & sayde vnto him: I praye þ brother Azaria, tell me, wher to are these thynges good of þ fysh þ thou hast bydden me kepe?

The Aungell answered hym and sayde: If thou layest a pece of the herte vpon þ coales, the smoke therof dryueth awaye all maner of euell spyrites, whether it be frõ man or from woman, so that from thence forth the same shall come nomore vnto the. The gall is good to anoynte or to stryke þ eyes wythall, where as there is eny blemyth in them, so that they shalbe whole.

And Tobias sayd vnto him: where wylt thou þ we remayne? The Aungell answered & sayd: here is a nye kynsman of thyne, one Raguell by name, which hath a daughter called Sara, and hath neither sonne nor daughter but her. All his good belongeth vnto the, & thou must mary her, & therfore desyre her of her father, & he shall geue her þ to wyfe. Then answered Tobias & sayde: As I vnderstande, she hath bene maryed vnto seuen husbandes, & they all are dede: and I haue herde saye, that þ deuell slewe them. I am afrayed therfore, lest soch thynges happen vnto me also: which yf it came to passe (seynge I am the onely sonne of my father & my mother) I shulde bringe the in they⁹ age with sorowe to they⁹ graues.

D Then sayde the Aungell Raphael vnto him: heare me, & I wyll tell þ what they be, of whom the deuell hath power. Namely, they þ receaue maryage of soch a fashion, þ they shut God out frõ them & from they⁹ hert, & geue them selues to they⁹ abhominable lust, euen as it were an horse & Mule, which haue no vnderstandinge: vpon soch hath þ deuell power. But when þ takest her, & art come in to the chãber, wtholde thy selfe from her thre dayes, and geue thy diligẽce vnto nothynge but vnto prayer with her.

And in þ fyrst nyght, rost þ leuer of the fysh, and the deuell shalbe dryuen awaye. The seconde nyght shalt þ be receaued vnto the company of the holy patriarkes. The thyrde nyght shalt thou optayne þ blessyng of God so that whole chyldren shalbe borne of you. After the thyrde nyght take þ mayden in the feare of God, and more for the desyre of chyldren, then for eny fleshly lust: þ in the sede of Abraham thou mayest optayne the blessyng in chyldren.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ Young Tobias and the Aungell come to the house of Raguell. He requireth Raguels daughter to wyfe and obtayneth her.

A WHen wente they ito Raguell, which receaued the ioyfully. And when Raguel loked vpõ Tobias, he sayde vnto Anna his wyfe: how lyke is this younge man vnto my systers sonne? And when he had spoken this, he sayde: whence be ye good brethren? They sayd: Of the tribe of Nephthaly, out of þ captyuite of Ninyue. Then sayde Raguel vnto them: knowe ye my brother Tobias? They sayde: yee, we knowe hym well. And when he had spoken moch good of hym, the Aungell sayde vnto Raguell: Tobias of whom thou asketh, is thys young mans father. Then Raguel bowed hym selfe downe, and wepte, toke hym about the neck, and kyssed hym, and sayde: Gods blessynge haue thou my sonne, for thou arte the sonne of a good good vertrous man. And Anna his wyfe & Sara his daughter wepte also.

25 Now whē they had talked together, Raguell bad kyll a wether, ād to make a feast. And when he prayed them to syt downe to dynner, Tobias sayd: I wyl nether eate ner dynche here thys daye, excepte thou fyrst graūte me my petition, & promise me to geue thy daughter Sara. Whē Raguel herde this he was all ompyed, for he knewe, what had happened vnto the other seuen mē that wente in vnto her: and he beganne to feare, that it shuld chaunce vnto hym also in lyke maner.

And whyle he stode so in doute, and gaue the ponge man no answere, the aungel saide vnto him: Feare not to geue him thy daughter, for vnto this man that feareth God, belōgeth thy daughter to wife, therfore might none other haue her.

C Then sayde Raguell: I doute not, but God hath accepted my prayers and teares in his sight: and I trust he caused you to come vnto me for þ same intent, þ this daughter of myne myght be maryed in her awne kynred, accordynge to the lawe of Moses. And now dowte thou not, but I wyll geue her vnto the: So he toke the ryght hande of hys daughter, and gaue her into the ryght hand of Tobias, and sayde: The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob be with you, ioyne you together, and fulfyll hys blessyng in you. And they toke a letter, and made a wryting of the mariage. And thē made they merry, ād prayed God. And Raguell called Anna hys wyfe vnto hym, and bad her prepare another chamber, and thither he brought Sara his daughter, and she wepte. Then sayde he vnto her: Be of good cheare my daughter, þ Lorde of heauen geue the ioye, for the peines that thou hast suffred.

C The. viii. Chapter.

C The aungell byndeth the deuell. Tobias exhorteth hys wyfe to prayer, and they praye thre dayes before they lye together.

1 NOw after that they had supped they brought the ponge mā into her. Thē thought Tobias vpon the wordes of the aungell, and toke out of his bagge a peece of the leuer of the fysh, and layed it vpō the hote coales. So the aungell Raphaell toke holde of the deuell, ād sent hym awaye and bounde hym in the wylderues of the hyer Egypte. Then spake Tobias vnto the virgyn, and sayde: Up Sara, let vs make our prayer vnto God to daye, to morow, ād ouermorow: for these thre nyghtes wyl we reconcyle our selues wyth God: and whan the thyrde holy night is past, we shall ioyne together in the dutye of mariage. For we are the chyldren of holy men, and we maye not come together as the heathen that knowe not God.

Then stode they vp both together, and 25 besought God earnestly, that he welde preserue them. And Tobias sayde: O Lorde God of our fathers, prayse be thou of heauen and earth, of the see, welles ād floudes, ād of all thy creatures that be therin. Thou madest Adam of the * moulde of the earth, *Gene.ii. ād gauest him Eua for an helper. And now Lord thou knowest that it is not because of voluptuousnes, þ I take this syster of mine to wyfe, but only for the loue of chyldren, in whō thy name be blessed for euer. And Sara sayd: haue mercy vpon vs (O Lorde) haue mercy vpon vs, and let vs both come whole and sounde together to a good age.

And aboute the cock crowynge, it happe- C ned, that Raguell called his seruauntes, ād they wente with him, to make a graue. For he sayde: it is chaunced now vnto hym peraduenture, as it did vnto the other seuē mē, that went in vnto her. Now when they had made þ graue, Raguel came agayne to hys wyfe, and sayde vnto her: sende one of thy maydens, to loke yf he be dead, that I maye burye him afore it be lyght daye. So she sēt a mayden to se, which when she came into þ chamber, founde them whole and sounde, slepyng together. And so she came againe, and brought good tydinges. Then Raguel and Anna hys wyfe prayed the Lord and sayd: Prayed be þ, O Lorde God of Israell, for it is not happened vnto vs, as we thought. For thou hast dealt mercyfully wyth vs, D and put awaye frō vs the enemye that persecuted vs, and hast shewed mercy vnto þder two beloued. O Lorde, cause thē to magnifye the more perfectly, ād to offre the sacrifyce of thy prayse, ād of theyr helth: that all people maye knowe, that thou only art God in all the earth.

And immediatly Raguell commaunded hys seruauntes, to fyll the graue, that they had made, wyth earth, afore it was lyght, and bad his wyfe prepare a feast, ād to make readye all thynges that were necessary for meate, to soche as went by the waye. He caused two fat kyne also, & foure wethers to be slayne, and meates to be prepared for all his neyghbours and frendes. And Raguel charged Tobias, to remayne wyth him two weches. As for al the good that he had he gaue Tobias the halfe of it, ād made this wrytynge, that the halfe which remayned, shuld fall vnto Tobias after theyr death.

C The. ix. Chapter.

C The aungell goeth to Gabelus, at the desyre of Tobias: which deliuereth the letter, and receaueth the money.

A When Tobias called vnto hym ꝑ Aungell, whom he thought to haue bene a man, and sayde vnto hym: Brother Azarias, I praye the herken vnto my wordes: yf I shulde gene my selfe to be thy seruaunt, I shall not deserue thy prouydence. Neuertheles I beseche the, that thou wylt take the beastes and the seruauntes, and go vnto Gabelus in rages the cyte of Medes, and delyuer hym his hand wrytinge, and receaue the money of hym, and praye hym to come to my mariage. For ꝑ knowest thy selfe, that my father doth nowe the dayes: B and yf I tary one daye to long, he wylbe sory in his mind. Now seist thou how earnestly Raguel hath requyred me, so that I cannot saye hym nay.

Then toke Raphaell foure of Raguels seruauntes, and two Camels, and went vnto Rages the cyte of the Medes: and when he had founde Gabelus, he gaue him his hãdwrityng, & receaued all the money. He tolde hym also of Tobias the sonne of Tobi, how all thynges had happened, and caused hym C to come wt hym to the mariage. Now when he came into the house of Raguel, he founde Tobias syttyng at the table: and he leaped vp, and they kyssed one another, and Gabelus wepte, and prayed God, and sayde: the blessyng of the God of Israel haue thou, for thou art the sonne of a ryght vertuous and D iust man, and of one that feareth God, and gyueth great almes. And blessyng haue thy wyfe, and your elders, that ye maye se your chyldren and youre chylders children, vnto the thyrde and fourth generacion, and your sede be blessed of the God of Israell, whych reygneth worlde without ende. And when they all had sayd Amẽ, they went to ꝑ feast, but with the feare of the Lord held they the feast of the mariage.

¶ The .x. Chapter.

¶ Tobias & his wyfe are sadde for the taryenge of their sonne. Raguell sendeth agayne Tobias wyth his wyfe.

A NOw whyle yonge Tobias made longe tarryeng, by reason of ꝑ mariage, hys father was full of care and heuynes, and thought: what shuld be the cause, that my sonne taryeth so long? Or why shuld he be kepte so long there? Peraduenture Gabelus is dede, and no man wyl gene hym the money. Thus began he to be very sorowfull, he and Anna his wyfe with hym, and began to wepe both together, because they sonne was not come agayne vnto them at the daye appoynted. As for hys mother, she wepte wyth discomfortable teares, & sayd: Wo is me, my sonne: Oh what ayled vs to sende the awaye in B to a straũge coũtre, ꝑ light of our eyes, thou staff of oure age, thou comforte of oure lyfe, thou hope of our generacion, seyng all the thynges ꝑ we haue are only in the, we shuld not haue sent the awaye from vs.

Then Tobias comforted her, and sayde: holde thy tonge, and be not discomforted, our sonne is whole and folde: the man that we sent hym wythall, is ꝑfyghtfull ynough. Neuertheles, she might in no wyse be comforted: but daylye went out, loked aboute, and went about all the stretes, wherby she thought he shulde come agayne: that (yf it were possible) she myght se hym commynge a farre of.

But Raguell sayde vnto hys sonne in C lawe: O tary here, and I shall sende a messaunger vnto thy father Tobias, to tel him that thou art in good health. Tobias sayde vnto him: I am sure, that my father & my mother counte euery daye, and that theyr hertes are sory.

So when Raguel prayed Tobias with many wordes, and wolde in no wyse leave hym, he delyuered Sara vnto hym, and the halfe part of all his good: in seruauntes and handmaydens, in shepe, in Camels, and in kyne and moch money, & so sent him awaye from hym with peace and ioye, and sayde: The holy aungell of the Lorde be with you D in youre iourney, and brynge you forth safe and sounde, that ye maye fynde all thynges in good case wyth your elders, & that myne eyes maye se your chyldren afore I dye. So the elders embraced theyr daughter, kyssed her, & let her go, exhortinge her to honoure her father and mother in lawe, to loue her husbande, to rule well her housholde, to kepe her house in good ordre, and to shew her selfe faultelesse.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

¶ yonge Tobias leuyng hys wyfe and housholde in the myddle ways, commeth before with the Aungell. The byrde of his mother lokyng after her sonne. He is ioyfully receaued of hys father and mother. Sara cometh fryen dayes after.

AND they now were going home warde A agayne, vpon the .xi. daye they came to Charra, whyche lyeth in the halfe waye towarde Ninive. And the Aungell sayd: Brother Tobias, thou knowest how thou hast left thy father: therfore yf it please the, we two wyll go before, and let the houshold with thy wyfe and the catel come softe and fayrly after vs. And when Tobias was content that they shuld go before, Raphael sayde vnto hym: Take of the gall of the fysh with the, for it shalbe necessary. So B Tobias toke of the gall, & they went their waye. But Anna the mother of Tobias sat dayly by the waye syde vpon the toppe of an hyll, from whence she myght se farre aboute her. And whyle she was waytynge

there

there for his commyng, she loked a farre of: and anone she perceaued her sonne cõmyng, and ranne and tolde her husbande, sayinge: Behold, thy sonne commeth. And Raphael sayde vnto Tobias: As soone as thou commest into the house, immediatly worshippe the Lorde thy God, and geue thankes vnto hym: then go to thy father, and kysse hym: & stryke his eyes ouer with the gal of the fysh that thou hast brought with ỹ. For be sure, that his eyes shal strayght waye be opened, and thy father shall se the lyght of heauẽ, & shal reioyse at the sight of ỹ. Thẽ the dogge that had ben with thẽ in theyr iourney, ranne before, and came as a messenger, & wagged with his tayle for gladnesse.

C So the blynde father arose, and beganne to runne, and stombled with hys fete, & gaue a seruaunt hys hande, ranne to mete hys sonne, receaued hym, and kysled him, he and his wyfe, ãd they beganne to wepe for ioye.

Now when they had worshypped & thãked God, they satt downe. Then toke Tobias of the fyshes gall, and anoynted his fathers eyes: and tarved half an houre, & then beganne the blemysh to go out of hys eyes, lyke as it had bene the whyte skynne of an egge: whiche Tobias toke and drewe from hys eyes, and immedyatly he receaued hys syght.

D Thẽ they praysed God, he and his wyfe, and all they that knewe hym. And Tobias sayde: O Lorde God of Israell, I geue the prayse and thankes, for thou hast chastened me, and made me whole. And lo, now do I se my sonne Tobias. After seuẽ dayes came Sara his sonnes wyfe also whole & sounde with al the houshold and catel, with camels and moche moneye of his wyues, and wyth the money that he had receaued of Gabelus: and he tolde hys father and his mother al ỹ benefytes, which God had done for hym, by the man that led hym. Achior also and Nabath Tobias sisters sõnes came, & were glad and reioysed with hym, by reason of all the good that God had shewed vnto hym. And so for the space of seuẽ dayes they made mery, and were syght ioyfull euerychone.

C The.xii. Chapter.

Tbonge Tobias reckened vp vnto his father the pleasures that the angell vsed hym. He offred vnto the angell halfe the goodes that he brought with hym.

A Then Tobias called hys sonne vnto hym, and sayd: What maye we geue thys holy man, that went wyth the? Tobias answered his father, and sayd: Father, what rewarde shall we geue hym? Or what thynge can deserue hys benefytes? he hath bene my gyde, and brought me safe agayne: he receaued the money frõ Gabelus, he caused me to get my wyfe, he droue ỹ euel spyrete from her, he hath bene an occasyon of gladnesse to her father & mother: he delyuered me, that I was not deuoured of ỹ fysshe, he hath made the to se the lyght of heauen, yee we all haue receaued great good of him. How shulde we worthely deserue these thinges vnto hym? But I praye the my father, that thou wylt desyre hym, yf happly he wyll vouchsafe, to take wyth hym ỹ halfe of all that we haue brought.

So the father and the sonne called hym, 13
toke hym aside, and beganne to praye him, ỹ he wolde be cõtent to take in good worth, the halfe parte of al that they had brought. Then sayde he secretly vnto them: Prayse ye the God of heauen, and geue thankes vnto hym before all men lyuynge, for he hath shewed his mercy vntõ vs. It is good to hyde ỹ kinges secrete, but to shewe & to prayse the workes of God, it is an honorable thing. Prayer is good with fastinge, & mercy is better, then to hoorde vp treasures of golde. For mercy delyuereth frõ death, clenseth synne, and causeth to fynde euerlasting lyfe. But they ỹ do sinne and vnryghteousnes, are the enemyes of theyr awne soule. C

Wherfore I tell you the trueth, and will hyde nothynge from you. When thou prayedst with teares, and buryedst the deed, and leftest thy dyner, ãd hyddest the deed in thy house vpon the daye tyme, that thou myghtest burye them in the nyght, I offred thy prayer before the Lorde. And because thou wast accept and beloued of God, it was necessary, that tentacyon shulde trye the. And now hath the Lorde sent me to heale the, ãd to delyuer Sara thy sonnes wyfe from the euell spyrete. For I am Raphael an Aungel one of the seuen that stande before God.

When they hearde thys, they were sore afrayed, and trembled, and fell downe vpõ D theyr faces vnto the grounde. Then sayde the Aungell: Peace be wyth you, feare not. Where as I haue bene wyth you, it is the wyll of God: geue prayse and thanckes vnto hym.

You thought that I dyd*eate and drinke with you, but I vse meat that is inuysyble, and drynke that cannot be sene of men. *Ge.xviii. a Iudic.xiii.c.

Now therfore is the tyme that I must turne againe, vnto him that sent me: but be ye thanckfull vnto God, and tell out all his wonderous workes.

And when he had spoken these wordes, he was taken awaye out of theyr syght, so that they sawe hym nomore. Then fell they downe flat vpon their faces by the space of thre houres, and praysed God: when they rose vp, they tolde all his wonderous workes.

C The.xiii. Chapter.

C Tobias the elder geueth thankes vnto God.

Then

Then olde Tobias opened hys mouth and prayſed the Lord, & ſayd: Great art thou O Lorde for euermore, and thy kyngdome worlde without ende: for thou ſcourgeſt and healeſt: thou ledeſt vnto hell, and bryngeſt out agayne, and ther is none that may eſcape thyne hande. O geue thankes vnto the Lorde, ye chyldre of Iſrael, and prayſe hym in the ſyght of ꝑ Heathen. For amonge the Heathen which knowe hym not hath he ſcatered you, to thintēt ꝑ ye ſhuld ſhew forth his maruelous worckes: and cauſe them for to knowe, that there is none other God almyghtye but he. He hath chaſtened vs for our myſdedes, and for his awne mercy ſake ſhall he ſaue vs.

Conſydre then, howe he hath dealt with you, and prayſe him with feare and drede, & magnifye the euerlaſtynge kynge in youre worckes. I wyll prayſe him cuē in the land of my captiuyte, for he hath ſhewed his maieſtye vnto a ſynful people. Turne you ther fore O ye ſynners, and do ryghteouſnes before God, and be ye ſure, that he wyll ſhewe his mercy vpon you. As for me, and my ſoule, we will reioyſe in God. O prayſe ꝑ Lord al ye his choſen, holde ꝑ dayes of gladneſſe, and be thankful vnto hym. O Ieruſalem ꝑ cytie of God, the Lorde hath punyſhed ꝑ for the worckes of thine awne handes. O prayſe the Lorde in thy good thinges, and geue thākes to the euerlaſting God, that he may buyld vp his tabernacle agayne in the, that he maye call agayne vnto the, all ſoch as be in captiuite, ād that thou mayeſt haue iope for euermore. With a fayre light ſhalt thou ſhyne, ād all the endes of the worlde ſhall honoure the. The people ſhall come vnto ꝑ frō farre, they ſhall bryng gyftes, and worſhyp the Lord in the, and thy lande ſhall they haue for a Sanctuary, for they ſhal call vpon the great name in the.

Curſed ſhall they be that deſpyſe the, and all that blaſpheme the, ſhalbe condempned: but bleſſed ſhall they be that buylde the vp. As for the, thou ſhalt reioyce in thy chyldre for they all ſhalbe bleſſed, and gathered together vnto the Lorde. Bleſſed are they all that loue the, and that be glad of thy peace. Prayſe thou the Lorde, O my ſoule, for the Lorde our God hath delyuered his cytie Ieruſalem from all her troubles. I will count my ſelf happy, yf my ſede remayne to ſe the clearnes of Ieruſalem.

The gates of Ieruſalem ſhalbe buylded with Saphyre and Smaragde, and all the cōpaſſe of her walles with precious ſtones. Al her ſtretes ſhalbe paued with white marble ſtone, and in all ſtretes ſhal Alleluya be ſonge. Prayſed be the Lorde, which hath exalted her, that his kyngdom maye be vpon her for euermore. Amen. And ſo Tobias made an ende of his talkynge.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Tobias prophecyeth the deſtruccion of Niniue. His ſonne returneth to Raguel, after the deceſſe of his father and mother.

And after that Tobias had gotte his ſight agayne, he lyued. xlii. yeares, & ſawe his childers chyldre. Now whē he was. C. and. ii. yeare olde, he dyed: & was buryed honorably in Niniue. For when he was ſixe and fyftye yeares of age he loſt the ſight of his eyes, ād when he was thre ſcore yeare olde, he gat his ſight agayne. The reſidue of his lyfe led he in iope, and increaſed wel in the feare of God, & departed in peace.

But in the houre of his death he called vnto hym his ſonne Tobias, and ſeuen ponge ſprīgaldes his ſonnes chyldren, and ſayde vnto them: The deſtruccion of Niniue is at hand, for ꝑ worde of the Lorde cānot fayle, and our brethren that are ſcatred out of the lande of Iſrael, ſhall come thyther agayne. And the whole land of it ꝑ hath bene waſt, ſhalbe fylled: ād the houſe of God that was brent in it, ſhalbe buylded agayne: & al ſoch as feare God, ſhal returne thither: the Heathen alſo ſhal forſake their Idols, & come to Ieruſalem, and dwell there, and al the kynges of the earth ſhalbe glad of her, and worſhyp the Lorde God of Iſrael.

And therfore my chyldre, heare your father: Serue the Lorde in the trueth, ſeke after his wil, and do the thynge that pleaſeth hym. Cōmaunde your chyldre that they do right, geue almes, be myndeful of God, and euer to be thankful vnto hym in trueth and with all their power. Heare me now therfore my chyldren, and abyde not here: but in what daye ſoeuer ye haue buryed your mother beſyde me, get you from hence. For I ſe, that the wyckednes of it ſhall bryng it to deſtruccion and ende.

After the death of hys mother, Tobias departed awaye frō Niniue, with hys wyfe and chyldren, and with his childers chyldre, and came agayne to his father ād mother in lawe, and founde them whole and in a good age, and toke the care of them. And he cloſed their eyes, and was heyre vnto al Raguels goodes, and ſawe the fyfth generacion, and his childers childre. And whē he was. xcix. yeare of age, he dyed in the feare of ꝑ Lorde, and his kynſfolkes buryed him. And al hys poſterye contynued in good lyfe, and holy conuerſacion: ſo that they were loued ād accepted both of God and men, and of all the people of the lande.

¶ The ende of the booke of Tobias.

¶ The booke of Judith.

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ The buyldynge of Egbathanis. The victory of Nabuchodonosor agaynst Arpharat. The messengers of Nabuchodonosor are despysed.

A ARpharat the kyng of ꝑ Medes subdued many people vnto his dompnyon, & buylded a noble stroge cite whyche he called Egbathanis. The walles of it made he of free stone, foure squared, seuẽty cubytes hye ād thyrtye cubites brode. He made towres there vpō an hūdreth cubites hye. But vpō the foure corners euery side was twenty cubites brode. He made the portes in ꝑ heygth, lyke as ꝑ towres. This kynge trusted in hys myghty host, ād in his glorious charrettes.

So in the twelfth yeare of his raygne it happened, that Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assirias (which raygned in the great citie of Niniue) fought agaynst Arpharat, and ouercame him in the great felde called Ragau, besyde Euphrates and Tigris and Jadason in the felde of Erioth the kynge of the Elykes.

Then was the kyngdome of Nabuchodonosor exalted, and hys herte was lyft vp: and he sent vnto all them that dwelt in Celicia, in Damascus, in Libanus, & vnto the heathen that dwelt in Carmel and Cedar, and to soch as dwelt in Galile in the greate felde of Esdrelon, to all them ꝑ were in Samaria, and beyonde the water of Jordane vnto Jerusalem and the whole lāde of Jesse vnto the moūtaynes of Ethiopia. Vnto all these dyd Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assirians sende messaungers. But they all with one consent wolde not agree vnto him, & sent the messaungers agayne empty, and put thē awaye without honour. Then Nabuchodonosor the Kynge toke indignacion at all those landes, and sware by hys trone, and by his kyngdome, that he wolde be auenged of all those countrees.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes is sent of Nabuchodonosor, to subdue all the worlde. The preparacion and pursute of Holofernes.

A IN the thyrtenth yeare of kynge Nabuchodonosor, vpon the.xii. daye of ꝑ fyrst moneth, it was deuysed in the courte of Nabuchodonosor the kynge of the Assirians, that he wolde defende hym selfe. So he called vnto him al the elders, all his captaynes, and men of warre, and shewed them his secret councell, and tolde thē that his purpose was to brynge the whole earth vnder his dompnyon. Now when they were all content wyth this sayinge, Nabuchodonosor the kyng called Holofernes ꝑ chefe captayne of his warres, & sayde vnto hym: Go thy waye forth agaynst all the kyngdomes of the west, and specially agaynst those that haue despised my cōmaudemēt. Thou shalt spare no realme, al stroge cyties shalt thou brynge in subiection vnto me.

Then Holofernes called together all the captaynes ād rulers of all the power in Assiria, and mustred the soudyers vnto the hoste (lyke as the kyng commaunded him) namely, an hundred and twentye thousande fightynge men vpon fote, and twelue thousande archers vpon horsebacke. Al his ordinaunce sent he before with an innumerable multytude of camels, so that the hoost was well prouided for with oxen, ād smal catell, and that without nombre. He caused corne to be prepared out of all Syria for his hoste. Moche golde and syluer also toke he out of the kynges house. So he toke his iourneye, he and all his hoste, with charettes, horsmen, and archers: of whome there were so many, that they couered the grounde of the lande, lyke the greshopers.

And when he was gone past the borders of the Assirians, he came towarde the great mountaynes of Ange, which lye vpon ꝑ left syde of Celicia: & so he went vp into al their castels, and wanne euery stronge holde. As for the welthy cytie of Molothus, he brake it downe, & spoyled all the chyldrē of Tharsis and the Ismaelites, which laye towarde the wildernes, and vpon the South syde of the land of Chelon. He went ouer Euphrates also, and came into Mesopotamia, and brake downe al the hye cities that were there, from the broke of Mambre tyll a mā come to the see: and he toke the borders in frō Celicia vnto the coastes of Japhet towarde the South. He caryed awaye al the Madianytes, and spoyled all theyr goodes, & whosoeuer withstode hym, he slewe thē wyth the swerde. After thys he went downe into the felde of Damascus in the tyme of harueste, & brent vp all the corne and all the trees, and caused the vynes to be cut downe. And the feare of hym fell vpon all them that dwelt in the earth.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ Kynges become wyllyngly subiect to Holofernes. The tyrannye and cruelte of hym.

SO the kynges & Prynces of all cyties and landes sent theyr Embassytours: namely, they of Syria, & Mesopotamia, Siria Sobal, and Lybia, and Celicia, which came to Holofernes, and sayd: Let thy wrath cease towarde vs: It vs. It is better for vs to serue ꝑ great kyng Nabuchodonosor with our lyues, and to be subiecte vnto the, then ꝑ we shulde dye, and be slayne, and receaue greater hurte. Al our cyties and possessions, all mountaynes and hylles, all feldes, great & small catell, shepe goates, horses, and camels, al our goodes & houssholdes, be in thy power, vnder thy subiection be it al together. We our selues also and our chyldren wylbe thyne awne, come vnto vs a peaceable lorde, and vse oure seruyce at thy pleasure.

25 Then came Holofernes downe from the mountaynes with horsmen & great power, and conquered all stronge fensed cyties, and all that dwelt in the land. And out of all cyties he toke stronge men, and soch as were mete for the warre, to helpe hym. There came soch a feare also vpon those countrees, ꝑ the indwellers of all the citys, the Princes and rulers, and the people together, wente forth to mete hym as he came, and receaued him honorably with garlādes and torches, with daunses, tabrettes and ypes.

C Neuertheles, though they dyd thys, yet myght they not swage hys rygorous stomach: but he destroyed their cities, & hewed downe theyr woddes. For Nabuchodonosor the kyng had commaunded him, that he shuld rote out all ꝑ Goddes of the lande: to the intent that he only myght be called and taken for God, of the nacions whych Holofernes with his power brought vnder hym. So went he thorow Syria Sobal, ād thorow all Appamia, and all Mesopotamia, & came to the Idumeans, in the lande of Gabaa and Septopoly, and toke theyr cyties, and remayned there thyrtye dayes, wherin he caused all the whole multytude of hys host to be gathered together.

C The. iiii. Chapter.

C Israel requyreth helpe of God agaynst Holofernes. They fast and prayr.

A When the chyldren of Israel ꝑ dwelt in Jewry heard thys they were sore afrayed of him. There came soch tremblynge also and feare vpon them, that they sorowed he shulde do vnto the cytye of Jerusalem, and the temple of the Lorde, as he had done to other cyties & their temples. So they sent into all Samaria rounde aboute vnto Jericho, toke in and occupyed al the toppes of the mountaynes, & made fast the townes with walles, ād prepared corne for them agaynst the battayll.

Eliachim also the Preste wrote vnto all them that dwelt towarde Esdrelon (which lyeth ouer agaynst ꝑ great felde by Dothaim) and vnto all those by whom men might haue passage vnto them, that they shuld take in the wayes of the mountaynes, wherby there might be any waye and passage to Jerusalem, and that they shulde holde dylygent watch where any strayt was betwixt the mountaynes. And the chyldren of Israel dyd, as Eliachim the preest of ꝑ Lorde had commaunded them. And all the people cryed earnestly, and humbled theyr soules with fastynges and prayers, they and theyr wyues. The Prestes put on hearrie clothes, ād layed the yōge babes before the temple of ꝑ Lorde, and couered the aulter of the Lorde with an hearrie cloth. And with one accorde they cryed vnto ꝑ Lorde God of Israell, that theyr chyldren shuld not be geuen into a praye, and their wyues into a spoyle, that their cyties shuld not be layed waste, & that theyr Sanctuary shuld not be vnhalowed, and so they to be a shame and rebuke vnto the Heathen.

Then Eliachim the hye Preste of ꝑ Lorde wente rounde aboute all Israell, and spake vnto the, sayinge: Be ye sure, that ꝑ Lorde C will hear youre peticions, yf ye contynue stedfast in fastynges & prayers in the syght of the Lorde. Remēbre Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, which ouerthrewe the Amalechites (that trusted in theyr might & power in their host, in theyr shyldes, in theyr charrettes and horsmen) not with weapens, but with holy prayers. Euen so shall al the enemyes of Israel be, yf ye cōtinue in this worke, that ye haue begonne. So vpon this exhortacion they continued in prayer before ꝑ Lord. In so moche ꝑ they which offred brent sacrifyces vnto the Lorde, offred the offrynges vnto the Lorde, beynge arayed in hearrye clothes ād had ashes vpō theyr heades. And they all besought God frō theyr whole hert, ꝑ he wolde vyset his people of Israell.

C The. v. Chapter.

C Holofernes is discontent with the Jewes. Achyor sheweth vnto Holofernes the mercyfles of God done vnto the Jewes, for which thynge the rulers vnder Holofernes were very angry wyth hym.

AND worde came to Holofernes the A Prynce of the warres of the Assyrias that the chyldren of Israell prepared them selues to make resistaunce, and howe they had stopped the wayes betwyxte the mountaynes. Then was he exceadynge wroth, and called all the Princes of Moab, and the Captaynes of Ammon, and sayde vnto them. Tell me what people is thys, that kepeth in the mountaynes? Or what maner of cyties are they? What is their power? Or what maner of hoost haue they? who is theyr Captayne? And why do they despyse vs (more then all those that dwel in the East) and come not forth to mete vs, ꝑ they myght receaue vs wyth peace? Then Achior the Captayne of al the Ammonites answered, and sayd: Syr, yf it please the to heare peare. I wyll tell the trueth before the, concernynge thys people that dwell in the mountaynes, and there shall no lye go out of my mouth.

B Thys people is of the generacyon of the Caldees, they dwelt first in Mesopotamia, for they wolde not folowe ꝑ goddes of their fathers that were in the lande of ꝑ Caldees, and so forsoke they the customes of their fore fathers (which had many goddes) & worshypped one God, that made heauen & erth: which also commaunded them, ꝑ they shuld go from thence, and dwell at Haran. Nowe whē there came a dearth into ꝑ whole land, they wēte downe to Egypte, and there they dwelt *foure hōdreth yeares, in the whyche they multiplyed so greatly, that their (}oste might not be nombred. And when the kyng of Egypte oppressed them, and subdued thē in buyldynge of his cyties with makyng of claye and bryck, they cryed vnto God they? Lorde, whiche punyshed the whole lande of Egypte with diuerse plages.

C Now when the Kynge of Egypte let thē go their waye, and the plage ceassed, & then folowed after them, to take thē, & to bringe them agayne into hys seruyce, whyle they were flyenge awaye, the God of heauē opened the see, so that the waters stode fast vpō both the sydes as a wal, and these went thorow the botome of the see drye shod. In the which place whē an innumerable people of the Egyppeyans folowed vpon them, they were so ouerwhelmed with ꝑ waters: that there remayned not one, to tel them that came after, how it happened. So when thys people was passed thorow the reed see, they came into the wyldernes of the mount Synai, where neuer man myght dwell afore, & where ꝑ sone of mā had neuer rested. There were the bitter waters made swete for thē, that they myght drynke, and forty yeares had they meate from heauen. Wheresoeuer they went (without bowe and arowe, with- D out bukler or sweard) they? God fought for them, and caused them to haue the victory. Yet, no man was able to hurte thys people, except it were so, ꝑ they departed vnfaythfully from the worshyppynge of the Lorde they? God. But as oft as they worshypped any other beside they? God, he gaue them ouer to be spoyled, to be slayne, & to be put to confusyon. Neuertheles, as ofte as they were sory for departynge from the worshippynge of they? God, the same God of heauē gaue them power and strength to withstande they? enemyes.

Moreouer, they slewe the kynge of ꝑ Canaanites, Iebusites, Pherezites, Hethites, Euites, and Amorites, and all the myghtye in Hesebon, and toke their landes & cyties in possession: and so longe as they sinned not in the syght of they? God it went wel with them, for they? God hateth vnryghteousnesse. For in tymes past whē they went out E of the waye, which God had geuen thē, that they shulde walke in it, they were destroyed in dyuerse batayles of many nacions: and many of thē were caryed awaye presoners vnto a straunge countre. But now lately they haue turned them selues agayne vnto the Lorde they? God, & are come together agayne out of the cōtrees where they were scatred abrode: and thus haue they cōquered these mountaynes, and dwel therin: and as for Jerusalem where they? Sanctuary is, they haue it agayne in possession.

And therfore my lorde, māke diligent inquysicyō, yf thys people haue done wyckednesse in the sight of their God, then let vs go vp agaynst thē, for doutles they? God shall F delyuer them into thy handes, and subdue them vnto thy power. But yf thys people haue not displeased they? God, we shal not be able to withstande them, for they? God shall defende thē, and so shall we be a shame to all the worlde.

Now when Achior had spoken out these wordes, al the great men of Holofernes were wroth, and thought to slaye hym, & sayde one to another: what is he this, which darre saye, that the chyldren of Israel are able to withstande Nabuchodonosor the kyng and his hoost: where as they are an vnwepened people, without strength or vnderstanding of the feates of warre? That Achior therfore maye knowe that he hath disceaued vs we wyll go vp into the mountaynes: & whē the myghtye men of them are taken, he also shalbe stryckte with the sweard, that al people maye knowe, that Nabuchodonosor is the God of the earth, and that there is none other without hym.

¶ The.vi. Chapter.

¶ Achior is committed into the handes of the Iewes by Holofernes. He is led to Bethe, but is louked of the Iewes. The prayer of the people. Achior is comforted of the Iewes.

SO when they had left of speakyng, A Holofernes toke sore indignacion, and said vnto Achior: For so moch as thou hast prophecyed vnto vs, sayinge: that the people of Israel shalbe defended of they? God, I wyll shewe the, that there is no God but Nabuchodonosor. Yet, when we slaye them all as one man, thou also shalt perysh with them thorow the sword of the Assirias, & all Israel shalbe destroyed with the, and then shalt thou fele, that Nabuchodonosor is ꝑ Lorde of the whole erth. Then shall the sword of my knyghthode go thorow thy sydes, and thou shalt fal downe stryckte amonge the wounded of Israel, and shalt shalt not come to thy selfe agayne but be vtterly destroyed wyth them. But yf thou thinckest thy prophecy to be true, why doest thou then chaunge thy colloure? why arte ꝓ

B afrayed? Thynckest thou ꝓ my wordes are not able to be performed? But that thou mayest knowe, ꝓ thou shalt fele these thynges with them, beholde, frō this houre forth wyll I sende the vnto yonder people, that when the punyshment of my swerde (which they haue worthely deserued) falleth vpon them, thou mayest be punyshed with them.

So Holofernes cōmaunded his seruauntes to take Achior, & to cary hym vnto Bethulia, & to delyuer hym into the handes of the childre of Israel. Then Holofernes seruauntes toke hym, and wēt thorow ꝓ playne felde. But when they drew nye vnto the mountaynes, the slynge casters came out agaynst them: Neuertheles they gat thē awaye by the syde of the mountayne, ād bounde Achior hande and fote to a tree, and so left hym bounde with withyes, and turned agayne vnto theyr Lorde.

Notwithstandinge ꝓ chyldren of Israell went downe frō Bethulia, came vnto hym, lowsed him, brought him into Bethulia, set hym in the myddest of the people, and asked him what the matter was, that ꝓ Assirians had left hym bounde?

C Osias the sonne of Mycha of the tribe of Symeon, and Charmim (which is also called Gothoniel) were the principal rulers at the same tyme. Nowe when Achior stode in the myddest of [illegible] gouernatoures, and before them al he told [illegible] m, what answere he gaue Holofernes, to the thynge that he asked him, and how Holofernes people wolde haue slayne hym for so sayinge, and how Holofernes hym selfe was wroth, & commaunded hym for the same cause to be delyuered vnto the Israelites: that when he ouercame the children of Israel, he myght commaūde Achior also to be put to death with diuerse tormētes, because he sayde: the God of heauen is their defender. And when Achior had playnely tolde out all these thynges, all the people fell downe vpō their faces, prayeng the Lorde, and poured out their prayers together vnto the Lorde, with a general complaynte and weppynge, and sayde: O Lorde God of heauē & of earth, beholde their pryde and loke vpon our lowlynes, and consydre howe it standeth with thy sayncte, and make it to be knowne, that thou forsakest not those, which holde them fast by the, ād how
D that thou bryngest thē lowe, that presume of thē selues, and make theyr boast in theyr awne strength. So when the weppynge and prayer of the people (which they had made the whole daye longe) was ended, they comforted Achior, sayinge: The God of our fathers, whose power and strength thou hast prayed, shall so rewarde the, that thou shalt rather se theyr destructiō. Wē when the Lorde our God then shall geue his seruauntes theyr lybertie, God be also with the amōge vs, so that yf it please the, thou wyth all thyne mayest dwell with vs.

Now when Osias had ended the counsell, he toke him into his house, ād made a great supper, called the elders to it, and so they refreshed them selues after the fastynge. And afterwarde was all the people called together, which made their prayers al the nyght longe in the congregacion, and besought the God of Israel for helpe.

C The. vii. Chapter.

C Bethulia is besieged of Holofernes. The people requyreth helpe of God. They of Bethulia wolde geue ouer the cytye for wante of water. The prayer of the people with teares and lamentacion.

THe next daye, Holofernes commaunded his hoste to go vpagaynst Bethulia. There were an hundred & twenty A thousande fyghtynge men on fote and two and twentye thousande horsmen, beside the the prepareng of the that were wonne: and came to them on euery syde out of the countrees and cytyes whyche he had taken. All these prepared them selues vnto the battail agaynst the Israelites, and came on by the hyll syde, vnto the toppe that loketh ouer agaynst Dothaim, from the place which is called Belma, vnto Chelmon that lyeth toward de Esdrelon.

Now whē the chyldren of Israel sawe so B great a multitude of the Assyrians, they fell downe flat vpō the grounde, strawed asshes vpon their heades, and prayed with one accorde, that ꝓ God of Israel wolde shewe his mercy vpō his people, and so they tolke their weapens, and sat betwixt the mountaynes in the narow place, and kept the waye daye and nyght. But whyle Holofernes was goynge aboute, he founde the water spryngē, which frō the South syde was conueyed into ꝓ cytie by a cōdyte: this cōmaunded he to be direct another waye, & to cut their condite in sunder. There were welles also not farre from the walles, whych they vsed secretly, more for pleasure then for necessyte.

Then wente ꝓ Ammonytes & the Moa- C
bytes vnto Holofernes, & said: The children of Israell trust nether in speare nor arowe, but haue taken in ād kept the mountaynes and hilles. That thou mayest ouercome them therfore without ꝓ stryking of any batayl, set men to kepe the welles that they drawe no water out of the: so shalte thou destroye the without sweard, or at ꝓ least they shall be so feble, that they must be fayne to geue ouer the cytye: whych they thynke not able to be wonne, for so moche as it lyeth in the mountaynes.

mountaynes. These wordes pleased Holofernes well & all his men of warre, & he sett an hundreth at euery well rounde aboute.

D And when thys watch had endured twelue dayes, the Cisternes & all that had water, fayled them that dwelt in ꝑ cyte of Bethulya, so that in ꝑ whole cyte they had not drynche ynough for one daye, for the people had water geuen them daylye in a measure. Then came the men and wemen, ponge per sonnes ād chyldren all vnto Osias, & sayde all with one voyce: God be iudge betwixte vs and the, for thou hast dealt euell with vs thou woldest not speake peaceably with the kynge of the Assyrians, therfore hath God solde vs in theyr handes, and there is no mā to helpe vs where as we are brought downe before theyr eyes i thirst & great destruccyon. Therfore gather now together all ꝑ people that be in the cytie, that we maye all yelde ourre selues wyllyngly vnto ꝑ people of Holofernes: for better it is that we be captyue and prayse the Lorde with our lyues, then to be slayne and perysshe, and to be laughed to scorne and shamed of euery man, when we se our wyues and chyldren dye before oure eyes. We take heauen and earthe thys daye to recorde, and the God of our fathers (which punyssheth vs accordyng to ꝑ deseruyng of our synnes) and geue you warnynge, that ye geue vp the cytye now ſto ꝑ power of Holofernes hoost, that oure ende maye be shorte with the swerde, whych els shall endure longe, for wante of water and for thyrst.

E When they had spoken out these wordes there was a greate weppyng and howlynge in the whole congregacyon, and that of euery man, and they cryed an whole houre longe vnto God w one voyce, sayenge: we haue synned with oure fathers, we haue done amysse, we haue dealt wyckedly. Thou that art gracious, haue mercy vpon vs, punysh our vnrighteousnes with thyne awne scourge, and geue not those ouer that knowledge the, vnto a people whych knowe the not, lest they saye amōge the Heathen: where is theyr God?

And when they were so weery with this crienge and wepinge, that they helde theyr tunges, Osyas stode vp with watrye eyes, and sayde: O take good hertes vnto you, (deare brethren) and be of good cheare, and let vs wayte yet these fyue dayes for mercy of the Lorde: peraduenture he shall cut awaye hys indignacyon, and geue glory vnto hys name. But ꝑ he helpe vs not when these fyue dayes are past, we shall do as ye haue sayde.

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ Of the vertuous woman Judith, which reproued the auncients because they tempted the Lorde. She also moued them to encourage and hearten the people, and sheweth her counsell agaynst the enemyes of the Jewes.

A Nd it happened whē these wordes came to ꝑ eares of Judith a wyddowe, which was the daughter of Merari, the sonne of Idox, ꝑ sonne of Joseph, the sonne of Osia, the sonne of Elay, the sonne of Jammor, the sonne of Jeheon, the sonne of Raphoim, the sonne of Achitob, the sonne of Melchia, ꝑ sonne of Enam, the sonne of Nathania, the sonne of Salathiel, the sonne of Symeon, the sonne of Ruben. And her husbād was called Manasses, which dyed in the dayes of the barlye haruelt. For whyle he was byndynge the sheues together in the felde, the heate came vpō his head, & he dyed at Bethulia his cytie & there was he buryed besyde his fathers. Now was Judith hys desolate wyddowe thre yeares and six monethes. And in ꝑ hyer partes of her haule she made her selfe a preuy chambre, where she dwelt, beynge closed in with her maydens. She ware a mocke of heare, and fasted all the dayes of her lyfe, excepte the Sabbathes, and newe moneths and the solempne dayes that ꝑ people of Israell kepte. She was a very fayre and bewtifull persōne. Her husbād also had left her greate riches, a plenteous housholde, great vnmoueable possessiōs and many catell. This Judith was a woman of a very good reporte with euery one, for she feared ꝑ Lorde greatly, ād there was no body that spake an euell worde of her.

When thys Judith hearde, how Osyas had promised the people, that after the fyfte daye he wolde geue vp the cyte vnto the Assyrians, she sent for the elders Chambri and Charmy, and when they came to her, she sayde: what thynge is thys, wherin Osyas hath consented, that ꝑ God helpe not within fyue dayes, he wyll geue ouer the cytie to the Assirias? What are ye, that ye tempte the Lorde? This deuyce optaynneth no mercy of God, but prouoketh him vnto wrath and displeasure. Wyll ye set the mercy of ꝑ Lorde a tyme and appoynte hym a daye after youre wyll?

Neuertheles, for so moch as the Lord is pacyēt, lett vs rather repent, pourynge out teares, and beseechig him of grace. For God threateneth not as a man, nether wyll he be prouoked vnto wrath as the chyldren of men. And therfore lett vs hertely fall downe before hym, and serue hym wyth a meke spyrete, and wyth weppynge eyes saye vnto the Lorde, that he deale with vs accordyng to hys awne wyll and mercy: that lyke as oure herte is now vexed, and brought lowe thorow the pryde of them, it maye so be comforted thorow hys grace: in so moch as we folowe not the synnes of our fathers, which forsoke their God, & worshypped other goddes: for the whych synne they perished with the swerde, were spoyled & brought to shame of al their enemies. As for vs, we knowe none other God but onely hi, for whose cōforte lett vs tary with mekenesse. He shall requyre and make inquisiciō for our bloud from the veracions of our enempes: he shal bringe downe all the heythen, that ryse vp agaynst vs, & put them to dishonoure, euen the Lorde oure God.

Therfore deare brethren, seynge ye are
D honorable and elders in the people of God, vnto whom all the people haue respecte, ād vpon whom the lyfe of the people standeth, lyft vp their hertes with youre exhortacyō, that they may call to remembraunce, how oure fathers also in tymes past were tempted, that they myght be proued, yf they worshypped their God a ryght. They ought to
*Gen.22.a remembre, how * oure father Abraham beynge tempted, and tryed thorow many tribulacyons, was founde a louer and frende of God. So was Isaac, so was Jacob, so was Moses, and all they that pleased God, beynge tryed thorow many troubles, were founde stedfast in fayth. Agayne, they that receaued not their tēptacyons with the feare of God, but put them selues forth with impacyency and murmurynge agaynst God, [illegible] destroyer, and were slayne
of ser[illegible]nd therfor should not we vn-
dert[illegible] auenged, for the thyng that is done vnto vs: but to consydre, that all these punyshmentes are farre lesse then oure synnes and mysdedes. Beleuige also that thys correccyon commeth vnto vs (as to the seruauntes of God) for amendement, and not for oure destruccyon.

E Then sayde Olias & the elders vnto Judith: All that thou speakest, is true, and no mā can reproue thy wordes. Praye thou for vs now therfore vnto God, for thou art an holy woman, and feareste God. And Judith sayd vnto them: Seyng, ye knowe that my wordes are of God, then proue my councell & deuice, yf it be of God: & beseche God, that he wyll bringe my councell to good ende.

Thus haue I denysed. Ye shall stāde this nyght before the porte, and I wyll go forth with Abra my mayden. Praye ye therfore vnto God, that he wyll gracyously remembre his people of Israel within fyue dayes, as ye haue sayd. As for the thyng that I go in hande with all, aske ye no questyōs of it, tyll I open it vnto you my self: do ye nothig els but praye vnto the Lorde youre God for me. Then Olias the prince of the people of Juda sayde vnto her: Go thy waye in peace the Lorde be with the, that we maye be auēged of oure enempes. And so they wēte from her agayne.

The.xi. Chapter.

The prayer of Judith for the delyuerye.

NOw when they were gone they
A waye, Judith wente into hir closet, put on an hearrye smock, strawed ashes vpon hir head, fell downe before the Lord, & cried vnto hym, sayeng, *Gen.17.
O Lord God of my father * Symeō, which and.24.a.
gauest hym a swerde for a defence agaynst the enempes, & vsed violēce and wylfulnes and that rauished & vyrgin & put her to dyshonestly. Thou & gauest their wyues into a praye, and their daughters to captyuyte, ād all their praye for a spoyle vnto thy seruauntes, which bare a zele vnto & helpe me wyddow, O Lorde my God, I beseche the. For thou hast done all thinges from the begynnyng: and loke what thou hast taken in hand ād deuysed, it came euer to passe. For all thy wayes are prepared, and thy iudgemētes are done i thy euerlastyng foreknowledge. O loke now vpon the armyes of the Assirias, lyke as it was thy pleasure sometime to loke vpō the hoost of the Egyptcians, when they beyng weapened, persecuted thy seruauntes, and put their trust i their charrettes, horsmen, & in the multitude of their men of warre. But thou lokedest vpō their hoost, castynge a thyck darckenes before the: and when they came into the depe, the waters ouer whelmed them. B

Euen so Lord, lett it go with these, that trust in the power & multitude of their mē of warre in their charrettes, arowes & speares, and knowe not, that thou onely art our God, which destroyest warres frō & begynnyng, and that thou art the Lord. O lift vp thyne arme now, lyke as euer from & begynnyng, and i thy power bringe their power to naught, cause they myght to fall in thy wrath. They make their boast, & they will vnhalowe and defyle thy Sanctuary, and to wayll the tabernacle of thy name, & to cast downe the horne of thyne aulter wt their swerde. Wrig to passe (O Lorde) that the pryde of the enempe maye be cut downe with his awne swerde, that he maye be take with the snare of hys eyes in me, and that & mayest smyte hi with & lyppes of my loue. O geue me a stedfast mynde, that I maye despyse him ād hys strength, & that I maye destrope hym.

Thys shall bringe thy name an euerla- C
styng remembraunce, yf the hande of a woman ouerthrowe hym. For thy power (O Lord) stādeth not in & power of men, nether hast & eny pleasure i the strength of horses. There was neuer proude personne & pleased the, but in the prayer of the humble and meke hath thy pleasure bene euermore.

O thou God of the heauens, thou maker of the waters, and Lorde of all creatures, heare

heare me poore woman, callyng vpō the, & puttyng my truſt in thy mercy. Remembre thy couenaunt, O Lord, and myniſter wordes in my mouth, and ſtablyſh this deuice in my hert, that thy houſe maye cōtynue ſtyll in holynes, and that all the heythen maye knowe, that thou art God, ād that there is none other but thou.

¶ The.x. Chapter.

¶ Judith decketh her ſelfe to go to Holofernes. The blessyng that the Elders gaue Judith. Holofernes is in loue with Judith.

AND when ſhe had left of crieng vnto the Lorde, ſhe roſe vp from the place, where ſhe had lyen flat before the Lorde, & called her mayden, wēt downe into her houſe, layed the hearſye cloth from her, put of the garmentes of hir wyddowhode, waſhed her body, anoynted hyr ſelfe with precyous thinges, of ſwere ſauoure, broyded and platted her hearre, ſett an hoode vpon hir heade, and put on ſoche apparell as belongeth vnto gladneſſe, ſlyppers vpon hir fete, armellettes, ſpāges, earynges, fyngerrynges, ād decked her ſelfe with all hir beſt araye.

The Lorde gaue her alſo a ſpecyall bewtye ād kayrneſſe (for all this deckyng of hyr ſelfe was not done for eny voluptuouſneſſe and pleaſure of the fleſh, but of a ryght dyſcrecyon and vertue, therfore dyd the Lorde increaſe hir bewtye) ſo that ſhe was exceadyng amyable and welfauoured in all mēs eyes. She gaue hyr mayde alſo a botell of wyne, a pot with ople, pottage, cake bred & cheſe, and wente hir waye.

Now whan ſhe came to the porte of the cytie, ſhe foūde Oſias and the elders of the cytie wayting there. Which whā they ſawe her, they were aſtōnyed, & marueled greatly at her bewtye, Neuertheleſſe, they aſked no queſtiō at her, but let her go, ſaying: The God of oure fathers geue the his grace, and with his power perfourme all the deuyce of thy herte: that Jeruſalē maye reioyſe ouer the, and that thy name maye be in the nombre of the holy and ryghteous. And all they that were there, ſayde with one voyce: ſo be it, ſo be it. Judith made hir prayer vnto the Lorde, and wente oute at the porte, ſhe and hir mayde.

And as ſhe was goyng downe the mountayne, it happened that aboute the ſpryngе of the daye, the ſpyes of the Aſſirians met with her, and toke her, ſaying: whence commeſt thou? Or whither goeſt thou? She anſwered: I am a daughter of the Hebrues, ād am fled frō them, for I knowe, that they ſhalbe geuen vnto you to be ſpoyled: becauſe they thought ſcorne to yelde thē ſelues vnto you that they myght fynde mercy i your ſight Therfore, haue I deuyſed by my ſelfe after this maner: I wyll go before the prince Holofernes, and tell hym all the ſecretes, and wyll ſhew him, how he maye come by them and wynne them, ſo that not one mā of hys hooſt ſhall perysh.

And whan theſe mē had hearde hir wordes, and conſydered hir fayre face they were aſtonyed (for they wondred at hir excellēt bewty) & ſayd vnto her: thou haſt ſaued thy lyfe by fynding out this deuyce, that thou woldeſt come downe to oure lorde: and be thou ſure, that whan thou commeſt vnto hym, he ſhall intreate the well, and thou ſhall pleaſe hym at the herte. So they brought her into Holofernes pauylion, and tolde hym of her. Now when ſhe came in before hym, immedyatly he was ouercome ād taken with hir bewty. Thē ſayd his ſeruaūtes: who wolde deſpiſe the people of the Jewes, that haue ſo fayre wemē? Should we not by reaſō fyght againſt thē for theſe? So when Judith ſawe Holofernes ſyttynge in a canapy, that was wrought of purple, ſylke, gold, Smaragde and precyous ſtones, ſhe loked faſt vpon hi, & fell downe vpon the earth. And Holofernes ſeruauntes toke her vp agayne, at their lordes commaundement.

¶ The.xi. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes requyreth of Juda the cauſe of her commyng, which giueth him a ſubtell anſwer.

THen ſayd Holofernes vnto her: Be of good chere, & feare not in thyne hert, for I neuer hurte mā, that wold ſerue Nabuchodonoſor the kinge. As for thy people, yf they had not deſpyſed me, I ſhulde not haue lyft vp my ſpeare agaynſt them. But tell me now, what is the cauſe that thou art departed from them, & wherfore art thou come vnto vs?

And Judith ſayde vnto hym: Syr, vnderſtande the wordes of thy handmayden: for yf thou wylt do after the wordes of thy handmayden, the Lorde ſhall bringe thy matter to a proſperous effecte. As truly as Nabuchodonoſor a lorde of the lande lyueth, and as truly as his power lyueth, which is in the to the punyſhment of all men that go wrōg, all men ſhall not onely be ſubdued vnto him thorow the, but alſo the beeſtes alſo of the feld. For all people ſpeake of thy prudent actyupte, and it hath euer bene reported, how thou onely art good & myghtie in all his kyngdome, & thy diſcrecyon is cōmended [al lādes. The thig is manyfeſt alſo, that Achior ſpake, & it is wel knowne, what thou cōmaūdeſt to do vnto him, For this is playne & of a ſuretye, that our God is ſo wroth wth vs (by the reaſon of our ſynnes) that he hath ſhewed by hys Prophetes vnto the people, how that for their ſynnes he will delyuer thē ouer vnto the enemye. And for ſo moch as the childrē of Iſraell kno-

we that they haue so displeased theyr God, they are sore afrayed of the.

They suffre greate honger also, and for wante of water, they are ded now in a maner. Moreouer, they are appoynted to slaye all theyr catell, that they maye drynche the bloude of them: and are purposed to spende all the holy ornamentes of their God (which he hath forbydden them to touch) for corne, wyne and oyle. Seynge now, that they do these thynges it is a playne case that they must nedes be destroyed. Which whē I thy handmayden perceaued, I fled from them, for the Lord hath sent me vnto the, to shewe the these thynges. For I thy handmayden wor thy ppe God euen here now beside the, and thy handmayden shall go forth, and I will make my prayer vnto God. And he shall tell me, when he wyll reuarde them theyr synne, then shall I come and shewe the and bringe the thorow the myddest of Jerusalē so that thou shalt haue all the people of Israel, as ỹ shepe without a shepeherde: there shall not so moch as one dogg barcke against the, for these thynges are shewed me by the prouydence of God: and for so moch as God is displeased with them, he hath sent me to [illegible]e the same.

These wordes pleased Holofernes & all his seruauntes, which marueled at the wysdome of her, and sayde one to another: there is not such a woman vpon earth, in beawtye and discrecyon of wordes. And Holofernes sayde vnto her: God hath done well, that he hath sent the hyther before thy people, that ỹ mayest geue thē into our hādes. And for so moch as thy promyse is good, yf thy God performe it vnto me, he shal be my God also, and thou shalt be excellent and greate in the courte of Nabuchodonosor, and thy name shalbe spoken of in all the lande.

¶ The .xii. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes commaundeth that Judith be well intreated. She desyreth leaue to go out in the nyght season to praye, and obtayneth it. Vagao is sent vnto her, to moue her to come into Holofernes to a bāquet, and she commeth. Holofernes is dronken.

Then commaunded he her to go where hys treasure laye, and charged that she shulde haue her dwellynge there, and appoynted what shulde be geuen her from hys table. Judith answered hym and sayde: As for the meate that thou hast commaunded to geue me, I maye not eate of it as now (lest I displease my God) but will eat of such as I haue brought with me. Then sayde Holofernes vnto her: If these thynges that thou hast brought with the fayle, what shall we do vnto the? And Judith sayd: As truly as thou lyuest my lord, thy handmayden shall not spende all thys, tyll God haue brought to passe in my hand, the thynges that I haue deuysed.

So hys seruauntes brought her into the tent, where as he had appointed. And as she was goynge in, she desyred that she myght haue leue to go forth by nyght & before daye to her prayer and to make intercessiō vnto the Lorde. Then commaunded Holofernes his Chamberlaynes, that she shulde go out and in at her pleasure, to praye vnto God those thre dayes.

And so in the nyght season she wēte forth into ỹ valley of Bethulia, and washed her selfe in the well water. Then wente she vp, and besought the Lorde God of Israel that he wolde prospere her waye, for the delyuerance of hys people. And so she wente in, & remayned clene in her tent, tyll she toke her meate in the euenynge.

Upon the fourth daye it happened, that Holofernes made a supper vnto hys seruauntes, and sayde vnto Vagao his chamberlayne: Go thy waye, and councell thys Hebruelle, that she may be wyllyng to consent to kepe cōpany with me. For it were a shame vnto all the Assyrians, that a woman shulde so laugh a mā to scorne that she were come from hym vnmedled with all. Then wente Vagao vnto Judith, & sayde: Let not the good daughter be afrayed, to come to my lorde, that she maye be honoured before hym, that she maye eate and drynche wyne, and be mery with hym. Unto whom Judith answered: Who am I, that I shulde saye my lordes naye? whatsoeuer is good before hys eyes, I shal do it: and loke what is hys pleasure, that shall I thynche well done, as longe as I lyue.

So she stode vp, and decked her self wyth her apparell, and wente in, and stode before him. And Holofernes herte was whole moued, so that he brent in desyre towarde her. And Holofernes sayd vnto her: drinke now and sytt downe, and be mery, for thou hast founde fauoure before me. Then sayde Judith: Syr, I wyll drynche, for my mynde is meryer to daye, then euer it was in all my lyfe. And she toke, and dyd eate, and dranke before hym, the thynges that her mayden had prepared for her. And Holofernes was mery with her, and dranke moze wyne, then euer he dyd afore in hys lyfe.

¶ The .xiii. Chapter.

¶ Holofernes sleapeth for very dronckenes. and Judith cutteth of hys heade, and geteth therwith to her owne people of whom she is receaued with ioye. They geue thanckes vnto God, for theyr deliuerance. Judith speaketh vnto Achior which marueleth at her feate done to Holofernes.

Now whē it was late in the nyght, hys seruauntes made haste euery man to hys lodgige. And Vagao shut the chamber dores, and went hys his waye, for they were all ouerladen with wyne. So was Judith alone in the chamber. As for Holofernes he laye vpō the bed all dronken, & of very dronkēnes fell a slepe

Then commaunded Judith her mayden, to stāde without before the doze, & to wayte And Judith stode before the bedd, makynge her prayer with teares, and moued her lyppes secretly, and sayde: Strengthen me, O Lorde God of Israel, and haue respecte vnto the worckes of my handes in this houre, that thou mayest set vp thy cytie of Jerusalem, lyke as thou hast promysed: O graūte that by the I may perfourme þ thig, which I haue deuysed thorow the beleue that I haue in the,

And when she had spoken this, she wente to the bedsteade, ād lowsed the swerde that hanged vpon it, and drewit out. Then toke she hold of the hearrye lockes of hys heade, and sayde: Strengthen me, O Lorde God in thys houre. and with that, she gaue hym two strokes vpon the neck, ād smote of hys head. Then toke she the canapy awaye, and rolled the deed body aside. Immediatly she gat her forth, and deliuered the head of Holofernes vnto her mayden, and bad her put it in her walet.

And so these two wente forth together after theyr custome, as though they wolde praye, and so passed by the hoost, and came thorow the valley vnto the porte of the cytie. And Judith cryed afarre of vnto the watchmen vpon the walles: Opē the gates (sayde she) for God is with vs, which hath shewed his power in Israel. And when they heard her voyce, they called the elders of the cytie together. And they came al to mete her, lytle and greate, yonge & olde, for they thought not that she shuld haue come so soone, So they lyghted candels, and gathered aboute her euerychone: but she wente vp into an hye place, and caused silence to be proclamed.

When euery man now helde hys tonge, Judith sayde: O prayse the Lord our God, for he hath not despysed, nor forsaken them, that put theyr trust i hym, & in me his handmaidē he hath perfourmed his mercy, which he promysed vnto the house of Israel: pee in my hand thys same nyght hath he slayne þ enemy of hys people.

And with that she toke forth the head of Holofernes out of the wallet, and shewed it them, sayinge: Beholde the heade of Holofernes the captayne of the Assyrians, & this is the canapy, wherin he laye in his dronkēnes: where the Lorde oure God hath slayne him by the handē of a woman.

But as truly as the Lord liueth, his Angell hath kepte me, goynge thyther, remaynyng there, & cōmynge hyther agayne from thēce. And the Lord hath not suffred me his handmaydē to be defyled, but without any fylthines of synne hath he brought me agayne vnto you: & that wt greate victory, so þ I am escaped, and ye deliuered. O geue thankes vnto hym euerichone, for he his gracio⁹ and hys mercy endureth for euer.

So they praysed the Lorde altogether, & gaue thākes vnto hi. And to her they sayd: D The Lord hath blessed the in hys power, for thorow the he hath brought our enemies to naught. And Ozias the chefe ruler of þ people of Israel, sayd vnto her: Blessed art þ of the Lorde the hye God, aboue all wemen vpon earth.

Blessed be þ Lord, the maker of heauen & earth, which hath gyded þ a ryght to woūde and to smyte of the head of þ Captayne of oure enemyes. For this daye he hath made thy name so honorable, þ thy prayse shal neuer come oute of þ mouth of men, which shal all waye remembre the power of the Lorde, seige: thou hast not spared thyne awne self, but put the in ieopardy, considering the anguyth and trouble of thy people, and so hast helped theyr fall before God our Lord. And all the people sayde: Amen, Amen.

Achior also was called, & he came. Then sayde Judith vnto him: The God of Israel vnto whō þ gauest witnes, þ he wold be auēged of his enemyes, euē he hath thys nyght thorow my hād smytten of þ head of all the vnfaythfull. And that þ mayest se þ it so is, beholde this is þ head of Holofernes, which in his presumptuous pryde despysed þ God of the people of Israel, ād threatened the wt destrucciō, saying: whē þ people of Israel is taken, I shal cause þ also to be stycke with the swerde. When Achior sawe Holofernes head, he fell downe vpō his face to þ ground for very anguyth & feare, so þ he sowned wt all. But after þ he was come agayne to hi self, he fell downe before her, ād prayed her saying: Blessed art thou of thy God in all þ tabernacles of Jacob: for al the people that heare of thy name, shall praise the God of Israel because of the.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

¶ The counceil of Judith. Achior beyng an Heathen mā, turneth to God. The Assyrians are afrayed of the Iewes.

JUdith sayd vnto all the people: Bre thren, heare me. Stycke vp thys heade vpon our walles, and when þ Sūne aryseth, take euery man hys weapē, and fall out vyolently: not as though ye wolde go besyde them, but to renne vpon them, with violence. When the spyes in the tentes se this, they shall of necessyte be compelled to fle backward, ād to rayse vp theyr captayne to the battayll. So whē their captaynes come into Holofernes pauylyon, and fynde the dede body wrappedī ꝑ bloud, fearfulnes shall fall vpon them: and whē ye perceaue that they flye, folowe thē without all care, for God shall delyuer thē vnto you to be destroyed.

Then Achior seynge the power of God which he had shewed vnto the people of Israel, fell of from his heathenish belefe, and put his trust in God, and let hym selfe be circumcised: and so was he nombred among ꝑ people of Israel, he and al his posterite vnto thys daye.

Now as soone as it was daye, they stacke vp Holofernes head vpon the walles, and euery man toke hys weapen, & so they wente out with an horryble cry. Whē the spyes sawe that, they ranne vnto Holofernes tēt. And they that were within the tente, came before hys chamber, and made a greate rustlyg to wake hym vp, because they thought with the noyse to haue raysed him. For there durst not one of the Assyrians knocke, go in or open.

But when the captaynes and Rulers and all the chefe in the hynge of the Assyrians hoost came together, they sayde vnto the Chamberlaynes. Go youre waye in, ād wake him vp, for the myse are crepte out of theyr holes, and darre prouoke vs vnto battayll.

Then wente Bagao into hys chamber, stode before the bed, and clapped with hys handes, for he thought he had bene sleppynge with Judith.

But whē he had herkened perfectly with hys eares, and coulde perceaue no sterynge, he wente nyer to the bed, and lyft it vp, and thē sawe he ꝑ dede body of Holofernes lyēge there with oute a head, weltred in his bloud vpon the earthe. Then cryed he wyth loude voyce, and with wepinge rent hys clothes, and wente into Judiths tent, and found her not: And so he leapte out vnto the people & sayd: one woman of ꝑ Jewes, hath brought all Nabuchodonosors people to shame. For lo, Holofernes lyeth vpon the ground and hath no head.

When ꝑ chefe of the Assyriās hoost herd that, they rente theyr clothes, and there fell an intollerable feare and tremblynge vpon them, so ꝑ theyr myndes were sore afrayed, And there was an exceadyng greate crye in the whole hoost.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

¶ The feare of the Assyrians. The pursute of Israel after them. Israel becometh ryche, by the spoyles of the Assyrians. Judith is prayse of Joachim and of the people.

NOw when all ꝑ hoost herde ꝑ Holofernes was headed, their mynde & councell fell from them: and soch a feare came vpō them, that they vndertoke to defende them selues by flyeng awaye: one spake not to another, but hanged downe theyr heades, left all behynd them, and made haste to escape from the Hebrues: for they herde, that they were hastig to come after with theyr weapens, and so they fled by the wayes of the felde, & thorow all the fore pathes of the dales.

And when the chyldren of Israell sawe that they fled, they folowed vpon them and wente downe with trompettes, blowynge and makynge a greate crye after them. As for the Assyrians, they had no ordre, & kept not thē selues together, but fled theyr waye. Neuertheles, the chyldren of Israel fell vpō them with one company and ordre, and discomfeted as many as they myght gett. And Ozias sent messāgers vnto all the cyties and countrees of Israell.

So all the regyons and euery cytye sent out theyr best men after them in harnesse, & smote them with the swerde, tyll they came to ꝑ vttemost parte of theyr borders. And the other that were in Bethulia came into the tentes of the Assyrians, and toke all ꝑ they which were fled had left behynd them, and so they founde greate good. And they that came agayne to Bethulia from ꝑ battayll, toke with them soch thinges as had bene theyrs: there was no nombre of the catell, and of all costly Jewels, so that from the lowest vnto the hyest, they were al made ryche of the spoyles of them. And Joachim the hye preste at Jerusalem, came to Bethulya with all the elders, that they myght se Judith.

Now when she came out vnto them, they beganne all to prayse her with one voyce, sayinge: thou worthyppe of the cytye of Jerusalem, thou ioye of Israel, thou honoure of oure people, thou hast done manly, & thy herte is conforted, because thou hast loued clenlynes and chastyte, ād hast knowne no man but thyne awne husbād: therfore hath the hande of the Lorde confortted the, & blessed shalt ꝑ be for euer. And all people sayde: so be it, so be it.

In thyrty dayes coulde the people of Israel scarse gather vp the spoyles of ꝑ Assyrians. But all that belōged vnto Holofernes, and had bene hys, specyally (whether it were of gold, of syluer, precyous stones, clothyng, and all ornamentes) they gaue it vnto Judith. And al the people reioyced, both wemen, maydens, and yonge people, with pypes and herpes.

¶ The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ The songe of Judith for the victorye. After the victorye optayned, the people commeth to Jerusalem, to worshyp and prayse God.

Then

A Then ſonge Judith thys ſonge vnto ꝓ Lorde. Begynne vnto the Lord vpō the tabzettes, ſynge vnto the Lorde vpon the cymbales. O ſynge vnto hym a new ſonge of thankeſgeuynge, be ioyfull & call vpon hys name. It is the Lorde that deſtroyeth warres, euen the Lorde is hys name. Which hath pitched hys tentes i the myddeſt of hys people, that he myght delyuer vs from the hand of all oure enemyes. Aſſur came out of the mountaynes of the Nozth in the multytude of hys ſtrēgth. His people ſtopped the water bzokes, and theyr hozſes couered the valleyes. He purpoſed B to haue bzent vp my lande, and to ſlaye my yong men with the ſwerde.

He wolde haue caryed awaye my childzē and virgyns into captyuite, but ꝓ almyghtye lorde hyndzed hym, and delyuered hym into the hādes of a woman, which bzought hym to confuſyon. For theyr myghtie was not deſtroyed of the yonge men. It was not the ſonne of Titan that ſlew hym, nether haue the greate gyaūtes ſet them ſelues agaynſt hī: but Judith ꝓ daughter of Merari with her fayze bewtye hath diſcōfited hym, and bzought hym to naught. For ſhe layed awaye her wyddowes garment, and put on the apparel of gladneſſe to the reioyſynge of the chyldzē of Iſrael. She anoynted her face, and bounde vp her hearre in an hoode, to begyle hī. Her ſlyppers rauyſhed his eyes, her bewtie captyuated his mynde, with the ſwerde ſmote ſhe of hys neck. The Perſians were aſtonnied at her ſtedfaſtnes and the Medes at her boldnes. Then howled the armyes of the Aſſyzians, when my ſymple appeared, bzye of thzyſt. The ſōnes of the daughters haue pearſed thē thozowe and ſlayne them as fugytyue chyldzen: they C peryſhed in the battayl, for the very feare of the Lorde my God. Let vs ſynge a ſonge of thankeſgeuyng vnto the Lord, a new ſonge of prayſe wyll we ſynge vnto oure God.

Lorde, Lord, thou arte a great God, myghtye in power, whom no man may ouercome. All thy creatures ſhulde ſerue the: for thou ſpakeſt but the wozde, and they were made: thou ſenteſt thy ſpzyte, and they were created, and no man can withſtande thy voyce. The mountaynes ſhall moue from the foūdacyons with the waters, the ſtonye rockes ſhall melt before the lyke waxe. But they ꝓ feare the: ſhalbe greate with the i all thynges. Wo vnto ꝓ people that ryſe vp againſt my generacyon, for the Almyghtye Lorde will auenge hym ſelfe of them, and in the daye of iudgement wyll he viſet them. For he ſhall geue fyze and wozmes into theyr fleſh, that they may burne and fele it for euermoze.

D After thys it happened, that after the victozy, all the people came to Jeruſalē, to geue prayſe and thankes vnto the Lorde. And when they were puryfyed, they offred all theyr bzent ſacryfyces and theyr promyſed offrynges. And Judith offred all Holofernes weapens, and all ꝓ Jewels, that the people had geuen her, and the canapy that ſhe toke from his bed, and hanged them vp vnto the Lorde. The people was ioyfull, as the vſe is: and this ioye by reaſon of the victozy with Judith, endured thze monethes.

So after theſe dayes, euery man wente home agayne, and Judith was i greate reputacyon at Bethulya, and pryght honozably taken in all the lād of Iſrael. Unto her vertue alſo was chaſtyte ioyned, ſo that after her huſbande Manaſſes dyed, ſhe neuer knewe man all the dayes of her lyfe. Upon the bye ſolempne dayes ſhe wente out with greate wozſhyppe. She dwelt in her huſbādes houſe an hundzed and fyue peare, & left her handmayden fre, and dyed, and was buryed beſyde her huſbāde in Bethulya. And all the people mourned for her ſeuen dayes. So longe as ſhe lyued there was none that troubled Iſrael, and many peares alſo after her death.

The daye wherin this victozy was gotten, was ſolemply holden, and reckened of ꝓ Jewes in the nombze of the holy dayes, and it is yet greatly holden of the Jewes euer lence, vnto thys daye.

¶ The ēde of the boke of Judith.

¶ The reaste of the Chapters of the booke of Esther which are nether founde in the Hebrue, ner in the Chalde,

¶ The .xi. Chapter, after the Latyn.

¶ The dreame of Mardocheus.

A MArdocheus ꝑ sonne of Jair, the sonne of Semei, ꝑ sonne of Cisei of the tribe of Beniamin, a Jewe: which had his dwellyng in the cytie of Sulis, a man of greate reputacyon, and excellent amõge al them that were in the kynges courte. (Neuertheles, he was one of the prisõers, whõ Nabuchodonosor ꝑ kynge of Babylon had caried awaye from Jerusalem vnto Babylon with Jechonias the kyng of Juda.) In the seconde yeare of the raygne of great Artaxerses in the fyrst daye of the moneth Nisan, had this Mardoche⁹ soch a dreame: he thought he herde a greate tempest, horrible thõderclappes, erthquakes & great vproure in the lãd, and that he sawe two great dragons, ready to fyght one agaynst another. Theyr crye was greate. At the which roaryng and crye al heathen were vp, to fyght agaynst the ryghteous people. And ꝑ same daye was full of darckenes ad very vnclearc, full of trouble and anguysh, yee a greate fearfulnes was there in all the lande. The ryghteous were amased, for they feared the plage and euel that was deuysed ouer them, and were at a poynte võ them selues to dye. So they cryed vnto God: and whyle they were crienge, ꝑ lytle well grewe ⁊ to a great ryuer and into many waters. And with ꝑ it was daye, and the sunne rose vp agayne. And the lowly were exalted, and deuoured the gloryous and proude.

Now when Mardocheus had sene thys dreame, he awoke, & mused stedfastly in his herte, what God wolde do: ād so he desyred to knowe all the matter, & his mynde was therupon vntyll the nyght.

¶ The .xii. Chapter.

¶ Mardocheus vttereth the treason deuysed agaynst the kyng, and is therfore rewarded of hym.

A AT the same tyme dwelt Mardoche⁹ wyth Bagatha and Tares i the kynges courte the kynges Chamberlaynes and porters of the palace. But when he hearde theyr deuyce, & had dylygently consydered theyr ymagynacyons, he perceaued that they wente aboute, to laye theyr cruell handes vpon the kynge Artaxerses and so he certifyed the kyng therof. Then caused the kynge to examen the two gelded wyth tormentes. And when they had graunted it, they were put to death.

This the kyng caused to be put in ꝑ Cronycles for an euerlastyng remembraunce, & Mardocheus wrote vp ꝑ same matter. So the kynge commaunded that Mardocheus shulde remayne in the courte, and for thys faythfulnesse of his, he gaue him a rewarde. But Aman ꝑ sonne of Amadathu the Agagite, which was holden in greate honoure & reputacion in the kynges courte vndertoke to hurte Mardocheus and hys people, because of the two Chamberlaynes that were put to death.

¶ The .xiii. Chapter.

¶ The coppe of the letters of Artaxerses agaynst the Jewes. The prayer of Mardocheus.

A THe great kig Artaxerses which raigneth fro India vnto Ethiopia, ouer an hũdred and seuē and twentye lãdes, sendeth his frendly salutacion vnto all ꝑ princes and debytes of the countrees, which be subiecte vnto his dominyon. Whē I was made lorde ouer many people, and had subdued the whole earthe vnto my dominyon, my mynde was not with crueltye and wronge to exalte my selfe by ꝑ reason of my power: but purposed with equyte alwaye and gentylnes, to gouerne thole that be vnder my iurisdiccyon, and wholy to set them i a peaceable lyfe, and therby to bryngе my kyngdome vnto tranquillite, that mẽ myght safely go thorow on euery syde, and to renue peace agayne, which all men desyre. Now whē I asked my counceilers how these thynges myght be brought to a good ende, there was one by vs, excellent in wysdome, whose good will, trueth, & faythfulnes hath oft bene shewed and proued (which was also ꝑ principall and next vnto the kynge). Amã by name: which certyfyed vs, how that i all lãdes there was scatred abrode a rebellyo⁹ folke, that made statutes & lawes agaynst all other people, ād haue alwaye despysed the proclamed commaundementes of kynges: ād how that for thys cause it were not to be suffred, that soch rule shulde contynue by you and not to be put downe. Seynge: now we perceaue the same, that this people alone are contrary vnto euery man, vsinge straunge and other maner of lawes, & withstande oure statutes and doynges, ād go aboute to stablish shrewed matters, that our kingdome shuld neuer come to good estate, and stedfastnes: Therfore haue we cõmaunded, that all they ꝑ are appoynted in wrytyng and shewed vnto you by Amã (which is ordeyned and sett ouer all oure landes) and the most principall next vnto the kynge, and in maner as a father (shall with theyr wyues and chyldren be destroyed and roted oute wyth the swerde of theyr enemyes myes and aduersaries: and that there shalbe no mercy shewed, and no man spared. And thys shalbe done the. xiiii. daye of ỳ moneth (called Adar) of this yeare, that they which of olde (and now also) haue euer bene rebellious, maye in one daye wyth vyolence be thrust downe into the hel, to ỳ intẽt that after this maner, oure empire maye haue peace and tranquilite.

D But Mardocheus thought vpon all the woȝckes and noble actes of the Lorde, and made his prayer vnto him, saying: O Lord Lorde, thou valeaunt and almyghtie kyng (for all thiges are ỉ thy power,) and yf thou wilt helpe ȝ deliuer Israell, there is no man that can withstande ner lett ỳ: for thou hast made heauen and earth, and what wonderous thinge so euer is vnder the heauẽ: thou art Lord of all thinges, and there is no man that can resist thy maiestie (O Lord) Thou knowest all thynges, thou wotest Lorde, ỳ it was nether of malice, ner presumptiõ, ner for eny despȝe of glozy, ỳ I wolde not bowe downe my selfe ner woȝshyp ponder proud presumpteous Amã (for I wolde haue bene content, ȝ that with good will, yf it myght haue done Israel eny good, to haue kyst cuẽ his fote steppes) but that I dyd it, because I wolde not sett the honoure of a man in the steade of the glozye of God, and because I wolde woȝshyp none but onely ỳ my Lorde. And thys haue I done in no pryde ner presumpcyon.

E And therfore O Lorde thou God ȝ kyng, haue mercy vpõ thy people for they ymagin how they maye bryngе vs to naught, yee they ȝ minde and desire is to destroye and to ouerthrowe thy people, that hath euer bene thine enheritaũce of olde. O despyse not thy porciõ, which thou hast deliuered ȝ brought oute of Egypte for thyne awne selfe. Heare my prayer, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, whom ỳ hast chosen for an heretage vnto thy selfe. Turne oure complaynte and sorowe into ioye, ỳ we maye lyue O Lord, and praise thy name. O Lord, suffre not ỳ mouthes of thẽ that praise the, to be destroyed.

All the people of Israell in lyke maner cryed as earnestly as they coulde vnto the Lorde, for ȝ̃ ȝ̃ death and destruccion stode before ȝ̃ ȝ̃ eyes.

¶ The. xiiii. Chapter.

¶ The prayer of Esther for the deliueraunce of her and her people.

Vene Esther also bynge in the battayll of death, resorted vnto the Lorde, layed awaye her glozyous apparell, and put on the garmentes that serued for syghtlige and mournynge. In the steade of precious oyntment, she scatered asshes and donge vpõ her head: and as for her body, she humbled it wyth fastynge, and brought te very lowe. All ỳ places where she was wonte to haue ioye afore, those fylled she with ỳ hearre, ỳ she plucte of her selfe. She prayed also vnto the Lorde God of Israell wyth these wordes.

O my Lorde, thou onely art oure kynge, helpe me desolate woman, whych haue no helper but the, for my misery and destrucciõ is harde at my hãde. Fro my youth vp I haue herde oute of ỳ kynred of my father, that thou tokest Israel from amonge all people (ȝ so haue oure fathers of their fore elders) ỳ they shulde be thy perpetuall inheritaũce, and loke what thou bidest promise thẽ, thou hast made it good vnto them.

Now Lorde, we haue synned before the, 25 therfore hast thou geuen vs into the handes of oure enemyes, because we woȝshypped ỳ̃ ȝ̃ goddes. Lorde, thou art ryghteous. Neuertheles it satisfieth them not, that we are in bytter and heuy captiuite and oppressed amonge them, but thou hast layed ỳ̃ ȝ̃ handes vpon the handes of ỳ̃ ȝ̃ goddes: so that they begynne to take awaye, ỳ thyng that thou with thy mouth hast ordened and appoynted, to destroye thyne inheritaunce, to shut and to stoppe ỳ mouthes of thẽ that praise the, to quench the glozy ȝ woȝshyp of thy house and thine aulter, and to open ỳ mouthes of the heathen, ỳ they may praise the power and vertue of the goddes, and to magnifie the fleshly kynge for euer.

O Lord, geue not thy scepter vnto them C that be nothing, lest they laugh vs to scorne in oure mysery ȝ fall: but turne ỳ̃ ȝ̃ deuise vpõ them selues, and punish him, that hath begõne the same ouer vs, and sett him to an example. Thynche vpon vs O Lorde, and shew thy selfe vnto vs in the tyme of oure distres and of oure trouble. Strẽgth me O thou kynge of Goddes, thou Lord of all power, geue me an eloquent ȝ pleasaũt speach in my mouth before the Lyon. Turne hys hert into ỳ hate of oure enemye, to destroye him, and all soch as consent vnto hym. But deliuer vs with thy hande, and helpe me thy hand mayde, which haue no defence ner helper but onely the. Lorde, thou knowest all thynges, ỳ wotest that I loue not the glozy and woȝshyp of the vnryghteous, and that I hate and abhorre the bed of the vncircumcysed and of all heathen.

Thou knowest my necessite, that I hate the token of my preeminence and woȝshipp, which I beare vpon my head, what time as I must shew my self and be sene, and that I abhorre it as an vncleane cloth, and that I weare it not when I am quyete and alone by my selfe. Thou knowest also that I thy hande mayden haue not eaten at Amãs table, and that I haue had no pleasure noȝ de-lyte in the kynges feaste, that I haue not dȝȝcke the wyne of the dȝinckoffringes, and that I thy hãde mayden haue no iope sence the daye that I was bȝought hyther, vnto this daye, but onely in the O Lord. O thou God of Abȝahã, O ꝑ mightie God aboue al, heare the voyce of them, ꝑ haue none other hope, and deliuer vs out of the hande of the wicked, and deliuer me out of my feare.

¶ The .xv. Chapter.

¶ Mardochеus moueth Hester to go into the kynge, and make intercession for her people, and ther̃ȝ: meth hys request.

¶ MArdocheus also bad Hester go in vnto the kynge, and ꝓaye for hyr people and for hyr countre. Remẽbȝe (sayeth he) ꝑ dayes of thy lowe estate, how thou wast nozyshed vnder my hande: For Aman which is next vnto the kyng, hath geuen sentence of death agaynst vs. Call thou therfore vpon the Lozde, and speake for vs vnto the kyng, and deliuer vs from death. And vpon ꝑ thyrde daye it happened, that Hester layed awaye the mournynge garmentes, and put on her glozyous apparell, & deckte her selfe goodly (after ꝑ she had called vpon God, which is ꝑ beholder and Sauyoure of all thinges) toke two maydes with her: vpõ the one she leaned her selfe, as one ꝑ was tender: the other folowed her, and bare the trayne of her vesture. The shyne of her bewtie made her face rose colourcd. The similitude of her face was chearful and amyable, but her hertc was sozowfull for greate feare. She wẽte in thozow all the dozes, and stode befoze the kyng. The kyng satt vpon the trone of hys kyngdome, and was clothed i his goodly araye, all of golde and set with ꝓecious stones, & he was very terrible. He lyft vp hys face, that shone in ꝑ clearnes, and loked grymly vpõ her. Then fell the Quene downe, was pale and faynt, leaned her selfe vpõ the heade of the mayde that wente with her.

¶ Neuertheles, God turned ꝑ kinges mynde that he was gentle, ꝑ he leaped oute of hys seate for feare, ãd gat her in his armes, and held her vp tyll she came to her selfe agayne. He gaue her louynge wozdes also, and sayd vnto her: Hester, what is the matter? I am thy bzother, be of good cheare thou shalt not dye: for oure commaundement toucheth the comõs and not ꝑ. Come nye. And with ꝑ he helde vp his golden rodd, and layde it vpon her neck, and embzaced her fredly, and sayd: talke with me. Thẽ sayd she: * I saw ꝑ (O Lozd) as an Angell of God, & my hert was troubled for feare of thy maiestly and clearnesse: For excellent and wodderfull art thou (O Lozd) and thy face is full of amyte. But as she was thus speakyng vnto him, she fell downe agayne for fayntnes: for the which cause the king was afrayed, and all his seruauntes comfozted her.

* gr. ¶¶¶¶ll. b

¶ The .xvi. Chapter.

¶ The coppe of the letters of Artharxerxes, wherby he reuoketh those which he hyld sent forth.

¶ THe greate kynge Artharxerxes, which raigned frõ India vnto Ethiopia ouer an hundzeth & .xxvii. landes, sendeth vnto the ¶ynces and rulers of the same landes, soch as loue him, hys frendly salutacion. There be many ꝑ for the londzye frendshyppes and benefites which are diuersly done vnto thẽ for theyr wozshyp, be euer the moze ꝓoude and hye mynded, and vndertake not onely to hurte our subiectes (for plentcous benefites maye they not suffre, and begynne to ymagin some thing agaynst those that do them good, & take not onely all vnthankfulnes awaye from men) but in ꝓyde and ꝓesumpcõ (as they that be vnmyndefull and vnthankfull for the good dedes) they go about to escape the iudgement of God, that seyth all thynges, which (iudgement) hateth & punysheth all wyckednes. It happeneth oft also, that they which be set in office by ꝑ hyer power, and vnto whom the busynes and causes of the subiectes are committed to be handled, ware ꝓoude, and defyle them selues wyth sheddynge of innocent bloude, which bzyngeth them to intollerable hurte. Which also with false & disceatfull wozdes and with lyeng tales, disceaue and betraye the innocent goodnes of ¶ynces.

Now is it ꝓofytable and good, that we take hede, make search therafter, and consider, not onely what hath happened vnto vs of olde: but the shamefull vnhonest, & nopsome thinges, that the debites haue now taken in hande before oure eyes, and therby to beware in tyme to come, ꝑ we maye make the kyngdome quyete and peaceable for all men, and that we myght some tyme dzawe it to a chaunge: and as for the thynge that now is ꝓesent before oure eyes, to wythstãde it, and to put it downe, after the moost frendly maner.

What tyme now as Aman the sonne of Amadathu ꝑ Macedonian (a straunger verely of the Persians bloude, and farre from oure goodnes) was come in amonge vs as an alcaunt, and had optayned the frendshyp that we beare towarde all people, so that he was called oure father, and had in hye honoure of euery man, as the next and ꝓincipall vnto the kynge, he coulde not for beare hym selfe from hys ꝓyde, hath vndertaken not onely to robbe vs of the kyngdome, but of oure lyfe.

With manyfolde disceate also hath he desired to destroye Mardocheus oure helper & ꝓeserucr, preseruet, whych hath done vs good in all thinges: and innocēt Hester the lyke partaker of oure kyngdome, with all her people. For his mynde was (when he had taken the oute of the waye, and robbed vs of them) by this meanes to translate ꝑ kingdome of the Persians vnto the of Macedonia. But we fynde, that the Jewes (which were accused of the wicked, that they might be destroied) are no cruell doers, but vse reasonable and right lawes: and that they be the children of the most hye lyuynge God, by whom the kyngdome of vs & oure progenitours hath bene well ordred hitherto. Wherfore, as for the letters and cōmaundemētes, that were put forth by Aman the sonne of Amadathu, ye shall do well, yf ye holde them of none effect: for he that sett them vp and inuented thē, hāgeth at Susis before the porte, with all his kynred, & God (which hath all thynges in his power) hath rewarded hym after hys deseruynge.

D And vpō thys ye shall publish and set vp the copy of this letter in all places, that the Jewes maye frely and without hinderaunce holde them selues after theyr awne statutes, and that they maye be helped, and that vpon the. xiii. daye of the. xii. moneth. Adar, they maye be auenged of them, which in the tyme of theyr anguysh and trouble, wolde haue oppressed them. For the God that gouerneth all thinges, hath turned to ioye the daye, where in the chosen people shulde haue perysshed.

Wherfore, amonge the hye solēpne dayes ye haue, ye shall holde this daye also with all gladnesse: that now and in tyme to come thys daye maye be a remēbraunce to good, for all soch as loue ꝑ prosperite of the Persians: but a remembraunce of destruccyō to thole that be sedicyous vnto vs.

All cityes & landes that do not this, shall horribly perysh and be destroyed wyth the swerde and fyre, and shall not onely be nomore inhabited of men, but be abhorred also of the wylde beastes and fowles.

The ende of the reast of the boke of Esther.

¶ The booke of wysdome,

¶ The fyrst Chapter.

¶ How we ought to searche and enquyre after God, & who be thole that fynde hym. Of the holy goost, we ought to flye from backbitynge & murmurynge, &c.

Sett youre affeccyō vpō rygh- A teousnesse, ye that be iudges of the earth. Haue a good opinion of the Lorde, and seke hym in ꝑ synglenesse of herte. For he wil be founde of them ꝑ tempte him not, & appeareth vnto soch as put their trust in him. As for frowarde thoughtes, they separate from God, but vertu (yf it be alowed) refourmeth the vnwyse. And why? wysdome shall not entre into a frowarde soule, ner dwell in the body that is subdued vnto synne. For ꝑ holy goost abhorreth fayned nurtoure, & withdrawe th hym selfe from the thoughtes that are without vnderstādyng: and where wyckednes hath the vpper hāde, he flyeth from thence. For the spryte of wysdome is louynge, gētle and gracyous, & wyll haue no pleasure in hym that speaketh euell wyth hys lyppes. For God is a wytnesse of hys reynes, a true searcher out of hys herte, and an hearer of hys tōge. For the spryte of ꝑ Lord fylleth the rounde compasse of the worlde: & the same that vpholdeth all thynges, hath knowledge also of the voyce.

Therfore, he that speaketh vnrygh- B
teous thinges, can not be hydd, nether maye he escape the iudgement of reprofe. And why? inquysicion shalbe made for the thoughtes of the vngodly, and the reporte of hys wordes shall come vnto God, for that his wickednes shalbe punished. For ꝑ eare of gelousy heareth all thynges, and the noyse of the grudginges shall not be hydd. Therfore, beware of murmurynge, which is nothynge worth, and refrayne youre tonge from sclaunder. For there is no worde so darck and secrete, ꝑ it shall goo for naught: and the mouth that speaketh lyes, slayeth the soule.

O seke not youre awne death in the er- C rour of your lyfe, destroye not your selues thorow the worckes of youre awne hādes. For God hath not made death, nether hath he pleasure in the destruccyon of the lyuynge. For he created all thinges, that they myght haue their beynge: yee all the people of the earth hath he made ꝑ they shuld haue healthe that there shulde be no destruccyon in them, and that the kyngdome of hell shulde not be vpō earth (for rigteousnesse is euerlasting and immortall, but vnrygh teousnes bryngeth death.) Neuerthelelle the vngodly call her

her vnto them both with wordes & workes: and whyle they thynche to haue a frende of her, they come to naught: for the vngodly that are confederate with her and take her parte, are worthy of death.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ The ymagina*cyons and despites of the wycked, and their councell agaynst the faythfull.

1 FOr the vngodly talke and ymagin tt us amonge them selues (but not ryght:) The tyme of oure lyfe is but shorte and tedyous: and when a man is once gone, he hath nomore hope nor pleasure, nether knowe we eny mā that turneth agayne from death: for we are borne of naught, and we shall be hereafter as though we had neuer bene. For oure breth is as a smoke in oure nosetreis, and the wordes as a sparck to moue oure herte. As for oure body, it shalbe very asshes that are quenched, and oure soule shall vanish as the soft ayre. Oure lyfe shal passe awaye as the trace of a cloude, and come to naught as the myst that is dryuē awaye with ỳ beames of the Sonne, and put downe with the heate therof.
Oure name also shalbe forgotten by lytle & lytle, and no man shall haue oure worches in remembraunce.

5 For oure tyme is a very shadow ỳ passeth awaye, & after oure ende there is no returnyng. for it is fast sealed, so that no man cōmeth agayne. Come on therfore, let vs enioye the pleasures that ther are, and lett vs soone vse the creature lyke as in youth. Let vs fyll oure selues with good wyne & oyntment, and let there no floure of the tyme go by vs. Let vs crowne our selues with roses afore they be wythered. Let there be no fayre medowe, but oure lust go thorow it. Lett euery one of you be partaker of oure voluptuousnes. Let vs leaue some tokē of our pleasure in euery place, for that is oure porcion, els get we nothynge. Lett vs oppresse the poore ryghteous, let vs not spare the wyddow ner olde mā: let vs not regarde the heades that are gray for age. Let ỳ lawe of vnryghteousnelle be our auctoritie, for ỳ thing that is feble is nothing worth. Therfore let vs defraude the ryghteous, and why? he is not for oure profyt, yee he is cleane cōtrary to oure doynges. He checketh vs for offendynge agaynst ỳ law, and sclaūdreth vs as trāsgressours of all nurtour. He maketh his boast to haue the knowledge of God, yee he calleth him self Goddes sonne. he is the bewrayer of our thoughtes: Iegreueth vs also to loke vpō him, for his life is not like other mens, his wayes are of another fashyon. he counteth vs but vayne persones, he withdraweth hym self from oure wayes as frō fylthynes: he commendeth greatly the latter ende of the iust, and maketh his boast that God is his father. Let vs se then yf his wordes be true, lett vs proue what shall come vpon hym: so shall we knowe what ende he shall haue. For yf he be ỳ true sonne of God he will receaue him, and delyuer hym from the handes of hys enemyes. Let vs examen hym with despytefull rebuke and tormentynge, that we maye knowe his dignite, & proue hys pacience. Lett vs condemne hym with the moste shameful death: for lyke as he hath spoken, so shall he be rewarded. D

Soch thynges do the vngodly ymagin, and go astraye, for their awne wyckednes hath blynded them. As for the mysteries of God, they vnderstande thē not: they nether hope for the rewarde of ryghteousnelle, ner regarde ỳ worshipp that holy soules shall haue. For God created mā to be vndestroyed, yee after ỳ * ymage of hys awne lyckenesse made he hi. Neuertheleile thorow enuye of the deuell came death in to the worlde: and they that holde of hys syde, do as he doth. * Ge. ii.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ The conseruacyon and assurance of ỳ ryghteous. The rewarde of the faythfull.

BUt the soules of the ryghteous are 1
in the hande of God, and the payne of death shall not touche thē. In the syght of ỳ vnwyse they appeared to dye, and their ende is taken for very destrucciō. The waye of the righteous is iudged to be vtter destruccyon, but they are in rest. And though they suffre payne before men, yet is their hope full of immortalyte. They are punyshed but in fewe thinges, neuertheleile in many thiges shal they be well rewarded. For God proueth them, and fyndeth them mete for him selfe: yee as ỳ golde in the fornace doth he trye them, and receaueth thē as a brent offeringe, and when the tyme commeth, they shalbe loked vpon.

The ryghteous shall shyne as ỳ sparkes 5
that renne thorow the red bulshe. They shal iudge the nacyons, and haue dominion ouer the people, and their Lord shall raygne for euer. They that put their trust in him, shal vnderstāde the trueth, and soch as be faythfull, will agree vnto him in loue: for his chosen shall haue gyftes and peace. But the vngodly shalbe punyshed accordynge to their awne ymaginacions, for they haue despised the ryghteous, and forsaken the Lorde.

Who so despiseth wysedome & nurtour, he is vnhappye, and as for the hope of soche, it is but vayne, their labours vnfrutefull, & their workes vnprofitable. Their wyues are vndiscrete, and their chyldren moste vngodly. Their creature is cursed. Blessed is rather the baren and vndefyled, which hath not knowne the synfull bedd: she shall haue frute frute in the reward of the holy soules. And blessed is the gelded, which with his handes hath wrought no vnrighteousnes, nor ymagined wicked thinges against God. For vnto him shall be geuē ꝑ speciall gift of fayth, D and the most acceptable porcion in the temple of God. For glorious is ꝑ frute of good labour, and the rote of wysdome shall neuer fade awaye. As for the chyldren of aduouterers, they shall come to an ende, & the seede of an vnrighteous bedd shall be roted out. And though they lyue longe, yet shall they be nothing regarded, and their last age shalbe without honoure. Yf they dye hastely they haue no hope, nether shal they be spoke to in the daye of knowledge. For horrible is the death and ende of the vnrighteous.

¶The.iiii.Chapter.

¶Of the chaste generacyon of the faythfull, and of their felicite. Of the death of ꝑ vnrighteous, and of the condemnacyon, of the vnfaythfull.

A HOwfayre is a chaste generacyon with vertue? The memoriall therof is immortall, for it is knowne with God and with men. When it is present, men take example there at: and yf it goo awaye, yet they desyre it. It is all waye crowned and holden in honour, and wynneth the reward of the vndefyled battayll. But ꝑ multitude of vngodly children is vnprofitable, & the thinges that are planted with whordome, shal take no depe rote, nor laye eny fast foundacion. Though they be grene in ꝑ braunches, for a tyme, yet shal they be shaken with ꝑ wynde: for they stande not fast, and thorow ꝑ vehemencie of the wynde they shalbe roted out. For ꝑ vnperfecte braunches shalbe broken, their frute shalbe vnprofitable and sowre to eate, yee mete for nothynge. And why? all ꝑ children that are borne of the wicked, muste beare record of ꝑ wyckednesse agaynst their fathers & mothers, when they be asked. But though the vnrighteous be ouertaken with death, yet shall he be in rest.

A Age is an honorable thinge: neuertheles it standeth not onely in the length of tyme, nor in the multitude of yeares: but a mans wysdome is the graye hearre, and an vndefyled lyfe is the olde age. He pleased God, & was beloued of him: so that where as he lyued amōge synners, he translated him. *Yee sodenly was he taken awaye, to the intent that wyckednesse shulde not alter hys vnderstandyng, & that ꝓpocrisie shulde not begyle his soule. For the craftye bewitchynge of lyes make good thynges darck, the vnstedfastnesse also and wyckednes of voluptuous desyre turne a syde the vnderstanding of the symple. Though he was soone deed, yet fulfylled he moch tyme: For hys soule pleased God: therfore hasted he to take him awaye from amonge the wycked. This the people se, and vnderstande it not, they laye not vp soche thynges in their hertes, how that the louynge fauoure and mercy of God is vpon his saincters, and that he hath respecte vnto hys chosen.

Thus the vnrighteous that is deed condemneth the vngodly which are lyuynge: and ꝑ youth that is soone brought to an ende, the longe lyfe of the vnrighteous. For they se ꝑ ende of the wyse, but they vnderstande not what God hath deuysed for him, and wherfore the Lord hath taken hym awaye. And why? they se him and despyse him, therfore shall God also laugh thē to scorne: So that they thē selues shall dye here after (but wythout honour) yee in shame among the deed for euermore. For without eny voyce shall he burst those that be puft vp, & remoue thē from the foundacyons, so that they shalbe layed waste vnto ꝑ hyest. They shall mourne, and their memoryall shall perysh. So they beynge afrayed shall remembre their synnes, and their awne wyckednesse shall be wraye them. C

¶The.v.Chapter.

¶The constantnes of the vnrighteous before their persecutors. The hope of the vnfaythfull is vnsurable and vayne. The blyndenes of the sayntes and godly.

THen shall ꝑ vnrighteous stāde in great stedfastnesse agaynst soche as haue dealt extremely wyth them, and taken awaye their labours. When they se it, they shalbe vexed wyth horryble feare, and shall wonder at the hastynesse of ꝑ sodayne health: groninge for very distresse of mynde and shall saye within them selues, bauynge inwarde sorowe, and mournynge for very anguysh of mynde. A

Thes are they, whom we somtyme had in derision, & iested vpō. We fooles thought their lyfe very madnesse, and their ende to be with out honour. But lo, how they are counted amōg ꝑ children of God, & their porcyon is amonge the sayntes. Therfore we haue erred frō the waye of truthe, the lyght of vnrighteousnesse hath not shyned vnto vs, and the sonne of vnderstanding rose not vp vpon vs. We haue wered our selues in the waye of wyckednesse and destrucyon. Tedious wayes haue we gone: but as for the waye of the Lorde we haue not knowne it.

What good hath oure pryde done vnto vs? Or, what profyte hath the pompe of ryches brought vs? All those thinges are passed awaye lyke a shadow, and as a messaunger renninge before: as a shippe that passeth ouer the waues of the water, which when it is gone by, the trace therof cannot be founde nether the path of it in the floudes. Or as a B

bryde

byrde that flieth thorow in the ayre, and no man can se eny token where she is flowen, but only heareth the noyse of her wynges, beatinge the lyght wynde, partinge ꝑ ayre, thorow the vehemencye of her goynge, and seeth on shakyng her wynges, where as after warde no token of her waye can be founde. Or lyke as when an arowe is shott at a marck, it parteth ꝑ ayre, which immediatly commeth together agayne, so that a mã can not know where it wente thorow. Euē so we in lyke maner as soone as we were borne, began immediatly to drawe to ouer ende, & haue shewed no token of vertue, but are consumed in oure awne wyckednesse.

C Doch wordes shall they that haue synned speake in the hell: for the hope of ꝑ vngodly is lyke a drie thystell floure (or dust) that is blowen awaye with the winde: lyke a thynne scomme that is scatred abrode with the storme: lyke as the smoke which is dispersed here and there wt the winde, & as the remembraunce of a straunger ꝑ tarieth for a daye, and the departeth. But the ryghteous shall lyue for euermore: their reward also is with the Lord: and their remembraunce with the hyest. Therfore, shal they receaue a glorio⁹ kyngdome, and a bewtyfull crowne of the Lordes hande: for wt hys ryght hande shall he couer thē, and with hys awne holy arme shal he defende thē. His gelousy also shal take awaye the harnesse, & he shall weapen the creature to be auēged of ꝑ enemies. He shall put on ryghtousnes for a breast plate, and take sure iudgement in stede of an helmet. The inuincible shilde of equite shal he take, his cruell wrath shal he sharpen for a speare and the whole compase of the worlde shall fyght with hym agaynst the vnwyse.

D Then shall the thonder boltes go out of the lightninges, and come out of the rayne bowe of the cloudes to the place apoynted: out of ꝑ heardе stony indignacion there shal fall thyck hayles, and the water of the see shalbe wroth agaynst them, and the floudes shall renne roughly together. Yee a mighty wynde shall stande vp agaynst them, and a storme shal scater them abrode. Thus ꝑ vnryghteous dealynge of thē shall bringe all the lande to a wilderness, & wyckednes shall ouerthrowe the dwellinges of the mightye.

C The. vi. Chapter.

C The callynge of kynges, Rulers, and Iudges: which are also exhorted to searche wysdome.

A Wysdome is better then strength, and a man of vnderstandyng is more worth then one ꝑ is strōg. Heare therfore (O ye kynges) & vnderstande: O lerne ye that be iudges of the endes of the earth. Geue eare ye that rule the multitudes, & delite in moch people. For the power is geuen you of the Lorde, and the strength frō the hyest: which shall trye youre worckes & search out youre ymaginacions: how that ye beinge officiers of his kingdome, haue not executed true iudgement, haue not kepte ꝑ lawe of righteousnes, nor walked after ꝑ wyll of God horribly & that ryght soone shall he appeare vnto you: for an harde iudgement shal they haue that beare rule. Mercye is graunted vnto the symple, but they that be in auctorite shalbe sore punished. For God which is lord ouer all, shall excepte no mans persone, neither shall he stāde i awe of any mans greatnesse. For he hath made the small & greate, & careth for all alyke. But the myghty shal haue the sorer punyshement.

Unto you therfore (O ye kynges) do I speake, that ye maye lerne wisdome and not go amysse. For they ꝑ kepe hys ryghteousnes shalbe ryghteously iudged, & they that are lerned in righteous thinges, shall fynde to make answere. Wherfore, set youre lust vpon my wordes, and loue them, so shall ye C come by nurtour. Wisdome is a noble thynge, and neuer faydeth awaye: yee she is easely sene of thē that loue her, and founde of soche as seke her. She preuēteth thē that desire her, ꝑ she maye fyrst shewe her selfe vnto thē. Who so awaketh vnto her by times, shall haue no greate trauayle, for he shall fynde her syttinge readye at hys dores. To thincke vpon her, is parfecte vnderstādyng: and who so watcheth for her, shalbe safe, and ꝑ soone. For she goeth aboute, seekynge soch as are mete for her, sheweth her selfe cherfully vnto them in their goynges, and meeteth thē with all diligēce. For the vnfayned desire of reformacyō is her begynnyng: to care for nurtour is loue, and loue is the keepynge of her lawes. Now the keepyng of the lawe is perfeccion and an vncorrupte lyfe, and an vncorrupte lyfe maketh a man familier with God. And so ꝑ desire of wysdome ledeth to the kyngdome euerlastynge. If D youre delyte be thē in royall seates and septers (O ye kynges of the people) set youre lust vpō wysdome, that ye maye raygne for euer more. O loue the lyght of wisdome, all ye that be rulers of the people. As for wysdome what she is, and how she came vp, I wyll tell you, and wyll not hyde the mysteryes of God from you: but wyll seke her out from the begynnynge of the natiuite, and bringe the knowledge of her into lyght, & wyll not kepe back the trueth: Neither wyll I haue to do wyth consumynge enuye, for soch a man shall not be partaker of wysdome. But the multytude of the wyse is the welfare of the worlde, & a wyse kyng is the vpholdynge of the people. O receaue nourtoure then thorowe my wordes, and it shall do you good.

The

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ Wysdome ought to be preferred before all thynges.

I Myselfe also am a mortall mā, lyke as all other, and am come of the earthy generacyon of hym that was fyrst made, and in my mothers wombe was I fashyoned to be fleshy: In the tyme often monethes was I brought together in bloude thorow the sede of man, and the commodyous appetyte of slepe. Whē I was borne, I receaued lyke ayre as other men, & fell vpō the earth (which is my nature) cryeng and weepynge at the fyrst, as all other do. I was wrapped in swadlynge clothes, and brought vp with greate cares. For there is no kig that hath had eny other begynnynge of byrth. All mē then haue one entraunce vnto lyfe, and one goinge out in lyke maner.

Wherfore I desyred, and vnderstanding was geuen me: I called, and the spyrite of wysdome came into me. I sett more by her then by kyngdomes and ropall seates, and counted ryches nothynge in comparison of her. As for precio' stone, I compared it not vnto her: for all golde is but grauell vnto her, and syluer shalbe counted but claye before her sight. I loued her aboue welfare & beutye, & purposed to take her for my lyght for her lyght cannot be quenched. All good thynges came to me with her, & innumerable ryches thorowe her handes. I was glad in thē all, for thys wysdome wente before me, ād I knew not that she is the mother of all good thinges. Now as I my selfe learned vnfaynedly, so do I make other men partakers of her, and hyde her ryches frō no man, for she is an ikinite treasure vnto mē, which who so vse, become partakers of the loue & frendshype of God, and are accepted vnto hym for the gyftes of wysdome.

¶ God hath graunted me to talke wysely, and conuenyently to handle the thiges that he hath gracyously lēt me. For it is he, that ledeth vnto wysdome, and teacheth to vse wysdome a ryght. In his hand are both we & oure wordes: yee all oure wysdome, oure vnderstādynge and knowledge of all oure workes. For he hath geuen me the true sciēce of these thinges: so that I knowe how the worlde was made, ād the powers of the elementes: the begynnynge, endynge and myddest of the tymes: how the tymes alter how one goeth after another, and how they are fulfylled, the course of the yeare: the ordinaūces of the starres: the natures & kyndes of beastes: the furiousnesse of beastes: the power of the wyndes: the ymagynacions of men: the diuersyties of yonge plantes: & vertues of rotes, ād all soch thynges as are secrete & not loked for, haue I learned. For the workemaster of all thinges hath taught me wysdome. In her is the spyrite of vnderstandynge, which is holy, manyfolde, one onely, sotyll, curteous, discrete, quyck, vndefyled, playne, swete, louynge the thynge that is good, sharpe, which forbiddeth not to do well, gentle, kynde, stedfast, sure, fre: haunge all vertues, circumspecte in all thinges: rereaunge all spyrites of vnderstandynge beynge cleane and sharpe. For wysdome is nymbler then all nymble thinges: she goeth thorowe & attayneth to all thynges, because of her clennes. For she is the breth of the power of God, and a pure cleane expressyng of the clearnes of Almyghtie God. Therfore can no vndefyled thyng come vnto her: for she is the brightenes of the euerlastyng lyght, the vndefyled myrroure of the maiesty of God, and the ymage of his goodnesse. And for so moch as she is one, she maye do all thinges: and beynge stedfast her selfe she renueth all, and amonge the people conueyeth she her selfe into the holy soules. She maketh Godes frendes and prophetes: for God loueth no man, but hym in whom wysdome dwelleth. For she is more beutyfull then the Sunne, and geueth more lyght then the starres, and the daye is not to be cōpared vnto her: for vpon the daye commeth nyght. But wickednesse cannot ouercome wisdome, and foolishnes maye not be w̄ her

¶ The. viii. Chapter.

¶ The effectes of wysdome.

WYsdome reacheth from one ende to another mightely, & louingly doth she ordre all thinges. I haue loued her, and laboured for her, euen fro my youth vp: I did my diligēce to marye my selfe with her, soch loue had I vnto her beutye. Who so hath ꝑ company of God, commēdeth her nobylite, yee the Lord of all thynges him selfe loueth her. For she is the scole maistresse of the nurtour of God, and the choser out of his workes. Yf a man wold desyre ryches in this lyfe, what is richer then wysdome, that worketh all thiges? Thou wylt saye: vnderstādynge worketh. What is it amōge all thinges, that worketh more then wysdome? If a man loue vertue and ryghteousnes, let him laboure for wisdome, for she hath great vertues. And why? she teacheth sobernes & prudence, righteousnes and strenght, which are soch thinges as men can haue nothynge more profitable in their lyfe. If a mā desire moch knowledge, she can tell ꝑ thinges that are past, and discerne thynges for to come: she knoweth the soteltyes of wordes, and can expounde darcke sentēces. She can tell of tokens and wonderous thynges, or euer they come to passe, and ꝑ endes of all tymes and

and ages. So I purposed after this maner: I wyll take her vnto my company, and comē louingly with her: no doute she shall geue me good councell, and speake comfortably vnto me in my carefulnes & greefe. For herfake shall I be well and honestly taken amonge the comens and lordes of the councell. Though I be ponge, yet shall I haue sharpe vnderstandyng, so that I shalbe marueilous in the syght of greate mē, and the faces of princes shall wonder at me. When I holde my tonge, they shall byde my leasure, when I speake, they shall loke vpon me, and yf I talke moch, they shall lape their hādes vpon theyr mouth. Moreouer, by the meanes of her I shall obtayne immortalite, and leaue behynde me an euerlasting memorial amōge them that come after me. I shal set the people in ordre, and the nacyons shalbe subdued vnto me. Horrible tyrauntes shalbe afrayed, when they do but heare of me, among the multitude I shalbe counted good and myghtye in batayll. When I come home, I shall fynde reste with her: for her company hath no bitternes, & her felouthip hath no tedyousnesse, but myrth and ioye.

C Now when I consydered these thynges by my selfe, and pondered them in my herte how that to be ioyned vnto wisdome is immortalyte, and greate pleasure to haue her frendshyppe: how that in the worckes of her handes are infynite ryches: how that, who so keepeth company with her shalbe wyse: & that he which talketh with her, shal come to honoure: I wente aboute seekynge, together vnto me. For I was a ladd of a ryght wytt, and had a good vnderstandynge.

But whē I grew to more vnderstandynge, I came to an vndefyled body. Neuertheles when I perceaued that I coulde not kepe my selfe chaste, excepte God gaue it me (and that was a poynte of wysdome also, to knowe whose gift it was) I stepped vnto the Lord, and besought him, and with my whole herte I sayde after this maner.

C The.ix. Chapter.

C A prayer of Salomon to obtayne wysdome.

I God of my fathers, and Lorde of mercyes (thou that hast made all thynges with thy worde, and ordeyned man thorow thy wysdome, that he shulde haue * dompynyon ouer the creature which thou hast made: that he shulde ordre the worlde accordinge to equite and ryghteousnes, and execute iudgemēt with a true herte) geue me wisdome, which is euer about thy seate, and put me not out from amonge thy children: for I thy seruaunt and sonne of thy handemayden, am a feble personne, of a shorte tyme, and to ponge to the vnderstandynge of iudgemēt and þ lawes. And though a man be neuer so parfecte amonge the children of mē, yet yf thy wysdome be not with him, he shalbe nothig regarded. But thou hast chosen me to be a kyng vnto thy people, and the iudge of thy sonnes and daughters.

Thou hast commaunded me to buylde a temple vpon thy holy mount, & an aulter in þ citie wherin thou dwellest: a lyckenesse of thy holy tabernacle whych thou hast prepared from the begynnyng, & thy wysdome with the, which knoweth thy workes, which also was with the, when thou madest the worlde & knewe what was acceptable in thy syght and ryght in thy cōmaundemētes. O sende her out of thy holy heauēs and frō the trone of thy maiesty, that she maye be with me, & labour with me: that I maye knowe, what is acceptable in thy sight. For she knoweth and vnderstandeth all thinges: and she shall lede me soberly in my workes, and preserue me in her power. So shall my workes be acceptable, and then shall I gouerne thy people righteously, and be worthy to syt in my fathers seate. For what mā is he, that may knowe þ councell of God? Or, who can thinke what the will of God is? For þ thoughtes of mortall men are miserable and oure forcastes are but vncertayne. And why? a mortall and corruptible body is heuy vnto the soule, and þ earthy mansyon keepeth downe that vnderstandinge that museth vpō many thynges. Very hardly can we discerne the thinges that are vpon earth, & greate labour haue we, or we can fynde þ thynges which are before oure eyes. Who wyll then seke oute the groūde of the thinges that are done in heauen? Oh Lorde, who can haue knowledge of thy vnderstandyng and meanyng, excepte thou geue wysdome, and sende thy holy goost from aboue? & the wayes of them which are vpon earth, maye be reformed: that men maye learne the thinges that are pleasaunt vnto the, and be preserued thorow wysdome.

C The.x. Chapter.

C The deliuerauce of the ryghteous commeth through wysdome

Wysdome preserued the fyrst man, whom God made a father of the worlde, whē he was created alone brought hi out of his offence toke him out of the * moulde of the erth: & gaue hym power to rule all thinges. * When the vnryghteous wēte a waye in his wrath frō his wysdome, & brotherhed perysshed thorow the wrath of murthur. Agayne, when the * water destroyed þ whole worlde, wysdome preserued þ righteous thorow a poore tre, wherof she was gouerner her selfe. Moreouer whē wyckednes had gotten þ vpper hande,

* Gene. 1. b

hande so ꝑ ꝑ nacions were pult vp w̄ pryde
the knewe the ryghteo⁹, preserued him faut-lesse vnto God, and layed vp sure mercy of his chyldren. She preserued the ryghteous,
* whē he fled frō the vngodly that perished,
what tyme as ꝑ fyre fell downe vpō the .v.
cyties: Lyke as yet this daye ꝑ vnfrutefull
waste, and smokyng lād geueth testimony of theyr wyckednesse: yee, the vnrype & vn-
timely frutes that growe vpon the trees.

And for a token of a remembraūce of the vnfaythfull soule, there standeth a pyller of salt. For all soch as regarded not wysdome gat not onely this hurte, ꝑ they knewe not the thynges which were good, but also left behynde thē vnto men, a memoriall of their foolishnes: so that in ꝑ thinges wherin they synned, they coulde not be hydd. But as for soch as take hede vnto wysdome, she shal de lyuer them from sorowe.

* When the ryghteous fled because of hys
brothers wrath, wysdome led hi the ryght
waye, shewed him the kyngdome of God,
gaue him knowledge of holy thinges, made him riche i his laboures, & brought to passe
the thinges that he wente aboute. In ꝑ dis-ceattfulnes of soch as defrauded him, she stode by him, & made him ryche. She saued hi from the enemies, & defended him from the deceauers. She made hym stronge in battaill & gaue him the victory, that he myght knowe, how that wysdome is stroger then
all thinges. * When ꝑ ryghteous was sold,
she forsoke him not, but delyuered hym frō synners. She wente downe with hym into the dongeon, and layed him not in the ban
des: * tyll she had brought hym the sceptre
of the realme, ād power agaynst those that oppressed him. As for them that had accused hym, she declared them to be lyers, and brought hym to perpetuall worshypp.

* She delyuered the ryghteous people ād
faultelesse seede, from ꝑ nacyōs that oppressed them. She entred into the soule of the ser-uaunt of God, and stode by him in wonders and tokens agaynst the horrible king. She gaue the ryghteous the rewarde of theyr la bours, & led them forth a maruelous waye:
on the daye tyme she was a shadowe vnto
them, ād a lyght of starres in the nyght season. * She brought thē thorow ꝑ reed see, & carryed them thorow the greate water. She drowned theyr enemies i the see, & brought them out of the depe. So the ryghteous to-ke ꝑ spoyles of the vngodly. * and praysed thy holy name, O Lorde, & magnified thy victorious hand w̄ one accorde. * For wysdome openeth the mouth of the domme, ād
maketh the tonges of babes to speake.

¶ The .xi. Chapter.

¶ The miracles done for Israel. The vengeaunce of synners. The greate power and mercy of God.

She ordred theyr workes in ꝑ hādes A of the holy prophet: * so ꝑ they went *Exod.xvi.a thorow ꝑ wylderne⁹ that was not inhabited, and pitched their tentes in ꝑ waste
deserte. They stode agaynst their enemies, & were auēged of their aduersaries, * When *exo.xvii.d
they were thirstye, they called vpon the, ād Num.xx.a water was geuē thē out of ꝑ moste hye rock
and theyr thyrst was quēched out of ꝑ harde stone. For by ꝑ thinges, wher thorow their enemyes were punyshed, were ꝑ chyldrē of Israel helped in theyr nede, to theyr cōfort.
For vnto the enemyes ꝑ gauest mās bloud in steade of liuynge water. And where as they had scarcenesse i ꝑ rebuke, whē the chyl
dren were slayne, thou gauest vnto thyne
awne a plēteous water vnloked for: declarynge by the thyrst that was at that tyme,
how thou woldest bryng thyne awne vnto
honoure, and slaye theyr aduersaries. B
* For when they were tryed and norztured *Deu.viii.a with fatherli mercy, they knowledged how the vngodly were iudged, ād punyshed tho-row the wrath of God. These hast thou er-horted as a father, and proued thē: but vn-
to the other ꝑ hast bene a boysterous kyng,
layed hard to theyr charge, & condēned thē.
Whether they were absent or present, their punishmēt was a lyke. For their grefe was double: namely, mournynge, and the remē-braūce of thynges past. But whē they per ceaued ꝑ theyr punishmentes dyd thē good,
they thought vpon the Lorde, and wondered at ꝑ ende. For at ꝑ last they helde moch of hym, of whō i ꝑ out casting they thought scorne, as of an abiecte. Neuertheles, the ryghteous dyd not so when they were thyr-stie: but euē lyke as ꝑ thoughtes of ꝑ foolish C
were, so was also ther wickednes. * Where *Sapi.xii.g as certayne men now (thorow errour) dyd Rom.i.c
worshipe dōme serpentes ād vayne beastes
thou sendest a multitude of domme beastes
vpō them for a vengeance, that they myght
knowe, that loke where with all a man synneth, by the same also shall he be punyshed.
* For vnto thy allmyghtey hande, ꝑ made ꝑ *Exo.xvi.b
worlde of naught, it was not vnpossible, to Sapi.xvi.a sende amonge them an heape of Beeres, or Ierr.bii.c
woode lyons, or cruell beastes of a straūge
kynde, soch as are vnknowne, or spoutt fire
or cast out a smokynge breth, or shote horri ble sparkes out of their eyes, which myght not onely destroye them with hurtige, but also kyll thē with their horrible syght. Yee, without these beastes might they haue bene slayne with one winde, beynge perscu-
ted of their awne workes, & scatered a broa
de thorow the breth of thy power. D Neuertheles, thou hast ordred all thynges
in measure, nōbre & weight. For ꝑ hast euer had great strength & might, & who maye w̄
stande ꝑ power of thyne arme? And why?

See lyke as

lyke as ꝑ small thing ꝑ the balaūce weyeth so is the worlde before ꝑ: yee, as a droppe of ꝑ morninge dew, that falleth downe vpon ꝑ earth. Thou hast mercy vpō all, for thou
* Rome.ii.a hast power of al thinges: * & makest the as though thou sawest not the synnes of men, because they shuld amende. For thou louest all the thinges that are, and hatest none of them whō ꝑ hast made: nether bydest thou or deyne or make eny thynge, of cuell wyll.

How might eny thinge endure, yf it were not thy will? Or how coulde eny thynge be preserued, excepte it were called of the? But thou sparest all, for all are thyne (O Lord) thou louer of soules.

¶ The.xii. Chapter.

¶ The mercye of God towarde synners, the workes of God are horryble. God sheweth lyght vnto vs, to repent vs.

O Lorde, how gracious and swete is thy spirite in all thinges? Therfore chastenest thou them measurably ꝑ go wrōge, and warnest thē cōcerninge the thinges wherin they offende: thou speakest vnto thē (O Lord) & exhortest thē to leaue their wickednes, and to put their trust in ꝑ. * As for those olde inhabyters of
* Deu.xx.a xii.b.xviii.c thy holy lāde, thou myghtest not awaye wt thē, for they cōmitted abhominable workes agaynst the: as witchcraft, sorcery ād Idolatry, they slew their awne children without mercy: they dyd eate vp mēs bowels, & deuoured the bloude: yee, because of soch abhominacios, myscheues & offrynges, thou slewest the fathers of the desolate soules by the handes of oure fathers: ꝑ the land which thou loueste aboue all other, might be a dwellynge for the children of God.

Neuertheles, thou sparedest them also (as men) & sendest ꝑ forerūners of thyne hoost euē hornettes to destroye them out by lytle ād lytle. Not that ꝑ wast vnable to subdue the vngodly vnto the rygheous battayle, or wt cruell beastes, or with one rough word to destroye thē together: * But thy mynde
* Exo.xxiii.b Deute.vii.b was to deyne them out by lytle ād lytle, geuynge thē tyme & place to amende: knowing well, that it was an vnrygheous nacyō & wicked of nature, ād ꝑ their thought might neuer be altered. For it was a cursed seede frō ꝑ begynnyng, & feared no man: Yet hast thou pardoned their synnes. For who wyll saye vnto the: why hast thou done that? Or who will stāde agaynst thy iudgment? Or who wyll come before thy face an auenger of vnrygheous men? Or who wyll blame the, yf the people perish, whom thou hast made? For there is none other God but ꝑ,
* i.Petr.v.a * that careth for all thynges: that ꝑ mayest declare how that thy iudgment is not vnryght. There darre nether kyng, ner tyraūt in thy sight require accomptes of the whō thou hast destroyed.

For so moch then as thou art rygheous thy selfe, ꝑ ordrest all thinges rygheously * & punishest euen him that hath not deserued to be punished, & takest him for a straūger and an aleaūt in the lande of thy power. * Iob.x.a
For thy power is the begynnynge of rygheousnes: and because thou art Lorde of all thynges, therfore art thou gracio' vnto al.

When men thynke the not to be of a full strength, thou declarest thy power: ād boldly deliuerest thou them ouer that knowe ꝑ not. But thou Lord of power iudgest quietly, and ordrest vs with great worshypp, for thou mayest do as thou wylt.

By soch workes now hast thou taught thy people, that a man also shulde be iust & louynge: and hast made thy childrē to be of a good hope: for euen when thou iudgest, ꝑ greuest rowme to amende from synnes. ¶ D

For in so moch as thou hast punyshed, and with soch diligēce deliuered the enemyes of thy seruauntes, which were worthy to dye (where thorow thou gauest them tyme and place of amendemēt that they might turne frō their wyckednes) with how greate diligence then punyshest ꝑ thyne awne children vnto whose fathers thou hast swore & made couenauntes of good promises? So where as thou doest but chasten vs, thou punyshest our enemyes diuerse wayes, to ꝑ intēt that when we punishe, we shuld remembre thy goodnesse: & when we our selues are punyshed, to put oure trust in thy mercy. ¶ E

Wherfore, where as men haue lyued ignorauntly & vnrygheously, thou hast punished thē sore, euen thorow ꝑ same thinges ꝑ they worshypped. * For they wēte a straye very longe in the waye of errour, & helde ꝑ beastes (which euē their enemies despysed) for goddes, lyuinge as children of no vnderstandyng. Therfore hast thou sent a scorne full punyshment amonge thē, as amōge the children of ignorauūce. As for soch as wolde not be reformed by those scornes ād rebukes, they felt the worthy punishmēt of God For the thinges that they suffred, they bare them vnpacyently, beinge not content in them but vnwillynge. And when they perysshed by the same thinges that they toke for goddes, they knowledged then, that there was, but one true God, whome afore they wolde not knowe: therfore came the ende of their damnacyon vpon them. * Sap.xi.a

¶ The.xiii. Chapter.

¶ All thynges be vayne, excepte the knowledge of God. Idolaters and Idols are mocked.

VAyne are all men, which haue not knowledge of God: * as were they that out of the goode thinges which are sene, knewe not hym, ꝑ of hym selfe is euerlastynge. Nether toke they so moch regarde of ꝑ workes that are made, as to

as to knowe, who was the crafteſmā of the but ſome toke the fyre, ſome the wynde or ayre, ſome the courſe of the ſtarres, ſome the water, ſome toke Sunne ād Moone, or the lyghtes of heauen which rule the earth, for goddes. But though they had ſoch pleaſure their beuty, that they thought the to haue
bene goddes: yet ſhulde they haue knowne,
how moch more fayrer he is that made the.
For the maker of beuty hath ordened all theſe thinges. Or yf they marueled at the power and worckes of them, they ſhulde ha ue perceaued therby, that he which made theſe thynges, is myghtyer then they.
For by the greatneſſe and beuty of the creature, the maker therof may playnely be knowne. Notwithſtandynge they are the leſſe to be blamed, that ſeke God, ād wolde
fynde hym, and yet myſſe. And why? for ſo moch as they go about in hys worckes and ſeke after them, it is a token, ỹ they regarde
and holde moch of his worckes that are ſene: howbeit they are not wholy to be excu-
ſed. For yf they? vnderſtandynge ỹ knowe-ledge be ſo greate, that they can diſcerne the worlde and the creatures, why do they not rather fynde out the Lorde therof?
But vnhappye are they, and amonge the dead is they? hope, that call them Goddes
which are but the worckes of mens hādes:
golde, ſyluer, and the thinge that is founde
out by connynge, the ſimilitude of beaſtes,
or any vayne ſtone that hath bene made by hande of olde.* Or as whē a carpenter cut-teth downe a tree out of the wodd, and pareth of the barck of it cōningly: and ſo with the one parte maketh a veſſell to be vſed, ỹ dreſſeth meate with the reſydue. As for the other parte that is left, which is profytable
for nothyng (for it is a croked pece of wodd
and full of knobbes) he caruethit diligently thorow hys vanite, and accordynge to the knowledge of hys connyng) he greueth it ſo-
me proporcion, faſhioneth it after the ſimi-litude of a mā, or maketh it lyke ſome beaſt
ſtraketh it ouer with redd, and paynteth it,
ỹ loke what foule ſpot is in it he caſteth ſo-
me coloure vpon it.
Then maketh he a conuenient tabernacle
for it, ſetteth it in the wall, ỹ maketh it faſt
with yron, prouidynge ſo for it, leſt it happen to fall: for it is well knowne, that it can not helpe it ſelfe: And why? it is but an yma
ge, and muſt of neceſſite be helped.
Then goeth he ỹ offreth of his goodes vn-
to it, for his chyldren and for his wyfe: he ſe-keth helpe at it, he aſketh coūcell at it: he is not aſhamed to ſpeake vnto it that hath no
ſoule: for health, he maketh his petitiō vn-
to him yt is ſycke: for lyfe, he prayeth vnto
him that is deed: he calleth vpon hi for help
that is not able to helpe him ſelfe: ỹ to ſende
him a good iourneye, he prayeth him ỹ may not go. And in all the thinges that he taketh in hāde (whether it be to optayne any thyng o, to worcke) he prayeth vnto hym,
that can do no maner of good,

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ The deteſtacyon and abhominacion of ymages.
¶ curſe of them, and of hym that maketh them. The euelles that come of Idolatrye.

AGayne, another mā purpoſing to ſayle, and begynninge to take his iourney thorow the ragynge ſee, calleth for helpe vn-
to a ſtock, that is farre weaker
then the tree that beareth hi. For as for it, couetouſneſſe of money hath fōūde it out,
ỹ the craftеſmā made it with his connyng,
But thy prouidence, O father, gouerneth
all thynges frō the begynninge: * For thou haſt made a waye in the ſee, and a ſure path
in the myddeſt of ỹ wanes: declarynge ther-
by, that thou haſt power to helpe i all thin-ges, yee though a man wente to the ſee with out ſhyp. Neuertheleſſe, that the worckes of thy wyſdome ſhulde not be vayne, * thou
haſt cauſed an arke to be made: and therfore do men committe theyr lyues to a ſmall
pece of wodd, paſſyng ouer the ſee in a ſhyp,
and are ſaued.
* For in the olde tyme alſo whē the proude gyauntes periſhed, he (in whō the hope was left to increaſe the worlde) wente into the ſhyppe, which was gouerned thorow thy hand, and ſo lefte ſede behinde him vnto the worlde. For happye is ỹ tree, where thorow ryghteouſnes cōmeth: but curſed is ỹ ydoll
that is made with hādes, * ye both it and he that made it. He, becauſe he made it: and it, becauſe it was called God whereas it is but a frayle thyng. * For the vngodly and hys
vngodlynes are both lyke abhominable vn to God. Euen ſo ỹ worcke and he that made it alſo, ſhalbe punyſhed together. Therfore ſhall there a plage come vpon ỹ ydoles of the Heathen: for out of the creature of God they are become an abhompnacyon, a temptacion vnto the ſoules of men, and a ſnare for the fete of the vnwyſe. And why, ỹ ſeekynge out of ydoles is the begynnynge of whordome, and the bryngynge vp of thē is the deſtruccyon of lyfe. For they were not from ỹ begynnynge, nether ſhall they con-tynue for euer. The welthy ydelnes of men hath founde them out vpon earth, therfore ſhall they come ſhortly to an ende. When a father mourned for his ſonne ỹ was taken awaye frō hym, he made hym an ymage (in all ỹ haſte) of hys deed ſonne: ỹ ſo begāne to worſhypp hi as God, which was but a deed
man, ỹ ordened his ſeruātes to offre vnto
hi. Thꝰ by proceſſe of tyme ỹ thorow an vn gracious cuſtome, this errour was kepte:

as lawe, and tyrauntes compelled men by violence to honour ymages. As for those þ were so farre of that men myght not worshypp them presently, theyr pycture was brought trō farre (lyke the ymage of a king whom they wolde honoure) to the intent þ with greate diligence they might worshipp him which was farre of, as though he had bene present. Agayne, the singular connige of the craftesman gaue the ignoraunt also a great occasion to worshyp images. For þ workman willyng to do hym a pleasure þ set him a worke, laboured with all his conninge to make þ ymage of the best fashion. D And so (thorow the beuty of the worke) the comen people was discaued, in so moch þ they toke him now for a God, which a lytle afore was but honored as a man. And thys was the errour of mans lyfe, when men (ether for to serue theyr awne affectiō, or to do some pleasure vnto kynges) ascribed vn to stones and stockes þ name of God, which ought to be geuen vnto no man.

Howeuer, this was not ynough for thē that they erred in the knowledge of God: but where as they lyued in the greate warres of ignoraunce, those many & greate plages called they peace. For ether * they slue theyr awne children, & offred them, or dyd sacrifyce in þ nyght season, or els helde vnreasonable watches: so that they kepte neither lyfe ner mariage cleane: but ether one slue another to death maliciously, or els greued hys neyghboure wyth aduoutrye. And E thus were all thinges mixte together, bloud, manslaughter, theft, dissimulacion, corruption, vnfaythfulnelle, sedicyon, periury, disquietynge of good men, vnthankfulnes, defilynge of soules, chaungynge of byrth, vnstedfastnelle of mariage, inforder of aduoutrye and vncleannelle. And why? the honouringe of abhominable images is the cause, the begynnynge and ende of all euell. For they that worshype Idols, ether they are mad when they be merry, or prophecie lyes, or lyue vngodly, or els lyghtly forsweare them selues. For in so moch as their trust is in þ Idols (which haue nether soule ner vnderstandynge) though they sweare falsely, yet they thynche it shal not hurte them.

Therfore commeth a greate plage vpon them, and that worthely: for they haue an euell oppinion of God, geuynge hede vnto Idols, swearynge vntruthly to discease, and despysing ryghteousnes. For theyr swearinge is no vertue, but a plage of them that synne, and goeth euer with the offence of the vngodly.

¶ The. xv. Chapter.

¶ The power of the faythfull, prayseynge the mercy of God, for whose graces sake they serue not Idols.

BUt thou (O oure God) art swete, lōg A sufferynge and true, and in mercy ordrest thou all thynges.

Though we synne, yet are we thyne, for we knowe thy strength. If we synne not, then are we sure, that thou regardest vs. For to knowe þ, is parfecte ryghteousnes: yee, to knowe thy ryghteousnes ād power, is the rote of imortalite. As for the thynge that men haue foūde out thorow their euell sciēce, it hath not discaued vs: as the paynting of the picture (an vnprofitable labour) and carued image, with diuerse colours, whose syght entyseth the ignoraūt: so that he honoureth & loueth the picture of a dead image that hath no soule.

Neuertheles, they that loue soch euell B thinges, are worthy of death: they that trust them, they that make them, they that loue them, and they that honoure them. The potter also taketh ād tempereth soft earth, laboureth it, and geueth it the fassyon of a vessel, whatsoeuer serueth for oure vse: and so of one pece of claye he maketh some cleane vessell for seruice, & some contrary. But where to euery vessel serueth, that knoweth the potter him selfe. So with his vayne laboure he maketh a God of the same claye: this doth euen he, whiche a lytle afore was made of earth hym selfe, and within a lytle whyle after (whē he dieth) turneth to earth agayne.

Notwithstandinge, he careth not the more C because he shall labour, ner because his lyfe is short: but strayueth to excell goldsmithes, the syluersmythes and coppersmythes, & taketh it for an honour to make vayne thynges. For hys herte is ashes, hys hope is but vayne earth, & his life is more vile thē claye for so moch as he knoweth not his awne maker, that gaue him hys soule to worcke, ād brethed in him the breth of lyfe. They counte oure lyfe but a pastyme, and oure conuersacion to be, but a market, and that men shulde euer be gettynge, and that by euell meanes. Now he that of earth maketh fraile vessels and ymages, knoweth him selfe to offende aboue all other.

All the enemyes of thy people & that holde D thē in subiectiō, are vnwyse, vnhappye, and exceadyng proude vnto theyr awne soules, for they iudge all the Idols of the heathen to be goddes, which nether haue eye sight to se, ner noses to smell, ner eares to heare, nor fyngers of hādes for to grope: & as for theyr fete, they are to slowe to goo. For mā made them, & he that hath but a borowed spryte, fashioned them. But no mā cā make a God lyke vnto him: for seynge he is but mortall hym selfe, it is but mortall that he maketh with vnryghteous handes. He hym selfe is better then they whō he worshypped, for

he lyued

he lyued though he was mortall, so dyd neuer they. Yet, they worshyppe beastes also, which are most miserable: for compare thinges that cannot fele vnto them and they are worse then those. Yet is there not one of these beastes, that with his syght can beholde eny good thing nether haue they geue prayse ner thankes vnto God.

¶ The.xvi. Chapter.

¶ The punyshment of Idolaters, and the benefyte done vnto the faythfull.

A FOr these and soch other thinges haue they suffred worthy punishmēt and thorow the multitude of beastes are they roted oute. In steade of the which punyshmentes thou hast graciously ordred thyne awne people, and geue thē theyr desyre: they longed for: a newe & straūge taist, * preparing thē quayles to be theyr meate: to ỹ intent that (by the thynges which were shewed and sent vnto thē) they that were so gredy of meate, might be withdrawen euen from the desyre that was necessary. But these withi shorte tyme were brought vnto pouerte, ād tasted a newe meate. For it was requisite ỹ (without eny excuse) destruccion shulde come vpon those which vsed tyranny, & to shewe onely vnto ỹ other, how theyr enemyes were destroied.

* Exo.xvi.b

* For when the cruell woodnesse of the beastes came vpon them, they perished thorow the stynges of the cruell serpentes.

B Not withstandynge, thy wrath endured not perpetually, but they were put in feare for a lytle seaso, that they myght be refourmed, hauynge a token of saluacion, to remēbre the cōmaundement of thy lawe. For he ỹ conuerted, was not healed by the thyng ỹ he sawe, but by the, O sauioure of all. So in this thou shewedst thyne enemyes, ỹ it is thou, which delyuerest from al euell. As for thē * whē they were bytten wt grashoppers and flyes, they dyed, for the were worthy to perish by soch: But nether the teeth of dragons ner of venimous wormes ouer cā thy children, for thy mercy was euer by thē & helped thē. Therfore were they punished to remembre thy wordes, but hastely were they healed againe, lest they shuld fall into so depe forgetfulnesse, ỹ they myght not vse thy helpe. It was nether herbe ner playster ỹ restored thē to health, but thy worde (O Lorde) which healeth all thinges. It is ỹ (O Lord) that hast the power of lyfe & death *: thou ledest vnto deathes dore, and bryngest vp againe. But mā thorow wickednes slaieth his awne soule, and when his spirite goeth forth, it turneth not agayne, nether maye he call agayne the soule that is take awaye. It is not possible to eschape thy hande. For the vngodly that wolde not knowe ỹ, were punyshed by ỹ strength of thyne arme: with straunge waters, hayles and raynes were they persecuted, and thorow fyre were they consumed. For it was a wonderous thinge that fyre myght do more then water which quencheth all thinges: but the worlde is the auēger of the ryghteous. Some tyme was the fyre so tame, that ỹ beastes which were sent to punyth the vngodly, brent not: and that because they shulde se and knowe, that they were persecuted with the punyshment of God. And some tyme brent the fyre i the water on euery syde, that it might destroye ỹ vnryghteous nacyon of ỹ earth. * Agayne, thou hast fed thyne awne people wt Aungels fode, & sent thē bred ready from heauē (without theyr labour) beynge very pleasaunt and of good taist. And to shewe thy rythes & swetnesse vnto thy children, thou gauest euery one theyr desyre, so ỹ euery man might take what lyked hym best. But the snowe and yse abode the violence of the fyre & melted not: that they myght knowe, that the fyre burnyng in the hayle and rayne, destroyed the frute of the enemyes: ỹ fyre also forgat his strength agayne: that the ryghteous myght be norysshed. For the creature that serueth the (which art the maker) is fearse in punysshing ỹ vnrighteous, but is easy & gētle to do good, vnto soch as put their trust in the. Therfore dyd all thynges alter at the same tyme, and were all obedient vnto thy grace, which is the norse of all thynges, accordynge to the desyre of them that had nede therof: that thy children (O Lord) whom thou louest, myght knowe, * ỹ it is not nature and the growinge of frutes that fedeth men, but that it is thy worde, which preserueth them that put theyr trust in the. For loke what myght not be destroied with the fyre, as soone as it was warmed with a lytle Sūne beame, it melted: ỹ al mē might knowe, that thā kes ought to be geuen vnto the before the Sunne ryse, and that thou ought est to be worshipped before the daye springe. For the hope of ỹ vnthākfull shall melt awaye as the wynter yse, and perysshe as water, that is not necessary.

* Exo.xiiii.f. Deut.xxxii.b

* Deu.viii.a Ecclesiast.xxxix.a

¶ The.xvii. Chapter.

¶ The iudgmentes of God vpon the Egyptians.

A GReate are * thy iudgmentes (O Lorde) and thy counsels cā not be expressed: therfore mē do erre, that will not be refourmed wt thy wysdome. * For when ỹ vnryghteous thought to haue thy holy people i subiection, they were bounde with the bandes of darknes and longe nyght, shut vnder the rofe, thinkynge to escape the euerlastynge wysdome. And whyle they thought to be hyd ỹ darcknesse of theyr synnes, they were scattered abrode i the very myddest of thē darck couerynge of forgetfulnes, put to horrible feare and

* Roma.i.c.

* Exod.x.a

wonderously vexed: for the corner where they myght not kepe them from feare (because the sounde came downe and vexed them) yet, many terrible and straunge visions made them afrayed.

¶ No power of the fyre myght geue them lyght, neither myght the cleare flammes of ꝑ starres lyghten ꝑ horrible nyght. For there appeared vnto them a sodayne fyre, very dredeful: At the which (when they sawe nothige) they were so afrayed, ꝑ they thought the thinge which they sawe, to be the more fearfull. * As for ꝑ sorcery & enchauntemẽt that they vsed, it came to derision, and the proude wysdome was brought to shame.

For they that promised to dryue away the fearfulnes and dreade from the weake soules, were sick for feare themselues, and that with scorne. And though none of the wonders feared thẽ, yet were they afrayed at the beastes which came vpon them, & at ꝑ hyssynge of the serpẽtes. In so moch that with trẽblinge they sowned, & sayde they sawe not ꝑ ayre, which no man yet maye escape.

For it is an heuy thynge, when a mans awne conscience beareth recorde of his wyckednes and condempneth hym. And whych vexed and wounded conscience, taketh euer cruell thynges in hãd. * Fearfulnes is nothing els, but a declaring that a mã seketh helpe and defence, to answere for hym selfe. And loke how moch lesse the hope is within, the more is the vncertentye of the mater, for the which he is punyshed. But they that came in the myghtye nyght: slepte the slepe ꝑ fell vpon them from vnder and from aboue: somtyme were they afrayed thorow the feare of the wonders, and somtyme they were so weake that they sowned with all: for an hastye & sodayne fearfulnes came vpõ thẽ.

After warde, yf eny of them had fallen, he was kepte and shut in prison, but without chaynes. But yf eny dwelt in a vyllage, yf he had bene an hearde or husbãdman he suffred intollerable necessite: for they were all bounde with one chayne of darcknesse.

Whether it were a blasynge wynde, or a swete songe of the byrdes amonge the thycke braunches of the trees, or the vehemencye of hastye rũnynge water, or greate noyse of the fallynge downe of stones, or the playenge and rummynge of beastes whom they sawe not, or the myghtye noyse of roarynge beastes, or the sownde that answereth agayne in the hye mountaynes: it made them sowne for very feare. For all the earth shyned with cleare lyght, and no man was hyndered in his labour. Onely vpon them there fell a heuy nyght, an ymage of darcknesse that was to come vpon thẽ. Yee, they were vnto them selues the most heuy & horrible darcknesse.

¶ The. xviii. Chapter.

¶ The fyre lyght that the Israelites had in Egypte ¶ The persecucyon of the kepthiull ¶ The Lorde smote all the fyrst borne of Egypte ¶ The synne of the people in the wylderner. Aaron stode betwyxt the lyue and the dede, with his censoure.

NEuertheles, thy saynctes had a very greate lyght (& ꝑ enemyes herde theyr voyce, but they sawe not the fygure of them.) And because they suffred not ꝑ same thynges, they magnified ꝑ: ād they ꝑ were vexed afore (because they were not hurte now) thancked the, and besought the (O God) that there myght be a difference. * Therfore had they a burnynge pyler of fyre to lede them in the vnknowne waye, and thou gauest them the Sunne for a frendyshe without eny hurt. Reason it was that they shulde want lyght, & be put in the prison of darcknes, which kepte thy childre in captiuyte, by whõ the vncorrupte lyght of the lawe of the worlde was for to be geuen. * When they thought to slaye the babes of the ryghteous (one beinge layed out, and preserued to be leader vnto the other) *thou broughtest out ꝑ whole multitude of the chyldren, and destroyedst these in the myghtye water. Of that nyght were oure fathers certifyed afore that they knowynge vnto what othes they had geuen credence, myght be of good cheare. Thus thy people receaued the health of the ryghteous, but ꝑ vngodly were destroyed. For lyke as thou hast hurte oure enemies, so hast thou promoted vs whom thou calledest afore. For the ryghteous chyldren of the good men offred secretly, & ordred the lawe of ryghteousnes vnto vnite: that ꝑ iust shulde receaue good and euell in lyke maner, syngynge prayses vnto the father of all men. Agayne, there was herde an vnconuenyẽt voyce of the enemyes, and a pyteous crye for chyldren that were bewayled. The master and the seruaunt were punyshed in lyke maner. For they all together had inumerable that dyed one death.

* Nether were ꝑ lyuinge sufficient to bury ꝑ dede, for in ꝑ twinckelynge of an eye, ꝑ noblest nacyõ of them was destroyed. As oft as God helped them afore, yet wolde it not make thẽ beleue: but ꝑ the destrucciõ of the fyrst borne they knowledged, that it was ꝑ people of God. For whyle all thinges were styll & whẽ the nyght was ꝑ the myddest of her course, thy Almyghtie worde (O Lorde) leapte downe from heauẽ out of thy royall trone, as a rough man of warre, ꝑ the myddest of the lãde that was destroyed: & ꝑ sharpe swerde perfourmed they re straite comaũdemẽt, standynge and fyllyng all thynges with death: yee, it stode vpõ the earth & reached vnto the heauẽ. Then the syght of the

euell

euell dreames vexed them sodēly, and feareffulnesse came vpon them vnawares.

Then laye there one here, another there, half deed, halfe quycke, and shewed the cause of his death. For the visyōs that vexed thē shewed thē these thinges afore: so that they were not ignorāt, wherfore they perished.

The tentacyō of death touched the ryghteous also, and amonge the multytude in ꝑ wildernesse there was insurrection, but thy wrath endured not lōge. For the blamelesse man wente in all the hast, and toke the battayll vpon him, brought forth the weapē of his ministracyon: euen prayer and the censours of reconcilinge: sett him selfe agaynst the wrath, and so brought the misery to an ende: declaringe therby that he was thy seruaunt. For he ouercame not the multytude with bodely power, nor with weapens of myght: but with the worde he subdued him that vexed him, puttynge them in remembrance of the othe and couenaunt made vnto the fathers. For when the deed were fallen downe by heapes one vpon another, he stode in the myddest, pacified the wrath, and parted the waye vnto lyuinge. * And why? in his longe garment was all the beuty, and in the foure rowes of the stones was the glory of the fathers grauen, and thy maiesty was wrytten in the crowne of his heade. Unto these the destroyer gaue place, ād was afrayed of them: for it was onely a tētacion worthy of wrath.

¶ The.xix. Chapter.

¶ The derth of the Egyptians, and the greate sorte of the Hebrues. The meate that was geuen at the desyre of ꝑ people. The elementes serue not onely to ꝑ wyll of God, but also to the wyll of man.

AS for the vngodly, the wrath came vpon them without mercy vnto the ende. For he knew before what shulde happen vnto them: how that (when they had consented to lett them go, and had sent out with greate diligence) they wolde repēte, and folowe vpō them. * For when they were yet moornynge and makynge lamentacion by the graues of ꝑ deed, they deuysed another foolysh nes: so that they persecuted them in theyr flyenge, whom they had cast out afore with prayer. Worthy necessyte also brought them vnto thys ende, for they had cleane forgotten the thynges that happened vnto them afore. But the thynges that was wantynge of theyr punyshmēt, was requysite so to be fulfylled vpon them with tormentes, that thy people myght haue a marueluous passage thorow, & that these might fynde a straunge death.

Then was euery creature fashyoned agayne of newe, accordige to ꝑ will of theyr maker, obeyenge thy commaundementes: that thy chyldre myght be kept without hurte. For the cloude ouershadowed theyr tentes, & the drye earth appeared, where afore was water: so ꝑ in the reed see there was a waye without impediment, & the greate depe became a grene felde: where thorow all ꝑ people wente ꝑ were defended wyth thy hond, seige thy wonderous and marueluous worckes. For as ꝑ horses, so were they fedd, and leapte lyke lambes, praysinge ꝑ (O Lorde) which haddest delyuered thē: and why? they were yet myndefull of thy thynges, ꝑ happened whyle they dwelt in ꝑ lande: how the grounde brought forth flyes in steade of catell: & how the ryuer scrauled with the multitude of frogges in steade of fysshes.

¶ * But at the last they sawe a newe creacion of byrdes, what tyme as they were disceaued with lust, and desyred delicate meates. For when they were speakinge of theyr appetite, the quayles came vp vnto them frō the see, and punyshementes came vpon the synners, not without the tokēs which came to passe afore by the vehemēcye of the streames: for they suffred worthely accordig to theyr wickednesses, they dealt so abhominably and churlysshly wt straungers. Some receaued no vnknowne gestes, some brought the straungers into bondage that dyd them good. Beyde all these thynges there were some, that not onely receaued no straūgers with theyr willes, but persecuted those also, * & dyd them moch euell, that receaued them gladly. Therfore were they punyshed with * blyndnesse, lyke as they that were couered with sodayne darknesse at the doores of the ryghteous, so ꝑ euery one sought the entraunce of hys dore.

Thus the elementes turned into them selues, lyke as when one tyme is chaunged vpon an instrument of musyck, and yet all the residue kepe theyr melody: which maye easely be perceaued, by the syght of the thinges that are come to passe. The drye lande was turned into a watery, and the thynge that afore swamme i the water, wēte now vpon ꝑ drye grounde. The fyre had power in the water (contrary to his awne vertue) & the water forgat his awne kynde to quenche. Agayne, the flammes of the noysome beastes hurte not the flesh of them that wēte with them, nether melted they the yse, which els melteth lyghtely. In all thinges hast thou promoted thy people (O Lorde) and brought them to honour: thou hast not despysed thē, but all waye & in all places hast thou stande by thē.

¶ The ende of the boke of wysdome.

The boke of.

¶The boke of Jesus the sonne of Syrach/ which is called in latyn/ Ecclesiasticus.

¶The Prologe of Jesus the sonne of Syrach vnto hys boke.

Many and greate mē haue declared wysdome vnto vs out of the lawe, out of the Prophetes and oute of other that folowed them. In the which thynges Israell ought to be commended, by the reason of doctryne and wysdome: Therfore, they that haue it and reade it, shuld not onely them selues be wyse there thorow, but serue other also with teachynge and wrytynge.

After that my graunde father IESVS had geue diligent laboure to reade the lawe, the Prophetes and other bokes that were left vs of oure fathers, ād had well exercysed hym selfe therin: he purposed also to wryte some thyng of wysdome & good maners, to the intent that they which were willynge to learne and to be wyse, myght haue ꝑ more vnderstandynge, and be the more apte to leade a good conuersacyon.

Wherfore, I exhorte you to receaue it louyngly, to reade it with diligence, & to take it in good worth, though oure wordes be not so eloquent as the famous oratours. For the thyng ꝑ is wrytten in the hebrue tonge, soundeth not so well when it is translated into another speache. Not onely this boke of myne, but also the law, the Prophetes ād other bokes sounde farre other wyse then they do, whē they are spoke in their awne language.

Now in the .xxxviii. yeare When I came into Egypte in the tyme of Ptolomy Euergetes & continued there all my lyfe, I gat libertye to reade and wryte many good thinges. Wherfore, I thought it good and necessary, to bestowe my diligence and trauayle to interpryete this boke. And consyderynge that I had tyme, I laboured and dyd my best to perfourme thys boke, and to bryngе it vnto lyght: that the straungers also which are dyspoled to lerne, myght applye them selues vnto good maners and lyue accordynge to the lawe of the Lorde.

¶Ecclesiasticus.

¶The fyrst Chapter.

Wysdome procedeth and commeth of God. ¶ prayse of the feare of God. Rightewesnes is a degre to come by wysdome.

All wysdome * commeth of God the Lorde, and hath bene euer with hym, and is before all tyme. Who had nombred the sande of the see, ꝑ droppes of ꝑ rayne, & the dayes of tyme? Who hath measured ꝑ heygth of heauen, ꝑ brede of the earth, & the depnesse of the see? Who hath sought out ꝑ grounde of Goddes wysdome, which hath bene before all thynges? * Wysdome hath bene before all thynges, and the vnderstandynge of prudence from euerlastynge. (Gods worde in the heygth is the well of wysdome, and the euerlastynge cōmaundementes are the entrāce of her.)

Vnto whom hath the rote of wysdome bene declared? Or who hath knowne her wyt? Vnto who hath ꝑ doctrine of wysdome bene discouered & shewed? ād who hath vnderstande ꝑ many folde entrāce of her?

There is one: euen the hyest, the maker of all thynges, the Almyghtye, the kyng, of power (of whom men ought to stande greatly in awe) which syttеth vpon his trone, beinge a God of dominiō: he hath created her thorow the holy goost: he hath sene her, nombred her, ād measured her: he hath poured her out vpon all hys workes, and vpon all flesh accordynge to hys gyft: he geueth her reychely vnto the that loue hym: The feare of the Lorde is worshyppe and triumphe, gladnesse and a ioyfull crowne: The feare of the Lord maketh a mery hert, geueth gladnesse, ioye and longe lyfe. Who so feareth the Lorde, it shall go well wyth hym at the last, and in ꝑ daye of hys death he shall be blessed.

The loue of God is honorable wysdome: loke vnto whom it appeareth, they loue yt, for they se what wonderous thinges it doth. * The feare of the Lorde ys ꝑ begynnig of wysdome, ād was made wyth the faythfull in the mothers wombe: yt shall go wyth the chosen women, and shalbe knowne of the ryghteous and faythfull. The feare of the Lorde is the ryght Gods seruyce, that preserueth

* Ecclesi. xxiiii. b and. xliii. d Job. xxviii. c Baruch. i. a

* Roma. xi. c

* Psal. cxi. Prou. ix.

strengthneth and iustifieth the herte, and giueth myrth & gladnesse. Who so feareth ꝓ Lord shall be happie, and when he hath nede of cõforte, he shall be blessed. To feare God is the wysdome that maketh rich, and bringeth all good with her. She filleth the whole house with her gyftes, and the garners with her treasure. The feare of the Lord is the crowne of wysdome, and geueth plenteous peace and health. He hath sene her & nombred her: (both these are the gyftes of God) knowledge and vnderstandinge of wisdome hath he poured out as rayne, and thẽ that helde her fast, hath he brought vnto honour.

ℙ The feare of the Lord is the rote of wysdome, and her braunches are longe lyke. In the treasures of wisdome is vnderstãdinge and deuocyon of knowledge, but wysdome is abhorred of synners. The feare of ꝓ Lord dryueth out synne: for he that is without feare cannot be made righteous, and his wylfull boldnes is his awne destruccyon. A pacient man wyll suffre vnto the tyme, & then shall he haue ꝓ rewarde of ioye. A good vnderstandinge wyll hide his wordes for a tyme, & many mens lippes shall speake of his wysdome. In the treasurs of wysdome is ꝓ declaracyon of doctryne, but the synner abhorreth the worshippe of God. Wylt thou, my sonne, yt thou desire wisdome, kepe the commaundement, and God shall geue her vnto the: for the feare of the Lorde is wysdome and nurture, he hath pleasure in fayth and lowlynge meknesse, & he shall fill the treasures ther of. Be not obstinate and vnfaythfull to the feare of the Lorde, and come not vnto hym with a double hert. Be not an ypocrite in ꝓ syght of mẽ, and take good hede what thou speakest. Marcke well these thynges, lest ꝓ happẽ to fall and bringe thy soule to dishonoure, and so God discouer thy secretes, and cast the downe in the middest of the congregacyon: because thou woldest not receaue ꝓ feare of God, and because thy herte is full of laynednes and disceate.

¶ The.ii. Chapter.

¶ He exhorteth the seruauntes of God to ryghteousnes, loue, vnderstandynge, and pacience, & exhorteth him that feareth God, to beleue, to hope, and to loue, because God neuer confounded ner forsaketh them ꝓ trust in hym. A curse vpon the sotell, fearce, and impacyent of herte.

My sonne, * yf thou wilt come into ꝓ seruice of God, stande fast in ryghteousnes and feare, and arme thy soule to tẽtacyon: sette thyne hert and be pacyent: bowe downe thyne eare, receaue the wordes of vnderstandynge, and shrynche not awaye, whẽ thou art entysed. Holde the fast vpõ God, ioyne thy selfe vnto him, and suffre that thy life maye encrease at ꝓ last. Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto ꝓ receaue it: suffre in heuynesse, and be pacient in thy trouble. * For lyke as golde & syluer are tryed in the fyre, euen so are acceptable mẽ in ꝓ fornace of aduersite. Beleue i God, & he shall helpe the: ordre thy waye a ryght, and put thy trust in him. Hold fast his feare and growe therin. O ye that feare the Lord take sure holde of his mercy: shrincke not a waye from him, that ye fall not. O ye that feare ꝓ Lord, beleue him, and your reward shall not be emptie. O ye that feare ꝓ Lord, put your trust in him, and mercy shall come vnto you for pleasure. O ye ꝓ feare ꝓ Lord, set youre loue vpon hym, and youre hertes shalbe lyghtened.

Consydre the olde generacions of mẽ (O ye childzen) & marcke them well: * was there euer eny one confoũded, that put his trust in the Lord? Who euer continued in his feare, and was forsakẽ? Or whom dyd he euer despise, that called faithfully vpõ him? For God is gracyous & mercyfull, he forgeueth sinnes in the tyme of trouble, and is a defender for all them that seke him in the trueth. Wo be vnto him, ꝓ hath a double hert, wyked lippes and euell occupied handes, and to the sinner that goeth two maner of wayes. Wo be vnto thẽ ꝓ are loose of herte, which put not their trust in God, & therfore shall they not be defended of hym. Wo be vnto thẽ that haue lost pacience, forsaken ꝓ right wayes, and are turned back into frowarde wayes. What will they do, when the Lord shall begynne to vysyt them?

They that feare the Lord, wyll not mistrust his worde, and they ꝓ * loue him wyll kepe his commaundemẽt. They that feare the Lord, will seke out the thinges, that are pleasaunt vnto him, * & they that loue him: shall fulfyll hys lawe. They that feare the Lord, wyll prepare theyr hertes, and humble their soules in his sight. They that feare ꝓ Lord, kepe hys commaundemẽtes, and will be pacient tyll they se him self, saying: * better it is for vs to fall into ꝓ hãdes of ꝓ Lorde, then into the handes of men: for hys mercy is as greate as hym selfe.

¶ The.iii. Chapter.

¶ To oure father and mother ought we to geue double honour. Of the blessynge and curse of the father and mother. No mã ought ouer curyous ly to searche out the secretes of God.

The childzen of wysdome are a congregacion of the righteous, and their exercyse is obedience and loue. Heare me youre father (O my deare childzen) and do there after, that ye maye be safe. * For ꝓ Lorde wyll haue the father honoured of the childzen: and loke what a mother commaũdeth her childrẽ to do, he will haue it kepte. Who so honoureth hys father, his synnes shall be forgeuen him: * & he that honoureth his mother is lyke one ꝑ gathereth treasure together. Who so honoureth his father, shall haue ioye of his awne children: & whē he maketh his prayer he shall be herde. He ꝑ honoureth his father, shall haue a lōge lyfe: and he that is obedyent for the Lordes sake, his mother shall haue ioye of hym.

B He that feareth the Lorde, honoureth his father & mother, and doth thē seruyce, as it were vnto the Lord him selfe. Honoure thy father in dede, in worde & in all pacience, that thou mayest haue Gods blessinge, & his blessinge shall abyde with the at the last.

¶ Ecclus.iii.b * The blessing of the father buyldeth vp the houses of the children, but ꝑ mothers curse roteth out the foundacions. Reioyse not whē thy father is reproued, for it is not honoure vnto the, but a shame. For the worshipe of a mās father is his awne worshipe, & where the father is without honour, it is the dishonesty of the sonne. Myne sōne, make moch of thy father i his age, and greue him not as longe as he liueth. And yf his vnderstandynge fayle, haue pacyence wyth hym, and despise him not in thy strength. For the good dede ꝑ thou shewest vnto thy father, shal not be forgotte, and when thou thy selfe wantest, it shall be rewarded the (& for thy mothers offence thou shalt be recompensed with good, yee it shall be founded for the in ryghteousnes) and in the daye of trouble þ shalt be remembred: thy synnes also shall melt awaye, like as the yse in the fayre warme wether.

C He that forsaketh hys father, shall come to shame: and he that defieth his mother, is cursed of God. Myne sonne, perfourme thy workes with louynge mekenesse, so shalt ꝑ be loued aboue other mē. The greater thou art, ꝑ more humble thy selfe (in all thinges) and thou shalt fynde fauour in the syght of God. For greate power belōgeth onely vnto God, and he is honoured of the lowlye.

¶ Ecclus.xxxvi.a Prouer.xxv.b Roma.xii.a * Seke not out the thynges ꝑ are aboue thy capacite, and searche not the grounde of soch thinges as are to myghtye for the: but loke what God hath commaūded the: thynke vpon that all waye, and be not curyous in many of his workes. For it is not nedefull for the, to se wyth thyne eyes the thynges ꝑ are secrete. Make not thou to moche search in superfluous thinges, and be not curious i many of his workes: for many thinges are shewed vnto the all ready, which be aboue the capacite of men. The medlinge wt soch hath begiled many a man, and tangled their wittes in vanite. Now he that loueth parell, shall perish therin.

D An harde herte shall fare euell at the last: (and he that loueth daunger, shall perysshe therin) an hert that goeth two wayes, shall not prospere: and he that is frowarde of hert wyll euer be worse and worse.) A wycked hert shalbe laden with sorowes, and the vngodly synner wil heape one synne vpō an other. The counsel of ꝑ proude hath no healthe for the plante of synne shall be roted out in thē, and not knowne. The hert of hym that hath vnderstādinge shall perceaue hye thinges, and a good eare will gladly herken vnto wisdome. An herte that is wise and hath vnderstādinge, will abstayne from synnes, and increase i the workes of righteousnes. Water quencheth burnynge fyre, & ꝑ mercy reconcileth synnes. God hath respecte vnto him that is thanckfull: he thynketh vpon him agaynst ꝑ tyme to come: so that whē he falleth, he shall fynde a stronge holde. ¶ Ecclus.iii.b

¶ The.iiii. Chapter.

¶ Almes must be done with all meekenes. The loue of the Lorde & her fruyte. A iudge ought to be mercyfull. An exhortacyon to eschue euell and to do good.

MY sonne, * defraude not ꝑ poore of thys almes, and turne not awaye thyne eyes frō hym that hath nede. Despise not an hongrye soule, and defie not the poore in his necessite: greue not the herte of him that is helpelesse, and withdrawe not the gift from the nedefull. Refuse not ꝑ prayer of one that is in trouble, turne not awaye thy face from the nedy. Cast not thyne eyes alyde from ꝑ poore, for anye euell wyll, that thou geue hym not occasion to speake euell of the. For yf he complayne of the in ꝑ bytternes of his soule, his prayer shall be herde: euen he that made him, shall heare him. Be curteous vnto the company of the poore, bowe thy soule vnto the elder, and bowe downe thy head to a man of worshippe. Let it not greue the to bowe downe thine eare vnto ꝑ poore, but paye thy dett, and geue him a frendly answere, and that wt mekenesse. A * Deut.xv.

* Delyuer him that suffreth wronge from the hāde of the oppressour, and be not fayntharted when thou sytteste in iudgement. Be mercyfull vnto the fatherlesse as a father, & be in steade of an husbande vnto their mother: so shalt thou be as an obediēt sonne of the hyest, and he shall loue the more the thy mother doth: Wysdome bringeth lyfe into her children, receaueth them that seke her, & wil go before thē in the waye of righteousnes. He that loueth her, loueth life: and they that seke her dilygently, shall haue greate ioye. They that kepe her, shall haue the heritage of lyfe: for where she entreth in, there is the blessyng of God. They that honoure her, shall be the seruauntes of the holy one: and they that loue hyr, are beloued of God. Who so geueth eare vnto her, shall iudge ꝑ heathē: and he that hath respecte vnto her, shall dwell safely. B * Deut.xv. ¶ Luke. ¶ Matt.

The

C He that beleueth her, shal haue her in possession, and hys generacion shall endure: for when he falleth, she doth go with hym, and choseth him among the best. Feare, dzede & temptacion shall the bzynge vpon him, and trye him in her doctrine: tyll she haue so proued him in his thoughtes, that he commytt his soule vnto her. Then shall she stablishe hym, bzyng the ryght waye vnto hym, make him a glad man, shewe him her secretes, and heape vpon him the treasures of knowledge, vnderstandynge and ryghteousnes. But yf he go wzong, she shall forsake him, and geue hym ouer into the handes of hys enemye.

D My sonne, make moch of thy tyme, eschue the thinge that is euell, and for thy lyfe shame not to saye the trueth. For there is a shame that bzingeth synne, and ther is a shame that bzingeth worshyppe and fauour. * Accepte no person after thyne awne wyll, that thou be not confounded to thyne awne decaye. Be not a shamed of thy neyghboure in his aduersite, and kepe not back thy counsell when it maye do good, nether hyde thy wysdome in her bewty. For in the tonge is wysdome knowne, so is vnderstandyng knowledge and lerninge in the talkyng of ỹ wise, & stedfastnesse in the wozckes of ryghteousnes. In no wyse speake agaynst the wozde of treuth, but be ashamed of the lyes of thine awne ignozaunce. Shame not to confesse thyne errour, and submytte not thy selfe vnto euery man because of synne. Withstande not the face of the mighty, & strine ỹ not against ỹ streame. But for ryghteousnes take paynes with all thy soule, & for the trueth stryue thou vnto death, and God shall fyght for the agaynst thyne enemyes. Be not hastye in thy tong, nether slack and negligēt in thy wozckes. Be not as a lyon in thyne awne house, destroying thy houshold folkes, and oppzessing the that are vnder the. * Let not thyne hande be stretched out to receaue, and shut when thou shuldest geue.

* Ecclus.xxx.c

* Ecclus.xxx.c

* Ecclus.xxx.g

C The.v. Chapter.

C In ryches maye we not put any confydence. The longeaunce of God ought to be feared, and to repentaunce maye we not be slowe.

A Trust not vnto thy riches, * & saye not: tush, I haue ynough for my lyfe. (For it shall not helpe in the tyme of vengeaunce and temptacyon.) Followe not the lust of thyne awne hert in thy strength, and saye not: tush, how haue I had strength, or who will bringe me vnder because of my wozckes? for doutles God shall auenge it. And saye not. I haue committed no synnes, but what euell hath happened me? For the almyghtye is a paciēt rewarder. * Because thy synne is forgeuē the, be not therfore without feare, nether heape one sinne vpō another. * And saye not: tush, the mercy of the Lozd is great, he shall forgeue me my synnes, be they neuer so many. * For lyke as he is mercyfull, so goeth wzath from hym also, and hys indignacyon commeth downe vpon synners.

* Eccl.xvi.b

* Eccl.xvi.b

Make no tarying to turne vnto ỹ Lozd, and put not of from daye to daye: for sodenly shall his wzath come, and in the tyme of vengeaūce he shall destroye the. * Trust not in wycked riches for they shall not helpe the in the daye of punishemēt & wzath. Be not caried about to euery wynde, & goo not into euery waye: for so doth the synner that hath a double tōge. Stāde fast in the waye of the Lozd, be stedfast in thy vnderstāding, abyde by the wozde, ād folowe the wozde of peace and righteousnes. Be gentle to heare the wozde of God, that thou mayest vnderstande it, & make a true answere with wisdome. * Be swyft to heare, but slowe & patyent in geuynge answere. If thou hast vnderstandyng, shape thy neyghboure an answere: If no, laye thine hād vpō thy mouth: lest thou be trapped in an vndiscrete wozde, and so confounded. Honour and wozshyppe is in a mans wyse talking, but the tonge of the vndiscrete is his awne destrucciō. * Be not a pzeuy accuser as longe as thou lyuest, and vse no sclaunder wyth thy tonge. For shame and sozow goeth ouer the chefe, & an euell name ouer him that is double tonged: but he ỹ is a pzeuy accuser of other mē, shal be hated, enuyed and confounded. Se ỹ thou iustifie the small and greate alyke.

* Ecclus.v.a

* Iames.i.c

* Ecclus.xix.b

C The.vi. Chapter.

C Yet to ỹ properte of a synner to be euell tonged. The doctrine & good counsell of ỹ wyse is to be embraced, wysdome shuld be searched for. The pzaise therof.

A Be not thy neyghbours enemye for thy frendes sake: for who so is euell shal be the heyre of rebuke and dishonoure, and whosoeuer beareth enuye & a double tonge offendeth. * Be not pzoude in the deupee of thyne awne vnderstādyng (lest thy strēgth be hurt by foolyshnes, and) lest thy leaues wither, ād thy frute be destroyed, ād so thou be left as a drie tree (in the wildernes.) For a wycked soule destroyeth him that hath it, maketh him to be laughed to scorne of his enemyes, (& bzyngeth hym to the pozciō of the vngodly.) * A swete wozde multyplyeth frendes, and pacifieth them that be at variaunce, & a thākfull tonge will be plenteous in a good man. Holde frendshippe with many, neuertheles haue but one counceler of a thousande.

* Rom.xii.b Phili.ii.a

* Eccle.xx.b

B Yf thou gettest a fryst, * proue him fyrst, and be not hastye to geue hym credēce. For some man is a frēde, but for a tyme, & will not abyde in the daye of trouble. And there is some

* Deu.xiii.b and.xvi.d Micha.vii.a Matth.v.c

is some frende that turneth to enemytie, and taketh parte agaynst ỹ: & yf he knowe eny
* Ecclesiasti.a hurt by ỹ, he telleth it out. * Agayne, some frende is but a companyon at the table, and in the daye of nede he continueth not. But a sure frende wyll be vnto the euen as thyne
awne selfe, & deale faythfully with thy hou sholde folke. If thou suffre trouble and ad-uersytie, he is with the, and hydeth not hym self from the. Departe from thine enemyes, yee and beware of thy frendes.

¶ A faythfull frende is a stronge defence,
who so fyndeth soche one, fyndeth a treasure. A faythfull frende hath no peare, ỹ weight of golde and syluer is not to be compared to ỹ goodnesse of his fayth. A faythfull frende is a medicyne of lyfe, and they ỹ feare the Lord, shall fynde yt. Who so feareth ỹ Lord, shall prosperr with frendes: and as he is him self,
so shall his frende be also. My sonne, receaue doctrine from thy youth vp, so shalt thou fynde wysdome tyll thou be olde. Go to her as one ỹ ploweth, and soweth, and wayte paciently for hir good frutes. For thou shalt haue but litle labour in hir worke, but thou shalt eate of hir frutes right soone. O how exceadinge sharpe is wysdome to vnlerned
men: an vnstedfast body wyll not remayne
in her. Vnto soch, she is as it were a touch stone, and he casteth her from him in all the haste. for wysdome is with him but in name
there be but fewe ỹ haue knowledge of her.
(But with them ỹ know her, she abydeth euen vnto the apperynge of God.)

Geue eare (my sonne) receaue my doctrine, and refuse not my councell. Put thy fote
* Matt. vi.b into her lynckes, * & take her yocke vpon thy neck: bowe downe thy shoulder vnder her,
beare her pacientlỹ, and be not wery of her bãdes. Come vnto her with thy whole hert, & kepe her wayes with all thy power. Seke after her, and she shalbe shewed the: and when thou hast her, forsake her not. For at D the last thou shalt fynde rest in her, and that shall be turned to thy great ioye. Then shal her fetters be a stronge defence for the, and her yocke a glorious rayment. For ỹ bewtye of lyfe is in her, and her bandes are the cou-plynge together of saluaciõ. Yee a glorious rayment is it, thou shalt put it on, and ỹ same crowne of ioye shalt thou were.

My sonne, yf thou wylt take hede, thou shalt haue vnderstanding, and yf thou wylt applye thy mynde, ỹ shalt be wyse. If thou wylt bowe downe thyne eare, thou shalt re-
ceaue doctrine, and yf thou delite in hearig, thou shalt be wise. Stande with the multitude of soch elders as haue vnderstandinge,
and consente vnto their wisdome with thy-
* Eccl. viii.a ne hert: * ỹ thou mayest heare all godly sermons, and that ỹ worthy sentences eschape
the not. And yf thou seyst a man of discrete vnderstandinge, gett the soone vnto hym, &
let thy fote treade vpõ the steppes of his do-
res. * Let thy mynde be vpon the cõmaun- * Psalm.
dementes of God, and be earnestly occupied
in his lawes: so shall he stablysh thy herte, &
geue the wisdome at thine awne desire.

¶ The. vii. Chapter.

¶ We must forsake euell, and yet not fullfille our leisure. The behauour of the wyse to warde his wyfe, hys frende, his chyldren, his seruauntes, his father and mother, the prestes, &c.

DO no euell, so shall ther no harme A happen vnto the. Departe awaye
from the thynge that is wycked, &
no mysfortune shall medle with ỹ.
My sonne, sowe no euell thynges in the forowes of vnrighteousnes, so shalt thou not reape thẽ seuen folde. Laboure not vnto mã for any lordshype, nether vnto the kyng for the seat of honour. * Justifie not thy self be- * Ps. xxxix.
fore God (for he knoweth the herte) and de- Eccle. xxi.a sire not to be reputed wyse in the presence of Iohn. ii.a
ỹ kyng. Make no labour to be made a iudge Luk. xviii.
excepte it so were, that thou couldest mygh-
tely put downe wyckednes: for yf thou shul
dest stande in awe of the presence of ỹ mygh
tye, thou shuldest fayle in geuynge sentẽce.
Offende not in the multitude of the citye, &
put not thy selfe amonge ỹ people. * Bynde * Ecclus.
not two synnes together, for in one synne shalt thou not be vnpunyshed. Saye not:
tush, God wyll loke vpon the multytude of my oblacions, and when I offre to the hyest
God, he will accepte it.

Be not faynt harted when thou makest 25
thy prayer, nether slacke in geuyng of almes Laugh no man to scorne in the heynesse of his soule, for God (which seyth all thynges)
is he * that can brynge downe, and sett vp * 1. Reg. ii.
agayne. Accepte no lesyng agaynst thy brother, nether do the same agaynst thy frende.
Use not to make any maner of lye, for the customes therof is not good. Make not many wordes, when ỹ art amonge ỹ elders: * & * Matt. vi.
whẽ thou prayest, make not moch babyng.
* Let no labourious worke be tedious vnto * Ecclus.
the, nether the hous handrie whych the all-mighty hath created. Make not thy boast i the multitude of thy wyckednes, but hũble
thy selfe euẽ from thine herte: & remembre ỹ
the wrath shal not be longe in tarynge, and that the vengeaunce of the flesh of the vngodly is a very fire & wrame. Geue not ouer thy frende for eny good, ner thy faythfull
brother for the best golde.

Departe not frõ a discrete and good wo- ¶ man, that is fallen vnto the for thy porcion
in the feare of ỹ Lord, for ỹ gift of her honesty is above golde. * Where as thy seruaunt * Luke xvii.
worcheth truly, intreate him not euell, ner
the hirelinge that is faythful vnto ỹ. Loue
a discrete seruaunte as thyne awne soule,

defraude

defraude him not of his lyberte, nether leaue him a poore man. * If þ haue catell, loke
well to them: and yf they be for thy profyt, kepe them. * If thou haue sonnes, bring the vp in nourture and lerning, and holde them in awe from their youth vp. If thou haue daughters, kepe their body, and shewe not thy face chereful towarde them. Marie thy daughter, & so shalt þ perfourme a weighty matter: but geue her to a man of vnderstanding. If thou haue a wyfe after thyne awne mynde: forsake her not: (but commytte not thy selfe to the hatefull.)

* Honoure thy father frō thy whole hert:
& forget not the soroufull trauayle that thy mother had with þ: remembre þ thou wast
borne thorow them, and how canst thou recompense them the thynges that they haue done for the? Feare the Lorde with all thy soule, & honoure hys mynysters. Loue thy maker with all thy strength, * & forsake not his seruauntes. Feare þ Lorde with all thy soule, & honoure his Prestes. * Geue them
their portion of the fyrst frutes and increase of the earth, lyke as it is commaunded the:
(and reconcile thy selfe of thy negligence vñ
the lytle flock) geue them the shoulders, and their appoynted offringes and fyrstlynges.
Reache thyne hande vnto the poore, þ God
maye bielle the vñ plenteousnes. * Be lyberall vnto all mē lyuinge, & pet let not but do good euen to them that are deed.

* Let not them þ wepe, be wythout com-forte, but mourne vñ soch as mourne. & Let it not greue þ to vyset the sick, for that shal make þ to be beloued. Whatsoeuer thou ta-kest in hande, remembre the ende, and thou shalt neuer do amysse.

¶ The.viii.Chapter.

¶ Againste thy better is no stryuyng. Of the deeth of thyne enemye mayste þ not reioyce, ner despyse thy neyghbours, ner the wordes of the wyse.

STryue not wyth a myghtye man, lest thou chaunce to fall into hys hāndes. * Make no variaunce with a rich mā, lest he happen to bringe vp an harde quarell agaynst þ. * For golde and syluer hath vndone many a mā, yee cuē the hertes of kynges hath it made to fall. Stryue not with a man that is full of wordes, and laye no stykes vpon his fyre. Kepe no company with the vnlerned, lest he geue thy kinred an euell reporte. * Despyse not a man that turneth him selfe awaye from synne, and cast him not in the teeth withall, but remembre that we are fraple euerychone.) * Thynche scorne of no mā in his olde age, for we waxe olde also. Be not glad of the death of thyne enemye, but remembre þ we muste dye all the sorte of vs (and fayne wold we come into ioye.) * Despise not þ sermōs of soch elders as haue vnderstandynge, but acquaynte thy selfe with the wyse sentēces of them: for of them thou shalt lerne wysdome and the doctrine of vnderstandynge, and how to serue greate mē without cōplaynte.

Go not from the doctrynse of the elders, for they haue lerned it of their fathers. For of them thou shalt lerne vnderstandinge, so that thou mayest make answere in the time of nede. Kyndle not the coales of synners, (whan thou rebukest them) lest thou be brēt in the fyre flammes of their sinnes. Resyst not the face of the blasphemer, that he laye not wayte for thy mouth. * Lende not vnto him that is myghtier then thy selfe: If thou lendest him, coūte it but lost. Be not suerty aboue thy power: yf thou be, then thynche surely to paye it. Go not to lawe with the iudge: for he wyll iudge accordynge to hys awne honoure. * Trauayle not by þ waye with hym that his brayneleste, lest he do the euell: for he foloweth his awne wylfulnes, and so shalt thou perish thorow his foly.

* Stryue not with hym þ is angrie and cruell, and go not with him into the wildernes: for bloude is nothinge in his syght, and where there is no helpe, he shal murther the
* Take no coūcel at fooles, for they loue no thinge but the thinges that please them sel-
ues. Make no councel before a stranger. for thou cāst not tell what will come of it. Opē not thyne hert vnto euery man, lest he be vn thanckfull to the, and put the to reproffe.

¶ The.ix.Chapter.

¶ The leopardyes of chastrees are to be eschewed. An olde seynde is to be preferred before a new. The glory and rychesse of synners. Vprightwes men shulde be bydden togest. Labour is the chefe thynge in a worcke man, and wysedome in a prynce.

BE not gelous ouer þ wyfe of thy bo-some, þ she shewe not some shrewed poynte of wicked doctrine vpon the.
* Geue not the power of thy life vnto a wo-mā, lest she come in thy strēgth, and so thou be confounded. Loke not vpon a woman þ is desyrous of many men, lest thou fall into her snares. Use not the company of a womā þ is a player and a daunser, & heare her not, lest thou perish thorow her entysynge. Be-holde not a mayde, that thou be not hurt in her beawty. * Cast not thy mynde vpon har-lottes in eny maner of thynge, lest thou de-stroye both thy selfe and thine heritage. Go not aboute gasyng in euery lane of the citye nether wādre thou abrode in þ streetes ther-
of. * Turne awaye thy face from a bewty-
full woman, and loke not vpon the fayrnes of other.

* Many a man hath perished thorow the bewtye of wemen, for thorow it the desyre is kyndled as it were a fyre. (In aduoute-
rous woman shalbe troaden vnder fote as myre,

why/ þ hyghest hateth sinners, and shal rewarde vengeaunce to the vngodly.

In prosperite, a frede shall not be knowne and in aduersite an enemye shall not be hyd. For whē a man is in wealth, it greueth his enemyes: but in heynes and trouble a man shall knowe his frende. Trust neuer thyne enemy, for lyke as an yron rusteth, so doth his wickednes. And though he make moche crouchyng and kneelyng, yet kepe well thy mynde, and beware of him. Set him not by the, nether let him syt at thy right hand: lest he turne him, gett into thy place, take thy rowme and seke thy seate, and so thou at þ last remembre my wordes, & be pricked at my sayinges.

* Eccle. bii. a and. fiii. a. * Binde not two sinnes together, for there shall not one be vnpunished. Who will haue pitie of þ charmer, that is stynged of the serpent, or of all soch as come nye the beastes? Euē so is it wt him þ kepeth company with a wycked man, and lappeth him selfe in his sinnes. For a season wyll he byde wyth the, but yf thou stomble, he tarieth not. ‡ An enemy is swete in his lippes, he cā make many wordes & speake many good thiges: Yet he can wepe with hys eyes, but in hys herte he ymagineth, how to throwe the into þ pytt: & yf he may fynde opportunite, he will not be satisfied with bloud. If aduersite come vpō þ, thou shalt fynde him there first, & though he pretende to do the help, yet shall he vndermine the. He shal shake his head, and clappe his hādes ouer þ for very gladnes: & whyle he maketh many wordes, he shall disguyse his countenaunce. ‡ Ecc. xii. b.

¶ The. xiii. Chapter.

¶ The companies of the proude and of the ryche are to be eschewed. The loue of God: Lyke do company with their lyke.

WHo so toucheth pytch, shalbe fyled withall: and he that is familiar wt the proude, shal clothe him selfe wt pryde. He taketh a burthen vpon him, that accompanyeth a more honorable man then him selfe. Therfore, kepe no familiarite with one that is richer then thy selfe. How agree the ketell and the pot together? for yf the one be smytten agaynst the other, it shall be broke. The ryche dealeth vnryghteously, & threateneth withal: but þ poore beyng oppressed & wrongeously dealt withall, suffreth scarcenes, & geueth fayre wordes. If thou be for hys profyt, he vseth the: but yf thou haue not hynge, he shall forsake þ. As longe as thou hast eny thing of thyne awne, he shal be a good felow with the: yee, he shal make the a bare man, and not be sory for the. If he haue nede of the, he shall defraude the: and (with a preuy mocke) shall he put the in an hope, and geue the all good wordes and saye: what wantest thou? Thus shall he shame the in his meate, vntill he haue supte the cleane vp twise or thryse, and at þ last shall he laugh þ to scorne. Afterward, when he seyth that thou hast nothynge, he shal forsake the, and shake his heade at the. (Submytte thy selfe vnto God, and wayte vpon hys hande.)

Beware, that thou be not disceaued and brought downe in thy symplenesse. Be not to bolde in thy wildome: lest when thou art brought lowe, þ be disceaued thorow foolyshnes. If thou be called of a myghtye man, absent thy selfe, so shall he call the to him þ more oft. Preasse not þ vnto him, that thou be not shutt out: but goo not þ farre of, lest he forgett þ. Withdraw not thy self frō his speach, but beleue not his many wordes. For wt moch cōmunicatiō shall he tempte the, & (with a preuy mock) shall he questyon the of thy secrettes. The vnmercyfull minde of his shal marck thy wordes, he shal not spare to do þ hurte, & to put þ in prison. Beware, ād take good hede to thy selfe, for þ walkest in parel of thy ouerthrowyng.

Now when thou heareſt his wordes, make þ as though thou werest in a dreame, and wake vp. Loue God all thy lyfe longe, and call vpō him in thy nede. Euery beast loueth his like, euē so let euery mā lone his neyghbour. All flesh will resorte to their lyke, and euery man will kepe company with soch as he is him selfe. But as þ wolfe agreeth with the lambe, so doth þ vngodly with the righteous. * What felyshyp shulde an holy man haue with a dogge. How can the ryche & the poore agree together? The wilde Asse is the lyons praye in the wyldernesse, euen so are poore men the meate of the ryche. Lyke as the proude maye not awaye wyth lowlynes, euen so doth the ryche abhorre the poore: If a ryche man fall, hys frendes set hym vp agayne: but when the poore falleth, hys aquayntaunce forsake hym. If a ryche man fall into an errour, he hath many helpers: he speaketh proude wordes, and yet men iustifye hym. ii. Cap. xi.

But yf a poore man go wronge, he is punyshed: yee though he speake wisely, yet can it haue no place. When the ryche man speaketh euery body holdeth his tōge: and loke what he saieth, they prayse it vnto the clowdes. But yf the poore mā speake, they saye: What felowe is thys? and yf he do amysse, they shal destroye him. Riches are good vnto him that hath no synne in his conscience, and pouerte is a wicked thing in the mouth of the vngodly. The herte of man chaungeth his countenaunce, whether it be in good or euell. A chearfull countenaunce is a token of a good herte, for els it is an harde thynge to knowe the thought.

¶ The

¶ The.xiiii. Chapter.

¶ Wel ordeyned of the tonge. Man is but a barne thynge. Happy is he that cõtynueth in wysdome.

A BLessed is ꝑ man, * that hath not fallen wt the worde of his mouth, and is not pricked with ꝑ conscience of sinne. Happie is he that hath no heuynes in his mynde, and is not fallen from his hope. It becõmeth not a couetous man and a nygarde, to be ryche: and what shulde a nygarde do wt golde? He that with al his carefulnes heapeth together vnrygh tfully, gathereth for other folckes, & another man shal make good chere wt his goodes. He that is wicked vnto hym selfe, how shulde he be good vnto other men? How can soch one haue eny pleasure of his goodes? There is nothyng worse, then whe one defraudeth hym selfe, and this is a rewarde of his wyckednes. If he doeny good, he doth it not knowynge therof, and agaynst his wyll, and at the last he declareth his vngracioulnes. A nygarde hath a wycked eye, he turneth awaye his face, & despyseth his awne soule. * A couetous mãs eye hath neuer ynough in the porcyon of wyckednes vntyll the tyme that he wyther awaye, and haue lost his awne soule.

A wycked eye spareth bred, and there is scarcenes vpõ his table. My sonne, do good to thy selfe of ꝑ thou hast, and geue the Lord his due offerynges. Remẽbre that death tarieth not, & how that ꝑ couenaunt of the graue is shewed vnto the: for ꝑ couenaunt of this world shall dye ꝑ death. * Do good vnto thy frynde before thou dye, and accordyng to thy abylite reach out thyne hand, and geue vnto ꝑ poore. Be not disapoynted of the good daye, and let not the porcyon of the good daye ouerpasse the. Shalt thou not leaue thy trauayles and labours vnto other men? In the deuydynge of the herytage geue & take & sanctyfye thy soule. Worcke thou ryghtcoulnes before thy death, for in the hell there is no meat to fynde. ‡ All flesh shal fade awaye lyke grasse, and lyke a flourishyng leafe in a grene tre. Some growe, some are cast downe: euen so is ꝑ generacyon of flesh and bloude: one commeth to an ende, another is borne.

All transytory thynges shall fayle at the last, and ꝑ worcher therof shall go withal. Euery chosen worke shalbe iustified, and he that medled withal, shal haue honour therin. Blessed is ꝑ man ꝑ kepeth hym in wysdome, & exercyseth hym selfe in vnderstandynge, and with discrecyon shall he thynke vpon the fore knowledge of God. Which consydereth the wayes of wysdome in hys hert, hath vnderstandynge in her secretes, goeth after her (as one that seketh her out) and cõtinueth in her wayes. He loketh in at her wyndowes, and herkeneth at her dores. He taketh his rest beyde her house, & fasteneth his stake in her walles. He shall pitch his tente nye vnto her hand, and in his tent shall good thynges rest for euermore. He shall set his chyldren vnder her couering, and shall dwell vnder her braunches. Vnder her couering shall he be defended from the heat, and in her glory shall he rest.

¶ The.xv. Chapter.

¶ The goodnes that folowyth hym which feareth God, God reiecteth and casteth of the synner. God is not the auctor of euell.

S ꝑ feareth God, will do good: A & who so kepeth the lawe, shall optayne wysdome. As an honorable mother shall she mete hym, & as a virgyn shall she receaue him. * With ꝑ bred of lyfe & vnderstãdyng shall she fede hym, ‡ & geue him ꝑ water of wholsome wysdome to drynck. If he be constãt in her, he shall not be moued: & yf he holde hym fast by her, he shall not come to confusyon. She shall brynge hym to honoure amonge his neyghboures, and in the myddest of the congregacyon shall she open his mouth. With ꝑ spirite of wysdome and vnderstãdyng shall she fyll hym, and clothe hym wt the garmẽt of glory. She shall heape the treasure of myrth & ioye vpon hym, and geue hym an euerlastynge name to heritage. Folysh men will not take holde vpõ her: but soch as haue vnderstandyng, wyll mete her (Folysh men shall not se her) for she is farre from pryde & discreate. Men ꝑ go about wt lyes, wyll not remembre her: but men of trueth shalbe founde in her, and shall prosper euen vnto the beholdyng of God. Prayse is not semely in ꝑ mouth of the vngodly, for he is not sent of the Lord. For of God cõmeth wysdome, and the prayse shall stande by the wysdome of God, and shall be plenteous in a faythfull mouth, and ꝑ Lorde shall geue her vnto hym. * Ecclus.xliii.a. ‡ Iohn.iiii.a.

Saye not ꝑ: It is the Lordes faute that I am gone by, for ꝑ shalt not do the thyng ꝑ God hateth. Saye not ꝑ: he hath caused me to do wronge, for he hath no nede of ꝑ vngodly. God hateth all abhominacion of errour, & they that feare God wyll loue none soch. ‡ God made man frõ the begynnynge, & left him in ꝑ hand of his councell. He gaue him his cõmaundementes & preceptes: yf ꝑ wylt obserue ꝑ cõmaũdemẽtes, & kepe acceptable faithfulnes for euer, they shall preserue the. * He hath sett water & fire before the, reach out thyne hãde vnto which ꝑ wilt. Before man is lyfe & death, good & euell: loke what him lyketh, shalbe geuen him. For ꝑ wysdome of God is greate and myghty in power, & beholdeth all men contynually. The eyes of ꝑ Lorde are vpon them that feare hym, ‡ Genes.i.d. * Ierem.xxi.b.

and he knoweth all the workes of man. He hath cõmaunded no man to do vngodly: neither hath he geuen eny man space to synne.

¶ The .xvi. Chapter.

¶ Of vnhappye and wycked chyldren. No man can hyde hym selfe from God: An exhortacyon to the receavynge of instruccyon.

1 DElyte not thou in the multytude of vngodly chyldren, and haue no pleasure in them, yf they feare not God. Truste not ꝑ to theyr lyfe, ād regarde not theyr labours: for one sonne ꝑ feareth God, is better, thē a thousande vngodly. And better it is for a man to dye without chyldren, then to leaue behynde hym soch chyldren as are vngodly. For by one ꝑ hath vnderstādynge, maye a whole cytie be vpholden, but though ꝑ vngodly be many, yet shall it be wasted thorow them. Many soch thynges hath myne eye sene, & greater thynges thē these haue I herde with myne
* Eccl.xvi.b. eares. * In the congregacyon of ꝑ vngodly shall a fyre burne, & amõg vnfaythfull people shall the wrath be kyndled.

2 * The olde gpauntes optayned no grace
* Gene.vi.a. for theyr synnes, which were destroyed, trustyng to theyr awne strēgth. Nether spared
* Gen.xix.f. he thē amõg whõ Loth which was a * straūger, but smot thē & abhorred thē because of the pride of theyr workes. He had no pytie vpon thē, but destroyed all ꝑ people, ꝑ were
* Nũm.xiiii.c and.xxvi.f. so stoute in synne. * And for so moch as he ouerlawe not the fyre hundreth thousande, that gathered thē selues together in ꝑ hardenes of their herte: it were maruell yf one
* Eccle.b.a. beynge hardenecked, shuld be fre. * For mercy & wrath is wt hym: he is both myghtye to forgeue and to poure out displeasure. Lyke as his mercy is greate, euen so is his punyshemēt also, he iudgeth a man accordyng to his workes. The vngodly shall not escape in his spoyle, & the lõge pacience of him that sheweth mercye, shall not byde behynde. All mercye shall make place vnto euery man accordyng to ꝑ worthynes of his workes, & after ꝑ vnderstādynge of his pylgremage.

3 ¶ Saye not thou: I wyll hyde my selfe frõ God, for who wyll thynche vpon me from aboue? I shall not be knowne I so greate a heape of people, for what is my soule amõg so many creatures? Beholde, ꝑ heauen, yee the heauen of heauens, the depe, the earthe, and all that therin is, shall be moued at hys presence: the mountaynes, the hylles, & the foundacyõs of ꝑ earth shall shake for feare, when God vysyteth them. These thynges doth no herte vnderstāde, but he vnderstādeth euery herte, & who vnderstandeth hys wayes? No man seyth his formes, and the moost part of hys workes are secrete. Who wyll declare the workes of his ryghteousnes? Or who shalbe able to abyde them? For the couenaunt is farre from some, and tryenge out of men is in the ende. He that is humble of herte, thynketh vpon soche thynges: but an vnwyse and erroneous man casteth hys mynde vnto folyth thynges.

4 Hy sonne, herken thou vnto me, and lerne vnderstādynge, and marcke my wordes with thyne herte. I wyll geue the a sure doctryne, & playnely shal I instructe the (marke my wordes thē in thyne herte: for in ryghteousnes of ꝑ spirete do I speak of the wonders that God hath shewed amõg hys workes from the begynnynge. And in ꝑ trueth do I shew ꝑ knowlege of hym.) God hath sett hys workes in good order from the begynnynge, and parte of them hath he sundered from the other. He hath garnyshed hys workes from euerlastynge, and theyr begynnynges, accordyng to their generacyõs. None of thē hyndered another, nether was any of them dysobedient vnto hys wordes. After thys, God loked vpon ꝑ earthe, and fylled it with hys goodes. With all maner of lyuynge beastes hath he couered the grounde, and they all shalbe turned vnto earthe agayne.

¶ The .xvii. Chapter.

¶ The creacyon of man, and the goodnes that God hath done vnto hym. Of raimes and repentaunce.

1 GOd * shope man of the earth, and made hym after his owne ymage, *Gen.i.
& turned hym vnto earthe agayne, and clothed him with his awne strength. He gaue him the nombre of dayes and certayne tyme, yee & gaue him power of ꝑ thynges that are vpon earthe. He made all fleth to stande in awe of hym, so that he had the dompynyon of all beastes and fowles. * He made out of hym an helper lyke *Gen.ii.
vnto him selfe, & gaue them dyscrecyon and tõge, eyes & eares, and a herte to vnderstande, and fylled them with instruccyon & vnderstandynge. He created for them also the knowledge of the spirete, fylled their hertes with vnderstandyng, & shewed them good & euell. He sett his eye vpon theyr hertes, declaringe vnto them his greate and noble workes: that they shulde prayse hys holy name together, ectoyle of his wonders, & be tellynge of hys noble actes. * Besyde thys * Exo.xx.
Deu.v.
he gaue them instruccyon, and the lawe of lyfe for an heritage.

He made an euerlastyng couenaunt with them, and shewed them hys ryghteousnes & iudgementes. They sawe his glory with theyr eyes, and theyr eares hearde the mateshy of his voyce. And he sayde vnto them: beware of all vnryghteous thynges. He gaue euery man also a commaundement concernynge.

tresspynge his neyghboure.

Theyr wayes are euer before hym, & are not hyd from his eyes.* He hath set a rular vpon euery people, * but Israel is ꝑ lordes porcyon. All their worckes are as ꝑ sũne, in ꝑ syght of God, and his eyes are alwaye lokynge vpon theyr wayes. All theyr vnrighteousnesses are manyfest vnto him, and all their wyckednesses are opẽ in his syght. * The mercy ꝑ a man sheweth is as it were a purse wᵗ him, and ꝑ grace that is geuen to man preserueth hym as the aple of an eye. * At the last shal he awake, & reward euery man vpon hys head, & shall turne them together vnto ꝑ nether most partes of ꝑ earth. * But vnto them ꝑ wyl repent, he hath geuen the waye of ryghteousnes. As for soch as be weake, he cõforteth them, suffreth thẽ, and sendeth them the porcyon of the verite. O turne then vnto the Lorde, forsake thy synnes, make thy prayer before the Lord, do the lesse offence, turne agayne vnto ꝑ Lord, forsake thyne vnryghteousnes, be an vtter enemye to abhominacyon, lerne to knowe the ryghteousnesse & iudgementes of God, stande in ꝑ porcion that is set forth for the and in the prayer of the moost hye God. Go in the porcion of the holy worlde, with soch as be lyuynge and geue thãkes vnto God. C * Who wyll prayse the Lorde in the hell/ Abyde not thou in the errour of the vngodly, but geue him thanckes before death. As for the deed, thanckfullnesse perysheth from hym as nothynge. Geue thou thanckes in thy lyfe, yee whyle thou art lyuynge & wholy shalt thou geue thanckes, & prayse God, and reioyse in his mercy. O how great is ꝑ louynge kyndnesse of the Lorde, & his mercyfull goodnesse vnto soch as turne vnto hym/ For all thynges maye not be in man: and why ꝑ sonne of man is not immortall, & he hath pleasure in the vanyte of wyckednes. What is more cleare then the Sunne/ Yet shall it fayle. Or what is more wycked then the thyng that fleth & bloud hath ymagyned/ and that same shalbe reproued. The Lorde seyth ꝑ power of the hye heauen, and all are but earth & asshes.

C The xviii. Chapter.

C The meruelous worckes of God, the mysery and wretchednes of man. Against God ought we not to complayne. Prayer must we continually.

HE that lyueth for euermore, * made all thynges together. God onely is righteous, & remayneth a victoryous kyng for euer. * Who shal be able to expresse ꝑ worckes of hym/ Who wyll serche out ꝑ grounde of his noble actes/ Who shall declare the power of his greatnesse/ Or, who wyll take vpon hym to tell out his mercy/ As for the wonderous worckes of the Lorde, there maye nothyng be taken from them, nothinge maye be put vnto them, nether maye the grounde of them be founde out. But when a man hath done his best, he must begynne agayne: and when he thynketh to become to an ende, he must go agayne to his laboure. What is mã/ Wher to is he worth/ What good or euel can he do/ * If the nombre of a mans dayes be almost an hundreth yeare, it is moch. * Psal.cv.a.

Lyke as ꝑ droppes of rayne are vnto the see, and as a grauell stone is in cõparyson of the sande: * so are these few yeares to the dayes of euerlastyng. Therfore is ꝑ Lorde pacyẽt with them, and poureth out his mercye vpon them. He sawe and perceaued the thoughtes and ymagynaciõs of theyr hert, that they were euell: therfore heaped he vp hys mercyfull goodnes vpon them, and shewed them the waye of ryghteousnes. The mercy ꝑ a man hath, reacheth to his neyghbour: but ꝑ mercy of God is vpon all flesh. He chasteneth, he teacheth & nourtoureth: yee euen as a shepherde turneth agayne his flock, so doth he all them that receaue chastenyng, nurtoure and doctryne. * Mercyfull is he vnto thẽ, that stande in awe of his iudgementes. * Esa.lvi.a.

C Hy sonne, when thou doest good, make no grudynge at it: and whatsoeuer thou geuest, speake no dyscõforteable wordes. Shal not ꝑ dewe coole the heate/ euen so is a word better then a gyft. * Is not a frendly worde a good honest gyft/ but a gracyous man geueth them both. * A foole shall cast a man in the teeth, and that roughly, and a gyft of the nygarde putteth out the eyes. Set the ryghteousnesse before thou come to iudgement. Lerne before thou speake, and goo to physyck or euer ꝑ be syck: * examen & iudge thy selfe, before the iudgement come, and so shalt thou fynde grace in the syght of God. Hũble thy selfe afore thou be syck, & in tyme of thy dysease shewe thy conuersacyon. * Let not to prayse allwaye & stande not in feare to be reconcyled vnto death, for the reward of God endureth for euer. Before ꝑ prayest, prepare thy soule, & be not as one that tempteth God. Thynke vpon ꝑ wrathfull indygnacyon that shalbe at ꝑ ende, and the houre of vengeaunce, when he shall turne a waye hys face. * When ꝑ hast ynough, remembre the tyme of honger: & when thou art rych, thynck vpon the tyme of powerte and scarsnesse. * Prouer.rb.a and.xix.c. * Eccle.xii.d. * i.Corin.xi. * Ecclus.xviii.d. i.Tim.v.a. * Eccl.xi.d.

From the mornynge vntyll the euenyng the tyme is chaũged, & all soch thynges are soone done in ꝑ syght of God. A wyse man feareth God in all thynges, & in ꝑ dayes of transgressyon he kepeth him selfe frõ synne. A discrete man hath pleasure in wysdome, and he ꝑ fyndeth her, maketh moch of her. D

They that haue had vnderstandynge, haue dealt wysely in wordes, haue vnderstande the truethe & rygh teousnes, and haue sought out wyse sentences and iudgementes. * Folowe not thy lustes, but turne the from thyne awne wyll. For yf thou geuest thy soule her belyers, it shall make thyne enemyes to laugh the to scorne: Take not thy pleasure in greate volupteousnes, and medle not to moch wythal. Make not to greate cleare of ¶ thyng that thou hast wonne by auauntage, lest thou fall into powerte, & haue nothynge in thy purse.

* Rom.vi.b. and.viii.c.

¶ The.xix.Chapter.

Chefne and whordome bringe men to powerte. In thy wordes muste thou vse discretyon. The differaunce of the wythdrawe of God and man, whereby ¶ mayst knowe what is in a man. Correccyon must be vsed without anger.

A Labouryng man ¶ is geuen vnto dronckenes, shall not be ryche: and he that maketh not moch of small thynges, shall fall by lytle & lytle.

* Wyne & wemen * make wyse men renna gates, and put men of vnderstandyng to reproffe: and he that accompanieth aduouterers, shall become a wycked man. Wothes & wormes shall haue hym to heretage, yee he shall be set vp to a greater example, and hys soule shalbe voted out of the nombre.

* He that is hastye to geue credence, is lyght mynded, & doth agaynst him selfe. Who so reioyseth in wychednes, shalbe punyshed: he ¶ hateth to be reformed, hys lyfe shalbe thorowed, & he that abhorreth babblyng of wordes, quencheth wychednes. He that offendeth agaynst hys awne soule, shall repent it: and he that reioyseth in wychednes, shalbe punyshed.

Rehearse not a wycked & churlysh word twyse, and ¶ shalt not be hyndered. Shewe thy secretes nether to frende ner foo: and yf thou hast offended, tell it not out. For he shall herken vnto the & marck ¶: and when he fyndeth opportunite, he shall hate ¶ (and so shall he be allwaye aboute ¶.) * If thou hast herde a worde agaynst thy neyghbour, let it be deed wythyn the: and be sure, thou shalt haue no harme therby. A foole trauayleth with a word, lyke as a woman that is payned with bearynge of a chylde. Lyke as an arowe shot in a dogges thyghe, so is a worde in a foles herte. * Tell thy frende hys faute, lest he be ignorannt, and saye: I haue not done it, or yf he haue spoken, that he do it nomore. Remoue thy neyghboure, that he kepe his tonge, & yf he haue spoken, that he saye it nomore.

Tell thy neyghbour his faute, for oft tymes an offence is made, & geue not credence to euery worde. A man falleth somtyme with his tonge, but not with his wyll. For * what is he, that hath not offended in hys tonge: geue thy neyghbour warnynge, before thou threaten him, & geue place vnto the lawe of the Lord. The feare of God is all wysdome, and he that is a ryght wyse man, kepeth ¶ lawe. As for the doctryne of wyckednelle, it is no wysdome, and the prudence of synners is no good vnderstandyng: it is but wychednes, & abhominacyon & a blasphemyng of wysdome. A symple man of small vnderstādyng ¶ feareth God, is better then one ¶ hath moch wysdome, & trāsgresseth ¶ lawe of ¶ hyest. A crafty sotteli man can be wyse, but he is vnryghteous, & with gyftes he wrasteth the open & manifest lawe. A wycked man can behaue hym selfe humbly, and can bouke with his head, & yet is he but a dyssemuler wythyn. He hydeth his face, * & dyssymuleth it: & because he shulde not be knowne, he preuenteth the.

And though he be so weake that he can do ¶ no harme, yet when he may fynde opportunite, he shall do some euell. A man may be knowne by hys face, & one ¶ hath vnderstādyng, may be perceaued by ¶ loke of hys countenaunce. * A mans garmēt, laughter, & gopnge, declare what he is.

¶ The.xx.Chapter.

Of correccyon and repentaunce. Of the gyft of the wyse man, and of the fole. Of lyenge.

Some man * reproueth his neyghbour ofte tymes, but not in due season: Agayne, some mā holdeth his tong, & he is wyse & discrete. It is moch better to geue warnyng and to reproue, then to beare euell wyll: for he ¶ knowledgeth him self openly, shalbe preserued frō hurt & destruccyon. Lyke as when a gelded man thorow desyre & lust defyleth a mayden, euen so is it with him that vseth violence: and vnryghteousnes in ¶ lawe. O how good a thynge is it, a man that is reproued to shew openly his repentaunce: for so shalt thou escape wylfull synne.

Some man kepeth silence, and is founde wyse: but he that is not ashamed what he sayeth, is hatefull. Some man holdeth hys tonge, because he hath not ¶ vnderstādyng of the language: & some man keepeth silence, waytyng a conuenient tyme. * A wyse man wyll holde hys tonge tyll he se opportunyte, but a wāton and vndiscrete body shall regarde no tyme. He that vseth many wordes, shall hurte his awne soule: & he that taketh auctorite vpon hym vnryghteously, shalbe hated. Some mā hath oft tymes prosperite in wycked thynges: Agayne, some man getteth moch, and hath harme & losse. There is some gift ¶ is nothig worth: Agayne there is some gyft, whose rewarde is double. Some man getteth a fal for beyng to proude, & some cometh to worshipe frō lowe estate.

rkate. Some man byeth moch for a lytle pryce, and must paye for it seuen folde.

B * A wyse man with hys wordes maketh him selfe to be loued, but the fauoure of fooles shalbe poured out. The gyft of the vnwyse shall do the no good, for hys eyes are seuenfolde. * He shall geue lytle, and saye he gaue moch: he openeth hys mouth and cryeth out, as it were one that cryeth out wyne. To daye he lēdeth, to morow axeth he agayne, and soch a man is to be hated. The foole sayeth: I haue no frende, I haue no thancke for all my good dedes: yee euen they ꝑ eat my bread, speake no good of me. O how oft, & of how many shall he be laughed to scorne? He taketh a more perelous fall by soch wordes then ꝑ he fell vpon the grounde: euen so shall the falles of wycked men come hastely. In ꝑ mouth of hym that is vntaught, are many vnconuenient & vnmete wordes. A wyse sentence shal not be alowed at ꝑ mouth of the foole, for he speaketh it not in due season.

C Some man synneth not, because he hath not wher withall, and in his rest he shalbe stynged. Some man there is ꝑ destroyeth his awne soule with shame, and for an vnwyse bodyes sake destroyeth he it, and with acceptynge of personnes shall he vndo hym selfe. Some man promiseth his frede a gyft for very shame, and getteth an enemye of hym for naught. A lye is a wycked shame in a man, yet shall it be euer in the mouth of the vnwyse. A thefe is better, then a man ꝑ is accustomed to lye, but they both shall haue destruccyon to herytage. The condicyons of lyers are vnhonest, and theyr shame is euer with them.

D A wyse man shall bryng hym selfe to honour with hys wordes, * and he that hath vnderstādynge, shall be set by amōge greate men. * He that tylleth his lāde shall encrease hys heape of corne: he that worcketh ryghteousnes, shalbe exalted, and he that pleaseth great men, shall escape moch euell. * Rewardes and gyftes blynde the eyes of the wyse, & make hym domme, that he cannot tell men theyr faultes. * Wysdome ꝑ is hyd, and treasure that is hoorded vp, what profyt is in them both? Better is he that kepeth hys ignorāunce secrete, then a man that hydeth hys wysdome.

¶ The. xxi. Chapter.

¶ Of the vnrighteousnes of synne. We may not hope synne vpon synne. The bolnesse of an heretyke. The ende of synners. Of the foole and of the wyse man. Of hym that euell vseth the wyse.

A My sonne, yf thou hast synned, do it no more: * but praye for thy forsynnes, that they maye be forgeuen the. Flee from synne, euen as from a serpent: for yf thou cōmest to nye her, she wyll byte the. The tethe therof are as the teeth of a lyon to sley the soules of men. The wyckednes of man is as a sharpe two edged swerde, which maketh soch woundes that they cannot be healed.

Extorcyon and wrongeous dealynge shall waste awaye a mans goodes, & thorow ꝑt de a rych house shalbe brought to naught: so the ryches of ꝑ proude shalbe rooted out. * The prayer of the poore goeth oute of the mouth, and cōmeth vnto the eares, and hys vēgeaunce (or defence) shall come, and that hastely. Whoso hateth to be reformed, it is a token of a vngodly personne: but he ꝑ feareth God, wyll remēdre him selfe. A myghtye man is knowne a farre of by hys tonge: but he that hath vnderstādynge, perceaueth that he shall haue a fall. * Ero. iii. b. and. xiii. c.

Who so buyldeth hys house wyth other mens coste, is lyke one that gathereth stones in wynter. * The cōgregacyon of ꝑ vngodly is lyke stubble gathered together, theyr ende is a flāme of fyre. The waye of ꝑ vngodly is set with stones, but in theyr ende is hel, darckenes, & paynes. He that kepeth the lawe, wyll holde fast the vnderstādyng therof, and the ende of the feare of God is wysdome & vnderstandyng. He that is not wyse, wyll not be taught in good: but ꝑ vnwyse man aboundeth in wyckednesse: and where bytternes is, there is no vnderstandynge. The knowledge of ꝑ wyse shall flowe lyke water that renneth ouer, & his cōsell is lyke a fountayne of lyfe. * Eccl. xvi. a.

The hert of a foole is lyke a broken vessel, he can kepe no wysdome. When a man of vnderstādynge heareth a wyse worde, he shal commēde it, and make moch of it. But yf a voluptuous man heare it, he shall haue no pleasure therin, but cast it behynde hys back. The talckynge of a foole is lyke an heuy burthen by ꝑ waye: but to heare a wyse mā speake, it is a pleasure. Where a doute is in the congregacyon, it is asked at the mouth of ꝑ wyse, and they shall ponder hys wordes in theyr hertes. Lyke as is a house that is destroyed, euen so is wysdome vnto a foole. As for the knowledge of ꝑ vnwyse, it is but darke wordes. Doctryne is vnto hym that hath no vnderstandynge, euen as fetters about hys fete, and lyke manycles vpon his ryght hand. * A foole lyfteth vp his voyce with laughter, but a wyse man shall scarse laugh secretly. * Eccl. xix. b

Lernynge is vnto a wyse man a Jewel of golde, & lyke an armelet vpon hys ryght arme. A foolyshe mans fote is soone in hys neyghbours house, but one that hath experience, shalbe ashamed at ꝑ personne of the myghty. A foole wyll pepe in at ꝑ wyndow into ꝑ house, but he that is wel nourtured,

Fff iii wyll

wyll ſtande wiethout. A foolyſh man ſtandeth herkenynge at the doze, but he that is wyſe, wyll be aſhamed.

The lyppes of the vnwyſe wylbe telling foolyſh thynges, but the wozdes of ſoch as haue vnderſtãdyng, ſhalbe weyed in the balaũce. The hert of fooles is in their mouth, but the mouth of the wyſe is in their herte.

When the vngodly curſeth the blaſphemer he curſeth hys awne ſoule. * A pzeuy accuſer of other men ſhall defyle hys awne ſoule, and be hated of euery man: (but he that kepeth hys tonge ꝑ is byſerete, ſhall come to honoure.)

* Leui.xix.d.

¶ The.xvii.Chapter.

¶ The inſtruccion of the foundacion. Of ꝑ foolyſhe ſonne and daughter, we muſt take pytie vpon them and to whom we ought to preache. Of ſtedfaſtnes vpon ꝑ herde. A foole is not to be much talked with all. Enuyes and wronges do breake frendſhyp and amytie.

A A Slouthfull body is moulded of a ſtone of claye, and euery man wyll ſpeake to his diſpzayſe. A ſlouthful body is made of the donge of oxen and euery one that toucheth him muſt waſh hys handes agayne. A myſnurtozed ſonne is the dyſhonoure of ꝑ father. A foolyſh daughter ſhalbe lytle regarded. A wyſe daughter is an heritage vnto her huſbande: but ſhe that cõmeth to dyſhoneſty, bzyngeth her father in beuynes. A daughter that is paſt ſhame, dyſhonoureth both her father and her huſband: ꝑ vngodly ſhall regarde her, but they both ſhall deſpiſe her. The playenge of Huſycke is not mete where beuynes is, euẽ ſo is the cozrecyon and doctryne of wyſdome euer vnpleaſaunt vnto fooles.

B Whoſo teacheth a foole, is euen as one ꝑ glueth a potherde together: as one that telleth a tale to hym that heareth him not, ⁊ as one that rayſeth a man out of an heuy ſlepe. Who ſo telleth a foole of wyſdome, is euen as a man, whych ſpeaketh to one that is a ſlepe. When he hath tolde hys tale, he ſayeth: what is ꝑ matter? When one dyeth, lamentacyon is made foz hym, becauſe the lyght fayleth hym: euen ſo let men mourne ouer a foole: foz he wanteth vnderſtãdyng. Wake but lytle wepyng becauſe of ꝑ deed: foz he is come to reſt, but the lyfe of the fole is wozſe then ꝑ deeth. Seuen dayes do men mourne foz hym that is deed, but ꝑ lamẽtacyon ouer ꝑ vnwyſe ⁊ vngodly ſhuld endure all the dayes of theyz lyfe.

C Talke not moch with a foole, and go not with hym that hath no vnderſtãdyng. Beware of hym, leſt it turne the to trauayle, and thou ſhalt not be defyled wt hys fylthe. Departe from hym, ⁊ thou ſhalt fynde reſt, and ſhalt not be dzawen back into hys folyſhnes. What is heuyer then leade? And what ſhuld a foole be called els but leade?

* Sande, ſalt, ⁊ a lumpe of yron is eaſier to beare then an vnwyſe, folyſh, ⁊ vngodly man. * pro.xxvii.a.

Lyke as ꝑ band of wood bounde together in ꝑ foũdacion of ꝑ houſe cãnot be lowſed: euen ſo is it with ꝑ hert that is ſtably ſhed in ꝑ thought of councell. The thought of the wyſe ſhall neyther feare, nor be offended at any tyme.

D Lyke as a fayre playſtred wall in a wynter houſe, ⁊ an hye buyldyng, may not abyde ꝑ wynde ⁊ ſtozme: euen ſo is a foles hert afrayed in his ymagynacyon, he feareth at euery thynge, and cannot endure. (A waueryng hart in ꝑ ymaginacyon of a fole wyll not euer ſtond in awe, but he that abydeth in ꝑ cõmaundemẽtes of God, wyll alwaye feare.) He ꝑ nyppeth a mans eye, bryngeth foꝛth teares: and he ꝑ prycketh ꝑ hert, bryngeth foꝛth ꝑ meanyng ⁊ thought. Who ſo caſteth a ſtone at the byrdes, frayeth them awaye: ⁊ he ꝑ blaſpheməth hys frend, breaketh the frendſhyppe: though thou dreweſt a ſwerde at thy frende, yet diſpayze not, foꝛ thou mayeſt come agayne to thy frende. If he ſpeake ſoweely, feare not, foꝛ ye maye be agreed together agayne: excepte it be that ꝑ blaſpheme him, diſdayne him, open his ſecretes and wounde him traytoꝛouſly: foꝛ all ſoch thynges ſhall dzyue awaye a frende.

E Be faythfull vnto thy neyghbour in his powerte, that thou mayeſt reioyſe with him alſo in his proſperyte. Abyde ſtedfaſt vnto hym in the tyme of hys trouble, that thou mayeſt be heyze with hym in hys heritage. Lyke as the vapour and ſmoke goeth out at the ouem before ꝑ fyre, euen ſo euell wozdes, rebukes and threatenynges go before bloudſheddyng. Be not aſhamed to defende thy frende: as foꝛ me, I wyll not hyde my face from hym, though he ſhulde do me harme. Whoſoeuer heareth it, ſhall beware of hym. * Who ſhall ſet a watch before my mouth, ⁊ a ſure ſeale vpon my lyppes, that I fall not with them, and that my tonge deſtroye me not? * Pſal.xl.a.

¶ The.xviii.Chapter.

¶ A prayer againſt pryde, lechery, and glotony. Of othes, blaſpheme, and of wyſe communycacyon. Of the thre kyndes of ſynners. Of any ſynner proceade of abhoutrye. Of the feare of God.

O Lozde father and gouernoure of my lyfe, leaue me not in theyz ymaginacyon and councell. Oh lett me not fall in ſoch repzofe. Who wyll kepe my thought with the ſcourge, and the doctryne of wyſdome in myne herte? that he ſpare not myne ignozaunce, that I fall not with them, leſt myne ignozaunces increaſe, that myne offences be not many in nombze, and ꝑ my ſynnes excede not: leſt I fall before myne enemyes, ⁊ ſo my aduerſary reioyſe. O Lozd ꝑ father ⁊ God of my lyfe, leaue me not in not in thyse ymaginacyon. O let me not haue a wycked lokyng, but turne away all voluptuousnes fro me. Take fro me ꝑ lustes of ꝑ body, let not the delyces of vnclennes take holde vpon me, and geue me not ouer into an vnhamefast, & obstynate mynde.

Heare me (O ye chyldre) I wyll geue you a doctryne, how ye shall ordre your mouth: who so kepeth it, shall not perish thorow his lyppes, ner be hurt thorow wicked worches. As for ꝑ synner, he shall be taken I his owne vanyte: he ꝑ is proude & cursed, shall fall therin. * Let not thy mouth be acustomed vnto swearynge, for in it there are many falles. Let not the namyng of God be contynually in thy mouth: (and medle not vñ the names of sayntes, for ꝑ shalt not be excused of the) for lyke as a seruaũt which is oft punyshed cannot be without some sore, euen so whatsoeuer he be ꝑ sweareth & nameth god, shall not be cleane pourged frõ synne. A mã that vseth moch swearyng, shalbe fylled w wyckednes, & the plage shall neuer go from his house. If he begyle his brother, his curse shalbe vpon hym: yf he knowledge not his synne, he maketh a double offence, & yf he sweare in vayne, he shall not be foũde ryghteous for his house shall be full of plages.

* The wordes of the swearer bryngeth death (God graũte ꝑ it be not founde in the house of Jacob.) But they that feare God, eschue all soch, & lye not wetyngly I synne. * Vse not thy mouth to vnhoneste and fylthy talkynge, for in it is ꝑ worde of synne. Remembre thy father & thy mother, when thou art set among great men: lest God forget the in theyr syght, and lest thou dotynge in thy custome, suffre rebuke, & wysh not to haue bene borne, and so curse the daye of thy natyuite. * The man ꝑ is accustomed with the wordes of blasphemy, wyll neuer be reformed all the dayes of his lyfe. To synne twyse is to moch, but the thyrd bryngeth wrath & destruccyon. An hote stomack cannot be quenched (euen lyke a burnynge fyre) tyll it haue swalowed vp somthyng: euen so an vnchast man hath no rest in hys flesh, tyll he haue kyndled a fyre.

All bred is swete to an whoremonger, he wyll not leaue of, tyll he haue hys purpose. A man that breaketh wedlock, & regardeth not his soule, but sayeth: * Tush, who seyth me? I am compassed about with darckenes ꝑ walles couer me, no body seyth me: whom nede I to feare? The hyest wyll not remẽbre my synnes. He vnderstandeth not ꝑ his eyes se all thynges, for all soch feare of men driueth away the feare of God from hym: for he fearyth onely the eyes of men, and cõsydereth not that the eyes of the Lorde are clearer then the Sunne, beholdynge all the wayes of men and the grounde of the depe, and lokynge euen to mens hertes in secrete places. The Lorde God knewe all thynges or euer they were made, and after they be brought to passe also he loketh vpõ the all. * The same man shalbe openly punyshed in the stretes of ꝑ cyte: & shalbe chased abrode lyke a ponge horse foale: and when he thynketh lest vpõ it, he shalbe taken. This shall he be put to shame of euery man, because he wolde not vnderstãde ꝑ feare of the Lorde. And thus shal it go also with euery wyfe, that leaueth her husbande, & getteth enherytaunce by a straũge mariage. * Fyrst, she hath bene vnfaythfull vnto the lawe of the hyest: Secõdly, she hath forsaken her awne husbande. Thyrdly, she hath played the whore in aduoutry, and gotten her chyldrẽ by another man. She shalbe brought out of the cõgregacyon, and her chyldren shalbe loked vpon, her chyldren shall not take rote: & as for frute, her braunches shall bryng forth none. A shamefull reporte shal she leaue behynde hyr, and hyr dyshonoure shal not be put out. And they ꝑ remayne, shall knowe, that there is nothynge better, then the feare of God: and that there is nothynge sweter then to take hede vnto the cõmaũdementes of the Lorde. A great worthyppe is it to folowe the Lorde, for lõge lyfe shall be receyued of hym.

The. xxiiii. Chapter.

The prayse of wysedome proceadyng forth of the mouth of God. Of her worckes & place where she reasteth.

Wysdome shall prayse her self, and be honoured in God, & reioyse in the myddest of his people: In the cõgregacyõs of ꝑ hyest shall she open her mouth, and triũphe in the beholdyng of his power: In the myddest of her people shal she be exalted, and wondred at in the holy fulnesse. In the multitude of the chosen she shalbe cõmẽded, and amonge soch as be blessed she shalbe praysed, and shal saye: I am come out of the mouth of the hyest, fyrst borne before all creatures. I caused ꝑ lyght that fayleth not to aryse in ꝑ heauen, and couered al the earth as a cloude. My dwellyng is aboue in the heyth, and my seate is in ꝑ pyler of the cloude. I my selfe alone haue gone rounde aboute ꝑ cõpasse of heauen, & pearsed ꝑ grounde of ꝑ depe: I haue walked in ꝑ floudes of the see, and haue stande in all landes: my dompnion is in euery people & in euery nacion, & with my power haue I troden downe the hertes of al, both hye & lowe.

In all these thynges also I sought rest, and a dwellynge in some enheritaunce. So the creator of all thynges gaue me a cõmaũdemẽt: and he that made me, appoynted me a tabernacle, and sayde vnto me: Lett thy dwelling be in Jacob, & thyne inheritaunce in Israel, & rote thy selfe amonge my chosen. * I was created from the begynnynge, and before ꝑ worlde, and shall not leaue of vnto the worlde to come. * In ꝑ holy habytacyon haue I serued before hym, & so was I stablysshed in Syon. * In ꝑ holy cyte rested I in lyke maner: and in Ierusalem was my power. I toke rote in an honorable people, euen in ꝑ porcyon of the Lorde & in hys herytage, and kepte me in the fulnes of the sayntes. I am set vpan hye lyke a Cedre vpon Lybanus, and as a Cypres tre vpon the mout Hermon. I am exalted lyke a palme tre in Cades, & as a rose plante in Jericho. I as a fayre Olyue tre in the felde, & am exalted lyke as a planteyne tre by ꝑ water syde. I haue geuen a smel in the stretes, as the Cynamon & Balme, that hath so good a sauour: yee a swete odoure haue I geuen as it were Myrre of the beest.

¶ I haue made my dwellynges to smell as it were of rosin, Galbanum, of Cloues, and Incense, and as Libanus when it is not hewen downe, and myne odoure is as the pure Balme. As ꝑ Terebynte haue I stretched out my braunches, and my braunches are ꝑ braūches of honoure & louynge fauour. ✠ * As ꝑ vyne haue I brought forth frute of a swete sauour, and my floures are ꝑ frute of honoure and ryches. I am the mother of bewtye, of loue, of feare, of knowledge and of holy hope. * In me is all grace of lyfe and trueth. In me is all hope of lyfe & vertue. O come vnto me all ye ꝑ be desyrous of me & fyll youe selues with my frutes: for my spyrete is sweter then hony, and so is my inherytaunce more then ꝑ hony combe: the remembraunce of me endureth for euermore. They that eate me, shall haue the more hōger, and they ꝑ drynke me, shall thyrst the more. Who so herkeneth vnto me, shall not come to cōfusyon: & they that worke in me, shall not offende. They that make me to be knowen, shall haue euerlastynge lyfe. ✠

All these thynges are ꝑ boke of lyfe, the couenaunt of the hyest, and the knowledge of the trueth. * Moses cōmaunded ꝑ lawe in the preceptes of ryghteousnes for an herytage vnto the houle of Jacob, and cōmitted ꝑ promyses vnto Israel. * (Out of Dauid hys seruaunt he ordened to rayse vp a moste myghtye kynge, syttyng in the seat of honour for euermore.) * Thys fylleth with wysdome lyke as the floude of Physon, and as the floude of Tygris, when the new frutes are a growynge.

¶ * Thys bryngeth a plentyous vnderstandyng lyke Euphrates: and fylleth it vp, as Jordane in the tyme of harueste. Thys maketh flourysshe to breake forth as the lyght, & as ꝑ water Gyhon in ꝑ harueste. The fyrst hath not knowne her perfectly, no more shall ꝑ last seke out ꝑ ground of her. For her thought is fuller then the see, and her counsell is profounder then the greate depe.

I wysdome haue cast out floudes. I am as a great waterbroke out of ꝑ ryuer. I am as the ryuer Dorix, and as a water condyte am I come out of the garden of pleasure. I sayde: I wyll water ꝑ garden of my pouge plantes, and fyll the frute of my byrth. Do my water broke became erthdynge greate, & my ryuer approched vnto the see. For I make doctrine to be vnto all men as lyght as the fayre morynyng, & I shall make it to be euer ꝑ clearer. I wyll pearse thorow all the lower partes of ꝑ earthe, I wyll loke vpon all soch as be a slepe, & lyghten all them ꝑ put theyr trust in the Lorde. I shall yet powre out doctrine lyke as prophecye, & leaue it vnto soch as seke after wysdome, & their generacyōs shall I neuer fayle, vnto the holy euerlastynge worlde. * Behold, how that I haue not laboured for my selfe onely but for all them that seke after the treuth. * Ecclesi. xxxiiii.b.

¶ The.xxv. Chapter.

¶ Of thre thynges whych please God, and of thre whych he hateth. Of nyne thynges that be not to be suspect, and of the trueth: chefely of the malyce of a woman.

THre thinges there are, that my spyrete fauoureth, which be also alowed before God and men. * The vnyte of brethren, * ꝑ loue of neyghbours, * a man and wyfe that agree wel together. ¶ * Ecclesi. t Num. xii. * Ecclesi. xl.

Thre thynges there be which my soule hateth, and I vtterly abhorre the lyfe of them. A poore man that is proude. A rych man that is a lyar, * and an olde body that doteth, and is vnchaste. ¶ * Ecclesi. xxv.

If thou hast gathered nothynge in thy youth, what wilt ꝑ fynde then in thyne age. O how pleasaunt a thinge is it, when gray headed men are discrete, & when ꝑ elders can geue good councell: O how comely a thyng is wysdome vnto aged men: yee vnderstandyng & councell is a gloryous thyng. The crowne of olde men is to haue moch experiēce: & the feare of God is theyr worthyppe.

There be nyne thynges, whych I haue iudged in my herte to be happye, & the tēth wyll I tell forth vnto men with my tonge. A man ꝑ whyle he lyueth, hath ioye of his chyldren, and seyth ꝑ fall of hys enemyes. Well is hym that dwelleth with an houswyfe of vnderstādyng, * and that hath not fallen with his tonge, & that hath not bene fayne to serue soch as are vnmete for hym. Well is hym, ꝑ fyndeth a faythfull frende: and well is him, which talketh of wysdome to an eare that heareth him. O how great is he, ꝑ fyndeth wysdome and knowledge: Yet is he not aboue hym, ꝑ feareth ꝑ Lorde. * Ecclesi. xxvi. and xxxvii. Iacob. iii.

The

The feare of God hath set it selfe aboue all thynges. Blessed is the man, vnto whom it is graunted to haue the feare of God. Unto who̅ shal he be lykened, that hepeth it fast? The feare of God is the begynnynge of his loue, and the begynnynge of fayth is to cleue fast vnto it. The heuines of the hert is al the punyshment, & the wyckednes of a woman goeth aboue al. All punishment & plage is nothynge in comparison of the plage of the hert, euen so all wyckednes is nothynge to the wyckednesse of a woman.

C Whatsoeuer happeneth vnto a mā is no thynge in cōparison of it, that his euell willers do vnto hym: and all vengeaunce is no thynge to the vengeaunce of the enemye.

There is not a moze wycked heade then the heade of the serpent, & there is no wzath aboue the wzath of a womā. * I wyl rather dwell with a lyon and dzagon, then to kepe house wyth a wycked wyfe. The wyckednesse of a womā chaungeth her face, she shal mossel her countenaūce as it were a Beare, & as a sack shal she shewe it amonge ỳ neyghbours. Her husbāde is bzought to shame amonge his neyghbours, and whē he heareth it, it maketh him to syghe. Al wyckednes is but lytle to the wyckednes of a woman, the pozcyon of the vngodly shall fall vpon her.

D Lyke as to clymme vp a sandy waye is to the fete of the aged, euen so is a wyfe full of wozdes to a styll quyete man. * Loke not to narowly vpō the bewtye of a womā, lest thou be pzouoked in desire toward her. The wzath of a woman is dishonoure and great confusion. Yf a woman get the mastrye, thē is she contrary to her husbande. A wycked wyfe maketh a sozy herte, an heuy countenaunce and a berd woūde. * (Weake hādes and feble knees is a womā that hyz husbād is not the better foz.) Of the woman came the begynnynge of synne, & thozowe her we all are deed. Geue thy water no passage, no not a lytle, nether geue a wycked womā her wyll. Yf she walcke not after thy hande, she shall confounde the in the syght of thy enemyes. Cut her of then frō thy flesh, that she do not alwaye abuse the.

C The.xxvi. Chapter.

C The prayse of a good woman. Of the feare of thre thynges and of the fourth. Of the Jelousye ād dronken woman. Of two thynges that cause sozowe, and of the thyrde which maketh wzath.

A Lyppe is the man that hath a vertreous wyfe, foz the nombze of his yeares shalbe dubble. An honest woman maketh her husbande a ioyfull man, & she shall fyll ỳ yeres of his lyfe in peace. A vertreous woman is a noble gyft, which shalbe geuen foz a good pozcion vnto soch as feare God: Whether a mā be rich oz poore, he maye haue euer a mery herte, and a chearefull coūtenaunce. There be thre thinges that my hert feareth, and my face is afrayed of ỳ fourth. Treason in a cytye, a sedicious people, and noysome tonges, all these are heuyer then ỳ death. But whē one is gelous ouer his wyfe, it bzyngeth payne and sozowe vnto the hert: and a woman that telleth out all thinges, is a scourge of ỳ tunge. When one hath an euell wyfe, it is euen as when an vnlyke payze of oxen must dzaw together, * he that getteth her, getteth a scozpyon. A dzoncken woman is a greate plage, foz she cannot couer her awne shame. Iunie.xvi.d

B The whozdome of a womā maye be knowen in the pzyde of her eyes and eye lydds. * Yf thy daughter be not shamefast, holde her straytlye, lest she abuse her selfe thozow ouermoch lyberte. Beware of all the dishonestye of her eyes, and maruell not yf she do agaynst the. Lyke as one that goeth by the waye & is thirstie, so shal she opē her mouth and dzynche of euery nexte water that she maye get. By euery hedge shall she sytt her downe, and open her quyuer agaynst euery arowe. A loupnge wyfe reioyseth her husbande, and fedeth hys bones wyth her wysdome. A womā of fewe wozdes is a gyfte of God, and to al well nurtured mynds maye nothynge be compared. * Eccle.xxiiij

C An honest and manerly woman is a gyft aboue other gyftes, and there is no weyght to be compared, vnto a mynde that can rule it selfe. Lyke as the Sunne when it ariseth, is an oznament in the hye heauē of ỳ Lozde, so is a vertreous wyfe the bewtye of all her house. Lyke as the cleare lyght is vpon the holy candelstick, so is the bewtie of the face vpon an honest body. * Lyke as the golden pilers are vpō the sockettes of syluer, so are the fayre legges vpon a woman that hath a constant mynde. Perpetual are the foundacions ỳ be layed vpon a whole stonye rocke so are the commaundementes of God vpon the herte of an holy woman. * Cant.v.d

D There be two thinges that greue my hert and in the thirde is a displeasure come vpon me. Whē an experte man of warre suffreth scarsenes ād pouerte. When men of vnderstandynge & wysdome are not sett by: And when one departeth from ryghteousnes vnto synne. Who so doth soch, the Lozde hath prepared him vnto ỳ swerde. There be two maner of thynges, whych me thynche to be herde and perylous. A marchaunt can not lyghtely kepe him from wzōge, nether a tauerner hym selfe from synne.

C The.xxvii. Chapter.

¶ Of the poore that muste be vpolde. The preheminence of the man that feareth God. The vnmeetnesse of a wife. The heritage of a frende muste be preserued. The wyckede commonly exalt, whiche notwithstandyng bpō hym selfe.

A BEcause of powrte haue many one offended: Ab he that seketh to be ryche, turneth hys eyes asyde. Lyke as a nayle in the wall sticketh fast betwyxte two stones, euē so doth synne sticke betwyxte the byer and the seller. Yf he holde hym not diligently in the feare of the Lorde, his house shall soone beoueerthrowē. Lyke as whan one syfteth the fylthynes remayneth in ꝑ syue: so remayneth there some vncleane thynge in the thought of man. The out prouyeth ꝑ potters vessell, * so doth temptacion of trouble trye ryghteous men. * The tre of the fruite is knowē by his frute, so is the thought of mans hert knowne by his wordes. Prayse no mancexcept thou haue herde him, for a mā is knowē by his wordes. Yf thou folowest rygbteousnes, thou shalt get her, Ab put her vpon the as a fayre garment. And thou shalt dwell with her, Ab she shall defende the for euer, and in the daye of knowledge thou shalt finde stedfastnesse. The byrdes resorte vnto theyr like, so doth the trueth turne vnto the that be occupyed withall. The lyon waytēth the praye: so do the synners lurke vpon ꝑ worckers of wyckednes. The talkynge of hym that feareth God, is not thinge but wysdome: as for a fole he chaūgeth as the Woone. Yf ꝑ be amōg the vndiscrete, kepe thy wordē to a conuenient tyme, but amonge soche as be wyse, speake on hardely. The talkynge of fooles is abhominacion, & their sporte is volupteousnesse Ab misuse. * Woch sweringe maketh the heare to stande vp: and to stopue wyth soch, stoppeth the eares.

The stryfe of the proude is bloudshedynge, and theyr blaspheming is heup to heare. * Who so discouereth secretes, leseth his credence, and fyndeth no frynde after hys wil. Loue thy frinde, Ab bynde thy selfe in fayethfulnes with hym: but yf thou bewrayest his secretes, thou shalt not gett hym agayne. For lyke as the man is that destroyeth hys enemye, so is he also that dealeth falsly in ꝑ frendshyp of his neyghboure.

D Lyke as one that letteth a byrde go out of his hande, cannot take her agayne: Euen so thou, yf thou geue ouer thy frynde, thou canst not get him agayne: Yet thou canst not come by hym, for he is to farre of. He is vnto the as a Roo escaped out of the snare, for his soule is wounded. As for woundes, they maye be bounde vp agayne, & an euel worde maye be reconcyled: but who so bewrayeth the secretes of a frynde, there is no more hope to be had vnto hym.

* He that wyncketh with the eyes, ymagineth some euell, and no man shall take hym from it. Whē thou art present, he shal hyde commēd and prayse thy wordes: but at the last he shal turne his tayle, and slaūder thy sayenge. Many thynges haue I hated, but nothynge so euell, for the Lord hym selfe also abhorreth soche a one.

* Who so casteth a stone on hye, it shall fal vpon hys owne head: and he that smyteth with gyle, woundeth him selfe. Who so diggeth a pyt shall fall therin (& he that layeth a stone in his neyghbours waye, shal stomble theron) & he that layeth a snare for another, shal be take in it him selfe. * Who so geueth a wicked noysome counsel, it shall come vpō hym selfe, Ab he shal not knowe frō whence. The proude blaspheme, and are scornefull, but vengeaūce lurketh for them as a lyon. They that reioyse at the fal of ꝑ rygbteous shall be taken in the snare, angwyshe of hert shall consume them before they dye. Anger & rygorousnes are two abhominable thynges, & the vngodly hath the both vpon him.

¶ The. xxviii. Chapter.

One ought not to beare vengeaunce, but to forgeue the offence. Of the vyce of the tonge, and of the daūgers therof.

HE * that seketh vengeaunce, shall fynde vengeaūce of ꝑ Lord, which shall surely kepe hym hys synnes. * Forgeue thy neyghboure the hurte that he hath done the, & so shal thy synnes be forgeuē the also, whē ꝑ prayest. A man ꝑ beareth hatred agaynst another, how darre he desyre forgeuenesse of God? He that sheweth no mercy to a man which is lyke hym selfe, how darre he aske forgeuenesse of hys synnes? Yf he that is but flesh, beareth hatred and kepeth it, who wyl intreate for his synnes? Remembre the ende, Ab let enmyte passe, which seketh death and destruccion, & abyde thou in the commaundementes. Remembre the commaundement, so shalt thou not be rygorous ouer thy neyghboure. Thinke vpō the couenaunt of the hyest, & forgeue thy neyghbours ignorāunce. * Beware of strife, and ꝑ shalt make thy synnes fewer. For an angrie man kindleth variaunce, Ab the vngodly disquieteth frendes, and putteth discorde among them that be at peace. * The more wodde there is, ꝑ more vehemēt is the fyre: and the myghtier that me be, the greater is the wrath: and the longer ꝑ strife endureth, the more it burneth.

A A hastie brawlinge kyndleth a fyre, Ab an hastie strife sheddeth blonde: A tong also that beareth falle witnesse bryngeth death. Yf thou blowe the sparke it shal burne. Yf ꝑ spyt vpon it: it shal go forth, and both therout of ꝑ mouth. * The slaūderer & dubble tonged is curssed, for many one ꝑ be frendes

letteth

stereth he at variaunce. The thyrde tonge hath disquieted many one, and dryuen them from one lande to another. Stronge cyties of the riche hath it broken downe, and ouerthrowne the houses of greate men. (The strength of ỹ people hath it brought downe and bene the decaye of myghtye nacyons.) The thyrde tonge hath cast out many an honest woman, & robbed thē of theyr labours. Who so herkeneth vnto soch shal neuer finde rest, & neuer dwell safely. The stroke of the rod maketh edders, but the stroke of ỹ tonge smyteth the bones in sunder. There be many that haue perysshed with the swerd but many mo thorowe the tonge.

D Well is hym that is kepte from an euell tonge, and commeth not in the anger therof which drawe th not the yock of soche, and is not bounde in the bandes of it. For the yock therof is of yron, and the bande of it of stele. The death therof is a very euell death: hell were better for one, then soch a tonge. But the fyre of it maye not oppresse them that feare God, and the flamme therof maye not burne thē. Soch as forsake the Lorde, shall fall therin: and it shall burne them, and no man shall be able to quenche it. It shall fall vpon them as a Lyon, and deuoure them as a leoparde. Thou hedgest thy goodes wyth thornes: why doest thou not rather make dores and barres for thy mouth? Thou wepest thy golde and syluer: why doest thou not wepe thy wordes also vpon the balāce? Bewarre, that thou slyde not in thy tonge, and so fall before thyne enemyes, that laye wayt for the, (and thy fall be incurable, euen vnto death.)

¶ The. xxix. Chapter.

¶ How we ought to lende ourr money, and do almes. Of a faythfull man and wrongye for his frende. Of liberalite and hospytalyte.

A Who so wyll shewe mercy, *lett him lende vnto hys neghboure: and he that is able, let hym kepe the commaundement. Lende vnto thy neghboure in tyme of his nede, & paye thou thy neghbour agayne in due season. Kepe thy worde, and deale fayth fully with him, and thou shalt alwaye fynde the thynge that is necessary for the. There haue bene many, that when a thyng was lent them, reckened it to be founde, and made them trauayle and labour, that had holpen them. Whyle they receaue eny thynge, they kysse the handes of soch as gyue them, and for theyr neyghbours good they bubble their vopce. But when they shulde paye agayne, they kepe it back, and geue euell wordes, and make many excuses by reason of the tyme: and though he be able, yet greueth he scarse the halfe agayne, and reckeneth the other to be founde. And yf he wyth holde not his moneye yet hath he an enemy of hym, and that vndeserued.

He payeth hym wyth cursynge and rebuke, and greueth hym euell wordes for his good dede. Ther be many one which are not glad for to lēde, not because of euell, but they feare to lese the thynge that they lende. Yet haue thou pacience wyth the symple, and wyth holde not mercy from him. Helpe the poore for the commaundemētes sake, and let hym not goo emptie from the, because of hys necessite. Lese thy mony for thy brother and neyghbours sake, and burye it not vnder a stone, where it rusteth ād corrupteth. *Gather thy treasure after the commaundemēt of the hyest, and so shall it bryng the more profyte then golde: * Laye vp the almes in the hande of the poore, and it shall kepe the from all euel. * A mans almes is as a purse wyth hym, and shal kepe a mans fauoure as the apple of an eye: and after warde shall it arise and paye euery man his rewarde vpō his head. It shall fyght for the agaynst thyne enemyes, better then the shylde of a gyaunte or speare of the myghtye.

A good honest mā is suertie for his neyghboure, but a wycked personne letteth hym come to shame. Forget not the frendshyp of thy suertye, for he hath geuen his soule for the. The vngodly despiseth the good dede of his suertye, and the vnthanckfull and ignoraunt leaueth his suertie in daunger. Some man prompteth for his neyghboure: ād whē he hath lost his honesty, he shal forsake him. Suertishyppe hath destroyed many a riche man, and remoued thē as the waues in the see. Myghtie people hath it dryuen a waye, and caused thē to wandre in straunge countrees. An vngodly man transgressynge the commaundement of the Lorde, shall fall into an euell suertishyppe: and though he force him self to get out, yet shall he fall into iudgement. Helpe thy neyghboure out after thy power, and beware, that thou thy selfe fall not in soch dett. * The chefe thynge that he peth in thy lyfe, is water, ād bred, clothinge and lodgynge, to couer the shame.

Better is it to haue a poore lyuynge in a mans awne house, then delycate fare amōg the straūge. * Be it lytle or moch that thou hast, holde the content withall, & thou shalt not be blamed as a vagabōde: for a myserable lyfe is it, to go from house to house: & where a man is fremde, he darre not open his mouth. Though one be lodged, ād haue meate and drynche, yet shall he be taken as vnworthy, and heare many bytter rough wordes, namely thus: Go thy waye thou straunger, and prepare a table for thy selfe, and fede me also of that thou hast. Thaye thou

*Math. vi.c Luc. xii.d 1. Tim. vi. d

*Eccl. xxix. b

*Dan. iiii. d Luc. xii. d Actu. x. a

C

*Eccl. xxix. c

D

*pſ. xxxvii. d 1. Timo. vi. d Eccl. xxvi. a thou ſtraunge (ſo that he regarded hys honoure no more) my brother cōmeth into my houſe, & ſo he telleth hym the neceſſite of his houſe. Theſe thynges are heuy to a mā that hath vnderſtandynge: namely, the forbydynge of the houſe, and that the lender calleth hym in the teth.

¶ The .xxx. Chapter.

¶ Of the correction of chyldren. Of the commodyte of health. Death is better then a ſorowfull lyfe. Of hyddē wyſdome. Of the ioye & ſorow of the hert.

A
*Prouerb. 1 and .xviii.b

Who ſo loueth his chylde * holdeth him ſtyl vnder correccion, that he maye haue ioye of him after warde and that he grope not after his

*Deut. vi. a neyghbours doores. *He y teacheth his ſonne ſhall haue ioye in him, & nede not to be aſhamed of him amōge his aquayntaunce. Who ſo enfourmeth & teacheth his ſonne, greueth the enemye: and before his frendes he maye haue ioye of him. Though y father dye, yet is he as though he were not dead: for he hath left one behynde him that is lyke hym. In his lyfe he ſawe hym and had ioye in hym, & was not ſory in his death, nether was he aſhamed before the enemyes. For he left behynde him an auenger agaynſt his enemies, and a good doer vnto the frendes. For y lyfe of chyldren he ſhall bynde the woūdes together, and his hert is greued at euery crye. An vntamed horſe wyl be harde, & a wantō chylde wylbe wylfull. Yf thou bring vp thy ſonne delycately, he ſhall make y aſrayed: & yf thou playe with hym, he ſhall bringe the to heuynes. Laugh not wyth hym, leſt thou wepe with him alſo, and leſt thy tethe be ſet on edge at the laſt.

25
*Eccle. xxx.c

*Geue hym no lyberte in his youth, & excuſe not hys foly. Bowe downe hys necke whyle he is yonge, hyt hym vpon the ſydes while he is yet but a child, leſt he waxe ſtubburne, and geue no more force of the, and ſo ſhalt thou haue heuines of ſoule. Teach thy chylde, and be diligēt therin, leſt it be to thy ſhame. Better is the poore beyng whole āde ſtronge, then a man to be ryche, & not to haue his health: health and welfare is above al golde, & a whole body above all treaſure. There is no ryches aboue a ſounde body, āde no ioye aboue the ioye of the hert. Death is better then a wretched lyfe, āde eternall reſt better then contynuall ſyckines. The good thinges that are put in a cloſe mouth are like as whē meate is layed vpon the graue.

C
*Bel. 9.

What good doth the offeryng vnto an Idol? *For he cā nether eate, taſte, ner ſmell. Euen ſo is he that is chaſed of the Lorde, āde beareth the rewardes of iniquytie. He ſeyth wyth his eyes, & groneth lyke a gelded mā, that lyeth with a wyfe & ſyghyth. *Geue not ouer thy mynde into heuynes, and vexe not thy ſelf in thine awne counſel. The ioye

*Pro. xvii.b xv.b. xviii.b xxi. xxviii.c xxix. xviii.b

and chearfulnes of the hert is the life of mā, and a mannes gladnes is the prolonging of his dayes. Loue thine awne ſoule, and comforte thine hert: as for ſorowe and heuyneſs, dryue it farre frō y, *for heuynes hath ſlayne many a man, āde bringeth no profit. Zele āde anger ſhorten the dayes of the lyfe: carefulnes and ſorowe bring age before y tyme. Vnto a mery hert euery thyng hath a good taſt that he eateth.

*Eccl. xxx.

¶ The .xxxi. Chapter.

¶ We ought to geue diligent hede to honeſtye. Of them that take payne to gather ryches. The prayſe of a ryche man without a faute. We ought to be bryefe in eatyng and drynkyng ſoberneſly.

A
*1. Tim. vi.

Trauayle & carfulnes for *ryches taketh away the ſlepe, āde maketh the fleſh to conſume. When one lyeth āde taketh care, he waketh euer vp, like as greet ſyckne breaketh the ſlepe. The ryche hath great labour in gathering his ryches together, and then with the pleaſure of his ryches he taketh hys reſt and is refreſhed. But who ſo laboureth and proſpereth not, he is poore: āde though he leaue of, yet is he a beggar. He that loueth riches, ſhall not be iuſtified: and who ſo foloweth corruption, ſhall haue ynough therof. *Many one are come in great miſfortune by the reaſon of gold, & haue founde theyr deſtruccion before them. It is a tree of fallynge vnto them that offre it vp, and all ſuch as be foolyſh fall therin. Bleſſed is the rych, which is found without blemyſh, and hath not gone after golde, ner hoped in money & treaſures. Where is there ſuch a one? and we ſhall commende hym, āde cal hym bleſſed, for greate thynges doth he among his people. Who ſo is tryed, & founde perfecte in ſuch thinges, ſhalbe cōmended and prayſed. Who myght offende, and hath not offended? Who coulde do euel, and hath not done it? Therfore ſhall his good be ſtablyſhed, and the whole congregaciō ſhal declare his almeſſes. Yf thou ſytt at a greate mans table, open not thy mouth wyde vpō it, and make not many wordes. Remembre that an euell eye is a thyng:

*Eccl. xxx.

25

What thinge created is worſe thē a wicked eye? therfore wepeth it before euery mās face? Laye not thine hand vpon euery thing y thine eye ſeyth, & ſtryue not wt hym in the dyſhe. *Ponder by thy ſelfe what thy neyghboure wolde fayne haue, āde be diſcrete in euery poynte. Eate the thing that is ſet before the manerly, as it becommeth a man and eate not to moch, leſt thou be abhorred. Leaue thou of firſt of al, becauſe of nurture, leſt thou be he whom no man maye ſatiſfye which maye turne to thy deeaye. When y ſytteſt among many men, reach not thine hande out fyrſt of all. *O how wel content is a wyse man with a lytle wyne: so that in slepe þ shalt not be sycke therof, ner sele eny payne. A swete wholsome slepe shall soch a one haue, ād sele no inward grefe. He ryseth vp by times in the morwyng, & is wel at ease in him selfe. But an vnsaciable eater sleepeth vnquietly, and hath ache and payne of the body. Yf thou selest that thou hast eatē to moch, aryse, goo thy waye, cast it of thy stomach, and take thy rest: and it shall ease the, so that thou shalt bringe no sycknesse vnto thy body.

*Mat. vii.c

*Ecc. xxxi.

is a

C My sonne, heare me, and despyse me not: & at the last thou shalt fynde as I haue told the. * In all thy workes be diligent & quycke, so shall there no sycknes happē vnto þ. * Who so is liberal in dealyng out his meate, many men shall blesse him, & prayse hym with theyr lyppes: ād the same is a sure token of his loue ād faythfulnes. But he that is vnfaythfull in meate, the whole citie shal complayne of hym: and that is a sure experience of his infidelite ād wyckednes.  Be not thou a wyne bybber, for wyne hath destroyed many a man. The fyre proueth the hard yron, euē so doth wyne proue hertes of the proude, when they be dronken.

D * Wyne lobrely dronckē, quyckeneth the lyse of man. Yf thou dryncke it measurably, thou shalt be tēperate. What lyse is it, that maye continue without wyne? (What taketh awaye the lyfe? euen death.) Wyne was made frō the begynnynge to make mē glad (ād not for dronkennes) Wyne measurably dronkē is a reioysing of þ soule & body. (A measurable drinkynge is health to soule and body.) But yf it be dronken with excesse, it maketh bytternes and sorowe vnto the mynde. Dronkennes fylleth the mynde of the foolysh with shame and ruyne, mynsheth the strength, and maketh woundes.

* Rebuke not thy neyghboure at the wyne, ād despyse him not in his myrth. Gene hym no despytefull wordes, and preasse not vpō hym with contrary sayenges.

C The.xxxii. Chapter.

C Of the discretion and prayse of the preacher, and of the hearer. Of the feare, fayth, and confidence in God.

A Yf thou be made a ruler, * pryde not thy selfe therin, but be thou as one of þ people. * Take diligent care for thē and loke wel therto: & when thou hast done all thy dewtye, syt the downe, that þ mayest be mery wyth thē, and receaue a crowne of honoure. Talke wysely and honestly, for wysdome becometh the ryght well. Hynder not musicke. Speake not, where there is no audyence: * & poure not forth wysdome out of tyme, at an inopportunite. Lyke as þ Carbuncle stone shyneth that is set in golde, so doth a songe garnysh the wyne feast: and as the Smaragde that is set in golde, so is the swetnes of Musicke by the myrth of wyne. (Geue eare, and be still, and for thy good behaueour thou shalt be loued.)

Thou yonge man, speake that becōmeth the, and that is profytable, & yet scarse whē thou art twyse asked. Comprehende moche with fewe wordes. In many thynges be as one that is ignorannt, geue eare, and holde thy tonge withall. Yf thou be amonge men of hyer auctorite, desyre not to cōpare thy selfe vnto them: ād when an elder speaketh make not þ many wordes therin. Before þ thonder goeth lyghteninge, and before nurture and shamefastnesse goeth loue ād fauoure. Stande vp by tymes and be not the last: but get the home sone, & there take thy pastime, & do what thou wylt: so that thou do no euell, & despye no man, but for all thynges geue thāckes, vnto him that hath made the, and replenished the with his goodes.

Who so feareth the Lorde, wyll receaue C his doctrine: and they that get them to him by tymes, shall fynde grace. He that seketh the lawe, shall be fylled withall: As for him that is but fayned, he wil be offended therat. They that feare the Lorde shall fynde the iudgement, and theyr ryghteousnes shal be kindled as a lyght. An vngodly man wyll not be rekourmed, but cā helpe him selfe with the example of other in his purpose. A man of vnderstandynge despyseth no good counsell: but a wylde and proude body hath no feare. (Ye euē when he hath dealt rashly wō another man, but his awne doynges shal be his rebuke.) My sonne, do nothyng without aduisement, so shal it not repent the after þ dede. Go not in the waye wher thou mayest fal, ner where thou mayest stomble agaīst the stone. Geue not thy self into a laborious slyppery waye, and beware of thyne awne chyldren, (and take hede of them that be of thyne awne housholde.) In all thy workes put thy trust in God, frō thy whole hert, for that is the keypynge of the commaundementes. Who so beleueth Gods worde, taketh hede to the commaundements: and he that putteth hys trust in the Lorde, shall wante nothynge.

C The.xxxiii. Chapter.

C The despyterraunce of hym that feareth God. The answere of þ wyse. The spyrytell discrecion of a foolesh man is in the hande of God, as the earth is in the hand of the potter. We ought not to dyspyte our neyghbour, to become subiect to other.

A There shal no euel happē vnto him that feareth God: but whē he is in tēptacion, the Lorde shal delyuer him & kepe hym frō euell. A wyse man hateth not the lawe, but an ypocrite is as a shyp in ragynge water. A man of vnderstandynge geueth credence vnto the lawe of God of God, and the lawe is faythful vnto him. Be sure of ꝑ matter, then talke therof: Be fyrst well instruct, thē mayest thou geue answere. The hert of the foolish is lyke a cartwhele, and his thoughtes runne about like the axel tre. Lyke as a wilde horse ꝑ neyeth vnder euery one that sytteth vpō him, so is it wt a scornefull frende. Why doth one daye excell another, seyng al the dayes of ꝑ yeare come of the Sunne? The wysdome of the Lorde hath so parted them a sunder, and so hath he ordened the tymes ād solempne feastes. Some of them hath he chosen and halowed before other dayes. And all men are made of the * grounde, and out of the earth of Adam. *Gene.ii.a

In the multitude of science hath the Lord sundred them, ād made their wayes of diuerse fashyons. Some of them hath he blessed, made moch of them, halowed them, and claymed them to him selfe. But some of thē hath he cursed, brought thē lowe, ād put thē out of theyr estate. * Lyke as the claye is in the potters hande, and all the ordinge therof at his pleasure: so are men also in the hāde of him that made thē, so that he maye geue them as lyketh him best. * Agaynst euell is good, and agaynst death is lyfe: so is the vngodly against soch as feare God. Behold these are the workes of the hyest, ꝙ there are euer two agaynst two, ꝙ one set against another. I am awaked vp last of all, as one that gathereth after in haruest. In the gyftes of God and in his blessyng I am increased, and haue fylled my wyne pytte, lyke a grape gatherer. ‡ Beholde, how I haue not laboured onely for my selfe, but for all soche as loue nurtoure and wysdome. *Roma.ix.c *i. Cor.vi.c ‡Ecc.xxiiii.b

Heare me, O pe greate men of the people and herken with your eares ye rulers of the cōgregacion. Geue not thy sonne and wyfe, thy brother and frēde, power ouer the whyle thou lyuest: and geue not away thy substaunce and good to another, lest it repēt ꝑ. and thou be faine to begge therfore thy selfe. As longe as thou lyuest and hast breth, let no man chaūge the: For better it is thy children to praye the, then that thou shuldest be fayne to loke in theyr hāndes. In al thy workes be excellent, that thy honoure be neuer stayned. At the tyme when thou shalt ende thy dayes, ꝙ fynysh thy lyfe, distribute thyne inheritaūce. The fodder, the whyp, and the burthen belōgeth vnto the Asse: Meat, correction, and worcke vnto the seruaunt.

If thou set thy seruaunt to laboure, thou shalt fynde rest. But yf thou let him go ydel he shall seke libertie. The yock ād the whyp bowe downe the harde neck, but tame thou thy euell seruaunte with bondes and correction. Sende him to laboure, that he go not ydle: For ydelnesse techeth moch euel. Set him to worke, for that belōgeth vnto him, and becommeth him well. Yf he be not obediēt, binde his fete: but do not to moch vnto him in any wyse, and without discrecion do nothing. * Yf thou haue a (faithful) seruaūt let him be vnto the as thyne awne soule: (intreate him as a brother) for in bloude hast ꝑ gotten him. Yf thou haue a seruaunte, holde him as thy selfe, for thou hast neede of him as of thy selfe. Yf thou intreatest him euel, and kepest him harde, ꝙ makest him to be proud and to renne away from the, thou canst not tell what waye thou shalt seke him. *Eccl.xxxiii.

The.xxxiiii. Chapter.

Of dreames, diuinacions, and enchauntementes. We ought to comfort our hope and lyuyng. The prayse of them that feare God. Of diuerse workes of men. God doth not alowe the workes of an vnfaythfull man.

VAnyte people begile them selues with vaynes discreatfull hope, ād foles trust in dreames. Who so regardeth dreames, is like him that will take holde of a shadowe, and folowe after the wynde: Euen so is it with the appearinges of dreames. Before the face is the lycknes of a face. Who cā be clensed of the vncleane? Or what trueth can be spoken of a lyar? Soothsayinge, wytchcraft, sorcery and dreamynge is but vanyte: lyke as when a womā trauayleth with childe, ꝙ hath many fantasies in her hert. Where as soch visiōs come not of God, set not thine hert vpō thē: For dreames haue disceaued many a man, and they fayled, that put theyr trust therin. A

The lawe shalbe fulfylled without lyes, ꝙ wysdome is sufficiēt to a faythful mouth. What knowlege hath he that is not tryed? A wyse man that is well instructe, vnderstādeth moch: and he ꝑ hath good experience, can talke of wysdome. He that hath no experience, knoweth lytle: and he that erreth, causeth moch wyckednes. He ꝑ is not tryed, what thynges knoweth he? Who so folowe eth no rule, is full of wyckednes. B

When I was yet in erroure, I learned moch also: yet I was so lerned, that I could not expresse it all, and came oft in perell of death therfore, tyll I was delyuered frōit (thorow the grace of God.) Now I se, that they which feare God haue the right syghte: for theyr hope standeth in him, that cā help them. And the eyes of the Lord are on them that loue him. Who so feareth ꝑ Lord standeth in awe of no man, and is not afrayed, for the Lorde is his hope and comforte. C

Blessed is the soule of hym that feareth ꝑ Lorde: In whom putteth he his trust? who is his strēgth? * For the eyes of ꝑ Lorde haue respecte vnto them, that loue hym. He is their myghtie protectiō, and stronge groūde: A defence for the heate, a refuge for the hote *Iohn.v.

hote none daye, a succoze foz stomblyng, ād an helpe foz fallynge. He setteth vp the soule, and lyghteneth the eyes: he geueth lyfe, and blessinge. He that geueth an offering of vnrighteous good, his offering is refused: & the scornefull healynges of ꝑ vnrighteous please not God. (The Lozde is theyr⁹ onely ꝑ pacientlye abyde hym in the waye of the trueth⁹ of righteousnes. The hyghest doth not alowe the gyftes of the wycked.) And *God hath no delyte in the offerynges of ꝑ vngodly, nether maye synne be reconcyled in the multitude of oblacions. Who so bringeth an offering out of the goodes of ꝑ poore, doth euē as one that kylleth the sonne before the fathers eyes.

D The brede of the nedefull is the lyfe of the poore: he ꝑ defraudeth hym therof, is a man of blonde. Who so robbeth his neyghboure of his lyuing, doth as great sinne as though he slewe hym to death. *he ꝑ defraudeth the labozer of his hyze, is a bloud shedder. Whē one buyldeth and another breaketh downe, what profyt haue they then but laboure? Whē one prayeth ād another curseth, whose voyce will ꝑ Lozde heare? *he ꝑ washeth him selfe because of a deed body, & then toucheth the deed agayne, what doth hys washyng? *So is it with a mā that fasteth foz his sinnes, and doth them agayne: who wyl heare his prayer? Oz what doth his fasting helpe hym?

¶The.xxxv.Chapter.

¶ It is well done to praye, and to do sacrifyce. The prayer of the fatherlesse, and of the wyddowe: and hym that humbleth hym selfe.

A Who so keepeth ꝑ lawe, *bryngeth offerynges ynough. He that holdeth fast the commaundement, offreth the ryght health offerynge. He that is thanckfull and recompenseth offreth fyne floure. *Who so is mercyfull and geueth almes, that is ꝑ right thankoffring. God hath pleasure when one departeth frō sinne, and to foz sake vnrighteousnes, receyueth vs wyth hym.

*Thou shalt not appeare emptye before ꝑ Lozde, foz all soch is done because of the cōmaūdemēt of God. *The offerig of ꝑ righteous maketh ꝑ aulter fat, & a swete smel is it before ꝑ hyest. The offeringe of the righteous is acceptable vnto God, and shal neuer be forgotten. Geue God his honoure wt a chearfull hart, & kepe not backe the fyrstlynges of thy hādes. *In all thy gyftes shewe a mercifull cōtenaūce, & halowe thy tythes vnto God wt gladnes. Geue vnto God accozdyng as he hath enryched and prospered the: *& loke what thyne hande is able, geue wt a chearfull eye: foz ꝑ Lozde recōpenseth, & geueth ꝑ seuē times as moch agayne.

Geue no vnrighteous gyftes, foz soche wyll he not receaue. Bewarre of wzōgeous offrynges, foz the Lozd is a righteous iudge: and regardeth no mānes persone: he accepteth not the persone of the poore, but he heareth the prayer of the oppressed. * he despyseth not the delyre of ꝑ fatherlesse, ner the wyddow, when she poureth out her prayer before him. Doth not God se the teares, that renne downe the chekes of ꝑ widdowe? Oz heareth he not the cōplaynte, ouer soche as make her to wepe. Foz from hyz chekes do the teares go vp vnto heauen, & the Lozde which heareth them, doth accepte them? Who so serueth God after his pleasure, shal be accepted: and his prayer reacheth vnto the cloudes. * The prayer of him ꝑ hūbleth him selfe, goeth thorow the cloudes, tyll she come nye. She will not be comforted, ner go her waye, tyll the hyest God haue respecte vnto her, geue true sentence, and performe the iudgement. And the Lozde wyll not be slacke in cōmynge, ner tary longe: tyll he haue smytten in sonder the backes of the vnmercyful, and auenged him selfe of the heathen: tyll he haue taken awaye ꝑ multitude of the cruell, and broken the cepter of the vnrighteous, tyll he geue euery man after his worckes, and rewarde thē after their doynges: tyll he haue deliuered his people, maintened theyr cause, and reioyced them in hys mercy. O how kayre a thing is mercy in the tyme of angwyshe and trouble? It is lyke a cloude of rayne that commeth in the tyme of a drouth.

*Iudit.viii.b

¶The.xxxvi.Chapter.

¶ A prayer to God in the person of al faythful men with the prayse of a good woman.

H Aue mercy vpon vs, O Lozde, thou God of all thynges. Haue respecte vnto vs, shewe vs the lyght of thy mercyes, & sende thy feare amonge the heathen and straungers, which seke not after ꝑ that they may knowe, how that there is no God but thou, and that they maye shew thy wonderous worckes. Lyft vp thyne heade ouer the outlandysh heathē, that they may lerne to knowe thy might and power. Lyke as thou art halowed in vs before them, so bryng to passe, that thou mayest be magnified also in them before vs: that they may knowe the, like as we knowe the. Foz there is none other God but onely thou O Lozd. Renue the tokēs, and chaunge the wonderous worckes. Shewe thyne hande, ād thy ryght arme gloziously. Rayse vp thy indignacion, and poure out thy wzath. Take awaye the aduersary, and smyte the enemye. Make the tyme shorte, remembze thy couenaunt, that thy wonderous worckes maye be prayed. Let the wzath of the fyre consume thē me them that lyue so carelesse: and let them perysh that do thy people hurte. Smyte in sonder the head of ꝑ Princes, that be our enmyes, ād saye there is none other but we.

Gather all the trybes of Jacob together
B agayne, ꝑ they maye knowe, how that there is none other God but only thou, that they maye shew thy wonderous worckes, ād be thou thy peoples heritage, lyke as from the begynnynge. O Lord haue mercy vpon the people that hath thy name, ād vpon Israel
*Eccl. xlvii. c *whō ꝑ hast lykened to a fyrst borne sonne. O be mercyfull vnto Jerusalem the cite
*i. Par. vi. g of thy Sanctuary, *the cyte of thy rest. Fyll Sion with thy vnspeakable vertues, & thy people with thy glory. Geue wytnes vnto thy creature, whom thou madest from the begynnyng, & rayse vp the prophecyes that haue bene shewed in thy name. Rewarde thē that wayte for the, that thy Prophetes maye be foūde faythfull. O Lord heare the prayer of thy seruauntes, accordynge to the blessyng of Aaron ouer thy people (ād gyde thou vs in ꝑ waye of righteousnes) *that
*Num. vi. b all they whych dwell vpon the earth maye knowe, that thou art the Lorde the eternal God, which is from euerlastynge.

The bely deuoureth all meates, yet is one
C meate better then another. Like as ꝑ tonge tasteth veny sō, *so doth an herte of vnderstandinge marck false wordes. A frowarde
*i. Cor. xi. b hert geueth heuynes, but a man of experiēce liffeth hym vp agayne. The woman receaueth euery man, yet is one daughter better thē another. A fayre wife reioyseth her husband, & a man loueth nothing better. Yf she be louynge & vertuous with all, then is not her husbande lyke other men. He that hath gotten a vertuous woman, hath a goodly possession: she is vnto him an helpe, and pyller wherupō he resteth. Where no hedge is, ther ꝑ goodes are spoyled: & where no husbyte is, there the frendles mourneth. Lyke as there is no credēce geuē to a robber, that goeth from one cytie to another: So is not the man beleued, that hath no nest, ād must turne in, where he maye abyde in the nyght.

¶ The. xxxvii. Chapter.

¶ How a man shulde knowe frendes & counceliers, and search the company of a holy man.

A Euery frēde sayeth: I wyl be frendly vnto hym also. But there is some frende, which is onely a frende in name. Remayneth there not heuines vnto death, when a cōpanyon & frēde is turned to an enemye? O most wicked prince sumpeyon: From whence art thou spronge vp, to couer ꝑ earth with falsehede & deceat?
*Eccle. vi. b *There is some cōpanyon which in prosperyte reioyseth with his frende: but in ꝑ time of trouble, he taketh parte agaynst hym. There is some cōpanyon ꝑ mourneth with his frende for the bely sake: but whē trouble commeth he taketh holde of the shylde. Forgetnot thy frende in thy mynde, and thynke vpō him in thy ryches. Seke no councell at thy kinsmen, and hyde thy councell frō soch as beare the no good wyll. *Euery counceler byngeth forth his councell. Neuertheles, there is some ꝑ counceleth, but for his awne profet: Beware of the counceler, and be aduised afore wherto thou wilt vse him, for he wil councel for him selfe. Lest he cast the lot vpō the, & saye vnto the. Thy waye & purpose is good, & afterwarde he stāde agaynst the, and loke what shall become of the.
*Eccle. xiii. and. xxxvii.

A Seke no councell at him, that suspecteth ꝑ
B for an enemie, and hyde thy councel frō soch as hate the. Aske no councel at a woman cōcernynge ꝑ thinges that she longeth for: nether at a fearfull and faynt herted body, in matters of warre: or at a marchaūt, how deare he will cheape thy wares towarde his: or at a byer, of sellynge: Or at an enuious mā, of thanckesgeuinge: Or at the vnmercyful, of louing kindnes: (or at an vnhoneste man, of honestye.) Or at ꝑ slouthfull, of worcking: Or at an hyreling which hath no house, or prouyt or wealth. (Anyble body wolde not gladly heare speake of moch labour.) Take no soch folckes to coūcell, but be diligent to seke councell at a vertreous mā that feareth God, soch one as thou knowest to be a keper of the cōmaundemētes, which hath a mynde after thyne awne mynde, and is sorye for the when thou stomblest.

And holde thy coūcell fast in thyne herte:
C for there is no mā more faythful to kepe it: then thou thy selfe. Yf or a mās mynde is sōtyme more disposed to tell oute, then seuen watchmen that syt aboue in an hye place to kynge about thē. And aboue all this prayer the Hyest, ꝑ he wyll lede thy waye in faythfulnes and trueth. Before all thy worckes ashe councel fyrst: ād or euer thou doest eny thyng, be wel aduised. There be foure thynges that declare a chaunged herte, wherout there springeth euell and good, death & lyfe, and a masterful tonge that bableth moche. Some mā is apte and well instructe in many thinges, ād yet very vnprofytable vnto him selfe. Some man there is, that can geue wyse and prudent councell, and yet is he hated, and continueth a begger: for that grace is not geuē him of God to be accepted. Another is robbed of all wysdome, yet is he wyse vnto him selfe, and the frute of vnderstādynge is commendable in his mouth.

A wyse man maketh his people wise, & the D frutes of his wysdome fayle not. A wyse mā shal be plentrously blessed of God: & al they that se him, shal speake good of hi. The lyfe of man standeth in the nombre of the dayes, but the dayes of Israell are innumerable.

A wyse

A wyse man shall opteyne kayth fulnes and credence amonge hys people, and hys name shalbe perpetuall. Wy sonne, proue thy soule in thy lyfe: and yf it be eny euell thyng, geue it not vnto her. * For all thiges are not profitable for all me, nether hath euery soule pleasure in euery thyng. Be not gredy in euery eatyng, and be not to hastye vpon all meates. ‡ For excesse of meates bryngeth sycknes, & glotony cometh at the last to an vnmeasurable heate. Thorow surfett haue many one perysshed: but he that dyeteth him selfe temperatly, prolongeth his lyfe.

¶ The.xxxviii. Chapter.

¶ A physycyon in sycknes ought we to prayse, and to fynde a physycyon which healeth by prayer. The betweynge of the deed. Sadnes. wysdome. Artificers of craftes ma.

Honoure the Physycion: honoure him becawse of necessite. God hath created hym (for of the hyest commeth medycine) and he shall receaue giftes of the kyng. The wysdome of the Physycion bryngeth hym to great worshyppe, & in the syght of the greate men of thys worlde, he shalbe honorably taken. The Lorde hath created medycine of the earth, and he that is wyse, wyll not abhorre it. * Was not the bytter water made swete with a tre: that men myght learne to know the vertue therof. The Lord hath geuen men wysdome, and vnderstandynge, that he myght be honoured in hys wonderous workes. With soch doth he heale men, and taketh awaye theyr paynes: Of soch doth the Apotecary make a confeccion yet can no man perfourme all his workes. For of the Lorde cometh prosperous wealth ouer all the earth.

My sonne, despyse not thys in thy sycknes, but ‡ praye vnto the Lord, and he shall make the whole. Leaue of from synne, and ordre thy handes a ryght, clense thine herte frō all wyckednes. Geue a swete sauoured offrynge, and fyne floure for a token of remēbraunce: make the offerynge fat, as one that geueth the fyrst frutes, and geue rowme to the Physycion. For the Lord hath created him lett him not go from the, for thou hast nede of hym. The houre maye come, that the sycke maye be helped thorow them, when they praye vnto the Lorde, that he maye recouer, & gett health to lyue longer. He that synneth before his maker, shall fall into the handes of the Physycion.

My sonne, ‡ bryng forth thy teares ouer the deed: and begynne to mourne, as yf thou hadest suffred greate harme thy selfe: and then couer his body after a conuenient maner & despyse not his buryall. Enforce thy selfe to wepe, and pronoche thy selfe to mourne, * and make lamētacyon expedietly, & that a daye or two, lest thou be euell spoken of: and then cōforte thy selfe because of the heuynes. * For of heuynes cōmeth death, the heuynes of the hert breaketh strength. Heuynes and pouerte greueth the herte in tentacyon & offence. Take no heuynes to herte, dryue it awaye, and remēbre the last thynges. Forget it not, for there is no turnynge agayne. Thou shalt do hym no good, but hurte thy selfe. Remēbre his iudgemēt, thyne also shalbe lyke wyse: vnto me yester daye, vnto the to daye. * Let the remēbraunce of the deed ceasse in his rest, & cōforte thy selfe agayne ouer hym, seynge his spyrete is departed from hym. The wysdome of the scribe is at conuenyēt tyme of rest: and he that ceasseth from exercise and labour, shalbe wyse. He that holdeth the plough, and hath pleasure in prodynge, & dryuynge the oxen, and goeth aboute with soch workes, he can speake of oxen: he setteth his herte to make forowes, & is diligent to geue the kyne fodder. So is euery carpēter also & worckmaster, that labou:eth styll nyght & daye: he caruеth, graueth & cutteth oute, & his desyre is in sondrye cōnynge thinges, his hert ymagineth, how he maye conyngly cast an ymage, his diligēce also & watchinge perfourmeth the worcke. The yronsmyth in lyke maner bydeth by his stithye, & doth his diligence to labour the yron. The vapoure of the fyre dryenneth his flesh, & he must fyght wt the heate of the fornace. The noyse of the hammer soundeth euer in his eares, & his eyes loke styll vpon the thynge that he maketh. He hath set hys mynde there vpon, that he wyll make out his worcke, and therfore he watcheth, how he maye set it out, & bryng it to an ende.

So doth the potter syt by his worcke, he turneth the whele aboute with his fete, he is diligēt and carefull in all doynges, and his labour & worcke is without nombre. He fashioneth the claye with hys arme, and with his fete he tempereth it. Hys herte ymagineth how he maye make it pleasaunt, & his diligence is to clense the ouen. All these hope in their handes, and euery one thynketh to be cōnynge in his worke. Without these maye not the cyties be mayntayned, inhabited ner occupied: yet come they not hye i the congregacyon: they vnderstande not the couenaūt of the lawe: they cannot declare equyte and iudgemēt: they cannot fynde out the darcke sentēces, but thorow them shall the creature of the worlde be mayntayned: theyr prayer concerneth onely the worcke and labour of connynge.

¶ The.xxxix. Chapter.

¶ A wyse man. The workes of God. Vnto the good, good thynges be prest: but vnto the euell euen good thynges are euell.

A HE that applieth hys mynde to vnderstãde the lawe of God, doth diligently seke out the wysdome of them of the olde tyme, and exercyseth hym selfe in the Prophetes. He kepeth the sayinges of famous men, & pearceth to the vnderstãdyng of darck sentences of wysdome. He seketh oute the mysterie of secrete sayinges, & exercyseth hym selfe therin continually. He doth seruice amõge greate mẽ, & appeareth before ꝓ prince. He goeth into a straũge cõtree, & trauayleth thorow it: loke what good or euell is amõge men, he proueth it & seketh it out. He purposeth in his herte, to resorte early vnto the Lord ꝓ made hym, & to praye before the hyest God. He openeth his mouth in prayer, & prayeth for hys synnes. When ꝓ greate Lorde wyll, he shalbe fylled with ꝓ spirite of vnderstãdynge, that he maye then poure out wyse sentẽces, & geue thanckes vnto the Lorde in hys
25 prayer. He shall ordre his deuice, and lerne his knowledge a ryght, & geue hym vnderstandyng of secrete thynges. He shall shewe forth ꝓ science of his lernynge, and reioyce in the couenaunt of ꝓ lawe of ꝓ Lord. The whole congregacyon shall commende hys wysdome, and it shall neuer be put out. The remẽbraunce of hym shal neuer be forgotten, & his name shall cõtinue from one gene
* Ecc.xliiii.b racyon to another. * His wysdome shalbe spoken of, amonge the people, and the whole cõgregacyon shall openly declare his prayse. Whyle he lyueth, he hath a greater name then a thousande beside: and after hys death, ꝓ same name remayneth vnto hym. Yet wyll I speake of mo men of vnderstandyng. for I am full as the Moone.

C Herken vnto me (ye holy vertevous chyldren) bryng forth frute, as the rose ꝓ is plãted by the brokes of the felde, and geue ye a swete smell as Libanus. Florish as ꝓ rose garden, synge a songe of prayse. O geue thankes vnto God ouer all his workes. Geue glory and honoure vnto the Lorde, shew his prayse with youre lyppes. Yee eue with the songe of youre lyppes, with harpes and playinge, and in geuynge thanckes vn-
* Ecce.l.b. to hym, saye after this maner. * All ꝓ workes of the Lorde are exceadynge good, and all his commaundementes are mete and cõuenient in due season.

D A man nede not to saye: what is ꝓ? what is that? for at tyme conuenient they shall all be sought. At his cõmaundemẽt the water was as a wall, & at the worde of his mouth
* Ecc.bii.b. the water stode styll. * In his commaundement is euery thynge acceptable and reconcyled, and his health cannot be mynysshed. The workes of all flesh are before him, and there is nothyng hyd frõ his eyes. He seyth from euerlastynge to euerlastynge, & there is nothynge to wõderfull or hye vnto hym. A man nede not to saye then, what is thys, or that? For he hath made al thynges to do good vnto man. His blessynge shall renne ouer as the streame, and moysture ꝓ earth lyke a floude of water. Lyke as he maketh the water for drouth, so shall his wrath fall vpon the heathen.

E His wayes are playne & ryght vnto the iust, but the vngodly stomble at them. For the good, are good thinges created from the begynnyng, & euell thynges for ꝓ vngodly. * All thynges necessary for the lyfe of man
* Ecc.xxx. are created from ꝓ begynnyng: water, fyre, yron & salt, meel, wheate, and hony, mylke & wyne, oyle & clothyng. * All these thynges are created for the best to the faythfull: * l.pl.m.
But to the vngodly shall all these thynges be turned to the hurte and harme. There be spirites that are created for vẽgeaunce, & in their rygorousnes haue they sastened their tormentes. * In the tyme of the ende they * Ecc.xxxix.b
shall poure out theyr strength, and pacifye the wrath of hym that made them. * Fyre, * Ecc.xxxix.b
hayle, honger & death: all these thynges are created for vengeaunce.

F The teeth of wylde noysome beastes, the scorpions, serpentes, and ꝓ swerde are created also for vengeaunce, to the destruccyon of ꝓ vngodly. They shall be glad to do his commaundementes: and when nede is, they shal be ready vpõ earth: & when theyr houre is come, they shall not ouerpasse the commaundement of the Lorde.

Therfore haue I taken a good corage vnto me from ꝓ begynnynge, and thought to put these thynges in wrytinge, & to leaue them behynde me, * All ꝓ workes of ꝓ Lor- * Gen.i.b de are good, and he geueth euery one in due season, & whan nede is, so ꝓ a man nede not to saye: thys is worse then that. For in due season they are all pleasaunt & good: And therfore praysle ꝓ Lorde wt whole herte and mouth, & geue thankes vnto his name.

C The.xl. Chapter.

C Many mysteries vpght in a maner lyes. All thynges passe awaye, but a tryme and stable fayth remayneth. Of the blessynge of the vnrighteous, and prerogatyue of the feare of God.

A Greate trauayle is created for all men, and an heuy yocke vpon all men chyldren, from the daye that they go out of theyr mothers wõbe, tyll they be buryed in (the earth) the mother of all thinges: namely, their thoughtes and ymaginacyons, feare of the hert, counsell, meditacyons, longynge and desyre, the daye of death: from the hyest that syteth vpon the gloryous seate, vnto the lowest and most symple vpon the earth: from hym that is gorgyously arayed and weareth a crowne, vnto hym that is, but homely and

ly and symply clothed. There is nothynge but wrath, zele, fearfulnes, vnquietnes, and feare of death, rygorous, anger and stryfe. And in the nyght when one shulde rest and slepe vpon his bedd, the slepe chaunged hys vnderstandynge and knowledge. A lytle or nothynge is hys rest, in the slepe as well as in the daye of labour.

He feareth & is dysquyeted in the vysyon of his hert, as one that renneth out of a battayll: and in the tyme of healthe he awaketh & marueleth that the feare was nothynge. Soch thynges happen vnto all flesh, both man and beest: but seuen folde to ꝑ vngodly. Moreouer, death, bloudshedding, strife and swerde, oppressyon, höger, destruccyon and punyshemẽt: * these thinges are all created agaynst ꝑ vngodly, & for theyr sakes came ꝑ floude also. * All ꝑ is of ꝑ earth, shall turne to earth againe: & all waters ebbe againe in to ꝑ see. All brybes & vnrygh teoulnes shalbe put awaye, but faythfulnes & trueth shal ẽdure for euer. The substaũce & goodes of the vngodly shalbe dryed vp and syncke awaye as a water floude, & they shall make a sounde lyke a greate thõder in the rayne.

Lyke as the rygherous reioyseth when he openeth his hande, so shall the transgressours be sayne, when theyr goddes vanysh and consume awaye. * The chyldren of the vngodly shall not obtayne many braũches and the vncleane rotes vpon ꝑ hye rockes shalbe roted out before the gralle by the water syde & vpon the ryuer banckes.

Frendlynes and liberalite in the increase & blessynge of God, is lyke a paradyse and garden of pleasure: soch mercy also & kyndnes endureth for euer. * To labour & to be content wt that a man hath, is a swete pleasaunt lyfe: and that is to fynde a treasure aboue all treasures. To beget chyldren and to repayre ꝑ cytie, maketh a perpetuall name: but an honest woman is moze wozth then they both. Wyne and mynstrelsye reioyse the hert, but the loue of wysdome is aboue them both.

Pypynge & harpynge make a swete noyse, but a frendly tonge goeth beyonde them both. Thyne eye delyreth fauoure and bewtye, but a greene sede tyme, rather then they both. A frende and companyon come together at opozt unite, but aboue them both is a wyfe ꝑ agreeth with her husbande. One brother helpeth another in the tyme of trouble, but almes shall delyuer moze then they both. Golde and syluer fasten the fete, but a good councell is moze pleasaunt then they both. Tempozall substaunce and strenght lyft vp ꝑ mynde: but the feare of the Lozde moze then they both. The feare of the Lozd wanteth nothynge, and needeth no helpe. The feare of the Lozde is a pleasaunt garden of blessynge, & nothynge so bewtyfull as it is. Wy sonne, lede not a beggers lyfe, for better it were to dye then to begg. Who so loketh to another mans table, taketh no thought for his awne lyuige how to vphold hys lyfe, for he fedeth hym selfe wt other mens meat. But a wyse and well nurtoured man wyll bewarre ther of. Beggyng is swete in the mouth of the vnshamefast, but in hys bely there burneth a fyre.

¶ The .xli. Chapter.

¶ Of the remembraunce of death. Death is not to be feared. A curse vpon them that forsake the lawe of God. Good name and fame. An exhortacyon to geue herde vnto wysdome. Of what thynges a man ought to be ashamed.

O Death, how bytter is the remembraunce of ꝑ, to a man that seketh rest and comfozte in hys substaunce & ryches, vnto ꝑ man that hath nothyng to vexe him, and that hath prosperite in all thynges, yee vnto hym that yet is able to receaue meate! O death how acceptable and good is thy iudgemẽt vnto the nedefull, and vnto him whose strength fayleth, and that is now in his last age, & that in all thynges is full of care and fearfulnes: vnto him also that is in dyspayre, and hath no hope ner pacience! Be not thou afrayed of death: remẽbre them that haue bene before the: and that come after the: thys is the iudgemẽt of the Lozde ouer all flesh. * And why woldest thou be agaynst thys pleasure of the hyest? Whether it be ten an hũdreth, or a thousãde yeares: death asketh not how longe one hath lyued. * Gen. viii. b.

The chyldren of ꝑ vngodly are abhominable chyldren, & so are they that kepe cõpany with the vngodly. * The inheritaunce of vngodly chyldren shall come to naught, & theyr posterite shall haue perpetuall shame and confusyon. The chyldren cõplayne of an vngodly father, and why? for his sake they are rebuked & despysed. Wo be vnto you (Oye vngodly) whych haue forsaken the lawe of the hyest God: yf ye be borne, ye shall be borne to cursyng, yf ye dye, ꝑ curse shal be youre porcyon. * Eccle. xl. b.

* All that is of the earth, shall turne to earthe agayne: so go the vngodly also out of the curse into destruccyon. The sorowe of men is in theyr body: but the name of the vngodly shall be put out, for it is nothynge wozth. * Laboure to get the a good name, for that shall contynue surer by the, then a thousãde greate treasures of golde. A good lyfe hath a nombre of dayes, but a good name endureth euer. * Eccle. xxxvii. a

* Wy chyldren, kepe wysdome in peace: for wysdome that is hyd and a treasure ꝑ is not sene, what profyt is in the both? A man that hydeth hys folysshnes, is better then * Eccle. xx. b.

a man that hydeth hys wysdome. Therfore be ye turned at my wordes: for it is not good, in all thynges and alwaye to be ashamed. True fayth must proue & measure it.

Be ashamed of whordome, before father and mother: Be ashamed of lesynge, before the prynce and men of auctorite: Of synne, before the iudge and ruler: Of offence, before the congregacyon & people: Of vnrygh-
¶ Roma.i.b. teousnes, before a companyon and frende: Of theft, before thy neyghbours. * As for the trueth of God & hys couenaunt, be not ashamed therof.

Be ashamed to lye with thyne elbowes vpon ỳ bred: Be ashamed to loke vpon har lotes: Be ashamed to turne awaye thy face from thy frende: Be ashamed to take & not to gyue: Be ashamed also to loke vpon anothers mans wyfe, and to make many tryflyng wordes with her mayden, or to stande by her bedsyde. Be ashamed to vpbrayde thy frende: when thou gyuest eny thynge, cast hym not in the tethe withall.

¶ The.xlii. Chapter.

¶ Secretes maye not be opened. The lawe of God must be taught. A daughter. A woma. God knoweth all thynges, yee euen the secretes of the herte.

Shearse not a thyng twyse, & bysclose not the wordes, ỳ thou hast herde i secrete. Be shamefast and well mannered in dede, so shall euery man fauoure the. Of these thynges be not thou ashamed, and accepte no personne to offende. Namely, of these thynges be not ashamed: Of the lawe of God, of the couenaunt, of iudgement: to bringe the vngodly from hys vngodlynes vnto ryghteousnes, & to make hym a good man: to deale faythfully wyth thy neyghboure and companyon: to bystribute the heritage vnto the fredes: to be dilygent to kepe true measure and weyght: to be content, whether thou gettest moch or lytle: to deale truly with tryp̃orall goodes in byinge and sellynge: to bringe vp chyldren w̃ dilygence: to correcte an euell seruaũt: to kepe that thyne is from an euell wyfe: to sett a locke where many handes are: what thou delyuerest & geuest out to be kepte, to tell it, and to wepe it: to wipte vp all thy out geupnge and receaupnge: to enfourme the vnlerned and vnwyse: Of the aged, that are iudged of the ponge. Yf ỳ be dilygent in these thynges, truly thou shalt be lerned & wyse and accepte of all men.

B The daughter maketh ỳ father to watch secretly: and the carefulnes that he hath for her, taketh awaye his slepe: yee in ỳ youth, lest she shulde outergrowe hym: And when she hath an husbande, lest she shulde be hated: lest she shulde be defyled or rauyshed in her virgynite, or gotten w̃ chylde in her fathers house: Or (when she commeth to the man) lest she behaue her self not ryght, or continue vnfrutefull. * If thy daughter be wil- *Ecc.xxvi.
ton, kepe her straytely, lest she cause thyne enemyes to laugh the to scorne, & the whole cytie to geue ỳ an euell reporte, & so thou be fayne to hyde thy shame of euery man, & be confounded before all the people. * Beholde *Ecc.xli.
not euery bodyes bewty, & haue not moch dwellyng amonge wemen. For lyke as the worme & moth commeth oute of clothynge, * so doth wyckednes come of wemen. *Ecclꝰ.

C It is better to be with an euell man, then with a frendly wyfe ỳ putteth one to shame and rebuke. I wyll remẽbre ỳ workes of ỳ Lorde, and declare the thyng ỳ I haue sene. In ỳ wordes of the Lord are his workes. The Sunne ouerlooketh all thynges with his shynne, and all his workes are full of ỳ clearnes therof. Hath not ỳ Lord brought to passe, ỳ his saynctes shuld tell out all his wodcrous workes, which the Almyghtye Lorde hath stablyshed? All thynges endure in his glory. He seketh out ỳ grounde of the depe and ỳ hert of men, and he knoweth all theyr ymaginacyon & wysdome. For ỳ Lorde knoweth all sciẽce, & he loketh into the token of the tyme. He declareth the thynges D that are past and for to come, and discloseth thynges ỳ are secrete. * No thought maye ‡Pro.xxi.
escape hym, nether maye eny worde be hyd Esa.xxxi.
from hym. He hath garnyshed ỳ hye excellẽt workes of his wysdome, & he is trõ euerlastynge to euerlastynge. Vnto hym maye no thynge be added nether can he be minyshed, he hath no nede also of eny mans councell. O, how amiable are all his workes, and as a sparke to loke vpon. They lyue all, & endure for euer: & when soeuer nede is, they are all obedient vnto him. They are all dubble, one agaynst another: he hath made nothing ỳ hath faute or blemyth. * He hath stably- Deut.xxxii.
shed the goodes of euery one: & who maye be satysfyed w̃ his glory, when he seyth it.

¶ The.xliii. Chapter.

¶ The summe of the creacyon of the worlde of God.

The glory of the heygth, is * the fayre & cleare firmament, the bewtye of the heauen is hys gloryous clearnes. The sunne when it appeareth, declareth the daye in ỳ goynge out of it, a maruelous worke of the hyest. At noone it burneth ỳ earth and who maye abyde for the hete therof? Whoso kepeth an ouen when it is hote, thre tymes more doth the Sũne burne vpon the mountaynes, when it bretheth oute the fyrie beames & shyneth, with the brygthnes of it, it blyndeth the eyes. Great is the Lord that made it, and in his commaundemẽt he causeth it to renne hastely.

The

* The Moone also is in all, and at conue nient season it shewed the tymes, & is a token of the tyme. * The token of the solépne feast is taken of ꝑ Moone, a lyght that my nysheth & increaseth agayne. The Moneth is called after the Moone, it groweth won-derously in her chaungynge.

B The armye of heauen also is in ꝑ heygth
in the firmamẽt of heauen it geueth a clea-re & glorypous shyne. Thys is the clearnes of ꝑ starres, the bewtyfull apparell of hea-
uen, the apparell that ꝑ Lorde lyghteneth
in the heygth. In his holy worcke they cõ-tinue in theyr ordre, & not one of them fayleth in hys watch. * Loke vpon the rayne
bowe, and prayse hym that made it: very bewtyfull is it in hys shyne. He compaseth
the heauen aboute w hys clearnes & glory,
the hãdes of the hyest haue bended it. Tho-row hys commaundement he maketh the snowe tofall, and the thonder of hys iudge-mẽt to smyte hastily. Thorow hys cõmaun-dement ꝑ treasures are opened, and the clou des flé as the foules. In hys power hath he strengthened the cloudes, and broken the hayle stones.

The mountaynes melt at ꝑ syght of him,
ꝑ wynde bloweth accordynge to hys wyll.
The sounde of hys thonder beateth ꝑ earth,
& so doth ꝑ storme of the north: the whyrle
wynde also lyghteth downe as a fethered
foule, casteth oute and spredeth the snowe
abrode: and as ꝑ grethoppers that destroye
all, so falleth it downe. The eye marueleth at the bewtye of the whytenesse therof, and the herte is afrayed at the rayne of it. He poureth out the frost vpon earth, lyke salt, and when it is frosen, it is as sharpe as the pryche of a thystle.

C When the colde Northwynde bloweth, harde Chrystall commeth of the water. He lyghteth downe vpon all the gatherynges
togethet of water, & putteth on the waters
as a brest plate. He deuoureth ꝑ mountaynes, and burneth the wyldernesses: and loke
what is grene, he putteth it out lyke fyre.
The medicyne of all these is, when a cloude
cõmeth hastely: and when a dewe commeth
vpon ꝑ heate, it shalbe refreshed agayne.

In hys worde he stylleth the wynde: In hys councell he setteth ꝑ depe, & (the Lord) Jesus planted it. They that sayle ouer the see, tell of ꝑ perels and harmes therof, and when we heare it with our eares, we maruell therat. For there be straunge wonderous worckes, diuerse maner of nyce beastes and whalfyshes. Thorow hym are all thynges sett in good ordre and perfourmed
and in hys worde all thynges endure.

D I speake moch, but I can not sufficiently attayne vnto it. For he him selfe onely is the perfeccyon of all wordes. We shulde prayse ꝑ Lorde after al oure power, for he is great in all hys worckes. The Lorde is to be feared, yet very greate is he, * and maruelous is hys power. Prayse the Lorde, and ma-gnifye him as moch as ye maye, yet doth he farre excede all prayse. * O magnifie him
with all youre power, and labour earnestly, yet are ye in no wyse able sufficiently to prayse him. Who hath sene him, ꝑ he myght tell vs? * Who can magnifye him so greatly as he is? For there are hyd yet greater thynges then these be: as for vs, we haue se-ne but fewe of his worckes. For the Lord hath made all thynges, and geuen wysdo-
me to soch as feare God.

* Psa.cxlv.a
* Psal. cxl.a
* Deut.b.c. Iohn.i.b.

¶ The.xliiii. Chapter.

¶ Of prayse of certen holy men, Henoch, Noe, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

A Let vs commẽde the noble famous men, and the generacyon of oure
fore elders and fathers. Many mo re glorypous actes hath the Lorde
done, and shewed his great power euer sens
the begynnynge. The noble famous men raygned in theyr kyngdomes, and bare excellent rule. In theyr wysdome & vnderstãdyng, they folowed ꝑ councell shewed in the prophetes. * They led ꝑ folcke thorow the councell and wysdome of ꝑ Scrybes of the people. Wyse sentences are founde in theyr instruccyon. They sought ꝑ swetenes and melody of musycke, and brought forth the pleasaunt songes in scripture. They were ryche also, and coulde comforte and pacifye those that dwelt with them. All these were very noble and honorable men in theyr ge-neracyõs, and were wel reported of in theyr tymes. These haue left a name behynde them, so that theyr prayse shall alwaye be spoken of. Afterward there were some, who se remembraunce is gone. * They came to naught & perysshed, as though they had ne-
uer bene: & became as though they had neuer bene borne, yee and theyr chyldren also
with them.

* Ecclus.xlv.a
* Gen.vii.d.

B Neuertheles these are louyng men, whose ryghteousnesse shall neuer be forgotten,
but cõtynue by theyr posterite. Theyr chyl
dren are an holy good heritage: Theyr sede endured fast in the couenaunt. For theyr sakes shall theyr chyldren & sede cõtynue for euer, & theyr prayse shall neuer be put dow-ne. Theyr bodyes are buryed in peace, but theyr name lyueth for euermore. The people can speake of theyr wysdome, & the con-gregacõ can talke of their prayse. * Enoch walked ryght & acceptably before the Lor-
de: therfore was he translated for an example of amẽdemẽt to the generacions. * Noe was a stedfast & ryghteous man, and in the tyme of wrath he became a reconcylynge.

* Ecclus.xliv.c. Gene.v.c.
* Gene.vi.a. and.vii.viii.

Therfore was he left a remnaunt vnto the earth, when ỹ floude came. An euerlastyng couenaunt was made wt him, that all flesh
*Gen.ix.c. shulde * perishe nomore wt the water. Abra-
*Gen.xvii.a ham was a * greate father of many people, in glory there none lyke vnto him. He kepte the lawe of the hyest, and came into a couenaunt with him. He sett ỹ couenaunt
*Gen.xvii.a. in his flesshe, and when he * was proued, he was founde faythfull. Therfore swore God vnto him wt an othe, that he wolde blesse all people in his sede, that he wolde multiplye
and increase him as ỹ dust of the earth, & to exalte his sede as the starres: yee & that his sede shuld haue ỹ possessyon, an inheritaunce of the lande from see to see and from ỹ ry-
uer vnto the borders of the worlde.

*Gen.xxvi.a *With Isaac dyd he stablysh the same couenaũt, for Abraham his fathers sake. Yee that gracyous blessynge & health of all mẽ,
and couenaunt dyd he stablysh with Isaac,
and made it to rest vpon the head of Jacob.
*Gen.xxviii & xxix.xxx. He knewe him * in that he prospered him so well and richely, and gaue him an heretage Josue.xviii. and sundered his porcyon by it selfe, * and and.xxi. parted it amõge ỹ twelue tribues. Mercyfull men brought he out of him, which foun-
de fauoure in the syght of all flesshe.

¶The.xlv.Chapter.

¶The prayse of Moses, Aaron, and Phinehes.

A
*Exo.xi.a. MOses * be loued of God & men, whose Actes.vii.c. remembraunce is in hye prayse: him ỹ the Lord made lyke in ỹ glory of the sayntes, and magnifyed him, so that the enemyes stode in awe of hym, thorow
his wordes he dyd greate wonders. He made hym greate in the syghte of kynges, gaue
hym commaundemente before hys people,
*Nu.vii.a. & shewed hym his gloryous power. * He sta
blysshed hym with faythfulnes & meknes,
and chose hym out of all men. For he herde
*Exo.xx.b. his voyce, and he led him in the darcke clou-
de, * and there he gaue him the commaũdementes, yee the lawe of lyfe and wysdome
that he myght teach Jacob the couenaunt,
and Israel hys lawes.

25 He chose Aaron hys brother also out of the tribe of Leui, exalted him, & made him
*Exo.xxviii. soch lyke. * An euerlastyng couenaunt ma&. de he with hym, and gaue hym ỹ prestlode in ỹ people. He made hym glorious in bew-tyfull araye, and clothed hym with the gar ment of honoure. He put perfecte ioye vpon hym, and gyrded hym wt strẽgth. He decke hym with lyde clothes, and a tunycle, with an ouerbody cote also & a gyrdle. Rounde about made he him belles of golde, and that
*Exo.xxviii. many: * that when he went in, the sounde &. myght be herde, ỹ they myght make a noy-se in the Sanctuary, and geue ỹ people war nynge. The holy garment was wrought and brodered with golde, palow syche and purple. And in the brestlappe there was a goodly worcke, wherin was fastened lyght
and perfectnesse.

*Upon the same also there was a worcke C
fastened, & set with costly precyous stones, *Exo.xxix.
all bounde with golde: and thys he brought in his ministracyon. The stones were fastne-ned for a remembraunce, after the nombre of the twelue trybes of Israell. Upon hys mytre there was a plate of pure golde, a gra
uen ymage of holynes, a famous and noble
worcke, garnyshed, and pleasaunt to loke
vpon. Before hym were there sene no soch fayre ornamẽtes, and these it behoued hym alwaye to vse: There might none other put them on, but onely his chyldren & his chyl-ders chyldren perpetually. Daylie perfourmed he hys burntofferynges two tymes.
* Moses fylled hys handes, and anoynted *Leui.viii.
hym with holy oyle.

Thys was now confirmed hym with an D euerlastynge couenaunt, and to his sede, as the dayes of heauen, namely: that hys chyl
dren shulde alwaye mynystre before hym,
and perfourme ỹ office of the prestlode, and wyshe the people good in hys name. Before all men lyuynge chose he hym, ỹ he shul-de offre incense before the Lorde, and make odours for a swete sauoure & remembraun-ce, that he shulde reconcyle the people of the Lord with hym agayne. * He gaue him au- *Deu.xvii.c
ctorite also in hys commaundementes and and.xxxiii.a Malach.ii.a
in the couenaunt, that he shulde teach Jacob the statutes and testimonies, and to enfourme Israel in his lawe.

*There stode vp certayne agaynst E
hym, & had enuye at hym in the wyldernes: *Nu.xvi.a namely, they that were of Dathan, & Abi-
rams syde, and the furyous congregacyon
of Chore. Thys the Lorde sawe, and it dys-pleased hym, and in his wrothfull indigna-
